THE Chamberlain of London brought an Action of Debt in London in the Guild-Hall there againſt divers perſons: And it was grounded upon an Act of Common Council, or Ordinance made by the Mayor, Aldermen and Comminalty of the City at their common aſſembly (which they make by cuſtom, and which amongſt others is confirmed by divers Acts of Parliament) by which it was ordained, That if any Citizen, freeman or ſtranger within the ſaid City put any Broad-cloth to ſale within the City of London before that it be brought to Blackwell-Hall to be viewed and ſearched, ſo that it may appear to be ſaleable, and that Hallage be paid for the ſame, ſcil. 1 d. for every cloth, that he ſhall forfeit for every cloth 6 s. 8 d. And further it was ordained, For ſuch forfeiture the Chamberlain of London for the time being ſhould have an Action of debt, &c. And becauſe the Defendants have broken the ſaid Ordinance, for the penalty inflicted by the ſaid Ordinance, the Chamberlain of London brought an Action of debt in London, and the ſame was removed by Habeas Corpus into the Kings Bench. And it was moved that thoſe in London cannot make Laws and Ordinances to bind the Kings Subjects, and principally ſtrangers, for then they ſhall have as high authority as an Act of Parliament: And 2. The ſaid Ordinance (as it was urged) was againſt Law, and the freedom and liberty of the Subject, to compel him to bring his Cloaths to any one place. 3. The impoſition of 1 d. for Hallage was a charge to the Subject, and by the ſame reaſon they may impoſe 1 d. they may impoſe 2 d. and ſo in infinitum. And one of the Inner Temple of Council with the City moved to have a Procedendo. It appeareth by many precedents, That it hath been uſed within the City of London time out of mind, for thoſe of London to make Ordinances and Conſtitutions for the good order and government of the Citizens, &c. conſonant to Law and reaſon, which they call Acts of Common Council. Alſo all their Cuſtoms are confirmed by divers Acts of Parliaments, and all ſuch Ordinances, Conſtitutions or By-laws are allowed by the Law, which are made for the true and due execution of the Laws and Statutes of the Realm, and for the well government and order of the Body incorporate. And all other which are contrary and repugnant to the Laws and Statutes of the Realm are void and of no effect: And as to ſuch Ordinances and By-laws, theſe differences were obſerved; Inhabitants of a Town without any cuſtom may make Ordinances or By-laws for the reparation of the Church, or a high way, or any ſuch thing which is for the general good of the publick; and in ſuch Caſe the greater part ſhall bind all the reſt without any Cuſtom. Vide 44 E. 3. 19. But if it be for their own private profit, as for their well ordering of their Common of Paſture, or the like, there without Cuſtom they cannot make By-laws: And if it be a Cuſtom, then the greateſt part ſhall not bind the leſs, if it be not warranted by the Cuſtom. For as Cuſtom createth them, ſo they ought to be warranted by the Cuſtom. Vide 8 E. 2. Aſſiſe 413. Alſo Corporations cannot make Ordinances or Conſtitutions without Cuſtom, or the Kings Charter, if not for things which concern the Commonwealth, as reparations of Church or common high ways, and the like. Vide 44 E. 3. 19. 8 E. 2. Aſſiſe 413. 21 E. 4. 54. 11 H. 7. 13. 21 H. 7. 20. & 40. 15 Eliz. Dier 322. [b] [63]

And as to the Caſe at Bar many Statutes were made for the true making of woollen Cloth, which is the principal Commodity of this Realm; and to the intent the ſaid Statutes might be the better executed without any deceit, the ſaid Act of Common Council was made, that they ſhall be brought to Blackwell-Hall, as to a publick place and known, to the intent they might be ſearched and viewed, if they were made according to the ſaid Statutes. So the ſaid Ordinance being made for the better keeping and execution of the ſaid Laws, to prevent all frauds and falſities, was good and allowable by the Law. Alſo the aſſeſſing of the ſaid 1 d. was good, becauſe it was pro bono publico, and it was competent and reaſonable, having regard to the benefit which the Subject enjoyed by reaſon of the ſaid Ordinances; and ſuch aſſeſſments being for the maintenance of the publick good, and not pro privato lucro, were maintenable by the Law; and it was not to be ſaid a burthen or charge to the Subject when he reaped a benefit by it. But it is like to Pontage, Murage, Toll, and the like, as it appeareth in 13 H. 4. 14. in which Caſes the ſum for reparations of Bridges, Walls, &c. ought to be ſo reaſonable, that the Subject have more benefit thereby then charge. [b]

Alſo the penalty inflicted upon the offender, be he Citizen or ſtranger, is lawful, the offence being done within the City, and the ſum being competent and proportionable to the offence, and without a penalty the Ordinance ſhall be in vain; for Oderunt peccare mali formidine pœnæ. And the appointing of their Chamberlain, being a publick Officer to bring the Action of Debt was well, and allowable by Law; and the Ordinance being according to Law, may be put in execution without any other allowance, notwithſtanding the Statute of 19 H. 7. cap. 7.

And after great deliberation Wray chief Juſtice, by the advice of the other Juſtices, granted a Procedendo. Vide 2 E. 3. 7. John de Brittains Caſe. The King granted by his Charter, that all manner of Ships coming to ſuch a Haven laden with Merchandizes, ſhould be unladen at a certain place, and not elſewhere, to the intent he might be better anſwered his Cuſtoms and other duties.

Clark's Case.

[64] IN an Action of false Imprisonment brought by Clark against Gape; the Defendant justified the imprisonment, because that King E. 6. did incorporate the Town of S. Albans by the name of Mayor, &c. and granted to them to make Ordinances: And shewed, that the Queen appointed the Term to be kept there, and that they with the assent of the Plaintiff and other Burgesses, did assess a sum upon every inhabitant for the charges in erecting the Courts there; and ordained, That if any refuse to pay it, that he should be imprisoned, &c. and because the Plaintiff being a Burgess, &c. refused to pay, &c. he as Mayor justified; And it was adjudged no plea, for this Ordinance is against the Statute of Magna Charta cap. 29. Nullus liber homo imprisonetur; which Act hath been confirmed above 30 times, and the Plaintiffs assent cannot alter the Law in such Case: But it was resolved, that they might have inflicted a reasonable penalty but not imprisonment, which penalty they might limit to be levied by distress, or by Action of Debt, and the Plaintiff had Judgment.

Jeffrey's Case.

[b] William Jeffrey Gent. brought a Prohibition against Abraham Renshley and Thomas Foster, and declared, That by the Law of this Realm, the Parishioners of every Parish where they are dwelling ought to repair their own Church, and not the Parishioners of any other Parish, &c. The said Thomas and Abraham being Church-wardens of the Parish of Halysham in the County of Sussex, have sued the Plaintiff in the Spiritual Court before Doctor Drury in the Dioces of Chichester for certain monies imposed upon the said William Jeffrey without his assent for 30 acres of Marsh and 100 acres of land which the said William Jeffrey hath, and occupieth in the said Parish of Halysham, for the reparation of the Church of Halysham, and have constrained him to answer to certain Articles, scil. that the said Church was in decay, and which cannot be repaired for less than 70*l.* And that the said Church-wardens of the said Church for the time being, anno Dom. 1589. and two years before, with the assent of the greater part of the Parishioners of the said Parish, juxta quantitatem & qualitatem possession' & reddit' infra dict' parochiam existen', determined and agreed to make a taxation for the repair of the said Church; and that notice of such meeting was given in the said Church, and also proclaimed in the Market; and that at the day appointed, the Church-wardens and greater part of the Parishioners of Halysham who were there met together made a Tax, scil. of every acre of Marsh land 4 d. and of every acre of arrable land 2 d. to be paid by the occupiers of them in Halysham aforesaid; and that the said William Jeffrey the said 30 acres of Marsh, and 100 acres of land did occupy, or receive rent for them; and that all the said Tax of the said Town did not exceed 50*l.* And further declared, That the said William Jeffrey at the time of the said Tax, and long time before, and yet is an inhabitant of the Parish
[67] of Chiddingly within the said County of Sussex, and did not inhabit within the Parish of Halysham, and that he hath pleaded the said matter in the Spiritual Court, and the Judge refused to allow it. And upon this Declaration Coke of Council with the Defendant did demurr in Law. And after many Arguments at the Bar and Bench it was adjudged, That a Consultation shall be granted. And in this Case these Points were resolved.

1. That the Spiritual Court hath conusans de reparatione corporis sive navis Ecclesiæ; and that appeareth by Britton who wrote in 5 E. 1. lib. 1. cap. 4. fol. 11. and in the Statute of Circumspecte agatis, &c. but in rebus manifestis errat qui authoritates legum allegat, quia perspicue vera non sunt probanda, because that he who endeavoureth to prove them, obscureth them. And where it was objected, That the cause that every Parishioner is charged to the reparations of the Church, and to provide convenient ornaments in it for the greater convenience and honour of Divine Service, is first for the spiritual comfort which he hath in hearing of the word of God there for his instruction in the true way to heaven in celebration of the Sacraments, and in presenting to God their prayers, not only privately, but with the great Congregation to be thankful to God for all his benefits, and to desire of him all things necessary, &c. in respect of which inestimable benefits, he is chargeable to repair his proper Church in which he receiveth them. But shall not be forced to the reparation of any other Church in another Parish in which he doth not inhabit. And the description of this word (Parochia) was observed, Parochia est locus in quo degit populus alicujus Ecclesiæ.

2. It was objected, That it shall be hard to charge the said Jeffreys to such tax, because he was dwelling in another Town, and never consorted with them of Halysham at any of their assemblies or meetings for such purposes.

3. It

3. It was objected, That the Libel in the Spiritual Court against the said Jeffrey was in the disjunctive, that the said William Jeffrey occupied the said lands, or received rent for them, upon which Libel if Kenshley and Foster shall have a Consultation, although that Jeffrey doth not occupy the lands himself, but a farmor in Halysham who payeth to him rent, that yet Jeffrey may be charged, which shall be against Law and reason, and against the common experience of all England. 1. It was answered and resolved first, That although that the house wherein Jeffrey dwelt be in another Parish, yet for as much as he hath lands in the Parish of Halysham in his proper possession and manurance, he is in Law Parochianus de Hayleſham. For the place where he lieth, sleepeth or eateth, doth not make him Parishioner only; but also for as much as he manureth lands in Hayleſham, and by that is resident upon it, that maketh him a Parishioner of Hayleſham also as to this purpose. [b]

2. If in this Case Jeffrey shall not be charged to the reparation of the Church of Hayleſham, for those lands which himself occupieth there, no person shall be charged for them, upon which great inconvenience will follow; for one who inhabiteth in the next Town, may occupy the greatest part of the lands in another Town; and so Churches in these days shall come to ruin: But it was resolved, when there is a farmor of the same lands, the lessor who receiveth rent for them shall not be charged in respect of his rent, because that there is an inhabitant, and Parishioner who may be charged; and the receit of the rent doth not make the lessor a Parishioner.

3. In this Case the charge is upon the person, and not upon the land, but is upon the person in respect of the land, for the more equality and indifferency. Vide Register 44. inter Conſultationes. Conſultatio ad procedendum contra parochianos ſuper emendationem corporis ſive navis Eccleſiæ, &c. ubi prohibitio de laico feodo prius porrecta fuit, which is to be intended when the Tax was of the person in respect of his land.

4. Although that he dwell in another Town, yet for as much as in Judgment of Law he is inhabitant and Parishioner of Hayleſham, he may come if he will to the assemblies of the Parishioners of Hayleſham, when they meet together for such purposes: And Sir Christopher Wray chief Justice said, That for as much as the conusans of the reparations of Churches doth not belong to the Spiritual Court, it was needful to hear the opinion of those who profess the Ecclesiastical Law as to this Point; and so it was done. And thereupon divers of them under their hands in writing did certifie their opinions, That Jeffrey by their Law was a Parishioner of Hayleſham as to this purpose, and chargeable to the reparations of the Church of Hayleſham: And that the Churchwardens and greater part of the Parishioners (upon such general warning) met together, might make such a Tax by their Law, and that the same shall not charge the land but the person in respect of the land for equality and indifferency.

5. As to the Objection, That the Libel was in the disjunctive, &c. it was answered and resolved, That although that the Libel be so, yet the Defendants shall have a Consultation only in respect of such lands which the said William Jeffrey at the time of the said Tax had in his own hands, and so much the rather because that the said Jeffrey hath confessed in his Declaration, that he at the time of the Tax had the said lands in his own Occupation. And a special Consultation was awarded: And that was the first leading Case that ever was adjudged and Reported in our year Books as to this purpose.

And afterwards Pasch. 41 Eliz. between Paget and Ba. in the Kings Bench in the time of Popham chief Justice, the Point came again in question upon another Tax, a Prohibition being gotten after many arguments and great deliberation, at length upon view of the Record of the Case at Bar, which was adjudged in the Point, it was resolved again by Popham chief Justice and the whole Court, that a Consultation should be granted according to this Judgment; and now it is generally allowed and received for Law. [68]

Observe Reader this Case to many purposes, and the consequents of it, for it is a good Case to many purposes.

Mich. 33 & 34 Eliz. in the Court of Wards.

The Lord Cheyney's Case.

SIR Thomas Cheyney Knight, Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, 1 Eliz. made his Will in writing, and thereby devised to Henry his son divers Mannors, and to the heirs of his body, the remainder to Thomas Cheyney of Woodley, and to the heirs males of his body, upon condition that he or they or any of them shall not alien, discontinue, &c. And it was a Question in the Court of Wards, between Sir Thomas Perot heir general to the Lord Warden, and divers of the purchasors of Sir Thomas Cheyney, if the said Sir Thomas shall be received to prove by witnesses that it was the intent and meaning of the devisor, to include his son and heir within these words of the Condition (he or they) and not only to restrain Thomas Cheyney of Woodley and his heirs males of his body: But Wray and Anderson chief Justices upon conference had with the other Justices resolved, That he shall not be received to such averment out of the Will, for the Will concerning lands, &c. ought to be in writing, and construction of Wills ought to be collected out of the words of the Will in writing, and not by any averment out of it; for it shall be full of great inconvenience, that none shall know by the written words of a Will, what construction to make, or advice to give, but that it shall be controlled by collateral averments out of [b]

the Will: But if a man hath two sons both baptized by the name of John, and conceiving that the eldest (who hath been long absent) is dead, deviseth his land by his Will in writing to his son John generally, and in truth the eldest is living, in this Case the younger son may in pleading or in evidence alledge the devise to him, and if the same be denied, he may produce witnesses to prove his fathers intent, that he thought the other to be dead; or that he at the time of the Will made, named his younger son John, and the writer left out the addition of younger: As in 47 E. 3. 16. the Case was; Robert Peynel had issue two sons baptized by the name of William, and levied a fine to Sir John Fannenbrigges and others comeeo, &c. who granted and rendred to Robert and William his son generally; and after the death of Robert, William the younger son brought a Scire facias against the heir of William the eldest; and the youngest by the rule of the Court did averr, that the fine was levied to make him heir; and upon that issue was taken. And no inconvenience can rise if averment in such Case be taken in Case of devise by Will, for he who seeth such Will that his land is devised to his son John, cannot be deceived by any secret, invisible averment; for when he seeth the devise to his son John, he ought at his peril to inquire which John the testator intendeth, which may easily be known by him who writeth the Will, and others who were privy to his intent; and if no direct proof can be made of his intent, then the devise is void for the incertainty, as the render shall be also in the said Case of a fine, as to William, for the Law shall not make the one or the other by construction inheritable, for neither the eldest son shall have it by course of Law, because the eldest needeth not have addition, nor the younger shall have it by construction, by the reason the father neded not to have limited the land to the eldest, because that the land after the death of the father shall descend to the eldest. But he shall have it who the father intended to advance with it, and for want of proof of such intent, the Will or the render for the incertainty (as hath been said) is void; and so the doubt in 11 H. 6. 13. well explained.

Cases of Usury.

Mich. 33 & 34 Eliz. in the Kings Bench.

Burton's Case.

[69] IN a Replevin brought by Humphrey Burton against H. H. he avowed, because Thomas Woodhouse Esquire was seised of the place where, &c. containing 10 acres in Hicklyn in the County of Norfolk, inter alia; and so seised 17 Julii anno 21 Eliz. by his deed granted to A. G. Esquire a yearly rent of 20 l. issuing out of the place where, &c. inter alia, to perceive to him and his heirs at the feasts of the Nativity of Christ and S. John Baptist yearly to be paid; The first payment to begin at the feast of the Nativity of Christ, which shall be in anno Domini 1580. And afterwards A. by deed acknowledged before Justices of Peace, and Clark of the Peace of the said County, and enrolled according to the Statute did bargain and sell the said rent to the Defendant and his heirs, who for the rent behind did avow: The Plaintiff in bar of the said avowry, pleaded the Statute of Usury, and alledged, that the said 17 Julii, anno 21. inter eosdem Thomam Woodhouse, & A. G. taliter concordatum fuit per viam corruptæ barganiæ, scil. quod prædictus A. mutuo daret præfat Thomæ Woodhouse centum libras, & quod idem Thomas concederet to the said Anthony and his heirs the rent of 20 l. under Condition, That if the said Thomas should pay to the said A. 100 l. 17 Julii, 1580. that then the said rent should cease; upon which corrupt agreement Thomas there then received the said 100 l. and there then granted the said rent according [b] under such Condition as is aforesaid, according to the said agreement; Qui quidem annuus reditus pro prædict' 10 l. in forma prædict' solubil' excedit secundum rat' 10 l. pro 100 l. pro uno anno, contra formam Statuti, &c. and conveyed a lease of the land to the Plaintiff for 21 years. And note the distress was 27 Decemb. anno 33. for 20 l. behind at Michaelmas then past; upon which the avowant did demurr in Law; and Judgment was given for the avowant. For althought it was objected, That the Plaintiff in bar of his avowry hath alledged, that the said grant was upon a corrupt contract against the Statute, and the avowant hath demurred thereupon, by which he hath confessed all matters in fact, yet because that upon the matter disclosed in the Bar, it appeareth to the Court, that it was not a corrupt contract against the said Statute, and so his allegation of the same repugnant to the matter shewed by himself in his bar to the avowry; and a demurrer is not a confession of all matters in fact, but of all such matters in fact which are well and sufficiently pleaded; for this cause Judgment was given for the avowant.

And the cause that the same was not against the Statute of Usury was, That nothing was to be paid by Thomas Woodhouse the grantor within a year and a quarter after the grant made; for within the 17 of July 1579. and Christmas 1580. no rent is appointed to be paid. And if the grantor had paid the 100 l. the 17th of July 1580. the rent should cease without any thing paying for the said 100 l. So that the Court said, It was a plain bargain, and purchace conditional of such a rent, and no Usury. It was in the election of the grantor to have paid the said 100 l. and to have frustrated the rent, so that the grantee (as the nature of usury is) was not assured of any recompence for the forbearance of his 100 l. for for a year, and the ſaid rent of 20 l. per annum is not that penalty to the grantor, and aſſurance to the grantee for the payment of the ſaid 100 l. But it was reſolved by the whole Court, That if it had been agreed between the grantor and grantee, that notwithſtanding ſuch power of redemption, that the 100 l. ſhall not be paid at the day, and that the clauſe of redemption was inſerted to make evaſion out of the Statute, then it had been an uſurious bargain and contract within the ſaid Statute. For if in truth the contract be uſurious againſt the Statute, no colours nor ſhews of words will ſerve, but the party may ſhew the ſame, and ſhall not be concluded or eſtopped by any deed, or any other matter whatſoever; for the Statute giveth averment in ſuch Caſe.

And Popham chief Juſtice ſaid, If A. come to B. to borrow a 100 l. B. lendeth it to him if he will give him for the loan of it for a year 20 l. if the ſon of A. be then alive, the ſame is uſury within the Statute, for if it ſhould be out of the Statute for the incertainty of the life, the Statute ſhould be of little effect: And by the ſame reaſon he may add one life, he may add many; And ſo like to a Mathematical line, which is diviſibilis in ſemper diviſibilia. [70]

Clayton's Caſe.

BEtween Reighnolds Plaintiff, and Clayton Defendant, in an action of Debt upon an Obligation of 60 l. the Caſe was, Clayton requeſted Reighnolds to lend him 30 l. and upon communication betwixt them, Reighnolds doth lend Clayton 30 l. 6 Decemb. 34 Eliz. until the ſecond day of June next following, to pay to him for the principal and loan of it 33 l. at the ſaid ſecond day of June, if the ſon of the obligee be then alive, and if he die before the ſaid day, that then he ſhall pay him but 27 l. which was 3 l. leſs than the principal. And it was reſolved by the whole Court, That it was an uſurious contract within the Statute, according to the opinion of Popham chief Juſtice before, and the reaſons there given by him, Uſura dicitur ab uſu, & ære, quaſi uſu æra, i.e. uſus eris: Et Uſura eſt commodum certum, quod propter uſum rei mutatæ recipitur. And this deſcription agreeth with that Judgment: For if upon the firſt contract he who lendeth reſerveth no certain ſumm for the loan; but *ſecundario ſperet de aliqua retributione ad voluntatem ejus qui mutuatus eſt, hoc non eſt vitioſum. Hoe's Caſe.

IN an Action of Debt brought by Hoe in the Kings Bench, Phelix Marſhal was bail for the Defendant; and afterwards before Judgment, the Plaintiff releaſed to Phelix Marſhal all Actions, duties, and demands; and afterwards Judgment was given againſt the Defendant, and upon default of the Defendant a Scire facias iſſued againſt Phelix Marſhal, who pleaded the ſaid general Releaſe; upon which the Plaintiff did demurr: And it was adjudged that this releaſe ſhall not bar the Plaintiff; for the words of the bail are conditionally, that is to ſay, Si contingeret prædict' defendentem debit' & damn' ill' præfat' quer' minimè ſolvere, aut ſe priſonæ Mareſchall' ea occaſione non reddere, &c. ſo that it cannot be by the ſaid bail any duty till Judgment be given, for before that none can know to what ſumm the debt and damages will amount: ſo that he who is bail for the Defendant is not bound in any ſumm at the firſt: But his recogniſance being general, ſhall be reduced to a certainty by the Judgment, and not before; And therefore there is a difference between a certain duty upon condition ſubſequent, for that may be releaſed before the day of performance of the condition, and a duty uncertain at the firſt, and upon condition precedent to be certain after; that in the mean time is but a meer poſſibility, and therefore cannot be releaſed, for this recogniſance doth not create a duty preſently, but ſhall produce a duty after upon a Contingat. [71]

Note, that it was adjudged, Trin. 4 Eliz. Rot. 1207. in the Common Pleas, That by the releaſe of all Actions, ſuits, and quarrels, a Covenant before the breach of it is not releaſed, becauſe that there is not any cauſe of Action, nor any certain duty before the breach of it, but the breach of it ought to precede the Action, and the cauſe of the duty, and for this cauſe ſuch releaſe was no bar. Vide Dier 5 Eliz. 217. acc. And vide Littleton in his Chapter of Warranty 170. That by releaſe of all demands a warrantry (which is a Covenant real) as is there ſaid, is extinct, yet it is executory and incertain. But there the feoffee to whom the warranty is made may preſently have a Warrantia Chartæ, and bind the land pro loco and tempore. But ſee 35 H. 8. Dier 57. that by the releaſe of Covenants, the Covenant is diſcharged before the breach of it, which is proved by Littleton alſo, fol. 170. & 16 E. 3. Barr. 245. Seint John's Caſe.

[b] GArdener had a Judgment in the Kings Bench againſt one Seint John of the County of Bedford, and had a Capias ad ſatisfaciend' againſt him, and got a Warrant from the Sheriff to a ſpecial Baily to arreſt him, who came to Seint Johns houſe to arreſt him, and becauſe he feared reſiſtance he brought with him a Dagge. And Seint John being then one of the Juſtices of Peace of the ſaid County of Bedford, having notice of it, ſent one of his ſervants for him, who finding him armed with a Dagge, arreſted him, and brought him before the ſaid Seint John being the next Juſtice of Peace; who upon examination of the matter committed him to the next Gaol, there to remain till he had paid 10 l. according to the Statute of 33 H. 8. cap. 6. which prohibiteth the ſhooting in, or carrying, &c. of any Handgun. And it was objected, that a Dagge was not within the word Handgun, for it was ſaid, That Dagges were not in uſe at the time of the making of the ſaid Act, but invented after; and although they are uſed with the hand, yet it is not known by the name of Handgun, no more then Hagbut, or Demyhake, which were uſed with the hand, but notwithſtanding are known by particular names, and are not comprehended within this word Handgun: For they are not particularly named with the Handgun in the Statute: So a Dagge is to be diſtinguiſhed by ſpecial name from a Handgun. Wherefore for theſe reaſons, 1. That it was not in uſe at the time of the making of the Act; 2. That it was known by a ſpecial name, It was objected, that the carrying of the ſaid Dag was not within the ſaid Act. But it was reſolved by the whole Court, that it was within the ſaid Statute, and comprehended within the word (Hand-gun) for although no Gun was known by the name of a Dagge at the time of the making of the ſaid Act, [62] and although that in common ſpeech a Dagge is known by a ſpecial name, yet for as much as he who made the Dagge, had his invention from the Handgun, and it is not any new kind in ſubſtance, but hath only a little alteration in the form and quality, for this cauſe it is comprehended within this word (Handgun,) for if a little alteration or addition ſhall defeat the penalty of the Act, the Statute ſhall be of ſmall effect. And it hath been explained by ſundry Proclamations, That Piſtols, Dagges, &c. were within the ſaid Act: And it was ſaid, That where the Act doth forbid Croſs-bows, thereby alſo Stone-bows alſo are forbidden, cauſa qua ſupra. And the preamble of the ſaid Act ſpeaketh of a little Handgun. But it was reſolved for another cauſe, That the carrying of the Dagge was not forbidden by the ſaid Act, for the Sheriff, or any of his miniſters, for the better execution of Juſtice, may carry with them Handguns, or other Weapons invaſive, or defenſive, and the ſame is not reſtrained by the general prohibition of the ſaid Act. Vide 3 H. 7. 1.

Williams's Caſe.

[b] THomas Williams Eſquire brought an Action upon the Caſe in the Kings Bench againſt Henry Jones Clark, and declared where the ſaid Henry being Vicar of Alderbury in the County of Shrewsbury, ought and is bound by himſelf or another Chaplain to celebrate Divine Service at Wollaſton in his Chappel of S. John within the ſcite and precinct of his Mannor of Wollaſton aforeſaid, and within the Pariſh of Alderbury aforeſaid, there of ancient time built, every Sunday by the year, and every feaſt day per annum, before noon of the ſame day; and to adminiſter the Sacraments to the ſaid Thomas, hominibus, tenentibus, tenentibus & servientibus suis infra præcinctum ejusdem manerii inhabitan' commoran'. Idemque Henricus Vicarius & omnes prædecessores sui Vicarii Ecclesiæ paroch' de Alderbury præd', a tempore cujus contrarii memoria hominum non existit, per seipsum vel hujusmodi Capellanum ad celebrand' divina servitia in forma prædicta in in Capella præd', ac sacrament' & sacramentalia præfat' Thom' Williams & antecessor' suis, ac omnibus illis quorum statum idem Thomas modo habet, ac hominibus servientibus, & tenentibus suis infra dictum scitum manerii præd' commorantibus, per totum annum ministrand' vel administratur' annuatim exhibere & sustentare consueverunt. Prædictus tamen Henricus Jones nunc Vicarius Ecclesiæ parochialis de Alderbury præd', per seipsum vel hujusmodi Capellan' divinum servicium in Capella præd' in forma præd', ac ad Sacramenta & sacramentalia eidem Thomæ ac hominibus, servient', & tenent' suis ibidem in forma præd' ministrand', licet sæpius requisit', per magnum tempus, videlicet, a festo Pentecoste ultim' præterit' ant' exhibition' hujusmodi billæ, usque exhibition' hujusmodi bill' exhibere & sustentare recusavit, unde dicit quod deterioratus est, &c. And the Defendant pleaded, Not guilty, and was found guilty: And after divers motions in arrest of [73] Judgment, and the matter well debated at the Bench, at last it was resolved by Popham chief Justice, and the whole Court, that in this Case an Action upon the Case doth not lie, but the remedy which the Plaintiff hath is to sue in the Spiritual Court: But if the Chappel had been private for him and his servants and family within the said Mannor, there a private Action upon the Case upon prescription shall be maintenable by the Lord of the Mannor, &c. for in such Case he himself only (and none of his family) shall have the Action; and although that the Divine Service be spiritual, yet for as much as the same by prescription doth belong to a private person, and to be celebrated for his ease within his Mannor, which shall be intended to begin at first by grant, for this cause for the not doing of the spiritual Service an Action upon the Case lieth, and damages shall be recovered for them; and therewith agreeth 22 H. 6. 46. in the Prior of Woodburn's Case. But when the Chappel is not private to him and his family, but publick and common to all his tenants in the same Mannor, which may be many and of great number; there no Action upon the Case lieth by the Lord, for then every of the tenants may have his Action upon the Case as well as the Lord himself, and so infinite Actions for one default, Et boni Judicis est, lites dirimere, & expedit reipublicæ ut sit finis litium propter communem omnium utilitatem; and yet they shall not be without remedy in such Case, for (as it hath been said) they may and ought to sue for such default in the spiritual Court, and there the same shall be redressed. Lit. lib. 2. cap. Frankalmoigne 30. b. Vide 27 H. 8. 27. a. A man shall not have an Action upon the Case for a Nusans done in the high way, for it is a common Nusans, and then it is not reason that a particular person have the Action; for by the same reason that one person shall have an Action for it, for the same reason every one may have an Action, and then he shall be 100 times punished for one and the same cause. But if any particular person after the Nusans done hath more particular damage than any other, there for his particular injury, he shall have a particular Action upon the Case: And for common Nusances, which are equal to all the Kings liege people, the Common Law hath appointed other Courts for the Correction and reforming of them, scil. Leets and Tourns, &c. 5 E. 4. 2. b. acc. vide 2 E. 4. 9. a.

The Case of the Orphans of London.

NOte it was resolved by the whole Court, That if any Orphan of London, who is by the custom of London under the Government of the Mayor and Aldermen of the said City sue in the Eccleſi- [b] astical Court, or in the Court of Requests, &c. for any goods, monies, or chattels due to them either by the custom of London, or by any devise or legacy in the Will of their ancestor, or to have an account, that a Prohibition will lie, because the Government of the Orphans doth appertain to the Mayor and Aldermen, and they have Jurisdiction of them. And Popham said, That if the Lord of a Mannor have probate of Wills within his Mannor, if any such Will be to be proved in the Ecclesiastical Court, a prohibition lieth, because the Jurisdiction belongeth to another, otherwise the party may have double trouble. And I have seen two presidents of Prohibitions granted upon the Custom of Orphans of London.

Wymarke's Caſe.

[74] ABel Dun brought an Ejectione firmæ againſt William Law, and declared of a leaſe made by Richard Sleford, 9 Nov. 34 Eliz. of a houſe, &c. in Northluffenham in the County of Rutland, for three years: The Defendandant pleaded, That ante præd' tempus quo. &c. the ſaid Richard Sleford was ſeiſed in fee of the tenements aforeſaid; and 9 Maii 32 Eliz. by his deed indented and inrolled within 6 months according to the Statute, Quod quidem ſcriptum indentat' hic in Cur' profert, &c. bargained and ſold the ſaid tenements to Edward Wymark Gent. in fee, by which and by force of the Statute he was ſeiſed, till by the ſaid Sleford diſſeiſed, who made the leaſe in the declaration mentioned, upon whom the defendant by the commandment of Edward Wymark entred, &c. To which the Plaintiff replied and confeſſed the bargain and ſale by the ſaid deed enrolled to Wymark, Modo & forma prout, &c. Et idem Abel ulterius dicit, quod in eodem ſcripto indentato, proviſ. exiſtit modo & forma ſequentibus, videlicet, quod ſi præd' Edwardus Wymark, &c. do not pay 300 l. 2 Nov. 1592. to Eleford, that then the ſaid bargain and ſale ſhall be void; and ſheweth the breach of the Condition, and reentry, and the leaſe made to the Plaintiff, and the Ejectment prout in the declaration, without that that the ſaid Sleford diſſeiſed the ſaid Edward Wymark, &c. upon which the Defendant did demurr in Law. And ſhewed this cauſe according to the Statute, becauſe the Plaintiff in his replication did not ſhew forth the deed indented, which comprehended the condition. And after good debate and conſideration of the matter in Law, it was adjudged for the Plaintiff. And in this Caſe two Points were reſolved by Popham chief Juſtice, and the whole Court.

[b] 1. When any deed is ſhewed in Court, the deed by Judgment of Law doth remain in Court all the Term in which it is ſhewed; but in the end of the Term if the deed be not denied, then the Law doth adjudge it to be in the cuſtody of the party to whom it belongeth; for all the term in Law is but one day, and therefore ſhall be intended to remain in the Court all the Term in which it is ſhewed, but when the Term is cloſed and ended, then there is no Officer in ſuch Caſe to whom the cuſtody of the deed by the Law is appointed, and therefore the party who ſheweth it ſhall have the keeping of it: For a mans evidences are as the ſinews of his lands. And where it appeareth by 38 H. 8. 2. that becauſe the deed in another Term is in the keeping of the party, and not in Court, the defendant ſhall not have Oyer of it; and therewith agreeth 4 H. 7. 18. & 21 H. 7. 20. Alſo Lit. fol. 88. if the tenant in Aſſiſe pleads feoffment by deed poll of the Plaintiff, and ſhew the ſame in Court, in this Caſe (Littleton ſaith) that for as much as the deed is in Court, the feoffee may ſhew to the Court, how that in the deed there are Conditions, &c. but that is to be intended, that he ſhall take advantage of the Condition in the deed in the ſame Term that it was pleaded and ſhewed forth. And therewith agreeth 24 E. 3. 73. b. that when a deed is in Court, one may take advantage of it without having of the deed, 38 E. 3. 8. & 40 Aſſ. pl. 34. acc'. and in 45 E. 3. tit. Feoffm' & Faits. In Aſſiſe againſt ſundry tenants, ſome pleaded as to ſome parcel the deed of the anceſtor of the Plaintiff to them with warranty ſhewed forth in Court; and ſome other of the tenants as to other parcels pleaded in bar by the ſame deed without ſhewing it, and the ſame was challenged, becauſe the deed ought to be ſhewed in Court againſt one, the other could not have advantage of the deed without ſhewing it, but non allocatur. Note when the deed is by one ſhewed in Court, it is not reſpective as to him, but all others ſhall take advantage thereof, 21 E. 4. 49. in the Abbot of Waltham's Caſe. If Letters Patents be enrolled in any Court of Record, one may plead them in the ſame Court without ſhewing them, notwithſtanding that they were not pleaded before; And difference was taken between Letters Patents and other matters of Record, which of their own nature are of Record, and matter in fait; For although that a deed be enrolled in Court, one cannot plead it in the ſame Court without ſhewing of it, Vide 19 H. 6. 6. 19 E. 4. 9. b. 22 H. 8. Record Br. 65. But if a deed be pleaded and ſhewed in Court, and denied, then it ſhall remain in Court for ever, for if it ſhall be found not his deed, it ſhall be damned. 41 Aſſ. 29. 12 H. 4. 8. 7 H. 4. 39. 11 H. 4. 73.

[75] 45 E. 3. 11. And if a deed be denied in Court, for which it remaineth there, this deed may be pleaded in another Court without ſhewing of it, 12 H. 4. 8. & 43 E. 3. 20. acc'. for lex non cogit ad impoſſibilia. Note a good Caſe in 42 E. 3. 18. where the Caſe was, That a feme ſole made a leaſe for life, the leſſee committed Waſt, the husband releaſed and delivered the deed in Owel main to be delivered to the Defendant upon certain conditions performed; the Defendant performed the conditions, the husband got the deed of releaſe and kept the ſame from the leſſee, and he and his wife brought an Action of Waſt, the leſſee upon this ſpecial matter ſhall plead it without ſhewing of it forth. Vide 10 E. 3. 40. If huſband and wife be impleaded in a real Action, where the default of the wife is the default of both, if the demandant taketh the wife of the tenant from him, the ſame ſhall not turn to the default of the tenant. So in Dower, Detinue of Charters, &c. by the demandant is a good plea. 20 H. 7. 5. Tenant by Statute Merchant, or Staple, &c. ſhall not ſhew the deed, for he cometh to the poſſeſſion of the land by proceſs of Law againſt the will of him who hath the deed, and hath no means to come to it; Otherwiſe it is of a leaſe for life or years, &c. Becauſe he cometh in by the leſſor, and might have taken a covenant, or other ſecurity for his peaceable enjoying of the land let to him. And in caſe when the deed is denied, the Law which hath appointed the deed to remain in Court, alſo hath appointed an Officer to have the keeping of it, and that is the Cuſtos Brevium, as appeareth in F. N. B. 244.

2. It

2. It was resolved, That the course of the Kings Bench is, that although that the Plaintiff after the bar pleaded hath day to reply two or three Terms after, no mention shall be made in the Roll of any imparlance or continuance, but when he replieth, the Entry shall be ut supra; Et præd' Abel dicit quod ipse per aliqua per ipsum Williel' superius placit' ab actione sua præcludi non debet, &c. But otherwise it is of a bar there, for that containeth the imparlance and continuance, and is in such form, Et modo ad hunc diem, scil. diem Veneris, &c. isto eodem termino, usque quem diem præd' Willielmus habuit licentiam interloquend'; but no such entry is made upon any Replication, Rejoynder, &c. by which it shall be intended, when they are generally entred upon Record, that they were done in the same Term, in which the bar was pleaded; And by consequence the Plaintiff in the Case at Bar, may take advantage of the condition comprised in the deed shewed forth by the Defendant.

Clifton's Case.

IN a Writ of Waste between Thomas Southcote Esquire, and John Clifton Defendant, the form of the Writ was such; Si Thom' Southcote Arm' fecerit, &c. summon' Johannem Clifton quod sit, &c. quare cum, &c. idem Johannes de terris, domibus, boscis & gardinis in Otterie, quæ tenuit ad vitam Margaretæ nuper uxor' suæ, in jure ipsius Margaret', de præfat' Tho. ex dimissione quam idem Thomas inde fecit præfat' Margaretæ, & cuidam Petro Carewe Militi quondam viro suo, ad vitam eorundem Petri & Margaretæ, fecit vastum, venditionem & destructionem, ad exhæreditationem ipsius Thomæ, & contra formam provision' prædict', ut dicitur, &c. & habeas, &c. Teste 8 Februar' anno 35. [b]

And it was resolved by the whole Court in the Common Pleas, that the said Writ doth not lie; for the recital of the Writ is, Quare cum de communi consilio Regni nostri Angliæ provisum sit, quod non liceat alicui vastum, venditionem, seu destructionem facere de terris, &c. sibi dimissis ad terminum vitæ vel annorum, &c. And in this Case the husband had not any estate for life in this land, but the wife had the estate for life, and the husband had it but in the right of the wife, and so he is not within the said Act; and therefore if a woman tenant for life take husband who committeth Waste, and the wife dieth, the husband shall not be punished for this Waste.

Pilkington's Case.

BEtween Pilkington Plaintiff, and Hastings and others Defendants in a Replevin, it was resolved by the whole Court, That when a distress is taken for damage feasant, that the party may tender amends till the cattel are impounded, but after they are in the custody of the Law, then the tender cometh too short, vide 13 H. 4. 17. & 27 E. 3. 88. And so it was adjudged Trin. 33 Eliz. between Nevil and Segrave. [76]

2. It was resolved, That tender of amends to the Bailiff is not good, for he cannot deliver the distress once taken, no more than he can change the avowry of his Master, or demand a rent upon condition of reentry.

The Earl of Pembrook's Case.

IN an Action upon the Case by the Earl of Pembrook, against Sir Henry Barkley, for interrupting him of certain Walks in the Forest of Selwood; The Defendant pleaded a grant of them by the said Earl to [b] the Lord Maurice Barkley in tail by deed shewn forth. It was holden by Popham chief Justice, and the whole Court, That in the same Term the Plaintiff may pray that the deed be entred in hæc verba, and afterwards he may demurr, or take issue at his pleasure, but at another Term the deed shall not at his prayer be entred in hæc verba, although he would demurr upon it, for then the deed is out of Court: And afterwards the deed upon the prayer in the same Term was entred in hæc verba. The Earl pleaded, that ulterius per scriptum prædictum provisum fuit, (without shewing forth any part) because that the deed was entred in hæc verba; quod nota, good policy. And the Earl shewed the condition and the breach of it: Nota bene.

Paget's Case.

BEtween William Paget Esquire Plaintiff, and Edward Cary and Elizabeth his wife Defendants in Wast, in the Common Pleas, it was resolved, That if there be tenant for life, the remainder for life, the remainder in fee, if tenant for life doth Wast in trees, and afterwards he in the remainder for life dieth, the Action of Wast is maintenable for Wast done in the life of him in the remainder for life, for it was to the dis-inheritance of him in the remainder in fee; and now the impediment, which was the mean estate for life is taken away. Et remoto impedimento emergit actio. And as it was there said, so it was adjudged in 9 Eliz. The same Law if he in the remainder for life after the Wast surrender his estate to him in the remainder or reversion in fee. And where it was objected, That at the time of the Wast it could not be to the damage of him in the remainder in fee in respect of the mean estate for life: To that it was answered and resolved, when the tree is severed, the property thereof belongeth to him in [77] the remainder in fee; And where it is said in some Books that he in the remainder or reversion in fee shall not have an Action of Wast, it is to be intended during the continuance of the mean remainder; And where in other Books it is said, That in such Case the Action of Wast well lies, it is to be intended after the death of him in the remainder for life. Quia cum aliquid impeditur propter unum, eo remoto, tollitur impedimentum: And so all your Books are well reconciled. Vide 11 E. 3. Receit 118. 4 E. 3. 18. 6. Cottes Case, 33 E. Wast 114. 5 E. 3. 3. 10 E 4. 9. Boothe's Case.

GGeorge Booth brought an Action of Wast against Skevington, and counted that Sir William Booth demised for years to Ensor, who assigned it to Skevington. The Defendant pleaded an assignment to Elizabeth Cave, before which assignment no Wast was done; The Plaintiff in his Replication shewed the Statute of 11 H. 6. cap. 5. and that the grant to Elizabeth Cave was to the intent, that they might not know against whom to bring his Action of Wast; and averred that he took the profits; The defendant rejoyned, that Elizabeth Cave granted her estate to A. who demised to the Defendant at Will, without that that he granted to the intent, &c. upon which the Plaintiff did demurr. And in this Case three Points were resolved.

1. That although that the words of the Act are, That where tenant for life or years have leased or granted their estate, to the intent that those in the reversiou, scil. their lessors, their heirs or assignees may not know their names; and afterwards the first tenants continually occupy those lands, &c. and commit Wast, &c. it is ordained and established, that he in the reversion in such Case shall maintain a Writ of Wast against againſt the ſaid tenants for life or years. And there is Proviſo that the firſt tenants, &c. Yet it was reſolved, that every aſſignee of the firſt leſſee mediate or immediate is within this Act: For the Statute was made to ſuppreſs fraud and deceit, and therefore ſhall be taken beneficially.

2. It was reſolved, that he in the remainder is within the ſaid Act, as well as he in the reverſion, for in equal miſchief, yet the preamble and body of the Act ſpeak only of him in the reverſion.

3. It was reſolved, that the intent aforeſaid was not traverſable in this Caſe but the pernancy of the profits; for that was the thing notorious, whereof the Country might have knowledge, and in the pernancy of the profits, the intent is implied. Vide 4 H. 7. 9. in a Formedon, the tenant pleaded Nontenure, the demandant ſaid, that he made a feoffment to perſons unknown to defraud him of his tenancy, and took the profits: The pernancy of the profits, and not the feoffment is traverſable. 4 E. 4. 29. and many other Books agree.

Samon's Caſe.

Samon brought an Action upon the Caſe upon Aſſumpſit, and declared; that where controverſies were between the Plaintiff and Defendant concerning divers lands in D. The defendant in conſideration of 6 d. aſſumed and promiſed to pay 200 l. to the Plaintiff, if he did not perform the award of J. S. &c. which J. S. made an award, That the Defendant ſhould enter into a Bond to the Plaintiff, that the Plaintiff and Elizabeth his wife ſhall enjoy the ſaid land, &c. which he hath not done; upon which the Plaintiff did demurr. And it was adjudged againſt the Plaintiff, and the reaſon and cauſe of the Judgment was, becauſe that the award was void for incertainty; for it doth not appear of what ſumm the Bond ſhould be, for the Arbitrators are Judges of the Caſe; and their Judgment ought to be certain, ſo that thereby the controverſie be decided; and that the ſame be not for reaſon of incertainty a new cauſe of controverſie. And the Arbitrators cannot aſſign their power over, but they themſelves ought to determine it, and therefore neither the Plaintiff nor the Defendant may aſſeſs the ſumm. But it was agreed that if I. covenant with B. to enter into a Bond to him for the enjoying of ſuch land, and do not expreſs what ſumm, he ſhall be bound in ſuch ſumm, as amounteth to the value of the land, as it is agreed in 10 E. 3. If a man grant an annuity to one of 10 Marks till he be promoted to a convenient Benefice, the Law doth expound the ſame to be of the value of the annuity or more; but the reaſon of that is, becauſe the ſame is the act of the covenantor himſelf which cannot be void, but it is otherwiſe in the Caſe at Bar. Alſo the award was void as to the wife, for ſhe was a ſtranger to the ſubmiſſion. [78]

Gray's Caſe.

IN a Replevin between Gray and Fletcher, in barr of the avowry for damage feaſance, the Plaintiff by cuſtom entitled himſelf to have Common of paſture in the place where, &c. to his Copihold, the which cuſtom was traverſed. And it was found that he ought to have the ſame Common, but that every Copiholder had uſed to pay time out of mind, &c. Pro eadem communia unam gallinam, & quinque ova annuatim. And it was adjudged, that upon this verdict the Plaintiff ſhall have Judgment; for the Plaintiff needeth not to ſhew more then maketh for him, and that is of his part. And the doubt was, what remedy the Terre-tenant ſhould have for the hens and eggs; for if the Terre-tenant have no remedy for them, then the Commoner ſhall have his Common ſub modo, ſcil. paying ſo much, &c. and then it ſhall be againſt the Plaintiff: But if the Terre-tenant have remedy for the hens and eggs, then as the verdict is found, it is not modus communiæ, ſcil. a manner of commoning, nor parcel of the iſſue as to the Common, but a collateral recompence to be paid for the Common, whereof every one hath equal remedy. And Popham chief Juſtice ſaid, that it was adjudged in a Devonſhire Caſe, That where a man did preſcribe to have pot water out of the River, &c. and the Jury found that he ought to have it paying 6 d. yearly. And it was adjudged that he had failed of his preſcription, for he hath preſcribed abſolutely, and the Jury hath found it conditionally, or ſub modo. And there if he do not pay the mony he cannot take the water, and the Terre-tenant in ſuch Caſe may diſturb him, which is all the remedy that the Terre-tenant hath. And in the Caſe at Barr, the Terre-tenant may diſtrain the Cattel of the Commoner upon his own land for the hens and eggs; and therewith agreeth 26 H. 8. 5. But in the Caſe at Bar, if the Jury had found, that the Plaintiff ſhould have Common paying ſo many hens [b] and eggs, the iſſue had been found againſt him, becauſe it is parcel of the cuſtom: But in the Caſe at Barr, the cuſtom as to the Commoning is perfect without the ſaid payment, and the payment doth not limit or qualifie the cuſtom, but it is a recompence for the Common, for which recompence the Terre-tenant hath remedy. But if the Terre-tenant hath not recompence, as in the Caſe put by the chief Juſtice, but only to make diſturbance, as is aforeſaid, then the ſaid manner of payment (although it be found as it is in the Caſe at Bar) is parcel of the Cuſtom. Note a good difference. And the like Judgment was given in the Common Pleas, Paſch. 37 Eliz. Rot. 723. between Lovelace and Reighnolds, quod vide there. Vide 10 E. 4. 17. *F. N. Fitzharbert's Caſe.

[b] THE Caſe in effect was; Tenant for life, the remainder to his ſon and heir apparent in tail by covin and agreement between him and A. and B. to the intent to barr his ſon of his remainder by a collateral warranty made a leaſe to A. for years, who maketh a feoffment to B. in fee, to whom the father releaſeth with warranty, and all this by covin and conſent between the parties, to the intent aforeſaid; and afterwards the father dieth, and the warranty deſcendeth upon the ſon being then of full age. And it was reſolved by Popham chief Juſtice and the whole Court, that this warranty ſhall not barr the ſon; for the feoffment of the leſſee for years is a diſſeiſin, and the father himſelf is particeps criminis, and agreeing to it, and then although the releaſe with warranty is made after the diſſeiſin, yet for as much as the diſſeiſin was to that intent and purpoſe, the Law ſhall adjudge upon the whole Act; as it is agreed in 19 H. 8. 12. If a man diſſeiſeth another to the intent to make a feoffment with warranty although he make the feoffment 20 years after the diſſeiſin, yet the Law ſhall adjudge upon the whole Act, and the diſſein and the warranty ſhall be coupled together, according to the intent of the parties; and therefore in ſuch caſe the Law ſhall adjudge the warranty to commence by diſſeiſin, although that they be made at ſeveral times. As if a man make a leaſe for years of lands in two ſeveral Counties reſerving one intire rent, although that the livery be made at ſeveral times, firſt in one County, and then in the other, yet the rent is iſſuing out of the lands in both Counties; So if a man make a charter of feoffment with warranty, and deliver eth the deed, and afterwards maketh livery ſecundum formam charte, now the Law ſhall judge upon the whole Act, and although the deed were delivered at one time, and the livery upon the land at another time; and although a warranty ought to enure upon an eſtate, yet upon all the matter the warranty is good.

[80] 2. It was reſolved, that although the diſſeiſin was made to the father himſelf who made the releaſe; yet for as much as the father agreed and conſented to the diſſeiſin, and that he who made the warranty did procure the diſſeiſin, it ſhall not hinder, but that the warranty doth commence by diſſeiſin, for conſentientes & agentes pari pœna plectentur. Vide Litt. 151. in the Chapter of Remitter. If the husband diſcontinue the wives right, all is one as to the Remitter, if they procure or aſſent to the diſſeiſin, and afterwards take a feoffment of the diſſeiſor, as if they themſelves had diſſeiſed the diſcontinuee; and ſo are the Books in 44 E 3. 46. 18 H. 8. 13. 11 E. 4. 2. &c.

3. Although that the diſſeiſin was not made immediately to the ſon who is to be bound by the warranty; yet for as much as this diſſeiſin was a wrong to him, and did deveſt his remainder out of him, it ſhall not hinder, but that the warranty ſhall commence by diſſeiſin. And ſo is the Book in 31 E. 3. Warranty 28. where one brother maketh a gift in tail to another, and the unckle doth diſſeiſe the donee, and maketh a feoffment with warranty, the unckle dieth, and the warranty deſcendeth upon the donor, and afterwards the donee dieth without iſſue; the donor bringeth a Formedon in the Reverter, and the feoffee pleadeth the feoffment with warranty, the demandant ſhall avoid the ſame becauſe it began by diſſeiſin, and yet the diſſeiſin was to the donee and not the donor, but by the diſſeiſin wrong was done to him, and his reverſion by it was deveſted. And in this Caſe Popham chief Juſtice ſaid, That this very Point was in queſtion between Pawlet and Putenham, and Pawlet who was in remainder enjoyed the land. And by great advice it was reſolved, that he was not bound by the warranty: But it was not adjudged. Vide Reader the Books 14 E. 3. Warranty 5. Temp. E. 1. Warranty 86. 27 E. 3. 89. 12 Aſſ. p. 9. 4 Ma. Dier 148. &c. and the Statutes of Glouceſt. c. 3. and the Statutes of 11 H. 7. cap. 20. That the Releaſe with warranty of tenant by the Curteſie, tenant in Dower, or tenant for life to the diſſeiſor was a collateral warranty by the Common Law, and ſhould bind the heir: But that is to be intended when there was not any covin or colluſion to make diſſeiſins. But after diſſeiſins made without covin there ſuch releaſe in caſe of tenant by the Curteſie, or of the husband ſeiſed in the right of the wife before the Statute of Glouceſter; or of Tenant in Dower, or in Joynture, before the Statute of 11 H. 7. was a barr, as a releaſe by another Tenant for life is at this day. But a releaſe at this day by tenant for life made to a diſſeiſor, or any other without covin; and yet to the intent to barr him in the reverſion, ſhall barr him, for intent without covin and diſſeiſin ſhall not avoid the warranty. As if the father in the Caſe at Barr had made a feoffment with warranty, and died, this warranty ſhould bind the ſon, although
[b] it was made of purpoſe to barr him, for there was not any diſſeiſin; and therefore ſuch a warranty cannot be avoided by averrment of covin, becauſe there was not any diſſeiſin in the Caſe, for a warranty commencing by wrong ſhall not be avoided, but a warranty which commenceth by diſſeiſin.

And

And although it is said in our Books (and it is true) That warranties are much favoured in Law, because they extend to establish him who is Terre-tenant in possession; yet when they are mixt with covin, which is so odious, and so much abhorred in Law, the warranty shall lose, not only his favour, but his force also: For covin is like to poison, which will infect all the good things wherewith it is mixt.

Note Reader, a good Resolution, for if such covenous invention shall be allowed in Law, every father, or other ancestor, who upon consideration of marriage, or other good consideration hath assured and established his lands after his death upon his heir apparent, might by such covenous and sinister device disinherit his heir apparent, which should be very inconvenient.

Foord's Case.

BEtween Bettisford and Foord in a Replevin the Case was such; The Prebendary of Kingstone in the County of Dorset in the Cathedral Church of Salisbury in the time of King H. 8. made a lease of the said Prebend for 70 years. The Bishop Patron of the said Prebendary, and the Dean and Chapter by their several Instruments under their common Seal (reciting the said lease) confirm dimissionem prædictam in forma prædict' fact' pro termino 51 years tantum, & non ultra. And afterwards the said Prebendary made another lease to begin after the determination of the first lease, &c. And if the first lease shall continue after the 51 years, if the confirmation shall extend to the whole term, or for the 51 years only was the Question. And it was adjudged, that the Confirmation (as the Case is) shall extend to the whole term; for when the Bishop and Dean and Chapter (reciting the said demise for 70 years) have confirmed dimissionem prædict' in forma præd', these words (pro termino 51 years) & non ultra, come too late, and the lease being for 70 years, it is repugnant to confirm dimissionem prædict' for 51 years; for it is as much as if they had confirmed the lease and term for 70 years for 51 years. But if the Bishop and Dean and Chapter had rented the lease, and had confirmed the land to the lessee for 51 years, the same had been good enough, for then there shall not be any such repugnancy in the confirmation. [81]

And observe a difference between a bare assent without any right or interest, and an assent accoupled with a right or interest: for the tenant who is to perfect a grant by his attornment, cannot assent for a time, nor upon condition, nor for part of the thing granted, but it shall absolutely enure to all, because he hath but a bare assent, which cannot be qualified, or apportioned: But the Bishop who is Patron, and the Dean and Chapter have an interest in the Prebend, and every part of it, for the Patron hath Jus conferendi, and a release unto the Patron of an annuity in the time of vacation is good, as it is holden in 21 H. 7. 41. 8 E. 3. 28. Persey's Case. 33 E. 3. Aide de Roy 103. 8 H. 6. 24. acc'. Also it is holden in 31 E. 3. Graunts 90. 16 E. 3. Annuity 23. 8 R. 2. Annuity 53. That the Patron and Ordinary may charge the Glebe in time of vacation, therefore they have an interest; And Fitz. N. B. 49. saith, that the right is in the Patron and Ordinary. Vide Litt. Chapter Discontinuance 144, 145. So if a lease be made of 20 acres, they may make a confirmation as to part of the land, as to one or more acres: So they may confirm part or all upon condition; by which it appeareth that they have not a bare assent, as in case of attornment, but an assent clothed with an interest. [b]

Another difference was taken between a lease for years, and a lease for life, a gift in tail, or a feoffment in fee; For if a Prebendary make a lease for years, a confirmation may be made of the land, as hath been said before, for less years, for the years are several, although the lease or term be one.

If I sell to you any thing for 100 l. to be paid 20 l. per annum for 5 years, I shall not have an Action of debt till all the years be incurred, because all is but one contract: But if a man make a lease of lands for five years, rendring every year 20 l. there in the Case of a lease for years, the years are several, and he shall have an Action of debt for every year, as it is adjudged in 45 E. 3. 8. But if a Prebendary make a lease for life, or a gift in tail, or a feoffment in fee, and confirmation is made of the land to the lessee, donee or feoffee for one hour, it is good for ever, for an estate of freehold or inheritance is intire: And therefore if he who hath a freehold or inheritance be disseised, and confirmeth the land to the disseisor for one hour, it is good for ever.

So if a disseisor make a lease for life, or a gift in tail, and the disseisee confirm the land to the lessee or donee for one hour, it shall confirm the whole estate, but it shall not enure to the remainder or reversion, because he doth confirm the land to the lessee or donee only, and the estate for life or in tail, and the reversion are several distinct estates: But if the disseisor make a lease for years of 20 acres, the disseisee may confirm all, or any part of the land to the lessee, to have and to hold to him for all, or for any of the years, upon or without condition; for although that the term or demise be one, and therefore if the term or demise be confirmed for an hour, it is good for ever, as it is resolved in the Case at Bar; yet the years and acres are several, and therefore the confirmation may extend to part of them: Pari ratione, if my tenant for life make a lease for years, I may confirm the land to him for less years: So if Tenant in tail maketh a lease for 40 years, and dieth, the issue in tail may confirm the term or part for less years. The same Law of a woman after coverture. Vide Litt. Chapter Confirmations 119, 120, &c. [82]

Snelling's Case.

[b] BEtween Snelling and Norton the Case was such; Debt was brought by Snelling against Norton administrator of N. upon an Obligation; The Defendant shewed the Custom of London, That if a contract be made by a Citizen in London to pay mony to another Citizen, and he who ought to pay dieth intestate, that the administrator shall be bound to pay it as well as if it were by Obligation. And shewed, that the intestate was a Citizen of London, and was indebted upon contract to one such Citizen, who after the death of the intestate hath recovered against him, upon which the Plaintiff did demurr in Law, and Judgment was given against the Plaintiff. And in this Case three Points were resolved.

1. That the said Custom was good against the opinion of Dier, 8 Eliz. 247. for although that none was chargeable at the Common Law by the name of Administrator, because that before the Statute of 31 E. 3. no Action lay against an Administrator by such name, and the Custom cannot begin after 31 E. 3. which is within time of memory; yet for as much as they were chargeable at the Common Law as Executors by their administration, so that the name of the charge is only changed, and yet in [83] substance is all one, for every Executor is an Administrator of goods; and the pleading is, unques executor ne unques administravit come executor; and an Administrator hath the office and quality of an Executor, for this cause the custom alledged in such general manner was resolved to be good.

2. It was resolved, if the Ordinary take the goods into his possession, he was chargeable by the Common Law. And the Statute of Westm. 2. cap. 19. Cum post mortem alicujus, was made in affirmance of the Common Law. Vide 17 E. 3. Brief 822. 24 E. 3. 55. 11 E. 3. Executors 77. 18 H. 8. 23. 9 E. 4. 33. 11 H. 7. 12. F. N. B. 120.

3. It was resolved, although the Plaintiff were a stranger and no Citizen, yet this Custom was good to bind him. Vide 1 E. 4. 6. a.

The Case of Market overt.

[b] AT the Sessions at Newgate now last past, it was resolved by Popham chief Justice of England, Anderson chief Justice of the Common Pleas, Sir Thomas Egerton Master of the Rolls, the Attorney General, and the Court, That if Plate be stollen and sold openly in a Scriveners shop on the Market day (as every day is a Market day in London except the Sunday) that this sale shall not change the property, but the party shall have restitution; for a Scriveners shop is not a Market overt for Plate; for none shall search there for such thing, & sic de similibus, &c. But if the sale had been openly in a Gold-smiths shop in London, so that any one that stood or passed by the shop might see it, there it changeth the property. But if the sale be in the shop of a Gold-smith, or behind a Hanging, or behind a Cupbord upon which his Plate standeth, so that one that stood or passed by the shop cannot see it, it shall not change the property: So if the sale be not in shop, but in the Ware-house, or other place of the house, it shall not change the property, for that is not in Market overt, and none will search there for his goods. So every shop in London is an open Market for such things only which by the trade of the owner are put there to sale; And when I was Recorder of London, I certified the Custom of London accordingly. Note Reader, the reason of this Case doth extend to all open Markets in England.

Periman's Case.

IN a Replevin between Bowyer and Periman, the Defendant did avow as for damage feasance in his free- [84] hold; and issue taken upon the freehold, and a special verdict was found to this effect; R. R. seised of lands in fee did enfeoff divers persons by deed in fee, and died without heir, and found a Custom in this manner, Infra maner' de Porchester, a tempore cujus contrarii, &c. habebatur consuetudo, Quod si aliquis tenens aliquorum terrarum sive tenementor' de manerio prædict' tent' alienaverit sive concesserit hujusmodi terr' sive terram præscript' sive feoffament' inde confect', vel per testament' suum hujusmodi terr' sive tenementa dederit sive legaverit, quod tunc hujusmodi alienatio, concessio, don', seu legatio fact', vel ad proxim' Cur' ejusdem manerii fuerunt præsentat', & præsentari consueverint, vel ad aliqua Cur' ejusdem maner' infra annum post hujusmodi alienationem, concession', sive feoffament', donum, sive legationem fact', vel ad proxim' Cur' ejusd' manerii post annum illud tenend': Et si aliqua talis alienatio, concessio, &c. in forma præd' non præsentat' fuerit, tunc hujusmodi alienatio, concessio, &c. sic minime præsentat' per consuetudinem manerii illius vacua fuerit: And found that the said land was holden of the said Mannor; and that the said feoffment was not presented according to the Custom. And if that were a reasonable or lawful Custom or not was the Question; And it was adjudged, that it was a reasonable Custom: But against the Custom it was objected:

1. That if this Custom shall be allowed, what remedy if the tenants will not present it? or if the Steward will reject the presentment? To that it was answered by the Court, That the like objection may be made upon a bargain and sale by deed, what remedy if the Clark will not enrol it? And in Case of Copihold, what remedy if the Copyholders will not present a surrender made out of Court? Et caveat emptor, and he at his peril is to perfect all that which is requisite to his assurance. And it is not like to the Case in 2 H. 4. 24. where a Custom was pleaded, that none should use his Common in such place, till the Lord entreth with his cattel; and per totam Curiam that cannot be a Custom, for if [b] the Lord will not enter, it is not reason that the Commoner should lose his Commmon.

2. It was objected, That once it was a feoffment; Then to say that the Custom of the Mannor shall devest an estate of freehold and inheritance vested by solemn livery shall be against Law. To which it was answered and resolved, That the reason of the Common Law, that land shall pass by solemn livery, was to give notice to the Country who were owners of the land, to the intent that none might be deceived in taking of leases and estates, and every one have notice who shall be tenant to the Præcipe; and Lords shall have better knowledge of their tenants to have Wards, Escheats, &c. And therefore a Custom which fortifieth the reason of the Common Law with greater solemnity and notice, is good, as in this Case, to have the feoffment openly presented in open Court, to the intent the Lord and all his tenants may take notice; and therefore if it be not presented according to Custom, then the livery is become void, because it wanteth presentment, which is part of the essence of the livery: and it was said, that there is not plenum & perfectum feoffamentum in this Case, till the presentment made in Court according to the custom; but opus inchoatum & non perfectum; and yet if the feoffor or feoffee dieth, and afterwards it is presented according to the custom, it is good. As if a man deliver a writing as an escrow, to be his deed upon certain conditions performed, and afterwards the obligor or obligee dieth, and afterwards the condition is performed, the deed is good, for there was traditio inchoata in the life of the parties, sed postea consummata existens by the performance of the condition taketh his effect by force of the first delivery, without any new delivery: So in the Case at Bar, when the feoffment is presented according to the custom, then it takes its effect by force of the first livery before: And it was said, that it was a custom in Kent. That if the free Tenants of a Castle do not pay their rents, that they shall lose their land holden of it. And the custom of Lidford Castle in the County of Devon is, That a freeholder of inheritance cannot pass his freehold if not by surrender into the Lords hands: And the custom of London is, That a devise of land by Will being enrolled is good, for it hath greater solemnity added to the Will than in other Towns and Boroughs where lands are devisable: And so Judgment was given in the principal Case, that the Custom was good and lawful. And this plea began Hill. 40 Eliz. Rot. 159. in the Common Pleas.

Sir Henry Knivet's Caſe.

[85] BEtween Sir Henry Knivet Plaintiff, and Pool and others Defendants, upon a ſpecial verdict the Caſe was ſuch; Tenant for life, the remainder in fee to the Plaintiff, Tenant for life leaſeth for years, the leſſee for years is ouſted, and the tenant for life diſſeiſed; The diſſeiſor maketh a leaſe for years, and his leſſee ſoweth the land; and tenant for life dieth. Sir Henry Knivet who had the remainder in fee entred; The Defendants took the Corn ſowed, and for it Sir Henry Knivet brought an Action of Treſpaſs; and upon Not guilty pleaded, the Jury found the ſpecial matter aforeſaid. And it was adjudged, that the Plaintiff being he in the remainder, hath not right to the corn. It was alſo reſolved, That the Defendants claiming by the leſſee of the diſſeiſor had not the mere right in them, but in reſpect of his poſſeſſion ſhould bar the Plaintiff; but the mere right was in the leſſee of the tenant for life, and he may have an Action of Treſpaſs, and recover all the mean profits againſt the leſſee of the diſſeiſor; therefore he in the reverſion ſhall not have remedy for them alſo, nor recover damages for them, for then the leſſee of the diſſeiſor ſhall be twice charged: But as to the entry into the land to the taking of the Emblements, it was good matter of juſtification; but for as much as they have pleaded Not guilty, the Plaintiff had Judgment for the entry, and was barred for the reſidue.

And note Reader in the principal Caſe, the leſſee of the tenant for life had right to the land, and by conſequence to the corn ſowed, as things annexed to the land, and the death of the leſſee for life doth determine his intereſt to the land; but his right to the corn ſowed remaineth, and that was the principal [b] reaſon of the Judgment.

Penryn's Caſe.

IN a Writ of Error between William ap Richard, and William Penryn upon a Judgment given in Wales in the County of Mountgomery, before Sir Richard Shutleworth Juſtice there, in a Quod ei deforceat in the nature of a Writ of right (as the uſe and precedents are there) the Error was aſſigned in the matter in Law, which was ſuch; William ap Richard brought a Quod ei deforceat in the nature of a Writ of right of certain land in the County of Mountgomery againſt Penryn, who appeared and joyned the miſe upon the mere right, and thereupon a Jury by Venire fac. was returned, whereof 12. were ſworn and charged; and before Verdict the demandant was Nonſuit, upon which final Judgment was given; ſcil. Quod tenens teneat terram illam ſibi & hæred', in pace verſus petentem & hæred' ſuos imperpetuum.

And afterwards the ſame demandant brought another Quod ei deforceat, in the nature of a Writ of right againſt the ſame tenant for the ſame land, who pleaded the final Judgment in bar: Upon which the demandant did demurr. And Judgment was given againſt him; And upon this latter Judgment the demandant brought a Writ of Error. And after many arguments and long deliberation the Judgment was affirmed. And in this Caſe three Points were reſolved.

1. That although by the Statute of Rutland, made 12 E. 1. it is provided, that trial in Wales in a Writ of right ſhall be by common Jurors and by 12. yet Judgment final ſhall be there given, as it was [86] before the Statute, although the manner and dignity of the trial were altered; for the Statute hath altered the trial, but the Judgment which appertaineth to the Action doth remain as it was before.

2. If Judgment final be given in a Writ of right where it ought not be, yet it ſhall bind till it be reverſed.

3. It was reſolved, That if the tenant after the miſe joyned make default, Judgment final upon this default ſhall not be given (as Fitzherbert in his N. B. 6. holdeth) but a petit Cape ſhall iſſue; for peradventure he may ſave his default. Cases of Executions.

Mich. 38 & 39 Eliz. Rot. 259. in the Kings Bench.

Blumfield's Case.

IN an Audita querela between Blumfield and Usewicke the Case was; Two men were bound joyntly and severally in an Obligation, one was sued, condemned, and taken in Execution; and aftewards the other was sued, condemned, and taken in Execution, and afterwards the first escaped, and the other brought Audita querela: And although the Plaintiff may have an Action upon the escape against the Sheriff, yet until he be satisfied in deed, the other cannot have Audita querela; and peradventure the Sheriff is worth nothing; and if the Defendants had been sued by one Writ by several Præcipes, although the entry shall be, quod unica fiat executio, the same is to be intended of an Execution with satisfaction, for he shall have both their bodies in Execution, 4 H. 7. 8. & 29 H. 8. Execution Br. acc'. And so is the Book in 4 E. 4. 38. & 5 E. 4. 4. to be intended. Hill. 33 Eliz. in the Common Pleas it was adjudged between Linacre and Rhodes, That notwithstanding that the conusor upon a Statute Staple be taken and escape, yet his goods and lands upon the same Statute may be extended, for the escape and the Action which the Plaintiff hath against the Sheriff for the escape, is no satisfaction of the debt. So if the conusor be taken and dieth in Execution, the conusee shall have Execution of his goods and lands. And it was adjudged Pasch. 24 Eliz. in the Common Pleas between Jones and Williams, That where two men were condemned in debt, and one was taken and died in Execution, yet the taking of the other was lawful. And then it was resolved by the whole Court, That if the defendant in debt dieth in Execution, the Plaintiff may have a new Execution by Elegit, or by Fieri facias for divers reasons. [b]

1. Because the Plaintiff shall not be prejudiced, nor the Defendant benefited by the act and wrong of the Defendant, in not payment of his debt, when no default is in the Plaintiff, he having followed the due and ordinary course of Law. [87]

2. The Execution of the body is no satisfaction (as it appeareth in 4 H. 7. 9. & 33. H. 6. 47. Hillaries Case adjudged) but a gage for the debt; As where a man hath returned irrepleviſable award, as it is said in 33 H. 6. 46. and therefore after his death he shall resort to a new Execution. And the words of the Capias ad satisfaciendum are, Cap. I. de S. Ita quod habeas corpus ejus coram Justiciariis nostris, &c. ad satisfaciend' G. de K. de debito & damnis, &c. So that his body is taken to the intent that he satisfie; and when the Defendant payeth the mony he shall be discharged out of Prison.

3. The death of the Defendant is the act of God, which shall not turn to the prejudice of the Plaintiff of his Execution by the act of Law, which doth not wrong to any one.

4. It shall be mischievous to the Plaintiff to lose his debt without any default in him, and no mischief if new execution shall be done, for nothing shall be liable to his new execution, but the lands and goods of the Defendant, which in Law and all equity ought to be subject to the payment of his debts. And is not like when the the Plaintiff hath execution of the lands of the Defendant, and afterwards his lands are evicted, therefore the Statute of 32 H. 8. he shall not have new execution, for the execution of his lands was valuable and accounted in Law a satisfaction, and for avoiding of infiniteness there shall be but one valuable Execution, or Execution with satisfaction at the Common Law; But Execution of the body is no valuable Execution, and therefore the Plaintiff after his death shall have new Execution, till he hath had valuable Execution, which is the end and fruit of his suit: Et finis rei attend' est, & fines mandatorum Domini Regis per rescripta sua (scil. brevia) diligenter sunt observandi.

So note Reader, good differences between Executions not valuable, &c. (as of the body of the Defendant) and Executions valuable, as of lands, &c. And therefore if a villain be delivered to one in execution, upon a recovery in value, and afterwards the Villain dieth without issue, yet the demandant shall never have a new execution, for his first execution was valuable, and by the Law a man shall never have but one valuable execution. Note also a difference between an execution final, as where the Sheriff levieth the money of the defendants goods, or extendeth his lands and delivereth them to the Plaintiff, for that the party taketh in satisfaction, and that is the end of the suit, and all that the Kings Writ commandeth to be done; and between execution with a quousque, &c. tending to an end, which is not final, as in the Capias ad satisfaciendum, &c. it is not final, but his body is to be taken to the intent and purpose that he shall satisfie the party, and his imprisonment is not absolute, but until the Defendant satisfie the party: But execution final is when the party is satisfied; and therefore when he dieth before satisfaction it standeth with Law and equity, that the Plaintiff do resort to a new execution; Vide Regist. & F. N. B. 246. If a man hath recovered damages in Trespass before Justices of Oyer and Terminer, and hath the body of the party in execution quousque satisfaceret the Plaintiff, and he who is in execution dieth, he who recovered shall sue a Certiorari to the Justices to remove the Record into the Kings Bench, that the Justices there may do upon that Record as the Law requireth in such Case; and that is to award a new execution, 47 E. 3. 3. Execution 41. If in Trespass the Plaintiff recover, and the Defendant is taken for the Kings fine, if he pray that the Defendant remain in Prison till he be satisfied, [b]

he ſhall not have Elegit, becauſe he hath taken execution of his body and hath it; But if the party dieth in Priſon, ſo that he hath not execution with ſatisfaction, wherein is no default of him, he ſhall have an Elegit after, becauſe he cannot have ſatisfaction according to the firſt election; and theſe are the words of the ſaid Book. And therewith agreeth Fitz. N. B. 246. b. And if the conuſor of a Statute Merchant or Staple, &c. be taken and dieth in execution, yet the conuſee ſhall have execution without doubt of his goods and lands, as it was reſolved in Linacres Caſe. Garnon's Caſe.

[18] BEtween Layton Plaintiff, and Garnon Sheriff of the County of, &c. Defendant, the Caſe was ſuch; Layton recovered againſt Wallwen in the Common Pleas in Action of Debt, and ſued forth a Capias ad ſatisfaciendum, and ex poſt Ca. and outlawed the Defendant; The Defendant brought a Writ of Error, and the Judgment was affirmed: and thereupon within the year a Capias utlagatum was awarded, and the Defendant was arreſted, and the Sheriff ſuffered him to eſcape before the return of the Writ; and upon this eſcape the Plaintiff brought this Action. And in this Caſe three Points were reſolved.

1. If one at the Common Law have Judgment in an Action of debt, and after the Judgment outlawed the Defendant, the Plaintiff was at the end of his ſuit as to any proceſs to be ſued by himſelf, for he could not have a Scire fac', or any other proceſs upon the Judgment, but was put to his new original as it is agreed in 13 H. 4. 1. a. 21 E. 3. 55. 20 E. 3. Nonability 8. acc. And although before the Statute of 25 E. 3. Capias did not lie in debt, nor the body of the defendant before that Statute was ſubject to execution for debt, as it appeareth before in Matthew Harberts Caſe: yet if the Defendant were taken by Capias utlagatum at the Kings ſuit no lacheſs being in the Plaintiff in continuing of his proceſs he ſhould be in execution for the Plaintiff if he would: For in as much as the King by the original ſuit of the party is intitled to have all his goods and chattels, and the profits of his lands by the outlawry, and his body alſo in priſon, it is reaſon that if the Defendant in ſuch Caſe be arreſted at the Kings ſuit, that as the King ſhall have benefit by the ſuit of the party, ſo the party ſhall have benefit by the ſuit of the King.

2. It was reſolved, That if Judgment be given in the Common Pleas, and removed by a Writ of Error, and Judgment affirmed within the year, they ſhall award a Capias, or a Fieri facias, and the Plaintiff is not put to a Scire facias, although it be in another Court, againſt the opinion of 14 H. 7. 15, 19 vide 21 Aſſ. p. 14. F. N. B. 267.

3. It was reſolved, That in the Caſe at Barr, when he was taken by Capias utlagatum which iſſued [b] out of the Kings Bench, he ſhall be in execution for the Plaintiff preſently after his arreſt if he will, although his body be never brought in Court, and although the Court do not commit him in execution for the party, vide 7 H. 6, 7. Note, that in all Caſes when the Plaintiff may have a Capias ad ſatisfaciendum, and the party defendant is taken by Capias pro fine, there the defendant is in execution preſently, if the Plaintiff will, without any prayer of the party. Alſo in all Caſes when the Plaintiff may have execution preſently by Fieri facias, although he cannot have a Capias, nor Capias pro fine in ſuch Action, as in Aſſiſe with force and Rediſſeiſin, &c. and the party is taken by Capias pro fine, and is committed at the Kings ſuit, there the Plaintiff may pray that he remain in execution for his damages, but without prayer he ſhall not be in execution, although he may have an execution by Fieri facias. And when the Plaintiff hath Judgment and ſurceaſeth his time, ſo that he cannot have preſent execution neither by Capias nor by Fieri facias, &c. but is put to a Scire fac', there if the Defendant be taken by Capias pro fine, the Plaintiff may pray that he remain in execution for him, but that ſhall not be without prayer of the party. Frost's Case.

FRost recovered Debt and Damages against B. in the Common Pleas, 29 Eliz. and upon ex post Capias the Defendant was outlawed, and after the year the Plaintiff procured Capias utlagatum against him, and delivered it to the Sheriff of London. And that one Laborn one of the Sheriffs Serjeants of London had arrested the said B. in Fleetstreet at the suit of one A. ad respondend', &c. before the Sheriff, Laborn kept B. in his house, and then Frost came to Laborn with the Sheriffs warrant to arrest him upon the Capias utlagat' which he refused to do. And upon this matter Frost brought an Action upon the Case against the Sheriff, and supposed that the Sheriff arrested the said B. by force of the said Capias utlagat', and that the Sheriff suffered him to go at large: The Defendants pleaded, Non permiserunt eum ire ad largum; and the Jury found all the said special matter. And Judgment was given for the Plaintiff. [89]

For 1. they resolved, That when a man is in the custody of the Sheriff by process of Law, and afterwards another Writ is delivered to him to arrest the body of him who is in his custody, presently he is in his custody by force of the second Writ by Judgment of Law, although he do not actually arrest him; for to what purpose shall he arrest him who is and was before in his custody? Et lex non præcipit inutilia, quia inutilis labor stultus: And the words of the Capias ad satisfaciendum are not only, quod Capiat, &c. but, quod salvo custodiat, &c. Ita quod habeat corpus, &c. So that although he cannot take him who he hath in his keeping, yet he may safely keep him; and therewith agreeth 7 H. 4. 30.

2. The Verdict doth well warrant the Declaration, for in Judgment of Law it is equipollent, and amounteth to as much as if the Sheriff had arrested the said B. [b]

3. Although the Capias utlagat' was sued after the year, so that the Defendant could not be in execution without prayer of the party, &c. yet the Plaintiff is prejudiced by his escape, for he ought not to be discharged of imprisonment till he find sureties to satisfie him, by the Statute of 5 E. 3. cap. 12.

Trin. 42 Eliz. in the Exchequer.

Hoe's Case.

BEtween Clement Hoe Executor of John Hoe Plaintiff, and Boulton Defendant, the Case was such; John Hoe the Testator had Judgment to recover in the Kings Bench against Boulton 75 l. 3 s. 4 d. John Hoe assigned the same by Deed inrolled to the Queen in satisfaction of a debt due to her as Collector of Fifteens, with Proviso, that if the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, or any two of them, because the said debt cannot be levied in convenient time, or for any other cause disallow of the said assignment, and revoke it by writing under their hands, that the assignment should be void. And afterwards Boulton brought a Writ of Error according to the new Statute, and there Judgment was affirmed, and 5 l. costs upon the affirmance of the Judgment: And afterwards (upon Process which is called a Writ of Prerogative out of the Exchequer upon the said Assignment) the lands of Boulton were extended, and his goods which were of value above the said debt were seised by force of the said Writ, but the Writ was not returned. And afterwards Periam, Ewens, and Sotherton, three of the Barons did revoke the assignment after the Testators death, because the Testator had satisfied the debt due to the Queen as Collector. And now the Plaintiff as Executor of John Hoe sued a Scire facias to have execution of the said 75 l. 3 s. 4 & 5 l. costs: And the said matter being discloſed by special pleading, a demurrer in Law was joyned. And in this Case three Points were resolved: [90]

1. That the Execution for the Queen was good without question, as to goods, although the Writ was not returned. And so is it in Case of a common person, if the Sheriff by force of a Writ of Fieri facias levy the debt, and deliver the same to the party, the Execution is good without return of the Writ as it is adjudged 20 H. 6. 24. & 21 H. 6. 5. And so was it adjudged in the Common Pleas, Pasch. 23 Eliz. between Rook and Willimote: and Trinit. 23 Eliz. between Mount and Androws; and therewith agreeth 44 E. 3. 18. So if a man be taken upon a Capias ad satisfaciendum, the Execution is well done, although the Writ be never returned: And the difference is apparent between Capias in process, and Capias ad satisfaciendum, for if the Capias in process be not returned, the arrest is torcious, for there the end of the arrest is to the intent the party should appear and answer to the Plaintiff; but in all Writs of Executions, when the Sheriff alone doth it, as Capias ad satisfaciendum, Habere facias seisinam, or possessionem, Fieri fac', Liberat', &c. if the Execution be duly done it is good, although that the Writ be not returned, for there the Plaintiff hath the effect of his suit, and nothing is to be done on his part after: But in Case of Elegit, because that there the Extent is to be by Jury, and not by the Sheriff only, it ought to be returned, otherwiſe it is nought worth. So by theſe Reſolutions in the Caſe at Bar, and by the ſaid Judgments here cited, you will learn the Law, and better underſtand your Books in 19 E. 3. Scire facias, 11 H. 4. 73. b. and in Fulwood's Caſe in the fourth Reports.

Note Reader, that the ſaid Judgments given in Caſe of Fieri facias, where Execution was done, and no return of the Writ, were done upon great reaſon.

1. Becauſe the levying of the debt was lawful, and well done, and the party Defendant cannot reſiſt the Sheriff to levy the money.

2. The effect of the authority which the Sheriff had by force of the Fieri facias was executed.

3. The great prejudice that the Defendant (whoſe goods are ſold by the Writ and Proceſs of Law, for the ſatisfaction of his debt) ſhould have, if the Sheriffs not returning of the Writ ſhould cauſe a new Execution to be ſued forth againſt him, and leave the Defendant to his Action againſt the Sheriff.

[b] 4. If the ſale of the goods by force of the Writ, ſhall be for not returning the Writ wrongful, then the Sheriff will not find buyers of the Defendants goods by force of any Writ of Execution, which would be very inconvenient, and great delay of Executions, which are the fruit and the life of every ſuit; And where the words of the Writ of Fieri facias are, Ita quod habeas denarios, &c. they are but words of command to the Sheriff to make return, which if he do not he ſhall be amerced, but yet the execution ſhall ſtand in force.

2. It was reſolved, That after Execution had by the Queen, the revocation came too late, for then the Queen had had the effect and end of the ſaid aſſignment; and that which was executory when it was aſſigned, is now executed by lawful proceſs of Law, and therefore cannot be revoked; for when one hath a power of revocation, yet if he ſuffer any thing to be lawfully executed by force of it, as to that, he cannot make any revocation: As if a man make a Letter of Attorney to make livery, before execution he may revoke it, but after execution lawfully executed, it is executed, and cannot be revoked. Vide 7 H. 6. 41. in Detinue, where the Caſe was; In Detinue of a Statute Merchant, the Defendant prayed Garniſhment, the Plaintiff recovered againſt the Garniſhee by erroneous Judgment, by force whereof the Defendant delivered the Statute to the Plaintiff, who had execution; and afterwards the Garniſhee reverſed the Judgment in a Writ of Error, by which he hath reſtored all that he loſt, by that the Execution ſhall not be avoided: But I conceive in ſuch Caſe he ſhall be helped by Audita querela. Vide 7 E. 4. 2. If one, to whom another is endebted, be outlawed, and he who is endebted pay the money to the Queen, and after the outlawry is reverſed, now the creditor ſhall recover his debt againſt him. So if the goods of a man outlawed be ſold by the Sheriff upon the Writ of Capias utlagatum, &c. and afterwards the utlagary is reverſed by Writ of Error, the Defendant ſhall have reſtitution of his goods: But if the Sheriff by force of a Fieri facias ſell goods, and afterwards the Judgment is reverſed by Writ of Error, the Defendant ſhall not have reſtitution of his goods, but the value of thoſe which were ſold; and there are two reaſons of this difference: 1. If the ſuit of the Sheriff by force of a Fieri facias ſhall be avoided by ſubſequent reverſal of the Judgment, there would be no buyer, and by conſequence no execution ſhall be done. 2. In the Caſe of a Fieri facias, the Sheriff is compellable to levy the debt of the Defendants goods; and therefore it is great reaſon that it ſhould ſtand: But in the Caſe of Capias utlagatum, the Sheriff, or Eſcheator is not compellable to ſell them, but may keep them for the Kings uſe, and therewith agreeth 20 Eliz. Dier 363. and vide 3 E. 3. 51. Recompence in value upon voucher once lawfully executed, ſhall not be deveſted, although that the title of the demandant to the land be diſaffirmed, and evicted. [91]

3. It was reſolved, That the recovation by three, if no execution had been had, had been ſufficient; for if three revoke, two do it; but if the words of the clauſe of the revocation had been by them joyntly, or ſeverally, then the third of them could not have done it, for that had not been joyntly, but ſeverally. And therewith agreeth 36 H. 8. Dier 61, 62. & 27 H. 8. And ſo note a good difference.

Mich. 2 Jacobi, in the Kings Bench.

Semayne's Caſe.

IN an Action upon the Caſe by Peter Semayne Plaintiff, and Richard Greſham Defendant, the Caſe was ſuch; The Plaintiff and one George Berisford were Joyntenants of a houſe in Black-Fryers in London for years, George Berisford acknowledged a Recognizance in the nature of a Statute Staple to the Plaintiff, and being poſſeſſed of divers goods in the ſaid houſe, died, by which the Defendant was poſſeſſed of the houſe by ſurvivor, in which the goods continued and remained; The Plaintiff ſued Proceſs of extent upon the ſaid Statute to the Sheriffs of London; The Sheriffs returned the conuſor dead, upon which the Plaintiff had another Writ to extend all the lands which he had at the time of the Statute acknowledged, or any time after, and all his goods which he had at the day of his death; which Writ the Plaintiff delivered to the Sheriffs of London, and told them that divers goods which were the ſaid George Berisford's goods at the time of his death were in the ſaid houſe: And thereupon the Sheriffs by virtue of the ſaid Writ, charged a Jury to make enquiry according to the Writ, and the Sheriff

Sheriff and Jury came to the said house, the door of the said house being open, and the goods aforesaid being then in the said house, and they offered to enter the said house, to extend the said goods according to the said Writ; And the Defendant, præmissorum non ignarus, intending to disturb the execution, ostio prædict. domus tunc aperto existen', claudebat contra Vicecom' & Juratos' præd', by which they could not enter, and extend the said goods, nor the Sheriff seise them, by which he lost the benefit and profit of his Writ: And in this Case these Points were resolved. [b]

1. That the house of every one is to him his Castle and Fortress, as well for defence against injury and violence, as for his repose; and although the life of a man is precious and favoured in Law; so that although a man kill another in his defence, or kill one by infortunium, without any intent, yet it is felony, and in such case he shall forfeit his goods and chattels, for the great regard which the Law hath of a mans life; But if Thieves come to a mans house to rob him, or murther, and the owner or his servants kill any of the Thieves in defence of himself and his house, it is no felony, and he shall lose nothing, and therewith agreeth 3 E. 3. Coron. 303. & 305. & 26 Ass. pl. 23. So it is holden in 21 H. 7. 39. every one may assemble his friends or neighbours to defend his house against violence: But he cannot assemble them to go with him to the Market, or elsewhere to keep him from violence: And the reason of all the same is, because that domus sua cuique est tutissimum refugium.

2. It was resolved, That when any house is recovered by any real Action, or by Ejectione firmæ, the Sheriff may break the house to deliver possession to the demandant or Plaintiff, for the words of the Writ are, Habere facias seisinam, or possessionem, &c. and after Judgment it is not the house in right and judgment of Law of the Defendant or Tenant.

3. In all Cases when the King is party, the Sheriff (if the doors be not open) may break the parties house, either to arrest him, or to do execution of the Kings process, if otherwise he cannot enter. But before he break it, he ought to signifie the cause of his coming, and to make request to open the doors; and that appeareth by the Statute of Westm. 1. cap. 17. (which is but an affirmance of the Common Law) as it hereafter appeareth, for the Law without default in the owner doth abhor destruction or breaking of any house which is for the habitation and safety of a man, by which great damage and inconvenience may follow to the party, when no default is in him; for perhaps he doth not know of the process, which if he hath notice of, it is presumed that he will obey it, and that appeareth in 18 E. 3. Execution 252. where it is said, That the Kings Officer who cometh to do execution, &c. may open the doors which are shut, and break them, if he may not have the Keys; which proveth, that he ought first to demand them: 17 E. 3. 16. J. hurteth R. so as he is in danger of death, J. flieth, and thereupon Huy and Cry is made, J. getteth into the house of T. those who pursue him, if the house be kept and defended with force (which proveth that first request ought to be) he may lawfully break the house of T. for it is at the Kings suit, 27 Ass. p. 66. The Kings Bailiffs may distrain for issues in Sanctuary, 28 Ass. p. 35. By force of a Capias upon indictment of Trespass the Sheriff may break his house to arrest the party; but in such Case, if he break the house when he may enter without breaking of it, (that is, upon request, or if he may open the door without breaking) he is a trespassor, 41 Ass. 15. Upon issue joyned upon a traverse of an Office in Chancery, Venire fac. was awarded returnable in the Kings Bench, without mentioning non omittas propter aliquam libertatem, yet for as much as the King is party, the Writ of it self is non omittas propter aliquam libertatem, 9 E. 4. 4. That for felony, or suspition of felony, the Kings Officer may break the house to apprehend the felon, and that for two reasons: 1. For the Commonwealth, for it is for the Commonwealth to apprehend felons. 2. In every felony the King hath interest, and where the King hath interest, there the Writ is non omittas propter aliquam libertatem; and so the liberty or privilege of the house doth not hold against the King. [92]

4. In all Cases, when the door is open the Sheriff may enter the house, and do execution at the suit of any Subject, either of the body, or of the goods; and so may the Lord in such Case enter the house to distrain for his rent, or service, 38 H. 6. 26. 8 E. 2. Distr. 21. & 33 E. 3. Avowry 256. the Lord may distrain in the house, although he holds lands in which he may distrain, vide 29 Ass. 49. But the great Question in this Case was, if by force of a Capias or Fieri facias at the suit of the party, the Sheriff after request made to open the door, and denial, may break the Defendants house to do execution, if the door be not opened. And it was objected, That the Sheriff had done well for divers causes: 1. Because it is by process of Law; and it was said, That it will be granted that a house is not a liberty, for if a Fieri fac', or a Capias be awarded to the Sheriff at the suit of a common person, and that he make a mandate to the Baily of a Liberty who hath return of Writs, that nullum dedit responsum, in this Case another Writ shall issue forth with non omittas propter aliquam libertatem, yet (it will be said on the other side) that he shall break the Defendants house, as he shall do of another Liberty: As in the County of Suffolk are two Liberties, one of S. Edmund of Bury, and the other of S. Etheldred of Ely, put case a Capias come at the suit of A. to the Sheriff of Suff. to arrest the body of B. the Sheriff maketh a mandate to the Bailiff of the Liberty of S. Etheldred, who maketh no answer, in this Case the Plaintiff shall have a Writ of Non omittas, by force of which he may arrest the Defendant within the Liberty of Bury, although that no default be in him. 2. Admit it be a Liberty, the Defendant himself shall not take advantage of a Liberty: As if the Bailiff of a Liberty be Defendant in any Action, and Process of Capias or Fieri facias cometh to the Sheriff against him, the Sheriff shall execute the process against him, for a Liberty is always for the benefit of a stranger to the Action. 3. For necessity the Sheriff shall break the Defendants house after a denial as is aforesaid, for at the Common Law a man shall not have any execution for debt, but only of the Defendants goods. Put case then the Defendant will keep all his goods in his house, and so the Defendant by his own act shall prevent not only the Plaintiff of his just and true debt, but it shall be also a great imputation to the Law, that there should be so great defect in it; that in such Case the Plaintiff by such shift without any default in him should be barred of his execution. And the Book in 18 E. 2. Execution 252. was cited [b]

to prove, where it is ſaid, That it is not lawful for any one to diſturb the execution of the Kings Officer, who cometh to execute the Kings Proceſs; for if a man may ſtand out in ſuch manner, a man ſhall never have execution; but there it appeareth (as hath been ſaid) that there ought to be requeſt made before the Sheriff break the houſe. 4. It was ſaid, that the Sheriff is an Officer of great authority, in whom the Law repoſeth great truſt and confidence, and are of ſufficiency to anſwer all wrongs which ſhall be done; And they have cuſtodiam Comitatus, and therefore it ſhall not be preſumed that they will abuſe the houſe of any one by colour of doing their office in execution of the Kings Writs, againſt the duty of their Office, and their Oath alſo: But it was reſolved, That it is not lawful for the Sheriff (upon requeſt made and denial) at the ſuit of a common perſon, to break the Defendants houſe, ſcil. to execute any proceſs at the ſuit of any Subject, for thereof would follow great inconvenience, that men in the night as in the day ſhould have their houſes (which are their Caſtles) broken, by force of which great damage and miſchief may follow, for by colour thereof, upon a feigned ſuit, the houſe of any man at any time might be broken, when the Defendant may be arreſted elſewhere, and ſo men ſhould not be in ſafety, or reſt in quiet in their own houſes: And although that the Sheriff be an Officer of great authority, and truſt, yet it appeareth by experience, that the Kings Writs are executed by Bailiffs, perſons of little or no value: And it is not to be preſumed, that all the ſubſtance a man hath is in his houſe, nor that a man will loſe his liberty which is ſo ineſtimable, if he have ſufficient to ſatiſie his debt. And all the ſaid Books which prove that when the proceſs toucheth the King, that the Sheriff may break the houſe, implies that at the ſuit of the party, the houſe may not be broken, otherwiſe the addition (at the ſuit of the King) ſhould be vain and frivolous. And with this Reſolution agreeth the Book in 9 E. 4. 9. and the expreſs difference there appeareth between the Caſe of felony, which (as hath been ſaid) con-
[93] cerneth the Commonwealth, and the ſuit of any other Subject, which is for the particular intereſt of the party, as there it is ſaid in 18 E. 4. 4. by Littleton and all his Companions it is reſolved, That the Sheriff cannot break the Defendants houſe by force of a Fieri facias, but he ſhall be a treſpaſſor by the breaking, and yet the execution which he then doth in the houſe is good. And it was ſaid, that the ſaid Book of 18 E. 2. was but a Nota, and not any judicial Judgment, and it doth not appear at whoſe ſuit the Caſe is intended, but it is an obſervation or collection (as it ſeemeth) of the Reporter. And if it be intended of a Quo minus, or other Action in which the King is party, or is to have benefit, the Book is good Law.

5. It was reſolved, That the houſe of any one is not a Caſtle or priviledge but for himſelf, and ſhall not extend to protect any perſon who flieth to his houſe, to prevent a lawful execution, and to eſcape the ordinary proceſs of Law; for the priviledge of his houſe doth extend only to him and his family, and to his own proper goods, or to thoſe which are lawfully and without fraud or covin there; And therefore in ſuch Caſes after denial upon requeſt made, the Sheriff may break the houſe; and that is proved by the Statute of Weſt. 1. c. 17. by which it is declared, That the Sheriff may break a houſe or Caſtle to make Replevin, when the goods of another which he hath diſtrained are by him conveyed to his houſe or Caſtle, to prevent the owner to have a Replevin of his goods; which Act is but an affirmance of the Common Law in ſuch Points. But it appeareth there, that before the Sheriff in ſuch Caſe break the houſe, that he is to require the goods to be delivered to him; for the words of the Statute are, After that the Caſtle ſhall be ſolemnly demanded by the Sheriffs.

6. It was reſolved, admitting that the Sheriff after denial made may break the houſe, as the Plaintiffs Council pretend he may, then it followeth that he hath not done his duty, for it doth not appear, that he made any requeſt to open the door of the houſe. Alſo the Defendant as this Caſe is, hath done that which he may well do by the Law, ſcil. to ſhut the door of his own houſe.

Laſtly, the general allegation, præmiſſorum non ignarus was not ſufficient in this Caſe, where the notice of the premiſſes is ſo material; but in this cauſe it ought to have been certainly, and directly alledged, for without notice of the proceſs of Law, and of the coming of the Jury to execute it, the ſhutting of the door of his own houſe was lawful. And Judgment was given againſt the Plaintiff.

Barwick's Caſe.

[b] IN an Information of intruſion into a houſe and certain lands in Sutton in Galters in the County of York, againſt Peter Barwick and others, the Caſe was ſuch: King E. 6. by his Letters Patents 19. Maii, anno 4. demiſed the Mannor of Sutton, whereof, &c. to Thomas Tirril for 21 years: And afterwards Queen Elizabeth having the reverſion, by her Letters Patents 11. Maii, in the 10*th* year of her Reign reciting the ſaid leaſe, did demiſe the ſaid Mannor to Humphrey Barwick for 21 years in reverſion: Humphrey Barwick 2. Auguſti, 10 Eliz. by Indenture granted to one Story a houſe and croft parcel of the Mannor, from the Feaſt of S. Michael the Archangel 1597. for 21 years, &c. and 20 Maii, 16 Eliz. demiſed to John Ragget another parcel of the ſaid Mannor for 21 years, from the ſaid Feaſt of S. Michael; and another demiſe of another parcel to one William Simpſon for the like term. And afterwards Queen Elizabeth 21. Nov. anno 23. by her Letters Patents (reciting the ſaid leaſe to Humphrey Barwick) pro & in conſideratione rurſum redditionis totius ſtatus, tituli, termin' annor', & intereſſe, de & in pre-

præmiſſ. per prædict. literas paten' eidem Humfrido conceſſ. demiſed and granted the ſaid Mannor to the ſaid Humphrey for 21 years, where in truth the ſaid Humphrey had not ſurrendred all the ſaid term granted to him, for he had made divers aſſignments and demiſes as is aforeſaid. And afterwards Queen Eliz. 28. Julii, anno 26. in conſideration of a ſurrender of the ſaid Letters Patents of anno 23 Eliz. and of all the eſtate, term and intereſt by them demiſed and granted, demiſed and granted the ſaid Mannor to the ſaid Humphrey, Habendum a die confectionis earundum literarum patentium, for the lives of three others and the ſurvivor of them: And under this latter demiſe the Defendants claimed. And if this latter leaſe were good or not, was the Queſtion. And after many Arguments at Bar and Bench Judgment was given by Sir William Periam Chief Baron, and the whole Court of Exchequer for the Queen. And in this Caſe two Points were reſolved: [94]

1. In as much as the valuable material conſideration of the ſaid Letters Patents for three lives being falſe, and thereby the Queen deceived, by conſequence the ſaid leaſe for three lives was void; for the conſideration was, That the ſaid former leaſe ſhall be ſurrendred, and in truth the former leaſe was void, ſo as the motive cauſe of making the ſecond leaſe was falſe; and for this cauſe the latter leaſe made upon ſuch conſideration was void alſo. And the former leaſe in anno 23. was void, becauſe the ſame was in conſideration of a ſurrender of all the eſtate, term, and intereſt demiſed by the Letters Patents made 10 Eliz. whereas in truth all the eſtate was not ſurrendred: For he made divers demiſes and grants of ſeveral parcels of the ſaid Mannor before, and that may be very miſchievous to the Queen, for her leſſee may demiſe all the land to him demiſed ſaving a ſmall parcel, and for a ſmall term in reverſion, and after ſurrender to the Queen, and take a new leaſe with reſervation of rent, and condition of reentry; and in this Caſe neither the new rent, nor the condition ſhall extend to the eſtates and intereſts derived out of the firſt leaſe. And it is a Maxim, That if the conſideration which is for the benefit of the Queen, being executed, or executory, or be it on Record or not on Record, be not true or not performed, or if prejudice may accrue to the Queen by reaſon of not performing of it, the Letters Patents are void. And in the Caſe at Bar it was for the advantage and benefit of the Queen, that all the former term of anno 10 Eliz. ſhall be ſurrendred according to the expreſs conſideration, to the intent that the rent, and condition reſerved upon the new leaſe of anno 23. ſhould extend to all the land demiſed according to the purport and true intention of the ſaid Letters Patents. Alſo when the Queen made the leaſe for three lives in conſideration of a ſurrender of the ſaid leaſe of anno 23. which leaſe was void, thence it followeth that the demiſe made in conſideration of this ſurrender was void alſo, becauſe that the Queen was deceived in the conſideration of her demiſe; for the ſurrender of the former term was a principal motive to induce the Queen to make a new leaſe, and perhaps to mitigate ſome of the fine; which conſideration being valuable and material, ought to be truly and duly performed.

2. It was reſolved, That when the Queen 28. Julii, anno 26. demiſed the ſaid Mannor to Humphrey Barwick, Habendum ſibi a die confectionis earundem literarum patentium, that the ſaid 28. day of July it ſelf is without queſtion excluded, and the ſaid demiſe cannot begin, nor the leſſee enter, before 29. of July, for this (a) or (ab) eſt dictio ſignificativa primi termini, a qua, ſicut dictio (uſque) termini, ad quem; and (a) or (ab) accipitur excluſive. [b]

3. It was reſolved, That an eſtate of Freehold cannot by the Common Law begin in futuro, but ought to take effect preſently in poſſeſſion, reverſion, or remainder. And the difference is between a leaſe for life, and a leaſe for years: For a leaſe for years may begin in futuro, but not a leaſe for life. As if a man make a leaſe for years to begin at Michaelmas next, it is good; but if a man make a leaſe for life to begin at Michaelmas next it is void; And the reaſons and cauſes of the ſaid difference are; 1. Becauſe a leaſe for years may be made without livery and ſeiſin, but ſo cannot an eſtate of Freehold without livery, either in fact or in Law: And therefore when a man maketh a leaſe for life to begin at a day to come, he cannot make preſent livery to a future eſtate; and therefore in ſuch Caſe nothing paſſeth: And it was ſaid, that Letters Patents under the Great Seal do amount to a livery in Law; and therefore by Letters Patents a leaſe cannot be made for life to begin at a day to come. 2. If any Freehold ſhall paſs preſently by the Letters Patents at a day to come, then the Queen in the mean time ſhould have a particular intereſt and term without any donor or leſſor, which ſhall be againſt the rules of the Law. But no ſuch conſequent will follow in the Caſe of a leaſe for years; and therefore it was reſolved in the Caſe at Bar that the leaſe for three lives was void, becauſe it was to begin the next day after the Teſte of the Letters Patents: And if the leaſe ſhall be good, the Queen ſhall have an intereſt for the 28. day; and although the leaſe were to begin the day after the Teſte of it, it is all one in Law as if it had been to begin 20 or 40 days or years to come, for the diſtance of the time doth not make the alteration of the Law in this Caſe: And in this Caſe it was agreed, That if a man make a leaſe for years to A. and B. the remainder to C. for life, in this Caſe the leſſor ought to make livery to A. and B. before their entry, and by the livery to A. and B. C. ſhall take preſent eſtate by way of remainder, by force of the livery made to the leſſees for years. And therewith agreeth Litt. lib. 1. fol. 12. And in ſuch Caſe difference was taken by ſome, between two joynt Attorneys, who have expreſs authority to take livery and ſeiſin by deed, and two joynt leſſees in the Caſe aforeſaid who have power to receive livery for the benefit of another by warrant of Law; for livery made to one Attorney in the name of both is not good, for he doth not follow his expreſs warrant, for he alone hath no warrant, for they both make but one Attorney: But in the Caſe of two joynt leſſees, there the livery made to one in the name of both is good, for they have an intereſt in the land before their entry, and livery to one in the name of both, maketh actual poſſeſſion in both, which is ſufficient to ſupport the remainder to C. And in the one caſe the livery is made to the leſſees who have intereſt, and in the other to him who maketh the warrant of Attorney by his Attorneys, which have but a bare authority. And although that livery cannot be made to one in the name of him and of another who is abſent, whereby any eſtate of Freehold ſhall paſs to him who is abſent without deed, becauſe his eſtate is only to begin by the livery: yet when a [95]

leaſe is made to two for years without deed, the remainder for life, the leſſees preſently have intereſt in the lands before any livery made; and therefore livery made to one who hath an intereſt in the name of him and the other is ſufficient to that purpoſe.

Note (good Reader) I have Reported this Caſe, to the intent that the imperfections in the Letters Patents made to Barwick, by which he loſt his leaſe, ſhall be avoided in leaſes, and principally to poor men to be made in times to come.

Goodall's Caſe.

[b] BEtween Cutbert Godall Plaintiff, and John Wyot Defendant, in an Ejectione firmæ of lands in Aileſbury in the County of Buck. which began Hill. 37 Eliz. Rot. 805. The Defendant pleaded Not Guilty: And the Jurors gave a ſpecial verdict to this effect; Sir John Packington was ſeiſed of the tenements aforeſaid in fee, and by his Deed indented, 1. Julii, 35 Eliz. did thereof enfeoff Robert Woodcliffe and his heirs, Proviſo ſemper quod ſi præd. Johannes infra unum annum poſt deceſſum ipſius Roberti ſolvat, ſeu ſolvi faciat hæred', executor', ſive adminiſtrator' ipſius Roberti ſumm' centum marcarum legalis mon' Angl', quod tunc & deinceps præſens charta indentata & ſeiſina inde habita, vacua ſit, & nullius vigoris, &c. Robert Woodcliffe did thereof enfeoff Edward Woodcliffe, whoſe eſtate by divers mean conveyances Thomas Goodall the leſſor of the Plaintiff had: And afterwards 7. Jan. 35 Eliz. the ſaid Robert Woodcliffe died, and after whoſe death Drue Woodcliffe being his ſon and heir, and Anne his wife took Letters of Adminiſtration of his goods; by which Drue and Anne made a Letter of Attorney to Tho. Goodall to demand and receive the ſaid 100 Marks upon the ſaid Proviſo or Condition, of which the ſaid Thomas Goodall gave notice to the ſaid Sir John Packington; And afterwards and within the ſaid year, it was agreed between the ſaid Sir John and the ſaid Drue, that the ſaid Sir John ſhould pay to the ſaid Drue but 32 l. of the ſaid 100 Marks, and no more, and yet in appearance for the better performance of the Condition, that the whole ſum of 100 Marks ſhall be paid, and that the reſidue over 32 l. ſhall be repaid to Sir John; upon which the ſaid Sir John paid within the ſaid year 100 Marks to the ſaid Drue, [96] and preſently all was repaid to Sir John but the ſaid 32 l. only, according to their preceding agreement aforeſaid: And afterwards the ſaid Sir John did reenter into the ſaid tenements, pretending that he had performed the Condition, upon whom the ſaid Tho. Goodall did enter, and made the leaſe to the Plaintiff, who entred and was poſſeſſed, until the ſaid John Wyot ouſted him, (without conveying any intereſt or authority to the ſaid Wyot under Sir John Packington) but the Jury did conclude, Si ſuper totam materiam, &c. prædict. ſolutio prædict. centum marcarum per prædict. Johannem Packington Milit' præfat' Drogoni fact', ſit bona & legalis ſolutio in lege earundem centum marcarum, ſecundum formam proviſionis præd', Juratores prædicti ignorant: Et ſi, &c. So that the doubt which the Jury conceived was only upon the ſaid payment; and whether the ſaid payment as is aforeſaid were ſufficient in Law to give title of entry by force of the ſaid Condition to the ſaid Sir John Packington upon the ſaid Thomas Goodall: And it was objected on the Defendants part, That although before the payment it was agreed between the ſaid Sir John Packington and the ſaid Drue Woodcliffe, that the ſaid Drue Woodcliffe ſhould have but 32 l. of the ſaid 100 Marks, yet Sir John paid the whole, and Drue received the whole, and the property of all the monies was in Drue; and if Drue would not have repaid to him the reſidue above the 32 l. Sir John Packington had not any remedy, but an Action upon the Caſe (if any Action upon the matter would lie.) And for this cauſe they concluded that it was a good payment to ſatiſie the Condition.

But to that it was anſwered and reſolved by Popham Chief Juſtice and the whole Court, that it was not any performance of the Condition, and their reaſon was, becauſe an eſtate of Inheritance was by the payment of the ſaid monies to be deveſted out of Thomas Goodall the aſſignee of the land; and therefore the Condition ought to have been performed in truth by a true and effectual payment, and not by a ſhadow or colour of payment: And in the Caſe at Bar the precedent agreement did guide the ſubſequent payment, and their intent was that but the ſaid 32 l. ſhould be enjoyed and kept, although that more was in appearance paid; And eſtates of third perſons ſhall not be deveſted by colourable or covenous payments, but by true and effectual payment, as is aforeſaid. Vide 19 H. 6. 54. 20 E. 3. Accompt 79. & 18 E. 4. 18. where it appeareth, That conditions ought to be performed truly and effectually, Quia [b] factum non dicitur, quod non perſeverat.

2. It was reſolved, That if all the money had been paid to the heir bona fide (although that Robert Woodcliffe his father hath conveyed his whole eſtate over in the land) it had been ſufficient. For the heir is a perſon expreſly named in the condition to whom the payment ſhall be made, and the feoffor is a ſtranger to the conveyance that the feoffee and his aſſignees made, and the feoffor ſhall not take notice at his peril of the validity of them, nor of the conditions or limitations annexed to them.

3. It was reſolved, That as this condition is in the Caſe at Bar, the feoffor could not have paid it to Goodall the aſſignee of the land, for heirs, executors, and adminiſtrators were expreſſed in the condition, and the aſſignee not, as in the Caſe of Littleton, Chap. Condition 78. If the Condition were, That if the feoffor pay to the feoffee, or to his heirs, ſuch a ſum ſuch a day, there after the death of the feoffee, feoffee, if he die before the day limited, the payment ought to be made to the heir at the day ſet, where this word (ought) which importeth neceſſity was obſerved; And therefore in ſuch Caſe the money ſhall not be paid to the Executors. And ſo the doubt in 12 E. 3. Condition 9. and Dier 2 Eliz. 181. well reſolved: But the aſſignee of the land, although he be not named in the Condition amongſt the perſons who ſhall pay the money, yet he may well pay the money for the ſaving of his tenure, as Littleton ſaith, fol. 77. So note the difference, that the monies ſhall not paid to the aſſignee of the land without naming of him in the Condition, for there the payment goeth to the defeaſance of the Inheritance, but the monies ſhall be paid by the aſſignee in ſalvation of his Inheritance. Mich. 23 & 24 Eliz. in the Court of Wards, the Caſe was ſuch, Edward Randal ſeiſed in fee of certain lands of Inheritance within the County of Surrey by Deed indented and inrolled according to the Statute, did covenant with John Brown, that if the ſaid Brown did pay to the ſaid Randal, his heirs or aſſignees 400 l. the fourth day of March then next following, at a certain place, that then the ſaid Edward and his heirs would ſtand ſeiſed of the ſaid lands to the uſe of Brown and his heirs; And before the ſaid day Edward Randal died, and having iſſue a ſon, made his Will in writing, and made Alice his wife, Raph Hare, and Hugh Hare his Executors, and deviſed the ſaid land to his wife during the minority of his ſon, and died, his iſſue within age, and in Ward to the Queen; and before the day, the wife did renounce, and took Letters of Adminiſtration. And now the Queſtion was, to whom the monies ſhall be paid. And in this Caſe three Points were reſolved by the Chief Juſtices Wray and Dier, and the whole Court of Wards, that is to ſay, That in the ſaid Caſe theſe words (aſſignees) ſhall be only intended of the aſſignees of the eſtate of John Brown, for he hath an eſtate in him aſſignable, and the Law will never find an aſſignee in Law, when there may be an aſſignee in fact: But if Edward Randal had made a feoffment in fee, upon Condition that the feoffee ſhould pay the money to the feoffor, his heirs or aſſignees, &c. there becauſe he departeth with his whole eſtate in fee, and hath but a bare Condition which he cannot aſſign over, the Law which ſhall never reject any word, if by any reaſonable conſtruction it may take effect, ſhall make conſtruction which perſon ſhall be moſt apt as his aſſignee in Law to receive the ſaid monies; and thoſe the Law doth adjudge to be his Executors, becauſe they repreſent the perſon of the Teſtator for all goods and chattels, and in ſuch Caſe the feoffor cannot have any aſſignee in fact. And ſo a good difference; and therewith agreeth 27 H. 8. 2. a. 2. It was reſolved in the ſaid Caſe of Randal, that the wife having by the deviſe but a particular intereſt in the land, was not aſſignee of the land within the Proviſo: So if the ſaid Edward had made eſtate for life or years, &c. for none ſhall be aſſignee in this Caſe: But when the Covenantor departeth with his whole eſtate, as if he make a feoffment in fee, a gift in tail, a leaſe for life with the remainder over in fee, in ſuch Caſe the leſſee for life, or donee in tail is the aſſignee: But ſo long as the Covenantor hath the reverſion remaning in him, the payment ought to be made to him. So it was ſaid, that if Edward Randal had made an aſſignment of his whole eſtate in part, as long as any part remained with Edward Randal, the tender ought to be made to him or his heirs. 3. It was reſolved in the ſaid Caſe of Randal, That the tender ought to be made to the heir, and not to the Executors, becauſe the heir was expreſly named, which excludeth Executors and Adminiſtrators. Et expreſſum facit ceſſare tacitum. [97]

4. It was reſolved, That although that in the Caſe at Bar no title was found for the Defendant, but is as a meer ſtranger, yet the Court in a ſpecial Verdict, ſhall never doubt but of that which only the Jurors doubt: And therefore for as much as they rely and conclude upon the payment, if it be a performance of the Condition or not, the Court ought not to give Judgment till they have reſolved that which the Jurors have referred to their conſideration, and all other matters ſhall be intended and ſupplied, but only that which the Jurors have referred to the conſideration of the Court. And ſo it was adjudged M. 30 & 31 Eliz. between Scovel and Cabel: And afterwards Judgment was given for Cuthbert Godall the Plaintiff: Upon which Judgment the Defendant brought a Writ of Error in the Exchequer Chamber: And all the Court upon argument and debate of the Caſe there again did concur in opinion with the Juſtices of the Kings Bench, and affirmed the Judgment. And ſo this Caſe was reſolved by all the Judges of England. [b]

The Counteſs of Northumberland's Caſe.

FItton and the Counteſs of Northumberland his wife, Sir Thomas Cecil Knight, and Dorothy his wife, William Cornwalleis Eſquire, and Lucy his wife, and the Lady Davers, daughters and heirs of the Lord Latimer, brought a Quare Impedit againſt Hall and others, who pleaded a Releaſe of William Cornwalleis pendant the Writ; Judgment of the Writ: upon which the Plaintiffs did demur. And it was adjudged that it went in bar but againſt William Cornwalleis and his wife, and the Writ ſtood for the others: Vide 45 E. 3. 10. in the Caſe of Ward. Et nota, That in all Caſes of a thing entire, and in the realty, as preſentation to a Church, Wardſhip of the body, &c. the releaſe of one ſhall enure to the benefit of the other: Then it was moved, That the Count was inſufficient, for the Plaintiffs in their Count intitle themſelves, that the Lord Latimer was ſeiſed of the advowſon in fee, and granted the next avoidance to Dean Carew, and afterwards the Church being void, Dean Carew preſented, and

ſo convey the deſcent to them without alledging any preſentment in the Lord Latimer or any other bu only in the grantee of the next avoidance; And if this preſentment were good title for the grantor an his heirs or not, was the Queſtion. And it was adjudged that it was a ſufficient title, for he doth it in th [98] right and title of the grantor, and therefore ſhall ſerve for him to make a title in a Quare Impedit. Th ſame Law of leſſee for years, leſſee for life, tenant in Dower, tenant by the Curteſie, Guardian, tenan by Statute Merchant, Staple, &c. and that agreeth with divers opinions in 7 E. 4. 20. 22 E. 4. 9. b.
16 H. 7. 18. a. 9 H. 7. 23. Br. Quare Impedit 122. 23 Eliz. Dier 300. And true it is that it is a common learning in our Books, that where tenant for years, or for life, bring a Quare Impedit, he ought to alledge ſeiſin in him who hath fee, and that regularly is true. And yet preſentations by themſelves do ſuffice, as it appeareth 8 H. 5. 10. And this Reſolution doth not oppoſe that Rule; for preſentation of the grantee of the next avoidance being made in the title and right of the grantor ſhall ſerve as well for him, as his own preſentment, and doth amount to as much. As if grantee for years of a Seigniory, or Guardian get ſeiſin of the ſervices, it ſhall be a good ſeiſin for him in the reverſion, and therewith agreeth
F. N. B. 179. f. 45 E. 3. 26. 11 E. 3. Aſſiſe 86. Alſo it is holden in our Books, That if preſentment be alledged in the leſſor or donor, and alſo in the leſſee and donee it is not double, for the preſentment of the leſſor or donor is not traverſable. And ſee for both theſe Points 18 E. 3. 15. 24 E. 3. 37. 40 E. 3.

a Caſe adjudged in which was diverſity of opinions in our Books, in which the Law is now well reſolved.

Burie's Caſe.

[b] BEtween Webber and Bury in an Ejectione firmæ, a ſpecial verdict was given upon a divorce betwee
Bury and his wife, cauſa frigiditatis, and that the wife for three years after the marriage remanſit vir intacta propter perpetuam impotentiam generationis in viro, & quod vir fuit inaptus ad generandum. And in thi ſpecial Verdict all the examinations of the Witneſſes, upon which the Judge in the Spiritual Court wa moved to give his ſentence, and which were depoſed in the ſame Caſe by which the perpetual infirmity and diſability of Bury ad generandum was manifeſt (which were not entred in a former Verdict, upon which Judgment was given) by which it was pretended, that by reaſon of his perpetual impotency the iſſue which he had by the ſecond wife was illegitimate; and that was the doubt in this cauſe which the Jury conceived: And it was adjudged, that the iſſue by the ſecond wife was legitimate; for it is clear that by the divorce cauſa frigiditatis the marriage was diſſolved a vinculo matrimonii, and by conſe-quence each of them might marry again. Then admitting that the ſecond marriage was voidable, yet it remaineth a marriage until it be diſſolved; and by conſequence the iſſue had during the coverture, if no divorce be in the life of the parties, is lawful. See 36 Aſſ. 10. 39 E. 3. 32. 28 H. 8. Baſtardy 44. Bracton, lib. 2. fol. 92. 12 H. 7. 22. 22 E. 4. Conſultation 6. Et ſemper præſumit' pro legitimatione puerorum, & filiatio non poteſt probari, and a man may be habilis & inhabilis diverſis temporibus. And for this caſe (not-withſtanding the depoſitions by which a natural and perpetual inability before the firſt ſentence was depoſed) Judgment was given that the iſſue was lawful according to the firſt Judgment given. And upon this Judgment a Writ of Error was brought, and after many Arguments and great deliberation, the ſaid Judgment was affirmed by Popham Chief Juſtice and the whole Court, for the reaſons and cauſes aforeſaid.

Flower's Caſe.

[99] LAuncelot Flower was indicted upon the Statute of 5 Eliz. for perjury, in giving falſe evidence to the Grand Inqueſt at the Seſſions holden at Wisbich, &c. upon an Indictment of Riot. And the ſaid Flower was by Judgment of the Court diſcharged of this Indictment: for the Statute of 5 Eliz. cap. 14.
hath two Branches; The firſt is againſt procurors of perjury, and that in matter depending in ſuit by Bill, Action, or Information. The ſecond Branch (upon which the ſaid Flower was indicted) is enacted againſt them who commit perjury by his or their depoſition in any of the Courts above mentioned, or being examined in perpetuam rei memoriam: And although that this clauſe be general, and not reſtrained by any words to particular ſuits, viz. by Bill, Writ, Action, or Information, as the firſt was, yet in good conſtruction this Branch ſhall have reference to the firſt, and ſhall be expounded by it, and ſo one part of the Act ſhall expound the other. For otherwiſe the party who committeth the perjury upon Indictment ſhall be puniſhed upon this Branch; and he who ſuborneth and procureth him to commit the perjury ſhall paſs unpuniſhed, which ſhall be againſt reaſon, and the meaning of the makers of the Act. For ſome ſay, Quod plus peccat author quam actor. And ſo it was adjudged in Monday's Caſe in the Kings Bench, Mich. 36 & 37 Eliz. And the like Judgment wasgiven Trin. 39 Eliz. in the Kings Bench in Caſe of perjury ſuppoſed to be committed upon an Indictment of felony.
of

Hill. 40 Eliz. in the Common Pleas.

Rooke's Caſe.

IN a Replevin in the Common Pleas by Rookes againſt Withers; The Defendant juſtified the taking by authority of Commiſſion of Sewers directed to B. S. and others, to ſurvey all Walls (prout in the Commiſſion) in the River of Thames in the County of Kent and Eſſex, becauſe that one Carter, &c. was aſſeſſed to every acre for repairing of a Bank, &c. for the not payment of which he took the diſtreſs, To which the Plaintiff replied, Of his own wrong, without ſuch cauſe. And the Jurors found the Commiſſion and the Statutes of 6 H. 6. cap. 5. & 23 H. 8. cap. 5. And that the Commiſſioners did impanel a Jury to enquire of defaults, who preſented that ſeven acres of meadow in which the diſtreſs was taken was next adjoyning to the River; and that the bank of the River was adjoyning to the ſaid ſeven acres, for which they taxed Carter to pay 8 s. for every acre: And the Jury further found, that the Occupiers of the ſaid ſeven acres have uſed always to repair the ſaid bank, ſometimes voluntarily, and ſometimes by preſentment. And further that divers other perſons had lands to the quantity of 800 acres within the ſame level, and ſubject to drowning, if the ſaid bank be not repaired: And if this aſſeſsment of the Owner of the land next adjoyning only without any aſſeſsment of the other who had lands ſubject to the like danger of drowning, were lawful or not was the Queſtion. And in this Caſe three Points were reſolved: [b]

1. That the finding of the reparing, &c. by the Occupiers of the ſaid ſeven acres was not material, becauſe the Occupiers might be Tenants at will, or other particular Tenants who by their Act cannot bind him who hath the Inheritance.

2. That the Commiſſioners ought to tax all who are in danger to be endamaged for the not repairing equally, and not he who hath the land next adjoyning to the River only; for the Statute of 6 H.6. cap. 6. in which the Commiſſion of Sewers is formed and ſpecified, hath preciſe words in the ſame Commiſſion, That no perſon of any eſtate or condition ſhall be ſpared. Ita quod aliquis tenentibus terrarum ſive tenementorum, &c. diviti vel pauperi, vel alteri cujuſcunque conditionis, ſtatus, vel dignitatis fuerit, qui defenſionem, commodum, & ſalvationem per præd. Wallias, foſſata, gutteras, pontes, calceta, & gurgites, &c. habent, vel habere poterint nullatenus partiatur in hac parte. And if the Law ſhall be otherwiſe, inconvenience may follow, for it may be that the rage and force of the water ſhall be ſo great, that the value of the land adjoyning will not ſerve to make the banks; And therefore the Statutes will have all which are in danger, and are to take commodity by the making of the banks to be contributory; for Qui ſentit commodum ſentire debet & onus: and the ſaid Statutes require equality, which well agreeth with the rule of Equity: See the Caſe of Bankrupts in the Second Part of my Reports. Vide 35 H. 8. Br. tit. Teſtam. 19. 4 E. 3. Aſſiſe 178. 11 H. 7. 12. 29 E. 3. 39. and Sir William Harbert's Caſe in the third Part of my Reports; Caſes of equality grounded upon reaſon and equity, Ipſe etenim leges cupiunt ut jure regantur; And notwithſtanding the ſaid words of the ſaid Commiſſion give authority to the Commiſſioners to do according to their diſcretions, yet their proceedings ought to be limited and bound with the rule of reaſon and Law. For diſcretion is a ſcience or underſtanding to diſcern between falſity and truth, between right and wrong, between ſhadows and ſubſtance, between equity and colourable gloſſes and pretences, and not to do according to their wills and private affections; for as one ſaith, Talis diſcretio diſcretionem confundit. And Walmeſley Juſtice held, and it was not denied by any, That if the owner of the land were bound by preſcription to repair the River bank, that yet upon ſuch Commiſſion awarded, the Commiſſioners ought not to charge him only, but ought to tax all who had land in danger: And to this purpoſe the Statutes were made; for otherwiſe it might be that all the land ſhall be drowned before that one perſon only can repair the bank, and that appeareth by the words of the Statutes: for which cauſe Judgment was given for the Plaintiff. Penruddock's Caſe.

[b] IN a quod permittat between Henry Clark Plaintiff, and Edward Penruddock and Mary his wife Defendants, which was adjudged in the Common Pleas, and removed by a Writ of Error into the Kings Bench, Hill. 37 Eliz. Rot. 387. the Caſe was ſuch; John Cocke 2. Octobr. anno 1 Mar. builded upon his own Freehold a houſe in S. Johns ſtreet in the County of Midd. ſo near the Curtilage of the houſe of Thomas Chichely, that domus illa ſuperpendet, Anglice, doth hang over, magnam partem, videlicet, 3. pedes Curtilagii prædicti, &c. And afterwards John Cock conveyed the houſe which he had ſo built to Penruddock and his wife; And Tho. Chicheley to whom the nuſans was done, conveyed his houſe to Clark the Plaintiff. And the Plaintiff in his Quod permittat (which he brought) proſternere domum prædict', declared that the ſame houſe ſuperpendet tres pedes curtilagii prædict', ſic quod aquæ pluviales de eadem domo deſcendentes, ſolum ejuſdem curtilagii conterunt, ac magnopere, ac indies magis magiſque conſumunt & devaſtant, ac ea ratione curtilagii præd' quolibet pluviali tempore humectat' & inundat' exiſt', ita quod prædict' Henric' inhabit' in eodem meſſuagio, nullum profic' & eaſiament' de eodem curtilagio percipere poſſit, ad nocumentum liberi tent' prædicti in eiſdem. And the firſt Queſtion was, if the Writ of Quod permittat lieth in this Caſe by the feoffee or not: And it was objected, that when wrong and injury is done by levying of a nuſans for which an Action lieth, that if he who hath the Freehold to whom the nuſans is done convey the ſame over, now this wrong is remedileſs: As if the Lord encroach rent of his tenant, the tenant cannot avoid [101] this wrong in an Avowry, but in an Aſſiſe, or a Ceſſavit, or a Ne injuſte vexes he may. But if the tenant to whom the wrong is done enfeoffeth another, his feoffee ſhall never avoid this wrong; for he ſhall take the land in the ſame plight it was given him, and that appeareth by 33 E. 3. Avowry 255. & 18 E. 2. Avowry 217. & 4 E. 2. Avowry 201. Alſo if a man be ſeiſed of land to which is Common appendant, and he is diſſeiſed of the Common, upon which he bringeth an Aſſiſe, and afterwards enfeoffeth another of the ſaid land, the Common is extinct for ever; and therewith agreeth 4 E. 3. for which they conceived that the feoffee ſhall not have a Quod permittat to avoid the wrong and nuſans made in the time of the feoffor. But it was anſwered and reſolved, That the diſtilling of the water in the time of the feoffee is a new wrong, ſo that the permiſſion of the wrong by the feoffor, or his feoffee to continue to the prejudice of another ſhall be puniſhed by the feoffee of the houſe to whom, &c. And if the ſame ſhall not be reformed after requeſt made, the Quod permittat lieth againſt the feoffee, and he ſhall recover damages if he do not reform it, but without requeſt made, it doth not lie againſt the feoffee, but againſt him who did the wrong it lieth without any requeſt made, for the Law doth not require any requeſt to be made to him who himſelf doth the wrong; And ſo this Caſe not like to any of the Caſes which have been put on the other ſide. Vide 4 Aſſ. 3. 4 E. 3. 36. 5 E. 3. 43. where it appeareth that the feoffee ſhall have a Quod permittat of a nuſans levied in the time of the feoffor: And with this Judgment agreeth Judgment given by Sir Chriſtopher Wray Chief Juſtice and the whole Court of Kings Bench, Mich. 24 & 25 Eliz. where the Caſe was; John Rolfe the father was ſeiſed of a houſe in Hemelhamſtead in fee; and Richard Rolfe the father was alſo ſeiſed of a piece on the South and Eaſt parts adjacent to the ſaid houſe, and Richard Rolfe built a houſe upon his piece of land aforeſaid, ſo near the houſe of the ſaid John Rolfe, that the Eaves of the ſaid houſe did hang over part of the houſe of the ſaid John Rolfe, ſo that the rain which deſcended from the houſe of the ſaid Richard Rolfe, fell upon part of the houſe of the ſaid John Rolfe, and afterwards John Rolfe died, and his land deſcended to his ſon, and afterwards the ſaid Richard Rolfe died, and his land deſcended to his ſon, who upon requeſt made by the ſaid John the ſon did not reform the ſaid wrong, but ſuffered the Eaves of his houſe to hang over the houſe of the ſaid John the ſon for a certain time; the wall of the houſe of the ſaid John the ſon became rotten, &c. upon which matter John the ſon brought an Action againſt Richard the ſon, upon which Richard the ſon did demur in Law; And it was adjudged that the Action was maintenable, becauſe the Defendant upon requeſt made, did not reform the nuſans which his father made, but ſuffered the ſame to continue to the prejudice and damage of the Plaintiff, ſon and heir to him to whom the wrong was done. Vide 2 H. 4. 13. 31 E. 3. Voucher 272. 20 Aſſ. p. 18. 19 Aſſ. p. 6. and with this Judgment in the principal Caſe agreeth [b] the Regiſter 199. b. & F. N. B. 124. And the Statute of Weſt. 2. cap. 24. by which it is enacted, Quod ſi transferat' domus, murus, &c. in aliam perſonam, breve non denegat', ſed de cætero, cum in uno caſu conceſſit breve in conſimili caſu, ſimili remedio indigente, ſicut prius, fiat breve. Et ſi hujuſmodi levata ad nocumentum, transfirant' in aliam perſonam, de cætero fiat breve, &c. By which it appeareth, That the Writ in our Caſe well lieth, and ſo it was adjudged in the Common Pleas, that the Quod permittat in the Caſe at Bar did well lie. Vide 14 Eliz. Dier 319. Madam Browns Caſe. And Hill. 35 Eliz. Rot. 493. between Beſwicke and Camden in the Kings Bench: Upon which Judgment in the Caſe at Bar Penruddock and his wife brought a Writ of Error in the Kings Bench, where Popham Chief Juſtice, and all the Juſtices of the Kings Bench did concur in opinion with the Juſtices of the Common Pleas, as to the Point there adjudged: And it was moved in the Kings Bench, If the feoffee might abate the nuſans as the feoffor himſelf, and as well in the hands of the feoffee who did not the nuſans, as in the hands of the feoffor who did the nuſans; And if the feoffee of the houſe to which the nuſans was made may do it, if he may do it before he have ſome ſpecial prejudice, as in diſtilling of the water, or if he ought to ſtay till he hath ſpecial prejudice. And Popham Chief Juſtice held in both Caſes, the feoffee might abate the nuſans, and that before any prejudice, for it is reaſon that he prevent his prejudice, and ſtay not till it be done, which was granted by the whole Court. And afterwards the Judgment was affirmed: And ſo this Caſe was adjudged by all the Judges of England.

Windsor's Case.

IN a Quare Impedit by Andrew Windsor against the Archbishop of Canterbury, Fletcher, &c. for the Church of Buscot in the County of Berks: The Plaintiff counted that he had a Mannor to which the Advowson of two parts of the said Church was appendant, and that the Defendant had a Mannor to which the Advowson of the third part was appendant; and upon the Count, and at the Bar, the Case was such: The Plaintiff hath the Advowson of two parts, the Defendant of the third; the Plaintiff presents once, and the Incumbent dieth, and afterwards he presented in the time of E. 6. Parry who was admitted, instituted, and inducted; And afterwards in the time of Queen Mary he was deprived, because he was a married man and a favourer of the Religion in the time of Ed. 6. and the Church being void by his deprivation, the Defendant presented his Clerk, who was admitted, instituted, and inducted, & remansit in Ecclesia præd. usque 1 Eliz. and then deprived by Jewel and others of the High Commissioners, and the first sentence declared and adjudged to be void, and Parry the first Incumbent restored to the Church: And afterwards the Defendants Clerk so deprived died, and then Parry died, and the Defendant presented as in his turn, for as much as his Incumbent was deprived, and Parry the Incumbent of the Plaintiff restored, by whose death the Church now becometh void; upon which the Plaintiff did demur in Law: And it was adjudged against the Plaintiff. And in this Case it was agreed, That if two have title to present by turns; and one present who is admitted, instituted, &c. and afterwards is deprived for Crime or Heresie, or any other cause, yet he shall not present again, but it shall serve for his turn; So if he present a meer Lay-man, who was admitted, instituted, &c. although it be declared by sentence that he was uncapable, and therefore void ab initio; yet because that the Ghurch was full till the sentence declaratory came, it shall serve for his turn because it was but voidable, as in the Case of Litt. If the Lord marrieth his Ward within age of consent, and afterwards he disagreeth to it, now it is no marriage ab initio, yet he shall marry him again. Vide 27 H. 6. Gard. 118. [b] If the Guardian marrieth his Ward, and afterwards they are divorced causa præcontractus, yet he shall not have the marriage of him again: But when the admission and institution are meerly void, then without doubt it shall not serve for a turn, as if his presentee had been admitted, instituted, and inducted, but he hath not subscribed to the Articles according to the Statute of 13 Eliz. 23 Eliz. Dier pl. ult. But in the principal Case, although the Defendants Clerk was Parson for the time to all purposes, and during the first deprivation Parry was not Incumbent; yet when the second sentence came, then Parry was Incumbent again by force of his presentation, institution, and induction, and needed no new institution, &c. And by force of the second sentence the presentee of the Defendant was removed, and Parry restored; Then when Parry died, who was the last presentee of the Plaintiff, the Defendant shall present in his turn, for the presentation which he made, now upon the matter during the life of Parry, being the second presentee of the Plaintiff, cannot be in his turn, when Parry dieth Incumbent by force of the Plaintiffs presentation: But if Parry had died before the second sentence, or had not reversed the former sentence, then the Defendant had had his turn: And note, that the Writ was ad Ecclesiam, and the Count was de advocatione duarum partium, and well. Vide Dier 6 E. 6. 78. b. 8 F. N. B. 39. b. vide Trin. 14 Eliz. B. and divers other Books are; but the Count ought to be according to his title. [102]

Hungate's Case.

Hungate brought an Action of Debt upon an Obligation against Mese and Smith, the Condition of which was to perform the arbitrement of two, between the Plaintiff of the one part, and the Defendant of the other part; Ita quod arbitrium præd. fiat & deliberetur utrique partium prædictorum before such a day: And the Defendants pleaded that before the day the arbitrement was made, but was delivered to the Plaintiff, and Mese one of the Defendants, and not to Smith; upon which the Plaintiff did demur. And Judgment was given against the Plaintiff. And it was resolved, that sometimes this word (uterque) is discretive and several, and sometimes collective, and conjoyned: As if two or three be bounden in an Obligation, & utrumque eorum, this word utrumque maketh the Obligation several, as it is holden in 28 H. 8. Dier 19. b. But in the Case at Bar it shall be taken collective. And the Rule to know in what sense it shall be taken, and when it shall be taken either severally or joyntly is to consider the subject matter, and to make construction according to congruity of reason, and ut evitetur absurdum, as in the Case of 39 H. 6. 7. the condition of an Obligation was, si uterque eorum, scil. the obligor and obligee, steterit arbitrio Robert Bozom, &c. and it was adjudged that each of [103]

them were bound pro parte ſua, and not one for the other; for that ſhall be abſurd and againſt reaſon: And in the Caſe at Bar, for as much as each of the parties is ſubject to penalty and damage, it is reaſon that the arbitrement ſhall be delivered to each of the parties, to the intent they may perform it, and avoid [b] the danger of breaking of it. 2. It was reſolved, that if two be of one part, and two of the other part, and the words are (as above) ita quod deliberetur utrique, that the delivery of the arbitrement to one of the one part, and to another of the other part is not ſufficient; for the party is to be intended of the whole party, one is as well within the penalty and danger as the other. And for as much as the Arbitrement was not delivered to Smith, Judgment was given againſt the Plaintiff.

Baker's Caſe.

[104] UPon Evidence in an Ejectione firmæ, between Middleton and Baker, it was reſolved by the whole Court, That if the Plaintiff in evidence ſheweth any matter in writing, or of Record, or any ſentence in the Eccleſiaſtical Court, upon which a queſtion in Law doth ariſe, and the Defendant offereth to demur in Law upon it, the Plaintiff cannot refuſe to joyn in demurrer, but he ought to joyn in the demurrer, or wave his evidence. So if the Plaintiff produceth witneſſes to prove any matter in fact, upon which a queſtion in Law doth ariſe, if the Defendant admitteth their teſtimony to be true, there alſo the Defendant may demur in Law upon it, but then he ought to admit the evidence given by the Plaintiff to be true; and the reaſon thereof is, That matter in Law ſhall not be put to Lay-men. So may the Plaintiff demur upon the Defendants evidence, mutatis mutandis: But if evidence be given for the King in information, or other ſuit, and the Defendant offer to demur upon it, the Kings Council are not tied to joyn in demurrer, but in ſuch Caſe the Court ought to direct the Jury to find the ſpecial matter, and upon that they ſhall adjudge the Law, as it appeareth 34 H. 8. Dier 53. but that is by the Kings Prerogative, who alſo may wave a Demurrer, and take iſſue at his pleaſure. Quæ Nota.

Boulſton's Caſe.

[b] BEtween Boulſton and Hardy it was adjudged in the Common Pleas, That if a man have Cony-boroughs in his own land, which increaſe in ſo great number that they deſtroy his Neighbours land adjoyning, that his Neighbour cannot have an Action on the Caſe againſt him who maketh the Cony-boroughs; for ſo ſoon as the Conies come in his Neighbours land he may kill them, for they are feræ naturæ, and he who maketh the Cony-boroughs hath no property in them, and he ſhall not be puniſhed for the hurt which the Conies do wherein he hath no property, and which the other may lawfully kill. And it was reſolved in this Caſe, That none may new erect a Dove-cote but the Lord of the Mannor, and if any doth, he may be puniſhed in the Leet, but no Action upon the Caſe lieth by any particular man, for the infiniteneſs of Actions that may be brought: And of ſuch opinion, as to the new erection of a Dove-cote was Sir Roger Manwood Chief Baron, and the Barons of the Exechequer in the Exchequer Chamber.

Alden's Caſe.

[105] IN an Ejectione firmæ by Smith againſt Alden; The Defendant pleaded that the Tenements in which were parcel of the Mannor of Odiham in the County of Southampton, &c. quod quidem manerium eſt de antiquo dominico, &c. and demanded the conuſans of the Court; upon which the Plaintiff did demur in in Law: And it was objected that this Action was but in the nature of Treſpaſs, and in old time, in it the term was not recovered, but only againſt him in the reverſion; And in Treſpaſs for breaking of a Cloſe and felling of trees, ancient demeſne is no plea, as it is adjudged in 46 E. 3. 1. Alſo lands in ancient demeſne ſhall be extended by Elegit, becauſe the Freehold doth remain as it was before, and yet the intereſt of the land is changed by this Execution, 7 H. 7. 1. But it was anſwered and reſolved that the plea was good.

1. Becauſe that the common Indictment is that the title and right of the land came in debate, as in a Replevin, in a Writ of Meſne, in a Writ of Ward, in Accompt againſt Guardian in Socage, ancient demeſne is a good plea, for the appearance and common intendment that the realty doth come in debate, 21 E. 3. 10. 4 E. 3. 4. 46 E. 3. 1. So in accompt againſt a Baily, for it is brought for the iſſues and profits of the land, which is ancient demeſne, which ought to be determined in the Court of ancient demeſne. Vide 21 E. 4. Ancient demeſne 6.

2. In this Action of Ejectione firmæ, the Plaintiff ſhall recover the poſſeſſion of the land, and ſhall have execution alſo per habere facias poſſeſſionem, and therefore not like to execution by Elegit; for there no Judgment is given to recover the poſſeſſion of the land in Court of Record, but only execution done by the Sheriff in the Country: But in an Aſſiſe brought by Tenant by Elegit, ancient demeſne is a good plea, as it is holden 22 Aſſ. 45. And there ſome ſay, That land in ancient demeſne is not ſubject to Elegit, but the Law is holden contrary at this day for the reaſon aforeſaid. And where any intereſt in the land ſhall be bound, or that the realty come in debate, it ſhall be reaſonable that thoſe in ancient demeſne, who beſt know to try it and determine it, have the conuſans of it. And if this Action proceedeth in this Court, the Sheriff cannot return any perſons within ancient demeſne; and if he return any, he may be challenged and withdrawn, and thereby the true inſtitution of the Law defeated, ſcil. That the intereſt of every man ſhall be tried per probos & legales homines de vicinet', &c. who beſt know the truth of the matter. And for as much as at this day all titles of lands are for the greateſt part tried in Ejectione firmæ, if in this ancient demeſne ſhould be no good plea, the ancient priviledges (which the Law for the repoſe and quiet of thoſe of ancient demeſne allowed to them, to the intent they may apply themſelves to their Tillage and Husbandry, and therefore are ſo greatly regarded and favoured in our Books) ſhall be utterly taken away and defeated. Vide 44 E. 3. 22. [b]

Paſch. 43 Eliz. in the Kings Bench.

Sir Henry Conſtable's Caſe.

SIR Henry Conſtable brought an Action of Treſpaſs againſt Gamble, and declared, That King Philip and Queen Mary were ſeiſed of the Mannor and fee of Holderneſs in the County of York in their demeſne as of fee; and by their Letters Patents granted the ſaid Mannor and fee with wreck of the Sea within the ſaid Mannor and fee, to Henry Earl of Weſtmerland in fee, who conveyed them to Sir John Conſtable father of the Plaintiff, whoſe heir he is in fee: And further declared, that certain goods, ſcil. twelve ſhirts and five cloaks were wreck and caſt upon the land within the Mannor of Barneſton, which is within the ſaid fee of Holderneſs, and that the Defendant took the ſaid goods, &c. The Defendant pleaded to iſſue, and thereupon a ſpecial Verdict was found to this effect; ſcil. That the conveyance to the Plaintiff of the Mannor and fee aforeſaid was true as he hath declared; and that the ſaid Mannor of Barneſton was within the ſaid fee: And further, that parcel of the ſaid goods were wreck, and caſt ſuper arenas aqua ſalſa minime coopertas Manerii de Baneſton, infra fluxum & refluxum maris in Manerio de Barneſton, and for other parcels of the goods, that they were floting ſuper aquas maris refluentes ex arenis ejuſdem Manerii de Barneſton infra fluxum & refluxum maris, &c. And that the Defendant took all the ſaid goods and ſeiſed them to the uſe of the Lord Admiral, &c. And damages aſſeſſed entirely for all: And ſi ſuper totam materiam, &c. And this Caſe was often well argued at Bar and Bench, and at the laſt Judgment was given againſt the Plaintiff. And in this Caſe five Points were reſolved: [106]

1. That nothing ſhall be ſaid Wreccum maris, but ſuch goods only which are caſt and left upon the land by the Sea; for Wreccum maris ſignificat illa bona, quæ naufragio ad terram appelluntur: Flotſam is when a Ship is ſunk, or otherwiſe periſhed, and the goods flote upon the Sea; Jetſam, is when the Ship is in danger to be ſunk, and for lightning of the Ship the goods are caſt into the Sea, and afterwards notwithſtanding the Ship periſheth. Lagan, or rather Ligan, is when the goods which are ſo caſt into the Sea, and afterwards the Ship periſheth, and ſuch goods ſo caſt are ſo heavy that they ſink to the bottom, and the Mariners to the intent to have them again, tie to them a boy, or cork, or ſuch other thing which will not ſink, ſo that they may find them again, and it is called Ligan a ligando; and none of theſe goods which are called Jetſam, Flotſam, and Ligan are called wreck ſo long as they remain in or upon the Sea, but if any of them by the Sea be put upon the land, then they ſhall be ſaid wreck. So Flotſam, Jetſam, and Lagan, being caſt upon the land ſhall paſs by the grant of wreck: And where it is provided by the Statute of 15 R. 2. cap. 3. that the Court of Admiralty ſhall not have Juriſdiction of wreck of the Sea, yet he ſhall have conuſans and juriſdiction of Flotſam, Jetſam, and Lagan; for wreck of Sea is, when the goods are by the Sea caſt upon the land, and ſo infra Comitat', whereof the Common Law taketh conuſans, but the other three are all upon the Sea, and therefore of them the Admiral hath Juriſdiction. Bracton, lib. 3. cap. 3. fol. 120. Item magis proprie dici poterit wreccum, ſi navis frangatur, & ex qua nullus vivus evaſerit, & maxime ſi domin' rerum ſubmerſus fuerit, & quicquid inde ad terram (note theſe words) venit, erit Domini Regis. And that alſo appeareth by the Book of Entries, fol. 611, 612. [b]

Treſpaſs

Treſpaſs in Wreck. Always when wreck is claimed by preſcription (as by Law it may be the pleading is bona wreccata ſuper mare, & ad terram projecti'. And another preſcription is there, habere omnimod' wreccum maris infra præcinctum Manerii, ſive Domini prædict' projecti', & flotſam maris infra eundem præcinct' deveniens': by which the difference between Wreck and Flotſam appeareth. See 9 E. 4. 22. wreck is when it is caſt upon the land, 11 H. 4. 16. 5 E. 3. 3. & 29. 21 H. 6. Preſcription, 14 E. 2. in Treſpaſs 236. 5 H. 7. 36. 39 H. 6. 37. & 9 H. 7. 20. acc'. Vide Regiſter 102. b. the Writ ſaith, Oſtenſurus quare cum idem Tho. Dominus Manerii de Eſtombavent exiſtat & ibidem habere debeat, ipſeque & anteceſſores ſui Domini Manerii præd' a tempore quo, &c. non exiſtat memoria, hucuſque habere conſueverunt wreccum maris infra præcinct' Manerii præd' Johannes & Robertus, bona & catalla ad valenc' cent' ſolid' apud S. infra præcinct. ejuſdem Manerii ad terram projecti', & quæ ad ipſum Tho. tanquam wreccum pertinere deberent, vi & armis ceperunt & aſportaverunt. Alſo the Statute of 15 R. 2. cap. 3. proveth it alſo. And it is enacted and declared, That wreck of the Sea ſhall be tried and determined by the Laws of the land, which cannot be extended to Flotſam, Jetſam, and Lagan, for they are in or upon the Sea, and therefore cannot [107] be tried and determined by the Common Law, for it wanteth trial, but are to be determined before the Admiral.

2. In this Caſe it was reſolved by the whole Court, that the ſoil upon which the Sea floweth and ebbeth; ſcil. between the high water mark and low water mark may be parcel of the Mannor of a Subject, 16 Eliz. Dier 316. acc'. And ſo it was adjudged in Lacie's Caſe, Trin. 25 Eliz. in this Court. And yet it was reſoved, That when the Sea floweth and hath plenitudinem maris, the Admiral ſhall have juriſdiction of every thing done upon the water, between the high water mark and low water mark, by the ordinary and natural courſe of the Sea: And ſo it was adjudged in the ſaid Caſe of Lacy, that the felony done upon the Sea ad plenitudinem maris, between the high water mark and the low water mark, by the ordinary and natural courſe of the Sea, the Admiral ſhall have juriſdiction; and yet when the Sea doth ebb, the land may belong to a Subject, and every thing done upon the land when the land is ebbed ſhall be tried at the Common Law, for the ſame is then parcel of the County, and infra corpus Comitat', and therewith agreeth 8 E. 4. 19. So note, that below the low mark the Admiral hath the ſole and abſolute juriſdiction, and between the high water mark and low water mark, the Common Law and the Admiral have diviſum Imperium, iterchangeably as is aforeſaid, ſcil. one upon the water, and the other upon the land. And Sir John Popham Chief Juſtice ſaid, That in trial of a Niſi prius between the City of Briſtow and the Lord Berkley, it was holden by the Juſtices of Aſſiſe, That where the Lord Berkley had a Mannor adjoyning to the Severn, and preſcribed to have wreck within his Mannor, and certain goods floted between the high water and low water mark, and the City of Briſtol had Flotſam there; And it was holden that the ſaid goods were not wreck as long as they were floting upon the water between high water and low water mark. See the Book in 5 E. 3. 3. in a Replevin brought by William de Newport of London againſt Sir Henry Nevil, and counted that the Defendant took three laſt of Herrings, and a Ship; and the Defendant pleaded that he was Lord of the Mannor of Warling, and preſcribed to have wreck within his Mannor, and that the Herring and Ship were wreck within his Mannor: To which the Plaintiff ſaid, that they were our goods in the keeping of the Mariners which arrived by the Sea, and that he took them out of their cuſtody: Judgment if he can claim as wreck? To which the Defendant ſaid, we took them as wreck, Hors de cheſcun gard; upon which Book I obſerve three things, 1. That wreck may be claimed by preſcription; 2. That for as much as a Ship cannot be wreck, ſcil. caſt upon the land, but between the high and low water mark, that there it followeth that that was parcel of the mannor: 3. That if the Ship periſh, yet if any of the ſervants eſcape, the Law ſaith, that they have the cuſtody of the goods, and they are not wreck, 39 E. 3. 5. One preſcribed to have royal Fiſhes, as Porps, &c. found within his Mannor, that it ſeemeth to be between the high and low water mark.

3. It was reſolved, That the King ſhall have Flotſam, Jetſam, & Lagan, when the Ship periſheth, or [b] when the Owners of the goods are known, as in 46 E. 3. 15. appeareth, that goods caſt into the Sea for fear of tempeſt are not forfeit. Vide F. N. B. 112. c. 5 E. 3. 3. 9 E. 4. 22. that the Ship ought to periſh, which is called ſhipwrack: And that is alſo proved by the Act of Weſt. 1. cap. 4. where it is ſaid, If a man, dog, or cat eſcape alive, (which is to be intended when the Ship periſheth) and therewith agreeth Bracton, lib. 2. cap. 18. fol. 41. Item ſine traditione res habita pro derelict', ubi Dominus ſtatim definit eſſe Dominus, ſi autem cauſa navis alleviandæ, non ſic, quia non ea voluntate ejecit quis, ut deſinat eſſe Dominus. And a man may have Flotſam and Jetſam by the Kings Grant, and may have Flotſam within the high and low water marks by preſcription, as it appeareth before. And thoſe of the Weſt Country preſcribe to have wreck in the Sea ſo far as they may ſee a Humber barrel.

4. It was reſolved, that the Statute of Weſt. 2. cap. 4. by which it is enacted, That of wreck of the Sea it is agreed, that there where a man, dog, or cat, eſcape alive out of the Ship or Veſſel, not any thing within them ſhall be adjudged wreck, but the goods ſhall be ſaved and kept by the view of the Sheriff, Coroner, or Kings Bayliff, &c. ſo that if any ſue for thoſe goods, and can prove that they belonged to him, or that they periſhed in his keeping within a year and a day, they ſhall be reſtored to him without delay, &c. was but a declaration of the Common Law; and therefore all that which is provided as to wreck, extendeth alſo to Flotſam, Jetſam, and Lagan. Bracton who wrote in the time of H. 3. before the making of the ſaid Act, ſpeaking of Wreck, ſaith, Et quod hujuſmodi dici debet wreccum, verum eſt, niſi ſit, quod verus Dominus aliunde veniens, & certa judicia & ſigna donaverit res eſſe ſuas, ut ſi canis vivus inveniat', & conſtare poterit, quod talis ſit Dominus illius canis præſumptive, ex hoc illum eſſe Dominum illius canis & illarum rerum: eodem modo ſi certa ſigna impoſita fuerint mercibus: By which it appeareth, that the Statute of Weſt. 1. which is made 3 E. 1. was but a declaratory of the Common Law, againſt the opinion in Doctor and Student 118. that if the Owner dieth, his Executors or Adminiſtrators may make their proofs. And in many Caſes concerning time, the Common Law giveth giveth a year and a day for convenient time; as in the Caſe of ſtray, if the Owner (Proclamations being made) dot claim the ſame within a year and a day, the ſame is forfeited. So a year and a day is given in Caſe of Appeal, and in Caſe of Deſcent after entry or claim; of Nonclaim upon fine, or Writ of right at the Common Law; of a Villain dwelling in Ancient demeſne; of the death of a man who hath blow or wound; of Protections, Eſſoins of the Kings ſervice, and in many other Caſes: And the year and day in Caſe of wreck, ſhall be accounted from the taking or ſeiſure of them as wreck; for although that the property is in Law veſted in the Lord before ſeiſure, yet until the Lord ſeiſeth, and taketh it into his actual poſſeſſion, it is not notorious who claimeth the wreck, nor to whom the owner ſhall repair to make his claim, and to ſhew to him his proofs. And if the wreck doth belong to the [108] King, the party may have a Commiſſion to hear and determine the truth of it, and that by verdict of twelve honeſt men, for no proof is allowable by Law, but the verdict of twelve men: And if it doth belong to another then to the King, then if the owner cannot ſatisfie him who claimeth the wreck by his mark or Cocket, or by the Book of Cuſtoms, or by teſtimony of honeſt men, then the owner may have ſuch Commiſſion, or may bring his Action at the Common Law, and prove the ſame by the verdict of a Jury; And if the Commiſſion be awarded, or the Action be brought within the year and day, although the verdict be given for him afterwards, it is ſufficient. See Regiſter and F. N. B. 12. For the Commiſſion, vide Statutes Weſt. 1. cap. 4. 4 E. 1. de Offic. Coronat. 15 R. 2. cap. 3. 27 E. 3. cap. 13. Britton, cap. 17. & 33 Stamf. Prærogat. Regis. And note, that the Act of Prærogativa Regis made in 17 E. 2. cap. 11. enacted, Quod Rex habebit wreccum maris per totum regnum, &c. is but a declaration and an affirmance of the Common Law. For notwithſtanding that the Statute being made within time of memory, a man may preſcribe to have wreck, as it appeareth in 11 H. 4. 16. Stramf. 38. F. N. B. 91. a. 5 H. 7. 36. 5 E. 3. 3. & 59. 9 E. 4. 12, &c.

5. It was reſolved in the Caſe at Bar, That part of the goods paſſed by the name of wreck, and part of the goods were Flotſam, and did not paſs by the grant of wreck, and damages were intirely aſſeſſed for all. And in Treſpaſs the Plaintiff ſhall recover damages only for the value of the goods, and for this cauſe Judgment was given againſt the Plaintiff. And the Book in 21 H. 7. 43. was cited, where the Caſe is, That in Treſpaſs the Defendant juſtifieth as to one thing, and pleadeth Not Guilty of another, and they are at iſſue, and the Jury enquired of one thing only, and taxed the damages for both entirely. Fineux held the verdict good for the thing found, and that he ſhould have a Writ of Enquiry of damages, Quod fuit negatum per totam Curiam. Dier 22 Eliz. 269. in Ejectione cuſtodiæ agreeth with this Judgment. And it was adjudged M. 14 & 15 Eliz. in this Court in Treſpaſs by Pooly againſt Osburn of breaking his Cloſe and beating his ſervant, and doth not ſay, per quod ſervitium amiſit, the Defendant pleaded Not Guilty, and the Jurors found him guilty and aſſeſſed damages intirely; and becauſe the Plaintiff had not cauſe of Action for beating of his ſervant, becauſe he hath not averred that he loſt his ſervice, for this cauſe the Plaintiff took nothing by his Bill. And Catline then Chief Juſtice cauſed the reaſon and cauſe of the Judgment to be at large ſet down in the margent of the Record, 9 H. 7. 3. in Reſcous acc'. And it was adjudged accordingly, M. 30 & 31 Eliz. between More and Bedell, in an Action upon the Caſe upon Aſſumpſit, which began in the Kings Bench, M. 28 & 29 Eliz. Rot. 476. where the Defendant promiſed to do divers things, and the Plaintiff alledged two breaches, whereof one was inſufficient, the Defendant pleaded Non aſſumpſit, the Jury gave damage generally. It was reſolved, 1. That it ſhall be intended that they gave damages for both: 2. That for as much as the Plaintiff had no cauſe of damages for the one, for this cauſe the Judgment given for the Plaintiff in the Kings Bench was reverſed by a Writ of Error brought in the Exchequer Chamber. [b]

Note Reader, at the firſt, the Common Law gave as well Wreck, Jetſam, Flotſam, and Logan upon the Sea, as Eſtray (which Bracton calleth animalia vagantia) or as other call them animalia vacantia, quia Domino vacari debent, treaſure trove, and the like to the King, becauſe that by the rule of the Common Law, when no man can claim property in any goods, the King ſhall have them by his Prerogative. And therefore Bracton, lib. 3. cap. 3. ſaith, Sunt alia quædam quæ in nullius bonis eſſe dicunt', ſicut wreccum maris, groſſus piſcis, ſicut ſturgio, & balena, & aliæ res quæ Dominum non habent, ſicut animalia vagantia, quæ ſunt Domini Regis propter privilegium. So that it appeareth by Bracton that the King ſhall have Wreck, as he ſhall have great fiſhes, &c. becauſe they are nullius in bonis, or as he ſhall have animalia vagantia, ſive vacantia, ſcil. Eſtrays, becauſe none claimeth the property. And note, that Wreck is Eſtray upon the Sea coming to land, as eſtray of beaſts is upon the land coming within any priviledged place; and the Law giveth in both Caſes a year and a day to claim them. And Bracton in the ſame Book, lib. 3. cap. 33. fol. 135. ſaith, Navis, nec batellus, nec alia catalla de his qui ſubmerſi ſunt mari, nec in ſalſa nec in dulci aqua, wreccum erit, cum ſit qui catalla illa advocet, & hoc docere poterit; and ſo he fitly before reſembleth it to an eſtray: And if the goods of an Infant, feme covert Executrix, a man in priſon, or beyond Sea, eſtray and be proclaimed according to the Law, if none claim them within the year and the day, they all ſhall be bounden. The ſame Law is of wreck of Sea, for the Law is ſtrict and binding in both Caſes; but it appeareth by the opinion of Bracton and Britton alſo, that Flotſam, Jetſam, and Lagan, ſo long as they are in or upon the Sea, do not appertain to the King, ſed occupanti concedunt', quia non eſt aliquis qui inde privilegium habere poſſit, Rex non magis quam privata perſona propter incertum rei eventum (& paulo ante reddit inde rationem) eo quod conſtare non poſſit ad quam regionem eſſent applicanda. And Britton, lib. 1. cap. 17. Treaſure hid in the ground, we will that it be ours, and if it be found in the Sea, be it to the finder. But as it appeareth before by the Reſolution of the whole Court, the King ſhall have Flotſam, Jetſam, and Lagan, as is aforeſaid, by his Prerogative, although they be in or upon the Sea: And the Sea is of the Kings allegeance, and parcel of his Crown of England, as it is holden in 6 R. 2. Protection 46. & Britton, cap. 33. well agreeth with the opinion of Bracton, ſcil. that Wreck is a thing in nullius bonis; for there he ſaith, There is alſo purchaſe by Franchiſe granted, by name of a thing found in no mans goods, as a Wreck of Sea, and cattle eſtraying, Conies, Hares, Patridges, and other ſavage beaſts, by franchiſe to have Wreck found in his ſoil, and waif and ſtray found in fee, Warrens, and his demeſne lands.

Foxley's Case.

[109] Foxley brought an Action of Trover and Conversion of 20 sheep; The Defendant pleaded, that the Queen was seised of the Mannor of Newport-panel in the County of N. and that certain persons unknown did steal the said sheep from the Plaintiff, and brought them within the said Mannor, and there left, and waved them; for which the Defendant as the Queens Bailiff of the said Mannor, did seise them to the Queens use, as goods waved, which is the same Trover and Conversion, and demanded Judgment, si Regina inconsulta? upon which the Plaintiff did demur: And he was ousted of the Aid by Judgment, for it doth not appear by the Defendants bar that these goods were forfeit to the King; for it was resolved, that if a Felon steal my goods, and bringeth them into a Mannor, and there leaveth them in his house, or in the house of any other, or in the custody of any other, or hideth them in the ground, or other secret place, and afterwards flieth, that these goods are not forfeited, nor shall be said waif in Law, where the Felon in pursuit waiveth the goods, or when the Felon for fear to be apprehended, thinking that pursuit was made, having them with him in his possession flieth, and waiveth the goods, in these Cases they shall be said waived in Law: But if he hath not the goods with him when he flieth being pursued, or for fear to be apprehended, they are not waived nor forfeited, but the owner may take them when he will without any fresh suit. But if the Thief in his flight waiveth them, there the goods are forfeited by the Common Law, if the Felon upon pursuit was not attainted at the suit of the Owner of the goods. And the reason that waif is given to the King, and that the party shall lose his property in such Case is, for default in the Owner that he doth not make fresh suit to apprehend the Felon; for interest Reipublicæ ne maleficia remaneant impunita, & impunitas semper ad deteriora invitat, and therefore the Law hath imposed this penalty upon the Owner, that if the Thief by his industry and fresh [b] suit be not attainted at his suit, (scil. in appeal of the same felony) he shall for his default lose all his goods which the Thief at the time of his flight doth waive. But if the Thief have not them with him when he flieth, having perhaps hid them (as it hath been said) there no default can be in the party.

So note Reader, bona waviata seu derelicta, are goods which are stollen and waived by the Thief in the flight. Bona fugitivorum are the proper goods of him who flieth for the felony. But it is to be observed, that if a man flie for felony, his proper goods are not forfeit until it be found by indictment before the Coroner, in Case of death or otherwise lawfully found of Record, upon acquittal, that he fled for the felony: For if the goods of any shall be forfeit only by the flight, without more, then a man may have such goods so forfeit by prescription, in the same manner as he may have other goods waived, estray, or treasure found, &c. But for as much as bona fugitivorum are not forfeited, until the flying be lawfully found of Record, and because that things forfeited by matter of Record cannot be claimed by prescription, which is but a matter in fact, for this cause they cannot be claimed by prescription, 46 E. 16. b. & 9 H. 7. 20. a. acc'. But waif, estray, treasure found, werck of the Sea, &c. which may be gained by usage without matter of Record, there a man may prescribe to have them, 21 H. 6. Prescription, 1 H. 7. 23. 9 H. 7. 20. 46 E. 3. 16. 22 E. 3. Corone 241. Also he shall not forfeit the goods which he hath at the time of the flight (as he should do if they were absolutely forfeit by the flying) but those which he hath at the time of the indictment, or acquittal. Vide 3 E. 3. Corone 344. & 8 E. 2. Corone 296. 5 H. 4. Forfeit 52. 33 E. 3. Forfeit 30. 42 Ass. 5. vide Stamford's Pleas of the Crown 15. 184, 192. And the flying of a Felon, either ought to be found by verdict upon his acquittal (for although he be found Not Guilty, yet he shall forfeit his goods by the flying, Quia fatetur facinus, qui judicium fugit, and the Law will not admit any proof against this prescription) or upon indictment found super visum corporis before the Coroner, if it be in Case of the death of a man, vide 22 Ass. 76. 13 H. 4. 13. 3 E. 3. Forfeit 53. and it appeareth there, that although that the Jury which trieth him, find him Not Guilty, and further that he did not fly, yet the goods are forfeited by force of the finding of the flying before the Coroner: But upon no other Indictment the flying shall be found, if it be not in special Cases. As if a Felon be arrested of felony, and as he carrying to the Gaol, flying, those who follow him cannot apprehend him without killing him, for which they kill him, if all the matter and the flying be presented before the Coroner, or any other who hath authority to enquire of felonies, the party so killed shall not forfeit all his goods and chattels, and therewith agreeth 3 E. 3. Corone 287. 312. & 328. And there it appeareth, that in such Case it is not felony in them which follow him, 3 E. 3. Forfeit 25. If a true man killeth a Thief who would rob him, if the Thief do not withdraw himself, he [110] shall forfeit nothing. And the reason of the Book in 45 E. 3. Corone 100. that if a man stealeth divers goods, and the Owner in his Appeal omit some part, the King shall have all that which is omitted, because that by this omission the Thief may escape, and because the Owner cannot have them, the King shall have them: And as in these Cases the King shall punish the Owner for his negligence or connivence, so the Common Law doth abhor malice in seeking of blood without just cause. And therefore if A. hath the goods of B. by bailment or trover, and B. bringeth Appeal of robbery against A. for taking of them feloniously, and it is found that they are the Plaintiffs goods, and that the Defendant came to them lawfully; in this Case the Plaintiff shall forfeit his goods to the King for his false and malicious Appeal, as it was adjudged in 3 E. 3. Corone 367. Also bona & catalla felonum in some Cases shall be forfeited by conviction, and sometimes without conviction. But always when any forfeiture is of felons goods it ought to appear of Record, and that is the cause that such goods cannot be claimed by prescription, as appeareth by the said Books. At the Common Law the goods of a Clerk by verdict or confession were forfeited to the King, not only all those which he had at the time of the conviction, but all the goods which he got got afterwards until he had made his purgation, or gotten his pardon; for at the Common Law every Clark convict, who had the benefit of his Clergy either might make his purgation, or he might not make it; if he might make his purgation, then the entry was, Quod talis commissus est ordinario, and if he could not purge himself, then the entry was, Quod talis commissus fuit ordinario absque purgatione faciendâ. And in case when he cannot make his purgation, or in case when he might make purgation, till purgation made, he remained a person disabled to take any goods to his own use: And therefore question hath been made upon the Statute of 18 Eliz. cap. 7. by which it is enacted, That after Clergy allowed, and burning in the hand, the Prisoner shall be presently enlarged and delivered out of Prison: If one after the Statute be convicted of felony, and hath his Clergy, and be burnt in the hand, and afterwards acquireth goods, if he shall forfeit his goods which he getteth after until he obtaineth his pardon? for now he cannot make purgation, and peradventure the cause or offence was such, that he could not make purgation. And Pasch. 41 Eliz. this doubt was resolved; for in Action upon the Case upon Trover, &c. brought of certain goods by Hesdon, as administrator of Riddleson against Masterson; The Defendant pleaded that before the Trover the Intestate was convicted of felony, and burnt in the hand: And it was adjudged for the Plaintiff, for as much as the Statute hath taken away the ordinary means and power from him who might make purgation, which was the ordinary means to make him capable of goods to his own use: And as to him who cannot make his purgation, for as much as by the said Act it was enacted, That he shall be presently enlarged and delivered, which is in lieu of a pardon by good construction, the same Act hath made him as capable in both Cases to purchase goods to all purposes, as if he had made his purgation in the one Case, or obtained his pardon in the other. But it is to know, that although the felon had made his purgation at the Common Law, the same was only to enable him to purchase goods or chattels; for notwithstanding the purgation he forfeited his goods which he had before his purgation, and the profits of his lands till his purgation made, against the Book in 3 E. 3. Corone 365. See 8 E. 2. Forfeiture 34. But now presently upon his delivery upon the Act of 18 Eliz. he is discharged against the King of the profits which shall come after: And if the King pardoneth the burning of the hand, the same is within the Act, although that the words are after Clergy allowed, and burning of the hand, for the pardon hath discharged the punishment. And there it was resolved, That if a man obtaineth a pardon before conviction, he shall not forfeit his goods, nor the profits of his lands. Laughton's Case, Hill. 37 Eliz. in the Kings Bench it was resolved by Popham Chief Justice, and the whole Court of Kings Bench, That if a man be felo de se, his goods are not forfeited until it be presented or found of Record, and that is the cause that such goods cannot be claimed by prescription. Then it was moved if one be felo de se, and cast in the Sea, or conveyed or buried in so secret manner that the Coroner cannot have the view of the body, and by consequence he cannot enquire of it: It was resolved, that the Justices of Peace, Justices of Oyer and Terminer, and all other who have power and authority to enquire of felonies, may take presentment of it, for it is felony, that shall serve to entitle the King to his goods and chattels. And Deodanda are goods which occasion the death of a man by misadventure, and are not forfeited until the matter be found of Record, and therefore they cannot be claimed by prescription. And the Jury who find or present the death by such misadventure, ought to find and appriſe the Deodand also: Omnia quæ movent ad mortem sunt Deodanda. Vide 3 E. 3. Corone 326. 341, 342. 8 E. 2. Corone 401. Vide 12 R. 2. Forfeit 20. There are also bona & catalla in exigendo positorum; and these are when any one is appealed or indicted of felony, and he withdraweth and absenteth himself for so long time that an Exigent is awarded against him, by this retreat (which is a flying in Law) he shall forfeit all his goods and chattels which he had at the time of the Exigent awarded, although he rendreth himself upon the Exigent, and that after he be found Not Guilty; and that appeareth by 22 Ass. where the Case was, That a man endicted of the death of a man did render himself, and was presently arraigned, and found Not Guilty, and because he came by Exigent, by which it was sufficiently proved that he withdrew himself, his goods and chattels were forfeited, and the Jury who did acquit him did enquire of the goods. And in 41 Ass. pl. 13. at the time of the Exigent awarded against divers in an appeal of death, the Writ was awarded to the Sheriff to enquire of their goods and chattels, and to seise them: But peradventure at the time of the Exigent awarded the Defendant was in prison, or beyond Sea, what remedy hath the party to have his goods again? For as Knivet in 43 E. 3. 17. saith, the party shall not have restitution of his goods (although the Writ of Exigent erronice emanavit) so long as the award of the Exigent (which is there called a Judgment) standeth in force not defeated. And in the same Book it is said, That if a man hath a Charter of pardon, of elder date then the Exigent, his goods are saved, for the cause of salvation appeareth of Record: But it doth not appear by the Book what remedy the party hath, if the cause of saving of them be by matter in fact, as by imprisonment, or that the party was beyond the Sea, &c. And Mich. 33 & 34 Eliz. in the Kings Bench in Marshe's Case it was resolved, That in such case the party or his Executors or Administrators should have a Writ of Error to reverse the said award of the Exigent: And a president in 18 H. 7. in this Court in the Case of one Eaton, against whom upon an Indictment of death, an Exigent was awarded in the County of Lincoln, and the said Eaton died, and was never convicted or attainted, and his Executors brought a Writ of Error to reverse the said award of the Exigent; For in as much as the King is intitled by matter of Record, of necessity it ought to be avoided by a matter of as high nature. And for as much as the words of a general Writ of Error are (si judicium inde redditum sit) which is not in this Case, he shall have a special Writ reciting the whole special matter, as by the president appeareth. Vide 30 H. 6. Forfeiture 31. 19 E. 3. Forfeiture 19. 8 E. 3. 11. 29 E. 3. 29 & 30. 37 H. 8. Estray, Br. 9. Stamford's Pleas of the Crown 186. And so it was resolved, that in the Case at Bar there was no cause of Aid, and therefore by the rule of the Court he was ousted of the Aid.

2. It was agreed, That the demurrer was not peremptory, but to answer over. See now the Statute of 21 H. 8. cap. 11. concerning goods waived, and the restitution of them.

Pasch. 43 Eliz. in the Kings Bench.

Mallorie's Case.

[b] IN a Replevin between Mallory Plaintiff and Payne Defendant, the Case was such; The Abbot and Covent of Sawtrey by Deed indented, demised the place, where, &c. to Anthony Mallory for 12 years, rendring yearly during the term to the Abbot and Covent, or his successors, the rent of eight Mark, to be paid at the Feast of S. Michael and the Annunciation by equal portions, upon condition that if the rent be behind, and a distress taken by the lessor, &c. and not redeemed within six weeks, that it should be lawful to the lessor, &c. to reenter. The Abbot and Covent surrender their Monastery and all their possessions to King H. 8. The term by divers mean assignments was assigned to Mallory the Plaintiff, and the reversion by divers mean conveyances to one S. who levied a fine thereof to Doctor Bellay, who before any attornment granted the reversion by his Deed to Thomas Bellay his son and his heirs, to whom the tenant attorned: And for rent arrere, and distress taken according to the condition, &c. Payne by the commandment of Thomas Bellay the son, distrained the Plaintiffs cattel damage feasant: And the Question was, If the entry of Thomas Bellay the son be lawful or not. And after divers Arguments at Bar and Bench, it was resolved by the whole Court that the entry was lawful. And in this Case four Points were resolved:

1. That the said reservation in the disjunctive was good, for in the first part of the reservation the words are, Rendring yearly during the term; and the subsequent words ought to have such interpretation that they do not confound them which precede, but that all together may stand and satisfie the intent and meaning of the parties. And such construction the Judges made in Hill and Graunges Case, [112] Plow. Comm. 164. where a lease was made in January for years, rendring yearly during the term to the lessor rent, payable at the Feasts of S. Michael and the Annunciation, which last words shall be so marshalled and transposed, that the first words, scil. rendring yearly, shall not lose any of their force: and therefore the Law shall make construction, that the rents shall be paid at the Feasts of the Annunciation and S. Michael. And it was agreed, that rending rent yearly during the term to one and his successors, and rending rent during the term to him or his successors are all one; for if the rent be reserved to him and his successors, although the words are joynt and in the copulative, yet in construction of Law the lessor shall have it during his life; and his successor after his decease. So when rent is reserved yearly during the term to one or his successors, these words (to him or his successors) are words of explanation, scil. to direct the lessee to whom he shall pay the rent during the term, viz. to the lessor during his life, and after his death to his successors, for without these words, scil. to the lessor or his successors, the reservation had been good by force of these words (rendring yearly during the term) as it is agreed in 10 E. 4. 14. & 27 H. 8. 19. But if a feoffment be made to A. to have and to hold to him, or to his heirs, there he hath but an estate for life, for there want precedent words to direct the words in the disjunctive: And these words (his heirs) are of the essence of the estate, and without them no estate of Inheritance shall pass. So and for the same reason if a reservation be made upon a feoffment to one or his heirs, such reservation is not good but during the life of the feoffor. And so note the difference. Vide Chapman's Case, Plow. Comm. 284. where a copulative shall be taken for a disjunctive; but he in the disjunctive doth amount in construction to a copulative. See the Case in 21 E. 3. 29. b. where one was bound that when the obligor should come to his Aunt, he would enfeoff the obligee, or the heirs of his body of certain lands; and the obligee when the obligor came to his Aunt requested him to enfeoff him, which the obligor refused to do: And it was adjudged that he had forfeited his Obligation; for although the condition was in the disjunctive, and that the condition is always for the benefit of the obligor, yet for as much as the feoffment was to be made when he came to his Aunt, and when he came the obligee was alive, and because it was not possible then to enfeoff his heir, for this cause he ought to perform such part of the disjunctive, that then was possible to be performed. Note Reader, a good Case to prove the principal; for in as much as the rent was to be paid yearly during [b] the term at such Feasts in certain to the lessor, or his successors, the lessee at the same Feasts ought to pay the rent to that person which then might receive it, and that is the lessee himself, and the lessor cannot choose to pay it at the same Feasts to him or his successors as long as the lessor liveth, for it is not possible that he that is not then in rerum natura should receive it.

2. It was resolved, That although the words of the Statute of 32 H. 8. are general (As also other persons being grantees or assignees to or by any other person or persons, &c. shall and may have like advantage, as the lessors or grantors themselves, &c. ought, should, or might have had or enjoyed at any time or times, &c.) Yet the grantee or assignee by fine shall not take advantage of a Condition without attornment. For when a Statute speaketh of an assignee, &c. it is to be intended of such compleat assignee, who hath all the ceremonies and incidents requisite by the Law to such assignee, and not to take away any ceremony or circumstance, which the Law doth require not to make any thing contrary to the Common; as it is agreed in 28 H. 8. 28. That where the Statute of 21 H. 8. cap. 10. of uses, enacteth that the actual possession shall be according to the use, yet it ought to have circumstance which is requisite by the Common Law, scil. actual entry in fact. So it is agreed in 4 E. 4. 31. It was ordained by the Statute of 1 E. 4. that all Inquisitions taken before the Sheriff in his Turn, or County, shall be delivered to the Justices of Peace at the next Sessions; and that he make process upon them, as upon Inquisitions taken before themselves: A presentment was made in the Turn upon the Statute of Liveries, which was delivered according to the Statute to the Justices of Peace at the next Sessions who proceeded upon them. And it was holden that it was against Law, for the Statute of 1 E. 4. is is intended of lawful and ſufficient preſentments in Law, and not of preſentments which the Sheriff cannot take by the Common Law. So it is holden in 22 E. 3. Corone 276. that the Statute of Weſt. 2. cap. 12. ſhall not make a Monk who was appealed and acquitted capable of damages, for he was diſabled by the Common Law. And it was ſaid, that upon the ſame reaſon it was adjudged in Duke's Caſe, That the conuſee of a fine before attornment ſhould not take benefit of a Condition by the ſaid Statute of 32 H. 8.

3. It was reſolved, That although Doctor Belay himſelf could not have taken advantage of the Condition, becauſe he had not attornment; yet for as much as by the fine the reverſion and the rent was veſted in him, which he hath granted to his ſon, to whom the tenant hath attorned, for this cauſe he ſhall take advantage of the Condition, which his father could not, becauſe he wanted attornment, which his ſon hath. And the words of 32 H. 8. That the grantees or aſſignees, ſhall and may have [113] and enjoy like advantage, &c. as the ſaid leſſors or grantors themſelves, &c. if the reverſion had not come to the hands of our Soveraign Lord, &c. are well ſatisfied; for here in this Caſe is a compleat grantee and aſſignee; and therefore he ſhall take the ſame benefit as the Abbot himſelf who made the leaſe might. Alſo it was reſolved, that theſe words (as the ſaid leſſors or grantors) ſhall not be intended of immediate grantor of the reverſion, but to any grantor before, who might have taken benefit of the Condition.

4. This difference was taken and agreed for Law, that is to ſay, between an expreſs attornment of the party, and an act which doth amount in Law to an attornment: For if a leaſe for life, or for years be made rendring rent, &c. and afterwards the reverſion is granted to be B. by fine, and before attornment B. diſſeiſeth or ouſteth the leſſee, and enfeoffeth C. the leſſee reentreth, it ſhall not amount to an attornment in Law to make privity to C. that he may diſtrain for the rent, for he ſhall not be in better Caſe then his feoffor was, as it was adjudged in the Common Pleas, M. 36 & 37 Eliz. in Owſey's Caſe. But otherwiſe it is if the leſſee had expreſly attorned to the feoffee. So Popham Chief Juſtice ſaid it was adjudged in Knottisford's Caſe, with which he was of Council 30 years paſt; That where the conuſee of a fine of a reverſion before attornment, did bargain and ſell the reverſion to another by Deed indented and enrolled according to the Statute, that the bargainee ſhall not diſtrain for the rent reſerved upon the leaſe; for he ſhall not be in better condition then he who made the grant to him, & nemo poteſt plus juris in alium transferre, quam ipſe habet; but if the conuſee had had expreſs attornment, then the bargainee ſhould diſtrain without any attornment. But if the conuſee of a reverſion by fine dieth without heir before attornment, by which the eſtate which he hath eſcheateth to the Lord, the Lord in this Caſe ſhall diſtrain without attornment, as Litt. 131, 132. & 39 H. 6. 32. & 38. Priſot holdeth, yet the conuſee himſelf cannot; and the reaſon is, becauſe the Lord by Eſcheat hath loſt his Seigniory, and he doth not claim as heir or aſſignee of the conuſee, but by vertue of his Seigniory paramount.

Note Reader, otherwiſe it is, as it hath been ſaid, if the conuſee before attornment bargain and ſell the reverſion by Deed indented and enrolled; for the Statute of 27 H. 8. doth execute the poſſeſſion in the ſame quality, manner, form, and condition as he had the uſe; and when the conuſee before attornment bargaineth and ſelleth the reverſion, the uſe which is derived out of his eſtate which [b] wanted attornment, ought to be of the ſame nature and quality as that was out of which it was derived: But if the bargainee in ſuch Caſe hath obtained expreſs attornment, it ſufficeth: And ſo obſerve theſe differences. And in this Caſe it was ſaid by Popham Chief Juſtice, and not denied by any, That if the leſſor in the abſence of the leſſee entreth as it is aforeſaid, and maketh a feoffment in fee, and the leſſee reentreth, although the ſame amounteth to an attornment in Law, yet without notice given of this feoffment to the leſſee, the feoffee ſhall not make demand of the rent reſerved upon the leaſe for entry for condition broken: For true it is that the feoffee may diſtrain, or have an Action of debt for the rent, or have an Action of Waſt in ſuch Caſe, for in his Avowry, or Count, he ought to alledge the feoffment whereof the leſſee had notice: But if he may demand the rent upon condition without notice, it is not poſſible that the leſſee ſhould know to whom to pay the rent to ſave his term, nor to have notice of the feoffment in ſuch Caſe before that he hath forfeited his term: So if the leſſor bargain and ſell the reverſion by Deed indented and inrolled, the bargainee (although there needeth no attornment) ſhall never take benefit of a condition upon a demand of rent, without giving notice unto the leſſee of the bargain and ſale; for although the bargain and ſale by Deed indented and enrolled be on Record; yet for as much as it may be enrolled in ſo many Courts in ſecret manner, the Law will not compel the Farmers in England, who have conditional leaſes to make every ſix months ſuch infinite ſearch to ſave their terms; But the Law for the ſalvation of the intereſt and term of the leſſee, will compel the bargainee, who is to take benefit of the condition to give notice to the leſſee who is altogether a ſtranger to it.

Note Reader, The leſſee as Littleton ſaith ſhall not be by the Law miſconuſant of feoffments made upon the ſame lands, the ſame is to be intended as to diſtreſs, Action of Debt, and Action of Waſt, in which Caſes the Law doth compel the feoffee in his Avowry, and Count to give notice as hath been ſaid. But Littleton is not to be intended, as to demand of rent to have advantage of a condition without notice thereof given, as is aforeſaid. And Littleton there ſaith, that in ſuch Caſe the feoffee after regreſs made by the leſſee ſhall have an Action of Waſt: But neither Littleton, nor any of the Books in 18 E. 3. 47. Robert Bowſer's Caſe, 46 E. 3. 30. Pomeray's Caſe, 34 H. 6. 6. 5 H. 5. 12. nor any other Book ſpeaketh of demand and entry upon the Condition broken.

Wade's Case.

[114] IN a Replevin between Foxcroft Plaintiff, and Wade Defendant, the Case was; Foxcroft Copiholder in fee, did surrender to the use of William Wade father of the Defendant, upon condition that if the Plaintiff should pay to the said William Wade 250 l. legalis monetæ Angliæ the 24*th* day of Nov. at his dwelling house, &c. that then the surrender should be void. And tender and refusal was alledged; and issue was taken upon the tender to William Wade: And the Jurors gave a special Verdict, scil. That Foxcroft the 24*th* day of Novemb. between the hours of seven and eight before Noon of the same day did deliver to one M. his son, and to one A. S. 250. in monet' (Anglice Money) scil. quinque solid. in Hispanico argento (Anglice Spanish silver) & duo duplices Auri selopi (Anglice two double Pistolets) & resid. præd. summa 250 l. fuit in bona & legal' monet' Angliæ; and also delivered præfat' M. & A. S. 34 s. legalis monet' Angliæ; and that the Plaintiff required them and every of them to pay the said 250 l. according to the form and effect of the Condition. And it was further found, that between nine and twelve before Noon of the same day, that they upon quandam mensam ibidem obtulerunt 250 l. And that William Wade did there tell out and number 244 l. but in respect of the said 5 s. in Spanish money, and the said two Pistolets, he refused to receive the monies; upon which M. and A. S. offered the said 34 s. in silver to the said William Wade, requiring him to take silver in place of the said Pistolets, and Spanish money, which also he refused; and afterwards circa horam duodecimam, they tendred to the said William Wade the residue in silver, French Crowns and Angels, currant money of England, which he in like manner refused to accept: And afterwards ante occasum solis ad ostium domus, they offered to him to pay the 250 l.
[b] all in silver being in baggs, but did not shew any part of it; and he said, that recipere vellet, sed non recepit. And at Sun set, the said A. entred into the said house, and super quandam mensam deposuit prædict. 250 l. being in baggs, sed ill' extra baggas præd. non ostendit, quodque prædict. W. Wade differebat recipere prædict. 250 l. usque post occasum solis, & adtunc requisitus ad recipiend' recusavit, allegando, that the Sun was set, & ea occasione recipere noluit: And if upon the whole matter there was any good tender or not was the Question. And in this Case four Points were resolved:

1. Although that the last time of payment of the monies by force of the Condition is convenient time, in which the money may be numbred before Sun set, yet if the tender be made to him who ought to receive it at the place specified in the Condition, at any time of the day, and he refuse it, the Condition is for ever saved, and the morgagor or obligor needeth not to make tender of it again before the last instant, for by the expres words of the Condition the monies are to be paid upon the day indefinitely, and convenient time before the last instant is the extreme time appointed by the Law, to the intent the one should not prevent the other, the one being sometimes there, and the other not, and the other being sometimes there, and not the other; and therefore the Law appointeth the extreme time of the day, to
[a] the intent that both parties may certainly meet together; for the Law which always requireth convenience, and is grounded upon the experience of the Sages, will not compel any of the parties to make Attorney, or to repose confidence and trust in any other to pay it for him when he will do it himself, (for non temere credere est nervus sapientiæ.) But if both the parties meet together any time of the same day, and the obligor or morgagor, &c. maketh a tender in the place, &c. to the morgagee, &c. and he refuseth it, the penalty is for ever saved, and he need not make a new tender by a convenient time before the last instant. And so upon these reasons you will better understand your Books in 19 H. 6. 76. 20 H. 6. 32. 22 H. 6. 46. 7 H. 7. 7. 6 H. 7. 2. 32 H. 8. Br. Condition 192. Plow. Com. Kidwellie's Case 70. and Hill and Grange's Case 173. 4 E. 6. Br. Tender 41. 19 Eliz. Dier 354.

2. Where the Condition was, that he should pay to him 250 l. legalis monet' Angliæ; It was resolved that the said Spanish silver so tendred was lawful money of England, for it was made currant by Proclamation in the times of the Reigns of Philip and Mary: Also the French Crowns were currant and lawful money of England by Proclamation also. And the King by his absolute Prerogative may make any for-

3. That if a man tender more then he ought to pay, it is good, for omne majus continet in se minus, and the other ought to accept so much of it as is due to him: quando plus fit quam fieri debet, videtur etiam illud fieri quod faciendum est. Et in majore summa continetur minor.

4. That where the Plaintiff did tender all the 250 l. in bags without shewing it, or numbring it; It was resolved that the tender was good, if the truth was that there was 250 l. in the bags: And so it hath been adjudged in the Kings Bench in Winter's Case; for when the Condition is, that he shall pay 250 l. the morgagor doth all that is requisite by the Law for him to do, if he provideth the money, and offereth the same to the morgagee in bags, which is the usual manner to carry money. And then it is the part of the morgagee to number it if he will, or if he will credit the morgagor he may accept of it without telling of it; for if the numbring of it doth belong to the morgagee, by consequence he ought to put it out of the bags, which is incident to it, for without so doing he cannot number it: And if the morgagor putteth the money out of the bags, yet it is at the peril of the morgagee to look upon, for perhaps they may be counterfeits, and have a great shew of good and lawful money, and also it is at his peril to number it: And if a man be bound to pay 4000 l. at such a day, if he tender it in bags it is sufficient, for it cannot be numbred in one day. And so hereby you will understand the better opinion of the Book in 22 E. 4. 21. And it was said it was adjudged between Vane and Studley, that where the lessor demanded rent of his lessee according to the condition of reentry, and the lessee payeth the rent to his lessor, and he received it and put it in his purse, and afterwards in in looking it over again at the ſame time, he found amongſt the money that he had received ſome counterfeit piece, and thereupon refuſed to carry away the money, but reentred for the Condition broken, That it was adjudged that the entry was not lawful; for when the leſſor had accepted of the money, it was at his peril, and after that allowance he ſhall not take exception to any part of it.

Foliamb's Caſe.

IN an Action of Waſt by Foliamb againſt Sir William Bowes and his wife, the Plaintiff had an Eſtrepment directed to the Sheriff. And in this Caſe two Points were reſolved: [b]

1. That a Writ of Eſtrepment lieth in an Action of Waſt, as well at any time before Judgment, as after Judgment and before Execution: For without queſtion he cannot recover damages for more then he hath contained in his Count, and he cannot aſſign any Waſt after the Writ purchaſed, for the words of the Writ are fecit vaſtum in the preterperfect tenſe; and therefore he cannot aſſign Waſt after the Writ brought.

2. Where the words of the Writ are, Tibi præcipimus, quod meſſuagium præd. perſonaliter acceden', totaliter ordinari facias, quod vaſtum ſeu eſtrepamentum de eodem meſſuagio, contra formam Statuti præd. non fiat, pendente placito prædict. indiſcuſſo: It was reſolved, that the Sheriff by force of this Writ may reſiſt them who would do Waſt. And if he otherwiſe cannot it is lawful for him to impriſon them, and to make a Warrant to others ſo to do; and if it be needful he may take the poſſe Comitatus to help him. Quia quando aliquid mandatur, mandatur & omne per quod pervenitur ad illud; And ſo a doubt in divers Books, ſcil. 4 E. 3. 33. 21 E. 3. 22 E. 3. 2. 6 H. 4. 1. 33 H. 6. 6. 14 H. 7. 7, 8. Oland's Caſe.

IN Treſpaſs by Oland againſt Burdwick which began in the Kings Bench, Hill. 37 Eliz. Rot. 924. upon a ſpecial Verdict, the Caſe was ſuch; A woman Copiholder of certain land, durante Viduitate ſua, according to the cuſtom of the Mannor ſowed the land, and before ſeverance of the corn ſowed, took husband. And whether the husband or the Lord of the Mannor ſhall have the Embleements was the Queſtion. And it was adjudged that the Lord ſhould have the Embleements; for although at the time of the ſowing, the eſtate of the wife was incertain, and although her eſtate be ended by limitation and not by condition, either in fact (as in Caſe of reentry) or in Law (as forfeiture) yet becauſe it determineth by the act of the leſſee her ſelf, for this cauſe the Lord ſhall have the corn ſowed, and not the husband: So if a woman ſeiſed of land during her Widowhood maketh a leaſe for years, and the leſſee ſoweth the land, and afterwards the woman who made the leaſe taketh husband, the leſſee ſhall not have the Embleements; for although that his eſtate is determined by the act of a ſtranger, yet he ſhall not be (as to the leſſor) in better condition then his leſſor was. It is commonly holden in our Books, That if a man leaſe lands at will, and afterwards the leſſee ſoweth the land, and afterwards the Will is determined, that the leſſee ſhall have the Embleements; But it was agreed that if the leſſee himſelf determine the Will before the ſeverance of the corn, he ſhall not have the Embleements, becauſe he hath determined his intereſt by his own act. [116]

If a man maketh a leaſe at will, and the leſſor is outlawed, by which the leaſe at will is determined, the King ſhall have the profits; yet the leſſee at will ſhall have the corn which was ſowed: But if the leſſee at will be outlawed, by which the leaſe at will is determined, yet the King ſhall have the corn which was ſowed. Vide 9 H. 6. 20, 21. But it was holden, That if a leaſe be made to husband and wife during the coverture, and the husband ſoweth the land, and afterwards they are divorced cauſa præcontractus, the husband ſhall have the corn which was ſowed, and not the leſſor; for although that the ſuit is the act of the party; yet the ſentence which diſſolveth the marriage is the Judgment of the Law, & judicium redditur in invitum; and therefore the husband in ſuch Caſe ſhall have the corn which was ſowed; But if a leaſe be made to one until he doth Waſt, and he ſoweth the land, and afterwards doth Waſt, he ſhall not have the corn which was ſowed, for the reaſon aboveſaid. Pinnel's Caſe.

[117] Pinnel brought an Action of Debt upon an Obligation againſt Cole of 16 l. for the payment of 8 l. 10 s. the 11*th* day of Nov. 1600. The Defendant pleaded, that at the inſtance of the Plaintiff, before the ſaid day, ſcil. 1. Octob. 44. apud Weſt. he paid to the Plaintiff 5 l. 2 s. 2 d. quas quidem 5 l. 2 s. 2 d. the Plaintiff accepted in full ſatisfaction of the 8 l. 10 s. And it was reſolved by the whole Court, That the payment of a leſſer ſum in ſatisfaction of a greater, cannot be any ſatisfaction for the whole, becauſe it appeareth to the Judges that by no poſſibility, a leſſer ſum can be a ſatisfaction to the Plaintiff for a greater ſum: But the gift of a Horſe, Hawk, &c. in ſatisfaction is good. For it ſhall be intended that a Horſe, Hawk, &c. ſhall be more beneficial to the Plaintiff then the money in reſpect of ſome circumſtance, or otherwiſe the Plaintiff would not have accepted of it in ſatisfaction. But when the whole ſum is due, by no intendment the acceptance of parcel can be ſatisfaction to the Plaintiff: But in the Caſe at Bar it was reſolved, that the payment and acceptance of parcel before the day in ſatisfaction of the whole, ſhall be a good ſatisfaction in regard of circumſtance of time; for peradventure parcel of it before the day, ſhall be more beneficial then the whole at the day, and the value of the ſatisfaction is not material: So if I be bounden in 20 l. to pay you 10 l. at Weſtminſter, and you requeſt me [b] to pay you 5 l. at the day at York, and you will accept of it in ſatisfaction of the whole 10 l. it is a good ſatisfaction for the whole: for the expences to pay it at York, is ſufficient ſatisfaction: But in this Caſe the Plaintiff had Judgment for the inſufficient pleading; for he doth not plead that he had payed the 5 l. 2 s. 2 d. in full ſatisfaction (as by the Law he ought) but pleaded the payment of part generally; and that the Plaintiff had accepted of it in full ſatisfaction. And always the manner of tender and of the payment, ſhall be directed by him who made the tender or payment, and not by him who accepteth of it. And for this cauſe the Judgment was given for the Plaintiff.

See Reader 36 H. 6. Barre 37. in debt upon an Obligation of 10 l. the Plaintiff pleaded, that one F. was bound by the ſaid Deed with him, and each in the whole, and that the Plaintiff had made an acquittance to F. bearing date before the Obligation, and delivered after, by which acquittance he did acknowledge himſelf to be paid 20 s. in full ſatisfaction of 10 l. And it was adjudged a good bar; for if a man acknowledge himſelf to be ſatisfied by Deed, it is a good bar, without any thing received. Vide 12 R. 2. Barre 243. 26 H. 6. Barre 37. 10 H. 7, &c.

Edriche's Caſe.

[118] BEtween Edrich and Smith in a Replevin, a Caſe was adjudged upon the laſt clauſe of the Statute of 32 H. 8. cap. 37. and the Caſe was ſuch; A. ſeiſed in fee of lands holden in Socage, by his Will in writing deviſed a rent with clauſe of diſtreſs to B. for the life of C. and died. The heir leaſed the land charged for life to D. the remainder to E. in fee, the rent is behind for divers years in the life of D. D. dieth, and afterwards C. dieth, B. diſtraineth him in the remainder for all the arrerages incurred in the life of D. And if he ſhould be charged in this Caſe for all the arrerages by the ſaid Act was the Queſtion. The Branch of which Act as to this purpoſe doth conſiſt upon two parts; By the firſt, Action of debt is given to the tenant for auter vie, after the death of Ceſtuy que vie, againſt the tenant in demeſne (who ought to have paid it when it was firſt due) his Executors or Adminiſtrators. The ſecond is And alſo ſhall diſtrain for the ſame arrerages upon ſuch lands and tenements out of which the ſaid Rents or fee Farms were iſſuing, in ſuch manner and form as he ought or might have done if Ceſtuy que vie had been alive. And it was objected, that by a former part of the Act, which gave diſtreſs to Executors of tenant for life, there the diſtreſs is given againſt him in whoſe time the arrerages incurred due, and all others claim the land only (by or from the ſaid tenant by purchaſe, gift, or deſcent,) in the ſame manner as the tenant for life might have done; ſo that by this Branch, he in the reverſion or remainder ſhall not be charged for the arrerages incurred in the life of the tenant for life, for he in the reverſion or remainder doth not claim by or from him: And in this Caſe at the Bar the Action of debt by [b] the firſt part of the ſaid Branch is given only againſt the tenant who ought to have paid it, his Executors or Adminiſtrators, and not againſt him in the remainder, &c. And in that it was ſaid, the Statute hath great reaſon, for otherwiſe he in the reverſion or remainder ſhall not only be charged by the Statute for the arrerages (if any ſhall be) which incur in their own time, but alſo for the arrerages incurred in the life of the tenant for life, where in the one Caſe or the other he in the reverſion or remainder was not charged by the Common Law, and the tenant for life may leave all the rent for his time unpaid, and by this may charge him in the reverſion or remainder for all; and the grantee in this Caſe may have his remedy againſt the Executors of the tenant for life: But it was reſolved and adjudged, That he in remainder in this Caſe, by the laſt part of the ſaid Branch ſhall be charged. And the Judges ſaid they ought not make any conſtruction againſt the expreſs letter of the Statute; for nothing can ſo expreſs the meaning of the makers of the Act, as their own direct words, for Index animi ſermo. And it ſhall be dangerous to give ſcope to make a conſtruction in any Caſe againſt the expreſs words, when the meaning meaning of the makers appeareth to the contrary, and when no inconvenience will thereupon follow, and therefore in ſuch Caſes, A verbis legis non eſt recedendum. And the ſeveral inditing and penning of the former part concerning diſtreſs given to Executors, and of this Branch, doth argue that the makers did intend a difference of the purviews and remedies, or otherwiſe they would have followed the ſame words. And in the principal Caſe all the land was charged with the rent, and the heir held all his eſtate charged with it; and when he made the leaſe for life, the remainder in fee, he in the remainder was chargeable, and in this Caſe might have been diſtrained by the Common Law for the arrerages, but by the act of God by the death of C. D. was prevented, the which prevention, the ſaid laſt part of the ſaid Branch hath ſupplied and remedied in this Caſe, giving to the grantee power to diſtrain, as if Ceſtuy que vie had been alive. And according to this Reſolution Judgment was entred.

Trin. 2 Jacobi, in the Kings Bench.

Whelpdale's Caſe.

IN Debt by Whelpdale againſt Whelpdale, which began Hill. 45 Eliz. Rot. 1303. The Plaintiff declared upon a Bill obligatory made by the Defendant to the Plaintiff; The Defendant pleaded, Non eſt factum; and the Jury found that the Bill was a joynt Bill made by the Defendant and another to the Plaintiff; And if upon the matter the Bill mentioned in the Declaration be the Deed of the Defendant, the Jurors prayed the advice of the Court. And it was adjudged that the Plaintiff ſhould recover. And in this Caſe four Points were reſolved: [119]

1. When two men are joyntly bounden in an Obligation, although none of them be bound by himſelf, yet none of them can ſay, That the Obligation is not his deed, for he hath put his Seal to it and delivered it, and each of them is bounden in the whole. And therefore if they both be ſued and one appeareth, and the other maketh default, and by proceſs of Law he is outlawed, he who appeareth ſhall be charged with the whole, as appeareth in 40 E. 3. 36. 41 E. 3. 3. But in the Caſe at Bar, he might have pleaded in abatement of the Writ, but cannot plead, It is not his deed.

2. It was reſolved, that in all Caſes when the deed is avoidable, and ſo remaineth at the time of the pleading (as if an Infant ſeal and deliver a deed, a man of full age by dureſs) in theſe Caſes and the like the obligee cannot plead it is not his deed, for it is his deed at the time of the Action brought, and ought to be avoided by ſpecial pleading, with concluſion of Judgment, ſi Actio.

3. When an Obligation or other writing is by an Act of Parliament enacted to be void, the party who is bound cannot plead it is not his deed, but in conſtruction of Law the deed is to be avoided by the party who is bound in it, by pleading the ſpecial matter, taking advantage of the Act of Parliament; For although the Act maketh the Obligation or other writing void, yet thereto the Law doth tacite require order and manner, that the obligee ought to follow: As if an Obligation be made unto a Sheriff againſt the Statute of 23 H. 6. cap. 10. or to one againſt the Statute of 13 Eliz. cap. 8. of Uſury, in theſe and other like Caſes the obligee ought to plead the ſpecial matter, with concluſion of Judgment, if Action; and cannot plead that it is not his deed, and therewith agreeth 7 E. 4. 5. 7 E. 6. Br. Non eſt factum 14. againſt the opinion of Mountague, Plow. Comm. in Dive & Manningham's Caſe. In all Caſes when the Obligation was once a deed, and afterwards before the Action brought becometh no deed, either by raſure, addition, or other alteration of the deed, or the ſeal be broken and taken off, in this Caſe, although it was once a deed, yet the Defendant may ſafely plead, It is not his deed, for without queſtion at the time of the plea, which is in the preſent time, it was not his deed, 36 H. 8. Dier 59. In an Action of debt upon a Bond againſt Hawood, the Defendant pleaded that it was not his deed, and before the day of appearance of the Enqueſt, Rats did eat the Label by which the ſeal was faſtned, by negligence of the Clark who had the keeping of it, The Juſtices charged the Jury, that if they ſhould find that it was the deed of the Defendant at the time of the plea pleaded, that they ſhould give a ſpecial verdict, and ſo they did: But if one commit Waſt, and before any Action brought, the leſſee doth repair, &c. and afterwards the leſſor bringeth an Action of Waſt, there the Action is not maintenable, becauſe the Jurors ought to view the Waſt: But the Defendant in the ſame Caſe ought to plead the ſpecial matter, and cannot plead that he did no Waſt, for the entry is in the preter perfect tenſe, ſcil. quod non fecit vaſtum, and therewith agreeth 10 Eliz. Dier 276. and ſo a good diverſity; and the Quere 2 Mar. Dier 112. well reſolved. [b]

And if an Obligation be delivered to another, to the uſe of the obligee, and the ſame is tendred to him, and he refuſeth it, then the delivery hath loſt his force, and the obligee can never after agree to it; and therefore the obligee may ſay that it is not his deed, againſt the opinion in 1 Eliz. 167. So if an Obligation be made to a feme covert, and the husband diſagreeth to it, the obligor may plead that it is not his deed, for by the refuſal the Obligation hath loſt its force, and become no deed. And ſo the diſagreeing opinions in 14 H. 8. 28. Dive and Manningham's Caſe 66. 1 H. 7. 15. 1 Eliz. Dier 167. and other Books are well reconciled.

Upon which Indictment the ſaid H. D. was outlawed, and brought a Writ of Error, and divers Errors were aſſigned in the Indictment ; 1. becauſe in the beginning of the Indictment it is alledged, that the Indictment was taken before W. S. Coron. Dominæ Reginæ infra libertat. dict. Dominæ Reginæ villa ſua de Coſſam præd', ſuper viſum corporis ; and it is not alledged to what places the ſaid Liberty doth extend, nor what part, or nothing of the Town of Coſſam be within the Liberty ; and ſo it doth not appear that the Coroner hath Juriſdiction in the place where the Inquiſition was taken, nor where the murder was committed, nor where the dead body lay, for all is alledged by the Indictment to be at Coſſam ; and Indictments of felony which are as Counts and Declarations for the King againſt the parties for their lives, ought to have certainty expreſſed in the Record of the Indictment, and ſhall not be ſupplied or maintained by intendment or argument, For if the counts between party and party for lands or chattels ought to have two things, ſcil. truth and certainty, as it is holden in Plow. Comm. 84. a. & 202. 5 E. 4. 21. in Debt, 3 H. 6. 1. in Forcible Entry, 38 H. 6. 35. 9 H. 6. 18. becauſe that the Counts are the foundation of the ſuits, to which the party is to anſwer, and upon which the Judges ſhall judge, a fortiore Indictments, principally thoſe which concern the life of a man, and which are the Kings Counts, [121] to which the party is to anſwer, and upon which the Court ſhall adjudge for his life, ought to have full and preciſe certainty, and ſhall not be taken by argument, as appeareth 2 E. 3. 31. 18 Aſſ. p. 15. 29 Aſſ. 45. 2 E. 3. 28. per Scrope, 27 Aſſ. 73. 38 Aſſ. 11, 12. 47 E. 3. 17. 7 H. 6. 42. 8 E. 4. 3. 3 H. 7. 5. And becauſe it is not expreſſed in the Indictment that Coſſam was within the Liberty of Coſſam, for this cauſe the Indictment was incertain and inſufficient. To which it was anſwered and reſolved by the Court, that the Indictment notwithſtanding this Exception was ſufficient ; for true it is that the rule of Law is, that Indictments ought to be certain : But there are three manner of certainties ; 1. To a common intent ; 2. To a certain intent in general ; 3. To a certain intent to every particular : The firſt intent doth ſuffice in bars, which are to defend the party and excuſe himſelf : The ſecond is required in Indictments, Counts, Replications, &c. becauſe they are to excuſe or charge the party ; The third is rejected in Law, for nimia ſubtilitas in jure reprobatur, & talis certitudo certitudinem confundit : And in this Caſe at Bar there is enough certain intendment in general, that Coſſam is within the Liberty of Coſſam, but peradventure the Liberty may reach beyond the Town, which is a ſtrained and captious intendment, which the Law will not allow : And ſo Sir John Popham Chief Juſtice ſaid it was reſolved in the ſame Point in the Caſe of Lewes in the County of Suſſex ; and there the Indictment was, Inquiſitio capta apud Lewes coram Coronatore raptæ ſuæ de Lewes, and adjudged good in Law.

The ſecond Objection was, That the Indictment was, Quod prædictus H. D. quoddam tormentum, vocatum a dagge, ad valentiam 6 s. 8 d. cum pulvere, & pelletto onerat', &c. in & ſuper ipſum Henr. Long adtunc, &c. felonice, voluntarie, & ex malitia ſua præcogit. exoneravit, dans eidem Henr. Long adtunc, &c. cum cum pellet' plumbeo, &c. unum vulnus mortale ſuper anteriorem partem corporis ipſius H. L. ſubter mamillam. It was objected, that this word (mamillam) is a word inſenſible, being no Latin word, for the Latin word was (as it was ſaid) mammillam, with a double (m:) And it was ſaid that falſe Latin ſhall abate Writs, Counts, and quaſh Indictments, becauſe he who proſecuteth may purchaſe a new Writ, and frame a new Indictment. But otherwiſe is it of grants or deeds, for the party cannot have new when he will. And Hill. 28 Eliz. Vauxe's Caſe was cited, where the Count in appeal was holden inſufficient by reaſon of the word burgalriter, where it ſhould be burglariter; To which it was anſwered and reſolved by the Court: 1. That falſe Latin doth not quaſh an Indictment, nor abate any Count, for although the original Writ abate for falſe Latin, as it is holden in 9 H. 7. 16. 2 H. 4. 8. 44 E. 3. 18. 10 E. 3. 1. & 553. Yet Judicial Writs or fine ſhall not be impeached for falſe Latin, as it is holden in 9 E. 4. 67. The ſame Law of an Indictment; as if in an Indictment it be præfato Reginæ, where it ſhould be præfatæ Reginæ, or præfatæ Regi for præfato Regi, or the like, for as much as the word is Latin and ſignificant; and although it be not true Latin, the Indictment for ſuch incongruity ſhall not be quaſhed. But if the word be not Latin, nor allowed by the Law, as vocabulum artis (for every Art and Science have propria vocabula artis) but is inſenſible there, if it be in a Point material, it maketh the Indictment inſufficient, as burglaria, burglariter, murdrum, felonice, and the like are vocabula artis, known to the Law, and therefore if ſuch words, or the like, are miſtaken in an Indictment, ſo that in a material place a word inſenſible, which is not Latin, nor any word known in Law, it maketh the Indictment vicious and inſufficient, as murdedrum for murdrum, or burgariter for burglariter, feloniter for felonice. But in the Caſe at Bar it was reſolved, that mamilla with a ſingle (m) is as good Latin as mammilla with a double (m) as defamo and diffamo, definitio and diffinitio. Alſo Popham Chief Juſtice, Gawdy, Yelverton, and Williams held, that theſe words ſuper mammillam were abundant and more then needed, and therefore if mammilla were inſenſible, and no Latin, yet it doth not make the Indictment vicious: For it was holden by them, that ſuper anteriorem partem corporis was enough certain and ſufficient; for corpus in an Indictment (which is found by Lay-people) is to be intended of the trunk of the body, between the neck and the thighs, which is the uſual and vulgar acceptance of the body: So it was reſolved, Quod ſuper caput, or ſuper faciem, or in dexteriori parte corporis, or in ſiniſtra parte corporis, or ſuper ſiniſtr' manum, or ſuper dextram manum, or ſiniſtrum brachium, &c. or in pectore, or ventre, are enough certain and ſufficient. But ſuper brachium, or ſuper manum, or ſuper latus, &c. without ſaying dextr', or ſiniſtr' is not ſufficient, becauſe in ſuch Caſe the part of a man in which the ſtroke is, is not certain. [b]

Another Exception was taken, becauſe that in the ſaid Indictment it was ſaid, dans eidem Henr' Long, &c. unum vulnus mortale, &c. where it ought to be unam plagam, which is the word uſed in all Indictments, and that vulnus ſhall not be uſed in Indictments no more then ictus, which alſo ſignifieth a ſtroak: But this Exception was diſallowed by the Court, for plaga and vulnus are ſynonyma, and ſignifie the ſame thing, although that plaga is the more uſual word in Indictments. Further Exception was taken, becauſe the length and depth of the wound was not ſhewed, which ought to be in every Indictment of death, for this cauſe the Indictment was inſufficient. But this Exception was diſallowed by the Court, for the length and depth of the ſtroak ought to be alledged, to the intent that it may appear to the Court that the wound was mortal, ſo that that may appear to be the occaſion of the death. But in this Caſe the wound was through the whole body, ſcil. totaliter penetrans, & per totum corpus, ſo that it was apparent to be mortal; and in ſome Caſes the dimenſions cannot be alledged, when a member, as the knee, or the hand, or the foot, or the head are cut off, there any of the ſaid dimenſions cannot be ſhewed. So in the Caſe at Bar. Vide Trin. 28 Eliz. Heydon's Caſe acc'. Another Exception was taken, becauſe the Indictment was, dans eidem Henrico Long, &c. cum pelletto plumbeo præd', &c. vulnus mortale, &c. totaliter penetrans in & per corpus præd' Henr' Long: And becauſe that penetrans ought to agree with vulnus, and not with pelletto, not only becauſe that vulnus is the laſt antecedent, but becauſe that otherwiſe will follow incongruity: For penetrans agreeth well with vulnus, and not with pelletto, for that is the ablative Caſe, and ſo cannot be penetrans, for then it ſhould be penetrante: And it was ſaid, that the wound did not penetrate or pierce the body, but the pellet pierced the body, and made the wound; But it was not allowed, for the ſenſe is ſignificant enough to ſay that the ſtroke did penetrate the body; for if it ſhall be asked of the depth of the wound, it may well be anſwered that it pierced the body. And penetro derivatur a penitus & intra. And ſo the words are ſignificant enough, without any abſurdity, or incongruity, to ſay dans, &c. vulnus mortale totaliter penetrans, in & per corpus, and ſo much the rather being the words of Lay-people. For the pellet gave the wound, which wound did pierce through the whole body. But the great Objection, and moſt difficult againſt the Indictment was, becauſe the Indictment wanted percuſſit; for the effect of it, as to the purpoſe is, Præd. H. D. quoddam tormentum, &c. cum pulvere & pelletto plumbeo onerat', &c. in & ſuper ipſum Henr' Long exoneravit, dans eidem Henrico Long adtunc & ibidem cum pellet' plumbeo præd' extra torment' præd' per ipſum dimiſſo unum vulnus mortale, &c. And it was ſaid, that although it wanted percuſſit, yet here is tant amount, and it is the Rule of Law and reaſon, Non refert quid ex æquipollentibus fiat. And when it appeareth that H. D. torment' cum pulvere & pelletto, &c. in ipſum Henr' Long exoneravit, dans eidem Henr' Long, &c. cum pellet' plumbeo præd', &c. unum vulnus mortale, &c. by that it appeareth to the Court, that H. D. was the occaſion of the wound, and upon the matter gave in this manner the wound. And further it was ſaid, that percuſſit is not properly ſaid, but when one with his hand, or any weapon which he holdeth in his hand, woundeth another, and not when he giveth a wound by a means, as out of a gun with a bullet, or out of a bow with an arrow. This word percuſſio is derived and compounded as it was ſaid, from per and quatio: But it was reſolved by the whole Court, that for this cauſe the Indictment was inſufficient. And this part of the Indictment concerning the ſaid Objection was divided into two parts; 1. The clauſe before dans eidem, &c. and the clauſe containing dans eidem, &c. [122] [b]

And it was reſolved that the firſt clauſe was not ſufficient in it ſelf, for although H. D. diſcharged the dagge upon him, yet it may be he was not ſtrucken with it; Then the ſecond clauſe, ſcil. dans eidem, &c. cannot make that good; for the clauſe of dans, &c. doth depend upon the firſt clauſe, and deſcribeth only the wound to manifeſt the ſame to be mortal; which ought to appear by the firſt ſentence to be given, becauſe in hoc caſu participium determinat verbum: But here it doth not appear by the firſt clauſe that there was ſtroke given; and then dans, &c. cannot ſupply it; for that is a participle depending upon the verb precedent, and the verb precedent is exoneravit, and exoneravit may be without percuſſion or ſtroke: As if one be indicted that he did aſſault one with an ax in his right hand, giving to him a mortal wound, it is inſufficient, becauſe this participle (giving) hath a verb before with which it might participate: And it was ſaid, that if the ſecond clauſe had been in the Caſe at Bar, & dedit adtunc & ibidem unum vulnus mortale, it had been inſufficient; for dedit doth not imply a willing and voluntary ſtroke, as percuſſit, and if dedit would have been ſufficient, yet dans by the whole Court, for the cauſe aforeſaid was inſufficient. And it was reſolved that the Indictment may ſay percuſſit, as well of a wound given out of a gun, or bow, as with the hand. And a preſident in 10 E. 4. in the Kings Bench was ſhewed, where the wound was out of a gun, and the Indictment had the word percuſſit, 1 Ma. Dier 99. That an Indictment with ſuch clauſe ex malitia ſua præcogitata felonice murdravit, &c. is not good without ſaying percuſſit, becauſe that Indictment of murder or manſlaughter ought to have expreſly a ſtroke to be ſuppoſed.
[123] And true it is, that in all Indictments of murder or manſlanghter a ſtroke ought to be alledged, if not in caſe of poiſoning. And for this laſt Error the outlawry was reverſed, and the ſaid H. D. diſcharged. And many preſidents of Indictments of death, where the wound was given with a bullet out of a gun, or by an arrow out of a bow, and all thoſe (which I ſaw) had this word percuſſit.

Paſch. 3 Jacobi, in the Common Pleas.

Saffyn's Caſe.

[b] IN a Replevin between Saffyn Plaintiff, and Adams Defendant, which began Trin. 44 Eliz. Rot. 1244. upon a ſpecial Verdict found, the Caſe was ſuch; A man made a leaſe for years of certain land to begin after the end or determination of a term for years then in being; The firſt years determine, the ſecond leſſee doth not enter, but he in the reverſion entreth and maketh a feoffment, and levieth a fine of the land with proclamations, according to the Statute of 4 H. 7. cap. 24. And five years paſs after the proclamations without entry or claim made by the ſecond leſſee: And if the leſſee for years were barred or not by the ſaid fine with proclamations, and the ſaid Act of 4 H. 7. was the Queſtion; And it was objected that the leſſee for years ſhould not be barred for two cauſes:

1. Although the word (intereſt) is in the Act, yet it is to be intended ſuch intereſt that the owner thereof, may thereof levy a fine; But he who hath a term or intereſt for years cannot levy a fine, but every one ſhall ſay againſt it, quod partes finis nihil habuerunt, becauſe a leaſe for years is but a chattel, and a fine is in the realty, and the Law doth require that one of the parties have a Freehold. And that this word (intereſt) in the Act ſhall be intended of an intereſt of Freehold whereof a fine may be levied. And it was ſaid that Mich. 21 Eliz. in the Kings Bench, it was adjudged in Saunder's Caſe, That a leaſe for years was not an intereſt within the ſaid Statute of 4 H. 7.

2. It was objected, That although that leſſee for years, when he is ouſted and ejected ſhall be within the ſaid Act; yet in this Caſe the leſſee ſhall not be bound, for no fine levied with proclamations ſhall bind any, but thoſe who are put out of poſſeſſion, and have but a right, for if their eſtate or intereſt be [124] not deveſted out of them, but remain in them as it was ab initio, they need not enter or make claim to that which never was deveſted; and therefore it is agreed in Plow. Comm. in Stowel's Caſe, That a fine levied of land with proclamations, and five years paſt without claim made by him who hath Common of paſture, rent, or the like, ſhall not bind them, for their eſtate is not deveſted out of them, but always remaineth in them. So it was ſaid in the Caſe at Bar, until the ſecond leſſee entreth he hath but intereſſe termini, as he had before the firſt leaſe determined, the which (as it was ſaid) doth continue in him notwithſtanding the feoffment or fine. As if a man make a leaſe for years to begin at a day to come, and before the day the leſſor is diſſeiſed, yet the leſſee may grant over his intereſt, for ſuch intereſt of a term cannot be by diſſeiſin or feoffment deveſted, and put to a right more then a rent, or Common, or the like; and that was ſhortly the effect of what was ſaid on that ſide. But it was reſolved, That the fine and proclamations, and the Nonclaim of the leſſee had barred him of his term by the Act of 4 H. 7. And as to the firſt Objection it was anſwered and reſolved, That notwithſtanding leſſee for years hath not ſuch eſtate that he may levy a fine, it doth not follow, that his term or intereſt ſhall not be bound and barred by the ſaid Statute, and that for two cauſes: 1. It is within the letter of the Act, for the words of the Act are general (the ſaid fine with proclamation ſhall be a final end, and conclude as well privies as ſtrangers to the ſame) which words are general, and extend to all: And the words of the ſaving are (ſuch right, claim, and intereſt, &c.) and he who hath a term for years hath an intereſt, and therewith agreeth Catlyne in Plow. Comm. 373. 2. It is within the miſchief; for it appeareth by the preamble, (That fines ought to be of greater ſtrength to avoid ſtrifes and debates, and to the final end and concluſion, &c.) And great miſchiefs, trouble, and vexation will follow, if leaſes for years which now are made for a great number of years, ſometimes abſolute, ſometimes determinable upon lives, ſhall not be within the ſaid Act; and therefore it was reſolved, That the intereſts of tenant by Statute Merchant, Statute Staple, Elegit, Guardian by Knights ſervice, Executors who have lands till debts debts levied and legacies paid, and every other such interest are within the said Act of 4 H. 7. for all these have interest in the lands, and he who hath a bare right or title to any Inheritance or Freehold, cannot levy a fine to any stranger, but it shall be said, quod partes finis nihil habuerunt; and yet he shall be bound by a fine levied by the Terre-tenant: So although that lessee for years cannot levy a fine to a stranger, but it shall be said, quod partes finis nihil habuerunt, yet it doth not follow but that he shall be bound by the fine with proclamations levied by tenant of the land. [b]

As to the second Objection it was answered and resolved by the Court, that in the Case at Bar by the said feoffment, the second lessee had but a right, for when his future interest had commencement, then he had such present estate in the land, which might be devested, and which he may revest by his entry. As if a man make a lease for years, in this Case before that the lessee entreth he hath estate for years in the land which he may grant. And the words of Littleton were well observed, lib. 1. cap. 7. fol. 13. b. If a man make a lease for years, and before the lessee entreth the lessor dieth, yet the lessee may enter, because the lessee by force of the lease hath present right to have the tenements according to the form of the lease: And Lit. lib. 3. cap. 8. fol. 107. If a man leaseth lands for years, if the lessor releaseth to his lessee all his right, before that the lessee hath entred into the land, such release is void, because the lessee had not possession in the land at the time of the release made, but only a right to have the same lands by force of the same lease: And fol. 127. if a man leaseth tenements for years, by force of which the lessee is seised, that is, possessed, and after the lessor by his Deed granteth the reversion to another for life, &c. it behoveth in such Case that the tenant for term of years attorn: By which it appeareth, that before the lessee entreth, he hath not actual possession, nor (as it seemeth) the lessor hath not such reversion that he may grant it over by the name of reversion, but yet such lessee hath more then he who hath a future interest, for that he may presently enter and take the profits, so that his interest accompanied with present entry and ability to take the profits which he may pass over, may be devested out of him, and put to a meer right not grantable: And so the difference appeareth between the Case at Bar, and Saunder's Case which was adjudged in 21 Eliz. for there at the time of the fine levied the lessee had not power to enter and take the profit, but only a future interest, which (if it may be devested) he had not any means possible to revest in him again.

The Case De Libellis famosis.

IN the Case of L. P. in the Star-Chamber this Term, against whom the Attorney-General proceeded ore tenus upon his own confession, for composing and publishing of an infamous Libel in verse, by which John Archbishop of Canterbury (who was a Prelate of singular piety, gravity, and learning, now dead) by circumlocutions and descriptions, and not in express terms; and Richard Bishop of Canterbury who now is, were traduced and scandalized: In which these Points were resolved: [125]

1. That every Libel which is called famosus Libellus, seu defamatoria scriptura, is made either against a private man, or against a Magistrate and publick person, if it be against a private man it deserveth a severe punishment, for although the Libel be made against one, yet it inciteth all those of the same family, kindred, or society to revenge, and so may be the cause of shedding of blood, and of great inconvenience: If it be against a Magistrate, or another publick person it is a greater offence; for that it concerneth not only the breach of the peace, but also the scandal of government; for what greater scandal of government can there be then to have corrupt and wicked Magistrates to be appointed and constituted by the King to govern his Subjects under him? and greater imputation to the State it cannot be, then to suffer such corrupt men to sit in the sacred seat of Justice, and to have any medling in or concerning the administration of Justice.

2. Although the private man or Magistrate be dead at the time of the making of the Libel, yet it is punishable, for in the one Case it stirreth up others of the same family, blood, or society to revenge, and to breach of the peace, and in the other the Libeller doth traduce the State and Government, which dieth not.

3. A Libeller (who is called famosus defamator) shall be punished either by Indictment at the Common Law, or by Bill, if he deny it, or ore tenus upon his confession, in the Star-Chamber, and according to the quality of the offence he may be punished by fine or imprisonment, and if the Case be exorbitant, by Pillory and loss of his Ears. [b]

4. It is not material whether the Libel be true, or whether the party against whom the Libel is made, be of a good or ill fame; for in a setled state of government the party grieved ought to complain for every injury done to him in ordinary course of Law, and not by any means to revenge himself, either by odious course of libelling, or otherwise: He who killeth a man with his sword in fight is a great offender, but he is a greater offender who poisoneth another, for in the one case he who is the party assaulted may defend himself, and knoweth his adversary, and may endeavour to prevent it: But poisoning may be so secret that none can defend himself against it, for which cause the offence is more grievous, because the offender cannot be easily known; And of such nature is libelling, it is secret, and robbeth a man of his good name, which ought to be more precious to him then his life, & difficillimum est invenire Authorem infamatoriæ scripturæ, because that when the offender is known, he ought to be severely punished. Every infamous Libel, either is in writing, or without writing. In writing, when an Epigram, Rime, or other writing is composed or published to the scandal or contumely of another, by which his fame or dignity may be prejudiced. And such libel may be published, 1. Verbis aut cantilenis: As where it is maliciously repeated or sung in the presence of others. 2. Traditione, when the Libel, or copy of it is delivered over to scandalize the party; A famous Libel without writing may be. 1. Picturis, as to paint the party in any shameful and ignominious manner. 2. Signis, as to fix a Gallows, or other ignominious signs at the parties door or elsewhere. And it was resolved Mich. 43 & 44 Eliz. in the Star-Chamber in Hallywood's Case, That if one find a Libel (and would keep himself out of danger) if it be composed against a private man, the finder either may burn it, or presently deliver it to a Magistrate: But if it concern a Magistrate, or other publick person, the finder of it ought presently to deliver it to a Magistrate, to the intent that by examination and industry, the Author may be found out and punished. And libelling and calumniation is an offence against the Law of God.

[126] For Leviticus 17. Non facias calumniam proximo. Exod. 22. ver. 28. Principi populi tui non maledices. Ecclesiastes 10. In cogitatione tua ne detrahas Regi, nec in secreto cubiculi tui diviti maledices, quia volucres cœli portabunt vocem tuam, & qui habet punnas annuntiabit sententiam. Psal. 61. 13. Adversus me loquebantur qui sedebant in porta, & in me psallebant qui bibebant vinum. Job 30. ver. 7. & 8. Filii stultorum & ignobilium, & in terra penitus non parentes, nunc in eorum canticum sum versus, & factus sum eis in proverbium. And it was observed, that Job who was the Mirrour of patience, as appeareth by his words, became in a manner impatient when Libels were made of him; And therefore it appeareth of what force it is to provoke impatience and contention. And there are certain marks by which a Libeller may be known: Quia tria sequuntur defamatorem famosum: 1. Pravitatis incrementum, increase of lewdness: 2. Bursæ decrementum, wasting of his money and beggery: 3. Conscientiæ detrimentum, shipwrack of conscience.

Palmer's Case.

[b] BEtween Palmer and Wilder for a Ward in the County of Oxford, the only Question in the Case was; If the Guardian in Knights service shall have the single value without any tender: And it was objected, that the Guardian should not have it without tender for four causes:

1. Litt. lib. 2. cap. 4. fol. 21. and all the Books agree, that Knights service draweth to it Ward, Marriage, and Relief. And the Statute of Merton, cap. 7. saith, Quod maritagium ejus qui infra ætatem est de mero jure pertinet ad Dominum feodi, so that the marriage of the heir within age doth belong by the Law in such Case to the Lord; Then if the heir will perform that which the Law requireth, scil. to be married by his Guardian, it is not reason that he render any value for it; for Littleton doth not say, that Knights service draweth to it the value of the marriage, but the marriage it self; and the Statute of Merton doth not say, Quod valor maritagii ejus de mero jure pertinet ad Dominum feodi, sed maritagium ejus de mero jure pertinet, &c. Put case then that A. covenant with B. that B. shall have the marriage of A. and that he shall be married to him to whom B. will nominate to him; In this Case if A. be ready to be married according to his covenant, and B. will not nominate any, he shall never render any value for it: So in the Case at Bar, for as much as the Law giveth to the Lord the marriage, if the heir be ready to perform it, he is excused, and shall not be charged with any value. So if the tenant be ready to do his homage, or any other corporal service, which by his tenure he ought to do, the Lord cannot refuse it, or wave it, and take amends for it.

[127] 2. In this Case of marriage which the Law giveth, the Lord is to have the benefit, and he ought to do the first act, for the heir cannot perform the duty which the Law in such Case requireth, without the first act done by the Lord, scil. Tender of a woman that the heir shall marry; and in all Cases when the default is in him who ought to do the first act, the other party is excused. As if a man be bound to levy a fine to the obligee before such a day; in this Case for as much as by the Law the obligee ought to do the first act, scil. to sue forth a Writ of Covenant before the day, if no Writ of Covenant be sued, the obligor is excused, as it is holden 4 E. 3. 39. b. 18 E. 3. 27. & 11 H. 4. 18. Vide 21 E. 4. 2. 2 E. 4. 3. 20 E. 4. 36. 1 Ma. Dier, Windsor's Case, and 22 Eliz. Dier 371.

3. And the words of the Writ de valore maritagii are, Quare cum maritagium præd. B. ad ipsum A. pertineat, eo quod præd. B. terram suam de eo tenuit per servitium militare, & eid' A. prædict. B. dum fuit infra ætatem in custodia sua, competens maritagium absque disparagatione, &c. sæpius obtulit, idem B. maritagium illud tenuens, de eodem maritagio præfat' A. cum ad plenam ætatem pervenerit satisfacere recusavit, & adhuc recusat minus juste, &c. ad dampnum, &c. By which Writ, and also by the Writ of Intrusion of Ward it appeareth, that the Lord shall not have the single value without tender of marriage, and default in the heir; and if the tender in such Case shall not be requisite, great and tedious surplusage shall be contained in the Writ, which of its nature, and according to its name, ought to be brief and substantial, Dicitur enim breve, quia rem breviter enarrat.

4. Upon the reasons aforesaid are divers express authorities in the Point, 21 E. 4. 43. per Curiam, that there ought to be tender, F. N. B. 141. 40 E. 3. 6. Issue taken upon the tender, 11 H. 4. 82. Tender alledged, 43 E. 3. 20. and the Statute of Merton, cap. 7. Si quis hæres, &c. pro Domino suo noluerit maritare, non compellatur hoc facere, sed cum ad ætatem pervenerit det Domino suo & satisfaciat ei, &c. all which prove there ought to be tender. As to the first and second Objections, it was resolved by the whole Court, That at the Common Law it was at the Lords election to have the marriage of the heir, or to suffer the heir to marry whom he pleased, and to have recompence, scil. the value of it, and that at the Common Law there lay not only the Writ De valore maritagii, but also the Writ Quare intrusit

ſe maritagio non ſatisfacto, and therewith agreeth 31 Aſſ. p. 26. And at the Common Law if the heir within age had been raviſhed and married, the Guardian ſhall recover in an Action of Treſpaſs the value of the marriage in damages, and therewith agreeth 29 E. 3. 37. & 29 Aſſ. which is a notable proof, that the value of the marriage doth belong to the Lord without tender; for if the value ſhall not be due without tender, then if the raviſher of a Ward marrieth him, the Lord ſhall not receive the value, or if the heir marrieth himſelf before the Lord can make a tender, or if he flie over Sea, or to places unknown, the act and wrong of the heir if tender were neceſſary might prevent the Guardian of the benefit of the marriage, which de mero jure doth belong unto him, which ſhall be inconvenient. As to the third Exception it was anſwered, That many times Writs are framed according to that which moſt uſually happeneth. And where the rule is, ad ea quæ frequentius accidunt jura adaptant', it may be well ſaid, ad ea quæ frequentius accidunt reſcripta ſive brevia adaptant'; And a ſpecial Caſe ſhall have a ſpecial Writ and a ſpecial Count: As to the Authorities, ſcil. 40 E. 3. 6. there it appeareth the iſſue was taken upon the tender, and many times it is done by good advice, ſcil. firſt to try the matter in fact, if the Plaintiffs Council will admit it, and then to take advantage of the matter in Law, which joyning of iſſue by the Plaintiffs Council, is not any authority of proof that tender is requiſite. And as the Book of 21 E. 4. 43. which is but one opinion obiter without argument or deliberation, in the debating of another Caſe, is to be underſtood of forfeiture of marriage; And in the other Books, tender is only alledged, and no authority that is requiſite: But the Book of 31 Aſſ. p. 26. is adjudged, That for the ſingle value tender is not requiſite; and therewith agreeth 2 H. 7. 9. Et hoc communi juris peritorum calculo comprobatur: And ſo the doubt in 9 Eliz. Dier 255. well reſolved. [b]

THE REPORTS OF Sir Edward Coke Kt. &c.

PART VI.

Where Services Intire ſhall be appointed.

Hill. 36 Eliz. In the Court of Wards. Reſolutions by the two Chief Juſtices and the whole Court of Wards, Concerning apportionment of Intire Services.

Bruerton's Caſe.

[1] LOrd and Tenant of three Acres of Land by Homage, Fealty, annual Service of a Hawk, and ſute of Court, the Tenant maketh a Feoffment in Fee of one Acre, The Feoffee ſhall hold by homage, fealty, a Hawk, and ſute of Court, by the Common Law, For Quæ in partes dividi nequeunt ſolida, a ſingulis præſtantur, and therewith agreeth the Books in 2 E. 2. Avowry 184. 5 E. 2. ibid. 206. 11 E. 3. Avowry 101. 24 E. 3. 73. a. 34 Aſſ. p. 15. 22 E. 4. 36, 37. 27 H. 8. Tenures 64. and Avowry. And no difference as to this purpoſe between intire ſervices annual, as ſute, a Hawk, &c. and not annual, as homage, fealty, heriot, &c. And as to Heriot, v. 34 E. 3. Heriot 3. And the Statute of Weſt. 3. of Quia Emptores terrarum cannot extend to intire ſervices to hold pro particula, becauſe that ſuch ſervices are not deviſable, and by conſequence each ſhall hold by the whole as he ſhall hold by the Common Law. But in the Caſe of ſute, the Statute of Marlebridge, cap. 9. hath altered the Law in two Caſes. 1. In Caſe of Coparceners and their vendees by Equity, as it appeareth by the Regiſter and F. N. B. 159. a. and b. where the Writ re-

[b] cites, Cum de communi Conſilio Regni noſtr. proviſum ſit, ſi hæreditas aliqua, de qua unica ſecta debetur, ad plures hæredes vel ad alios per venditionem devolvatur, &c. 2. The Statute doth provide, Et ſi plures feoffati fuerunt de hæreditate aliqua, de qua unica ſecta debeatur, Dominus unicam ſectam habeat, &c. But that is meant when the Tenant, who holdeth by ſute, doth enfeoff others ſeverally, one of one part, and another of another part, &c. in certain; there the Lord ſhall have but only one ſute; and he who doth the ſute ſhall have contribution for his charge againſt the others, and that appeareth by the Statute of Marlebridge, and F. N. B. 159. But if the Tenant who holdeth by ſute infeoffeth many joyntly, the ſame is out of the Statute as to Contribution, for without expreſs agreement he ſhall not have Contribution. But yet all the ſaid Feoffees ſhall do but one ſute, as they ſhall pay or deliver but one Hawk, or other yearly intire ſervice, and therewith agreeth F. N. B. 162. c. But if the Tenant maketh a feoffment of the moity or third part in common, and not in ſeveralty, it is out of the purview of the Statute of Marlebridge: For where the poſſeſſion is intire and indivied, there cannot be contribution, and therewith agreeth F. N. B. 162. d. (That Tenant in Common ſhall do ſeveral ſute and ſeveral ſervice.) As Feoffee of the moity or third part is out of the Statute of Quia Emptores terrarum to hold pro particula, as it is holden in 29 H. 8. br. Tenures. 2. Although the Tenancy, and every part of it is holden and charged with intire ſervices; Yet therein obſerve this difference, between the Act of the Tenant by the ſeverance and parcelling of the Tenancy to others (for that ſhall give benefit to the Lord, who is a ſtranger to it) res inter alios actæ nemini nocere debent, ſed prodeſſe poſſunt, and the Act of the Lord himſelf to take any parcel of the Tenancy, which ſhall turn to his prejudice: for by his acceptance of any part of the Tenancy, all the ſaid yearly intire ſervices are gone and extinct; and therefore if one holdeth his land of his Lord by his yearly ſervice, of a Hawk, Horſe, or the like; if in ſuch caſe the Lord purchaſeth part of the Tenancy, ſuch entire ſervices are gone, becauſe that ſuch such service cannot be severed or apportioned. And forasmuch as he hath discharged part by his own act, the whole intire service is gone, in the same manner as if he had released his Seignory in part of the Tenancy, all the Seignory by his own act is gone. And therewith agreeth Lit. 49. 5 E. 2. Avowry 206. 3. Another difference was taken between the said intire services, and other the like, which are only for the sole benefit of the Lord, and are a charge to the Tenant, as the services to render a Hawk, a Horse, a pair of gilt spurs, &c. and intire services which are for the benefit of the Commonwealth, or for the defence of the Realm, or for the advancement of Religion, and the service of God, or for Works of Devotion, Piety, or Charity, or for the advancement of Justice: In such and the like cases, although that the Lord purchaseth parcel; yet the entire services remain. As if the Tenant hold by Knights service, which is an entire service to be done by the body of a man (for escuage is but a a penalty for not doing of it) in this case, because it is for the defence of the Realm, and pro bono publico, although the Lord purchaseth parcel of the Tenancy, yet the service shall continue; and therewith agreeth Littleton, lib. 2. cap. Rents, fol. 49. The same Law of Castlegard, Cornage, and the like, vide 11 H. 7. 12. because for the defence of the Realm; So if one holdeth of his Lord to make a Bridge, repair a High way, or to make a Beacon (which Tenures you may see in 11 H. 7. 12. b. and 24 H. 8. br. Tenures 53.) Although that the Lord in such Case purchaseth parcel, the whole service doth remain, because for the Commonwealth. So if one holdeth to marry a poor Virgin yearly, as the Tenure is 24 H. 8. br. Tenures 53. because a work of Charity; So if the Tenure be to find a Preacher in such a Church, or to provide the Ornaments of such a Church, as the like Tenure is 35 H. 6. 6. because a work of Devotion and Piety. So where the Tenure is to assist the Sheriff, or to be High Constable of England; for these are for the advance of Justice. For the determination of divers cases doth belong to the Court of the Constable and Marshal, and the Sheriff is the Minister of Justice, vide 11 Eliz. Dier 285. and 16 E. 3. Avowry 93. Or if the Tenure be to keep the Kings Records, as the Abbot of St. Bartholomew in Smithfield held, as it appeareth amongst the Records in the Tower of London, 7 R. 2. membran. 15. dorso, Because the same concerneth the Administration of Justice. But if the Tenure be to be Carver, or Butler, or Cook to the Lord, or to cover the Lords Hall, or to attend upon him at some principal Feast, &c. in all such Cases, by the purchase of parcel, all is extinct, for these are for the only benefit of the Lord himself. 4. Another difference was taken between intire services, when the doing of the service by one Tenant of part shall serve for all, and he who doth it shall have contribution; and when every several Tenant shall do the several intire services. As in the Case of suit in the Cases aforesaid, one only shall do, and the others shall make contribution. And therefore there if any parcel cometh to the Lord, although it be by descent, which is an act of the Law; yet all the suit is gone, for there wanteth Contribution as well when part cometh by Law, as where it cometh by the act of the party, and therewith agreeth 34 Assize, 15 & 35 H. 6. Execution 21. But if parcel descendeth to the Lord, where the Tenure is by a Hawk, a Horse, &c. there it is otherwise, because that every parcel is severally holden by a Hawk, a Horse, &c. and therefore no Contribution shall be in such Cases: But (as it hath been said) every several Feoffee shall hold by a Hawk, a Horse, &c. 5. Another difference was as unto intire services, where the Lord cometh to part by the meer Act of the Law, and in part by the Act of the party, and especially when the original act is the act of the party, As Recovery in a Cessavit of parcel of the Tenancy, all the intire services which are only for the benefit of the Lord, as sute, grain of Wheat, a Horse, &c. are gone, and extinct, and therewith agreeth 40 E. 3. 46. F. N. B. 209. a.

[2] [b]

Where the Pleading shall stay for the Nonage of the Demandant, and where the Tenant shall have his Age.

Pasch. 35 Eliz. in the Common Pleas.

Markal's Case.

IN the Case of one Markal it was moved, Whether in a Formedon in Remainder by an Enfant, of a Remainder limited to his Father, and his heirs (whose heir he is, The Tenant without any plea pleading may pray that the pleading may stay for the Nonage of the Demandant. And 3 E. 3. age 72. was cited; And it was Objected, That although 8 E. 3. 59. be to the contrary, yet the reason which Herle there giveth, upon which he groundeth his opinion, is against Law. For he saith, That when the Enfant hath recovered in his Formedon in Remainder, then he shall not be in Ward. And it is apparent in a Formedon in the Reverter brought by the heir of the Donor, the tenant may pray that the pleading stay, without pleading any plea. And therewith agreeth 18 E. 3. age 11. and 12 E. 2. ibid. 145. But at last the Record of a Judgment was shewed Pasch. 4 Eliz. where the Case was, that a Scire facias to execute a fine brought by the heir within age of him in the Remainder in Fee, which Remainder was limited to his Grandmother and her heirs, the Tenant prayed [3] prayed that the pleading might ſtay for the Nonage of the demandant. And after many Arguments and great deliberation, it was adjudged, that the prayer of the Tenant ſhould not be allowed, but that he ſhould anſwer preſently. And for the better underſtanding of the true reaſon of this Judgment, The Rules of the Common Law as to this purpoſe are firſt to be obſerved. And firſt, it is to know, That every real Action, either is Poſſeſſory, that is to ſay, of his own poſſeſſion or ſeiſin, or Auncestrel, ſcil. of the ſeiſin or poſſeſſion of his Anceſtor. And generally in all Real actions, which an Enfant bringeth of his own poſſeſſion, although he hath the land by deſcent, and although [b] the Tenant pleadeth the deed of his Anceſtor with warranty, the pleading ſhall not ſtay for his Nonage, for by the preſumption of Law, the granting that the pleading may ſtay for the nonage of the demandant, is in favour, and for the benefit of the Enfant, not for want of good underſtanding of his eſtate, and of the truth of the matter he ſhall be prejudiced of his right which deſcendeth unto him from his Anceſtor, and therefore the Law in ſuch Caſe will rather ſuffer a delay, than hazard the right of the Land, whereof his Anceſtor had the poſſeſſion, by negligence or otherwiſe to be loſt. But when his Anceſtor dieth ſeiſed, and the Land deſcendeth to the Enfant, and he entreth and taketh the Explees and Profits, in this caſe it ſhall be a prejudice to the Enfant that he ſhall loſe his poſſeſſion which he had, and ſhall be thereof delayed till his full age: But when only a bare right deſcendeth to him he is not at any ſuch prejudice. And therewith agreeth 12 E. 4. 17. in a writ of Entre ſur diſſeiſin of a diſſeiſin done to the Infant himſelf; and 41 Edw. 3. age 39. and a Writ of Right of the deforcement to an Infant himſelf of Land which he hath by deſcent. So in Eſcheat and Ceſſavit, and Writ of Right Sur diſclaimer brought by an Infant, becauſe he hath the Seignory in poſſeſſion, which by Eſcheat, ceſſer, or diſclaimer he loſeth, and his Anceſtor had not any right to the Land, for this cauſe the pleading ſhall not ſtay for his nonage. So in a writ of Meſne brought by an Infant, becauſe that the cauſe of the action and wrong beginneth in the time of the Infant himſelf, 21 Edw. 3. age 85. 1 Edw. 2. age 119. 7 Edw. 2. age 140. And as to actions Anceſtrel, there are two ſorts of them; one called Anceſtrel Rightful, becauſe that nothing deſcendeth from the Anceſtors but a bare Right; the other called Action Anceſtrel poſſeſſory, becauſe the Anceſtor died in poſſeſſion, and the Land it ſelf deſcendeth. In all caſes when a bare Right in Fee-ſimple deſcendeth from any Anceſtor (who once was in poſſeſſion) to an Infant, then in any Action Anceſtrel brought by him, the Tenant without any plea pleaded, may pray that the pleading ſtay. As if an Infant bring a Writ of Right, as heir to his Anceſtor, and alledge the Explees in his Anceſtor, the Tenant without any plea pleading may pray that the Parol demur. So if an Infant bringeth a Formedon in the Reverter, as heir to the Donor, for there he demandeth the Fee-ſimple of the ſeiſin of his Anceſtor, and there he ought to alledge the Explees in the Donor; [4] and therewith agreed 18 Edw. 3. age 11. 12 Ed. 2. ibid. 145. But in Formedon in Remainder, although he demand Fee-ſimple, yet becauſe his Anceſtor, to whom he is heir, was never ſeiſed, nor took any profits (and therefore in this caſe he ſhall alledge Explees only in the particular Tenant who hath the Eſtate upon which the Remainder dependeth, for this cauſe the Tenant (without plea) cannot pray that the Parol demur, foraſmuch as the Remainder never was in the poſſeſſion of any of his Anceſtors, and the demandant himſelf ſhall be the firſt in whom it ſhall veſt, and that ſhall have ſeiſin of the Land in demand; and that was the true reaſon of the ſaid Judgment. And it is not called Action Anceſtrel Righful, becauſe the Action doth deſcend, but becauſe the Right doth deſcend from the Anceſtor, for which an Action of the ſeiſin of his Anceſtor is given to the heir. And therefore if an Infant alieneth within age, and dieth within age, and his heir bringeth a Writ of Dum fuit infra ætatem, the Tenant may pray that the pleading ſtay, and yet the Action doth not deſcend; for it doth not lie for him who alieneth, becauſe he died within age, and the Writ ſaith, Dum fuit infra ætatem. So if the heir within age bring a Writ of Non compos mentis, the Tenant may pray that the Parol demur, and yet a bare Right and no Action deſcendeth, vide 20 Edw. 3. 7. In all Actions Anceſtrel poſſeſſory, as in Coſinage, Beſaiel, Aiel, &c. where the Anceſtor died ſeiſed, there the Tenant may without plea pleading pray that the Parol demur for the nonage of the Demandant. But at the Common Law, in ſuch Actions, if the Tenant had pleaded a Feoffment, or other act of the Anceſtor in bar, by which it appeareth, that either nothing, or that a bare right at moſt deſcended, which maketh it equivalent to an Action Anceſtrel righful, There the Tenant upon ſuch plea pleaded, may pray that the pleading ſtay; and the demandant for the tenderneſs of his age, and in reſpect the Law preſumeth want of underſtanding in him, ſhall not be hazarded to try that which may perpetually bar him; and that the Common Law was ſuch, well appeareth by the Statute of Glouceſter, cap. 2. For there it appeareth, that in Coſinage, Beſaiel, Aiel, &c. brought by an Infant, the Tenant in anſwering, alledgeth a Feoffment, or pleadeth ſome other thing, or the Inqueſt was delayed till the age of the Infant, that now he ſhall anſwer as if he were of full age. But this Act extendeth only to Writs of Coſinage, Beſaiel, Aiel, 8 Edw. 3. 36. &c. againſt the opinion in 34 Hen. 6. 3. that it extendeth to other Actions, 54 Edw. 3. In a Quid juris clamat brought by an Infant, the Defendant ſaid, that his Anceſtor by Deed demiſed to him for life, without impeachment of waſt; and becauſe that the Plaintiff being within age cannot confeſs a Deed within age, it was adjudged, that he ſhould attend till his full age, [b] 6 Edw. 3. 48. The like plea pleaded in waſt by an Infant; for during his nonage he ſhall not be party to try the Deed of his Anceſtors in ſuch caſes. In a Formedon in the deſcender in which the demandant ſhall not recover the meer Right, but a limited eſtate per formam doni of the ſeiſin of the Donee, the Parol ſhall not demur by the prayer of the Tenant, but he ſhall be anſwered within age, if not that ſomething be pleaded againſt him, to which he cannot be party to try within age; and therewith agreeth 8 Edw. 3. 9. 12 Ed. 4. 17. 34 Hen. 6. 3. 40 Ed. 3. 42 Edw. 3. 13 Ed. 3. Formedon 96. 3 Edw. 3. ibid. 133. But in Aſſiſe, and Aſſiſe of Mordanceſter brought by an Infant, becauſe here is a Jury the firſt day, and the Jury is to enquire of the circumſtances, the pleading upon plea pleaded ſhall not demur, 8 Edw. 3. 36. And it is to know, that the Statute of Weſtm. 1. cap. 46. taketh away the

the age as well on the part of the Tenant as on the Demandant in a Writ of Entrie ſur diſſeiſin to the Anceſtor, if freſh ſuit were made, as it is adjudged in 24 Ed. 3. 46. For in ſuch caſe becauſe that a bare right deſcended to the heir at the Common Law, the plea did ſtay for his Infancy. But the ſaid Act is taken ſtrictly, and doth not extend to any other action than a Writ of Entrie ſur diſſeiſin, 46 Ed. 3. age 76. But at the Common Law, if the Grandfather was diſſeiſed, and brought an Aſſiſe, and die, depending the Writ; and afterwards the Father bringeth a Writ of Entrie ſur diſſeiſin, and pendant the Writ the Father alſo dieth, In caſe in a Writ of Entrie brought by the Son of a diſſeiſin done to his Grandfather, the Parol ſhall not demur for the nonage of the Son, for the ſpeedy and freſh perſuit which hath been made, and therewith agreeth 10 Ed. 3. 58. And it is to be obſerved that in all real actions at the Common Law, if the Tenant was within age, and in by deſcent, that he ſhall have his age, 21 Edw. 4. 78. in a Scire facias upon a Fine, 47 Edw. 3. 7. in Error, if he be Tenant; vide 8 Edw. 4. 19. 13 Edw. 3. age 7. in Formedon in deſcender, 45 Edw. 3. age 40. in Aiel, if the action be not grounded upon his own wrong, as in Ceſſavit of his own ceſſer, 2 Ed. 2. age 132. 9 Ed. 3. 50. 14 Ed. 3. age 88. vide 28 Ed. 3. 99. 31 Ed. 3. age 54. adjudged. And if it be not in a Nuper obiit, when he claimeth as heir from the ſame Anceſtor, vide 7 Ed. 3. 13. 4 Ed. 3. age 137. 9 Ed. 2. ibid. 142. 13 Ed. 2. ibid. 146. vide 5 Ma. 136. in Baſſet's Caſe; for a Nuper obiit is principally brought to try the privity of the blood, and if it be not in a Partitione facienda, becauſe that both are in poſſeſſion, vide 9 Hen. 6. 6. 10 Hen. 4. 5. and 8 Edw. 3. and if it be not in attaint, 9 Hen. 6. 46. for the miſchief of the death of the Petty Jury. So that the Law doth favour the Tenant within age, who hath the poſſeſſion by deſcent more than the Demandant, who hath but a bare right by deſcent. But the ſaid Act of Weſtm. 1. taketh away the age of the Tenant in a Writ of Entrie ſur diſſeiſin in the per, as is aforeſaid. And the Statute of Weſtm. 3. cap. 40. ouſteth the age of the vouchee, being the Husbands heir, in a Cui in vita, and in Sur cui in vita. But both theſe Statutes are taken ſtrictly, as appeareth by many Books; and by theſe differences, and the cauſes, and reaſons of them you will better underſtand your Books, which are almoſt infinite, and prima facie, ſeem to diſagree, and by theſe differences may be well reconciled. Vide 8 Edw. 3. 10. if the plea ought to be delayed for the nonage of the Infant, although the Tenant would anſwer, yet the Court ought to award that the plea be ſtayed. So when the Tenant voucheth one as heir within age, he may pray that the pleading may ſtay. But in ſuch caſe he ought to plead more certain; for he ought to ſhew how choſen, vide 7 Edw. 6. Dier 79. 16 Ed. 3. age, and 15 Edw. 4. 46 Edw. 3. 25. & 31 Edw. 3. Voucher 54. In Dower, if the Tenant vouche the heir within age in favour of Dower, he ought to ſhew a Deed, vide 11 Edw. 3. Voucher 13. 40 Ed. 3. 5. 50 Edw. 3. 25. 10 Edw. 3. 31.

Caſes of Tenures.

Hill. 40 Eliz. in the Exchequer.

Sir John Molyn's Caſe.

King Edw. 3. Lord, the Abbot of Weſtminſter Meſne, and C. Tenant of the Mannor of Chippenham in the County of Buck. The Tenant was attainted of Treaſon, and after office found thereof, King Edw. 3. granted over the ſaid Mannor to Sir John Molyns, and his heirs, To hold of us, our Heirs, and Succeſſors, and other the chief Lords of the ſaid Fee, by the ſervices inde debita, & de jure conſueta: Of whom, and how this Land ſhall be holden, was the queſtion. And it was objected that in this caſe the tenure ſhall be of the King, for three cauſes; 1. Becauſe the words of the Tenendum are, per ſervitia inde debita, & de jure conſueta; which words could not either revive, or create a Tenure to the Meſne; for by the Attainder the Meſnalty was extinct, and therefore at the time of the grant, no ſervices were due, and of right accuſtomed; for all ſervices were extinct: and therefore as in 27 H. 8. Br. Parl. 74. it is ſaid, That if the King hath Land by forfeiture of Treaſon, thereby all Tenures are extinguiſhed and determined, as well of the King as other perſons; and there, if this Land be given to another by Parliament, ſaving to all other their Rights, Rents, Services, &c. there the Seignories of common perſons are not revived; for no Seignory was in being tempore ſecundi actus fatii. So in the caſe at Bar, at the time of the making of the Letters Patents, there was no Seignory, or Service in being, and therefore of neceſſity the ſaid Mannor ought to be holden of the King; but the words ought to have been, by the ſervices before the Treaſon, or before the Attainder, inde prius debita. 2. In this caſe an expreſs Tenure is reſerved to the King; for the Tenendum is, To hold of us, &c. and therefore it ought to be holden of the King; and foraſmuch as the ſame Land cannot be immediately holden of many, for this cauſe theſe words (and other the chief Lords) &c. are void, and the firſt words, viz. To hold of us, &c. ſhall ſtand. 3. Divers Offices and Licences of Alienation, and other Records were ſhewed to the Court, by which it did appear, that the Law had been alwaies ſo taken, that the ſaid Mannor was holden of the King in Capite; & conſuetudo eſt optima Legum interpres. As to the firſt, it was anſwered and reſolved by the Barons of the Exchequer, that the words are ſufficient to create a Tenure in the Meſne, as it was before the Treaſon; for ſo is the Kings meaning, and it is conſonant to Equity, viz. that the Meſne who did not offend, ſhould not loſe his ſervices; and therefore the grant ſhall be taken beneficially for the honour of the King, and for the relief of the Meſne; and the words of the Tenendum cannot have any other reaſonable conſtruction; and as to this point they ſtrongly relied upon the Book in 33 Hen. 6. 7. where Priſvil ſaith, That if the King ſeiſed of any Lands by forfeiture of Treaſon, granteth the ſame Lands to another by theſe words, Tenendum de capitali Domino per ſervitia debita & conſueta, That the ſame Lands were holden of the chief Lord, as it hath been adjudged; and therewith agreeth 8 Edw. 3. 283. vide 46 Edw. 3. Petition 19. & 17 Edw. 3. 59. And as to the caſe of 27 Hen. 8. it was anſwered and reſolved, that that was not like to this caſe; for a ſaving cannot ſave that which is not in eſſe. But in the ſaid Book it is further ſaid, viz. Here are not words of Gift, or Reviving: But in the caſe at Bar, the Kings grant doth in judgment of Law amount to the reviving of the ancient Seignory. Note the gravity of the ancient Sages of the Law, to conſtrue the Kings grant beneficially for his honour, and the relief of the Subject, and not to make any ſtrict, or literal conſtruction in ſubverſion of ſuch grants. As to the ſecond point, it was reſolved, That all the words of the Tenendum in the caſe at Bar may well ſtand; for the ſaid Mannor ſhall be holden of the King as Lord Paramount, and of the Abbot as Meſne, viz. of the Meſne immediately, and of the King by Meſne, as it was before the attainder, and that was the honourable intention of the King, and ſtandeth well with the words: For as the Barons ſaid, divide the words of the Tenendum in two ſeveral Caſes, and then joyn them together, and the Caſe would be without any difficulty; Firſt, if the Tenendum had been, de nobis hæred. & ſucc. noſtris per ſervitia inde debita, & de jure conſueta, the tenure ſhall be of the King immediately. 2. If the words had been, de Capitalibus Dominis feodi illius per ſervitia inde debita, & de jure conſueta, the immediate Tenure ſhall be of the Abbot, as it was before, then joyn them together, as in the Caſe at Bar, and the Tenure ſhall be of the Abbot immediately, and of [b] the King as Lord Paramount. As to the ſaid Offices, Licenſe, and other Records, the Barons ſaid, That foraſmuch as by conſtruction of Law upon the ſaid Letters Patents, it appeareth that there is no immediate Tenure of the King, although it had been otherwiſe found in Offices, or admitted in Licenſes, or other Records, the ſame cannot alter the true Tenure, which originally appeareth to them as Judges of Record. And it was ſaid, Quod licet conſuetudo eſt magnæ authoritatis nunquam tamen præjudicat veritati.

Paſch. 43 Eliz. in the Exchequer.

Wheeler's Caſe.

KIng H. 8. by his Letters Patents ex certa ſcientia & mero motu granted Lands in Fee, To hold of us and our heirs, by the ſervice of a Red Roſe yearly, at the Feaſt of the Nativity of St. John the Baptiſt, only for all and all manner of other ſervices. And it was adjudged in the Exchequer, that the ſame was a Tenure in Socage in chief. But it was objected, 1. That if the King granteth lands in Fee, and reſerveth nothing, the Patentee ſhall hold by Knights ſervice in Capite. The ſame Law if the King grant Lands by expreſs words, abſque aliquo inde reddendo, Or if he grant lands without any reſervation, the Tenure ſhall be of the King by Knights ſervice in Capite for the incertainty, and ſo it is holden in 33 H. 6. 7. 2. It was objected, That in the Caſe at Bar the Tenure cannot be by the ſervice of a Roſe only for all other ſervices, according to the words of the Tenendum, for to every Tenure there ought to be Homage, &c. Fealty at leaſt; then foraſmuch as the Tenure cannot be by a Roſe only, the King is deceived in his grant. 3. Foraſmuch as a ſervice above the Roſe, ought of neceſſity, by Con-
[7] ſtruction of Law be added to the Tenure; the beſt and higheſt ſervice ſhall be taken for the King, and that is Knights ſervice, for the uncertainty: yet it was reſolved, that foraſmuch as Fealty is incident to every Rent ſervice, the Law annexeth Fealty to the ſaid Rent, and then theſe words, ſcil. (For all other ſervices) is to be intended all other ſervices which the Law doth not imply or add to it, ſo that the Tenure ſhall be by a Roſe and Fealty, and that is the favourable Conſtruction of the Law, as near the Kings intent as may be. And by this conſtruction the ſaid words (for all other ſervices) have ſome effect, and ſhall not be rejected as idle, and of no force. And Priſot ſaid 33 H. 6, 7. That if the King granteth land, and reſerveth any ſpecial Rent, the Tenure ſhall be as he reſerveth it, be it Socage, or other.

Reſolutions

Reſolutions and differences when Bar in one Action ſhall be a Bar in another.

Mich. 40 & 41 Eliz. in the Common Pleas.

Ferrer's Caſe.

BEtween Ferrers and Ardon theſe points were reſolved: 1. When one is barred in any real or perſonal Act, or by Judgment upon demurrer, confeſſion, or verdict, &c. he is barred to that or the like action of the like nature for the ſame thing for ever. For Expedit reipub. ut ſit finis Litium. But there is a difference between real and perſonal actions. For in a perſonal action, as debt, accompt, &c. the bar is perpetual, for he cannot have an action of higher nature, and therefore in ſuch caſe he hath not any remedy but by Error, or attaint. But if the demandant be barred in a real action by Judgment upon verdict, demurrer, confeſſion, &c. yet he may have an action of higher nature, and try the ſame right again, becauſe it concerneth his Freehold and Inheritance. As if a man be barred in an aſſize of Novel diſſeiſin, yet upon ſhewing a deſcent, or other ſpecial matter, he may have an Aſſiſe of Mortdanceſter, Aiel, or Beſaiel, Entrie ſur diſſeiſin of his anceſtor. So if a man be barred in a Formedon in the Diſcender, he may have a Formedon in the Reverter, or Remainder; for that is an action of an higher nature; for therein the Fee-ſimple is to be recovered, according to the opinion in Robinſon's caſe, in the fifth part of my Reports. And if any one be barred by Judgment in any real action of the ſeiſin of his anceſtor, or of his own poſſeſſion, he may have a Writ of Right, in which the matter ſhall be tried and determined again. But recovery or bar in one Aſſiſe, is a bar in another Aſſiſe, and in a Writ of Entry in the nature of an Aſſiſe; for both are of his own poſſeſſion and of one nature between the ſame parties. So a bar in a Writ of Aiel is a bar in a Writ of Beſaiel, or Coſinage, &c. for theſe are Anceſtrel, and of one nature, and ſo of the reſt. So that the Law hath provided greater ſafety and remedy for matters of Freehold and Inheritance than for Debts and Chattels; for theſe once barred, are barred for ever (as it hath been ſaid) if it be not in a ſpecial caſe, as it appeareth in the ſaid Robinſon's Caſe; vide Fitz. Nat. Brev. 5. 30 Aſſ. p. 5. 4 Ed. 3. Eſtoppel 133. 5 Aſſ. p. 1. 11 Edw. 3. Entre 56. 12 Edw. 4. 13. 2 Hen. 3. 14. 33 Hen. 8. br. action ſur le caſe 105. 29 Hen. 8. br. Dett. 174. But in a Formedon in the Diſcender, if the demandant be barred by verdict or demurrer, yet the Iſſue in tail ſhall have a new Formedon in the Diſcender upon the conſtruction of the Statute of Weſtm. 2. cap. 2. So if he be barred in a Writ of Error upon the releaſe of his anceſtor, his iſſue ſhall have a new Writ of Error, for he claimeth in not only as heir, but per formam doni; and by the Statute ſhall not be barred by fraudulent pleading, or falſe pleading of his anceſtor, ſo long as the right of the Intail remaineth; and therewith agreeth, 10 Hen. 6. 5. 3 Eliz. Dier 188. Sir Ralph Rowlet's Caſe. Another difference is in real actions and perſonal, between a plea to the action of the Writ, and a plea to the Writ, for if the Demandant or Plaintiff hath miſtaken his action, ſo as the plea of the Tenant goeth to the action of the Writ, as Formedon in the Remainder, where it ſhould be Formedon in the Reverter, ſuch action without judgment upon verdict or demurrer, &c. doth not bar the Defendant of his rightful action; and therefore if the Defendant in ſuch caſe be Non-ſuit, or the plea be diſcontinued, he may bring his righful action; and therewith agreeth 27 Edw. 3. 84. 6 Hen. 4. 2. 2 Rich. 2. Eſtoppel 210. 4 Edw. 3. 54. But if the plea be but to the Writ, ſo that the ſame nature of Writ remaineth, in ſuch caſe although the plea to the Writ be adjudged againſt the demandant upon demurrer or verdict, &c. yet he ſhall maintain the ſame Writ again; for the judgment doth extend but to the Writ, and therewith agreeth 3 Edw. 3. Eſtoppel 134. 30 Aſſ. p. 8. Another difference in real actions, between ſuch perſons as have not the meer right in them, but a qualified right, although they be barred in real actions (without making them parties who have intereſt) ſhall not bind the Succeſſor, as Parſon, Prebendary, &c. For in ſuch caſe in a new action of the ſame nature by the Succeſſor, he ſhall falſifie; and the Recovery was not any diſcontinuance but the Succeſſor may enter. Otherwiſe of an Abbot, Biſhop, or the like, who have the whole Fee-ſimple in them, in ſuch caſes the Succeſſor at the Common Law ſhall not falſifie in a Scire facias, or new action of the ſame nature. The ſame Law when recovery is had againſt them, for it hath been adjudged that in a Writ of Right againſt a Parſon, who after the miſe joyned made default, and Judgment was given againſt him; yet the Succeſſor had a Juris utrum, becauſe he had not the meer Right, nor had prayed in aid of the Patron and Ordinary. The ſame Law of Tenant in Tail; vide 8 Edw. 3. 28, 29. 19 Hen. 6. 39. 7 Hen. 4. 20. 4 Hen. 7. 2. 12 Hen. 8. 8. 10 Hen. 6. 5. b. 15 Edw. 3. Fauxer de recovery 43. Fitz. Nat. Brev. 49. And if a Parſon, Vicar, or Prebend, &c. loſe by default in real action, he himſelf may have a Juris utrum; for that is his Writ of Right, as it is ſaid in the Regiſter, 32. b. And it ſhall be againſt reaſon that he ſhall not have any remedy, and principally the ſame being the right of the Church, which is favoured in Law. And it is to be obſerved, that when any one bringeth an Aſſiſe of Novel diſſeiſin, Mortdanceſter, Writ of Entry ſur diſſeiſin, or other real action, and he be barred by Judgment upon demurrer, or verdict, &c. the demandant and his heirs are not only barred of the ſame action, but alſo as long as the Record of the Judgment ſtandeth in force, he and his heirs are barred of their Entry, and are put to their action of higher nature; vide 25 Hen. 8. Dier 5. And whereas it is ſaid in Book, that

Privies ſhall not falſifie in the point tried, the ſame is as much as to ſay, that they ſhall not falſifie in a Scire facias upon the ſame Judgment, or in another Writ of the ſame nature. But he may bring an action of an higher nature, and therein try the matter again, as it hath been ſaid before. But in Robinſon's caſe, foraſmuch as the Defendants in the firſt action gave to the Plaintiff, &c. action as Executor, and peradventure the Plaintiff at the time he brought his action as Adminiſtrator, did not certainly know of the [b] Will, foraſmuch as (as it is ſaid in 27 H. 6. Eſtoppel 273.) he may be made Executor unknown to him; for this cauſe there in the ſaid Robinſon's caſe it was adjudged for the Plaintiff. Note Reader, at the Common Law, that if one had ſuffered a Recovery againſt him in any real action by default (if he were lawfully ſummoned, and no Error was in the proceeding) he had not (the caſe of an Infant only excepted for the tenderneſs of his years, and defect of underſtanding) any remedy but by Writ of Right: and that was the cauſe that Tenant in tail, Tenant by the curteſie, Tenant in dower, or Tenant for life after recovery by default, had not any remedy until the Statute of Weſtm. 2. cap. 4. gave to them a Writ of Quod ei deforceat, the words of which Act are; Whereas before time a man had loſt his Land by default, he had none other Recovery than by a Wright of Right, which was not maintainable by any that could claim of meer Right, neither of demandants for life, &c. It is provided that from henceforth their default ſhall not be prejudicial, but that they may recover their eſtate by another Writ, than by a Writ of Right, &c. Note, if a man loſe in the Aſſiſe, the Tenant is not put to his Writ of Right, but may have an Aſſiſe of Mordancеſter, 5 Aſſ. 1. No Recovery in Aſſiſe is a bar in a Formedon in the Reverter, as it is holden in 6 H. 4. 2. Note the Statute ſaith (by default) and that cannot be in Aſſiſe; for the Aſſiſe ſhall be adjudged. If a Recovery be againſt one by default, or upon a plea of the Bayley in Aſſiſe, the Defendant upon releaſe, &c. vide Weſt. 2. cap. 25. may have certificate, and ſo relieve himſelf, Fitz. Nat. Br. 181. 26 Aſſ. 5. Regiſter Judicial 11. 6. If the Husband had ſuffered a Recovery by default againſt him and his Wife, the Wife had not any remedy but a Writ of Right, and that appeareth by the Statute of Weſtm. 2. cap. 3. In caſe where the Husband loſt by default that was the right of the Wife, it was a hard thing that the Wife after the death of her Husband had none other Recovery but by a Writ of Right. The ſame Act gave a Cui in vita to the Wife in ſuch caſe, and a Writ of Entry to him in the Reverſion upon a Recovery had by default, or Reddition againſt the Tenant for life, Fitz. Nat. Br. 86. If ſuch particular Tenant loſe by action tried in a real action; at this day it ſeemeth they are without remedy, and therewith agreeth 50 Edw. 3. 7. vide Temps Edw. 1. Eſtoppel 171. & 235. and Litt. Chapter Releaſes 112. b. That if the Tenant, where the Remainder was over in Fee, had ſuffered a Recovery, that he in the Remainder before the ſaid Statute was without remedy; and the reaſon of the ſtrictneſs of the Common Law in ſuch caſe was
[9] to take away the multiplicity and infiniteneſs of Real ſuits, Recoveries, and Judgments in the ſame caſe; and therefore in the judgment and policy of the Law it was thought more profitable to the Commonwealth, and to the honour of the Law, to leave them without any remedy (as is aforeſaid) and to put others to their Writ of Right, without any reſpect of coverture, &c. than that there ſhould not be an end of actions and ſuits, vide the Judgment in Rediſſ. & poſt diſſeiſ. F.N.B. 188. & 190. And the puniſhment inflicted by the Law againſt him who ſhould diſſeiſe him who is in by Judgment of the Law in ſuch caſe; and the Regiſter 206, 208. For as it hath been well ſaid, Intereſt reipub. ut ſit finis litium; otherwiſe great oppreſſion may be done under colour and pretence of Law; for if there ſhall not be an end of ſuits, then a rich and malicious man would infinitely vex him who hath right by ſuits, and actions; and in the end (becauſe he cannot come to an end) compel him to yield to his charge and vexation, and to leave and relinquiſh his right; all which was remedied by the rule and reaſon of the Common Law, the neglect of which rule (by introducing of Trials of Rights, and Titles of Inheritance and Freehold in perſonal actions, in which there is not any end or limitation of ſuits) hath with it brought in four great inconveniencies. 1. Infiniteneſs of Verdicts, Recoveries, and Judgments in one and the ſame caſe. 2. Sometimes contrarieties of Verdicts and Judgments one againſt the other. 3. The continuance of ſuits for twenty, thirty, and forty years, to the utter impoveriſhing of the parties. 4. All the ſame tendeth to the diſhonour of the Common Law, which utterly abhorreth infiniteneſs, and delaying of ſuits, wherein is to be obſerved the excellency of the Common Law, for the rejecting the true inſtitution of it doth introduce many inconveniencies, and the obſervation thereof is always accompanied with reſt and quietneſs, which is the end of all humane Laws. And by all theſe differences and reaſons you will better underſtand your Books, in 8 Ed. 3. droit 35. 4 Ed. 3. droit 31. 3 E. 3. 16. 7 Ed. 3. 19. 8 Ed. 3. 54. 9 Ed. 3. 13. 18 Ed. 3. 31, 35. 18 Ed. 3. Eſtoppel 221. 30 Ed. 3. 19. 13 Aſſ. p. 1. 17 Aſſ. p 27. 27 Aſſ. p. 21. 24 Aſſ. p. 14. 30 Aſſ. p. 8. 30 Aſſ. 51. 31 Aſſ. 28. 32 Aſſ. 13. 31 Aſſ. 14. 33 Aſſ. 5. 19 Ed. 3. Eſtoppel 227. 40 Ed. 3. 21. 44 Ed. 3. 44 Ed. 3. 45. 45 Ed. 4. Br. 589. 7 Hen. 4. 15. 3 Hen. 6. 15. 22 Hen. 6. 27. 7 Ed. 4. 19. 2 Rich. 3. 14. 10 Hen. 6. 5. 37 Hen. 6. 31, 32. 12 Ed. 4. 13. 9 H. 7. 23. 21 H. 7. 24. 29 H. 8.

Note, Reader, at the Common Law, if Land had been conveyed out of the degrees, ſo that the demandant could not have a Writ of Entre in the per, or per & cui, the demandant was put to his Writ of Right; for no Writ of Entre in the poſt was at the Common Law, and the reaſon thereof was as hath been ſaid, quod ſit finis litium, and that he who hath right ſhould take his remedy by Writ of Entre, before there ſhould be more than two alterations, and that appeareth by the Statute of Marlebridge cap. 29. Vide F.N.B. 192. 7 Ed. 3. 25. & 325. 17 Ed. 3. 69. 22 Ed. 3. 1. 7 Hen. 4. 17. &c.

Where

Where a Writ ſhall be brought by Journeys accompts.

Hill. 45 Eliz. Rot. 36. in the Common Pleas.

Spencer's Caſe.

WIlliam Spencer, and Mary his Wife brought a Formedon in the Deſcender againſt John Dalby, who voucheth R. S. the Demandant did counterplea the voucher ſpecially, and ſhewed, that the ſame Demandant at another time did proſecute a Formedon in the Deſcender againſt the ſame Tenant for the ſame Land, and had Judgment againſt him by default upon Grand cape, which Judgment was reverſed by a Writ of Diſceit brought by the Tenant, becauſe he was not duly ſummoned; and that this Writ was brought by Journeys Accomps, viz. per dietas computat. And the Demandants ulterius dicunt, that præd R. S. quem, &c. nec aliquis anteceſſorum ſuorum cujus hæres ipſe eſt unquam aliquid habuerunt in tenementis prædictis cum pertinen. in Dominico, reverſione, nec in ſervitiis poſt donum prædict. uſque diem impetrationis prædicti primi brevis, ita quod prædictum J. Dalby aut aliquem anteceſſorum ſuorum inde feoffaſſe potuit, & hoc petit quod inquiratur per patriam, and demurred upon the Counter-plea. And in this caſe two points were reſolved by the Court. 1. A difference was taken when the firſt Writ doth abate by default of the Demandant himſelf, as by his miſ-information of the Tenants name, or of the Town, &c. for there the demandant ſhall never have a Writ by Journeys Accompts, as the Books are in 48 Ed. 3. 21. 14 Hen. 4. 23. 32 Hen. 6. 28. vide 9 Ed. 3. br. 244. But where the Writ abateth for default of the Clerk, as where it abateth for falſe Latin, or variance, or want of form, there the demandant ſhall have the benefit of a new Writ by Journeys Accompts, becauſe it was the fault of the Clerk of the Chancery, and not the fault of the demandant himſelf, as the Books are agreed in 26 Ed. 3. Quare Imped. 163. 25 Ed. 3. 54. 38 Ed. 3. 5. 14 H. 4. 23. 22 Hen. 6. 62. 13 Hen. 4. Executors 118. By the ſame reaſon when the Writ abateth for want of good ſummons, for that is the fault of the Sheriff, and not of the demandant himſelf, and therefore it was reſolved that in ſuch caſe the demandant ſhall have a new Writ by Journeys Accompts. See 4 Ed. 3. 130. 8 Ed. 3. 377. 42 Ed. 3. 16. 22 Ed. 3. 15. 14 Hen. 6. 4. 46 Ed. 3. 14. 21 Hen. 6. 8. 22 Hen. 6. 62. 11 Hen. 6. 42. But 41 Ed. 3. 2. 7 Hen. 4. 8. & 22 Hen. 6. 46. &c. are contrary. And ſo an old queſtion in our Books well reſolved. If a Writ abate for nontenure of the whole, the demandant ſhall not have a new Writ by Journeys Accompts, becauſe the firſt Writ was begun without cauſe, and without any probable colour of cauſe; and therewith agreeth 33 Hen. 6. But a Præcipe of a Mannor being abated by nontenure of the party, the demandant ſhall have a Writ by Journeys Accompts, becauſe the Tenant was Tenant to the reſidue for which the new Writ is brought; and it is hard to drive the Tenant to know in whom every part of the Mannor is, and therewith agreeth 4 Ed. 3. 159. So if the Præcipe abate by Joyntenancy of part of the Tenancy, becauſe that every Joynteriant is ſeiſed of the whole, and may occupy in the whole, he ſhall have a new Writ by Journeys Accompts 17 E. 3. 39. 38 E. 3. 16. 33 H. 6. 2. 41 E. 3. 4. 33 H. 6. 2. A Judicial Writ ſhall never be purchaſed by Journeys Accompts, as it is holden in 22 H. 6. 62. 27 E. 3. 84. & 45 E. 3. tit. Journey Accompts 10. and the reaſon is, becauſe that a Judicial Writ ſhall never abate for want of Form, 4 Hen. 6. 3, 4. [b] Alſo a man ſhall never have a Writ by Journeys Accompts in other Court than the firſt Writ was, as it is holden in 8 Ed. 3. 386. 8 Aſſ. p. 8. 18 Ed. 2. Eſtoppel 263. A Writ of Journeys Accompts ought to be brought of the ſame quantity that the firſt Writ containeth, as it is adjudged in 13 H. 4. 12. a. And regularly a Writ of Journeys Accompts doth not lie but between thoſe who are parties to the firſt Wrt, as where one of the Plaintiffs dieth, or one of the Defendants. Vide 8 E. 3. 428. 10 E. 3. 498. 8 H. 5. 6. 7 Hen. 6. 17. 24, 25. 15 E. 3. Journeys Accompts 14. 43 E. 3. 16. 48 E. 3. 22. 33 H. 6. 3. 21 H. 6. 46. And no Writ ſhall be brought by Journeys Accompts but where the firſt Writ is ſerved, and returned of record, 14 H. 6. 7. But in no caſe where there is a ſole Plaintiff or Demandant, and he dieth, there his Heirs or Executors ſhall never have a Writ by Journeys Accompts, although it be in a Quare Imped. where the death after the ſix months is peremptory, as it appeareth in 19 E. 2. Darreine preſentment 21. F. N. B. 32. c. 10 E. 3. 17. Dutcheſs de la Rivers caſe. 2. It was reſolved, that in the caſe at Bar a new Writ by Journeys Accompts is quodammodo a continuance of the firſt Writ; and therefore if it be againſt Executors, they ought to plead fully adminiſtred the day of the firſt Writ brought, 21 H. 6. 9. 13 H. 4. Execution 118. 9 E. 4. 6. Coſts of the firſt Writ ſhall be recovered. See the Book of Entries 328. b. And therefore it was reſolved in the principal caſe, that the Tenant cannot vouch upon cauſe after the firſt Writ, and after by aſſent of the Tenant plead in bar. See Dier 36 H. 8. 55. If the Plaintiff be Knight, the writ ſhall abate, and it ſeemeth he ſhall not have a writ by Journeys Accompts, becauſe it is his own act. Note Reader, I conceive it is requiſite to expound to you theſe words, Journeys Accompts. 1. When a writ is purchaſed by Journeys Accompts it is ſaid in the Replication (reciting the former writ, that the ſame abated, and ſhew all in certainty) ſuper quo, the demandant per dietas computat. recenter tulit quoddam breve, &c. For the alledging of Journeys Accompts is always either by way of Counter-plea to ouſte the Tenant of voucher, as in the caſe at Bar; or by way of Replication, as it is commonly to ouſt the Tenant to plead Nontenure, or Joyntenancy, or any other plea which ariſeth upon matter after the date of [10] the the firſt writ. See the Book of Entries, tit. Journeys Accompt 382. b. And Journeys Accompts, or by accompt of daies, i. e. recenter, and with diligence. Vide Bracton, lib. 4. fol. 176. where he ſaith, Eſto Paſch. 25 Eliz. between Crosby and Jentleman in the Kings Bench, divers Points were reſolved concerning Judges of Courts.

Jentleman's Caſe.

IT is to be obſerved, that the words of a Writ of Right directed to the Lord of a Mannor are, Præcipimus tibi, quod plenum rectum teneas A. de B. de uno meſſuagio, &c. And the words of a Writ of Juſticies are, Rex vic. S. Salutem. Præc. tibi quod Juſticies A. quod juſte & ſine dilatione reddat B, 20 l. &c. And ſo of other Writs which are Vicountil. So the writ of Droit cloſe is directed to the Lord of the Mannor; Præcipimus tibi quod ſecundum conſuetudinem Manerii, &c. plenum rectum teneas, &c. de uno meſſuagio. And the Writs are in the ſame words when they are directed to the Bailiffs of a Mannor. And upon the words aforeſaid it was objected, that in ſuch caſes that the Lord, or the Bailiffs, or the Sheriff, are
[b] Judges, for they have authority by the Kings Writ, and the Writs are directed to them, and not to the Suters; and therefore it was ſaid, That the difference is, when the plea is in ancient Demeſne, Court Baron, or County Court without writ, there the Suters are Judges; but when the writ is directed to the Lord, or Bayliffs, or Sheriff, by which they are commanded to do Right and Juſtice to the parties there they are Judges. Alſo it was ſaid, that by force of Juſticies a plea may be holden in the County above forty ſhillings, and therefore it is reaſon that another Judge ſhould be appointed than the Suters, who of common right are Judges of ſmall things under forty ſhillings. And to this purpoſe are ſome opinions in temp. Edw. 1. tit. Det. 177. 21 Edw. 4. 66. & 21 Hen. 6. tit. Retorne 17. 21 Hen. 6. 34. 44 Ed. 3. 10. where Finchden holdeth, where the admeaſurement of power is made before the Sheriff, the Sheriff is Judge. But upon conſideration of all the Books it was reſolved, that in none of the ſaid Caſes, the Lord of a Mannor, or the Bayliffs, or Sheriff are Judges; but be the plea holden by writ, or without writ the ſuters are Judges. And the reaſon why the writ ſhall be directed to the Lord, or Sheriff, &c. is, becauſe the Court Baron is the Lords Court, and the County Court is the Sheriffs Court; and therefore it is great reaſon the writ be directed to him to whom the Court doth belong, to the end he ſee two things performed: 1. To hold his Courts that Juſtice and Right be therein done to the parties. 2. That he be anſwered the profits of his Court which belong to him. But in caſe where they hold plea by force of the Kings writ, it doth not change the nature and juriſdiction of the Court: For as theſe without writs are not Courts of Record, ſo when the plea is holden by writ, the Courts are of the ſame nature; for upon a judgment given in both caſes, a writ of falſe judgment lieth, and not a writ of Error: But if the writ which of Record ſhould conſtitute a new Judge, viz. the Lord in the one caſe, and the Sheriff, &c. in the other, then the authority of the Judge being by the Kings Writ, which is of Record, the Court as to this purpoſe ſhall be alſo of Record, which is very falſe. For without queſtion, as it appeareth by F. N. B. and all the Books, a writ of falſe judgment lieth in ſuch Caſe, although the plea be holden by writ: Alſo the Kings writ cannot alter the juriſdiction of the Court Baron, County, Hundred, &c. which are all Courts at the Common Law, and have Judges authorized and appointed in them by the Law; and therefore all things determinable in thoſe Courts ought to be determined by the Judges of the ſame Courts; but it is true, the King may create a new Court, and appoint new Judges in it; but after the Court is eſtabliſhed and created, the Judges of the Court ought to determine the matters in the Court. And therefore neither the Lord of ancient Demeſne, nor of a Court Baron, nor the Sheriff in the County Court, when the plea is [12] holden by writ of Right, Juſticies, Admeaſurement, &c. are Judges, but the Suters, who are by the Common Law, are the Judges of the Court. And therewith agree the Books in 34 H. 6. 35. 39 H. 6. 5. 7 E. 4. 23. 6 E. 4. 3. 12 H. 7. 16, &c. And obſerve well the words of the writ in the Regiſter, 10. b. Rex ſectatoribus, Cur. J. Manerii de G. quæ eſt de antiquo Dominico Coronæ Angliæ, ut dicitur, Salutem. Cum ſecundum legem & conſuetudinem infra maneria, quæ hujuſmodi antiquo Dominico Coronæ Angliæ hactenus exiſtunt, ut dicitur, uſitatis in placitis in Curia eorundem Maneriorum pendentibus, cum ad judicium inde reddendum ſit placitatum, ſectatores hujuſmodi curiæ ad judicia in placitis inde reddend. licite proceder debeant & conſueverunt totis temporibus retroactis. And there it appeareth, that the plea did there depend by a writ of Droit cloſe, &c. Vobis mandamus, &c. ad judicium inde reddendum cum omni celeritate procedatis, &c. by which it appeareth that although the plea is holden by writ, yet the Suters are the only Judges. It appeareth alſo by the ſaid Books, That in a Hundred Court, the Suters are Judges, and ſo the Law well reſolved in a Caſe, wherein there was variance in opinions in our Books. But in ſome

Caſe,

Case, the Sheriff is made Judge by Parliament, as in Rediſſeiſin, by the Statute of Merton, cap. 3. And all his proceeding, by force of that Act, is of Record; and a writ of Error lieth of a judgment given againſt him, &c. vide 44 E. 3. 10. In a Court of Pipowers the Steward is Judge, 6 H. 4. 3. acc. 7 E 4 23. In the Leet the Steward, and in the Torne the Sheriff to judge, 10 H. 6. 7. 7 H. 6. 12. 12 H. 7. 15. In the Court of Marſhalſea, The Steward and Marſhal of the Kings Houſe are Judges, 19 E. 4. 8. F. N. B. 241. 20 E. 4. 16. 7 H. 6. 3. 4 H. 6. 8. Artic. ſuper Chartas, cap. 3.

Morrice's Caſe.

BEtween Smith and Morrice, the caſe was ſuch, Two Joyntenants are with warranty, and partition was made between them by judgment in a writ of partitione facienda, by force of the Statute of 31 H. 8. cap. 1. And it was adjudged that the warranty doth remain, becauſe by writ they are compellable by the Statute (to which every one is party) to make partition, and the party hath purſued his remedy according to the Act, and therefore none can have wrong by the operation of the ſaid Statute, to which every one is a party: But if they had made partition by Deed, by conſent, after the ſaid act, although they were compellable by writ to make partition, yet foraſmuch as they have not purſued the Statute to make partition by writ, for ſuch cauſe ſuch partition doth remain at the Common Law, and by conſequence the warranty is gone, as it is agreed in 29 E. 3. tit. Warranty. And it was reſolved, that after the ſaid Statute, although that now Joyntenants are compellable to make partition by Writ as Coparceners are, yet they may not make partition by word as Coparceners may by the Common Law; and the reaſon was, becauſe the Statute doth not extend to any partition but by Writ de partitione facienda only, but leaveth all other partitions as they were before. And it was ſaid, If there be two Joyntenants with warranty, and the one doth diſſeiſe the other, and the diſſeiſee bringeth an Aſſize, and upon his prayer hath judgment to recover in ſeveralty, in this caſe the warranty is gone: for although he hath partition by judgment, yet he who is bound by the warranty, is not party, or privy, or conſenting to it, as he is when partition is made by force of the Act of Parliament. Note, Reader, that although ſome Books are, that Judgment ſhall be given to hold in ſeveralty in the caſe of Joyntenants, as 10 Edw. 3. 40. & 10 Aſſ. p. 17. yet I conceive it ſhall be hard in Law to maintain the judgment: For 1. the Plaintiff in the Aſſiſe ought for to recover according to his plaint, and that is of nothing in ſeveral. 2. He ought in the Aſſiſe to recover by view of the Recognitors, and they have not the view of any thing in ſeveralty. 3. It ſhall be to the Plaintiffs prejudice as well for the ſurvivor, as for warranty, and the like: And therewith agreeth 28 Aſſ. p. 35, where the caſe was not upon any opinion at the Aſſiſes but upon adjornment into the Common Pleas, and there adjudged that the Plaintiff ſhould recover generally, although the Plaintiff himſelf prayeth, that the Judgment might be, that he hold in ſeveralty; for the prayer of the party ſhall not alter the Judgment of the Law in ſuch caſe. [b] [13]

Caſes of Pardon.

Hill. 29 Eliz.

THe General Pardon of 28 Eliz. doth pardon all Felonies, &c. In which Burglary was excepted. And this Term it was asked all the Judges of England, If the attainder of one for Burglary be excepted? And it was objected, that by the Attainder and Judgment the offence of Burglary, which was but matter in fact, is now altered by the Judgment, and become of Record, and thereby the offence utterly extinct; and then it is not (by name of Burglary) excepted, and by conſequence he who is ſo attainted of Burglary ſhall be pardoned. But it was reſolved, That the attainder was excepted; for if the Burglary be excepted, although it doth not appear to the Eye of the Law, but it ſtandeth in doubt, and is left to trial, if it be Burglary or not, a fortiori, when the Burglary appeareth on Record by Judgment of Law, it ſhall be excepted. And it was ſaid, That the Burglary was not extinct, but had received ſuch Judgment (by which it is manifeſt) as the Law requireth, which Judgment ſo long as it remained in force, the offender cannot be called in queſtion for the Burglary, becauſe the Law hath had its end; but that proveth not but that the offence of Burglary remaineth, as in 20 Aſſ. p. 7. A. was bound in a Statute of twenty pound to B, B. ſued Execution, and the Land of A. was delivered to B. in Execution until he had levied the twenty pound, and afterwards B. made a defeaſance to A. by Indenture, that if A. paid to him eight pound at a certain day, that then the Recognizance, viz. the Statute of twenty pound ſhould be void: And it was adjudged that although the Statute was executed, yet the defeaſance of the Statute is ſufficient in Law to defeat as well the Statute as the Execution upon it; for the Statute is the Foundation, and therefore if that be deſtroyed, all which is built upon it ſhall be deſtroyed alſo. [b] alſo. So in the principal caſe, although the Jury have found the Priſoner guilty of Burglary, and thereupon he hath Judgment: Yet the offence of Burglary is the Foundation, and therefore if the ſame be excepted, all which is builded upon it is excepted. Alſo ſee in my laſt Reports, where by the exception of the offence in the General Pardon, all dependants upon it are alſo excepted. And yet if a man be attainted of felony by Judgment, Outlawry, or Abjuration, and afterwards the King pardoneth generally the felony, it is nought worth, but the reaſon thereof is not becauſe that by the Attainder the felony is extinct, but that the King is not truly informed (as he ought to be) of the true eſtate of the cauſe, for peradventure if it had been informed of the truth of all the proceedings, he would not have pardoned it, vide 9 E. 4. 28. and 19 E. 3. Corone 124. 11 H. 4. 16. 48. Stamford 102. b. But if a man be attainted of felony, and the King pardoneth the Attainder, and execution of it alſo, this pardon ſhall be diſallowed, becauſe the King cannot pardon the felony by expreſs words, as it is adjuded in 8 H. 4. 22. b. which proveth that the felony doth remain. But 33 H. 8. 50. If murder or petit Treaſon be made High Treaſon, thereby the Murder or petit Treaſon is extinct, for High Treaſon doth drown every leſs offence, vide M. 6. and 7 Eliz. Dier 235. If a man killeth his Maſter, and petit Treaſon is pardoned by the general pardon, and Murder is excepted, he ſhall be diſcharged, for petit Treaſon is Murder, and more, vide 20 Eliz. Dier. One Burton Parſon of Isbock in Leiceſterſhire was deprived, anno 12 Eliz. for Adultery committed anno 11 Eliz. And afterwards by the general pardon 2. April 13 Eliz. the offences of Adultery amongſt others were pardoned before the 14*th* day of Feb. then laſt paſt, and it was ſaid that before the pardon, Crimen adulterii prædicti tranſivit in rem judicatam, and therefore the ſentence remained in [14] force; And it was ſtrongly urged that the ſentence ſhould not by the relation of the ſaid pardon be made void, but at the moſt voidable, and therefore until it be reverſed by another ſentence the deprivation ſtood in force, and he who was after his deprivation admitted, inſtituted, and inducted, remaineth Parſon till the firſt ſentence by another be annulled; But it was anſwered and reſolved, that the ſaid Burton who was deprived, by force of the ſaid pardon, is now become Parſon again without any ſentence declaring the ſaid deprivation to be void; For by the Pardon, the Adultery, which was the cauſe and foundation of the ſentence, is diſcharged, and by conſequence all that dependeth upon it is alſo diſcharged. And no Laches was in the Parſon, or fault in pleading; for at the time of the ſentence he had not any matter of diſcharge, but it came ex poſt facto, by relation of the general pardon, and by Judgment in Law, the party deprived ſhall not be driven to a ſuit in the Eccleſiaſtical Court to have it redreſſed there: And ſo it ſeemeth if one be attainted of felony, and afterwards by relation of a general pardon the felony is pardoned, that he ſhall be diſcharged, for he hath not any remedy by Error, or otherwiſe to reverſe the Attainder.

Arundel's Caſe.

John Arundel Eſquire was indicted of the murder of one William Parker, and the Murder was alledged to be done at the City of Weſtminſter, &c. in a certain ſtreet there, called Kings ſtreet, in the Pariſh of St. Margaret, in the ſaid County of Middleſex: And to this Indictment Arundel pleaded Not Guilty, for the trial of this iſſue a Jury was returned de Viceneto civitatis Weſtm. And the Jury found the Defendant guilty. And it was ſhewed in arreſt of Judgment, that the viſne ought to have been out of the Pariſh, and not of the City. And upon that doubt the Juſtices did meet at Serjeants Inn, and after many [b] Arguments, 1. They reſolved, That every trial ſhall be out of ſuch place, which by preſcription of Law can have beſt knowledge and notice of the fact, as in 23 E. 4. viſne 27. If Treſpaſs be brought in a Town, and no ſuch Town be pleaded, the viſne ſhall come out of the body of the County, but if Treſpaſs be brought in two Towns, and no ſuch Town be pleaded as to one, the viſne ſhall be out of the other Town; for that is the moſt certain. And if Treſpaſs or other Action be brought in a Manor, &c. the viſne ſhall come out of the Mannor: But if the Mannor be alledged to be in a Town, there becauſe the Town is more certain than the Mannor (for that may extend into many Towns) the viſne ſhall come out of the Town, as it is holden in 6 Hen. 7. 3. b. 11 Hen. 7. 22. b. 9 Ed. 4. 3. a. 3 Ed. 4. 26. 39 Hen. 6. tr. 63, &c. So in the principal caſe becauſe the Pariſh ſhall be intended more certain than the City, for this cauſe the viſne ſhall be rather of the Pariſh than of the City. And although that a Pariſh is a place uncertain, and may comprehend divers Towns, as it is holden in 4 Ed. 4. 41. 5 Ed. 4. 20. 125. 22 Ed. 4. 2. 35 Hen. 6. 30. 22 Hen. 6. Yet when a Pariſh is alledged to be in a City, there the viſne ſhall come from the Pariſh, 1 Ed. 3. 8. 7 Hen. 6. 38. and it ſhall be intended that the Pariſh is leſſer than the City. And afterwards it was awarded that the Trial was inſufficient, and a new Venire facias awarded to try the Iſſue again, becauſe his life was never in jeopardy.

Treport's Case.

IN an Ejectione firmæ the Plaintiff declared upon a Leaſe made by A. and B. and upon Not Guilty pleaded, the Jurors gave a ſpecial verdict, viz. That A. was Tenant for life, the Remainder to B. in fee, and they both by Indenture did joyn in a Leaſe to the Plaintiff, and that A. the Tenant for life was alive; and if it ſhall be adjudged the Leaſe of both or not, the Jury doubted; and it was reſolved, That preſently by the delivery of the Deed it is the Leaſe of A. during his life, and the confirmation of B. and after the death of A. it is the Leaſe of B. and the confirmation of A. according to the opinion of Dyer and Brown, Mich. 6 & 7 Eliz. 234, 235. And becauſe the Plaintiff hath declared upon a joynt demiſe of A. and B. it was adjudged againſt the Plaintiff. Alſo it was holden by the Court, That if Leſſee for life, and he in the Remainder or Reverſion in fee make a Feoffment by Deed, each giveth his eſtate, viz. Leſſee for life his eſtate by Livery, and the Fee-ſimple doth move and paſs from him in the Remainder or Reverſion. But it it were by word, then it ſhall be the Feoffment of him in the Remainder or Reverſion, and the ſurrender of Leſſee for life, for otherwiſe nothing ſhall paſs by word. And it was holden by them, That in the Caſe at Bar, although that the Leaſe was by Deed indented, it ſhall be no concluſion; for when the Deed doth enure by paſſing of an Intereſt (as in the caſe it doth) it ſhall not be taken by any concluſion, no more than the Leaſe for years of Leſſee for life by Deed indented ſhall be an Eſtoppel after his death, becauſe the commencement of it took effect by way of paſſing of an Intereſt. And Popham Chief Juſtice ſaid, That if Tenant for life, and he in the Reverſion make a gift in tail rendring Rent, the Leſſee ſhall have the Rent during his life; for the making of a greater eſtate is not any forfeiture, becauſe he joyneth with him in the Reverſion. And if Tenant for life, and he in the Reverſion had made a Feoffment by Deed at the Common Law, the Feoffee ſhould hold of the Leſſee during life. Nota bene. [15]

Eden's Caſe.

NOte, Mich. 31 & 32 Eliz. Rot. 365. In the Kings Bench in Treſpaſs for breaking of his Cloſe at Martham in the County of Norfolk, by Thomas Eden, and William Franklyn againſt Edward Brown, the Defendant pleaded that the Queen was ſeiſed in Fee in the Right of the Crown, and by her Letters Patents under the Great Seal, bearing date at Weldhall in the County of Eſſex, &c. conceſſit tenement. prædict. in quibus, &c. cuidam A. B. &c. The Plaintiff took Iſſue, quod non conceſſit tenementa prædict. per prædictas literas patentes. And this Iſſue was tried in the County of Norfolk where this Land lay, and not where the Letters Patents bore date, and the Jury found for the Plaintiff. And it was moved in arreſt of Judgment, That it ought to have been tried where the Letters Patents bore date; and non allocatur per curiam; for the Letters Patents being matter of Record, and ſhewed to the Court under the Great Seal, cannot be denied, nor the party cannot plead Nul tiel record, againſt them being ſhewed under the Great Seal, and therefore the effect of the Iſſue of Non conceſſit is, That the Queen had nothing in the Land, or that the Tenements did not paſs by her Letters Patents, in which caſes it ſhall be tried where the Land lieth; and ſo it was adjudged. Vide 8 *Eliz. Caſes of Deviſes.

Hill. 39 Eliz. in the Common Pleas.

Colyer's Caſe.

BEtween Colyer and Walker, the Caſe was ſuch; A man hath Iſſue a Daughter, and by his Will in writing deviſeth part of his Land to his Daughter, and the other part to his Wife for life, with the profits whereof ſhe ſhould bring up his Daughter, and that after his death it ſhould remain to his Brother, paying to one twenty ſhillings, and to others ſmall ſums, amounting to forty ſhillings in all, [16] and that the Land was of the value of three pound per annum. And it was adjudged, that the Brother had the Fee-ſimple. And this difference was taken and reſolved in this caſe, That if the Deviſe had been to the Brother of the Land, to the intent that with the profits he ſhould educate his Daughter, or of the profits of the Land pay to one ſo much, and to another ſo much, it is but an eſtate for life; for he is ſure to have no loſs. So if Land be of the value of three pound per annum, and he deviſe that he ſhall pay for it twenty ſhillings, or thirty ſhillings, or forty ſhillings, or fifty ſhillings per annum to another, it is but an Eſtate for life; for he may pay it out of the profits, and is ſure to have no loſs. But in this Caſe at Bar, after the payment he may die before ſatisfaction; and therefore it is a Fee-ſimple; and the Law doth intend that the Deviſe was for his benefit, and not for his prejudice. And by this difference you will better underſtand the Books of 4 Ed. 6. Eſtates 78. 29 Hen. 8. Teſtament 18.

Hill. 41 Eliz. in the Kings Bench.

Wylde's Caſe.

HIll. 37 Eliz. in Ejectione firmæ between Richardſon and Yardley in the Kings Bench, upon Not Guilty pleaded, the Jury gave a ſpecial Verdict to this effect. Land was deviſed to A. for life, the Remainder to B. and the heirs of his body, the Remainder to Rowland Wylde and his Wife, and after their deceaſe to their Children, Rowland and his Wife then having a Son and a Daughter; and afterwards the Deviſor died, and after his deceaſe A. died, B. died without Iſſue, Rowland and his Wife died, and the Son had Iſſue a Daughter, and died; if this Daughter ſhould have the Land or not, was the Queſtion; and the ſame conſiſteth upon the conſideration what eſtate Rowland and his Wife had, viz. If they had an Eſtate tail, or an Eſtate for life with Remainder to their children for life; and the caſe for difficulty was argued before all the Judges of England; and it was reſolved by all the Judges of England, That Rowland and his Wife had but an Eſtate for life with Remainder to their children for life, and no Eſtate Tail. And in the conſtruction of this Will the Judges did firſt conſider the Judgment of the Common Law, If the Conveyance had been made by the Deviſor in his life. And, 2. The reaſon and cauſe that the Judgment ſhall not be according to the Rule of Law: And it was reſolved, that without queſtion that at the Common Law they had but an Eſtate for life, the Remainder to their children for life. Then what ſhall be the reaſon and cauſe to give them Eſtate Tail by conſtruction in this caſe? It will be anſwered, the intent of the Teſtator. But it was reſolved, that ſuch intent ought to be manifeſt and certain, and not, obſcure or doubtful: For at the Common Law Lands were not deviſable (but only by cuſtom, and that in ancient Cities and Boroughs, houſes and ſmall things) but by the Statute of 32 & 34 H. 8. all Lands according to the purview of that Act are deviſable; which Statutes were made to the great diſadvantage of Heirs at the Common Law by Wills for the moſt part made in extremity of ſickneſs, and that utterly againſt the rule and reaſon of the Common Law; for the ancient Common Law did favour him who by the Common Law was heir, becauſe he was to ſit in the ſeat of his Anceſtor, and to ſerve the King and Commonwealth in as good eſtate as his Anceſtor did. And therefore it appeareth by Glanvile, who was Chief Juſtice in the time of Hen. 2. lib. 7. cap. 1. fol. 44. Every Freeman without the aſſent of his Heir might diſpoſe of a reaſonable part of his Lands with his Daughter in Frankmarriage, for the [15] advancement of his blood, or to any ſervant in recompence of his ſervice, or in Frankalmoigne to ſome Religious houſe to have divine prayers made for him. But all that was done in time of health, and not in extremity of ſickneſs, to the end that ſuch gifts be not more of rage and fury than of good diſcretion, and ſo his gift might exceed meaſure. But if any ſuch gift which was made in time of ſickneſs ſhall be good and firm in Law, the conſent and confirmation of his next Heir was requiſite to it. If a man who had Lands by deſcent, and who had Iſſue many Sons, he could not have given any of this Land to any of his younger Sons without the conſent of the eldeſt, to the end the Father, who for the moſt part bore moſt affection to the youngeſt Son ſhould not diſinherit the eldeſt. But of Land which he had gotten by his own purchaſe, he might have given a part of it to his younger ſons: and if he had not any Iſſue, he might have given all of it to whom he pleaſed. And all this appeareth in Glanvile, by which it appeareth, that the ancient Common Law did reſpect the heir at Common Law. Then in the caſe at Bar, foraſmuch as by the judgment of the Common Law upon the like words in a Conveyance, it ſhould be but an eſtate for life, the Remainder to their children for life, thereof it followeth, the intent and not only the words only of the Deviſor ought to make it an Eſtate tail in this caſe. Then this intent ought to be manifeſt and certain, and ſo expreſſed in the Will: And in this caſe no ſuch intent appeareth; for peradventure his meaning was to agree with the Common Law: And therefore this difference was reſolved for good Law, That if A. deviſeth lands to B. and to his Children or Iſſues, and he hath not any Iſſue at the time of the deviſe, that the ſame is an eſtate tail; for the intent of the deviſor is manifeſt and certain that his Children or Iſſues ſhould take, and as immediate deviſees they cannot take, becauſe they are not in rerum natura, and by way of Remainder they cannot take, for it was not his intent, for the gift is immediate, and becauſe then ſuch words ſhall be taken as words of limitation, ſcil.
[b] as much as children or iſſues of his body; for every child or iſſue ought to be of the body, and therewith agreeth a Caſe, Trinit. 4 Eliz. reported by Serjeant Bendloes, where the caſe was, that a deviſe was to the Husband and Wife, and to the Men. Children of their bodies begotten, and it did not appear in the caſe that they had any iſſue male at the time of the deviſe: And therefore it was adjudged that they had any eſtate tail, to them and the heirs males of their bodies; But if a man deviſeth lands to A. and and to his children or issues, and they then have issue of their bodies, there his express intent may take effect, according to the rate of the Common, and no manifest and certain intent appeareth in the Will to the contrary. And therefore in such Case, they shall not have but a joynt estate for their lives. But it was resolved, that if a man, as in the case at Bar, deviseth Land to the Husband and Wife, and after their decease to their Children, or the remainder to their Children, in this case although he hath not any child at the time, yet every child which they have after may take by way of remainder, according to the rule of the Common Law; for his intent doth appear that their Children should not take immediately, but after the devise of Rowland and his wife.

Sir Edward Clere's Case.

IN an Assize by Parker against Sir Edward Clere Knight, of lands in the County of Norfolk, the Case was such, Clement Harwood seised of three acres of land, and every one of equal value, holden in Capite, made a Feoffment in Fee of two of them to the use of his wife for life, for her Joynture, and afterwards made a Feoffment by Deed of the third acre, to the use of such person and persons, and of such estate and estates as he should limit and appoint by his last Will in writing; and afterwards by his last Will in writing, he devised the said third acre to one in Fee (under whom the Plaintiff claimed. And if this devise were good for all the said third acre, or not, or for two parts of it, or void for all, was the question. [18] And in this case four points were resolved by Popham Chief Justice, and Baron Clark Justice of Assize of the said County, upon conference had with the other Justices. 1. If a man be seised of lands in fee, maketh a feoffment to the use of such person and persons, and of such estate and estates as he shall appoint by his Will, that by operation of Law the use doth vest in the Feoffor, and he is seised of a qualified Fee, that is to say, till declaration and limitation be made according to his power, vide Litt. 109. When a man maketh a Feoffment to the use of his last Will, he hath the use in the mean time. 2. If in such case the Feoffor by his Will limit estates according to his power reserved to him upon the Feoffment, there the estates take effect by force of the Feoffment, and the use is directed by the Will; so that in such case the Will is but declaratory: But if in such case the Feoffor by his Will in writing deviseth the land it self, as owner of the land, without any reference to his authority, there it shall pass by the Will, for the Testator had an estate devisable in him, and power also to limit an use, and he had election to pursue which of them he would, and when he devised the land without any reference to his authority or power, he declared his intent, to devise an estate as owner of the land by his Will, and not to limit an use according to his authority; and in such case, the land being holden in Capite, the devise is good for two parts, and void for the third part. For as the Owner of the land he cannot dispose of more: And in such case the devise cannot take effect by the Will for two parts, and by the Feoffment for the third part; For he made his devise as Owner, and not according to his authority, and his devise shall be of as much validity as the Will of every other Owner having any land in Capite. 3. If a man maketh a Feoffment in Fee of lands holden in Capite, to the use of his last Will, although he deviseth the land with reference to the Feoffment, yet the Will is void for a third part: For a Feoffment to the use of his Will, and to the use of him and his heirs is all one. 4. In the case at Bar, when Clement Harwood had conveyed two parts to the use of his wife by act executed, he could not as owner of the land demise any part of the residue by his Will, so that he had not power to demise any part thereof as owner of the land, and therefore he had not election as in the case put before, either to limit it according to his power, or to devise it as owner of the land, for in the case at Bar as owner of the land (having conveyed two parts to the use of his wife as above) he [b] could not make any devise, and for this cause, the devise ought of necessity to enure to a limitation of an use, or otherwise the devise shall be utterly void: And judgment was given accordingly for the Plaintiff for the whole land so devised. And after the Judgment Sir Edward Clere brought a writ of Error in the Kings Bench, but did not prevail, but the Judgment was affirmed.

Packman's Case.

WIlson brought an Action upon the Case upon Trover against Packman, and the case was such, A man died intestate, and the Ordinary committed Administration to a stranger, and afterwards the next of Kin of the Intestate sued a Citation in the Spiritual Court, to have it repealed; depending which suit, the Administrator to defeat the Plaintiff in the Spiritual Court of the effect of his suit, sold the goods of the Intestate to the Defendant: And afterwards the Letters of Administration are revoked by sentence, and the first sentence annulled and made void, and afterwards administration was committed to the Plaintiff. And it was resolved that the action did not lie: And thereupon the Plaintiff did discontinue his action: And in this case difference was taken between this suit by Citation, which is to countermand [19] or revoke the former letters of Administration, and Appeal, which always is to reverse a former sentence, for the Appeal doth suspend the former sentence; otherwise is it of a Citation: And in this case forasmuch as the firſt Adminiſtrator hath the abſolute property of the goods in him without queſtion, he may give them to whom will. And although the Letters of Adminiſtration be afterwards countermanded, and revoked, yet the ſame cannot make void the gift. But if the gift be by Covin, it ſhall be awarded by the Statute of 13 Eliz. againſt a Creditor, but it remains good againſt the ſecond Adminiſtrator; And if an Adminiſtrator doth waſt the goods, and afterwards Adminiſtration is committed to another, yet any Debtor ſhall charge him in debt; and if he plead the laſt Adminiſtration committed to another, the other may reply that before the ſecond Adminiſtration committed, he hath waſted the goods, vide 17 Eliz. Dier 339. the like caſe, and 34 H. 6. 14. Adminiſtration may be granted upon condition; And it was holden in caſe, if ſuch Adminiſtrator before the Condition broken, giveth away the Inteſtates goods, and afterwards the condition is broken, yet the gift ſtandeth good. And obſerve Reader, a manifeſt difference between this caſe, and the caſe of 17 Eliz. For in our caſe the Adminiſtration granted was lawful, and the gift alſo lawful, and the donee claimeth in under the firſt Adminiſtration, which the ſecond Adminiſtrator doth intend to countermand and revoke; But in the caſe of 17 Eliz. the ſecond Adminiſtrator who obtained the ſecond Adminiſtration by Covin, had with the Defendant in the Action, without any recital of the firſt Adminiſtration, did releaſe to the Defendant by Covin to bar the Plaintiff of his Execution: It is there adjudged, that the ſaid ſecond Letters of Adminiſtration being revoked by ſentence, and declared to be void, the Defendant who was party to the Covin being in Execution ſhould not have an Audita Querela. But the ſame is not to be likened to our caſe, for there the Defendant claimed by the ſecond Adminiſtration, which is declared to be void, and the firſt always in force, ſo that the ſecond Adminiſtration was never lawful; But in our caſe the firſt Adminiſtration was lawful, until it was countermanded, and ſo a difference, quod nota.

Gregorie's Caſe.

[b] GRegorie brought a Writ of Error againſt Blaſhfield, and the Caſe was, that B. brought a Replevin in the Court of Ludlow (which is a Court of Record) againſt C. tam pro Domina Regina, quam pro ſe ipſo, upon the Statute of 4 & 5 Ph. & Ma. (which ſee in Raſtal, Drapery 135.) which forbiddeth that none ſhall weave any woollen Cloth, or Kerſies, if he hath not been Apprentice, or exerciſed the Trade, &c. by ſeven years, upon pain of forfeiture of ſuch Cloth, or the value of it, the penalty to be recovered by Action, Bill, Plaint, or Information in any Court of Record, in which no eſſoign, protection, &c. And three Errors were aſſigned. 1. That the ſaid branch of the Act was abrogated and taken away by the Statute of 5 Eliz. cap. 4. Sed non allocatur. For looking into the Statute, they both ſtand together. And it was ſaid that a latter Statute in the affirmative ſhall not take away a former Act; and the rather if the former be particular, and the latter general. The ſecond Error aſſigned was, that the Plaintiff by the Statute of 18 Eliz. cap. 5. ought to have ſued by original, or by information, and ſo was it adjudged, Hill. 30 Eliz. in this Court between Woodeſden and Clark, where the Defendant was ſued by Bill upon the Statute of 23 H. 6. of Sheriffs, and adjudged the action did not lie. The Error was, that although that Ludlow be a Court of Record, yet it is not ſuch a Court as is intended by the Statute, for two cauſes: 1. The Courts intended by the Statute, propter excellentiam, are the four Courts of Record at Weſtminſter, which are general Courts of Record, and therefore it ſhall be in general ſpeech ſo intended; as Eſcuage, which is either incertain or certain, incertain, as ſervitium militare; and certain is ſervitium ſocæ, quia quemadmodum certitudo ſcutagii ſocagium, ita incertitudo facit ſervitium militare: And Littleton ſaith, That if a man ſpeaketh general of Eſcuage, it ſhall be intended (ſecundum Excellentiam) in Common ſpeech, of the moſt excellent ſervice, and that is Knights ſervice for the defence of the Realm, and [20] not of Socage. And 10 E. 4. 10. b. If it be generally ſpoken of proof, although there are many proofs in Law, yet it ſhall be of the beſt proof, and that is by Jury. And 20 H. 6. 17. If it be generally ſpoken of the Feaſt of St. Michael, where there are two Feaſts, it ſhall be intended of the moſt worthy and notorious Feaſt. And 37 H. 6. 29. 21 H. 6. 8. and 13 H. 4. 4. If ſpeech be of J. S. generally, it ſhall be intended the father, or of the eldeſt ſon, for they are the moſt worthy. And with the Caſe at Bar in effect agreeth Mich. 6 & 7 Eliz. Dier 236. where any Court of the Queen of Record, ſhall be intended one of the four eminent and moſt excellent Courts at Weſtminſter. 2. If the Act ſhall be intended according to the Letter, ſcil. (in any Court of Record) the Court of Oyer and Terminer, Gaol-Delivery, Sewers, Sheriffs Turn, Leet, Pipowders, and other Courts ſhall be within the Act; for theſe and many others are Courts of Record. Then the ſame being left to the conſtruction of the Law, the Rule is, quod verba æquivoca & in dubio poſita, intelliguntur in digniori & potentiori ſenſu. 3. The ancient uſage in all ſuch popular Actions or Informations hath been, that although that the Informer tam pro Domina Regina quam pro ſeipſo exhibit the Information, yet if the Defendant pleadeth a ſpecial plea, the Queens Attorney ſhall only reply. And it was meant by the makers of the Act, that the Suit ſhall be in ſuch Court where the Queens Attorney may attend, for the benefit the Queen ſhall have by ſuch ſuit, and that is in the four Courts of Record at Weſtminſter. And for theſe two laſt Errors the Judgment was reverſed.

Michelborn's Case.

IN a Writ of Error between Baptist and Michelborn, the Case was, That an Action of Trespass upon the case of Trover and Conversion, within the Verge, was brought in the Court of Marshalsea, where none of the parties was of the Houshold, and upon Judgment given, a Writ of Error was brought in the Kings Bench. It appeareth by Britton (who wrote in 5 E. 1.) fol. 1. and by Fleta, lib. 2. cap. 3, 4 5, &c. that the Jurisdiction of the Marshalsea at the Common Law was doubtful; and therefore the Statute of 28 Edw. 1. Articuli super Chartas, cap. 3. set it certain; for the Preamble is of what Pleas they ought to hold; And therefore it is Enacted, That they shall not hold plea of any Freehold, viz. where the Free hold cometh in debate, nor of Debt, nor of Covenant, nor of Contract made between the Kings people, but only (which are words exclusory, and exclude all other Pleas but only these which follow) viz. of Trespass as done within the Kings house (viz. where both of the parties are of the Houshold) or of other Trespass done within the Verge (viz. when one of the parties is of the Houshold) and so it hath been always expounded. And therefore in the Kings Bench, Mich. 32 Hen. 6. Rot. 47. In Error between Reade and Purchase in Trespass in the Marshalsea, no other Error was assigned, but only that none of the parties were of the Kings House, and the Judgment for this Error was reversed, and therewith agreeth 10 Hen. 6. 13. 3 Hen. 6. 30. 19 Edw. 4. 8. b. 20 Edw. 4. 6. 22 Edw. 4. 31. vide 4 H. 6. 8. Fitz. Nat. Brev. 241. Vide The diversite of Courts in his Chapter of Marshalsea. And the words of the said Act are further; And of Contracts, and of Covenants that one of the Kings House maketh with another of the same House, and in the same House, and no other where. So that for the nature of the Actions, they only hold plea in three, viz. Trespass, Contract, and Covenant, and of no action which concerneth the Realty. And for persons in Trespass within the Verge, It is sufficient if one be of the Kings House, but in Contract and Covenants, both the Plaintiff and Defendant ought to be of the Houshold. And vide a Bill [21] which passed both Houses of Parliament, viz. the Lords and of the Commons, anno 1 Rich. 2. By which it is declared, That of ancient times their Jurisdiction was no other, nor had been but of Felony, Trespass within the Verge, and after their Retorn, and of Covenant and Debt, due and made between the Kings Servants and those who followed the Court; and that Lords and others who have Franchises may have their Franchises as well within the Verge as out of it, &c. To which the King answered, Let the Marshal have such Jurisdiction as before this time hath been reasonably used; and if any will plead in special, let him complain to the Steward of the Kings House, and right shall be done. So that although it be not an Act of Parliament, it is it a good Declaration of the Law by both Houses of Parliament. Vide a private Act for the City of London 30 Edw. 1. remaining in the Treasury, by which it is Enacted, That where before the Steward and Marshal (the Court being often near the City of London, some Enquests are taken of Trespass and other things done within the said City, betwixt some of the City only, and between them and Forreigners joyntly, or betwixt Forreigners, and of which Trespass and other things to the Steward and Marshal by reason of the Verge the conusance doth belong, That all such Enquests shall be taken within the City of London, and not elsewhere, &c. By which it appeareth, that this Act (made within two years of the Act of Articuli super chartas) doth not take away the said Act, nor giveth them more authority than they had before: But the purview of the Act only is; That of such things done in London, whereof the conusans doth appertain to them, shall be tried within the City, and not elsewhere. Observe the said Declaration 1 Rich. 2. doth agree in effect with the act of Articuli super chartas; and afterwards in the principal Case the Judgement was reversed.

Butler and Goodale's Case.

BEtween Goodale Informer, tam pro se, &c. upon the Statute of 21 Hen. 8. of Non-residency, and [b] Butler, Parson of Downham in Norfolk; upon a special Verdict it was resolved by the Court, that the Parson ought to abide upon his Rectory, viz. the Parsonage-house, and not in any other house, although it be within the same Parish; for the Statute is intended, not only for serving the Cure, and for Hospitality, but also for the maintaining of the houses, not only for himself, but also for his successors, that they also may keep Hospitality there. And there it was agreed, that lawful Imprisonment without covin, is a good excuse of Non-residency, so if there be not any Parsonage-house there; for, Impotentia excusat Legem; and these cases are excepted out of the Act by construction of Law. And note, that it was holden in the Exchequer, Trin. 39 Eliz. That sickness without fraud, was also a good excuse, viz. If the Patient remove by advice of his Physitian, bona fide, and for better air, and for recovery of his health.

Ambrosia Gorge's Case.

[22] THe case of Ambrosia, Daughter and Heir of Dowglas, Wife of Sir Arthur Gorge Daughter and Heir of Viscount Bindon, was such; Viscount Bindon was seised of divers Mannors in Tail, sundry of them holden by Knights service in Capite, and had Issue the said Dowglas, who married Sir Arthur Gorge, and by him had Issue the said Ambrosia; Dowglas died in the life of her Father, and afterwards the Viscount died, all which was found by Office, and that Ambrosia was heir apparent to her Father, and of the age of seven years; and afterwards Ambrosia of tender years, and, infra annos nubiles, was married by her Father to Francis Gorge, son of Sir Thomas Gorge; and afterwards Sir Arthur took another Wife, and had Issue a son; and afterwards the Husband of Ambrosia died, the said Ambrosia being infra annos nubiles, viz. of the age of ten years; and in this Case two Questions were moved: 1. If a Daughter be such an Heir apparent to her Father, that during his life she shall not be in Ward to the King? And it was objected, That the Daughter is not such an Heir apparent that the Father shall have the Wardship of her; but ought to be such Heir apparent, that during the life of the Father, shall continue Heir apparent; but a Daughter is not such Heir; for a Son may be born, or another Daughter may be born. And it was said, That of Land in Borough-English, or Gavelkind, the Son cannot endow his Wife ex assensu patris, because by possibility he shall not continue Heir. So it was said, That the Father shall not have the Wardship of the Son and Heir apparent of Land in Borough-English holden by Knights service, because that by possibility he may not continue Heir apparent. But at length, after great deliberation, it was resolved [b] by the two Chief Justices, Popham, and Anderson, and Periam, Chief Baron, That the Father shall have the Wardship of his Daughter and Heir apparent so long as she continueth his Heir apparent; and therewith agreeth the Books in 31 Edw. 3. Gard. 144. 8 Ed. 2. tres. 235. Fitz. Nat. Br. 143. 2. It was resolved, that when the Father hath Issue a Son, that then the Daughter shall be in Ward to the King; for then the Son was Heir apparent and not the Daughter. 3. It was resolved, That the Queen should, notwithstanding the said Marriage, have the Marriage of the said Ambrosia; for it was no compleat Marriage, because to every Marriage there ought to be consent: for, consensus, non concubitus facit matrimonium, & consentire non possunt infra annos nubiles. And upon conference had with the Civilians, it was agreed, That after such Marriage if the Husband dieth, and the Wife marry again, it shall not be said Bigamy. And the Book in the 30 Edw. 1. Gard. 156. That if the Ancestor marrieth his Heir infra annos nubiles, and dieth, the Lord shall recover the body of the Infant, because the Heir may disagree. Temp. Ed. 1. ibid. 128. and 12 Edw. 1. ibid. 138. (which is mis-printed, viz. seven years for fourteen years) acc. And no difference as to this purpose between disagreement to the Marriage at the age of consent, and death before the said age; for when the Heir is married by the Father infra annos nubiles, and disagreement is, there clearly the Lord shall have the Ward. Pari ratione it was holden by all, when such imperfect marriage is dissolved by death, infra annos nubiles, the Lord shall have the Wardship, 7 Hen. 6. 11. b. by Babthrope accorded in the case of death. And it was agreed in this case, That the Grandfather shall not have the Wardship of the Son within age, the Father living; and that the Statute of Prærogativa Regis, cap. 6. is but an affirmance of the Common Law; for the Law is such in the case of a common person, as it appeareth by the Books aforesaid.

Trin. 41 Eliz. in the Kings Bench.

Pawlet Marquess of Winchesters Case.

[23] THe late Marq. of Winchester, as it was supposed, made his last Will and Testament in writing, and thereby did devise divers Mannors, Lands, Tenements of great value to his reputed Sons, and made them Executors. And further devised, that divers Mannors, Lands, and Tenements of great value should be sold by them; and bequeathed also divers Legacies of Plate, Monies, &c. And this Will was endeavoured to be proved in the Prerogative Court by the reputed Sons. And because it doth appear by divers witnesses, and by many notorious circumstances, that the said Marquess being sick, & multa provectus senectute, was not of sane and perfect memory, such as the Law requireth at the time of the making of the said supposed Will (for by the Law it is not sufficient that the Testator be of memory, but he ought to have a disposing memory, so that he is able to make a disposition of his Lands with understanding and reason; and that is such a memory which the Law calleth sane and perfect memory) upon this matter a suggestion was framed in the name of the now Marquess, as Son and Heir, to have a Prohibition out of the Kings Bench, supposing that he was not of sane memory at the time of the making of his Will, which matters the said Judges had pleaded in the Spiritual Court, in stay of the Probate of the said Will. And it was moved by the Attorney-General, of Council with the Marquess, to have a Prohibition generally to stay all the proceedings in the Ecclesiastical Court, as well for the Legacies and Bequests in the personalty, as for the Lands, and the reason and ground of his motion was, That forasmuch as the Will concerning the Land, and the Testament concerning the Goods are mixed together in one Will, if

if the Eccleſiaſtical Court ſhall proceed concerning the Teſtament of the Goods, it ſhould prevent and prejudice the Trial in this Court: For if he were of ſame memory at the time of making of the Teſtament of the Goods, he cannot be of the ſame memory at the time of the making of the Will of the Land, both being made at one inſtant; and the Common Law ought to determine what ſhall be ſaid perfect memory at the time of the making of the Will concerning the Land; and therefore the Prohibition ſhall be general, quod fuit conceſſum per totam curiam. And the Attorney-General cited a Caſe between Lloyd and Lloyd, Mich. 38 & 39 Eliz. in this Court, where it was ruled accordingly in terminis terminantibus, and that no Conſultation ſhould be granted for any party, till the matter be tried in this Court, quod nota. And thereupon the Prohibition was general by the Rule of the Court. And afterwards the parties agreed.

Reade's Caſe.

IN Treſpaſs Quare clauſum fregit by William Read Eſq; againſt William Armiger Gent. The Defendant did juſtifie, That A. Wheatley Eſquire was ſeiſed in Fee, and leaſed to him for years, and juſtified; the Plaintiff replied, That the Lady Greſham was ſeiſed in fee, and died ſeiſed, and the land diſcended to the Plaintiff, and maintained his Count, without that that Wheatly leaſed to the Defendant, upon which it was demurred. And it was objected that the ſeiſin in fee was traverſable and not the leaſe, if he alledgeth a Freehold in a Stranger: And if in Treſpaſs, the Defendant ſaith, that the place is the Freehold of A. and that he by his Commandment, &c. the Commandment is not traverſable: If the Plaintiff claimeth by a ſtranger, for the Freehold being alledged in a Stranger, the ſame ought to be anſwered. But it was adjudged that the Traverſe was good: And there is a great difference between the ſaid Caſes, for in the one Caſe the pleading is, that at the time of the Treſpaſs, ſuppoſed it was the Freehold of A. But in the Caſe at Bar the Defendant pleadeth, that long time before the Treſpaſs Wheatly was ſeiſed, &c. and ſo ſeiſed demiſed, &c. And that may be true, and that the Lady Greſham did diſſeiſe him, and a diſcent was caſt: So that it is not alledged, That Wheatly was ſeiſed in Fee at the time of the Treſpaſs (as in the other caſe) and then the moſt material thing to be traverſed is the leaſe, vide 4 E. 6. Trav. br. 372. That in the ſame caſe the ſeiſin in fee is traverſable, vide Br. Trav. 217. 21 H. 7. 23. & 26. 7 E. 4. 2. b. 8 H. 6. 34. 38 H. 8. Trav. 26. 21 Eliz. Dyer 365. 14 *Eliz. In Treſpaſs the Defendant pleaded, That A. was ſeiſed, and enfeoffed B. who enfeoffed C. who enfeoffed D. whoſe eſtate the Defendant hath, the Plaintiff may traverſe which of them he will, 18 E. 4. 26. In Treſpaſs the Defendant pleadeth, that J. was ſeiſed, and enfeoffed B. who enfeoffed the Defendant: The Plaintiff ſaid that R. was ſeiſed, and died ſeiſed, and that the land deſcended to him, and traverſed, abſque hoc, that J. enfeoffed B. and it was adjudged a good traverſe, and ſo is 21 H. 7. 33. And that is true in all caſes where the Defendant doth not claim by any mean conveyances from the Plaintiff himſelf, for that is traverſable. [24] [b]

The Plaintiff confeſſed the aſſignment to John Arch, &c. But further ſaid, that Johanne took to Huſband one Tarre, who 9 Eliz. granted the term to the Plaintiff, and traverſed the grant to Sadlier, upon which the Avowant did demur: And it was adjudged, that the Traverſe made the Bar to the Avowry inſufficient. And Popham Chief Juſtice delivered the reaſon thereof, becauſe that a leaſe for years cannot be gained but by lawful grant; and therefore when one claimeth a Leaſe for years, and the other claimeth by an elder grant, there he ſhall not traverſe the latter grant, but the other party ſhall traverſe the elder grant, and ſhew how he came to it again to enable the ſecond grant. But it is otherwiſe in caſe of Feoffment; for there if the party claimeth by a former Feoffment, he ought to confeſs and avoid the latter Feoff- [25]

Feoffment as by disseisin, &c. For a Disseisor may gain an Estate in Fee, but none can gain an Estate for years, but by lawful conveyance, and so is the difference. And when he claimeth by a former assignment of a term, it shall be impertinent to traverse, absque hoc, that he after that assigned his interest; for peradventure he assigned all his interest, and yet had nothing. Vide 2 Edw. 6. Br. Confess and Avoid 66.

Ruddock's Case.

IN this Term between Rasing and Ruddock in a Writ of Error, the Case was; In a Replevin against six one doth avow, and the other make conusance as Bayliffs to the first, for an amercement for breaking a By-law in a Leet, and there Judgment was given against them, and the Plaintiff recovered his damages and costs, upon which the six brought a Writ of Error in this Court. In bar of which the Defendant pleaded the release of one of the five, upon which the Plaintiff did demur in Law. And it was objected, That forasmuch as it foundeth only in the personalty, and that no summons and severance lieth, for this cause the release of the one shall bar all other. And the Writ of Error and Attaint shall follow the nature of the action upon which they are grounded; viz. If summons and severance lieth in the first action, it shall be also in the Writ of Error or Attaint, as it is agreed in 34 Hen. 6. 42. So is it in a Writ of Champerty, it shall follow the nature of the first action, as it is agreed in 47 Ed. 3. 6. Vide 26 Hen. 8. 3. in Attaint, and 35 Hen. 6 19. by Fortescue. But it was answered and resolved, That it is true, when in the Writ of Error the Plaintiff shall recover any personal thing, as if they were barred in an action of Debt, or Trespass, &c. for the Release of the one shall not bar the other, but
[b] when the the ground of the action is a joynt interest which may be released. But when divers are charged in a joynt action and condemned, there they have not any interest, but they are charged joyntly, then when they bring a Writ of Error to discharge them, the release of one cannot bar the other; for they have not any joint interest or benefit, but a joynt charge and burthen, which cannot be released or discharged if not by the party who hath the interest and benefit of it. And this difference is taken and agreed in 2 Hen. 4. 16. viz. when Two are to recover a personal thing, there the default of the one is the default of both; but when they are to discharge themselves of a personalty, there the default of one is not the default of both. And 15 Ed. 3. Severance 23. in Audita querela, the Nonsuit of one shall not grieve the other; for he is but to discharge himself of a burthen and charge. But it may be Objected, That in the case at Bar they shall be discharged of the damages and costs which they have lost in the first action, and therefore they have a personal interest which may be released; which Objection might be made in the Audita querela, for there they shall be restored to the value of the goods taken in Execution. But forasmuch as by common intendment the Execution is done of goods which the Defendants have in severalty, therefore it is reason that the release of one shall not bar the others. And none will deny but that when six are condemned in damages and costs, and they before Execution bring a Writ of Error, there the release of one shall not bar the other; for they sue only to discharge themselves; and by consequence the suing of Execution afterwards will not alter the case, if the Execution be not of the goods they had in joynture or common; and that will afford a question. And as to the Book in 7 Hen. 4. 46. where in Appeal four men were outlawed, and they four did joyn in a Writ of Error, and two made default, and it was agreed that that should be the default of all; for it was their folly that they did joyn themselves in one Writ, who might have had several Writs. But in the case at Bar they were compelled to joyn in one Writ, and so no folly in them. And Popham Chief Justice said, That it was the Plaintiffs folly in a personal Action to joyn with one who would release. But in the case at Bar no folly can be alleged in the Defendants, for the Plaintiff might name which of them he would, and omit which of them he pleaseth; and he said, that by this way he might by confederacy joyn one with them who would release all Errors to him. Vide 31 Hen. 6. 19. a.
[26] If damages be recovered against divers in a Writ of Conspiracy, and one of them bringeth an Attaint, it is much debated if the Writ be well brought, or if all ought to joyn. And there it is objected, that if all ought to joyn, then by the Nonsuit or release of one of them the others should be barred. And there Fortescue Chief Justice said, That the Nonsuit or release of the one should not hurt the other, no more than in Audita querela, or Scire facias upon release. And by the Rule of the Book they ought to joyn in the Attaint; so in the case at Bar, the Law doth compel the Defendants to joyn in the Writ of Error, not to reap any benefit, but to discharge themselves of a charge imposed upon them. And forasmuch as the Law will do no wrong, for this case the release of one who could not be left out in the Writ of Error, shall not in this case hurt the others. And so it was adjudged. Vide 29 Ass. p. 35.

Sharp's Caſe.

IN a Replevin between Sharp and Swan the Caſe was ſuch; Michael Sharp being Tenant in tail of certain lands within the County of Suſſex, with the Remainder over, came upon the land with the Plaintiff, and entred the houſe built upon it, and ſaid to him, Brother, I here demiſe unto you my houſe as long as I live, paying twenty pound by year to me, and finding me my board and waſhing, and keeping of a horſe: And if the ſame doth amount to a leaſe of the houſe and land was the queſtion. And it was agreed by the whole Court, that it was no leaſe, for that it wanted Livery; for to every Livery is requiſite, either an act which the Law ſhall adjudge Livery, or apt words which ſhall amount to it; for the delivery of the deed of Feoffment is an act; but the Law will not adjudge the ſame a Livery, becauſe it hath another effect, viz. to make the Charter his deed. But if he deliver a Turf or Twig, or other thing which cometh off the Land, or the Ring of the door, &c. in the name of ſeiſin, it is a good Livery. So if one ſaith, Enter into this Land, and enjoy it during your life, it is a good Livery; for the ſame is a delivery of the land it ſelf; and ſuch Livery is good when he doth it off the land, if the land be within view; a fortiori when it is upon the land. So in the caſe at Bar, when he ſaith, I do here demiſe unto you my houſe for the term of your life, this is a good beginning, if he make an actual Livery accordingly, or if he uſe apt words which may amount to as much, but without Livery it amounteth but to a leaſe at will, no more than when one delivereth a Charter of Feoffment upon the land; the deed importeth that he granteth the land to the Feoffee and his heirs, but it doth not amount to a Livery, but it is the beginning, viz. the delivery of the Deed which comprehendeth the land and the Eſtate, &c. but it doth not amount but to an eſtate at will without Livery; a fortiori in the caſe of a leaſe, or other Eſtate of Freehold or Inheritance by word. And it was agreed, that the caſe of the delivery of the Charter upon the land, hath been adjudged to amount to no Livery. Vide 38 Aſſ. p. 2. 39 Aſſ. p. 12. where ſuch words were intended were uſed as were apt, 27 Aſſ. p. 61. By which Books it appeareth, that after the Feoffor hath delivered the Charter of Feoffment upon the land, if he ſaith to the Feoffee, Hold and enjoy this land, or houſe, according to the deed, this is a good livery, So 41 E. 3. 17. b. After that the Feoffor had delivered the Charter of Feoffment upon the land, if he ſaith, Enter into this land, God give you joy thereof, the ſame amounteth to a livery. Vide 43 E. 3. The Caſe of Soldiers.

THis Term all the Judges of England met together to conſider upon the Statute of Captains and Soldiers; for divers Soldiers after they were Preſſed, and gone towards Ireland to ſerve againſt the Rebels there, and before they did ſerve in the War, did depart and withdraw themſelves. And it was reſolved by them, that the Statute of 18 H. 6. cap. 19. was now of little force; for the ancient manner of retaining Soldiers, to which the ſaid Act doth refer is utterly changed; for then Knights or Gentlemen did covenant with the King to ſerve him in his War for ſo long time, with ſuch a number of men; and the Soldiers made their covenants with the Captains, as it appeareth by many preſidents in the Exchequer, and alſo as it appeareth by the Preamble of the body of the ſaid Act. And the Statute of 2 E. 6. cap. 2. doth extend only when a Soldier departeth after he hath ſerved the King in his War. But it was reſolved, That the Statutes of 7 H. 7. cap. 1. & 3 H. 8. cap. 5. which are all in one effect, and penned in the ſame words, were perpetual Acts, and were not made only for the Reigns of the ſaid ſeveral Kings, as it ſeemeth by Raſtal in his Abridgments of the Statutes: For this word (King) doth include all his ſucceſſion; for the King dieth not in reſpect of his politick capacity; and a gift of the King ſhall enure to his Succeſſors. And according to this Reſolution divers Soldiers were attainted and executed. Vide 4 Eliz. Dier 211. Cheſter's Caſe, the opinion of all the Juſtices of both Benches, that the Statute of 11 H. 7. cap. 8. hath continuance, againſt the opinion of Raſtal. [27]

The Viſcount Mountague's Caſe.

[b] Anthony Viſcount Mountague, ſeiſed of divers Mannors in Fee, holden in Capite, by Indenture, 4 Eliz. did covenant with William Brown, and William Denton to ſuffer them before the Feaſt of Eaſter next following, to recover againſt him the ſaid Mannors by a Common Recovery, which Recovery ſhall be to the uſe of himſelf for life, and after to the uſe of B. in tail, and after to the uſe of C. in tail, and after to the uſe of B. in fee, with power of Revocation and Declaration of new uſes by any writing in his life. &c. or by his laſt Will, and that the Recoverers ſhall ſtand ſeiſed to the new uſes ſo declared; the Queen licenſeth the ſaid Viſcount to alien the ſaid Lands to the ſaid William and William, and their heirs (without any mention of declaration of any uſe in the Licenſe) and after the Recovery was had accordingly. And afterwards 34 Eliz. the Viſcount by his laſt Will did revoke the former uſes and eſtates, and declared, that preſently after his death C. ſhould have the ſaid Mannors in tail, with divers Remainders over, and died. And if by reaſon of this Revocation and new Declaration the Queen ſhall have in this caſe a fine for alienation was the queſtion in the Exchequer. And upon conference had with Popham and Anderſon, Chief Juſtices, and divers other Juſtices, it was adjudged in the Exchequer, That the Queen ſhould not have a fine for alienation in this caſe. And in this caſe two points were reſolved. 1. Although that no uſe was mentioned in the Licence. and the Licence was only to alien to Brown and Denton, and although the eſtate of the Land was transferred to others, ſo as the Queen could not be aſcertained of her very Tenant, yet for as much as it was executed by an Act of Parliament, viz. 27 Hen. 8. of Uſes; and an Act of Parliament to which every one is party can do no wrong, and every alienation without licence is a wrong to the King; for this cauſe when the King gave licence to alien to [28] Brown and Denton, and the Statute executeth the poſſeſſion in others, there ſhall not be any fine due to the King for this execution of the Eſtates by force of the ſaid Act of Parliament. And the Proviſo of the ſaid Act of 27 H. 8. was well explained, by which it was Enacted, That the Kings Highneſs ſhall not have, demand, or take advantage or profit, for or by occaſion of the executing of any eſtate, only by authority of this Act to any perſon, &c. which now have, or on this ſide the firſt of May, 1536. ſhall have, any uſe or uſes, truſts or confidences in any Mannors, &c. holden of the Kings highneſs by reaſon of any Primer ſeiſin, Ouſter le maine, Fine for alienation, Relief, and Heriot, But that Fines for Alienation, &c. ſhall be paid to the Kings highneſs, &c. for uſes, truſts and confidences to be made and executed in poſſeſſion, by authority of this Act, after and from the ſaid firſt of May, of Lands, &c. holden of the King, in ſuch like manner and form and to all intents and purpoſes, as hath heretofore been uſed and accuſtomed by the order of the Laws of this Realm. And foraſmuch as every uſe ought to be raiſed, either by Covenant out of the eſtate of the Covenantor, or by Feoffment, Fine, &c. (by tranſmutation of poſſeſſion) out of the eſtate of the Feoffees, Conuſees, &c. in the one Caſe or in the other, but one fine for alienation ſhall be paid to the King: For if the Kings Tenant who holdeth in Capite, intendeth to alien to J. N. to the uſe of I. D. and thereupon he purchaſeth a licenſe to alien to I. N. and accordingly he alieneth to I N. to the uſe of I D. in this caſe he ſhall pay but one fine, for it is but an alienation. And the ſaid latter part of the Proviſo concerning fines to be paid for execution of uſes in poſſeſſion after the firſt day of May 1536, is to be intended by uſes raiſed by covenant, or of uſes declared upon fine, feoffment, &c. and when no licence to alien to the feoffee, or conuſee is obtained. And it was ſaid, that if the ſaid Proviſo had not been, that no fine of execution for a uſe upon a Covenant ſhall be paid to the King; becauſe he was in by force of an Act of Parliament, which cannot (as hath been ſaid) do wrong, for remedy of which the ſaid Proviſo was made. 2. It was reſolved in the Caſe at Bar, when the Viſcount had licence to alien to Brown and Denton, and accordingly he ſuffered a Recovery, which Recovery was to the ſaid uſes, with power of revocation and alteration. In this caſe, although he alter the former uſes, and declare more, yet for as [b] much as the Queen hath given licence to alien to Brown and Denton, out of which alienation all the uſes, as well future as preſent, as out of one Fountain do ariſe, and they all grow from the Recovery as out of one root; for this cauſe there needeth no new licence of alienation for limitation of any new uſe riſing out of the ſaid Recovery. Vide Cole's caſe, Plow. Com. 401. And in this Term another Caſe was adjudged in the Exchequer, and was ſuch: Richard Smith being ſeiſed of Lands holden in Capite, anno 6 Eliz. levied a fine thereof without licence, which fine was to certain uſes contained in certain Indentures; that is to ſay, To the uſe of himſelf for life, and after to the uſe of his firſt ſon in tail, and then to the uſe of his ſecond ſon in tail, with divers remainders over, with a Proviſo, that it ſhall be lawful for him to limit by writing the ſame Lands to the uſe of any Wife he ſhall after marry, for her life in name of her Joynture; and that the ſaid fine ſhall be to the ſaid uſe, &c. The ſaid alienation is pardoned by the Act 13 Eliz. Then he marrieth Dorothy, and afterwards, anno 31 Eliz. by writing limiteth the ſame Lands, according to the ſame Proviſo to the ſaid Dorothy for her life, and dieth; after whoſe death ſhe took to Husband Sir William Mounſon, and it was adjudged that for the ſaid limitation to Dorothy no fine ſhould be paid to the Queen, cauſa qua ſupra. Which Caſe being openly adjudged, I have Reported, to the intent the Kings Officers in theſe Caſes ſhould take heed that the King be not deceived of an ancient Flower of his Crown by any device or invention more than duly by Law ought to be.

Green's Case.

John Green brought an Action of Treſpaſs againſt William Baker, for breaking of his Cloſe and carrying away his Hay and Corn at Coſington in the County of Somerſet. The Defendant pleaded Not guilty; and the Jurors found a ſpecial Verdict to this effect. Thomas Lord Pawlet was Tenant for life of the Mannor of Coſington, to which the Advowſon of the Church of Coſington was appendant, the Remainder to John Brent Eſq. in Fee, which Rectory was a Benefice with cure. The Lord Pawlet 6 Aprilis 1574. preſented to the ſaid Church one John Durſton, who was admitted, inſtituted and inducted, and did not read the Articles according to the Statute of 13 Eliz. cap. 12. For which cauſe, 10 Martii 1583, at the ſuit of the ſaid Thomas Lord Pawlet, he was deprived by ſentence declaratory before the Biſhop; from which ſentence he did appeal to the Arches; and it was further found, That no notice was given by the Ordinary to the Patron of the ſaid deprivation. The ſaid Lord Pawlet, 7 Martii 28 Eliz. died. The Queen, jure Prærogativæ ſuæ Regiæ, by her Letters Patents, 30 Junii 28 Eliz. by title of Lapſe (and ſo expreſſed in the Patent) preſented William Baker, one of the Defendants, who was admitted, inſtituted and inducted. Durſton 5. Octob. 34 Eliz. died; after whoſe death, 8 Maii 1597, the ſaid John Brent preſented John Green now Plaintiff, who was admitted, inſtituted and inducted, and entred into the ſaid Rectory, and Baker and the other Defendants in his right, and by his commandment did enter upon the Plaintiff into the ſaid Cloſe, being parcel of the Glebe of the Rectory, and took the Hay and Corn, &c. And if the entry of Baker were lawful or not was the queſtion; and after many arguments it was adjudged for the Plaintiff. And in this caſe five points were reſolved. 1. Although the Patron were party to the ſute in which the declaratory ſentence was, and thereby took notice that Durſton did not read the Articles according to the ſaid Statute of 13 Eliz. yet after ſuch notice Lapſe ſhall not incurr; but notice of not reading of the Articles ought to be given him by the Ordinary, and after ſuch notice the Lapſe ſhall be accounted; For the Statute ſaith, Notice given by the Ordinary; and ſuch Notice ought to have two qualities, 1. It ought be given by a perſon certain, and that is the Ordinary; for if any other of his own head giveth notice to the Patron, it is not material. 2. The Notice ought to be certain and particular; and therefore it is not ſufficient for the Ordinary in ſuch caſe to give notice that the preſentee hath not read the Articles and ſubſcribed generally, but he ought particularly to inform the Patron that he hath not read the Articles, &c. for which default he is deprived, and that thereupon it belongeth to the Patron to preſent; for notitia dicitur a noſcendo, & ex vi termini it ought to be ſpecial, & notitia non debet claudicare; and therewith agreeth 22 Eliz. Dier 369. 2. That the Church is void preſently by the Statute of 13 Eliz. without any declaratory ſentence; for it is ſo Enacted by the Statute, that he ſhall be ipſo facto deprived, and that the admiſſion, inſtitution and induction are mere void in Law; and avoidance by Act of Parliament needeth not any ſentence declaratory. But it is enacted by the ſame Statute that no Lapſe ſhall incurr without notice given, and yet the Church is void: For if ſuch Parſon libelleth againſt any of his Pariſhioners for Tythes, they may plead againſt him the not Reading of the Articles, as it was adjudged in a Prohibition, Trin. 30 Eliz between Maurice and Eaton. 3. If the Queen by her Letters Patents of Preſentation miſtaketh her title, as if ſhe hath title to preſent in reſpect ſhe is very Patron, and ſhe preſent by reaſon of Lapſe, ſuch preſentation is void; for the Queen is deceived in her preſentation. So 17 Eliz. Dier 339. a preſentation obtained from the Queen (pendant a Quare Impedit) in diſceit of the Queen is void; a fortiori, when the Queen hath not title to preſent by any means, and ſhe preſent (as in the Caſe at Bar) (ratione Lapſus) it is utterly void; in the ſame manner as if the Queen preſent, and afterwards repealeth her preſentment, and yet the Ordinary doth inſtitute and induct the party. 4. In ſuch caſes although that the Biſhop doth admit, inſtitute and induct the Incumbent, yet the Church doth remain void, and the rightful Patron is not put to a Quare Impedit to remove ſuch Incumbent. And ſo it was holden, If the Ordinary collate within the ſix months, and his Clerk is inducted, yet the rightful Patron is not put out of poſſeſſion, nor put to his Quare Impedit, but may preſent as it was adjudged in Jurden's Caſe in a Writ of Error in the Kings Bench Mich. 29 & 30 Eliz. for the Church of Ayleſham, where the pleading was, that the Ordinary uſurpando contulit: for no Church can be full but by preſentation, or rightful collation. 5. It was reſolved, That if a common perſon uſurpeth upon the King, and his Clerk is admitted, and inducted, the King is put to a Quare Impedit, and cannot preſent untill the Incumbent be removed by Judgment. But in ſuch caſe the common perſon by double or treble uſurpation by ſeveral perſons doth not gain the Inheritance of the Advowſon out of the King, for the ſame is permanent, and is not in ſuch caſe deveſted out of the King. And ſo was it adjudged, Paſch. 25 Eliz. Between Peſcod and Yardly in the Common Pleas for the Vicaridge of Newton Valence, but the Plea begun, Mich. 21 & 22 Eliz. Rot. 2218. But as to the preſentation he is put out of poſſeſſion, for the ſame is tranſitory, and he cannot remove the Incumbent but by Quare Impedit, and ſo are all the Books to be intended, 4 E. 3. Quare Impedit 33. 18 E. 3. 16. 43 E. 3. 14. 47 E. 3. 4. And it is to be obſerved, that the Statute of Weſtm. 2 cap. 5. ſaith, Cum aliquis jus præſentandi non habens, præſentaverit ad aliquam Eccleſiam (cujus præſentatus ſit admiſſus) ipſe qui eſt verus patronus per nullum aliud breve recuperare potuit advocationem ſuam, quam per breve de Recto. By which it appeareth, that without a preſentation the very Patron cannot be put out of poſſeſſion. And vide 6 Ed. 3. Although that the admiſſion, inſtitution and induction be in time of peace, yet if the preſentation be in time of war, all ſhall be avoided. But (ſee Reader) the caſe in 17 E. 3. 64. That although the penalty by collation doth not put him who hath title to preſent out of poſſeſſion, as it hath been twice adjudged, yet the plenarty by collation ſhall put him who hath title to collate out of poſſeſſion, as it appeareth by the ſaid book, which is ruled in the point. Bothy's Caſe.

[b] IN Debt upon an Obligation by Bothy againſt Smith, which begun Hill. 1 Jacobi, Rot. 725. The Condition was, That if the Defendant deliver to the Plaintiff one Obligation of the ſumm of ten pound, wherein the Plaintiff ſtood bound with one T. to the Defendant, for the payment of five pound, and alſo if the Defendant do acknowledge ſatisfaction of a Judgment upon the ſaid Bond, and alſo deliver true notes of all Bills of charges, as do concern the ſame, that then, &c. The Defendant pleaded in Bar, That there were not any Bills of Coſts for, or concerning the ſaid Sute, and did not anſwer to the reſidue of the Condition, pretending that he needed not, in as much as they were collateral acts, and no time is limited when they ſhall be performed. And it was adjudged againſt the Defendant; for he ought to have performed the reſidue of the Condition in convenient time, and that without requeſt. And the difference was taken and agreed, when the Act by the Condition of a Bond, to be performed to the Obligee is of its nature a tranſitory act (as payment of mony, delivery of Charters, and the like) and no time is limited, although that a place be expreſſed there, the act ought to be performed in convenient time. And when the Act to be performed is in its own nature local, without expreſſion of limitation of any place. But in ſuch local Acts there is a difference; for when the concurrence of the Obligor and Obligee is requiſite, then the Obligor ſhall have time to do it during his life, if the obligee doth not haſten it by requeſt. But when the Act is local, and the Obligor may perform it for the benefit of the Obligee in his abſence, there the Obligor ought to do it in convenient time. And in this Caſe at Bar there are examples of both; for firſt, the delivery of the Bond is tranſitory, and therefore the Obligor ought to have delivered it within convenient time. 2. Although that the acknowledgment of ſatisfaction be local, yet it may be
[31] performed in the abſence of the other party; and therefore in both Caſes the obligor ought to perform the acts in convenient time without any requeſt. But when the act is of its own nature local, and to be done to the Obligee, and to the performance thereof the concurrence of the Obligor and Obligee is requiſite, then the Obligor ſhall have time to perform it during his life, if he be not haſtned by requeſt, as before is ſaid. As if a man be bound in an Obligation to enfeoff the Obligee of the Mannor of D, without limitation of any time, there becauſe the eſtate ought to paſs by Livery and Seiſin, ſo that there ought to be a concurrence of both parties, and the Obligor cannot do it without the Obligee, and it cannot be done but upon the Land, the Obligor hath time during his life, if the Obligee doth not haſten it by requeſt made to the Obligor: For it is not reaſonable, that the Obligee make requeſt upon the Land when he will; for then the Obligor ſhall be forced to ſtay always upon the Land, which ſhall be inconvenient; but in ſuch caſe the obligee ought to requeſt the Obligor, and appoint a certain time when the Feoffment ſhall be made unto him. But there is a difference in ſuch caſe between the concurrence of the Obligor and a Stranger, and of the Obligor and the Obligee; for if I be bound unto you to enfeoff a Stranger, and no time is appointed, although that the concurrence of the Obligor and Feoffee is requiſite, yet the Obligor ſhall not have time to perform it during his life, but he ought to do it within convenient time; for in ſuch caſe the Obligor hath taken upon him to do it to a Stranger, and may do it without the concurrence of the Obligee. But when the Obligee himſelf is party, and the act cannot be done without his concurrence, there its reaſon that the Obligor have time during his life, if the Obligee haſten it not by requeſt: For in ſuch caſe the Obligor doth not take upon him for the Obligee, who is party to the deed, as he doth in the other caſe for the Stranger. But it was ſaid, that if the concurrence of a Stranger, and of the Obligee be requiſite, in ſuch caſe, the Obligee being a party he ought to haſten it by requeſt. As if I be bound to you that J. S. ſhall enfeoff you without limitation of any time, J. S. ſhall have time during his life, if you haſten it not by requeſt. Alſo it was reſolved, That when the act which the Obligor by condition ought to do, doth not in any manner concern the Obligee, nor his benefit, but is to be done by the ſole act or labour of the Obligor himſelf, and no time is appointed in the Condition in which it ſhall be performed; there the Obligor hath time during his life; and the performance thereof cannot be haſtned by requeſt. As if I be bound to you that I will go to Rome, or Jeruſalem, &c. In that caſe, and the like caſes, the Obligor hath time during his life to do it. So when the act to be done by the condition is to be done by the ſole act and labour, or induſtry of a Stranger; which in no manner concerneth the Obligor, Obligee, or any other perſon, and no time is appointed when it ſhall be done, it is ſufficient if the thing be done in his life time who ought to do it. As if I be bounden to you upon condition that J. S. ſhall go to Rome, or Jeruſalem, &c. or that ſuch a Student in Divinity in the Univerſity of Cambridge, ſhall preach at Paul's Croſs, or ſuch a Student of the Law in the Inner Temple, ſhall argue a matter in Law in Weſtminſter Hall; in theſe, and the like caſes, no time being appointed, pointed, they have time to do it during their lives, and the performance of them cannot be haſtned by requeſt. And by theſe differences and reaſons you will better underſtand your Books, which prima facie ſeem to diſagree, viz. 33 H. 6. 48. Hillary's Caſe, 21 E. 4. 59. 42. 22 E. 4. 25. Fitz William's Caſe.

IN Treſpaſs for breaking his Cloſe at Gamſparke by John Fitz William, againſt William Fitz William, Eſquire, now Knight: upon Not guilty pleaded, the Jurors gave a ſpecial Verdict, which was of great prolixity. In which Caſe theſe points were reſolved. 1. That whereas Sir William Fitz William, Father of the Plaintiff, and the Defendant was ſeiſed of the Mannor of Gamſpark amongſt others, viz. to him, and Anne his Wife, and to the Heirs Males of the body of the Father; and afterwards the Father, by Deed indented and inrolled did bargain and ſell the ſaid Mannor to one in fee, who ſuffered a common Recovery, in which Sir William the Father was only vouched, and he vouched over the common vouchee: Sir William the Father, and Anne having Iſſue, the Defendant the eldeſt Son, and John the Plaintiff the youngeſt, died. It was adjudged, that although Sir William the Father was only vouched, and not Anne, yet the eſtate tail was barred, for the cauſes and reaſons alledged in Cuppledick's Caſe, Paſch. 44 Eliz. in the third part of my Reports, fol. 6. 2. Where the ſaid Recovery was unto divers uſes declared by certain Indentures, viz. to the uſe of the ſaid Sir William the Father for life, and afterwards to the uſe of the ſaid Anne for life, and ſix months after her deceaſe to the uſe of William Fitz William the defendant in tail, and afterwards to the uſe of the ſaid Anne and her heirs in Fee, with this Proviſo following; Provided always, That it ſhall be lawful to, and for the ſaid Sir William and Dame Anne, [32] [b] at any time or times hereafter, and from time to time, during their joynt lives, at their free will and pleaſure, by any their deed or writing by the ſaid Sir William and Dame Anne, ſealed and publiſhed in the preſence of three credible witneſſes, at the leaſt, to alter, change, determine, revoke, or make void, all, or any of the uſe or uſes, eſtate or eſtates, in theſe premiſes before declared or mentioned, or limited of the premiſes, or any part of them; And that at all times, from and after ſuch time as the ſaid Sir William and Dame Anne ſhall by any ſuch deed or writing ſo expreſs and declare their pleaſure and mind to be to alter, &c. That then, and from thenceforth, ſuch of the ſaid eſtate and eſtates, uſe and uſes herein declared, as ſhall be ſo declared to be altered, &c. ſhall ceaſe, determine and be void. And that then, and from thence forth, the ſaid Recovery and Recoveries ſhall be, &c. and all and every perſon and perſons, &c. ſhall thereof ſtand and be ſeiſed to the uſe of ſuch, and thoſe perſons, to and for ſuch and thoſe uſe and uſes, and in ſuch manner and form, as by ſuch deed or writing, &c. as is aforeſaid, ſhall be declared or limited, only, and not to any other perſon or perſons, uſe and uſes. And afterwards the ſaid Sir William and Dame Anne by their writing indented, ſealed by them, ſubſcribed and publiſhed in the preſence of three credible witneſſes, reciting the ſaid Indenture of uſes, and the ſaid power, did revoke the ſaid uſe and eſtate in tail, limited to William Fitz William now defendant, and the remainder limited to Dame Anne in Fee, ſaving the uſe and eſtate limited to himſelf for his life, the remainder to the Wife for life; and by the ſame writing declared, That the ſaid Recovery ſhall be to the uſe of the ſaid Sir William Fitz William for life, the remainder to the Lady Anne for life, and ſix Months after, and afterwards to the uſe of John Fitz William the Plaintiff in tail, and afterwards to the uſe of Sir William Fitz William the Father in fee, with the like power of revocation, as before; and afterwards Sir William and Anne die; and if the revocation, and new declaration, and limitation of the ſaid new uſes were good, and effectual in Law, was the queſtion; And it was ſtrongly urged that the new declaration of uſes was not ſufficient in Law for two cauſes. 1. Becauſe the revocation and new declaration and limitation (as this Proviſo is penned) cannot be in one and the ſame deed; for in that three times are to be obſerved, tempus revocandi, tempus ceſſandi veteres uſus, & tempus declarandi novos uſus. The act of revocation ought to be by writing, and ſealed and publiſhed in the preſence of three witneſſes; and then comes the ſecond time, viz. And that at all times, and from and after ſuch time as Sir William and Anne by ſuch writing ſo expreſs and declare, &c. So that there is a diſtinction of times, viz. from and after ſuch time, &c. the former uſes ſhall ceaſe; and after that they are ceaſed, then followeth the third time, And that then, and from thenceforth, &c. viz. after the time of the ceſſer, the recovery ſhall be, &c. to ſuch uſes as by any ſuch deed or writing, &c. ſhall be declared and limited. In which caſe [33] (by ſuch deed) which is as much as to ſay, by hujuſmodi, or conſimile ſcriptum, ought to be like in all circumſtances, as to be their joynt writing, to be ſealed and publiſhed as the other; but cannot be in the ſame deed; for the firſt deed is ended when that is ſealed and publiſhed, and after that nothing can be added to it; for that by the publiſhing is compleat, and his time paſt: Then after that time, the time of the ceſſer ought to paſs, and then cometh the time to declare new uſes: ſo that it is not poſſible that the declaration of the new uſes can be in the deed of declaration, but ought to be in another deed. And it was much inforced by this word (ſhall be) which is in the Future tenſe; and by that it appeareth, that the revocation ought to paſs before the new declaration ſhall be made; for the words are, ſhall be declared or limited. And it was ſaid, That theſe and the like powers by which the eſtate or intereſt of Strangers

ſhall be changed or charged, ſhall be taken ſtrictly, becauſe they extend to the defeating or change of the eſtate of a third perſon; and to that purpoſe a Judgment was cited, Trin. 30 Eliz. in a Replevin between Leaper Plaintiff, and Richard Wroth Defendant, where the caſe was; Henry Earl of Suſſex conveyed the Mannor of Burnham in Eſſex to the uſe of himſelf for life, and afterwards to the uſe of the Counteſs of Suſſex for life, with divers Remainders over, with Proviſo, that it ſhould be lawful for the Earl to make Leaſes for one and twenty years, rendring, &c. And afterwards the Earl, viz. 3. Aprilis, &c. made a Leaſe of the ſaid Mannor for one and twenty years, to begin at the Feaſt of S. Michael the Archangel then following; and although that the power was general to make Leaſes for one and twenty years, without being reſtrained to make them in poſſeſſion, or any number of them, but indefinite to make Leaſes for one and twenty years, yet it was adjudged that the ſaid Leaſe was void for two cauſes. 1. If by the ſaid power he may make any future Leaſe, or Leaſe in Reverſion, then he may make a Leaſe for one and twenty years in poſſeſſion, and afterwards infinite Leaſes in reverſion for one and twenty years, which ſhall be contrary to the meaning of the parties, and then the expreſſing of the one and twenty years was in vain, and by ſuch conſtruction the text and letter of the Proviſo ſhould be idle and vain. The ſecond reaſon was, becauſe that for as much as this proviſo gave power to charge the eſtate of three perſons with terms of one and twenty years, ſuch Proviſo ſhall be taken ſtrict, and ſhall not extend beyond the Letter and the meaning of the parties. And if I be bound, or contract with you to make a Leaſe to you for one and twenty years indefinitely, the Leaſe ought to be made to begin preſently, and not in futuro. 2. It was objected, that although ex indulgentia Legis, the Law will in divers caſes conſider two diſtinct times in one inſtant (which in truth is not any time) yet no caſe can be put, that by any conſtruction three times may be admitted in one inſtant. And therefore it was ſaid, that this
[b] Caſe differeth from Digges Caſe, publiſhed by me in the firſt part of my Reports; for there was but two times which well ſtood with the learning of Inſtances, and with the caſe of the fine there put. But put caſe there are three Conuſors of a Fine, and the Conuſee rendreth to one of the Conuſors, for life or years, a rent, and granteth the reverſion to another of the Conuſors for life, or years, rendring rent, and by the ſame fine granteth a reverſion in fee, or in tail, to the third Conuſor; it was ſaid that ſuch fine ſhall not be received, becauſe that an Inſtant cannot be more than two times. 2. It was ſaid, that in Digges Caſe the uſes were raiſed by covenant out of Eſtate of the Covenantor, which may be more eaſily determined again in his poſſeſſion, than when uſes are raiſed out of a Recovery, by which is tranſmutation of poſſeſſion, and all the Eſtate deveſted out of him who limiteth and declareth the uſes. But it was anſwered and reſolved by the whole Court, That the ancient uſes in the Caſe at Bar were revoked, and the new uſes well declared in the ſame deed: For firſt, in Judgment of Law there were not in this caſe but two times concurrent in one inſtant, viz. the time of the ceaſing of the former uſes, and the declaration of the new; for although that the revocation and the ceſſer of the former uſes are diſtinguiſhed in words; yet in truth they are all one: For the uſe which is revoked ceſſeth, and the uſe which ceaſeth is revoked. 2. It was reſolved, That although no uſe ceaſeth until the writing of Reverſion be ſealed and publiſhed, and after the ſealing and publication thereof nothing can be added to it, yet it well ſtandeth with the words of the Proviſo, and the intention of the parties, that the new declaration may be in the ſame deed; for both being contained in one and the ſame writing, firſt its conſtruction ſhall be to make deſtruction of the former, and in the ſame inſtant to make the new uſes; and this word (ſuch) more properly doth extend to that writing in which the revocation is, than to another; for (by ſuch writing) is as much as to ſay, per idem vel hujuſmodi ſcriptum; and ſo it ſhall be taken in this Caſe. And this word (ſhall be) ſhall be ſaid future in reſpect alſo of the Indenture, and alſo in Judgment of Law ſubſequent to the revocation; although that theſe words are contradictory, and ex diametro pugnant, for the one doth deſtroy, the other doth create; yet the conſtruction of the Law (which delighteth in reconcilement) doth make a good accord betwixt them. For to the end the new uſes ſhall be created, the Law will adjudge that the clauſe of deſtruction ſhall have the priority, although both be contained in one and the ſame deed, and take effect by one and the ſame delivery. And as to the difference as to ceſſer of an eſtate moved between Digges Caſe (where the uſe was raiſed by covenant) and this Caſe, where the uſe was declared upon a Recovery, it was reſolved that it was all one, That when he who [34] maketh the Revocation is ſeiſed or poſſeſſed of the Land for the reaſon and cauſe given in Digges Caſe; for it was agreed in this Caſe, That the beſt conſtruction of the Statute of 27 H. 8. of Uſes is, to make them ſubject to the rules of the Common Law which are certain and well known to the Profeſſors of the Law, and not to make them ſo extravagant that none know any rule to decide the queſtions which ariſe upon them, which will bring forth incertainty the cauſe of infinite troubles, controverſies and ſuits, which agreeth with the Reſolution in Dillon and Freins Caſe, in the firſt Part of my Reports, and in Butler and Baker's Caſe, in the ſecond Part of my Reports, and in Cholmeley's Caſe, in the ſame Reports, where it is reſolved, That although that uſes at the Common Law might have ceſſed without claim, yet now the uſe is transferred to the poſſeſſion; for the pleading is, vigore ſtatuti, &c. de uſibus in poſſeſſ. tranſferendis. So that now after the Statute, to ſuch qualities to which eſtates at the Common Law are ſubject, to ſuch qualities uſes after they are transferred into the poſſeſſion are ſubject; for the uſe is transferred and incorporate in the poſſeſſion, which agreeth with the Reſolution in this caſe. And upon the ſame reaſon it hath been adjudged, That if a man bargaineth, and ſelleth his Lands to another and his heirs by deed indented and inrolled, with Proviſo, that if ſuch thing be done, that the bargain and ſale ſhall be void; and afterwards the bargainor taketh a wife, and afterwards the Proviſo is broken, before entry the Husband dieth, and it was adjudged that the Wife ſhould not be endowed; for although that the Eſtate of the Bargainee veſts by the Statute of 27 H. 8. by execution of the eſtate of the Land to the uſe raiſed by the bargain and ſale, yet for as much as the Husband did not re-enter, he had not any Eſtate in the Land, whereof the Wife might be endowed.

Trin. 3 Jacobi, in the Common Pleas.

The Biſhops of Bath's Caſe.

IN a Replevin between Bellamy and Fiſh, Fiſh made Conuſance as Bayly to Willam Lord H. for damage feaſance; The Plaintiff ſaid, That before the ſaid Lord W. H. had any thing, the Biſhop of Bath and Wells was ſeiſed of the Mannor of Blackford, where, &c. in his demeſne as of Fee in the right of his Biſhoprick; and afterwards, the laſt of September, 11. H. 8. by writing made a Leaſe to Elizabeth Coſin, and Robert Coſin her ſon of the ſaid Mannor for threeſcore years, from the day of the making of the ſaid Writing without impeachment of Waſte, with reſervation of Rent: and further it was provided by the ſaid Writing, that if the ſaid Elizabeth and Robert ſhould die within the ſaid term of threeſcore years, that then preſently and immediately after the deceaſe of the ſaid Elizabeth and Robert, and the longer liver of them, it ſhould be lawful for the Biſhop and his ſucceſſor to re-enter into the ſaid Mannor. Elizabeth died, and Robert ſurvived her; the Biſhop died, and another is elected and conſecrated, &c. who the laſt of Auguſt 22 H. 8. by writing demiſed the ſaid Mannor to one Clark, to hold and occupy the ſaid Mannor, to the ſaid Clark, his Executors and Aſſignees, cum poſt, ſive per mortem, ſurſum reddit. vel foriſfacturam præd. Rob. Coſin acciderit vacare, for threeſcore years, with confirmation of the ſaid Dean and Chapter. And afterwards the Biſhop granted the Reverſion of the ſaid Mannor to the Lord William H. and the Tenant attorned, and afterwards Robert Coſin within the firſt threeſcore years died, and the ſecond Leſſee died, and the intereſt of the ſecond Leſſee came to the Plaintiff, and the Plaintiff demurred upon the bar to the Avowry. The queſtions in this caſe were two. 1. If the ſecond Leaſe ſhall ever begin. 2. Admitting that it ſhould begin, when it ſhall begin. As to the firſt, it was objected, Inaſmuch as the ſecond Leaſe is limitted to begin upon one of the three accidents, that is to ſay, when the former Leaſe ſhall determine by death, or ſurrender, or forfeiture; if none of theſe accidents happen, that the ſecond Leaſe which is to begin upon one of them, ſhall never begin: For it was ſaid, Suppoſe that the Leſſees had ſurvived the firſt term without any ſurrender or forfeitnre, the ſecond Leaſe ſhould never begin; for the term ought to begin at the time that the Leſſor doth appoint, and at no other time; and [35] if the beginning be uncertain, or if the beginning be upon an accident which never happeneth, or upon contingent, or a condition impoſſible, the Leaſe is void: For every Leaſe for years ought to have a certain beginning, continuance and end. See Saye's Caſe, Plow. Com. 172. 14 H. 8. 10. 21 H. 7. 38. 2 Mar. Br. Leaſes 67. 2. It was objected, That if the ſecond Leaſe ſhall begin at all, it ſhall begin by the death of the Leſſees, for this accident happeneth, and not the other two, and by their deaths it cannot begin; for by the death (as this Caſe is) it cannot begin in poſſeſſion; for the ſaid Proviſo in the firſt Leaſe doth not make the Leaſe void upon the death of the Leſſees, but giveth re-entry to the Leſſor and his Succeſſors. So that till re-entry (notwithſtanding the death of the Leſſees) the Leaſe continueth. And therefore, for as much as the ſecond Leaſe is to begin after the avoidance of the firſt Leaſe by the death of the Leſſees, for this cauſe, either it ſhall never begin, or the term of the ſecond Leaſe ſhall inure from the time of the death of the ſurvivor of the Leſſees. As to the firſt, it was anſwered and reſolved, That it is true, That every Leaſe for years ought to have a certain beginning, but that is meant, when it is to take effect in intereſt, or poſſeſſion, then the beginning ought to be certain; for a Leaſe for years may be made upon condition, or contingent precedent; As if I grant to you, that if you pay to me twenty pound at Michaelmas next following, that you ſhall have my Mannor of D. for one and twenty years, now it is uncertain if this ſhall begin or not, and in the mean time till the payment of the mony it is not any Leaſe, but it ſufficeth that the beginning be certain when it is to take effect in intereſt or poſſeſſion. So it is true, that the continuance of it ought to be certain, but that is to be intended, either when the term is made certain by expreſs numbring of years, or by reference to certainty, or by reducing of it to certainty by matter ex poſt facto, or by conſtruction in the Law by expreſs limitation. As firſt, if a Leaſe be made for one and twenty years, or any other certain term, &c. it is good for the certain enumeration at the firſt. 2. By reference to certainty; as if one Leaſe the Mannor of D. to I. S. for as many years as I hath in the Mannor of S, and he hath a term for ten years, I. S. ſhall have the ſame term. So if a Leaſe be [b] made unto another during the minority of I. G, and he is of the age of ten years, this is a good Leaſe for eleven years, if I. G. ſo long live. But if the Wife of I. be great with child with a Son, and a Leaſe be made until the Iſſue the Mother goeth with ſhall come to full age, it is no Leaſe for years; for at the time when the Leaſe is to take effect, it is uncertain when the ſon ſhall be born, and by conſequence the beginning, continuance and end thereof is uncertain. And when a Leaſe for years ſhall be made good by reference, the reference ought to be a thing which hath expreſs certainty at the time of the Leaſe made, and not to poſſible, or cauſual certainty. And therefore if I have a rent of twenty ſhillings per annum in fee iſſuing out of Bl. Acre, payable yearly at the Feaſt of Eaſter, and I grant the ſame rent to you until you ſhall have received of the ſame rent one and twenty pound, in this caſe you ſhall have this rent for one and twenty years; for it hath reference to an expreſs certainty, viz. to a yearly rent which is twenty ſhillings per annum in certainty. But if a man leaſeth Lands of the value of twenty ſhillings per annum until one and twenty pound be levied of the iſſues and profits, it is but a Leaſe at will without Livery; for it is not certain that the Land ſhall be every year of one value. And ſo it was reſolved, Paſch. 24 Eliz. by the whole Court of Common Pleas. When a Leaſe ſhall be made good by matter ex poſt facto, It was reſolved, That if a man make a Leaſe from the Feaſt of S. Michael, for as many years as I. S. ſhall name, in this caſe, if I. S. name a certain term (in the life of the Leſſor) it is a good Leaſe by matter ex poſt facto. So it is of all Leaſes which begin upon conditions precedent. And as to Potkin's Caſe in 14 H. 1. which was cited by the Council on both ſides in this Caſe, where the Caſe was, That Potkin, 10 H. 8. demiſed a Wood to the Defendant to begin at the Feaſt of St. Michael next following, pro termino unius anni & ſic de uno anno in annum, quamdiu ambabus partibus placuerit, and there two Juſtices againſt two, it was reſolved by the whole Court, that in ſuch caſe after three years at the moſt, it was but a Leaſe at will, becauſe beyond that the term hath not any certain continuance or determination; and upon the matter it is no other, than if one demiſe Lands for ſuch term as both parties ſhall pleaſe, it is but a Leaſe at will, becauſe the term is altogether uncertain.

for

[36] But if a man leaſeth his Land for years, it is a good leaſe for two years, becauſe it ſhall be taken good for ſuch number with which at leaſt the plural number ſhall be ſatisfied, and that is with two years. It was alſo reſolved, That it is uſual when the Kings leaſe is doubtful, if it be good or not, and another is to take a leaſe of the ſame lands, he will make his Habendum to begin (if any former leaſe be, &c.) after the end or determination of the former leaſe, and if that be no leaſe then from ſuch a Feaſt for a certain number of years. And (God forbid) but that theſe leaſes ſhall be good and effectual; for in the Judgment of Law it hath ſufficient certainty of beginning; for in the eye of the Law the former demiſe is either good or void, and therefore in the Kings Caſe, which is ſtronger than the caſe of common perſons, ſuch Leaſe hath by conſtruction of Law a certain beginning. So if A. reciting that B. hath a Leaſe for years, demiſeth the Land to C. for years, to begin after the end or determination of the former leaſe, and in truth there is not any former leaſe, the leaſe to C. ſhall begin preſently; for in Judgment of Law, a void limitation at the beginning, and no limitation is all one. As to the ſecond Objection, it was reſolved, That in conſtruction of Law upon the beginning of the Leaſes, the ſtrongeſt ſhall be taken againſt the Leſſor, and moſt beneficially for the Leſſee. And in this caſe it is true, That the firſt leaſe cannot determine by the death of the Leſſees, becauſe by their deaths a re-entry is given; ſo that till re-entry the leaſe cannot determine by their deaths. And for as much as there was not any re-entry in truth, the firſt leaſe ſhall determine by effluxion of time, and not by death, ſurrender or forfeiture. But the words of the Habendum of the ſecond Leaſe, are not only cum per mortem, &c. vacari contingerit ſed cum poſt, ſive per mortem, &c. vacari contigerit. And although that the firſt leaſe doth not become void per mortem, yet certain it is that it cometh void, viz. (by effluxion of time) poſt mortem of the Leſſees; foraſmuch as both died before the determination of the leaſe and as hath been ſaid, the ſtrongeſt conſtruction ſhall be taken againſt the leſſor, and the moſt beneficial for the leſſee, and that is, that the ſecond leaſe ſhall begin either after the re-entry by force of the Proviſo, if any be, and if there be none, then after the determination and end of the firſt term. And Wroteſley's Caſe in Plowd. Com. 192. was cited, when a woman leſſee for years took a Husband, and he in the Reverſion leaſed the Land for years to begin after the term demiſed to the Husband, where in truth the firſt term was demiſed to the Wife, and by act in Law transferred to the Husband; and yet by reaſonable conſtruction it was there reſolved,

[b] That the Lands was by the woman demiſed to the Husband to make the leaſe to have a good beginning. It was alſo agreed in this caſe, that the ſecond leaſe did veſt preſently in point of intereſt, and did not depend in contingency, to take effect in poſſeſſion, or at the end of the former term, if by none of the three accidents the firſt leaſe became void in the mean time; and which of them ſhould firſt happen, the leaſe ſhould begin; for it was reſolved, If a man make a leaſe for years to begin after the ſurrender, forfeiture, determination or end of a former leaſe, in this caſe the leſſee hath not any election to have the ſecond leaſe, either upon ſurrender or forfeiture, or end which he will chuſe, but which of them ſhall firſt happen, the ſecond leaſe which before conſiſted in intereſſe termini, ſhall begin in poſſeſſion. And therefore put caſe that the firſt leſſee ſurrendreth to the leſſor, the ſecond leſſee cannot elect that his leaſe ſhall begin after the expiration of the term, but preſently by the ſurrender his leaſe cometh in poſſeſſion, and from this time the years of the ſecond leaſe ſhall incur; for theſe words (which of them firſt happeneth) are implied in Law.

Trin. 3 Jacobi, in the Kings Bench.

The Dean and Chapter of Worceſter's Caſe.

[37] THe Dean and Chapter of Worceſter were ſeiſed of the Mannor of Hambleton in Fee in the right of their Church, of which Mannor one Henry Gardiner was a Copyholder for life of certain land whereof the ancient rent was eight ſhillings and eight pence, payable at four days of the year, viz. quarterly, and Heriotable at the death of the Tenant, the Copy holds of which Mannor were grantable by the cuſtom of the Mannor for three lives. The Dean and Chapter, anno 24 Eliz. by deed indented under their common Seal leaſed the ſaid lands to the ſaid Henry Gardiner and his Aſſignees for the lives of John, Richard and Margaret Gardiner, and the Survivor of them; and afterwards the Dean died, the Succeſſor and the Chapter did enter to avoid the Leaſe, and the queſtion was, If this Leaſe was to be avoided by the Statute of 13 Eliz. cap. 10. or not? And it was argued that this leaſe was avoided for four cauſes. Firſt, That the ſaid leaſe was made for the lives of other, in which caſe it may happen that there ſhall be an occupant who ſhall not be ſubject to Waſte, no more than the Tenant by Statute Merchant, Merchant or Tenant by Elegit, &c. who come in by the Law without any demiſe, Vide 16 Ed. 3. Waſt 100. 21 Ed. 3. 26. For although there is not any expreſs clauſe of reſtraint of Leaſes without impeachment of Waſt, as in the Statute 32 Hen. 8. cap. 28. yet ſuch Leaſe is againſt the intent and equity of the ſaid Statute of 13 Eliz. for as it appeareth by the Preamble, The Statute was made againſt unreaſonable Leaſes; and it is unreaſonable that a Leſſee ſhall at his pleaſure do waſt and ſpoil, which is againſt the Commonwealth, for intereſt Rei pub. ne ſua re quis male utatur. Alſo it appeareth by the Preamble, That the Statute was made againſt decay of Spiritual livings; and therefore if Dean and Chapter make a Leaſe for life, the Remainder for life, this Leaſe is not warranted by the ſaid Act becauſe it is diſpuniſhable of Waſt. 2. It was objected, That this Land had not been uſually demiſed; for a demiſe in this caſe is to be intended of a demiſe at the Common Law, and not a cuſtomary demiſe, whereof the Common Law doth not take any notice. 3. The ancient rent is not reſerved, nor the benefit which the Copyhold eſtate yeildeth to the Lord was reſerved; for the Heriot thereby is loſt; and it was not the intent of the Act, that any prejudice of any benefit which is of continuance, as doubling of the Rent, every three or four year a Heriot, or other benefit at the death of the Tenant ſhould be loſt. 4. The Rent reſerved was not payable as it accuſtomably had been paid; for now it is reſerved to be paid every half year at two Feaſts, where it was payable at four Feaſts of the year before. And to this purpoſe the Lord Mountjoy's Caſe was cited, which you may ſee in the fifth Part of my Reports; for by the ſame reaſon where the Rent is reſerved at two days, it might be reſerved at one day in prejudice to them in reverſion in hindrance of Hoſpitality, which the Statute (as appeareth by the Preamble) did intend to advance. As to the firſt, it was anſwered and reſolved, That a Dean and Chapter, &c. are reſtrained by the equity of the ſaid Act to make Leaſes diſpuniſhable of Waſt, for the cauſes alledged on the other ſide. But it was alſo reſolved, That an occupant ſhall be puniſhed for waſt, becauſe he hath the Eſtate of Leſſee for life; For the Statute of Glouceſter cap. 5. giveth an Action of Waſt againſt him who holdeth in any manner for life or years, and an occupant holdeth for term of life; but Tenant by Statute Merchant, by Statute Staple, or Elegit, do not hold for life, or years, and therefore they are out of the Statute. And therefore Leaſes for the lives of others, are within the ſaid Act of 32 Hen. 8. cap. 28. concerning Leaſes made by Tenant in tail, as well as they are within this Act of 13 Eliz. To the ſecond Objection it was anſwered and reſolved, That the ſaid Eſtate granted by Copy was in Judgment of the Common Law an Eſtate at will; and without queſtion, Lands which have been accuſtomably uſed to be demiſed at will by thoſe who have the Inheritance of the Lands, rendring Rent, are Lands accuſtomably letten to farm within the Act. And according to this reſolution was the opinion of the whole Court of Common Pleas, Paſch. 3 Jacobi, Vide Heydons Caſe in the ſecond Part of my Reports. To the third Objection it was anſwered and reſolved, That the ſaid Act of 13 Eliz. doth not avoid the Leaſe if the accuſtomed yearly rent or more be reſerved; and foraſmuch as the Heriot was not an annual thing, nor a thing depending upon Rent, it is ſufficient that the yearly Rent be reſerved. To the fourth Objection it was alſo anſwered and reſolved, That it is ſufficient if the accuſtomed Rent be reſerved yearly at one time; for the words of the Act are, whereupon the accuſtomed yearly Rent or more ſhall be reſerved. And therefore if the Rent be yearly reſerved, the Statute is ſatisfied, by reaſon of this word (yearly) and ſo there is a difference between this Caſe and the Lord Mountjoy's Caſe; for there wanted the word (yearly) which explaineth the intention of the makers of the ſaid Act of 13 Eliz.

Bellamy's Caſe.

Walker brought Treſpaſs againſt Bellamy for carrying away his goods, &c. The Defendant conveyed to him a Houſe by Feoffment, and juſtified for damage feazance; the Plaintiff pleaded a Leaſe made to one of this houſe for years by the Feoffor by deed indented, before the Feoffment, which the Leſſee did aſſign to him; the Defendant confeſſed the Leaſe, but ſaid, that the leaſe was upon condition that he ſhould not let or aſſign over without licence of the Leſſor, and alledged that the Leſſee without licence did aſſign to the Plaintiff; the Plaintiff pleaded the licence of the Leſſor to the Leſſee by deed, without ſaying hic in cur. prolat. and for that cauſe the Defendant did demurr in Law. And although of neceſſity the licence ought to be by deed, and the reaſon and cauſes that deeds are ſhewed to the Court is, becauſe it belongeth to the Judges to Judge of the ſufficiency or inſufficiency of them. Yet it was reſolved, that the Plaintiff need not to ſhew the Deed, for three cauſes. 1. Becauſe the the Plaintiff doth not claim by the deed of licence any intereſt in the houſe, but licence is meer collateral to the intereſt of it, and pleaded only to excuſe the forfeiture of the Leaſe, and is not like to a releaſe or confirmation; for they transfer their Right. 2. A good difference was taken and agreed when a deed is requiſite ex inſtitutione Legis, and when ex proviſione hominis; for when it is requiſite ex inſtitutione Legis, there it ought to be ſhewed in Court, although it concern a collateral thing, and transfer and convey nothing. As if the Major and Commonalty of London have an eſtate for the life of J. S. if in caſe the Major and Commonalty attorn to the grantee of the Reverſion, the Law doth require that it ſhould be by deed; for notwithſtanding that the grantee doth not claim in by them who attorn, and that an attornment is but a conſent, yet in pleading, the deed of attornment ought to be ſhewed, for the deed is requiſite ex inſtitutione Legis in ſuch caſe. But when a deed is requiſite ex proviſione hominis, there the proviſion of man ſhall not change the Judgment of Law in ſuch caſe; As if a man make a Leaſe for years of Land to A. upon condition that he ſhall not aſſign it over but by deed only, and not by word, in this caſe ex proviſione hominis, the aſſignment ought to be by deed, but becauſe ex inſtitutione Legis, a deed is not neceſſary to the Aſſignee, he may plead the Aſſignment without ſhewing a deed of it. And if the Kings Fermor bring a Quo minus in the Exchequer, he ought to alledge that he is the Kings Fermor to enable him to ſue there; but he needeth not to ſhew it to the Court, for that it is meer collateral to the Action. 3. Henry Finch's Caſe.

[39] Thomas Moon brought a Replevin againſt Daniel Crat, and Thomas Baldwin, who made conuſans as Bailiffs to Henry Finch, Eſq, becauſe the place where, &c. was parcel of the Mannor of Eaſt-well, whereof the Lady Finch was ſeiſed in fee, and by her deed dated 6 Eliz. did grant to the ſaid Henry Finch her younger Son, an yearly Rent of 20 l. exeunt. de prædict. Manerio de Eaſtwell inter alia per nomen maneriorum de Eaſtwell, Otterplea, Potburie, & Seton, & meſſuagiorum, terrarum, tenementorum, & hereditamentorum dictæ Katherinæ, ſcituat. jacen. & exiſten. in parochiis de Eaſtwell, Weſtwell, & Challock in Com. Kanc. aut alibi in eodem Com. dict. Maneriis ſive eorum alicui quoquo modo ſpectant. vel pertinent. to the ſaid Henry Finch, and the heirs of his body, payable at the feaſts of the Annunciation and St. Michael, by even portions, with Clauſe of diſtreſs; And for Rent behind they made Conuſans. The Plaintiff prayed Oyer of the Deed, which was entred in hæc verba, and had it, and ſaid, that præter & ultra the ſaid Mannors of E. O. P. and S. and the premiſſes appertaining to the ſaid Manors, the Lady Finch at the time of the granting of the ſaid Rent, was alſo ſeiſed of one Acre of Land in Fee in Challock aforeſaid, and died ſeiſed, which deſcended to Sir Moile Finch as her Son and heir; and that the ſaid Henry had abated in the ſaid Acre, and ſo continued ſeiſed by abatement: upon which the Defendants did demurr in Law. And the Queſtion was, If the ſaid Acre of Land (which was not parcel, nor appertaining to the ſaid Mannors) were by the words aforeſaid charged with the ſaid Rent, or not; And after many Arguments at the Bar, and the Caſe well debated at the Bench, It was adjudged, That the ſaid Rent was not iſſuing out of the ſaid Acre of Land, but only out of the ſaid [b] Mannors and Land appertaining to them. And the Chief reaſon and cauſe of their Judgment was, becauſe that in this caſe there is but one grant, and one ſentence; for there is not a full ſtop nor end of the ſentence, before the concluſion of theſe words (aut alibi, &c.) And the difference is between two diſtinct ſentences importing ſeveral grants, and one ſentence; As if the grant had been Dedi & Conceſſi annuam redditum 20 l. exeunt de manerio de D. & terris & tenementis meis in D. S. & D. in Com. K. & de terris & tenementis meis alibi in eodem Com. dict. Manerio ſpectant. & pertin. In that Caſe there are two ſentences, and each one may ſtand by it ſelf, for there is iteration De terris & tenementis, which do amplifie and enlarge the Lands and Tenements, out of which the Rent is to iſſue; but in the Caſe at barr there is not any iteration or enlagment of Lands or Tenements after the aut alibi; but the aut alibi doth not enlarge the grant of the Rent to iſſue out of other Lands or Tenements, but enlargeth the Towns or places, in which the lands before charged do extend; as if he ſaid, in parochia de E. W. & C. aut alibi in dict. Com. K. dict. maner. ſpect. ſeu pertin. for hæc verba in hoc caſu tranſpoſita idem ſignificant: Alſo, although that this conjunction disjunctive (aut) in this caſe amounteth in Law to a Copulative, Yet it was well obſerved that (aut) was never put for the beginning of a ſentence, but always as a continuance of a former ſentence, in the ſame manner as (una cum) conjoyneth the matter ſubſequent to the matter precedent. Alſo here in the principal Caſe, theſe Participles ſpectan. & pertinen. in Conſtruction agree to theſe words Meſſuag. terr. tenement. & hereditament. for there are not other Nouns to which they can agree; But as it hath been ſaid, if there had been after the (Aut) any new iteration, or mention of Lands or Tenements, with which theſe particles ſpectan. & pertinen. might agree in true Conſtruction, then there may be a difference.

Mich. 3 Jacobi, in the Kings Bench.

Sir Anthony Mildmay's Caſe.

THis Term the Caſe, upon a ſpecial verdict in an Action of Treſpaſs, done at Newton in the County of Northampton, Between James Hetherſall, Leſſee of Humphrey Mildmay Eſq; Plaintiff, againſt Sir Anthony Mildmay Knight Defendant, (which was mutatis mutandis all one with Corbets Caſe reported by me in the firſt part of my Reports f. 84.) was argued at the bar, as it had been in ſundry Terms paſt; and was alſo argued by the Judges: And was adjudged againſt the Plaintiff, according to the judgment given in Corbet's caſe. And in this caſe ſome points upon great Conſideration were reſolved, which were not moved in Corbet's caſe: 1. That all theſe perpetuities were againſt the reaſon and policy of the Common law; For at the Common law all Inheritances were Fee-ſimple, as Littleton ſaith in his Chapter of Eſtate tail; and the reaſon thereof was, that neither Lords ſhould be defeated of their Eſcheats, Wards, &c. nor the Farmers or purchaſers ſhould loſe their eſtates or leaſes, or ſhould be evicted by the heirs of the grantors or leſſors; nor ſuch infinite occaſions of troubles, contentions and ſuits ſhould ariſe. But the true policy and Rule of the Common law in this point, was in effect overthrown by the Statute of Donis Conditionalibus, made Anno 13 E. 1. which eſtabliſhed a general perpetuity by Act of Parliament, for all who had or would make the ſame, by force whereof all the poſſeſſions of England in effect were entailed accordingly, which was the occaſion and cauſe of the ſaid and other miſchiefs. And the ſame was attempted and endeavoured to be remedied by divers Parliaments; and divers Bills were exhibited accordingly (which I have ſeen) but they were always upon one pretence or other rejected. But the truth was, That the Lords and Commons knowing that the eſtate tails were not to be forfeited for Felony or Treaſon; as their eſtates of Inheritances were before the ſaid Act, (and chiefly in the time of H. 3. in the Barons wars) and finding that they were not anſwerable for the debts or Incumbrances of their Anceſtors, nor the ſales, leaſes, or alienations of their Anceſtors, did bind them for the Lands which were intailed to their Anceſtors, always rejected ſuch Bills: and the ſame continued in the reſidue of the reign of E. 1. and of the reigns of E. 2. E. 3. R. 2. H. 4. H. 5. H. 6. and until and about the 12 year of E. 4. When the Judges upon Conſultation had amongſt themſelves, did reſolve, That the eſtate tail might be cut off and barred by a Common Recovery; and that by reaſon of the intended recompence, the Common Recovery was not within the reſtraint of the ſaid perpetuity made by the ſaid Act of 13 E. 1. By which it appeareth, That many miſchiefs do ariſe upon the Change of a Maxim, and Rule of the Common Law, which thoſe which altered could not ſee, when they made the change; For Rerum progreſſus oſtendunt multa, quæ in initio præcaveri ſeu prævideri non poſſunt. 2. It was reſolved, That it was impoſſible and repugnant, that an eſtate tail ſhould ceaſe as if the Tenant in tail were dead, (had he iſſue or not) for an eſtate tail cannot ceaſe, ſo long as it continueth; but here his intent was to continue the eſtate tail; and to ceſs it in reſpect of the party offending only, and not as to any other, which is impoſſible and repugnant, and againſt the Law; For every Condition or Limitation ought to defeat the whole eſtate, and not to defeat part of the eſtate, and to leave part not defeated; and it cannot make an eſtate to ceaſe quoad unam perſonam, and not quoad alteram: But an Act of Parliament may make an eſtate to ceaſe as if one were dead, 21 H. 8. that by the acceptance of the ſecond benefice, the firſt ſhall be void as if one were dead, and in 10 Eliz. Dier 274. there is reſtitution by Parliament with a Quoad. So the policy of the Common law may make a Quoad, as in 22 Eliz. Dier 369. a marriage infra annos nubiles, is perfect quoad dotem, and quoad other purpoſes, it is but inchoatum & imperfectum. So if two are joyntly and and ſeverally bound in a bond, and Judgment is given againſt one, by which it is become of Record as to one, but as to the other, it remaineth writing as it was before: But no Condition or Limitation framed by the parties words in his Deeds, can make an Eſtate tail in any Lands to ceaſe as to one perſon, and be in eſſe as to another, or to ceaſe for one time, and to revive after (as a rent newly created may.) And none can have an Eſtate in tail, but parties in Eſtate ſecundam formam doni. 3. It was reſolved, That if a man maketh a Gift in tail upon Condition, that he ſhall not ſuffer a common Recovery, that this Condition is repugnant to the Eſtate tail, and againſt Law. For there are divers incidents to an Eſtate tail. 1. To be diſpuniſhed for Waſt. 2. That his wife ſhall be endowed. 3. That the Husband of a woman, Tenant in tail after iſſue, ſhall be Tenant by the Courteſie. 4. That the Tenant in tail may ſuffer a Common Recovery, and thereby bar the Eſtate tail, and the Reverſion and Remainder alſo. And theſe inſeparable incidents which the Law annexeth to an Eſtate tail, cannot be prohibited by Condition. And therefore if a man maketh Gift in tail upon Condition that the Donee ſhall not do waſt, or that his wife ſhall not be endowed, or that the Husband of the wife, Tenant in tail after iſſue ſhall not be Tenant by the Courteſie, or that Tenant in tail ſhall not ſuffer a Common Recovery; theſe Conditions are repugnant and againſt Law, becauſe by the Gift in tail, he tacitly enableth him to commit waſt, that his wife ſhall be endowed, and to ſuffer a Common Recovery. And therefore it is repugnant to reſtrain it by Condition, for that ſhould be to give power, and to reſtrain the ſame by the ſame Deed. And as to the Caſe of Dower, vide 22 E. 3. 19. Accord 17 Elizabeth Dier 343. the Earl of Arundel's Caſe. And although that a Common Recovery is but a Comon aſſurance. Yet by the Law every Tenant in tail hath power to ſuffer it to bar as well the Eſtate tail, as the Reverſion or Remainder over. And ſuch act in reſpect of the intended Recompence, is not reſtrained by the Statute of Donis conditionalibus as it hath been

been ſaid. But Tenant in tail by a Common Recovery hath poteſtatem alienandi, notwithſtanding the ſaid Statute. As if a man before the ſaid Statute had made a Gift to one and to the heirs of his body, in this Caſe poſt prolem ſuſcitatam, he had by the Common Law poteſtatem alienandi, and therefore in the ſame caſe, if the Donor add ſuch a Condition, that after iſſue the Donee ſhould not alien, it was reſolved that the Condition in ſuch caſe had been repugnant, becauſe that after iſſue, by the Common Law, the Donee had poteſtatem alienandi, and in one and the ſame Deed to give him power poſt prolem ſuſcitatam poteſtatem alienandi tacite by the Law, and in the ſame Deed to reſtrain him of that power, is repugnant and againſt Law. Pari ratione after the Statute if a man maketh a Gift in tail, upon Condition that he ſhall not ſuffer a Common Recovery, it is repugnant; for by the Gift in tail he hath [b] given him power implicite to ſuffer a Common recovery. So if a man make a Proviſo, That Warranty and Aſſets ſhall not bar the iſſue in tail, or that a Collateral warranty ſhall not bar the iſſue, or the Donor, theſe Proviſoes are againſt Law and repugnant, 6 Eliz. Dier 227. a Proviſo good at the beginning, by conſequence may become Repugnant. As if a man by his Deed grant a Rent for life, Proviſo that he ſhall not charge his perſon, this is a good Proviſo. Yet if the Rent be behind and the Grantee dieth, his Executors ſhall charge the perſon of the Grantor in an Action of debt: for otherwiſe they ſhould be without remedy, and therefore now it is become repugnant, and by conſequence void. But it was reſolved, That if a man maketh a Gift in tail, upon Condition that he ſhall not alien, this Condition to ſome intent is good, and to ſome void. And therefore if he maketh a Feoffment in fee, or other eſtate, by which the Reverſion is wrongfully diſcontinued, the Donor ſhall enter for the Condition broken: for every thing which is prohibited by the Law, or which doth wrong, a man may prohibit by a Condition, vide 10 H. 7. 11. but (as hath been ſaid) if in ſuch Caſe, the Donee ſuffereth a Common Recovery, the Condition by the Law cannot extend to it, cauſa qua ſupra. In the ſame manner it is, If a Deed of feoffment be made to a Husband and wife in fee, upon condition that they ſhall not alien, it is a good condition to reſtrain a Feoffment or alienation by deed, for that is wrongful, but not to reſtrain an alienation by them both by Fine; for that is lawful and incident to their eſtate. So if a man doth enfeoff an Infant in fee, upon condition that he ſhall not alien, it is a good condition to reſtrain an alienation during his minority, for that is wrongful, but not reſtrain him to alien, when he is of full age, for that is repugnant to his liberty, which the Law hath given him in caſe of Fee-ſimple; and with theſe two Caſes agree 10 H. 7. 11. & 13 H. 7. 23. and ſo you will better underſtand the Books in 33 Aſſ. p. 11. 24. 11 H. 6. 6. 21 H. 6. 33. 39. 10 H. 7. 11. 11 H. 7. 6. 13 H. 7. 23. 21 H. 7. 11. And it is to be obſerved, that before the Reign of E. 4. it was not reſolved, as hath been ſaid, that a Common recovery ſhould bar the Eſtate tail, and the Reverſions and Remainders depending thereupon: And therefore thoſe old Books which ſpeak of alienation made by Tenant in tail, cannot be intended but to reſtrain diſcontinuance and alienations which did wrong, and not to prohibit a Common recovery, the operation of which was not then known, and which till the Reign of E. 4. was not in uſe. And the reaſon of Littleton, lib. 3. Cap. Condic. fol. 84. a. was well obſerved, who ſaith, That if a man maketh a feoffment upon Condition, that a man ſhall not alien to any, the Condition is void, becauſe that when a man is enfeoffed of Land, or Tenements, he hath power to alien them to any perſon by the Law: For if ſuch Condition ſhould be good, then the condition ſhould take that power from him, which the [42] Law giveth him, which ſhall be againſt reaſon, and therefore ſuch Condition is void; all which are the words of Mr. Littleton, the reaſon of which agreeth with the reſolution of this point in this Caſe. And it was ſaid, that the Law doth favour Eſtate tails in poſſeſſion, and doth not regard Remainders or Reverſions expectant upon the Eſtate tail. For it was adjudged in Capel's Caſe, as appeareth in the firſt part of my Reports, That if Tenant in tail ſuffereth a Commmon recovery, it ſhall bar not only the Eſtate tail, and Remainder and Reverſion, but the Rent alſo that he in the Remainder or Reverſion hath granted. So it was adjudged in 12 Eliz. between Terling and Trafford in the Kings Bench, That a Remainder or Reverſion expectant upon an Eſtate tail is no Aſſets to the Heir in debt upon an Obligation made by his Father. So Hil. 14. Eliz. it was reſolved by all the Juſtices of the Common Pleas in Copwoods Caſe, That if there be Tenant in tail, the Remainder to the right heirs of I. S. and Tenant in tail ſuffereth a Common recovery, I. S. being then alive, it ſhall bar the Remainder, which was in abeyance and conſideration of the Law. 4. Where the Proviſo is, That if when, and as often as the ſaid Anthothony Mildmay, &c. ſhall be fully and finally reſolved and determined, and ſhall adviſedly, determinately and effectually deviſe, conclude and agree, or enter into any communication, promiſe, or covenant whatſoever, or ſhall adviſedly attempt, procure, go about, or aſſent to or for any act or acts, thing or things, for or touching any bargin, ſale, diſcontinuance, alienation, conveyance or aſſurance to be had or made of any of the ſaid Mannnors, &c. whereby any eſtate, &c. may, ſhould or might in any wiſe, or by any means be undone, diſcontinued, &c. and the ſame bargain, &c. or ſhall adviſedly and effectually attempt, procuce, go about, to or for any act or thing for or touching any bargain, ſale, diſcontinuance, &c. and the ſame bargain, or any other open matter, &c. ſhall attempt, go about, cauſe, &c. by acknowledgment of any note of any fine, or any warrant or warrants of Attorney for any recovery or voucher, or by acknowledgment of any deed, or by any other act or acts, thing or things whatſoever in deed or in Law, &c. That then immediately after ſuch time of ſuch procuring, attempting, or going about in form aforeſaid, and before any ſuch bargain, ſale, diſcontinuance, &c. had, made, &c. or done, the ſaid uſe or uſes, eſtate and eſtates, &c. ſhall from time to time ceaſe, as only in reſpect and having regard to ſuch perſon or perſons ſo attempting, going about, &c. and no otherwiſe. It was reſolved, That theſe words (Attempt) or (go about, &c.) or (enter into communication) &c. are words incertain, and void in Law, and God forbid that the inheritances and eſtates of men ſhould depend upon [b] ſuch incertainties; For it is true, Quod miſera eſt ſervitus, ubi jus eſt vagum: & quod non definitur in jure quid ſit conatus, ne quid is a going about, &c. or communication: And therefore the Rule of Law doth decide this point Non efficit conatus neſi ſequitur effectus: And the Law doth reject Conations and goings about as things incertain, which cannot be put in iſſue. For if one who is tied with ſuch perpetuity goeth to Council learned, to know whether he might alien part for payment of his debts, or for advancement of his younger Children, or for any other needful uſe, is that a breach of the Proviſo or not? or if the heir or other in Remainder who knew not of the Proviſo, & qui habet juſtam ignorantiam, thinketh that he may levy a Fine, And thereupon a Note of a Fine is drawn, &c. and before that it be recorded, he knoweth of the Proviſo, and then all is cancelled, is that a breach of the Proviſo? And a hundred ſuch like Queſtions, where nothing is done, may ariſe, which the Eye of Law never ſaw, but of late times are invented; And ſuch Proviſo is full of Cruelty and againſt the Freedom and Liberty of a Freeman: For the ſame (as if he had Bolts of Iron upon his Legs) doth reſtrain him to go about; and alſo it ſealeth up his Lips, and depriveth him of the uſe of his Tongue; For it reſtraineth him to enter into Speech. And in the ſaid Books aforeſaid, where the alienation of Tenant in tail is reſtrained, no mention was ever made of reſtraining of going about, or entring into Communication, for that was then thought idle, and there is not any touch of any ſuch matter in any of the ſaid Books, or in any other Book of the Law. Caſe of Richil, reported by Litleton, lib. 3. cap. Warranty, 163. Richil reſtrained his Sons for aliening, and not of going, or entring Communication of aliening, and yet if he could have reſtrained the going about, &c. it had avoided one of the Cauſes, that his conveyance was againſt Law. For Littleton ſaith, That if the firſt Son alieneth the Tenements in fee, then is the Free-hold and Fee-ſimple in the Alienee, and in no other, &c. then although for ſome reaſon it might be, that ſuch Remainder ſhould begin and have its eſſence immediately after alienation made to a Stranger, who had by the ſame alienation the Free-hold and Fee-ſimple; But if Juſtice Richil could have reſtrained the going about or entring into Communication, or making of a Charter of Feoffment, or of a Note of a Fine, he might have avoided the principal cauſe for which his Conveyance was ſufficient in Law. And in the ſame manner it may be ſaid of the Conveyance of Thirning Chief Juſtice, reported in 21 H. 6. 33. And it was ſaid, that a going about, or entring into Communication was not iſſuable. Farther it was ſaid, that if a man maketh a Gift in tail, upon condition that he ſhall not make a Feoffment, it is a good Condition; but if the Condition be that he ſhall not make a Charter of Feoffment, it is not good, for that without Livery (as Littleton ſaith fol. 15.) doth not amount but to a tenancy at Will, which Tenant in tail cannot be reſtrained to make. So if a man maketh a Gift in tail, upon condition that he ſhall not make a Leaſe for his own life, it is void and repugnant; But if a man maketh a Leaſe for life or years, upon condition that he ſhall not alien or leaſe the Land, it is good. For at the Common Law, Leſſee for life or years might have done waſte, which was ad exhæreditationem of the Leſſor, and therefore there was confidence betwixt the Leſſor and Leſſee, and therefore the Leſſor might reſtrain the Leſſee to alien, or to demiſe to another, in whom perhaps the Leſſor had not ſuch confidence. And therefore reaſon would, that when he who had the Inheritance made a Leaſe for life or years, that he might reſtrain ſuch particular Tenants to alien or Demiſe for the benefit of his Inheritance. But when a man makes a Gift in tail (which is an Eſtate of Inheritance, and by poſſibility may continue for ever) and thereby maketh the Donee chief Owner of the Land, he cannot reſtrain him to make any lawful act or eſtate which doth not wrong to any, and which by Law he may do of the ſame Land. So and for the ſame reaſon, if a man maketh a Gift in tail of a Mannor, upon condition that he ſhall not make any voluntary Grant of the Lands by Copy according to the Cuſtom of the Mannor, &c. it is not good; But if he make a Leaſe for years or life with ſuch condition, it is good, cauſa qua ſupra. And by theſe differences you will better underſtand your Books in 21 H. 6. 33. 8 H. 7. 10. b. 11 H. 7. 6. b. 13 H. 7. 23. a. Laſtly, the intent of the Statute of 27 H. 8. (as appeareth by the Preamble) was to reſtore the ancient Common Law, and to root out and extinguiſh all ſubtil inventions, imaginations and practices of uſes which had introduced many miſchiefs and inconveniencies mentioned in the Preamble. And that was very good and neceſſary for the Commonwealth: For the Common Law hath certain Rules to direct the Eſtates of Inheritances of Lands, and therefore it is without any compariſon better to have Eſtates of Inheritances provided by the certain Rules of the Common Law (which hath been an old, true and faithful Servant to this Commonwealth) than by the incertain imagination and conjecture of any of theſe new Inventors of uſes, without any approved ground of reaſon or Law. Note Reader, this Judgment agreeth with the former Judgment, as well in Corbet's Caſe, as the caſe between Humble and Cholmeley, and Germin and Arſcot, there cited, and with the Judgment in Dillon and Frein's Caſe. And in this Caſe it was obſerved, That in the ſaid Proviſo found at large by the ſpecial verdict, there are more than a thouſand words, where in our Books, when Tenant in tail was reſtrained to alien, there were not above twelve words in the Reſtraint. Et hæc fuit candida illius ætatis fides, & ſimplicitas, quæ pauculis lineis omnia fidei firmamenta poſuerunt. And ſo this Caſe is now adjudged in both Courts. Blake's Caſe.

EDen brought a Writ of Covenant againſt Blake Aſſignee of Price, and the breach was for not repairing of the Houſe, the Defendant pleaded an Accord between him and the Plaintiff, and execution thereof in ſatisfactione & exoneratione decaſus reparationum prædict. upon which the Plaintiff did demurr; which Plea began in the Common Pleas, 3 Jac. rot. 1033. And it was objected, That this Action of Covenant was founded upon the Deed, and could not be diſcharged but by matter of as high nature, and not by any accord or matter in pais. For Nihil tam conveniens eſt naturali æquitati, unumquodque diſſolvi eodem ligamine quo ligatum eſt. And it appeareth by our Books, That neither Arbitrament, nor Accord with ſatisfaction is a Plea, when the Action is grounded upon a Deed, Vid. 1. H. 7. 14. 33 H. 8. 59 Dier. 1 H. 5. 6, 7. 45 E. 3. 4. 25 H. 8. *B. When the action is in the realty, or mixt with the realty, accord with ſatisfaction is no Plea; for accord with ſatisfaction is a bar for the perſonalty, and not of the realty, and when the perſonalty is mixt with the realty it is no bar for the perſonalty; for omne majus trahit ad ſe minus. Vide 11 H. 7. 13. 13 H. 7. 20. in Waſt. So in a raviſhment of Ward, Quare impedit, &c. But it was reſolved by the whole Court, that the Defendants Plea was [44] good in the Caſe at bar; For there is a difference, when a Duty doth accrue by the Deed in certainty tempore confectionis ſcripti, as by Covenant, Bill, or Obligation, to pay a ſum of mony, there this certain Duty taketh his eſſence and operation originally and ſoly by the writing; and therefore it ought to be avoided by a matter of as high nature, although that the Duty be meerly in the perſonalty; but when no certain Duty doth acrue by the Deed, but a wrong or default ſubſequent, together with the Deed, giveth an Action for to recover damages which are only in the perſonalty, for ſuch wrong or default, accord with ſatisfaction is a good Plea; As in the Caſe at Bar, the Covenant doth not give to the Plaintiff at the time of the making of it any cauſe of Action, but the wrong or default after in not repairing of the Houſe, together with the Deed, giveth an Action to recover damages for default of Reparations. And for as much as the end of the Action is but to have amends, and damages in the perſonalty for this wrong, for this cauſe amends and ſatisfaction given to the Plaintiff is a good Plea. For the Action is not meerly grounded upon the Deed, but alſo upon the Deed and the Wrong together, which wrong is the cauſe of the Action, and for which damages ſhall be recovered, as in 13 E. 4. 1. & 5. in Treſpaſs the Plaintiff recovered by verdict, the Defendant brought attaint againſt the Plaintiff and Petit Jury, and one of the Petit Jury pleaded Accord with ſatisfaction, between the Plaintiff and Defendant, and held a good Plea. For the Writ of Attaint is not only grounded upon the Record, but upon the matter in fact alſo, for the ſuppoſition of the falſity of the oath, is matter in fact. And in 35 H. 6. 30. in Attaint brought upon falſe oath in Appeal of Mayhem, one of the Petit Jury pleaded arbitrament between the Plaintiff and Defendant; And in all Caſes where Arbitrament is a good Plea, accord with ſatisfaction is a good Plea. Vide 6 H. 7. 10. ac. And generally in all Actions where damages only are to be recovered, Arbitrament or Accord with ſatisfaction is a good plea; as in an Action of Waſt in the tenuit, where damages are alone to be recovered: and ſo is the Report of Serjeant Bendlows to be underſtood: For, in an Action of Waſt againſt Leſſee for years in the tenet, accord is no plea, as it hath been before ſaid. So it is to be here gathered upon the book of 35 H. 6. 30. that in Appeal of Mayhem, accord with ſatisfaction is a good plea, becauſe in the ſame action damages are only to be recovered. And ſo is the general Rule put in 6 E. 6. Dier 75. in Andrews Caſe. Vide 47 E. 3. 20. accord for a Rent reſerved upon a Leaſe for years, 7 E. 3. Iſſue 9. 11 H. 7. 4.

Higgins's Caſe.

[b] IN Debt by Randall and his wife Executrix of Themilthorpe againſt Higgins, upon an Obligation made to the Teſtator, the Defendant pleaded that the Teſtator in vita ſua in curia de banco hic recuperavit debitum prædictum, ac 40 s. pro damnis, (without alledging any Execution,) quod quidem recordum recuperationis, was removed extra bancum per br. de Errore coram Rege, & ibidem remanet minime reverſatum ſeu adnullatum, And thereupon it was demurred. And it was Objected, That if a man recovereth debt upon a bond, or Rent upon a leaſe for years, it is at the Plaintiffs election to ſue execution upon that Judgment, or to have a new action; and that for divers reaſons. 1. By the Judgment, the deed or rent is not changed, but continueth a deed and a Rent, notwithſtanding the Judgment; As if a man be indebted in arrearages upon accompt, and taketh a bond for the payment of them, yet yet he may have his action upon the one or the other, as it is agreed in 11 H. 4. and Mich. 2 Jacob. Rot. 3272. in this Court in Debt by Richard Branthwaite againſt Sir William Cornwalleys upon an Obligation for payment of mony, the Defendant pleaded in barr, that the Plaintiff after the day of payment of the mony, and before the writ brought did accept of a Statute Staple for the ſame debt, and in full ſatisfaction of the Obligation; upon which the Plaintiff did demurr; And it was adjudged for the Plaintiff. For although that he had taken a Statute for the ſame debt, which is a matter of Record, and of a higher nature than the Obligation is, yet the Obligation did remain in force; and it was in the Plaintiffs election, to bring his action or remedy upon the one or the other. 2. It was objected, That it ſhould be againſt reaſon, to inforce the Plaintiff to ſue execution upon the firſt Judgment, for perhaps the Plaintiff knoweth that the firſt Judgment is erronious, or that he has recovered by falſe Oaths, in which caſe the Judgment is reverſable by Error, or Attaint, and therefore if he ſhould ſue execution, it ſhould be in vain; for he ought to reſtore (when the Judgment is reverſed) all that which he hath received. 3. It was objected, if in debt upon an Obligation the Defendant doth deny his deed, and it be found his deed, in this caſe the deed ſhall be delivered to the Plaintiff, and the cauſe is, to the end he may have a new action if he will; but if it be found not his deed, the deed ought always to remain in Court, till the Plaintiff hath reverſed the Judgment, Vide 9 E. 4. 50. 4. If two be bound in an Obligation joyntly and ſeverally, and the Obligee doth recover againſt one of them upon this bond, the nature of the bond is not changed by this Recovery, but he may upon the ſame bond have an action againſt the other. But it was Reſolved, that as long as the Judgment doth remain in force he cannot have a new action upon the ſame bond; for as he who hath a debt by ſimple contract, and taketh an Obligation for the ſame debt, or part of it, the Contract is determined, 3 H. 4. 17. 11 H. 4. 9 E. 4. 50, 51. So when a man hath a debt upon an Obligation, and by Ordinary Courſe of Law hath Judgment, that upon the Contract by ſpecialty which is of the inferiour nature, is by the judgment of Law changed into a matter of Record, which is of a higher nature. 2. If he who recovereth may have a new action and a new Judgment, he may have infinite actions, and infinite Judgments, to perpetual vexation and charge of the Defendant, & infinitum in jure reprobatur. 3. Upon every Judgment the Defendant ſhall be amerced, and if he be a Duke, Marqueſs, Earl, Viſcount, or Baron, he ſhall be amerced to 100 s. and ſo the Defendant might be infinitely amerced upon one and the ſame Obligation, which ſhould be miſchievous, & intereſt reipublicæ ut ſit finis litium. And if a man hath a liberty by preſcription, and taketh Letters Patents of them, the matter of record doth drown the preſcription which was the inferiour, as it is holden in 33 H. 8. Br. preſcription 102. Vid. 10 H. 7. 21. & 24. 2 E. 4. 14. b. 22 H. 6. 56. 8 H. 4. 16. 34 H. 6. 26. &c. And if a man hath an annuity by deed or preſcription, and bringeth his Writ of annuity, and hath Judgment, ſo long as this Judgment doth remain in force, he ſhall never have a Writ of annuity, (although it be annuity of inheritance) but a Scire fac. upon that Judgment; becauſe that the matter of the ſpecialty or preſcription, is by the Judgment altered into a thing of a higher nature. Vide 37 H. 6. 13. Judgment in an action of Forgery of a falſe deed, is a good barr in another action upon the ſame forgery. But if recovery be in debt upon an Obligation in the County by Juſticies, there notwithſtanding ſuch judgment, the Plaintiff may have an action of debt upon the bond in a Court of Record, for the County Court is not of Record, and therefore the Obligation is not changed with a thing of a higher nature; but ſo long as ſuch judgment remaineth in force, the Plaintiff ſhall not have an action by Juſticies in the ſame Court, for the infinite vexation of the party, as hath been ſaid. And as to the Caſe of Branthwait, it was agreed to be good Law; for a Statute Staple, or Obligation in the nature thereof, is but an Obligation recorded, and one Obligation, be it of record, or out of record, cannot drown another. Alſo an Obligation, and Obligation in the nature of a Statute Staple, are two diſtinct bindings, made by aſſent of the parties without proceſs of Law, whereof the one hath no dependency on the other. But in an action brought upon an Obligation, the Suit is grounded upon the Obligation, as a building upon a foundation; and the Plaintiff hath Judgment to recover the debt due by the Obligation: ſo that by judicial proceeding, and act in Law, the debt due by the Obligation, is transformed and metamorphoſed into matter of Record; And Judgment in a Court of Record is of higher nature than a Statute Staple, Statute Merchant, or any Recognizance, acknowledged by the aſſent of the parties, without judicial proceedings. And as to the Objection which was made, that perhaps the recovery is erroneous; To that it was anſwered, that that was the Plaintiffs fault, and although it be erroneous, yet ſo long as it remaineth in force, it ought to be executed; and when it is reverſed, than the Obligee is reſtored to his new action upon the Obligation. And it is true, that in old books, after Judgement given in an action of debt, upon an Obligation, the Obligation ſhall be damned, becauſe the duty was changed into another nature, and that was the true reaſon of the old books, and not the reaſon which Brook ſuppoſeth in abridging of the Caſe of 11 H. 4. faits 19. that otherwiſe the Obligee might again recover thereupon. And therewith agreeth 9 E. 4. 51. 7 H. 4. 39. 11 H. 4. 73. 45 E. 3. 11, &c. And the Court had conſideration of the Book of 17 E. 3. 24. Where Ed. Devon brought an action of debt upon an obligation of 20 l. againſt Hugh Scot, who pleaded, that before, the Mayor and Bailiffs of Newcaſtle upon Tine, the Plaintiff by plaint upon the ſame bond, recovered, and had execution; and there becauſe the Defendant did not procure the bond to be damned, the Plaintiff had Judgment to recover again, notwithſtanding the former judgment and execution. And there Shard ſaid to the Defendant, ſee now the deed be damned. But the Court ſaid, that that Judgment was given becauſe it was the Defendants folly, that the deed was not damned upon the firſt judgment. For in the time of E. 3. R. 2. and H. 4 it was holden, That when a man did recover upon an Obligation, that the Obligation, (as hath been ſaid) ſhould be damned. In which was noted, the contentation, and quietneſs of men in old times, that when Judgment was given againſt them by courſe of Law, they were ſatisfied therewith without prying with Eagles eyes into matters of form, or the manner of proceeding, or trial, or inſufficiency of pleading, &c. to the intent to find error to force the party to a new ſute, and himſelf to a new charge and vexation. But after that, men became more contentious, and not ſatisfied with any trial or judgment, but Writs of Error, and Attaints, which in old times, were rare, (and eſpecially Writs of Error) were ſo frequent, as of more late time they were, the Judges thought it dangerous to cancell the deed, either where the Plaintiff recovered, or where he was barred by judgment, for in both caſes the judgment might be reverſed by Error or Attaint; and therefore the reaſon and cauſe of the ſaid judgment in 17 E. 3. is now changed, and there is not any Queſtion but judgment and execution upon a bond, is a good barr in a new action thereupon: and therefore the ſaid book of 17 E. 3. is not to be urged againſt this judgment. Alſo the Court ſaid, that if a man bring an action of debt upon a bond, and is barred by judgment, ſo long as the judgment ſtandeth in force, he cannot have a new action. By the ſame reaſon, when he hath judgment in an action upon the ſame bond, ſo long as the judgment ſtandeth in force, he ſhall not have a new action. And as to the caſe which hath been objected, that where two are bounden joyntly, and ſeverally, and the Obligee hath Judgment againſt one of them, that yet he may ſue the other, it was agreed. For againſt him the nature of the bond is not changed, for notwithſtanding the Judgment, he may plead that it is not his deed. And afterwards in the Caſe at Barr, Judgment was given againſt the Plaintiff, and the doubt in 9 E. 4. 50, 51. where this matter is well debated on both ſides, well reſolved.

or

Dowdale's Caſe.

[b] IN Debt by Richardſon againſt Dowdale, Executor of the Teſtament of Lante, the Defendant pleaded, fully adminiſtred, and the Plaintiff ſaid, that he hath Aſſets at Exceſter, and the Jury found that the Teſtator died infra regnum Hiberniæ, and that the Defendant after the Teſtators death, within the Realm of Ireland, took divers of the Teſtators goods, and adminiſtred, to the value of the debt, and that the Defendant, Nulla alia ſive plura bona quæ fuere teſtatoris, poſt mortem teſtatoris infra regnum Angliæ unquam adminiſtravit, Et ſi, &c. And it was objected by the Defendants Counſell, that it hath been a queſtion in old books, If the Jurors might find tranſitory things in a forreign County: And in 2 Ma. Br. Attaint 104. it is holden that the Jurors of one County, are not compellable to find tranſitory things in another County, but at their pleaſures; And it was ſaid, As Jurors in one County cannot find a thing which is local in another County: So Jurors cannot find any thing, although it be tranſitory, in any other Realm; for by preſumption of Law neither in the one caſe, nor in the other, the Jurors can take knowledge of the thing. As in 10 Eliz. Dyer 271. In Debt brought in London againſt one as Son and heir, upon an Obligation made by his Father, who pleaded nothing by deſcent at the time of the Writ brought, nor ever after, &c. And the Plaintiff did add Aſſets by deſcent in any London, in Parochia & Ward. prædict. and the Plaintiff in Evidence gave Aſſets in Cornwal; And, if that were good Evidence, or if the Jury might find it or not was the Queſtion; And there it was [47] conceived, that it was not good Evidence: nor the Jury could not find this local matter in a forrein County. And 47 E. 3. 2. 21 E. 4. 10. 22. and 36. 10 H. 7. 22. 11 H. 7. and many other books are, that a thing meerly done beyond Sea, ſhall not be tried here: But after many Arguments and good Conſideration, it was reſolved, that Judgment ſhould be given for the Plaintiff. And in this caſe theſe points were reſolved for good Law. Firſt, when the place is material, as when it is made parcel of the iſſue, there the Jurors cannot find the point in iſſue in any other place, for by ſpecial pleading, the point in iſſue is reſtrained to a certain place. 2. There is a difference, when the place is named but for conformity and neceſſity; as when (as it hath been ſaid) it is parcel of the iſſue, as in the caſe which hath been put of 10 Eliz. in debt againſt the heir, he pleadeth nothing by deſcent generally, in that caſe the Plaintiff cannot reply in ſo general manner, for then no trial can be thereof, but in ſuch caſe, for conformity, and neceſſity of trial, he ought to name a certain place, as there he did, within a Pariſh and Ward within London. But God forbid, but that Jurors may find aſſets by diſcent, in any other County within England, and the Law is, that the Plaintiff in ſuch caſe, ſhall have in Execution, all the lands which the heir hath, and perhaps he hath lands in divers Counties, and therefore, although that one place be named for neceſſity, yet the Jurors may find all that which by Law ſhall be chargeable in ſuch caſe, in what Town or County ſoever it lieth. And ſo was the principal caſe reſolved afterwards in 10 Eliz. although it be not there ſo reported: and therewith in effect agreeth 10 H. 6. 13. adjudged, and therefore the ſaid conceit of Brook 2. Ma. Attaint. 104. was utterly denied for Law, by the whole Court, for they are bound under pain of Attaint, to find Aſſets in any County whatſoever. For, (as it hath been ſaid) it may be that the Executor hath goods of the Teſtator in divers ſeveral Counties, and that in none of the ſaid Counties, by it ſelf is Aſſets. So if a man hath 20 Acres of Land in tail in the County of N. and 20 acres of equal value of Lands in fee-ſimple in 20 ſeveral Counties, and maketh a Feoffment in Fee of the Land in tail, with warranty and dieth, the Iſſue in tail bringeth a Formedon for the Land in N. in this caſe the Feoffee cannot alledge Aſſets in one County only; But the Jurors are tyed upon manifeſt proof upon pain of Attaint, to find the Aſſets in all the ſeveral Counties, in which the Feoffor had Lands in Fee-ſimple. 3. Upon every general iſſue, The Jurors ought to find all local things in any other County, which are material in Law for the matter in queſtion, as Warranty and Aſſets in another County: So where Lands are exchanged for Lands in another County. 4. When a bar is pleaded in a real or perſonal action, as a Releaſe, &c. in a foreign County, there the Jurors which try it, ſhall aſſeſs damages for the profits of the Lands in another County, and ſo by a mean ſhall enquire of things local in another County, which originally they cannot do, quia multa conceduntur per obliquum, quæ non conceduntur de directo. And when they try the matter of the Bar upon good and pregnant Evidence they ought to find all dependants thereupon, as damages, &c. And by theſe differences you will better underſtand your books, in which at the firſt there ſeemeth ſome diſcordance, 3 E. 3. Aſſize 446. 18 E. 3. 38. 21 E. 3. 11. 1 Aſſ. p. 16. 3 Aſſ. p. 4. 6 Aſſ. p. 4. 5 Aſſ. p. 7. 21 Aſſ. p. 8. 29 Aſſ. p. 5. 44 E. 3. 6. b. 14 H. 4. 35. 5 H. 5. 2. 10 H. 6. 13. 21 H. 6. 51. 33 H. 6. 37 H. 6. 2. 7 E. 4. 45. 18 E. 4. 1. 22 E. 4. 19. 13 H. 7. 17. Br. Iſſue 82. 2 Mar. Br. Attaint. 104. and the Quære in Dyer 10 Eliz. well reſolved. But it was Reſolved, That in the Caſe of Felony the tryal ſhall be always by the Common Law in the ſame place where the offence was, and ſhall not be ſuppoſed in any other place; For in Criminal Cauſes the Rule holdeth Ubi quis delinquit, ibi punietur. Laſtly it was reſolved, That the Jurors have found the ſubſtance of the iſſue, that is to ſay, Aſſets; and the finding that they are beyond Sea is ſurpluſage. For, if the Executors have goods of the Teſtators in any part of the world, they ſhall be charged in reſpect of them. For many Merchants and other men, who have ſtocks and goods to a great value beyond Sea, are indebted here in England, And God forbid, that their goods ſhould not be liable to their debts; for otherwiſe there ſhould be great defect in the Laws, Vide M. 30 & 31 Eliz. in an Action upon the Caſe upon Aſſumpſit, (which Action was grounded upon an inſtrument called a policy, commonly made between Merchants for aſſurance of their Goods) the Plaintiff declared, that the Defendant at London did aſſume, that ſuch a Ship ſhould ſail from Melcomb Regis in the County of D. unto Abvile in France, ſafely without violence; And the Plaintiff declared, that the ſaid Ship in ſailing towards Abvile, s. in the River of Soame in the Realm of France, was arreſted by the King of France, &c. and the parties came to an iſſue, whether the ſaid Ship were ſo arreſted or not; And this iſſue was tryed by Niſi prius before Wray chief Juſtice in London, and found for the Plaintiff; And it was moved in arreſt of Judgment, that this iſſue, ariſing merely from a place which is out of the Realm, could not be tried: For whether the Ship was arreſted in the River of Soame in France, or not, is merely and wholly out of the Realm; and therefore it could not by tried: and thereupon the Books were cited in 10 H. 7. 11 H. 7. 16. 21 E. 4. 10. 47 E. 3. 2. 12 H. 4. 16. 13 E. 1. Mortdaunceſt. 47. 12 H. 3. ib. p. ult. 29 Aſſ. p. 11. And if it may be tryed, it was ſaid, That the Jury ſhould come from Melcomb, for by Common intendment they may have beſt knowledge of the arreſt. And it was anſwered and Reſolved, That this iſſue ſhould be tried where the Action was brought; And it was agreed, That where as well the Contract as the performance of it is wholly made, or to be done beyond Sea, and it ſo appeareth, there wanteth trial in our Law; but here the Promiſe was made here in London, which is the ground and foundation of the Action: and therefore there in this caſe of neceſſity it ſhall be tried, or otherwiſe ſhould not be tried at all. And the Arreſt which is in iſſue is not the ground of the Action, but the Aſſumpſit, and the arreſt is the breach of the Aſſumpſit; and therefore in this caſe of neceſſity it ſhall be tried where the Aſſumpſit, which is the ground and original cauſe of the Action, was made. And the Record of a Caſe in an Action of debt of 500 l. between Hugh Gynne Plaintiff, and Evangeliſt Conſtantine Defendant, Paſch. 28 Eliz. was ſhewed to the Court; which was, That Conſtantine by Indenture of Charter-party made at Thetford in Norfolk, did Covenant with Hugh Gynne, that ſuch a Ship ſhould ſail from Blackney in Norfolk to Muttrel in Spain, and ſhould there ſtay for a certain time, and bound himſelf in 500 l. to perform it. In which the iſſue was, If the Ship did ſtay at Muttrel aforeſaid for a certain time; which iſſue was tried for the Plaintiff by Jurors de vicineto de Thetford, where the Charter-party was made; and after long deliberation, Judgment was given in the Kings Bench for the Plaintiff. Note Reader, this Point hath been twice adjudged, Vide 7 H. 6. 14. in Quare Impedit, vide 5 R. 2. Tryal 54.

[b] [48]

Mich. 3 Jacobi, in the Kings Bench:

Boſwell's Caſe.

ANthony Lowe brought a Quare Impedit of the Church of Wimbiſh againſt Richard Biſhop of London, and John Lancaſter, and Counted, That Henry Earl of Suſſex was ſeiſed in Fee of the Mannor of Wimbiſh, to which the ſaid Church was appendant, who preſented John Lancaſtre one of the Defendants, who was admitted, inſtituted and inducted, and after the ſaid Earl died ſeiſed, after whoſe death the Mannor deſcended to Robert now Earl of Suſſex, who levied a Fine of the ſaid Advowſon to Edward Hammond in Fee, who granted the next Advoydance to Anthony Lowe the Plaintiff, and afterwards the ſaid John Lancaſtre reſigned to the ſaid Richard Biſhop of London the other of the Defendants, by which the Church became void by the ſaid Reſignation, and ſo it did belong to the Plaintiff to preſent, and the Defendant did diſturb him. The Biſhop pretended, Quod ipſe nihil habet, nec habere clamat in Eccleſia prædict. niſi admiſſionem, inſtitutionem & deſtitutionem perſonarum, &c. & petit judicium ſi abſque ſpeciali impedimento, &c. John Lancaſtre the other Defendant pleaded, That before the Writ brought he was in the ſaid Church by the ſpace of ſix months, of the Preſentment of Henry Earl of Suſſex, abſque hoc, that the Church was void modo & forma, as the Plaintiff hath declared. As to the plea of the Ordinary, the Plaintiff prayed a Writ to the Biſhop, & conceditur, ſed ceſſet executio quouſque the Plea between the Plaintiff and the other was determined. As to the Plea of Lancaſter, the Plaintiff did maintain that the Church was void modo & forma, &c. upon which they were at iſſue, and at a Niſi prius it was found for the Plaintiff: And farther the Jury did enquire of the three ordinary points, 1. Si Eccleſia plena ſit, & ſi ſic, ex cujus præſentatione. 2. The yearly value of the Church. 3. If 6 months paſſed after [49] the Avoidance. As to the firſt, They found that the Church was full of Lawrence Boſwel, ex præſentatione Dominæ Reginæ Angliæ pendente breve de Quare Impedit. As to the ſecond, That the Church was of the yearly value of 80l. As to the third, That the Action was brought within ſix months after the Avoidance: upon which Verdict, Judgment was given in this manner. Ideo conſideratum eſt, quod prædict. Anthonius recuperet verſus præfat. Johannem Lancaſtre præſentationem ſuam ad Eccleſiam prædict. quæ modo plena exiſtit de præfato Laurentio Boſwell, ex præſentatione dict. nuper Reginæ Angliæ pendente bre. præd. de Quare Impedit inter ipſum Anthonium & præfat. Johannem, & damna ſua ad valorem Eccleſiæ prædict. per dimid. anni, quæ in ſe attingunt ad 40 l. per Jurator. prædict. in forma prædict. aſſeſſ. & habeat breve præfato Epiſcopo London. illius Ordinario, quod non obſtante reclamatione ſua, aut reclamatione prædict. Laurentii & Johannis, ſeu eorum alterius (licet idem Laurentius ad Eccleſiam prædict. pendente breve prædict. admiſſus, inſtitutus, & in eandem Eccleſiam inductus exiſtit) eundem Laurentium ab Eccleſia prædict. removeat, ac ad Eccleſiam illam ad præſentationem ipſius Anthonii idoneam perſonam admittat: Et prædict. Johannes in miſericor. And upon this Judgment a Writ of Error was brought, and divers Errors aſſigned. And now this Term, after many arguments at the Bar and Bench, by the whole Court theſe points were Reſolved. 1. That at the Common Law before the Statute of Weſt. 2. cap. 5. If one Common perſon had preſented to a Church which did belong to another Common perſon, and his Clerk had been admitted and inſtituted, (in which Caſe, in the Caſe of a Common perſon, the Church was full) preſently thereby the Rightful Patron was out of poſſeſſion, and the Uſurper had gained the Inheritance of the Advowſon by wrong, and the Lawful Patron had loſt the preſentment hac vice for ever. For he had no other remedy but a Writ of Right of Advowſon, in which the Inheritance of the Advowſon ſhould be recovered, but the incumbent ſhould not be removed. And that is the reaſon wherefore full or not full ſhall be tried by the Biſhop, becauſe the Church is full by Inſtitution, which is a Spiritual act; For if it ſhould not be full till Induction, then full or not full ſhould be tried by the Verdict of twelve men, according to the Common Law: For Induction is a notorious thing, and ſhall not be tried by the Biſhop, Vide 22 H. 6. 27. &c. And yet in ſome Caſe a Jury ſhall enquire of the plenarty, as in this caſe, and all other Quare Impedits, one of the points inquirable is, If the Church be full, or not. And at the Common Law as well Infants, as Feme Coverts, were put to their Writs of Right of Advowſon in the ſame caſe for two reaſons, which

[b] were at the Common Law in the ſaid Caſe. 1. That he who came in by Admiſſion and Inſtitution, came in by a Judicial act, and the Law doth preſume that the Biſhop who had Cure of Souls of all within his Dioceſs, for which he was to anſwer at his fearful and laſt Accompt (in reſpect of which he ought to keep and defend them againſt Hereticks and Schiſmaticks, and other of the Devils Miniſters) would not do, or aſſent to any wrong to be done to their Patronages, which is of their earthly poſſeſſion; But if the Church be Litigious, that he would inform himſelf of the truth de Jure Patronatus, and ſo do right. 2. Another reaſon was, that by the Common Law, in every Pariſh there ought to be idonea perſona: For ſo it appeareth by the words of Quare Imp. Quod permittat præſentare idoneam perſonam, &c. which Epithite Idonea, includes ability in Learning and Doctrine, in honeſty and converſation, and diligence in his function, and all that to Inſtruct the people of God in true Religion and good Converſation; and to avoid contention, and to the intent that he who had ſo great a Charge might effectually and peaceably intend his charge, The Common Law did provide, that after Inſtitution he ſhould not be ſubject to Actions; and ſo neglect his duty, in loſing his time in ſutes and troubles in Law; and that was the reaſon, That at the Common Law, That after Inſtitution to the Church at the preſentation of another, although he had not right, that the Incumbent ſhould not be removed at the ſute of any Common perſon; But to recover his Right, he might have a Writ of Right of Advowſon, by which the Incumbent ſhould not be removed. And it is to be obſerved in theſe caſes, for as much as the final end of the ſame was to have idoneam perſonam; and that no profit might by any means ariſe to the Patron (for that ſhould be deteſtable Simony) the Common Law did prefer the ſervice of God to be celebrated, and the people of God to be inſtructed per idoneam perſonam, in peace and quietneſs, before the right of any other perſon, and without regard to infancy, coverture, or any ſuch like diſability of the Patron. But at the Common Law, if one had uſurped upon the King, and his preſentee had been admitted, inſtituted and inducted, (for without induction the Church is not full againſt the King) yet the King at the Common Law, might have a Quare Impedit, and thereby have removed the incumbent; for no Act of the Biſhop or any other could bar the King of his right: & nullum tempus occurrit Regi. But in ſuch caſe, although it touched the King, if the preſentee of another be admitted, inſtituted and inducted, the King could not preſent until he had removed the uſurpers incumbent by Quare Impedit, and that was (as hath been ſaid) to avoid contention in the Church: ſo that he who is in in ſuch manner, ſhall not be removed, but by proceſs and courſe of Law, although it were in the Kings caſe. But if a Biſhop
[50] do Collate without title to a Church preſentable, and his Clerk is inducted, yet it ſhould not put the Rightful Patron out of poſſeſſion: for the ſame is but a proviſion for the celebration of Divine ſervice in the mean time; till the Patron preſent, and that appertaineth to his office, and therefore ſhall not put the Patron to a Quare Impedit in ſuch caſe, but his preſentee ought to be received without any proceſs of Law; and therefore in ſuch caſe no plenarty by collation can be pleaded againſt the Patron: for no plenarty is available in Law, againſt him who hath title to preſent, but only plenarty by preſentation. And therewith agreeth the words of the Statute of Weſtm. 2. cap. 5. Cum aliquis, &c.

præſentaverit ad aliquam Eccleſiam. &c. But Plenarty by collation at the Common Law, did put him who had right to collate to his Writ of Right at the Common Law. For as Plenarty by preſentation puts him who ought to preſent, out of poſſeſſion at the Common Law, pari ratione & jure, plenarty by collation puts him who had right to collate out of poſſeſſion. For eadem lex eſt ubi eadem eſt ratio. And that appeareth by the Judgment in 17 E. 3. 64. b. in the Dean of Lincoln's Caſe. But for as much as Biſhops would admit and inſtitute preſentees, without informing themſelves, (as they ought to have done) of the right of him who preſented, Many Patrons loſt their preſentments without any regard to infancy, Coverture, &c. For this cauſe the ſaid Act of Weſtm. 2. cap. 5. was made, and that reciteth. Cum aliquis jus præſentandi non habens præſentaverit ad aliquam Eccleſiam, cujus præſentatus ſit admiſſus, (id eſt inſtitutus) ipſe qui eſt verus Patronus per nullum aliud breve recuperare potuit advocationem ſuam quam breve de Rectio. By which act three points amongſt others, were provided. 1. If uſurpation be upon an Infant, or Feme Covert, who hath an advowſon by deſcent, the Infant after his full age, and the wife after the death of her husband, ſhall have the ſame Action by Quare Impedit, or Aſſiſe of Darrein preſentment, as her late Anceſtor might have had. So if Tenant in Dower, and Tenant by the Courteſie, or Tenant for life, or in tail, ſuffer an uſurpation, he in reverſion, who claimeth the ſame by deſcent, ſhall have the ſame remedy. So in the ſame Law of an uſurpation in the time of the vacancy of the Biſhoprick, Archdeaconry, Rectory; but in all theſe Caſes the uſurper had gained the inheritance by wrong, and the Statute did not veſt the right, but only gave a poſſeſſory Action to remove the Incumbent; where by the Common Law they had not any remedy, but by Writ of Right in which they were to recover their inheritance, and not their preſentments. 16 E. 3. Quare Impedit 67. Adams Caſe. D. was ſeiſed of a Mannor to which an Advowſon was appendant, and died; the Mannor to which &c. deſcended to an Infant, the Church became void, and Adam uſurped during the Infancy of E. E. at full age enfeoffed F. of the Mannor, and afterwards the Church became void, and F. preſented, and the aſſigns of Adam brought a Quare Impedit, and it was adjudged, that by the uſurpation the Infant was put out of poſſeſſion of the Advowſon, ſo that by his feoffment of the Mannor at his full age, the Advowſon did not paſs to the feoffee, becauſe the feoffor had but a right, and the uſurpation was voidable by Action, which could not be transferred to a ſtranger. And it ſeemeth alſo by the book, that E. alſo was without remedy in ſuch caſe. But it is agreed by the whole Court in 50 E. 3. 14. b. That if Tenant for years, or Gardian, bring a Quare Impedit, although that the Defendant hath a writ to the Biſhop againſt the Termer or Gardian, and his preſentee be admitted, inſtituted and inducted, yet the Tenant of freehold is not thereby put out of poſſeſſion. Note a difference betwixt him who uſurpeth the wrong, as in 16 E. 3. aforeſaid, and him who hath not right, and yet his preſentee cometh in by courſe of Law: and note, that the words of the Statute are general, Jus præſentandi non habens. The ſecond thing which is enacted by the ſaid Act is, that Plenarty is no plea in an Aſſize of Darrein preſentment, or Quare Impedit; for the words of the Statute are, ſo that the Writ be purchaſed within ſix months, though he cannot recover his preſentation within ſix months. The third thing is, From henceforth in Writs of Quare Impedit, and Darrein preſentment, damages ſhall be awarded; viz. if the time of ſix months paſs by the impediment of any, ſo that the Biſhop doth preſent, and the very Patron loſeth his Preſentation for the time, damages ſhall be awarded for a years value of the Church: and if the ſix months be not paſt, and the preſentment be determined within the ſaid time, then damages ſhall be awarded to the half years value of the Church, &c. If an Infant, or a feme Covert hath an Advowſon by purchaſe, they are not within the ſaid firſt purview of the ſaid Act, but they are within the ſecond branch, if they purſue their remedy within the ſix months, by Quare Impedit, or Aſſize of Darrein preſentment. So of an Advowſon which they have by deſcent, they may by the ſaid ſecond purview, have a Quare Impedit, or Aſſize of Darrein preſentment within the ſix months: but if they ſurceaſe this time, then the infant, after he ſhall come of full age, ſhall have alſo his remedy. the ſame Law of a Feme Covert after the death of her husband. See Bracton Lib. 4. fol. 244. 1 E. 2. Quare Impedit 43. 20 E. 2. Common 22. 44 E. 3. 18. 34 H. 6. 30. 35 H. 6. 63. And note that if tenant in tail ſuffereth an uſurpation, and dieth, the iſſue in tail is remedied by the equity of the firſt branch; which eſtate tail was created at the ſame Parliament. For, after the Statute, the iſſue in tail cannot have a Writ of right of Advowſon, and therefore ſhall be aided by the ſaid firſt branch, as it is holden in 43 E. 3. 24. and 25 Vid. 46. Aſſ. p. 4. 8 E. 2. Quare Imp. 167. 34 H. 6. 20. Alſo it was reſolved, that in a Quare Impedit, or Aſſize of Darrein preſentment at the Common Law, the ſaid three points were not inquirable ex officio, (as appeareth by Bracton, lib. 4. tract. 2. cap. 6. & 7. fol. 246.) who wrote in the time of H. 3. before ſaid Act of Weſt. 2. but now they are inquirable by force of the third branch of the ſame Act. For in as much as that by it the Plaintiff is to recover the value of the Church for two years, if he cannot recover his preſentment, and the value of the Church by half a year, It is needful for the Court to inquire, If the Church be full, or void. 2. If full, of whoſe preſentment it is full, to the intent it may appear to the Court, if he may recover the preſentment or not; and laſtly, the inquiry of the value of the Church is needful, for as much as according to that he ſhall recover damages, Vide 8 E. 3. 5. 27 E. 3. Damages 106. 43 E. 3. 11. 11 H. 4. 40. 3 Eliz. Dyer 194. And at the Common Law before that Statute in a Quare Impedit the Patron did not recover any damages; for the Law doth ſo abhor Simony, that it gave not the Patron any recompence either for his preſentment, or for any diſturbance thereof. But at the Common Law a Quare Impedit did lye, when the Biſhop by any colour or cauſe, would not admit his Clerk, or when any other did diſturb him, ſo that he could not prefer his Clerk; then before the Church was full he might have a Quare Impedit, and have a Writ to the Biſhop, but he ſhould recover no damages. Note Reader, It was adjudged Paſch. 32 Eliz. in a Writ of Error in the Kings Bench between Burckherd and the Queen upon a Judgment given in a Quare Impedit in the Common Pleas againſt him for the Church of Rettingden, in the County of Eſſex, That the Queen ſhould not recover damages in a Quare Impedit, and the reaſon and cauſe thereof was ſhewed by Wray Chief Juſtice: 1. Becauſe at the Common Law no damages were recovered in a Quare Impedit, and at this day no damages can be recovered but only in caſe where they are given by the ſaid Statute of Weſtm. 2. and therefore the Queen cannot recover any by the Common Law. 2. The Queen is not within the ſaid clauſe of the Act of Weſtm. 2. which giveth the damages, for the ſaid clauſe, as appeareth before, hath two branches: Firſt, If the time of ſix months paſs by the impediment of any, ſo that the Biſhop doth not preſent, and the very Patron loſeth his preſentation, &c. and the Queen is not within this Branch; for ſhe cannot loſe her preſentment, and by conſequence ſhe cannot have double damages. The ſecond branch is, And if the ſix months be not paſt, &c. doth depend upon the other; ſo that foraſmuch as the Queen is not within the firſt, ſhe cannot be within the ſecond. And ſo the doubt in 7 Eliz. Dier, [b] in Sir John Thinn's Caſe, now upon the true ſence and underſtanding of the Law is well reſolved againſt the Judgment given in temp. E. 1. Quare Imped. 181. which ſeemeth to be the error of the Clerk, or of the Reporter; for all the preſidents in the ſame time, and all times after are to the contrary, two or three only of later time which paſſed in ſilence. But with this judgment agreeth 3 H. 6. Damages 17. adjudged, 34 H. 6. 12 E. 3. Champerty 9. 18 E. 3. 2. and all the preſidents as is aforeſaid. And the Judgment given in ſuch caſe of the Queen in the Common Pleas which was entred by the Clerks without advice of the Court was reverſed. Yet note, That all the Counts of the King in a Quare Impedit are to his damages, and yet no damages ſhall be recovered. It was further reſolved in the caſe at Bar, That at the Common Law in ſome caſe he who was admitted, inſtituted and inducted at the preſentment of another, ſhould be removed by Judgment in a Quare Impedit. As in a Quare Impedit, if the diſturber being Defendant preſent depending the Writ, and his Clerk is admitted, inſtituted and inducted, and afterwards Judgment is given againſt the Defendant, ſuch Clerk ſhall be removed. The ſame Law, if a ſtranger uſurpeth pendant the Writ, his Clerk ſhall be removed by the Judgment at the Common Law. And ſo in all caſes when any Clerk cometh in by preſentment of any ſtranger, againſt whom the Plaintiff hath good title his Clerk ſhall be removed. So if the Queen uſurpeth, and a Quare Impedit is brought againſt her Incumbent (for it doth not lie againſt the Queen) and pendant the Writ the Queen preſenteth another, who is inſtituted and inducted, he ſhall be removed, for he cometh in under the title of the Plaintiff. But if a ſtranger to the Writ, who hath good right, preſenteth his Clerk pendant the Writ, and his Clerk is admitted, and inſtituted, he ſhall not be removed; for then by ſuch device the rightful Patron may be defeated of his preſentment. And that was one of the cauſes, that after the ſaid Act of Weſtm. 2. it ſhall be enquired if the Church be full, and of whoſe preſentment, to the end it may appear whether the Plaintiff ſhall recover his preſentment or not, and the ſame agreeth well with the reaſon of the Common Law; for in every Præcipe where any Land, or other thing is recovered, when Judgment is given for the Demandant, if it be pleaded in bar in any other action, the Tenant ought to add, that the title of the now demandant is mean between the Judgment and the title of the demandant in the firſt Action; ſo that although there be twenty deſcents, &c. it ſhall not hurt; vide 33 E. 3. Title 3. 22 E. 4. 52. 27 H. 8. 14. So that although there be twenty uſurpers pendant the Writ, they ſhall not hurt them at the Common Law. It was alſo reſolved, That no Incumbent ſhall be removed by the ſaid Statute by Quare Impedit, or Aſſiſe of Darr. preſentment purchaſed within ſix months, if the In- [52] cumbent be not named in the Writ, quia res inter alios acta alteri nocere non debet, although that the Incumbent be in by deſeiſible title; and therewith agreeth 30 E. 3. 46 E. 3. 15. 9 H. 6. 32. & 56. 19 H. 6. 68. b. 5 E. 4. 115. 9 E. 4. 30. Quia quicunque aliquid ſtatuerit parte inaudita altera, æquum licet ſtatuerit, haud æquus fuerit. Alſo when the Quare Impedit is brought againſt the diſturber and the Biſhop and ſix months paſs as hath been ſaid, the Biſhop cannot collate for Lapſe. Then admit that ſix months paſs, ſo that time is devolved to the Metropolitan, who is not named in the Writ, whether ſhall he preſent for Lapſe? And it was reſolved, That he cannot; for he ſhall never preſent by Lapſe, but when the inferiour Ordinary might have collated for Lapſe, and ſurceaſeth his time; ſo that the firſt degree in ſuch caſe faileth; and therewith agreeth 11 H. 4. 8. It was alſo reſolved, That in the Caſe at Bar, although it was found ex officio, that the Church was full of Boſwell, who was a ſtranger to the Writ, and it doth not appear whether he came in by better title than the Plaintiff had, yet the Plaintiff ought to have a general Writ to the Biſhop, and the Biſhop ought to execute it; (prevail he who can) and he cannot return upon the Writ directed to him, That the Church is full of another; for no iſſue can be joyned between the Plaintiff and him; for he hath no day in Court, no more than the Sheriff can upon an Habere facias ſeiſinam, return that another is Tenant of the Land by right; for that cannot come in iſſue between the demandant and him, and therefore he ought to execute the Kings Writ, and ſo ought the Biſhop to do in the other caſe. And although that the third perſon hath right, yet they are excuſed, becauſe they have their warrant by proceſs of Law, and then the parties may try their rights, as the Law requireth. And ſo you will better underſtand the Books in 18 E. 2. Preſentment 20. 50 E. 3. Incumbent 10. 21 H. 7. 8. a & b. 9 Eliz. Dier 260. 14 H. 8. 31. 19 E. 2. Mich. 3 Jacobi, in the Star-Chamber.

Iſabella Counteſs of Rutland's Caſe.

IN the Great Caſe this Term in an Information preferred by the Attorney General againſt S. and divers other Serjeants at Mace, and others, for arreſting of the body of Iſabella Counteſs of Rutland, late the Wife of Edward Earl of Rutland by force of a Capias ad ſatisfaciend. upon Judgment in Debt given in the Common Pleas againſt her, theſe points were reſolved for good Law by the Lord Chancellor Egerton, Popham and Gawdy Chief Juſtices, Fleming Chief Baron, and by the whole Court of Star Chamber, although that ſome preſidents by ignorance of Clerks are to the contrary. 1. That the perſon of one who is in Law a Counteſs by Marriage, or by deſcent, is not to be arreſted for Debt or Treſpaſs; for although in reſpect of her Sex ſhe cannot ſit in Parliament, yet ſhe is a Peer of the Realm, and ſhall be tried by her Peers, as it appeareth by the Statute of 20 H. 6. which was but a declaration of the Common Law. And there are two reaſons wherefore her perſon ſhall not be arreſted in ſuch caſes; one in reſpect of her Dignity, and the other in reſpect that the Law doth preſume that ſhe hath ſufficient Lands and Tenements in which ſhe may be diſtrained. 2. It was reſolved, that the perſon of a Baron, who is a Peer of Parliament ſhall not be Arreſted in Debt or Treſpaſs by his body for the cauſes aforeſaid; for none of the Nobility, who is Lord of the Parliament, and by the Law ought to be tried by his Peers, ſhall be in ſuch caſes arreſted by his body. And both theſe points are well confirmed by our Books, 11 H. 4. 15. In a Homine replegiando againſt the Lady Spencer, it appeareth that the Lady Spencer was a Peer of the Realm, and that in Debt or Treſpaſs, Capias lieth not againſt an Earl, Baron, or Baronneſs, and the like; for becauſe of their ſtate and dignity they are intended to have Aſſets, 3 H. 6. 48. A Writ of Debt upon arrearages of Accompt was brought by the Lady Aburgaveny againſt another; the Defendant pleaded, That he owed her nothing, and was ready to wage his Law, and prayed by force of the Statute of 5 H. 4. cap. 8. that the Plaintiff ſhould be examined, which Act is general, that examination ſhall be made, which always is intended upon Oath. And there Cokein, which gave the Rule, ſaid, That the Lady Aburgaveny is a Peer of the Realm, and it ſhall not be well to cauſe her to appear to be examined; for by that reaſon you may cauſe every Duke, or Earl of England to appear. Rolf, Serjeant, asked, Why not? Sir, the ſaid Act of 5 H. 4. is general, and is for every man high and low. To which Cokein ſaid, The Law will have a difference between a Lord or a Lady, and another perſon. By which Book it is to be obſerved, That a Lady, who was but the Wife of a Baron, is a Peer of the Realm, and is in equipage as to Nobility and privileges incident to their Dignities with Dukes, Earls, &c. 41 E. 3. 30. Ralph Everden Knight, brought a Writ out of the Chancery, and alſo a Writ of Privy Seal to the Juſtices, reciting that he was a Baron, commanding them to diſcharge him of ſwearing in Jurat. aſſiſ. ſeu recognitionibus quibuſcunque, becauſe the Barons ought not to be of any Inqueſt or Aſſiſe without their will, and upon good advice he was abſolutely diſcharged. Vide Regiſt. 179. 35 H. 6. 46. in Attaint in the Kings Bench, the Grand Jury did appear, and one challenged himſelf foraſmuch as his Anceſtors had been Barons and Lords of Parliament, and that they have had place in the ſame Houſe of Parliament. And this matter was tried by ſix Triors of the ſame Jury, for which he prayed allowance of his challenge, and that he ought to be diſcharged. Forteſcue Chief Juſtice, We cannot allow it without a Writ, teſtifying the ſame; for we ought to be informed of your challenge by matter of Record, otherwiſe we cannot allow it; which the whole Court aſſented unto. Note, Duke or not Duke, Earl or not Earl, Baron or not Baron, ſhall not be tried by the Country, but by Record; for if they be Lords of Parliament it appeareth by Record, and therefore by Record, viz. by the Kings Writ it ought to be certified. But a woman who is a Dutcheſs, Counteſs, Baroneſs, by marriage, which is a matter in fait, in ſuch caſe, not Dutcheſs, &c. ſhall be tried by the Country; for their dignity accrueth to them by matter in fait; vide 2 H. 6. 11. The Wife of the Earl of Arundel ought to be named Counteſs, in an Action brought againſt her, or by a name which doth amount to as much, 12 E. 3. brev. 254. accord. vide Plow. Com. 223. Hen. Barkley, miles, Dom. Berkley, &c. 14 H. 6. 2. An action of Debt was brought againſt a man and a woman, Counteſs of D. againſt whom an Exigent was prayed. Newton, You ſhall not have an Exigent againſt an Earl, no more againſt a Counteſs: And Fulthorpe there ſaid, that the cauſe thereof was not only, becauſe that it cannot be intended that an Earl can be without Lands, but another cauſe is for the dignity of his name: For an Exigent is not awardable againſt a Duke, Earl, Baron. Martin in that caſe, The woman hath loſt the name of Counteſs by taking of Husband; for by taking of Husband all the names which ſhe had before are loſt; which Paſton affirmed, for which cauſe the Writ ſhall abate wherein ſhe is named Counteſs. But not a difference between a Baronneſs or Counteſs by marriage, and by deſcent; for it is true, ſi Baroniſſa, &c. by marriage marrieth under the degree of Nobility, ſhe hath loſt her name of dignity; for in ſuch caſes, Si mulier nobilis nupſerit ignobili, deſienit eſſe nobilis. But if ſhe be noble by birth or deſcent, whoſoever ſhe marrieth yet ſhe remaineth noble; for Birthright is caracter indelebilis; but that which is gained by Marriage may alſo be loſt by Marriage; for eodem modo quo quicquid conſtituitur diſſolvitur. And as to the Book in 8 H. 6. 9. & 10. where the caſe was, that a Writ was, Præcipe Joh. Lovel militi & B. dominæ Abergaveniæ unum meſſuagium, and the Defendant demanded judgment of the Writ, for that this John Lovel, Knight, is Lord, not named, judgment of the Writ, & non allocatur by the whole Court. Rolf, Then judgment of the Writ; for no more than he ſhall be called Lord,

Lord, ſhall ſhe be called Lady; judgment of the Writ. Babington. At the moſt it is but ſurpluſage, and the Writ is not the worſe. And it was reſolved, that this Book was not good Law, but ill reported: For as to the Plea of the Writ, that the ſaid Sir John Lovel was Dominus; it was ſufficient for three cauſes. 1. He ought to have pleaded that he was a Baron of the Parliament; for Dominus is too general. 2. If he had ſo pleaded, he ought to have ſhewed a Writ under Seal, teſtifying the ſame, becauſe it was dilatory in abatement of a Writ. 3. If the ſaid Woman being the other demandant was not Baroneſs in Law, without doubt the naming of her Baroneſs ſhould abate the Writ, as it appeareth by the ſaid Book of 14 H. 6. 2. And peradventure this Lovel was Lord in reputation, as many are at this day, and not a Lord of Parliament; As the eldeſt Son of a Viſcount, Earl, &c. who are not Barons in Law but by reputation; and therefore in Legal and Judicial proceedings ſhall not be ſo named. And if the ſaid Book ſhall be otherwiſe intended, it ſhould be erroneous and againſt all other Books in all ſucceſſions of Ages. And every Baron of the Parliament ought to have a Knight retorned of his Jury, as appeareth in 13 E. 3. Inqueſt 44. 27 H. 8. 22. 4 Eliz. Dyer 208. 14 Eliz. 107. 111. And an Earl or Baron ſhall be amerced a hundred ſhillings, 9 E. 4. 50. 3. It was reſolved, That foraſmuch as in the Caſe at Bar, a Capias was awarded againſt the Counteſs by the Court of Common Pleas, That the Sheriff or his Officer by his Warrant might without any offence execute the Writ; for they ought not to diſpute of the Authority of the Court, but ought to execute the Writs directed to them. And although that it appeareth in the Capias that ſhe was a Counteſs, againſt whom by the Law no Capias in ſuch caſes did lie, & ignorantia juris non excuſat, and chiefly Sheriffs and other Miniſters of Law and Juſtice, as was Objected. Yet for as much as in ſome Caſes of contempt, &c. a Capias lyeth againſt them, for this cauſe it was reſolved, That the Sheriff and his Officers ought not to examine the Judicial Act of the Court, but ought to execute the Writ, and therewith agreeth the opinion in 36 H. 8. Dyer 60. If a Capias or Exigent cometh to the Sheriff againſt a Duke or Earl, &c. where it lieth not againſt them, he ought to execute the Writ, and not to argue and diſpute the validity of it. But the truth of the Caſe of the Counteſs of Rutland was, That the Sergeant who had a Warrant to arreſt the ſaid Counteſs upon the ſaid Capias ad Satisfaciendum, being fearful that ſhe ſhould be reſcued by her Servants and Friends, and ſo eſcape, for which the Sheriffs (if ſhe ſhould be arreſted upon the Capias ad Satisfaciendum, and eſcaped) ſhould be charged. The Sergeants at Mace did counſel the ſaid S. to enter a feigned Action of a thouſand pound before the Sheriffs in London, according to their Cuſtom, upon which they would firſt arreſt the ſaid Counteſs, and by force thereof bring her to the Compter, and then take her body in Execution upon the Capias ad Satisfaciendum. And afterwards the ſaid Sergeants in Cheapſide, with many others, came to the Counteſs in her Coach, and ſhewed her their Mace, and touched her body with it, ſaying; We arreſt you Madam, at the ſute of the ſaid S. which were all the words they uſed, and thereupon they compelled the Coachman to carry the ſaid Counteſs to the Compter in Woodſtreet, and at the door thereof the Sheriff came, and carried the Counteſs to his houſe, where ſhe remained ſeven or eight days, until ſhe had paid the debt. And it was Reſolved, That the Sheriff, or any other by his Authority who arreſteth the perſon of another, ought upon the Arreſt, ſhew at whoſe ſute it is; out of what Court, for what cauſe he doth it, and when the proceſs is retornable, that he pay it, and free his body (if he will) of Impriſonment; and if it be upon a Meſne Proceſs, either to agree with the party, or to put in bail according to Law, and to know when he ſhould appear. And for this cauſe it was Reſolved, that the ſaid general Arreſt cannot be ſaid by force of the ſaid Writ of Execution; And that the ſaid Arreſt of the Counteſs by the Sergeants at Mace of their own heads, without any warrant, is againſt Law, and the ſaid Counteſs was falſely impriſoned. And ſo in Summons in real Actions, the Summoners in the preſence of the pernors and veuers, &c. ought to ſummon the Tenant, 1. To keep his day of Return, and name it certain, to anſwer, &c. 2. They ought to name the name of the Demandant. 3. The Land in demand, Vide 3 E. 3. 48. 43 E. 3. 32. And that was the principal cauſe that a ſevere Sentence was given againſt S. the Sergeants; and the others their Confederates; And the entring of ſuch feigned Actions in London, was utterly condemned by the Court: For by colour of Law and Juſtice, they by ſuch feigned means do againſt Law and Juſtice, and ſo make Law and Juſtice the author and cauſe of wrong and Injuſtice vide the Statute of 5 H. 4. cap. 8. in the preamble.

The Lord Chando's Caſe.

KIng H. 7. by his Letters Patents in the 19th year of his Reign granted to Giles Bridges Eſquire the Mannor of Blunſden in the County of Wilts, to have and to hold to him and the heirs males of his body. The ſame King, Anno 24. of his Reign by his Letters Patents reciting the former Patents of Intail, Ac cum poſtmodum, the ſaid Giles came into our Chancery before William Archbiſhop of Canterbury our Chancellor, and there ſurrendred the ſaid Letters Patents to to our uſe to be cancelled; By vertue whereof the ſaid Letters Patents were then and there cancelled; by vertue whereof we were ſeiſed, and at preſent are of the ſaid Mannor in our demeſne as of Fee; Know ye, that of our eſpecial grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, we have given and granted to the ſaid Giles and Iſabel his wife, the ſaid Mannor with the appurtenances, (without any grant of the Reverſion of the ſaid Mannor,) To have and to hold to them and the heirs of Giles. And if the Reverſion ſhall paſs or not by this grant, was the Queſtion, between Grey Lord Chandos, iſſue and heir of the ſaid Intail, and Sir Thomas Lowe Knight Alderman of London, who had taken a Leaſe for years of the ſaid Mannor of William Lord Chandos, Father of the ſaid Lord that now is; and a Fine was levied by the Lord William for aſſurance of the ſaid Leaſe: But if the Reverſion doth remain in the King, then the ſaid Leaſe was voidable, and the ſaid Fine cannot make it good, for that it is reſtrained by the Statute of 34 H. 8. And upon a Petition to the King of the ſaid Sir Thomas Lowe, who was diſpoſſeſſed by the ſaid Grey Lord Chandos, the King referred the Conſideration thereof to the Lord Chancellor, and Lord Treaſurer of England, who heard Council on both parts. And becauſe the caſe was doubtful they referred the ſame to the Lord Chief Juſtice of England, and Lord Chief Baron, who often times heard the Caſe debated betwixt the Counſel of both parties. And it was objected by the Council of the Lord Chandos, that the ſaid grant of the ſaid Mannor by the ſaid Letters Patents of 24 H. 8. were void for divers cauſes. 1. That the ſaid eſtate tail was not recited, as an eſtate continuing, upon which the Reverſion might be granted, but as an eſtate determined; And therefore the King granted the ſame as a thing in poſſeſſion, when in truth he had but a reverſion expectant, upon an eſtate in tail. 2. The King was deceived in his grant, for the King upon the ſuggeſtion of the party, did think, that by the ſurrender of the ſaid Letters Patents of Anno 19 *H.*7. the eſtate tail was thereby defeated and determined, by reaſon that the King was ſeiſed thereof in his demeſne as of Fee, in which the King was deceived. For by the ſurrender of the ſaid Letters Patents the eſtate tail was not determined, nor the King ſeiſed of his demeſne as of Fee, but the King had only a Reverſion in Fee expectant upon the eſtate tail. 3. The King was deceived in the eſtate he granted, for he did intend to grant an eſtate in Fee in poſſeſſion; and not a Reverſion expectant upon an eſtate in tail; and the King granted Manerium de Blunſden, & non reverſionem Manerii. And after many arguments and good deliberation had with divers other Juſtices, It was Reſolved, that the Reverſion ſhould paſs by the ſaid Letters Patents of 24 *H.*7. And as to the ſaid three Objections, it was conſidered, when the recital was the ſuggeſtion of the party, and when the affirmation of the King himſelf. And as to that, it was Reſolved, That the recital of the eſtate tail, and that the ſaid Patentee had ſurrendred or delivered up the ſaid Letters Patents to the Chancellor to be cancelled, both theſe were in Judgment of Law the information and ſuggeſtion of the party; But the Clauſe (by vertue whereof we were ſeiſed in our demeſne as of Fee) was but the Collection of the King himſelf, as a Conſequence upon the Surrender, in which the King miſtook the Law. Alſo the party doth inform the King, that he had delivered the Letters Patents to the Chancellor, to be cancelled; upon which the King affirmeth (which ſaid Letters Patents then and there were cancelled) that is not the information of the party, but the affirmation of the King; and the collection or information of the King (upon the information of the party) when it is not any part of the conſideration, ſhall not avoid the grant. For all that the party had informed was true; And the Error was in the Conſequent or collection which the King made upon it; Then for as much as the party had truly informed the King of the eſtate tail, and of the delivery of the Letters Patents to be cancelled; Although the King hath miſtaken the Law, or the matter in fact, in that caſe, the ſame being no part of the Conſideration, ſhall not avoid his grant, for no fault was in the party. Alſo it was Reſolved, that by the grant of the Mannor, without the word Reverſion, the Reverſion ſhould paſs; for the word Mannor Includeth all eſtates, and degrees of eſtates of or in the Mannor of D. to B. in tail, and afterwards the Donor is attainted of Treaſon, by which the King is ſeiſed of the Reverſion, and afterwards by his Letters Patents granteth Manerium de D. to another and his heirs: in that caſe, although that the King granteth the Mannor of D. as in poſſeſſion, yet the reverſion ſhall paſs. For the King had an eſtate (the reverſion in Fee) grantable in him; and the eſtate tail by a Common perſon needed not to be recited, And it is not like to the Caſe of Alton woods. For there the King was not conuſant, nor informed of his true eſtate, ſcil. that he was ſeiſed in tail, with the reverſion expectant, to his heir and ſucceſſors, and his grant in the ſame caſe, cannot take effect by fractions of eſtates, or wrong done, and therefore the Caſe of Alton woods, was not to be likened to this caſe. For in our caſe, the party hath informed the King of the truth of all matters in fact, of the eſtate tail, and of the delivery of the former Letters Patents, ſo that in true judgment of Law upon the matter contained in the Patent, the King had but a reverſion in fee expectant upon an eſtate tail: and in this caſe no wrong is done to any, nor is there any fraction fraction of eſtates. And here the Kings intent was to depart with all his eſtate, and leſſe paſſeth by this grant, (s. the reverſion) then he did intend to paſs; for he did intend to paſs the poſſeſſion; and ſo it is not any prejudice to the King. But if more ſhould paſs, than he meant to paſs, as where he intendeth to paſs only the reverſion, that the poſſeſſion ſhall paſs, there it ſhall be otherwiſe. Alſo this grant was made ex certa ſcientia, & mero motu, and ſhall be taken in the moſt liberal and beneficial ſenſe, according to the Kings intent and meaning expreſſed in his grant.

Hill. 4 Jacobi, in the Common Pleas.

Brediman's Caſe.

[b] HIll. 45 Eliz. rott. 105. Charles Brediman did arrain an Aſſize of Novel diſſeiſin againſt Robert Bromley, Thomas Reyner, and Francis Cotton, of a rent of 10 l. in H. &c. in the County of Midd. and made his title, that Sir Richard Pepal Knight, was ſeiſed of the Mannor of Swacliffe, in H. &c. in his demeſne, as of fee, and held the ſame in ſocage of Michael Shorditch, and 9 Octobr. 13 Eliz. made his Will in writing, and thereby demiſed to the Plaintiff a rent of 10. l. iſſuing out of the ſaid Mannor of Swacliffe for his life, yearly to be payed, and by the ſame Will demiſed to Dame Elenor his Wife the ſaid Mannor, to have from the day of his death, for 15 years; and afterwards the ſaid Sir Richard, 10 Octobr. 13 Eliz. died. Elenor entred into the ſaid Mannor, and paid the ſaid rent of 10 l. and for the rent of 10 l. due the 10*th.* of Octobr. 40 Eliz. and for the arrearages of 16 years before: the Plaintiff the ſaid 10th. day of October 40 Eliz. half an hour before ſun ſet of the ſame day, came to the capital houſe of the ſaid Mannor, and there remained till after the ſun ſet, petendo tam prædict. 160 l. de arreragiis prædict. redditus quam prædict. decem libras in prædicto decimo die Octobris anno 40 Eliz. ſupradict. eidem Carolo tunc ſic debit. exiſten. ſibi ſolvi. And the Defendants; ad tunc tenentes, &c. ſeu eorum aliquis, nec aliquis alius arreragia prædicta ſeu reditum prædictum aut aliquam inde parcellam eidem Carolo ad tunc ſic ut præfert debit. & inſolut. exiſten. eidem Carolo ſolverunt ſeu ſolvit, ſed illa ei ad tunc & ibid. ſolvere denegarunt, & eorum quilibet ſolvere denegavit, & ſic prædict. Robertus, Thomas & Franciſcus, ipſe Carolum de redditu prædict. ad tunc & ibid. injuſte & ſine judicio diſſeiſiver. & hoc, &c. And the Aſſize was taken againſt
[57] the ſaid Thomas and Francis by default, and Robert pleaded Nul. tort. and the Recognitors of the Aſſize found for the Plaintiff, ſcil. the ſeiſin and diſſeiſin of the rent: and the only point which was debated at the Bar, and at the Bench was, if the payment of the ſaid rent by Elenor, who was Termer for years, were a ſufficient ſeiſin of the rent to maintain an Aſſize againſt the Terre-Tenant after the years determined. And this caſe was oftentimes argued at the Bar in the time of the Lord Anderſon, and in the time of the Lord Gawdy, and of Coke now Chief Juſtice. And it was objected at the Bar, that the ſeiſin had by the hands of Tenant for years is ſufficient to have an Aſſize, for it appeareth by 33 E. 3. Verdict 47. That ſeiſin by the hands of a Baily, or Procurator, is ſufficient: and 8 H. 6. 17. in ſome caſe, ſeiſin by the hands of him who hath nothing in the land is ſufficient. As if there be a Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant maketh a feoffment in fee, before notice made by the Feoffee, the payment of the Feoffor is a good ſeiſin. And 27 E. 3. 83. in a Scire facias upon a fine levied of a Rent, the Tenant ſaid, That the demandant had received 16 s. parcel of the ſame rent pendant the Writ, by the hands of one who held the Land out of which the rent was iſſuing at will, and took his plea to the whole, becauſe the ſaid Rent was a Rent-ſervice, and ſeiſin of parcel gave ſeiſin of the whole, and ſo the fine executed by that ſeiſin; upon which the Plaintiff did demurr, and it was awarded that he ſhould anſwer to the Remnant, by which it appeareth, (as it was objected) that ſeiſin by the hands of a Tenant at will, was a ſufficient ſeiſin as to that which was paid. And ſee 8 Aſſiz. p. 31. and 8 E. 3, 53. and Fitz. N. B. 179. that payment of the Rent by Tenant for years is ſufficient to have an Aſſize for the Rent. And it was ſaid that the other ſeiſin the deviſee of the Rent could not have during the Term, by other hands than by the Tenant for years; and the payment of the Rent was a local thing, and which of right ought to be paid; and therefore the ſaid payment by the Tenant for years ſhall bind the Tenant of the Free-hold, and ſhall give unto him ſufficient ſeiſin to have an Aſſize. And upon ſolemn Argument this Term by the Judges of the Common Pleas, It was reſolved by the whole Court, ſcil. Coke Chief Juſtice, Walmſley, Warburton and Daniel, That the ſaid payment of Rent by the ſaid Tenant for years, was no ſeiſin to bind the Terre-tenant after the years determined for divers Cauſes. 1. In reſpect of the imbecillity and exility of the Intereſt of Tenant for years, who at the Common Law could not draw the eſtate of Free-hold into Queſtion; For although that the Recovery againſt the Tenant of the Free-hold were by agreement, Tenant for years could not be reſtrained before the Statute of Gloceſter, nor he could not falſifie the Recovery before the Statute of 21 H. 8. So that by the Common Law Tenant for years was ſubject to the pleaſure of the Tenant of the Free-hold; For he cannot falſifie a Recovery of the Free-hold in reſpect of the feebleneſs of his eſtate, and none by the Common Law can falſifie a Recovery of the Free-hold, but he who hath a Free-hold, Vide 7 H. 7. 12. 9 E. 4. 38. 30 H. 6. 16. 7 H. 4. 12. 19 E. 3. Aſſ. 82. The ſecond reaſon was, ex Etymologia & vi termini, ſcil. that he who hath not ſeiſin in the Land charged, cannot give a
[b] ſeiſin of Rent; nemo poteſt plus juris in alium transferre quam ipſe habet. And that is the cauſe, that a Præcipe lieth not againſt a Termor, becauſe he cannot give ſeiſin, and yet in one caſe one manner of Præcipe ſolum lieth againſt him who hath but a Chattel, and no Free-hold; and that is in a Writ of Dower againſt Guardian

Gardian in Knights ſervice, as appeareth in Tempr. E. 1. Breif. 863. 8 E. 2. ibid. 809. 6 E. 3. 8. &c. And a Writ of Dower lieth againſt Gardian in Knights ſervice for two cauſes, 1. Otherwiſe the Tenant in Dower ſhould be without remedy, for in ſuch Caſe no Writ of Dower lieth againſt the heir, as it is adjudged in 9 H. 6. 6. in Freuils caſe. 2. The Gardian may pray, (if the caſe ſo require) that the Demandant endow her ſelf de le plais beuale; but no other Præcipe lieth againſt ſuch Gardian. And no Writ of Dower lieth againſt Gardian in Socage, nor he cannot aſſign Dower, as it appeareth in 29 Aſſ. And it was ſaid, as Poſſeſſio is derived, a poſſe & ſedeo, becauſe that he who is in poſſeſſion may ſit down in reſt and quiet: ſo Seiſina alſo is derived a Sedendo, for till he hath Seiſin, all is, labor & dolor, & vexatio Spiritus; but when he hath ſeiſin, he may ſit down, and reſt in peace and quietneſs. The third reaſon was a manifeſt difference that was between receiving and giving of ſeiſin; For it is true, that he who hath but a Term for years may take ſeiſin for the benefit of him who hath the freehold, 45 E. 3. 26. Grantee for years of a Common uſeth the ſame, the ſame giveth ſeiſin to him in the Reverſion, 22 Aſſ. 84. acc. 12 E. 3. Aſſ. 86. payment to the grantee for years of a Rent, is a ſufficient ſeiſin for him in the Reverſion, M. 39 & 40 Eliz. in my 5 Reports, preſentment by the grantee of the next Avoydance for years, is ſufficient title in a Quare Impedit for the grantor; and all our books are, That the poſſeſſion of Leſſee for years, or Gardian, &c. is ſufficient ſeiſin in the Reverſion to have an Aſſiſe. But ſicut beatius eſt, ita majus eſt dare, quam accipere. For in the firſt caſe he who giveth ſeiſin is Tenant of the Freehold, and he who receiveth Tenant for years, but in this Caſe he who maketh the payment is but Tenant for years of the Land, and he who receiveth claimeth a free-hold in the Rent, and therefore the Tenant for years by his payment cannot give ſeiſin to bind him who hath the Free-hold; and therewith agreeth 2 H. 6. 3 & 8 H. 6. 7. Vide 11 H. 4. 29. Homage done by the Husband before iſſue ſhall not bind the Wife; but ſeiſin by the hands of a Diſſeiſor, or by one who hath a defeaſible title, is ſufficient to bind him who hath right, for he is Tenant of the land, and the act is lawfull; but encroachment of rent by his hands, ſhall not bind him who hath right, for that is not lawfull; and therewith agreeth 8 H. 6. 18. 39 H. 6. 2. 33 E. 3. Avowrie 255. 8 Aſſ. 6. 16. 31. but in the ſame caſe, if there be any covin between the Diſſeiſor and him who hath the rent, and that the purpoſe of the diſſeiſin was, that the diſſeiſor ſhould give ſeiſin of the Rent there, ſuch ſeiſin ſhall not bind the diſſeiſee, or him who hath right, for the covin maketh it unlawfull, in the ſame manner is it as Dower aſſigned by ſuch diſſeiſor, or recovered againſt him, if the diſſeiſin be had againſt him by agreement or covin. But it was ſaid, When there are Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant maketh a feoffment in fee, before notice and tender of the arrerages the Feoffor may give ſeiſin, for he is Tenant as to Avowry, 8 H. 6. 18. for in ſuch caſe if the Lord avoweth upon the Feoffee before tender of the arrerages, he ſhall loſe them, as it is agreed in 7 E. 3. & 7 H. 4. &c. And therefore, for as much as in ſuch Caſe the Common law doth compell the Lord to avow upon the Feoffor, for this cauſe at the Common law ſuch ſeiſin by the Feoffor, cauſa neceſſitatis, was good. And in this caſe difference was taken and agreed between Attornment and Seiſin; for in caſe of a grant of a Seigniory or Reverſion, &c. to Attornment privity of eſtate was requiſite; but not to ſeiſin: But at the Common law the Lord was not compellable to take his rent of any other but of him who was his immediate tenant in privity, and therefore at the Common law, the Lord paramount was not compellable to accept his rent by the hands of the Tenant peravail, or by the hands of Tenant for life, where the reverſion was over to another, and the ſame appeareth by the Statute of Weſt. 2. cap. 9. Capitalis Dominus ſervitia & conſuetudines ſibi debit. renuebat accipere per manus alterius quam per manus proximi tenentis ſui, & ſic tenentes in dominico amiſerunt proficua tenementorum ſuorum; non habeat capitalis dominus poteſtatem diſtringendi tenentes in dominico, dum prædictus tenens offerat ei ſervitia debita & conſueta: And yet ſeiſin had by the hands of the Tenant peravail, or leſſee for life was good, if the Lord accepteth of it. And it was ſaid, That if Tenant in tail maketh a feoffment in fee, if the donor happeth ſeiſin of his rent by the hands of the Diſcontinuee, it is ſufficient to have an Aſſiſe, and yet he cannot avow the Diſcontinuee, nor there is not any privity between them. The fourth reaſon was drawn from the nature of the Rent in the caſe at barr, which as it was ſaid, hath three aſpects. 1. It is againſt Common right. 2. It is in creation redditus ſiccus, barren without fruit, and for his drineſs is compared to a ſtone: Summa petit ſcopuli, ſiccaque in rupe reſedit. 3. It is Redditus cæcus & ſiccus; For it is a rent remedileſs, which cannot ſee any way or remedy to attain to it. And it is to be obſerved, That a Right (without any eſtate in poſſeſſion, reverſion, or remainder) for which good remedy by action is given, is not yet aſſetts, untill it be recovered and reduced into poſſeſſion: So an eſtate, as in Rent-ſeck, which deſcendeth, for which the heir hath not remedy, is not Aſſets, until he hath gained ſeiſin, for want of right, and want of remedy are in one equipage. So one ſhall not be remitted to a Right remedileſs, as it appeareth in the Marqueſs of Wincheſters Caſe in the fourth part of my Reports: And Mich. 12 & 13 Eliz. between Tirling and Trafford it was adjudged, That a Reverſion expectant upon an eſtate tail was not Aſſetts, becauſe it lay in the power of Tenants in tail to cut it off, and to barr it at his pleaſure: And thereupon it was concluded, That for as much as ſuch firſt ſeiſin which ſhould give vigor and life to this remedileſs rent, and ſtill charge the Free-hold, ought to be given by him who hath a Free-hold at leaſt, and not by him who hath but a Chattel, for this cauſe ſeiſin given by him who hath but a term for years was not ſufficient. And it was ſaid, That the rent-ſeck in the Caſe at bar was remedileſs in its creation, becauſe it was created by Will; ſo that there failed not only a remedy for the Rent, but a Writ of Annuity alſo; But if a man granteth a rent by deed out of certain Lands, there as to charge the Land it is remedileſs, but the grantee may charge the perſon of the grantor in a Writ of Annuity. And therefore it was ſaid in ſuch caſe, If he addeth a Proviſo, that it ſhall not charge the perſon of the grantor, it is void, if he doth not give him ſeiſin upon the delivery of the deed; For ſuch Proviſo doth take away all his Remedy; and to avoid the ſame, Littleton in his Chapter of Rents, puts his caſe of a rent charge, in which there was ſuch a Proviſo, in which caſe the grantee was not bereft of all his remedy. It was further agreed, That for as much as a Rent-charge, or a Rent-ſeck was againſt Common Right, that in an

Aſſiſe thereof all the Terretenants, ſc. the Tenants of the Free-hold (who always are in Law intended within theſe words Terretenants) ought to be named; as it is agreed in 9 E. 3. 13. 22 H. 6. 24. 33 E. 3. Aſſ. 456. &. And thereupon it was concluded, that if in caſe of diſſeiſin which is tortious, and privation of ſeiſin, the Tenants of the Free-hold ought to be named and made party, a fortiori, in the caſe of ſeiſin, which in this caſe is creation of Remedy for the Rent, the Tenant of the Free-hold ought to be party and principal agent in the perfection thereof: and he who hath a Rent hath not taken the explees thereof, until he hath ſeiſin by the hands of the Tenant of the Free-hold: for expletia derivantur de verbo expleo, that is, to fill or make up, or to make perfect; For he who hath a Rent, (and chiefly a rent-ſeck) hath not perfect and expleat, or compleat eſtate in the rent, until he hath had a ſeiſin thereof, and when he hath ſeiſin, his eſtate is compleat, and certain and perfect, for he hath reaped the explees, ſcil. [59] the fruit and commodity thereof. See Bracton lib. 2. fol. 40. Item nec expletia capere poſſit, quia nondum venit tempus meſſium nec vindemiarum: ſi autem fructus non maturos percepit, vel arbores proſtraverit, iſta non debent dici expletia, cum ſint potius ad damnum quam ad commodum. And Littleton, Cap. Attornment. 125. was cited, If there be Lord, Meſn and Tenant, and the Lord will grant the ſervices of the Meſne, although in his grant he doth not make mention of the Meſne, yet it behoveth that the Meſne attorn, and not the Tenant peravail, becauſe the Meſne is Tenant to him, but otherwiſe it is where Land is charged with a Rent-charge, or Rent-ſeck, for in ſuch caſe if he who hath the Rent, granteth the ſame to another, it behoveth, that the Tenant of the Free-hold attorn to the grantee, becauſe the Free-hold is charged with the Rent, &c. And if the Tenant of the Free-hold ought to attorn to a grant (as Littleton holdeth) a fortiori, the Tenant of the Free-hold ought to give ſeiſin. For ſeiſin is more than Attornment, for every local ſeiſin includeth Attornment; but Attornment doth not include ſeiſin. And it appeareth by 21 H. 6. 9. That if the Terretenant out of which the rent is iſſuing be diſſeiſed, and he who hath the Rent granteth it over, the diſſeiſee cannot Attorn, becauſe he hath not the Free-hold, although he hath the mere right to it, a fortiori Tenant for years who hath no Free-hold, nor right of Free-hold, ſhall not give ſeiſin. Laſtly, It was agreed, That it ſhall be full of many Inconveniences, if he who hath not the Free-hold ſhall give ſeiſin. For then Tenant by Statute Merchant, or Staple, Tenant by Elegit, Gardians, Grantees of Wards, &c. Alſo if the King extend and leaſe over, all theſe might put Lords, or Owners of Rents in poſſeſſion of the Rent or Services, of which they had not any ſeiſin within time of Limitation, which ſhall be very perillous and dangerous, and the cauſe of many ſutes and troubles. And as to the Objection, ſcil. That payment by a Baily ſhall be ſufficient, it was agreed, if it worketh not ſpecial prejudice to the Lord: as if the Lord hath not been ſeiſed of his Rent within ſixty years, and the Tenant maketh one his Baily generally of his Mannor, he cannot without expreſs Commandment of his Maſter pay this Rent remedileſs to the Lord, for that ſhall be a ſpecial prejudice to him, which a Baily without Commandment cannot do. And as to the Caſe of 27 E. 3. 83. it was agreed, for there the Tenant pleaded the payment of the Rent by the hands of Tenant at Will, and ſo avowed the payment as his own payment by the hands of Tenant at Will, Vide 4 H. 6. 29, 30. In a Replevin againſt W. he made Conuſans as the Kings Baily; and ſaid, That the King was ſeiſed of the Caſtle of [b] Lanton, as parcel of his Dutchy of Cornwall; and had a Rent of 20 s. iſſuing out of the Town of T. and that all who had been Dukes there, had been ſeiſed time out of mind by the hands of thoſe who were demurrant and reſident within the ſame Town, and preſented to diſtrain for it quoties, &c. And it was holden a good ſeiſin; for the Rent was iſſuing out of the whole Town, and that all the reſidents and dwellers ought to pay it, in which caſe he could not alledge ſeiſin by the hands of any perſon certain, for the ſeiſin given by one, bound all, and it cannot be intended, That a man may have knowledge of all the Inhabitants, for which cauſe, by the advice of the Court, the Conuſans in ſuch caſe was awarded good.

Hill. 4 Jacobi, in the Common Pleas.

Gateward's Caſe.

IN Treſpaſs by Robert Smith againſt Stephen Gateward Gent. for breaking of his Cloſe at Horſington in the County of Lincoln called Horſington Holms, cum quibuſd. averiis, viz. equis, vaccis, bidentibus, &c. depaſtus fuit 1 Aug. An. 43 Eliz. with continuance. The Defendant quoad porcos, pleaded Not guilty: And as to the reſidue of the Treſpaſs he pleaded; That the Town of Stixwold is an ancient Town, and lieth near the ſaid Cloſe called Horſington Holms; and that within the ſaid Town, time whereof the memory of man hath not been to the contrary, there hath been a Cuſtom, That the Inhabitants within the ſaid Town of Stixwold aforeſaid, infra aliquod antiquum meſſuagium ibidem ratione commorantiæ & reſidenciæ ſuæ in eadem, habuerunt & uſi fuerunt & conſueverunt habere Com. paſturæ in prædict. loco in quo, &c. pro omnibus, & omnimodis, & bobus, & equis, & aliis groſſis animalibus communicalibus ſuper hujuſmodi antiqua meſſuagia ſua infra prædict. villam de Stixwold prædict. modo & forma ſequente, viz. quolibet anno ad omnia tempora [60] anni, necnon pro bidentibus ſuis levant. & cuhant. &c. quolibet ann. ſuper primum diem Auguſti, & abinde uſque feſtum annunciationis beatæ Mariæ virginis tunc prox. ſequen. And pleaded that he prædict. tempore quo was, and yet is commorans & inhabitans in the ſaid Town of Stixwold, in an ancient houſe in Stixwold aforeſaid, and ſo juſtified; upon which the Plaintiff did demurr in Law. And this plea began, Trinit. 3 Jacobi, and was oftentimes argued at the Bar, and now this Term was openly argued at the Bench by all the Juſtices; and it was unanimouſly Reſolved by all the Juſtices of the Common Pleas, That the Cuſtom was againſt Law for divers cauſes. 1. There are but four manner of Commons, ſc. Common appendant, appendant, appurtenant, in groſs, and by reaſon of vicinage, and this Common ratione commorantiæ & reſidentiæ is none of them, and argumentum a diviſione eſt fortiſſimum in jure. 2. What eſtate ſhall he have who is Inhabitant in the Common, when it appeareth he hath not any eſtate or intereſt in the houſe, (but a mere habitation and dwelling) in reſpect of which he ought to have his Common? For none can have Intereſt in Common in reſpect of a houſe in which he hath no intereſt. 3. Such Common ſhall be tranſitory, and for no certain time or eſtate, but during his Inhabitancy, and ſuch manner of Intereſt the Law will not ſuffer, for Cuſtom ought to extend to that which hath certainty and continuance. 4. It ſhall be againſt the nature and quality of a Common, for every Common may be ſuſpended or extinguiſhed, but ſuch a Common ſhall be ſo incident to the perſon, that no perſon certain can extinguiſh it, but ſo ſoon as he who releaſeth, &c. removeth, the new Inhabitant ſhall have it. 5. If the Law ſhould allow ſuch Common, the Law would give an Action, or Remedy for it; but he who claimeth it as Inhabitant, cannot have any Action for it. 6. In theſe words, Inhabitants and Reſidents, are included Tenants in Fee-ſimple, Tenant for life, for years, Tenant by Elegit, &c. Tenant at will, &c. and he who hath not any Intereſt, but only a habitation and dwelling; and by the Rule of all our Books without Queſtion, Tenant in Fee-ſimple ought to preſcribe in his own name, Tenant for life, years, by Elegit, &c. at will, &c. in the name of him who hath Fee, and he who hath not any Intereſt cannot have any Common; So that none that hath any Intereſt, be it but at will, and ought to have Common, but by good pleading he may enjoy it. 7. No improvement can be made in any Waſts, if ſuch Common ſhall be allowed, for the Tenants for life, or years, at Will, Tenant by Elegit, Statute Staple, and Statute-Merchant, of houſes of the Lord himſelf ſhall have Common in the Waſts of the Lord himſelf, if ſuch preſcription [b] ſhould be allowed, which ſhall be inconvenient. But two differences were taken and agreed by the whole Court. 1. Between a Charge in the Land of another, and a diſcharge in his own Land. 2. Between an Intereſt or profit taken or had in anothers Land; and an eaſement in anothers Land; And therefore a Cuſtom that every Inhabitant of a Town hath paid a Modus Decimandi to the Parſon in diſcharge of their Tithes is good, for they claim not a charge, or profit apprender in the ſoil of another, but a diſcharge in their own land. So of a Cuſtom that every Inhabitant of ſuch a Town ſhall have a way over ſuch Land, either to the Church or Market, &c. is good, for the ſame is only an eaſment, and no profit; and a way or paſſage may well follow the perſon, and no ſuch Inconvenience as in the Caſe at Bar. 8. It was Reſolved, That Copyholders in fee, or for life, may by Cuſtom of the Mannor have Common in the demeans of the Lord of the Mannor, but then he ought to alledge the Cuſtom of the Mannor to be, quod quilibet tenens Cuſtomarius cujuſlibet antiqui Meſſuagii cuſtomar. &c. and not quod quilibet inhabitans infra aliquod antiquum Meſſuagium Cuſtomar. &c. For a Copyholder hath a Cuſtomary Intereſt in the Houſe, &c. And therefore he may have a Cuſtomary Common in the Lords Waſts; and in ſuch Caſe he cannot preſcribe in the name of the Lord; For the Lord cannot claim Common in his own land, and therefore of neceſſity ſuch Cuſtom ought to be alledged, Vide 21 E. 3. 34. See the 4th. part of my Reports, Foiſton's Caſe, 31, 32. Another difference was taken and agreed, between a Preſcription which always is alledged in the perſon, and a Cuſtom, which always ought to be alledged in the Land: For every preſcription ought to have by Common intendment a lawful beginning, but otherwiſe is it of a Cuſtom; for that ought to be reaſonable, & ex certa cauſa rationabili uſitata, as Littleton ſaith; but needeth not have intendment of a lawful beginning, as Cuſtom to have Land deviſable, or of the nature of Gavelkind, or Borough Engliſh, &c. Theſe and the like Cuſtoms are reaſonable, but by Common Intendment they cannot have a lawful beginning, by no grant, or act, or agreement, but only by Parliament. See alſo for this matter Foiſton's Caſe. Alſo it was agreed, That the Cuſtom of a Mannor that Dominus pro tempore ſhall grant lands Cuſtomary, is good, and Tenant at will may [61] make ſuch a grant, and ſo 20 H. 6. by the Cuſtom of the Court of Common Pleas, the chief Juſtice doth grant divers Offices for life, and theſe Cuſtoms are good. But in ſuch Caſes, he who granteth them hath an Intereſt in the Mannor or Office, and their grant is made good by cuſtom. And 19 R. 2. Action ſur le caſe 52. Beadel of the Hundred ſhall have 3. Lag. of Beer of every Brewer who ſelleth within the Hundred, cauſa qua ſupra. But a Cuſtom, That an Inhabitant or Reſident, ſhall grant or take any profit, is merely void. 9. It was Reſolved, That if the Cuſtom had been alledged, That quilibet pater familius infra aliquod antiquum Meſſuag. &c. it ſhould be alſo inſufficient for the Cauſes and reaſons aforeſaid; and if he hath any Intereſt, he may be relieved as aforeſaid, Vide 7 E. 4. 26, 15 E. 4. 29. & 32. 18 E. 4. 3. b. 20 E. 4. 10. 18 H. 8. 1. b. 19 H. 8. reported by Spilman, that ſuch Cuſtom is not warranted by Law, and ſo was it adjudged in this Court, Trin. 33 Eliz. Rot. 422. See the Book of Entries, Treſpaſs, 85. Common 16. Vide 9 H. 6. 62. 7 E. 6. Dier Iſam's Caſe. Note Reader, the Law in this general Caſe well reſolved; and no book in the Law is adjudged againſt it. And hereby appeareth how pleaders may ſafely plead in theſe and the like Caſes; and obſerve well, That the Cuſtom in the Caſe at Bar was inſufficient and repugnant in it ſelf; For it was alledged, that the Cuſtom of the Town of Stixwold was, that every Inhabitant within the ſame had uſed, &c. to have Common within a place in the Town of H. which was another Town, Vide 21 Eliz. Dyer 363.

Mich. 4 Jacobi, in the Common Pleas.

Catesby's Case.

[b] GEorge Catesby brought a Quare Impedit of the Church of Wiſhton in the County of Northampton, against the Biſhop of Peterborough, and Walter Baker Clark, and the Plaintiff Counted, That Thomas Catesby his Father was ſeiſed of the Mannor of Wiſhton, &c. to which, &c. in Fee, and preſented Francis Foſter his Clark to the ſaid Church who was admitted, inſtituted and inducted. Paſch. 34 Eliz. Thomas Catesby levied a fine of the ſaid Mannor, to which, &c. to Henry Yelverton Eſquire, and Thomas Heſilrigge, and to the heirs of the ſaid Henry, to the uſe of himſelf for life, and after his deceaſe, to the uſe of the Plaintiff for life, and afterwards Thomas died; after whoſe death the Church became void, by deprivation of Thomas Foſter canonically made, 15 Januarii 1604. and yet is void, and ſo it did appertain to him to preſent; and the Defendants did diſturb him. The Biſhop confeſſed the ſeiſin of Thomas, and the fine, and the uſes thereof, and that the Church is now void by the ſaid deprivation, as the Plaintiff hath counted; and farther pleaded, that at the time of the ſaid deprivation, ſcil. 24 Feb. 1604. he gave notice of the ſaid deprivation to the ſaid George Catesby then Patron, &c. and that the Church remained void ſix months after the ſaid notice, for which the Biſhop, as Ordinary, after the ſix months, viz. 12 die Auguſti, 1605. per lapſum temporis, did collate the ſaid W. Baker the other Defendant, as it was lawful for him to do. To which the Plaintiff ſaid, that it appeareth by the plea of the Biſhop, that he did collate infra tempus ſemeſtre proximum poſt diem notitia: and note, the other Defendant pleaded the ſame plea; and the Plaintiff made the like replication; and upon the replications, the Defendants did ſeverally demurr in Law. And the only point in this caſe was, If the ſix months ſhall be accounted according to the computation of twenty eight days to a month, for then the ſix months were paſt, and then the Ordinary hath well collated, or if the computation ſhall be according to the Kalender, and then the ſix months according to ſuch computation, were not paſt. And this plea began, Trin. 4 Jacobi, Rot. 1928. and upon argument at Bar and Bench, it was adjudged for the Plaintiff, and the principal cauſes and reaſons of their Judgment were theſe. 1. Tempus ſemeſtre, being ſpoken in the ſingular number, (as it appeareth by the Dictionaries) doth ſignifie half a year, or ſix months, ſcil. tales 6 menſes, qui conficiunt dimidium anni. And there is great difference in our ordinary ſpeech, between the ſingular number, as a twelve month, doth include all the year, according to the Kalendar, but twelve months ſhall be reckoned according to twenty eight days to the Month. 2. Verba accipienda ſunt ſecundum ſubjectam materiam. And becauſe this computation of ſix months doth concern thoſe of the Church, it is great reaſon that the computation be according to the Churches computation, which they beſt know. 3. It appeareth by the Statute of Weſtm. 2. cap. 5. that ſuch computation ought to be made, &c. For ſi tempus ſemeſtre non tranſierit, &c. tunc adjudicentur damna ad valorem medietatis Eccleſiæ per unum annum: ſo that the Statute doth intend to reckon by the year, and not by months. 4. It is commonly ſaid in our Books, that if a year and a half be paſt, title is devolved to the King to preſent by Laps, by which it appeareth, that the computation ſhall be according to the Kalender, and not according to twenty eight days, for that doth not amount to a year and a half. 5. When the computation is doubtful, it is good to determine it for the relief and remedy of him who hath right, and for the advantage of his right, to give him the longeſt time; to the end that he loſe not his right: and theſe were the reaſons that were given of this Judgment. For Authorities: A reſolution of this Court in the time E. 2. in the Book written of Caſes in his time; in which Book, (which belongeth to Juſtice Walmeſley) appeareth a Writ awarded out of this Court, in theſe words. Rex venerabili in Chriſto, W. eadem gratia Lincoln. Epiſcopo ſalutem. Cum Magiſter militiæ Templi in Anglia quandam Aſſiſam ultimæ præſentationis quam per breve noſtrum arraniavit coram dilecto & fideli noſtro I. de C. Juſticiario noſtro, &c. verſus G. de W. de Eccleſia de M. vacante, & ad ſuam præſentationem ſpectant ut dicebat. Advocationem illius Eccleſiæ diſrationavit in Curia noſtra per breve noſtrum de Judicio. Vobis obtinuerit demandare quod ad præſentationem ſuam idoneam perſonam admitteretis ad Eccleſiam ſupradictam, vos ut accepimus lapſis & computatis ſingulis diebus a morte Rectoris Eccleſiæ illius, uſque ad numerum octies viginti & octo dierum continue ſequentium, qui ſex menſes facere videntur aſſerentes prædictam Eccleſiam authoritate Conſilii, ratione lapſus hujuſmodi ſemeſtre temporis ad vos ea vice legitime fuiſſe devolut', idoneam perſonam ad mandatum noſtrum prædictum ad præſentationem prædicti Magiſtri admittere diſtuliſtis ad eandem, in ipſius Magiſtri præjudicium, & exhæreditationem manifeſtam. Vos igitur quia in vacationibus Eccleſiarum, ſecundum legem & conſuetudinem hactenus obtentam & uſitatam in regno noſtro hujuſmodi tempus computari debet, & non a die mortis Rectoris, ſed a die ſcientiæ Patroni, uſque ad ſex menſes completos, non juxta numerum ſingulorum dierum, ſed juxta numerum ſex menſium, qui menſes in Kalendario computantur, eundem magiſtrum præſentationem ſuam ad Eccleſiam illam indebite defraudare volentes, vobis mandamus firmiter injungentes, quod ad præſentationem prædictam idoneam perſonam admittere non differatis in Eccleſiam ſupradictam. Teſte, &c. And now the Law is taken, that the ſix months ſhall be taken from the death, and that in ſuch caſe there needeth not any notice. Yet, (begin it when it will) it appeareth there by the award of the Court, that the ſix months ſhall be accounted according to the Kalender, and not ſecundum numerum ſingulorum dierum, &c. Alſo Marrow in his reading in the time of H. 7. was of the ſame opinion. And Juſtice Spelman doth report (that I have ſeen in the Book of Juſtice Yelverton) a caſe reſolved in the time of H. 8. in theſe words. A matter in Law was put to two Juſtices in the time of King H. 8. to have their opinions, and and reſolutions, between the Biſhop of Lincoln and one Dr. White, how the ſix months ſhall be accounted in a Quare Impedit, whether according to four weeks to a month, or according to the Kalendar, ſcil. Septembr. Octobr. &c. and they by the advice of their companions, ſaid, that the ſix months ſhall be accounted according to the Kalender, and not by the weeks. And of ſuch opinion was Wray Chief Juſtice, which I my ſelf heard. And with this reſolution agreed Popham Chief Juſtice of England, Flemming Chief Baron, and all the other Juſtices at Serjeants Inn in Fleetſtreet. And notwithſtanding a Writ of Error was brought upon this Judgment in the Kings Bench, where the Judges for the reaſons aforeſaid did affirm the Judgment.

Mich. 4 Jacobi, in the Common Pleas.

Sir Moyl Finch's Caſe.

IN a Replevin between Avery, and Daniel Crat, which began in the Common Pleas, Paſch. 1 Jacobi, Rot. 1610. upon long and intricate pleading, the caſe was ſuch: Katherine Lady Moyle was ſeiſed of the Mannor of Beamſton in the County of Kent, for the term of her life, the remainder to Katherine Lady Finch in fee: and afterwards the Lady Finch took to Husband Nicholas Seintleger, Hill. 10 Eliz. Seintleger and his wife, and one Anthony Deal, levied a fine of all the demeans of the ſaid Mannor, (by certain quantity of acres which did include all the demeans of the Mannor) to Thomas Finch and his heirs, who granted, and rendred the demeans of the ſaid Mannor to the ſaid Deal for fifty years, from the feaſt of S. Michael then laſt paſt, rendring 5 l. rent, and granted the reverſion to Seintleger, and the Lady Finch, and to the heirs of the Lady Finch: which fine was levied according to certain indentures before made between the parties, by which, amongſt other Covenants, it was agreed, that the ſaid Nicholas Seintleger, and the Lady Finch, &c. ſhould have free ingreſs and egreſs, in and out of the ſaid Mannor, for them, their Steward, Servants and Tenants, to hold the Court Baron, in and upon the ſaid demeans: and it was added, that the ſaid demeans, together with the ſervices, were from the time of the fine levied, during all the life of the ſaid Lady Katherine Finch, at Eaſtwell, and elſewhere in the County of Kent, commonly known, holden, reputed and called by the name of the Mannor of Beamſton. And afterwards by indenture tripartite, Anno 16 Eliz. between Sir Thomas Heneadge and Anne his Wife, of the firſt part, Seintleger and his ſaid Wife of the ſecond part, and Sir Moyl Finch of the third part, it was covenanted and agreed, that the ſaid Seintleger and the ſaid Katherine his Wife, ſhould levy a fine of the Mannors of Eaſtwell, Potbury, Setons, Willington, *Uckin*g and Ulley, in the County of Kent, and all other Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments of the ſaid Katherine in the ſaid County of Kent, except the Mannor of Beamſton in the ſaid County, to the uſe of Katherine Lady Finch for life, and afterwards to the uſe of the ſaid Sir Moyl Finch in tail, with divers remainders over, which fine was levied accordingly, in which as many acres were contained, that were ſufficient to paſs the ſaid demeans. Anthony Deal being poſſeſſed of the ſaid intereſt of the term as aforeſaid, made his Will in writing, and thereof made Moyle Deal his Son his Executor, and Anno 19 Eliz. died, the ſaid Moyl then being of the age of three years, and preſently after his death, adminiſtration of the Goods of the ſaid Anthony, Ratione minoris ætatis of the ſaid Moyl Deal, was committed to Robert Thomas, and afterwards, Anno 23 Eliz. Seintleger, and his Wife levied a fine of the Mannor of Beamſton, and of divers acres ſufficient to paſs all the demeans, to the uſe of Seintleger, and Katherine his Wife, and to the heirs of the ſaid Katherine, until the ſaid Seintleger, with the aſſent of the ſaid Katherine his Wife in writing, ſigned and ſealed by him, declared to what other uſes, and then to the ſame uſes. Robert Thomas the Adminiſtrator demiſed the tenement aforeſaid, to Pa. Lofty for 10 years, and afterwards the ſaid Katherine Lady Moyl, Anno 26 Eliz. died, Pa. Lofty entred, Anno 27 Eliz. Seintleger, with the conſent of his ſaid Wife, according to the ſaid limitation, declared the uſes of the tenements aforeſaid, to be to Hancock and Sturges, and their heirs, who ejected Pa. Lofty, and did thereof enfeoff Glanvile and Sturges, and their heirs, to the uſe of the ſaid Katherine Lady Finch for her life, and after to the uſe of Henry Finch, her younger Son, and Urſula his Wife, and the heirs of their two bodies. Pa. Lofty the Leſſee of the Adminiſtrator, doth reenter, Katherine Lady Finch died, the Rent reſerved by the ſaid fine, Anno 10. was arrear for thirteen years, ended 44 Eliz. and for the ſaid Arrearages, the Defendants, as Baylies to Henry Finch, did diſtrein, and the Plaintiff Leſſee of Sir Moyl Finch, brought a Replevin. And in this caſe four points were moved, and argued, as well at the Bar, as this Term, by Daniel, Warberton, Walmſley and Coke Chief Juſtice at the Bench. The firſt point was, if by the time of 10 Eliz. in which was ſuch a grant and tender, as is aforeſaid, the Mannor was deſtroyed for ever, and that was called the deſtroying point. 2. Admitting the Mannor was for ever deſtroyed, if the exception in the ſaid indenture of 16 Eliz. by the name of the Mannor of Beamſton, be ſufficient to except, and ſave the Mannor out of the fine of 16 Eliz. levied to the uſe of the ſame indentures; and that was called the ſaving point. 3. If the Leaſe made by the Adminiſtrator, ratione minoris ætatis, for ten years, be good or not, and that was called the making point. The fourth and laſt point was, If there needed any attornment, or that the regreſs of Paul Lofty the Leſſee for part of the time, ſcil. ten years, ſhould amount to an attornment; and that was called the perfecting point. As to the firſt, It was reſolved by the whole Court, that although that on an inſtant the demeans were granted to S. and Katherine Lady Finch, and to the

the heirs of Katherine, ſo that there was not any tranſmutation of any poſſeſſion, yet the demeans being once by act of the party ſevered in fee ſimple, from the ſervices of the Mannor, the Mannor is deſtroyed for ever. And the difference was taken between the act of the parties and the act of the Law; For if there be two Coparceners of a Mannor, and upon a partition the demeans are allotted to the one, and the ſervices to another, in this caſe, although there is an abſolute ſeverance, yet if one dieth without iſſue, and the demeans deſcend to her who hath the ſervices, the Mannor is revived again; becauſe upon the partition they were in by the act of Law, and the demeans and ſervices were united again by act in Law. And ſo was the clear opinion of Thorpe and other Juſtices, in the time of E. 3. as Thirning Chief Juſtice reporteth in 12 H. 4. 25. And the caſe intended was the caſe of Hugh Audley Earl of Glouceſter, which began 17 E. 3. 72. but there was not reſolved. Vide 10 H. 66. 26. acc. So if upon partition an Advowſon is allotted to one, and the Mannor to another, and afterwards one dieth without iſſue, by which the Law uniteth them again, in that caſe the Advowſon which was once ſevered, is now appendant again. Alſo it is agreed in 26 H. 8. 4. that if partition be made of a Mannor betwixt two Coparceners, and upon the partition each hath parcel of the demeans, and parcel of the ſervices, becauſe each of them is in by act of Law, each of them hath a Mannor. But if a man hath a Mannor, and he granteth part of the demeans, and part of the ſervices to another, he ſhall not have a Mannor, for a man by his own act cannot create a Mannor at this day; and ſo it appeareth, that fortior & potentior eſt diſpoſitio legis quam hominis. As to the ſecond point, it was objected, That for as much as in Anno 10 Eliz. the Mannor was deſtroyed, it cannot be excepted by the name of a Mannor in Anno 16 Eliz. and that for three cauſes. 1. The time of five or ſix years is not ſufficient time to make reputation, but it was urged it ought to be time out of mind, &c. As when Land paſſeth as appertaining to a houſe, it ought to be averred to be uſually occupied with the houſe time out of mind, &c. as it appeareth in Hill and Grange's Caſe, Plow. Com. 170. b. 2. The averment that from the time of the levying of the fine during the life of the Lady Finch, it was known and reputed for a Mannor was impoſſible, for it cannot be reputed and known preſently after the fine levied, but time ought to give name and Conuſans, and eo potius, becauſe the ſaid fine was levied of the Reverſion; For the Lady Moyl had all for the term of her life, and ſuch Reputation or Conuſans cannot be of a Reverſion expectant upon eſtate for life, as it may be of a poſſeſſion. 3. Although the Reputation of a vulgar name will ſerve in grants and conveyances, yet it will not ſerve in Judicial proceedings of the Law, which are framed by learned men; [b] And therefore by the ſaid Fine of Anno 23. which is a Judicial proceeding of Law, it ſhall not paſs by the name of a Mannor, which in truth and in Law is not a Mannor. But it was reſolved, That the Exception as this caſe is, is ſufficient to except the Demeans and Services, by the name of a Mannor, notwithſtanding the Mannor was deſtroyed. 1. It was the good and true intent of the parties: For the Lady Finch and the other who were parties to the Fine and Indentures of 10 Eliz. did not think of any diſmembring or deſtroying of the Mannor: For in the ſame Indenture proviſion was made to have ingreſs and egreſs to hold the Courts of the Mannor. Alſo all the parties to the Indenture 16 Eliz. thought that it was a Mannor, (whereof Sir Moyl Finch was one) for by expreſs words it is excepted by the name of a Mannor, and in the fine of 16 Eliz. divers Mannors are named, but no mention of the Mannor Beamſton, for that was intended to be excepted; but the ſame is by the expreſs name of the Mannor of Beamſton mentioned in the fine of 23 Eliz. ſo that the true meaning of all the parties appeareth, that it ſhould be excluded out of the Fine of 16. and included within the fine of 23. And it is well ſaid in Hill and Grange's Caſe, Plow. Com. 170. It is the office of a Judge to take and expound the words which the Common people uſe to expreſs their meaning, according to their intents, and not according to the very definition. And Bracton ſaith, Nihil tam inconveniens eſt naturali æquitati, quam voluntatem Domini volentis rem ſuam in aliam transferre ratam habere. And although a general Rule is generally to be underſtood, yet the ſaid Rules are principally to be obſerved in Wills, and alſo in caſes of uſes which were but Truſts and Confidences between man and man. And to this purpoſe Shelley's Caſe in the Firſt part of my Reports, and Carter and Ringſtead's Caſe there vouched were cited and applyed to this purpoſe. 2. For as much as the true intent and meaning of the parties appeareth, what is the hindrance that we the Judges ſhould not adjudge it good? It hath been objected, That the thing excepted is not well named: For in Law Beamſton is not a Mannor, for it was deſtroyed by the fine of 10 Eliz. and for that deſtruction, the Exception of it by the name of a Mannor ſhall be void. In the argument of which point it was ſaid, That the Law doth not favour advantages of Miſnoſmer more than the ſtrict rule of Law doth require, neither in Writs which may be abated, and new brought, nor (chiefly) in grants or other conveyances, in which caſe the party hath not any remedy to have newer. And therefore if two be joyned in one Writ, the one ſhall not plead Miſnoſmer of the other, as it is agreed in 14 H. 6. 3. In an Action againſt Husband and Wife, although that they are one perſon in Law, yet the one ſhall not plead Miſnoſmer of the other. 33 E. 3. Maintenance de bre. 63. In Treſpaſs in Holderneſs apud W. the Defendant pleaded (that in reſpect of ſuch Miſnoſmer) that it was not Town, Hamlet, or place known, &c. The Plaintiff replyed that it was, without ſhewing certain, either that it was Town, Hamlet, or known place, and all that in deteſtation of nice and dilatory Exceptions. And it was alſo obſerved, That till theſe later times it was never read in any of our Books, that any Body Politick or Corporation did endeavour or attempt by any ſute to avoid any of their Leaſes, Grants, or Conveyances, or other of their own deeds for the Miſnoſmer of the true name of their Corporation; but after that a window was opened to give light to avoid their own grants for the Miſnoſmer of themſelves, what ſutes and troubles followed thereupon every one knoweth. But it was ſaid, for every curious or nice Miſnoſmer, God forbid, that their leaſes, or grants ſhall be avoided, for apices juris non ſunt jura. But it was reſolved. That as this caſe is, there was a ſufficient name in Law to make the Exception good. For nomen dicitur a noſcendo, quia notitiam facit, and in this caſe it is averred, præd. cognitum fuit per nomen, &c. So that it is not only notum, but Cognitum, which is more; and by true Etymology and ſenſe, Cognomen nomen majorum eſt ex ſanguine tractum, hoc intrinſec' eſt, agnomen extrinſec' ab eventu; and yet the Law doth not regard this preciſe propriety of words. For if a grant be made to a Baſtard by the ſurname of him who is ſuppoſed to beget him, it is good if he be known by ſuch a name. So if a Remainder be limited Rich. filio Rich. Marwood, it is good, although he be a Baſtard, if in vulgar Reputation and knowledge he be known by ſuch name, as the book is in 39 E. 3. 11. and yet in truth and in Law he is nullius filius: For of a Baſtard it is ſaid,

Cui pater eſt populus, pater eſt ſibi nullus, & omnis;
Cui pater eſt populus, non habet ille patrem.

In 41 E. 3. 19. is a notable Caſe. Richard Thomſon had iſſue by one Johan before marriage Agnes, and afterwards married Johan, and made a Feoffment in fee, and took back an eſtate to him for life remanere inde Agnetæ filiæ prædict. Richardi & Johannæ; and agreed that it is a good Remainder, without any averment that ſhe was known to be their daughter, as it was in the caſe of 39 E. 3. but there it was objected, that a Baſtard is not their daughter in Law, and therefore the Remainder void: But there Finchden gave the Rule and ſaid, It is found that the daughter was born before the marriage, ſo that by their marriage after ſhe was their daughter. In which is to obſerved, That although by the Common law ſhe was not their daughter; yet becauſe ſhe had colour by the Eccleſiaſtical Law, which ſaith, Quod ſubſequens matrimonium tollit peccatum præcedens, this colour is ſufficient in caſe of a Conveyance to make the Remainder good. And ſo note a difference between a deſcent and purchaſe; and therewith expreſly [b] ageeth, 36 Aſſ. 13. In 27 E. 3. 85. William Abbot of Worceſter by the name of W. Abbot of W. by his deed with the conſent of his Covent granted to the Burgeſſes of W. Common of Paſture in certain Lands, and although his Chriſtian name was miſtaken, yet becauſe there was ſufficient certainty to make a certain name of the Grantor, ſcil. Abbot of W. for this cauſe the grant was adjudged good: for in this ſenſe it is true, Nil facit error Nominis cum de Corpore conſtat, but otherwiſe it is in a Writ; for there if the Abbot be miſnamed by a falſe Chriſtian name, the writ ſhall abate, becauſe he may have a new writ, and therewith agreeth 18 E. 4. 8. 15 H. 7. 1. and 22 H. 6. &c. As to the ſecond Objection which hath been made, that in this caſe, there was not a ſufficient time to make the Reputation of a Manor, and that time out of mind is requiſite in this caſe; It was anſwered and Reſolved, That there is a difference between a title to a thing to be created and claimed by preſcription of time, and the name of a thing in eſſe to make it paſs in a Conveyance. For no man can claim a Rent, Common, or other profit of Inheritance by uſage, but he ought to claim it by preſcription time out of mind, for ſuch time is requiſite by the Law; but to make a thing in eſſe to paſs by a name, there needeth not time out of mind, &c. but ſuch convenient time that it may be known by ſuch name. And it would be demanded, to what places ought ſuch knowledge to extend? To all England? or to all the County in which the Land lieth, or to what place? To that it was anſwered and reſolved, that it extendeth only in Law ad vicinetum of the Town where the Land lieth; for there the knowledge ought to be, where it ought to be tried, and that is in vicineto of the place where the Land lyeth. For the name of a Mannor or Land, or other local thing is to be tried where the Writ is brought, becauſe it is local, and the name of a perſon is tranſitory; and therefore it was agreed, That the Houſe in the Strand now of late called Exeter Houſe, and the Houſe in Fleetſtreet called Dorſet Houſe, have within theſe three years gained ſufficient names amongſt all their [c] Neighbours to know it by ſuch name, and thereby to diſtinguiſh the houſe from other houſes. In 41 E. 3. Maintenance de bre. 49. the caſe was, That in truth there was a mannor called Aſplegiſe, and was alſo known by the name of Aſple only, and there in a Præcipe of the Mannor by the name of the Mannor of Aſple (without addition) the Tenant after the View, demanded Judgment of the Writ, becauſe that the Mannor which was put in view was the Mannor of Aſplegiſe; and the Demandant ſaid, that the Mannor put in view is known by the name of Aſple, and thereupon iſſue was joyned. In which was obſerved, 1. That the plea for the maintenance of the writ was, That the Mannor is known in the preſent tenſe, which is intended, at the time of the Writ brought. 2. That although a Mannor cannot begin within time of memory, yet a Mannor may get a name to be demanded in a Præcipe within convenient time. 3. That ſuch name gotten by knowledge of the Country is ſufficient, without the true and proper name, Vide 8 H. 6. 32. for in ſuch ſenſe it is true, de nomine proprio non eſt curandum, dum in ſubſtantia non erretur, quia nomina mutabilia ſunt, res autem immobiles. In a Quare Impedit of the Church of B. the Defendant pleaded, That there was no ſuch Church in the County where the Writ is brought, [66] afterwards iſſue was joyned that there was a Church in the ſame County known by the name of B. for Finchden, who gave the Rule there ſaid, if any Church within the County be known by ſuch name, it is ſufficient to maintain the Writ, which agreeth with the book of 41 E. 3. In 21 H. 6. 4. In Treſpaſs againſt John Arderne Abbot Sancti Johannis Baptiſtæ in Colcheſter; The Abbot pleaded, that he was founded by the name of Abbot of the Church and Monaſtery of St. John Baptiſt, &c. The Plaintiff ſaid, That the Abbot was known by the one name and the other, and ſo to iſſue; In which it was obſerved, that it ſatisfyeth to ſay, That this Abbot (without ſaying, and his Predeceſſors) was known by ſuch name. Ergo, there needeth not time out of mind, &c. 47 E. 3. 5. there it appeareth, That if a Chappel be in the time of H. 3. and when it became void, the King preſenteth to the ſame as a Church, and ſo did E. 1. and E. 2. and afterwards E. 3. being diſturbed brought a Quare impedit as to a Church; and there Chavendiſh Chief Juſtice ſaid, That after the ſaid preſentees had been received as to a Church, I ſay it is not now a Chappel, but a Church; By which it appeareth, that the ſaid Rule is true, nomina ſunt mutabilia, res autem immobiles. And therewith agreeth 11 H. 6. 18. where the caſe was, That a Parſon had an Annuity by preſcription of a Vicar, and afterwards E. 3. when the Vicar died, preſented I. as Parſon, and ſo were all his ſucceſſors preſented as Parſons, and the Parſon made a ſpecial preſcription, ſcil. That A. was Vicar, and that he and all his predeceſſors Vicars, &c. And that after the death of A. the King

preſented as to a Parſonage, and ſo he and his predeceſſors Parſons had payed, &c. and charge the Defendant as Parſon in a Writ of Annuity, and there it appeareth, that by the ſaid preſentments the name of Vicaridge was changed into a Parſonage. As to the 2. Objection, That the averrment was impoſſible and repugnant, that from the time of the levying of the fine it was known, reputed, &c. To that it was anſwered and reſolved, That there was not any impoſſibility or repugnancy, for in the averment there are four words, cognit. habit. reputat. & nuncupat. and they were true before 10 Eliz. for then, and time out of mind, &c. it was in truth a Mannor, ſo that the Conuſans, Reputation, or appellation, did not begin from the fine in 10 Eliz. but this averment doth continue that which was in truth before the fine a Mannor, from the time of the fine to be known, reputed and called a Mannor. And always the Reputation is beſt, when it hath a ground and is founded upon truth. And therefore if a Man marrieth with a woman precontracted, and hath iſſue by her, this iſſue in Law and truth carrieth the ſurname of his Father. But if after the Husband and wife be divorced for the precontract, now the iſſue hath loſt his Surname; For as hath been ſaid, Cognomen majorum eſt ex ſanguine tractum, and now the [b] iſſue is Baſtard & nullius filius; and yet becauſe once he had a lawful Surname, it is a good ground of Reputation ſubſequent. So if I have a Park by the Kings Licenſe and grant, and it is commonly known by the name of a Park, and afterwards I ſurrender my Patent to the King, by which in Law it is no Park, yet having once the name of a Park in truth, it is a good ground for reputation and continuance of the name of a Park after; And the avowant might have preſcribed as this caſe is, That the demeans and ſervices had time out of mind been known by the name of a Mannor; For before the fine it was known in truth, and after the fine in reputation, and ſo it is no creation of a new name, but a continuance of old name. Vid. 7 Eliz. Dier 223. The King ſeiſed of a Mannor, whereof all the demeans are leaſed for life by the Leaſe of an Abbot, rendring rent, in this caſe the King hath not a Mannor in poſſeſſion, nor can hold Court; and yet if the King leaſeth the Mannor to another for years as a Mannor in poſſeſſion, the Leſſee ſhall have the Reverſion and the rent: For although it is not a Mannor in eſſe, yet it is well known that it was intended to be demiſed. And to this purpoſe in 20 Eliz. Dier 362. where the Caſe was, That Ed. 6. was ſeiſed of the Mannor of Cleverly, of which a wood containing 300 Acres was parcel, Ed. 6. by his Letters Patents granted the ſaid wood in Fee, and afterwards the ſaid wood eſcheated to him for Treaſon. Afterwards the Queen granted the ſaid wood in Fee, the grantee regranted the ſame to the Queen, who by her Letters Patents granted the ſaid Mannor & omnes boſcos modo vel antehac cognit. vel reputat. ut pars membrum, vel parcell. ejuſdem Manerii to the Earl of Leiceſter in fee: And although that in truth before the ſeverance made of the wood by King E. 6. it was always parcel of the Mannor; yet in good propriety of ſpeech it was there cognit. ut pars & membrum dicti Manerii; for although that (ut) is a word of ſimilitude, and not of identity, yet truth is the moſt ſure foundation of Reputation, and therefore it was there adjudged, that the wood did paſs. As to the third Objection, that a Mannor in reputation and not in truth ſhall not paſs by fine, which is a legal proceeding drawn by men learned in the Law, and therefore vulgar reputation will not ſerve in it; To that it was anſwered and reſolved, that the rule which Stonor gave in 9 E. 3. 38. in another caſe, was true, That the proceſs of the Court ſhall not be maintained by uſage in pais; but there is a difference between Brevia adverſaria, ſc. brought by an adverſary to recover land, & brevia amicabilia brought by conſent and agreement amongſt friends; for it is true in brevibus adverſariis, the proceſs of this Court ſhall not follow the [67] cuſtom or reputation of the Country, as in 6 E. 3. 11. The Demandant in a writ of Entry demanded the Mannor of C. the Tenant ſaid that the tenements put in view, are a houſe and a carue of land called, &c. and not a mannor, &c. by which it appeareth, that if it were not in truth a Mannor, although it were in appellation, the writ ſhall abate: But it was adjudged in Sir John Buryn's Caſe, in the beginning of the Reign of Queen Eliz. That in a Common Recovery, which is by agreement and aſſent of the parties, of acres of land, account ſhall be according to the occaſionable and uſual meaſure of the Country, and not by the Statute de terris menſurandis made an. 33 E. 1. So it is agreed in 47 E. 3. 18. That if a man bargaineth and ſelleth ſo many acres of wood, it ſhall be meaſured according to the uſage of the County, ſcil. according to 20 foot to the rod, and not according to the ſaid Act, for conſuetudo loci eſt obſervanda. And it appeareth by the book in 29 E. 3. 11. that the remainder limited to a Baſtard by the name of ſon of Richard Marwood, whereas in truth he was nullius filius, was good, becauſe he was known and reputed his ſon. And Mich. 22. and 23 Eliz. in the Kings Bench, in an Ejectione firmæ between Vines and Durham, a leaſe was pleaded of a Mannor, &c. whereof the tenements in which were parcel, and iſſue was joyned, quod non demiſit Manerium; and upon that iſſue the Jurors gave a ſpecial verdict, ſcil. [68] that there were not any Freeholders, but divers Copiholders of the ſaid Mannor, and that it was known by the name of a Mannor, and after good conſideration it was adjudged by Sir Chriſtopher Wray chief Juſtice, and the whole Court, that although it was not a Mannor in Law for want of freeholders, and although it was in pleading, which always is by learned men, and that it was in an action adverſary, and not amicable; yet that foraſmuch as an iſſue is tryable by Lay-men, and in truth the tenements in which did paſs by the Leaſe (and becauſe it is not like to a writ) it was adjudged for him who pleaded the demiſe of the Mannor, Hill. 25 Eliz. in this Court, Carter's Caſe was, that where it was required by the Statute of 1 H. 5. cap. 5. that in every writ original, &c. in which an Exigent ſhall be awarded, that additions ſhall be given to the Defendants of their eſtates or degrees, or of their trade, &c. and the caſe was, that one was yeoman by birth, and yet commonly called Gentleman; In this caſe, in ſuch writ brought againſt him, he may have the addition of Gentleman, although in truth he is not a Gentleman, but only by vulgar reputation; but foraſmuch as the intent of the Act is to have ſuch a name, by which he may be known, it is ſufficent to ſatisfie the act of Parliament. Another reaſon was given, that in this caſe there was at the time of the making of the Indentures in Anno 16 Eliz. a Mannor in truth, ſcil. in the Lady Moyle for the term of her life, which was ſufficient to ſupport the name of a Mannor, and to make the demeans and ſervices to paſs by the name of it: For which cauſe it of it: For which cauſes it was concluded, That by the name of the Mannor of Beamſton, the demeans and ſervices, late parcel of the Mannor, were excepted by the Indenture in Anno 16 Eliz. As to the third point it was reſolved, that the Leaſe made by the Adminiſtrator ratione minoris ætatis was good: although it was not neceſſary that the Leaſe ſhould be made: for the Lady Moyle was then Tenant for life; ſo that this leaſe doth enure as intereſſe termini to begin after the death of the Lady Moyle. And this difference was taken; That when a man maketh an Executor of ſuch tender years, (as in this Caſe of three years) that he cannot execute the will, then if the adminiſtration ratione minoris ætatis be granted ſpecially, as it was M. 41 & 42 Eliz. in Prince's Caſe, Adminiſtr. omnium bonorum, ad opus, commodum, & utilitatem executor. durante minore ætate, & non aliter, nec alio modo committimus, &c. there ſuch ſpecial Adminiſtrator cannot make ſuch leaſe, as in the caſe at Bar: But when the adminiſtration is committed generally ratione minoris ætatis, without any reſtraint or limitation, there ſuch leaſe made, as in the Caſe at Bar is good: For by the Eccleſiaſtical Law, Minor 17. annis non admittitur fore executorem; and ſuch general Adminiſtrator, ratione minoris ætatis, ſhall not only have an action to recover debts and duties (for the intereſt of the actions is in him, and alſo ſhall be liable to all action; for, during the time the Teſtator dieth quaſi inteſtatus) but alſo he may make leaſes or demiſes, and they ſhall be good; for which cauſe the leaſe in the caſe at Bar was good; and the rather in the caſe at Bar, becauſe that no entry is pleaded by the Executor, and he who pleadeth the demiſe is a ſtranger to it, and therefore cannot know what rent is reſerved, and therefore when he pleadeth demiſit, if the ſame for any cauſe were void, ſhe might take iſſue quod non demiſit, or ſhew the ſpecial matter, but it ſhall be intended prima facie, that the leaſe is good, and without queſtion it is good till the Executor hath attained to 17 years, and alſo till he entreth, as ſome ſaid. As to the laſt point it was Reſolved, 1. That foraſmuch as Paul Lofty had but intereſſe termini during the life of the Lady Moyle, for this cauſe as to the ſaid Intereſt upon the fine of Anno 23 Eliz. (which was levied in the life of the Lady Moyle) no Attornment could be. 2. When after the death of the Lady Moyle the Leſſee entreth, now he maketh the reverſion in Seintleger, and the Lady Katherine his wife, and when they make Declaration of Uſes to Hancock and Sudger, this uſe doth riſe out of the Fine, to which Fine no Attornment can be had by him who hath a future intereſt, as is aforeſaid: For when Attornment is not requiſite to a Fine, which is the root, no Attornment is requiſite to the Declaration of the Uſes, which are but the branches. 3. It was Reſolved, That if a man [86] be ſeiſed of a Mannor, part of which is in leaſe for life, and part in leaſe for years, and he levieth a fine to A. to the uſe of B. in tail, with divers remainders over, in this caſe B. ſhall avow for the rent, or have an action of Waſt without Attornment; for when a reverſion is ſetled in any one in Judgment of Law, and he hath not a poſſible mean to compel the tenant to attorn, and no Lacheſs or default is in him, there he ſhall awow and have an action of waſt without attornment; for the rule is, quod remedio deſtituitur, re ipſa valet, ſi culpa abſit, as in 20 E. 3. contra formam collat. becauſe that the Founder cannot have a contra formam collationis of an Advowſon, he ſhall preſent without any ſuit, ſo in 7 E. 3. & 3 *H.*7. A man ſhall be tenant by the curteſie of a rent or Advowſon, although the wife dieth before the day encurreth, or the preſentment falleth; So if the Lord in Mortmain, or if a Villain, claimeth a Reverſion, by the claim the Law veſteth the Reverſion in him, and he hath not means to compel the Tenant to attorn, and therefore he ſhall avow and have an Action of waſt, without attornment; the ſame Law of Letters Patents, and of deviſe of a Reverſion, as it appeareth in 34 H. 6. for in all the ſaid Caſes Culpa abeſt. But it was Objected, That in the ſaid caſe of fine there was default and Lacheſs in the Count, for he might have made mention of the leaſes in the fine, and then he might have brought a Quid juris clamat, and compelled the leſſees to attorn, which becauſe he hath pretermitted, there was fault in him, and by conſequence he ſhall not have an action of waſt, nor ſhall avow without Attornment, no more than if a fine be levied to another of land, which is in leaſe for life, he is without remedy for rent, or waſt, without Attornment. To which it was anſwered and reſolved, that in the ſaid Caſe the Conuſee by no poſſibility can have a Quid juris clamat: for although he had recited the particular eſtates in the fine, yet he could not have a Quid juris clamat, for after the Conuſans or Concord, and before the fine engroſſed, he ought to ſue the Quid juris clamat, and preſently by the Conuſans or Concord, the Reverſion paſſed to the Conuſee. Vide F. N. B. 147. & 22 H. 6. 57. and eo inſtante the ſame is executed by the Statute of 27 H. 8. of Uſes; ſo that it is not poſſible for him to have a Quid Juris clamat, nor any remedy to compel the tenants to attorn. And foraſmuch by the Act of Parliament, which is an act in Law, ſcil. by execution to the poſſeſſion of the uſe, the benefit of the Conuſee, to have a Quid Juris clamat, is taken away, reaſon requireth, inaſmuch as every ſubject, ſcil. the conuſor, conuſee, particular tenants, and all others, are parties and privies to the Act of Parliament, the ſame ſhall not turn to the prejudice of any, for impotentia excuſat legem, and the act of Law ſhall prejudice no man. It was adjudged in the Kings Bench, Paſch. 41 Eliz. between Heſton and Ruddleſton. 1. That at the Common Law by conviction of felony, although that he hath his Clergy, he ſhall forfeit all his [b] goods which he had at the time of the conviction, or which he ſhall get after, and ſhall remain diſabled to get goods to his own uſe, until he hath made his purgation. 2. That where by the Statute of 18 Eliz. cap. 7. it is enacted, That after Clergy allowed, he ſhall not be delivered to the Ordinary, as before was uſed, to make his purgation, but ſhall be burnt in the hand and delivered; which act hath taken away the means to inable him again; and therefore it was adjudged, that after he is delivered by force of the act, he ſhall be inabled in the ſame manner as if he had made his purgation. And it is in effect all one with a bargain, and ſale by Deed indented, and inrolled, for there the uſe paſſeth from the party, and the Statute doth execute the poſſeſſion, and the party hath no remedy, nor is there any fault in him, and therefore the reverſion ſhall be in him without attornment. So in the ſaid caſe of fine, the limitation of the uſe is declared by the Conuſor, and Ceſtui que uſe hath the uſe by him, and the ſame is executed by the Statute; and B. in the ſaid caſe ſuppoſeth the gift to be made by the Conuſor, as it is adjudged in 7 E. 6. Br. Formedon. And for the ſame cauſe it was reſolved, that in the case at Bar, When Scintleger and his wife levied the fine in 16 Eliz. and by the numbring of the acres and towns, all the demeans of Beamston did pass, and the Law (forasmuch as they were excepted out of the Indentures of Uses in 16 Eliz.) did create and vest the use in Scintleger and his wife again, as it was before; or otherwise there shall be great mischief in infinite such cases: so be the use limited upon the fine to a stranger, or to himself, created by act in Law, or limited by declaration of the party, it is all one. But Oxsey's Case, Mich. 36 & 37 Eliz. reported by me in my fifth part, in Mallorie's Case, where Conusee of a Reversion by fine doth disseise the lessee for life, and maketh a feoffment in fee, and the lessee re-entreth, the same is no attornment, for he cannot plus juris in alium transferre quam ipse habet. So in Knattisford's case then cited, if such Conusee of a reversion before attornment, doth bargain and sell the reversion, by Deed indented, and inrolled, that such bargainee shall not avow, or have an action of wast without attornment, causa qua supra. And Walmesley said, that the case of limitation of a use upon a fine had been adjudged in this Court, according to this resolution. Note, a good resolution for all conveyances upon consideration of marriage, or otherwise, upon limitations of uses upon fines levied, or recoveries, &c. And observe, that by this resolution there is great safety for them to whom uses are levied; which is also good for the benefit of the Commonwealth, that particular estates shall not be dispunishable for wast, nor those in the reversion barred to recover their rents, which in all equity and reason are due to them, and no inconvenience to the particular tenants. For upon execution of estates by the Statute of 27 H. 8. of uses, (as upon covenants in consideration of bloud, or upon bergain and sale, by Deed intended, and inrolled, and the like) there needeth not any attornment. 4. It was resolved, that although there was not any privity between them in the reversion, and Pa. Lofty, for he had but a particular term for ten years out of the lease of 50 years, and if the reversion had been granted over, that he could never have attorned; yet when those in the reversion eject the second lessee, and enfeoff Glanvile and Sturges, &c. that by regress of the second lessee those in the reversion, by force of the feoffment, shall avow for the rent, and that for divers causes: 1. Because that this re-entry is not in all respects to be resembled to an express attornment; for to an express attornment, notice is inseparably incident, as it appeareth in Tooker's case, but he who re-entreth, may be ignorant of the feoffment. 2. Those who claim by the feoffment have the reversion in them, and have not any means to compel the tenant to attorn, as it hath been said before: But when a maketh a feoffment of a Mannor, there the services shall not pass till attornment, but remain till attornment in the feoffor, as Littleton holdeth: and so was it adjudged in the Common Pleas, 15 Eliz. in Brasbriche's case. But in pleading of a feoffment of a Mannor, he needeth not to alledge attornment of the tenants of the Mannor, [69] but the same shall come in on the other part. And so the Books 21 E. 3. 29 E. 3. the Bishop of Canterburies Case, 30 E. 3. in Droit de gard, 8 H. 4. 1. 9 E. 4. 33. 42 Ass. 6. 20 H. 6. 7. 37 H. 6. 24. 1 H. 7. 3. 13 H. 7. 14. 34 E. 3. Double plea 24. 43 Ass. 20. temp. E. 1. attornment, are well reconciled. 3. By the regress of the second lessee, the same doth revest all interests, and settle a reversion, which act subverteth not only the second lessee to distress, but the first lessee to wast, and after the second term ended, to distress also: For the first lessee hath put this act, scil. to make re-entry, in the power of the second lessee, and therefore his re-entry, which is the act which maketh a reversion shall bind both: and the re-entry of one may subject himself to a distress, and an action of wast, who of himself could not attorn; and therefore it is holden in 32 E. 3. Age 80. that a man non compos mentis, cannot attorn, for he who is (amens) without understanding, cannot make an attornment, which is an agreement; and yet if a man, non compos mentis, be lessee for years, rendring rent, and the lessor ejecteth him, and maketh a feoffment, and afterwards the non compos mentis re-entreth, this act of re-entry doth subject himself to distress, and action of wast, although he cannot make an express attornment. So in the case at Bar, although that the second lessee cannot make an express attornment, yet his re-entry revesting all interests and estates which were devested by the act and wrong of the feoffor, shall subject both the lessees to distress, &c. And as the second lessee may assent, that he in the reversion shall make [b] a feoffment, and livery, and seisin upon it, and the same shall bind the first lessee because he hath given to him the possession; So in the case at Bar, the first lessee having made a lease to the second lessee, he thereby hath given him power to re-enter, which act shall subject them both to distress, &c. 4. The Law is grounded upon great reason and equity in this point. For peradventure the feoffee being a purchaser, and a stranger, knew nothing of the lease, or knew of it, and thought that it was void, or defeated; God defend, if after the lessee hath evicted, and lawfully taken the possession from him, which he thought to have enjoyed, quod afflictio adderetur afflicto, sc. to lose the possession, and also to be without remedy, either for the rent reserved, (which the lessee enjoying the land in conscience ought to pay) or for wast (which the lessee by the Law is forbidden to do.) And Coke Chief Justice said, That by the eviction by the lessee by entry, or by action, that the reversion doth remain in the feoffee, and he shall avow, and have an action of wast, against the opinion of Ashton, in 34 H. 6. 6. b. according to the opinion of Thorpe Justice in 41 E. 3. 18. b. who saith, That if he in the reversion disseiseth the tenant for life, and alieneth in fee, although that the tenant doth recover the Freehold, yet the reversion is not restored; So saith Seton in 18 E. 3. 48. b. that if I disseise my tenant for life, and make a feoffment to another in fee, although my tenant for life recovered after in an assise, the reversion remaineth in the feoffee. 5. Fortior & æquior est dispositio legis quam hominis; and therefore he who hath a future interest, cannot surrender the same by any express surrender, but by taking of a new lease, which is an act, and amounteth to a surrender in Law, it may be surrendred and determined, as it is holden in 37 H. 6. &c. So if the father be infeoffed in fee, and the feoffor warranteth the land to him and his heirs, now his assignee shall not vouch. But if the father enfeoffeth his son and heir apparent with warranty, and dieth, in this case the heir being in truth assigned, shall vouch: for the Law which hath determined the warranty of the father to the son, will give the son the benefit of the first warranty, as it is adjudged in 43 E. 3. 5. by which it appeareth, that the act of Law is stronger, and more equal than any act the party could have made. So in the case

caſe at Bar, the entry of the Leſſee, by which by the act and judgment of Law, all intereſts and eſtates are ſetled according to the Law is ſtronger than an Expreſs Attornment; For that the ſecond Leſſee cannot make; and more equal, for in as much as the poſſeſſion is evicted by the ſecond Leſſee, and thereby the Intereſt of the firſt Leſſee reveſted, and a Reverſion ſetled in the Feoffee, equity requireth, that the Feoffee, who hath loſt the poſſeſſion, ſhall not be without remedy to recover the Rent, and to puniſh Waſt, 18 E. 3. 47. Audeley Earl of Glouceſter's Caſe. The Leſſor diſſeiſeth his leſſee for life, and maketh a Leaſe for life to another, the firſt Leſſee reentreth, he leaveth the reverſion in the ſecond Leſſee for life, and he ſhall have the Rent reſerved, 46 E. 3. 30. If he in the Reverſion doth put out Tenant by Statute Merchant, and maketh a Feoffment in fee, and the Tenant by Statute Merchant doth re-enter, it maketh the Reverſion in the Feoffee, yet there is not any attendance, vide 44 Aſſ. p. 11. Baſſingborn Aſſ. 2 H. 5. 5 H. 5. 12. 9 H. 6. 16. and 34 H. 6. 6. Vide 9 H. 7. 25. where the Caſe is miſprinted. For the true Caſe is as I have ſeen it in the Manuſcript; That if he in the Reverſion diſſeiſeth the Donee, and maketh a Feoffment in fee, and the Donee re-entreth, he leaveth the Reverſion in the Feoffee: But if the Donee be diſſeiſed, and the Donor diſſeiſeth the diſſeiſor, and maketh a Feoffment in fee, and the Donee doth make regreſs, the Feoffee ſhall not have the Reverſion but the diſſeiſor; for there is a difference between an Eſtate and a Right. An Eſtate may well paſs to the Feoffee by the Feoffment, as where he in the Reverſion diſſeiſeth the Donee, or the Leſſee for life; but where the Donee or Leſſee is diſſeiſed, now he in the Reverſion hath but a Right, which he cannot paſs to another, and therefore when he diſſeiſeth the diſſeiſor, and maketh a Feoffment, it paſſeth the eſtate which he hath gained by diſſeiſin, and extinguiſheth his antient Right, which he could not transfer to another; And then the firſt diſſeiſor hath the firſt poſſeſſion, and better right than the Feoffee of him in the Reverſion, for he cometh in under him who diſſeiſeth the firſt diſſeiſor, and the antient right is extinct. So if the diſſeiſee diſſeiſeth the heir of the diſſeiſor, now he hath gained an eſtate by diſſeiſin, and hath an ancient right, if he maketh a Feoffment in fee to another, by that he paſſeth the eſtate which he hath got by diſſeiſin, and extinguiſheth his ancient Right, which he could not transfer to another: For there is ſo extreme and natural enmity between the eſtate by wrong got by diſſeiſin, and the old right, that the right cannot incorporate it ſelf in the eſtate by wrong and paſs with it, but in ſuch caſe rather ſuffer extinguiſhment than to paſs with it; So when the heir doth re-enter he ſhall hold the Land for ever, as well againſt the Feoffor as the Feoffee: So if Lord and Tenant be by Fealty and Rent, and the Lord diſſeiſeth the Tenant of the Land and maketh a Feoffment in fee, the Seignory thereby is extinct. But if a man maketh a gift in tail, or a Leaſe for life rendring rent, and diſſeiſeth the Tenant in tail, or for life, &c. and maketh a Feoffment in fee, there the eſtate paſſeth to the Feoffee, and when the Donee or Leſſee re-entreth, he reviveth the Rent as incident to the Reverſion. The ſame Law of a Leaſe for years in the Caſe at Bar. So there is a difference between a Reverſion, with Rent incident to it, and a Right, or Seignory, or Rent in Fee, 28 H. 8. Dyer 33. b. 4 Eliz. Dyer 212. the Caſe of the Greyhound. And Judgment was given for the Defendant, who made Conuſans in the Right of Henry Finch, And this was the firſt matter in Law, that Coke chief Juſtice argued in the Common Pleas after he was chief Juſtice there. The Lord Darcy's Caſe.

THomas Lord Darcy of Chicheſter brought a Writ de Valore Maritagii againſt Stephen Page, Brother and heir of Brian Page, Quare cum Maritagium ipſius Stephani ad ipſum Tho. Dominum Darcy pertineat pro eo quod præd. Brianus terram ſuam de eo tenuit per ſervitium Militare, & idem Tho. Dominus Darcy præfat. Stephan. dum fuit infra ætatem & in cuſtodia ſua, competens Maritagium abſque diſparagatione, juxta formam Statuti, de communi conſilio regni Regis Angliæ inde proviſ. ſæpius obtulerit, idem Stephanus maritagium illud renuens, præfat Tho. Domino Darcy de maritagio ſuo non ſatisfacto, ſe in terras & tenement. illa intruſit, & de maritagio ſuo eidem Tho. Domino Darcy ſatisfacere contradicit: And declared that the ſaid Brian held twenty five Acres in Peldon in the County of Eſſex of the Plaintiff, as of his Mannor of Newhall in Peldon aforeſaid by Knights ſervice, and afterwards Brian died in his homage without iſſue, the Defendant being his Brother and heir, and of the age of twenty years and ſix months, and that the Plaintiff did tender to him being then within age a Competent Marriage, ſc. Mary Mannock daughter of Anthony Mannock Gentleman, then of the age of eighteen years without diſparagement, and that the Defendant did refuſe. The Defendant denied the tender; upon which the Plaintiff did demurr. And this Caſe had been many times argued at the Bar, and this Term was argued by the Juſtices at the Bench, and upon open argument it was adjudged for the Plaintiff, for the reaſons and cauſes reported in Palmer's Caſe in the fifth part of my Reports. And ſo this Queſtion is now in peace, being adjudged in both Courts. Note Reader, The Caſe of the heir female doth differ much from the Caſe of the heir male. 1. Becauſe for the heir female the Gardian ſhall never have the forfeiture of Marriage; for at the Common Law the full age of the heir female was 14 years, as it is reſolved in 35 H. 6. 52. Litt. f. 22. Stamf. prærog. 13. b. F. N. B. 256. & 259. and many other Books: ſo that if ſhe be of the age of 14 years at the time of the death of her Anceſtor, ſhe ſhall be out of Ward, and if ſhe be within the age of 14 years, ſhe ſhall have livery by [b]

the Common Law at the age of fourteen years, for that was as to this purpose her full age. And at the Common Law there was not in any case any forfeiture of marriage, but only the single value, 16 E. 3. Action sur le Stat. 14. But the forfeiture of the marriage is given by the Statute of Merton, cap. 6. made 20 H. 3. the words of which Statute are, De hærede autem cum sit quatuordecim annorum vel ultra usque ad plenam ætatem, si se maritaverit sine Licentia Domini sui, &c. Dominus suus tunc teneat terram ejus ultra terminum ætatis suæ, scil. 21 annorum per tantum tempus, &c. which Act without question cannot extend to the heir female, for it extendeth only where such heir is 14 annorum, vel ultra, and the heir female at such age is out of Ward; also the Statute speaketh ultra terminum ætatis suæ, scil. 21 annorum, and that is the full age of the heir male as to Wardship, and not of the heir female. And vide the Statute of West. 1 Cap. 22. where the Statute of Merton is recited, and then it is purview'd as followeth. And of heirs females after they have accomplished the age of fourteen years, &c. as if it should say, The Statute of Merton hath provided for the heir male; and because no provision is yet made for heirs females, by the same Act it is provided, That the Lord shall not have or keep by reason of marriage, the Lands of such heirs females, more than two years after the said Term of fourteen years. And if the Lord within the two years do not marry them, then shall they have an Action to recover their Inheritance quite, without giving any thing for their Wardship, or their marriage; which two years is given by the said Statute for the benefit of the Lord, as it appeareth by 35 H. 6. 52. and Litt. f. 22. And if within these two years the Lord tendereth a Marriage unto the heir female, and she refuseth, and marrieth elsewhere within the two years, yet the Lord shall not have the forfeiture of the marriage, for the Statute gave that only to make a tender, and therewith agreeth the Book in 35 H. 6. Gard. 71. by the propositions of Prison, Markham, Yelverton and Danby. The second difference between the heir male and the heir female was, That at the Common Law, if the Guardian had not made tender to the heir female before fourteen years, the Lord could not have holden the Land of such heir, (as he might of the heir male) Nomine pœnæ, till the value were paid. For the Law did tender their speedy advancement, quia maturiora sunt vota mulierum quam virorum. And therefore the heir female might have entred into the Land presently after the age of fourteen years, for her better preferment in marriage; and therewith agreeth Litt. 22. expressly, and [b] 35 H. 6. 52, 53. and yet in such case the Lord without any tender before fourteen years, shall recover the single value, for that de mero jure pertinet. 3. If the Lord hold the Land over fourteen years, during the two years by force of the Statute of Westm. 1: and within the two years maketh no tender, but taketh the profits of the Land, and so hinder her preferment in marriage by receiving all the profits of the Land, in this case, as the Statute is, if he doth not make (within these two years) any tender, then he shall lose by express provision the value of the marriage, and shall content himself with the profits for the two years for his value given to him in lieu thereof by the Statute; So that every Gardian who holdeth the Land in such case ought to take heed that he make tender within the two years, or else he shall lose the value; But if he will wave the benefit of the two years, or if he cannot hold the said two years, as Gardian of the body of the heir female only, he shall have the value of the marriage without any Tender. And to the Principal Case, Coke Chief Justice added this reason, That if the Common Law would have enforced the Lord to have made a tender to his Ward to have the single value, the Common Law would have given all necessary circumstances to the performance and accomplishment thereof, as to have appointed a certain place, &c. where the tender ought to be made, and not to leave the Lord who was the Superior, to seek the Ward who was the Inferior, and who might if he would take advantage of flight, or hiding of himself, when no Laches could be in the Lord, Burrel's Case.

[72] IN an Ejectione firmæ between Thomas Burrel Plaintiff, and Seth Holmes and Robert Holmes Defendants, of Lands in Huntington in the County of York upon a demise made by Richard Burrel and William Allein, to which Not guilty was pleaded, upon the Evidence the Case was such; Grandfather, Father and Son, the Grandfather upon the marriage of the Father, made the Fathers Wife a Joynture of other Lands, and at the same time, scil. 8 Septemb. 23 Eliz. Covenanted to demise the Tenements in which, &c. to the Father, and 10 Septemb. next following, according to the Covenant, the Grandfather by Indenture made a demise of the moity of the Tenements, in which, &c. to Seth the Father, to begin after the death of the Grandfather for a thousand years, and of the other moity for a thousand years to begin at a day to come, in both which demises were Provisoes, That if the Father should die without issue, or if he shall make any Lease upon which the antient Rent shall not be reserved, that the said Leases made to the Father should be void. The Father 10 Feb. 30 Eliz. assigned over the said Leases to the use of Robert his Son an Infant, to the end they might not be drowned by the descent of the Reversion; and with this colourable purpose and intent, that the Infant should pay his debts, and within a short time after the Grandfather died; The Father entred into the Lands, and took the profits, and made Leases, and did other things, as Owner of the Land, and neither the Assignees nor the Infant took any profits, nor paid any debts. Also in the said assignment of the said Leases divers persons of good Credit were named amongst others; but the assignment was delivered in secret manner to one person of

of mean quality; For which and other Circumſtances it was taken, that as well the ſaid firſt Leaſes (being of an unuſual form and making) as the aſſignment were fraudulent; and after the death of the Grandfather, the Father for a great ſumm of mony did bargain and ſell the Tenements, &c. by deed indented and enrolled, 2 Septemb. 45 Eliz. to Richard Burrel and William Allen and their heirs; in which the Father covenanteth with Burrel and Allen, that the Lands ſhall be clear of all Leaſes, &c. And if the ſaid original Leaſes, and Aſſignments ſhall be avoided by the purchaſors by the Statute of 27 Eliz. cap. 4. was moved and debated: And in this Caſe upon the Evidence given at the Bar of the Common Pleas, two points were Reſolved by Coke chief Juſtice, Walmſley, Warberton and Daniel, That where the words of the Statute of 27 Eliz. are (That all and every Conveyance, Grant, Charge, Leaſe, Incumbrance and Limitation of uſe, of, in or out of any Mannors, Lands, &c. for the intent and purpoſe to defraud and deceive ſuch perſon, &c. as have purchaſed or ſhall purchaſe, &c. the ſame lands, &c. ſhall be deemed, &c. only againſt ſuch purchaſor, &c. void, fruſtrate and of none effect.) 1. It was Reſolved; That if the Father maketh a Leaſe by fraud and covin of his Land to defraud others to whom he ſhall leaſe or ſell the ſame (as all fraudulent Leaſes are ſo intended) and before that the Father ſelleth or demiſeth it he dieth; and the Son knowing, or not knowing of the ſaid Leaſe, ſelleth the Land upon good Conſideration; in this Caſe the Vendee ſhall avoid that Leaſe by the ſaid Act: For in as much as it is intended and preſumed in Law, That every fraudulent Leaſe is made to the intent generally to defraud Purchaſers, Farmers, &c. within this generalty, every particular Purchaſer, Farmer, &c. is included; and the ſaid Act is very well penned, for the words of the Act are general; and it needeth not, that he who ſelleth the Land ſhould make the former fraudulent eſtate, or incumbrance, But be the eſtate fraudulent as above, whoſoever ſelleth it, the Purchaſor ſhall avoid ſuch fraudulent eſtate. And therefore in the Caſe at Bar, the ſaid Leaſe upon the Evidence being fraudulent, the Vendee of the Father and heir ſhall avoid them. 2. It was Reſolved, That although the Father had nothing in the Inheritance of the Land at the time of the aſſignment of his Term, but the whole eſtate of Inheritance was then in the Grandfather, yet when the Grandfather died, and the Father ſelleth the Land, his Vendee ſhall avoid the ſaid Term by the ſaid Act, (the ſaid Aſſignment upon the Evidence being taken fraudulent.) For if he had bargained and ſold the ſaid Term only, the ſaid bargainee ſhall avoid the ſaid fraudulent aſſignment, and by conſequence the Vendee of the whole Fee-ſimple ſhall avoid it. And it was ſaid by the Chief Juſtice, That that which is called truſt between the Father and the Son, is in Judgment of Law fraud as to a purchaſer. And I acquainted Popham Chief Juſtice with this Reſolution, and he allowed well of it, and ſaid, it was good to conſtrue that Act in ſuppreſſion of fraud; and (as he related to me,) it was adjudged before him and his Companions, Juſtices of the Kings Bench, That where a man in ſecret manner made an eſtate to the uſe of his Wife for her Joynture by fraud or covin to defraud a Purchaſer, to whom he meant to ſell the Land, that in ſuch caſe if the fraud be proved in Evidence, or confeſſed in pleading, the Purchaſer ſhall avoid ſuch eſtate.

Sir Drue Drury's Caſe.

THe Caſe between Sir Drue Drury Knight the Elder Plaintiff, and Sir Drue Drury the Younger Defendant, in the Court of Wards was ſuch. It was found by Inquiſition virtute Brevis, before the Eſcheator of the County of Norfolk, Anno 41 Eliz. that after the death of Roger Drury Eſquire, That the ſaid Roger was ſeiſed of a houſe in Yarmouth in the ſaid County, parcel of the diſſolved Monaſtery of Black-fryers in Yarmouth, and thereof died ſeiſed, the Defendant, being his Son and heir, and of the age of fourteen years and ſeven months, the ſaid Houſe at the time of his death was holden by Knights ſervice in Capite; And that the ſaid Roger was alſo ſeiſed of the Mannor of Barking in the County of Norfolk, holden of the King by Knights ſervice, and not in Capite: and after Office thereof found, Queen Elizabeth under the Great Seal granted the Cuſtody and Ward of the body of the Defendant to the Plaintiff; The Plaintiff made a Tender of a Marriage to the Defendant being within age, which he refuſed; And afterwards the King made him a Knight being then within age, and afterwards he married elſewhere within age. The ſaid Roger was a Free Burgeis of the ſaid Town of Yarmouth. King E. 1. made ſuch a Charter to the Burgeſſes of the ſaid Town in theſe words, Conceſſimus etiam pro nobis & hæredibus noſtris, quantum in nobis eſt, Burgenſibus, & probis hominibus ſupradict. de Magna Jernemutha, quod omnes illi de villa præd. oriundi, licet ipſi terras & tenementa extra Libertatem villæ tenuerint per tale ſervitium per quod Maritagia eorum ratione minoris ætatis ipſorum ad nos vel hæredes noſtros pertinere deberent, ſecundum legem & conſuetud. Regni noſtri, nihilominus juxta Libertates villæ prædict. ſe maritare poſſint ſine occaſione aut impedimento noſtro vel hæredum noſtrorum in perpetuum. Salvo jure alterius cujuſlibet. And in this Caſe two points were moved, 1. If the ſaid Charter hath diſcharged the Defendant from Wardſhip or not. And as to that, It was clearly reſolved by Popham and Coke Chief Juſtices, and Fleming Chief Baron, and the Court of Wards, that the ſaid Charter hath not diſcharged him for divers cauſes, 1. Becauſe it is not an abſolute diſcharge of it ſelf, but hath a Reference, ſc. juxta libertates villæ præd. which ought to be ſhewed. 2. It is not ſet forth in the Caſe that the ſaid Roger was born at Yarmouth, for the Charter is de villa prædict. oriundi. 3. The Tenure was created upon a grant made of the houſe after the diſſo-

lution of the Monaſtery, and the ſaid grant cannot extend to create a Tenure. The ſecond and great Queſtion was, If by the making of the Defendant Knight, he was diſcharged in Law of the value of the Marriage. And this Caſe was referred to the two Chief Juſtices and Chief Baron, who Hill. 4 Jacobi at Serjeants Inn heard the Caſe argued by Topham of Council with the Defendant, and Francis Bacon with the Plaintiff. And afterwards in Eaſter Term it was again argued by Serjeant Hutton for the Defendant, and Serjeant Nichols for the Plaintiff. After which the Judges had Conſideration of the Caſe, and upon Conference amongſt themſelves it was Reſolved, and ſo openly declared in the Court of Wards, in the preſence of Robert Earl of Salisbury Maſter of the Wards, That the Defendant ought to pay the value of his Marriage; and the making of him Knight did not diſcharge him thereof. And in this caſe theſe points were reſolved, 1. That the intent of the Law is, That the heir within age of twenty one years is not able to do Knights Service, till he be of the age of twenty one years, and therewith agreeth Lit. 22. but ſuch preſumption of Law giveth place to a Judgment and proof to the contrary, as it is ſaid Stabitur præſumptio donec probetur in contrarium; And therefore when the King who is Sovereign and the Supreme Judge of Chivalry hath dubbed him a Knight, he thereby doth adjudge him able to do Knights ſervice, and all are concluded to ſay the Contrary, and therefore ſuch heir made Knight ſhall be out of Ward. But if the King createth ſuch heir within age a Duke, or Marqueſs, or Earl, or Ba- [74] ron he ſhall not thereby be out of Ward. For in antient time every Baron, &c. held his Barony by Grand Serjeanty, as appeareth 18 Aſſ. ult. in Clifford's Caſe, and the Lord Cromwel's Caſe in the ſecond Report 80. which ſervice (as Litt. 35.) is called Grand Serjeanty, or Magna Serjeantia, as Fleta calleth it, Lib. 1. cap. 9. becauſe it is a greater and more worthy ſervice than Knights ſervice, as to bear the Kings Banner, or to be Marſhal, as Littleton ſaith, or to lead his hoſt, or to be High Steward of England, as 11 Eliz. Dyer 285. is; And the ſon and heir within age of a Duke, Marqueſs, Earl, &c. ſhall be in Ward notwithſtanding their dignities. 2. It was Reſolved, That when Tenant by Knights ſervice dieth his heir within age, preſently the value of the marriage as a Chattel is veſted in the Lord, 24 E. 3. 25. Old N. B. 27 E. 3. acc. Then when ſuch heir is made Knight he is to this purpoſe made of full age, and as much is done in Judgment of Law, as if he had attained to his full age of twenty one years; for at ſuch age the Law intendeth him able to do Knights ſervice. And now when the King maketh him Knight before ſuch age, the intendment and preſumption of Law doth give place to this Judgment and proof to the Contrary, and now he is to this purpoſe ſet and computed of full age. Then admit he hath accompliſhed his age of 21 years, without queſtion the Lord ſhall have the value of his [75] marriage: But at the Common Law it was taken, that by the making of him a Knight within age, (for as much as in Judgment of Law as to this purpoſe he was of full age for his ability to do Knights ſervice) preſently his land ſhall be out of Wardſhip. And therefore it was provided by the Statute of Magna Charta, Cap. 3. Ita tamen quod ſi ipſe dum infra ætatem fuerit fiat Miles, nihilominus terra remaneat in Cuſtodia Dominorum ſuorum. So that although ſuch heir within age be made Knight, and therefore to that purpoſe eſteemed of full age, yet the Lands ſhall remain in the Lords Cuſtody until his age of 21 years by the purview of the ſaid Act. And if the Law had not been clear for the value of the marriage, for the cauſe and reaſon aforeſaid, without doubt the makers of the ſaid Act would have made proviſion for the ſame, as well as for the Land. 3. It was Reſolved, That when the King maketh the heir apparent within age of a Tenant by Knights ſervice, a Knight, in the Life of his Anceſtor, and afterwards [b] the Anceſtor dieth, the ſaid heir within age, in this caſe he ſhall be out of Ward, and ſhall pay no value of them arriage, nor the Lord ſhall not have the cuſtody of the Land: for in ſuch caſe by the making of him Knight in the life of his Anceſtor, he hath made him of full age, ſo that when his Anceſtor dieth, no intereſt either in the body, or the Land ſhall ever veſt in the Lord. And the Statute of Magna Chorta for the Cuſtody of the Land doth not extend to the ſame: For the purview thereof extendeth only when the heir in Ward (infra ætatem) is made Knight, then remaneat terra in Cuſtodia, &c. but when the heir is made Knight in the life of his Anceſtor, then the Cuſtody cannot remain or continue, which never had any beginning or eſſence, and therewith agreeth Ratcliff's Caſe in Plow. Com. 4. The Juſtices ſaid, they ought to have good Conſideration in all Caſes depending before them, not only to the antecedent (ſc. of the preſent caſe in Queſtion) but alſo of the Conſequent, ſc. what general prejudice will follow thereupon, either to the King, or Subject; and ſurely great prejudice would be to the King if the Law ſhould be otherwiſe in the principal Caſe; for it may be great prejudice to the King in his Wards, not only of Knights made by himſelf, but by his Lieutenants in Ireland and elſewhere. Alſo none will buy any Wardſhip of the King, when notwithſtanding they have paid the value thereof to the King, who hath paſſed the ſame under the great Seal, (as the Plt. hath in the Caſe at Bar) by the making of him a Knight ſhould bar him of the value of the marriage: for a man will give little or nothing for a thing which dependeth upon incertainty. Alſo it ſhall be very prejudicial to the Subjects, if after their Wards are lawfully veſted in them, they ſhall be deprived of them by making of them Knights, eſpecially when it appeareth by 7 H. 4. that a man may be made a Knight, ſo ſoon as he is baptized. 5. It was Reſolved, That when the heir within age is made Knight, after tender made to him, (as he was in the caſe at Bar) although that he within age marrieth elſewhere, yet he ſhall not pay the forfeiture of the marriage; for by the making of him Knight, he is out of the Wardſhip and Cuſtody of the Lord; For after he is Knight, he is ſui juris, and may employ himſelf in feats of Arms to defend the Realm, &c. and therefore ought not be within the Wardſhip or Cuſtody of any one; and none ſhall pay forfeiture, but when after refuſal he marrieth himſelf during the time he is in Ward to the Lord; and the ſame appeareth by the Statute of Merton, Cap. 6. Si ſe maritaverit ſine licentia Domini ſui & ſi auferat maritagium ſuum, &c. which words cannot be meant when he is out of Ward and Cuſtody, no more than when he is married after his age of 21 years; But as the Gardian hath ſome prejudice by the loſs of his forfeiture in ſuch caſe, by the making of his Ward a Knight, ſo he hath benefit alſo: For although the Gardian in Knights ſervice cannot have a Writ De valore maritagii: nor compel the heir to pay him the value of his marriage until his full.

full age; ſc. till his body be out of Cuſtody; and if ſuch heir dieth before ſuch age, the Lord ſhall loſe the value; yet in this Caſe preſently after the heir is made Knight, he may have a Writ de valore maritagii, becauſe he is out of the Ward and cuſtody of his Gardian. And the uſual Writ de valore maritagii when he accompliſheth his age of 21 years, is, dum fuit infra in ætatem Cuſtodia, &c. Vide F. N. B. 141. and Regiſter, and there ſhall be a ſpecial Count upon the Caſe; For note it is not dum fuit infra ætatem generally, but dum fuit infra ætatem in Cuſtodia, &c. which words well ſtand, for now he is out of Cuſtody. And two precedents were cited, one of the Earl of Eſſex, 29 Eliz. the other of Ratcliff, 1 Jac. both which were made Knights during the time they were in Ward, and were ordered by the Court of Wards to be diſcharged of the value of their Marriages. But upon good conſideration of the ſaid precedents it appeared, that they paſſed ſub ſilentio, without Argument or any Reſolution of any of the Juſtices at Law; and a great number of precedents were ſhewed, which agreed with the Reſolution of the Juſtices in this Caſe, V. 15 E. 4. 10. and Br. Gard. 2. E. 6. in the abridging of the Caſe of 15 E. 4. and Ratcliffs caſe, Com. 268. And the ſame was the laſt caſe that Sir John Popham Knight (the reverent and honourable Chief Juſtice of England, and Counſellor of State to Queen Eliz. and to our Lord the King that now is) reſolved, who was a moſt reverend Judge, of a ready apprehenſion, a profound Judgment, a moſt excellent underſtanding in the true reaſon of Law, and of univerſal and admirable experience and knowledge of all buſineſs which concerned the Commonwealth; accompanied with a moſt rare memory, with perpetual induſtry and labour for the maintenance of the peace of the Commonwealth, and in all things with great conſtancy, integrity and patience.

Paſch. 5 Jacob. in the Court of Wards.

Sir George Curſon's Caſe.

IN the great Caſe in the Court of Wards this term, between Sir George Curſon Knight, and his wife Defendants, in an Information on the behalf of Sir Jo. Leveſon Knight, and between Sir Jo. Leveſon Plaintiff, and Sackvile Eſq; and Mary his wife Defendants, it was reſolved by the two Chief Juſtices, and Chief Baron, upon arguments, and view of Precedents, That where Sir Walter Leveſon was ſeiſed of a reverſion in fee holden in capite expectant upon an eſtate tail (which he had made to Richard his Son) he by Indenture in conſideration of blood did covenant to ſtand ſeiſed of the ſaid Reverſion, to the uſe of Mary his Niece, ſc. daughter and heir apparent to the Lady Curſon, Siſter of the ſaid Sir Walter; and afterwards Sir Richard Leveſon the ſon died without iſſue; That in this Caſe the King ſhall not have Primer ſeiſin by the Statute of 32 and 34 H. 8. and that depends upon conſideration and conſtruction of the words, and purview of the ſaid Statute, which in effect are, Every perſon having any Mannors, Lands &c. holden in Capite, &c. ſhall have full power and authority, to give, diſpoſe, will, or aſſign, by his laſt will in writing, or otherwiſe by any Act or Acts lawfully executed in his life two parts of the ſame Mannors, Lands, &c. in three parts to be divided, &c. to or for the advancement of his wife, preferment of his Children, and payment of his debts, or otherwiſe at his will and pleaſure; ſaving always and reſerving to the King our Soveraign Lord, the cuſtody, wardſhip, and primer ſeiſin of any of them, as the caſe ſhall require, of as much as ſhall amount to the clear yearly value of the third part, &c. Then it was in conſideration how the Law ſtood concerning Wardſhip and Primer ſeiſin in the caſe, before the Statutes of 32 and 34 H. 8. And, 1. It was reſolved, That by the Statute of Marlbridge, De his qui primogenitos feoffare ſolent, It was colluſion apparent to enfeoff his eldeſt ſon, for without queſtion every one would (to prevent the Lord of his ward) enfeoff his eldeſt Son, if the giving of his land to him, to whom the land ſhould deſcend by the Common Law, would ſerve in ſuch Caſe. The ſame Law, and for the ſame reaſon, if the Tenant enfeoff his collateral heir apparent, as it is alſo ſaid, and not denied in Plow Com. 81. in Partridges Caſe. Alſo proviſion was made when the Tenant doth enfeoff others upon colluſion, &c. which was averred, but it was doubted, if colluſion might be averred upon particular eſtates, as an eſtate for life, or in tail, And it was holden clearly that no colluſion can be averred, when upon an eſtate for life, or in tail: the remainder or reverſion was limited or left in another, 27 H. 8. 10. 33 H. 6. 14. So when a ſtranger was joyned with the heir, although that the inheritance was limited to the heirs of the heir, and that the ſtranger had but for term of life, as it is agreed in 31 E. 3. Colluſion 29 & 33 H. 6. 14. So it was taken, that if Ceſtuy que uſe had deviſed his uſe by his will, no colluſion could have been averred upon a will. For Nemo præſumitur eſſe immemor ſuæ eternæ ſalutis, & maximè in articulo mortis, & omne Teſtamentum morte conſummatum eſt. And therefore the Statute of 4 H. 7. cap. 10. which gave the wardſhip of Ceſtuy que uſe, made exception when a will is by him declared, vide 27 H. 8. 10. So if the father had enfeoffed another, either for the advancement of his daughter, or his younger Sons, or for payment of his debts; and afterwards to enfeoff the heir; it was not any Colluſion, for he was bound to provide for them, and therewith agreeth 33 H. 6. 14. 27 H. 3. 7. vid. Mich. 9. and 10 Eliz. Dyer 260. 2 and 3 Eliz. Dyer 193. 20 Eliz. Dyer 361. 19 Eliz. Dyer 276. 5 Ma. Dyer 158. Then ſecondly it was reſolved, That as the Statute of 32 H. 8. gave benefit to the Subject, to have power to deviſe his lands by his laſt will in writing; So by the ſaving it gave benefit to the King in the ſaid three Caſes, ſc. advancement of his Wife, preferment of his Children, and payment of his debts, that in none of thoſe Caſes the King (as it appeareth before) ſhould have benefit of ward, or Primer ſeiſin before fore this Statute. And it is to know, that theſe words in the ſaid purview of the Act (or otherwiſe at his will and pleaſure, any Law, Statute, Cuſtom, or other thing to the contrary thereof notwithſtanding) have reference and relation only to laſt wills, and not to acts executed, and that for two cauſes. 1. It was neceſſary to add thoſe words to wills, for otherwiſe none could have deviſed two parts, but only for the advancement of his wife, or preferment of his children, or payment of his debts, and that was not the intention of the act, but that he might deviſe two parts to whom he would, ſo that a third part deſcended. But it was in vain to refer thoſe words, (or otherwiſe, at his will and pleaſure) to acts exe-

[b] cuted, for he might do the ſame without any authority or power given him by that act. Et quando diſpoſitio referri poteſt ad duas res, ita quod ſecundum relationem unam vitiatur, & ſecundum aliam nullo eſt, tunc facienda eſt relatio ad illam ut valeat diſpoſitio, & ſemper ita fiat relatio, ut valeat diſpoſitio. Theſe latter words do illuſtrate it alſo, (ſc. any Law, Statute, Cuſtom, or other thing) for no Law did reſtrain a man by act executed, to convey his land to whom he would by act in his life. But the Law and general Cuſtom of the Realm did reſtrain men to deviſe their lands to any, if not, that it were by ſome ſpecial cuſtom, in ſome particular place; and that appeareth by ſundry Statutes and Acts of Parliament; ſo that the ſaid words (or otherwiſe) having ſuch concluſion, refer only to laſt wills. Alſo in the third Article of 34 & 35 H. 8. of explanation it is declared; That all perſons holding any lands in chief, &c. have, and by authority of this preſent Parliament, ſhall have full and free power, &c. to give, diſpoſe, &c. to any perſon, &c. by his laſt will, or otherwiſe, by any act lawfully executed in his life, two parts of his lands, &c. at his free will and pleaſure, omitting the words of 32 H. 8. ſc. advancement of his wife, preferment of his children, and payment of his debts. But that doth not take away the act of 32 H. 8. as to the ſaid three particular caſes, in which Ward and Peimer ſeiſin is given to the King: but all other caſes are explained notwithſtanding theſe words (or otherwiſe) by the ſaid act of 34 & 35 H. 8. 3. It was reſolved, that the ſaid ſaving of Ward and Primer ſeiſin in the ſaid act of 32 H. 8. ſhall have relation only to acts executed, and not to wills; for always in Statutes, relation ſhall be according to the matter precedent, for the act giveth to the owner of the land power by his will to diſpoſe but two parts, ſo that the third part ought of neceſſity to deſcend; and in ſuch caſe the King ſhall be aſſured of the wardſhip, or primer ſeiſin of a third part. But in the caſe of act executed, he may convey all, and therefore it was needful to add the ſaving, as to that: But the ſaving doth extend only to one of the ſaid three caſes before particularly named, which, (as hath been ſaid) gave great benefit to the King more than he had before, and ſo as to this purpoſe, to make acts executed in equipage with Wills. And it was great reaſon to provide for the ſaid three caſes, becauſe they were ordinary and uſual; and every man by the
[77] Law of God, of nature, and nations, was bound to provide a competent living for his wife, his children, and for the payment of his debts. And if the ſaid words (or otherwiſe) ſhall refer as well to acts executed, as to Wills, and ſhall give wardſhip and primer ſeiſin to the King, not only in the ſaid particular caſes, but in all others; then if any one conveyeth his lands to the uſe of his baſtard, or to a meer ſtranger, upon any conſideration whatſoever, it ſhall be within the ſaving, which hath oftentimes been reſolved and adjudged to the contrary. Vide Mich. 12. and 13 Eliz. Dyer 296. 14 Eliz. Dyer 313. and 18 Eliz. Dyer 345. And therefore the opinion in 2 E. 6. Teſtament, was utterly denied by all, if it be not intended that it was given to a ſtranger by act executed, to one of the ſaid three purpoſes, or upon colluſion. 4. It was reſolved, That if there be grandfather, father, and divers ſons, and the grandfather in the life of the father, conveyeth his lands to any of the ſons, it is out of the ſaid act of 32 H. 8. for it is not common nor uſual. Et ad ea quæ frequentius accidunt jura adaptantur; And the father ought to have an immediate care of his ſons and iſſue: but if the father be dead, then the care of them appertaineth to the grandfather, and then if he conveyeth any of his lands to any of the ſaid ſons, it is within the Statute. But it was reſolved clearly, That a voluntary conveyance to the uſe of any of his blood, who is not his heir apparent, is not within the ſaid act: for none would intend, that he would diſ-inherit his heir on purpoſe to take away the wardſhip from the King, when every one hopeth to live till the age of his heir, much leſs to defeat him of a Primer ſeiſin. And if other conſtruction ſhall be made, the ſaid three examples, and the naming of his children ſhall be vain, if the act ſhall extend to every other of the bloud. And according to this reſolution in the principal caſe, the experience of the Court of Wards hath always been: and a great number of ſubjects who are in peace, ſhall be vexed and troubled if the common received opinion ſhall be changed. And accordingly it was reſolved in the Court of Wards, in Sir Rowland Hills caſe, in Matthew Drapers caſe, Mich. 22 Eliz. and divers others. And ſo in the doubts in Dyer 2 Eliz. 181. in Modies caſe, and 8 Eliz. Dyer 252. in Kniveton's caſe, &c. are well reſolved.

Bullen's Caſe.

BEween Robert Bullen Plaintiff, and Richard Godfrey Eſquire Defendant, Lord of the Mannor of Bale in Norfolk, it was agreed, that the Lord of a Leet, may well have a certain ſumm, as 10 s. pro certo Letæ, of all the Reſiants within his Leet, called ſometimes Capitagium, &c. and ſometimes Certum Letæ, and by other names, and the ſame may have a reaſonable beginning, ſcil. When the Lord purchaſed and got the Leet for eaſe of the Reſiants therein, ſo that they need not go to the Sheriffs Torn, but to do their ſute real at the Lords Leet; alſo the Lord of a Leet was at every Eyre driven at his own coſts to claim this Franchiſe, &c. And in the caſe at barr the iſſue was, whether the Plaintiff at the Court Leet mentioned in the record, were a chief pledge of the ſame Court or not: and thereupon a ſpecial verdict was found, that the Plaintiff was reſiant, and that he was certified at the ſaid Leet, to be a chief pledge, by the chief pledges of the Leet; but he made default, and was amerced for his default 2 s. 6 d. ſo that he did not appear, nor was ſworn as chief pledge, &c. And it ſeemed to the Court, that they cannot adjudge him a chief pledge upon that verdict; for Leets were divided in decuriis or decennas, unde dicitur decennarii to this day: and out of every ten, (and one of them being pledge for the other, from whence the Court was called Curia viſus franci plegii) one was called Capitalis plegius, ſeu Primarius fidei-juſſor; and in ſome places at this day, he is called the Tithingman, an in Yorkſhire Tenmantale. And therewith agreeth Lambert in his book de priſcis Anglorum legibus, and Fleta lib. 2. cap. 45. and reaſon proveth it; [78] for he cannot be called capital pledge, but in reſpect that others are inferiour pledges. Vide the Statute of 28 E. 2. de viſu franci pledg. of chief pledges: and our books ſpeak of chief pledges, Vide 4 E. 3. 125. 126. and 4 E. 3. 30. 45 E. 3. 23. of the old impreſſion, 13 H. 4. 10. So that the retorn of the Conſtable, or the preſentment of the Jury in the Leet, doth not make a man chief pledge. And it appeareth by the ſaid act of 18 E. 2. that it ought to be enquired at the Leet, if all the chief pledges with their decenners, that is, the other nine, appears, by which it appeareth, that the tenth princial man was the chief pledge; Sed tempora mutantur & nos mutamur in illis. So that vera inſtitutio hujus curiæ evanuit, & velut, umbra ejuſdem adhuc remanet. And this caſe was very obſcure and doubtfull at the firſt, and afterwards, materia iſta conſopita fuit in arbitrio. Vide 30 E. 3. 23. of the Franckpledge of the Town, and his authority.

The Lord Aburgaveni's Caſe.

BEtween Richard Michelborn Plaintiff, and George Overy Defendant, in a Replevin which began Trinit. [b] 4 Jac. Rot. 1146. in the Common Pleas, the caſe was ſuch; Margaret Pool, and Francis Pool were Tenants for life of 12 acres of land in Keym in Suſſex, the reverſion to the Lord Aburgavenie. Afterwards, ſcil. 34 Eliz. Richard Michelborn the Plaintiff had Judgment in the Common Pleas againſt the ſaid Margaret, in an action of debt of 200 l. 24 Maii, 37 Eliz. the ſaid Margaret did releaſe to the ſaid Francis Pool all her eſtate and right in the ſaid land, and afterwards, ſc. 27 Jun. 37 Eliz. The Plaintiff ſued execution out of the ſaid Judgment, for the ſaid debt, by Elegit, and the ſaid 12 acres amongſt others, as one moity of the other lands, &c. were delivered to the Plaintiff, and the Plaintiff in barr of the avowry, (which was for damage feaſance in his freehold) averred the lives of the ſaid Margaret and Francis: The avowant pleaded, that Francis aſſigned his intereſt to the Lord Buckhurſt, who before the taking, had ſurrendred to the Lord Aburgaveny, and traverſed the life of Francis; upon which plea, the Plaintiff did demurr in Law, and after argument at barr and bench, Judgment was given for the Plaintiff, becauſe he had traverſed the life of Francis, which was not a thing material, nor iſſuable; for non refert whether ſhe were living or dead: and in this caſe theſe points were reſolved. 1. Where Judgment is [79] given againſt Marget one of the Joyntenants for life, in an action of debt, and afterwards ſhe releaſeth to her joynt companion before execution, although that Francis to whom the releaſe is made between them, is now in by the leſſor, and not by the ſaid Margaret, yet to as the Plaintiff who hath Judgment in the action of debt, (by which the moity of Margaret was charged to the Execution) ſhe by her own act ſhall not defeat the Plaintiff of his execution, but as to him the eſtate of Margaret hath continuance in Law, although in truth Francis after the releaſe made, had eſtate but for her own life: But if Margaret had died before execution, the ſurvivor ſhall hold it diſcharged of any execution to be ſued againſt her Vid. 13 H. 7. 22. 5 H. 5. 8. 10 E. 3. charge 13. 17 E. 2. charge 15. 18 E. 2. Execution, Statham. 10 E. 4. 3. 37 H. 8. br. Alienation 31. And upon all the ſaid books it was gathered for good Law, that if two Joyntenants be in fee, and one granteth a rent charge in fee, and afterwards releaſeth to the other, in that caſe although to ſome intent, he to whom the releaſe is made, is in by the firſt feoffor, and no degree is made betwixt them, yet as to the grantee of the rent charge, he is in under the Joynt-tenant who releaſed; and he who ſurviveth, ſhall not avoid it after the death of him who releaſeth; for he who ſurviveth, by acceptance of the releaſe, had deprived himſelf of the means to avoid the charge; for jus creſcendi, ſc. the right of ſurvivorſhip was the ſole means to have avoided it, and the ſame is utterly taken away by the releaſe. So the doubt in 33 H. 6. 5. well reſolved. 2. It was reſolved, that when the releaſe is made to Francis, by which ſhe hath a ſole eſtate for life when ſhe dieth, and he in the reverſion entreth, he is in of his old eſtate, yet as to Michelborn, the eſtate of Margaret who is yet living, hath continuance. As if the husband ſeiſed of a rent, or Common in fee, and releaſeth to the Terre-Tenant, this rent is extinct, and yet having regard to the wife, it hath continuance, for ſhe ſhall be endowed of it, as it is adjudged in 5 E. 2. Dower 143. 10 E. 3. 27. 24 E. 3. 29. 34 Aſſ. 15. 22 E. 3. Dower 131. 44 E. 3. 32. Vid. 31 E. 3. Aſſetts 5. 11 H. 7. 12. Sir Edward Phitton's Caſe.

[b] SIR Edward Phitton was outlawed at the ſute of R. after Judgment, before the general pardon 43 El. for 18 l. and after the pardon Sir Edward dyed, and now his Executors acknowledged ſatisfaction and without any proceſs, (for no proceſs can be awarded againſt them upon the outlawry) they pleaded the general pardon, and with averment, that they are not any perſons excepted, &c. and in this caſe theſe points were reſolved. 1. That the ſaid Executors ſhall take benefit of the ſaid general pardon, by which it is enacted, that all the Kings ſubjects, their heirs, ſucceſſors, executors, and adminiſtrators, ſhall be acquitted and pardoned, releaſed and diſcharged of all offences, contempts, and all other things, &c. and that it ſhall be expounded moſt beneficial and available for the ſubject, &c. and further giveth and granteth all goods, chattels, debts, &c. forfeited, and doth prohibit any Clerk to make out any writ, &c. Provided that every Clerk may make Capias utlag. at the Plaintiffs ſute againſt ſuch perſons outlawed, to the intent to compell the Defendant to anſwer: and that the party ſhall ſue a Scire facias, before the pardon in that behalf ſhall be allowed; which is as much as to ſay, having regard only to the Plaintiff, but having regard to the King, it is an abſolute pardon and grant of his goods, &c. Note this, Then cometh another Proviſo. That this act ſhall in no wiſe extend to any perſon outlawed upon any writ of Capias ad ſatisficiendum, untill ſuch time as the perſon ſo outlawed, ſhall ſatisfie, or otherwiſe agree with the party; and that is intended always as to the party Plaintiff, for, for him the proviſion is made. But againſt the King, he is a perſon able to take benefit of the pardon, and capable of [80] his goods againſt the King: ſo note, he is a perſon able by the pardon, againſt the King, but not as to the party Plaintiff; as a Villain is diſabled againſt his Lord, not as to any other: and that appeareth by conſtruction upon the whole act. 2. It was reſolved, that although the words of this latter Proviſo are, (untill ſuch time as the perſon outlawed ſhall ſatisfie) that is, ſuch intereſt in the perſon outlawed, that although he dieth after the pardon, yet the Executors may ſatisfie, and have benefit of the pardon. 3. Foraſmuch as this caſe is no Scire facias, nor Capias utlagatum, nor other proceſs lyeth againſt the Executors, they may, (after ſatisfaction acknowledged) gratis come in, (for neceſſity without proceſs) and plead the general pardon, with averment, that they are not any perſons excepted. And ſee a clauſe in the beginning of the act, that every ſubject by himſelf, or his attorney, may plead this act for his or their diſcharge, &c. Vide 3 Eliz. Dier 201. upon the Statute of 23 H. 8. Executors ſhall have Attaint. 6 E. 6. Bendloes. Executors ſhall have reſtitution upon the Statute of 21 H. 8. Alſo Adminiſtrators ſhall have a writ of Error upon 27 Eliz. as it was adjudged Mich. 36 Eliz. in the Lord Mordans caſe in the Exchequer chamber; yet theſe Statutes ſpeak only of the party, and not of his Executors or Adminiſtrators, Vide 28 Aſſ. p. 7. 11 E. 3. The question.

How this case hath proceeded.

The question of this matter in Law was, whether Robert Calvin the Plaintiff (being born in Scotland since the Crown of England descended to his Majesty) be an alien born, and consequently disabled to bring any real or personal action for any lands within the Realm of England. After this case had been argued in the Court of the Kings Bench, at the barre, by the counsel learned of either party, the Judges of that court, upon conference and consideration of the weight and importance thereof, adjourned the same (according to the ancient and ordinary course and order of Law) into the Exchequer chamber, to be argued openly there; first by the counsel learned of either party, and then by all the Judges of England: where afterwards the case was argued by Bacon Sollicitor General, on the part of the Plaintiff, and by Laur. Hide for the Defendant: and afterward by Hobart Attorney General for the Plaintiff, and by Serjeant Hutton for the Defendant: and in Easter term last, the case was argued by Heron puisne Baron of the Exchequer, and Foster puisne Judge of the Court of Common Pleas: and on the second day appointed for this case, by Crook puisne Judge of the Kings Bench, and Altham Baron of the Exchequer: the third day by Snigge Baron of the Exchequer, and Williams one of the Judges of the Kings Bench: the fourth day by Daniel one of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas, and by Yelverton one of the Judges of Kings Bench: And in Trinity Term following, by Warberton one of the Judges of the Common Pleas, and Fenner one of the Judges of the Kings Bench: and after by Walmsley one of the Judges of the Common Pleas, and Tanfield chief Baron: and at two several days in the same Term, Coke chief Justice of the Common Pleas, Fleming chief Justice of the Kings Bench, and Sir Thomas Eggerton, Lord Ellesmere, Lord Chanchellor of England, argued the case (the like plea

[b] in disability of Robert Calvins person being pleaded mutatis mutandis in the Chancery in a sute there for evidence concerning lands of inheritance, and by the Lord Chancellor adjorned also into the Exchequer chamber, to the end that one rule might over rule both the said cases.) And first (for that I intend to make as summary a Report as I can) I will at the first set down such arguments and objections as were made and drawn out of this short record against the Plaintiff, by those that argued for the Defendants. It was observed, that in this plea there were four Nouns, quatuor nomina, which were called nomina operativa, because from them all the said arguments and objections on the part of the Defendants were drawn: that is to say, 1. Ligeantia (which is twice repeated in the plea, for it is said, Infra ligeantiam domini regis regni sui Scotiæ, et extra ligeantiam domini regis regni sui Angliæ.) 2. Regnum (which also appeareth to be twice mentioned, viz. regnum Angliæ, and regnum Scotiæ.) 3. Leges (which are twice alledged, viz. Leges Angliæ, and leges Scotæ, two several and dinstinct Laws.) 4. Alienigina (which is the conclusion of all, viz. that Robert Calvin is Alienigena.) By the first it appeareth, that the Defendants do make two ligeances, one of England, and another of Scotland, and from these several ligeances two arguments were framed, which briefly may be concluded thus. Whosoever is born infra ligeantiam, within the ligeance of King James of his kingdom of Scotland, is Alienigina, an alien born, as to the kingdome of England: but Robert Calvin was born at Edenborough, within the ligeance of the King of his kingdom of Scotland; therefore Robert Calvin is Alienigena, an alien born, as to the kingdom of England. 2. Whosoever is born extra ligeantiam, out of the ligeance of King James of his kingdom of England, is an alien as to the kingdom of England: but the Plaintiff was born out of the ligeance of the King of his kingdom of England; therefore the Plaintiff is an alien, &c. Both these arguments are drawn from the very words of the Plea, viz. Quod præd. Robertus est alienigena, natus 5 Novemb. anno regni domini Regis nunc Angliæ, &c. tertio apud Edenborough infra regnum Scotiæ, ac infra ligeantiam dicti domini Regis dicti regni sui Scotiæ, ac extra ligeantiam dicti domini regis regni sui Angliæ. From the several kingdoms, viz. regnum Angliæ and regnum Scotiæ, three arguments were drawn: 1. Quando duo jura (imo duo regna) concurrunt in una persona, æquum est ac si essent in diversis: but in the Kings person there concur two distinct and several kingdoms; therefore it is all one as if they were born under the ligeance of another King. 2. Whatſoever is due to the Kings ſeveral politique capacities of the ſeveral kingdoms is ſeveral and divided: but ligeance of each nation is due to the Kings ſeveral politique capacities of the ſeveral kingdoms; Ergo, The ligeance of each nation is ſeveral and divided, and conſequently the Plaintiff is an alien, for that they that be born under ſeveral ligeances are aliens one to another. 3. Where the King hath ſeveral kingdoms by ſeveral titles and deſcents; there alſo are the ligeances ſeveral: but the King hath theſe two kingdoms by ſeveral titles and deſcents; therefore the ligeances be ſeveral. Theſe 3. arguments are collected alſo from the words of the plea before remembred.

[3] they were in divers persons, and consequently the Plaintiff is an alien as all the Antenati be, for that they

From the ſeveral and diſtinct Laws of either kingdom, they did reaſon thus; 1. Every Subject that is born out of the extent and reach of the Laws of England, cannot by judgment of thoſe Laws be a natural ſubject to the King, in reſpect of his kingdom of England: but the Plaintiff was born at Edenborough, out of the extent and reach of the Laws of England; therefore the Plaintiff by the judgment of the Laws of England cannot be a natural Subject to the King, as of his kingdom of England. 2. That Subject, that is not at the time and in the place of his birth inheritable to the Laws of England, cannot be inheritable or partaker of the benefits and priviledges given by the Laws of England: but the Plaintiff at the time, and in the place of his birth was not inheritable to the Laws of England, (but only to the Laws of Scotland;) therefore he is not inheritable or to be partaker of the benefits of priviledges of the Laws of England. 3. Whatſoever appeareth to be out of the juriſdiction of the Laws of England, cannot be tried by the ſame Laws: but the Plaintiffs birth at Edenborough is out of the juriſdiction of the Laws of England; therefore the ſame cannot be tried by the Laws of England. Which three arguments were drawn from theſe words of the plea, viz. Quodque tempore nativitatis præd. Roberti Calvin, ac diu antea, et continue poſtea, prædictum regnum Scotiæ per jura, leges et ſtatuta ejuſdem regni propria, et non per jura, leges, ſeu ſtatuta hujus regni Angliæ regulat' et gubernat' fuit, et adhuc eſt. From this word Alienigena they argued thus. Every Subject that is alienæ gentis (i.e.) alienæ ligeantiæ, eſt alienigena: but ſuch a one is the Plaintiff; therefore, &c. And to theſe nine arguments, all that was ſpoken learnedly and at large by thoſe that argued againſt the Plaintiff may be reduced.

But it was reſolved by the Lord Chanchellor and twelve Judges, viz. the two chief Juſtices, the chief Baron, Juſtice Fenner, Warbarton, Yelverton, Daniel, Williams, Baron Snig, Baron Altham, Juſtice Crooke, and Baron Heron, that the Plaintiff was no alien, and conſequently that the ought to be anſwered in this Aſſiſe by the Defendant. [b]

How this caſe was argued by the Lord Chancellor and the Judges

This caſe was as elaborately, ſubſtantially, and judicially argued by the Lord Chancellor, and by my brethren the Judges, as I ever read or heard of any; and ſo in mine opinion the weight and conſequence of the cauſe, both in præſenti et perpetuis futuris temporibus juſtly deſerved: for though it was one of the ſhorteſt and leaſt that ever we argued in this Court, yet was it the longeſt and weightieſt that ever was argued in any Court; the ſhorteſt in ſyllables, and the longeſt in ſubſtance; the leaſt for the value (and yet not tending to the right of that leaſt) but the weightieſt for the conſequent, both for the preſent, and for all poſterity, And therefore it was ſaid, that thoſe that had written de foſſilibus did obſerve, that gold hidden in the bowels of the earth, was in reſpect of the maſſe of the whole earth, parvum in magno: but of this ſhort plea it might be truly ſaid (which is more ſtrange) that here was magnum in parvo. And in the arguments of thoſe that argued for the Plaintiff I ſpecially noted, That albeit they ſpake according to their own heart, yet they ſpake not out of their own head and invention: Job 8. 8. wherein they followed the counſel given in Gods book, Interroga priſtinam generationem (for out of the old fields muſt come the new corn) et diligenter inveſtiga patrum memoriam, and diligently ſearch out the judgments of our forefathers: and that for divers reaſons. Firſt on our own part, Heſterni enim ſumus et ignoramus, et vita noſtra ſicut umbra ſuper terram: for we are but of yeſterday, (and therefore had need of the wiſdom of thoſe that were before us) and had been ignorant (if we had not received light and knowledge from our forefathers) and our days upon the earth are but as a ſhadow, in reſpect of the old ancient dayes and times paſt, wherein the Laws have been by the wiſdom of the moſt excellent men, in many ſucceſſions of ages, by long and continual experience (the trial of right and truth) fined and refined, which no one man (being of ſo ſhort a time) albeit he had in his head the wiſdom of all the men in the world, in any one age could never have effected or attainted unto. And therefore it is [4] optima regula, qua nulla eſt verior aut firmior in jure, Neminem oportet eſſe ſapientiorem legibus: no man ought to take upon him to be wiſer than the Laws. Secondly, in reſpect of our forefathers: Iſti (ſaith the text) docebunt te, et loquentur tibi, et ex corde ſuo proferunt eloquia, they ſhall teach thee, and tell thee, and ſhall utter the words of their heart, without all equivocation or mental reſervation, they (I ſay) that cannot be daunted with fear of any power above them, nor be dazled with the applauſe of the popular about them, nor fretted with any diſcontentment (the matter of oppoſition and contradiction) within them, but ſhall ſpeak the words of their heart, without all affection or infection whatſoever.

Alſo in their arguments of this cauſe concerning an alien, they told no ſtrange hiſtories, cited no forreign Laws, produced no alien preſidents, and that for two cauſes: the one, for that the Laws of England are ſo copious in this point, as God willing by the report of this caſe ſhall appear: the other, leſt their arguments concerning an alien born, ſhould become forreign, ſtrange, and an alien to the ſtate of the queſtion, which being quæſtio juris, concerning feeehold, and inheritance in England, is only to be decided by the Laws of this Realm. And albeit I concurred with thoſe that adjudged the Plaintiff to be no alien, yet do I find a meer ſtranger in this caſe, ſuch a one as the eye of the Law (our books and book caſes) never ſaw, as the ears of the Law (our Reporters never heard of, nor the mouth of the Law (for Judex eſt lex loquens) the Judges our forefathers of the Law never taſted: I ſay, ſuch a one, as the ſtomack of the Law, our exquiſite and perfect Records of pleadings, entries, and jugdments (that make equal and true diſtribution of all caſes in queſtion) never digeſted. In a word, this little plea is a great ſtranger to the Law of England, as ſhall manifeſtly appear by the reſolution of this caſe.

And

The method that the Reporter doth uſe.

And now that I have taken upon me to make a report of their arguments, I ought to do the ſame as truly, fully, and ſincerely, as poſſibly I can: howbeit, ſeeing that almoſt every Judge had in the courſe of his argument a peculiar method, and I muſt only hold my ſelf to one, I ſhall give no juſt offence to any, if I challenge that which of right is due to every Reporter, that is, to reduce the ſum and effect of all to ſuch a method, as upon conſideration had of all the arguments, the Reporter himſelf thinketh to be fitteſt and cleareſt for the right underſtanding of the true reaſons and cauſes of the judgment and reſolution of the caſe in queſtion.

In this caſe five things did fall into conſideration. 1. Ligeantia. 2. Leges. 3. Regna. 4. Alienigena. 5. What legal inconveniences would enſue on either ſide.

What things did fall into conſideration in this caſe.

1. Concerning ligeance: 1. It was reſolved what ligeance was: 2. How many kinds of ligeances there were: 3. Where ligeance was due: 4. To whom it was due: and laſtly, How it was due.

[b]

2. For the Laws: 1. That ligeance, or obedience of the ſubject to the Soveraign, is due by the Law of nature: 2. That this Law of nature is part of the Laws of England: 3. That the Law of nature was before any judicial or municipal Law in the world: 4. That the Law of nature is immutable and cannot be changed.

3. As touching the Kingdoms: How far forth by the act of Law the Union is already made, and wherein the Kingdoms do yet remain ſeparate and divided.

4. Of Alienigena, an alien born: 1. What an alien born is in Law: 2. The diviſion and diverſity of aliens. 3. Incidents to every alien. 4. Authorities in Law. 5. Demonſtrative concluſions upon the premiſſes, that the Plaintiff can be no alien.

5. Upon due conſideration had of the conſequent of this caſe: What inconveniencies legal ſhould follow on either party.

And theſe ſeveral parts I will in this Report purſue in ſuch order as they have been propounded: and firſt de Ligeantia.

The firſt general part What ligeance is.

1. Ligeance is a true and faithfull obedience of the ſubject due to his Soveraign. This ligeance and obedience is an incident inſeparable to every ſubject; for as ſoon as he is born he oweth by birth-right ligeance and obedience to his Soveraign. Ligeantia eſt vinculum fidei: and Ligeantia eſt quaſi legis eſſentia. Ligeantia eſt ligamentum, quaſi ligatio mentium; quia ſicut ligamentum eſt connexio articulorum & junctuarum, &c. As the ligatures or ſtrings do knit together the joints of all parts of the body, ſo doth ligeance joyn together the Soveraign and all his Subjects, quaſi uno ligamine. Glanvil, who wrote in the reign of H. 2. lib. 9. cap. 4. ſpeaking of the connexion which ought to be between the Lord and Tenant that holdeth by homage, ſaith, That mutua debet eſſe domini & fidelitatis connexio, ita quod quantum debet domino ex homagio, tantum illi debet dominus ex dominio, præter ſolam reverentiam, and the Lord (ſaith he) ought to defend his tenant. But between the Soveraign and the ſubject there is without compariſon a higher and greater connexion; for as the ſubject oweth to the King his true and faithful ligeance and obedience, ſo the Soveraign is to govern and protect his Subjects, regere & protegere ſubditos ſuos: ſo as betwen the Soveraign and ſubject there is duplex & reciprocum ligamen: quia ſicut ſubditus regi tenetur ad obedientiam, ita rex ſubdito tenetur ad protectionem: merito igitur ligeantia dicitur a ligando, quia continet in ſe duplex ligamen. And therefore it is holden in 20 H. 7, 8. that there is a liege or ligeance between the King and the ſubject. And Forteſcue cap. 13. Rex ad tutelam legis, corporum & bonorum erectus eſt. And in the Acts of Parliament of 10 R. 2. cap. 5. & 11 R. 2. cap. 1. 14 H. 8. cap. 2. &c. Subjects are called liege people: and in the acts of Parliament in 34 H. 8. cap. 1. & 35 H. 8. cap. 3. &c. the King is called the liege Lord of his Subjects. And with this agreeth M. Skene in his book de expoſitione verborum (which book was cited by one of the Judges which argued againſt the Plaintiff) Ligeance is the mutual bond and obligation between the King and his ſubjects, whereby ſubjects are called his liege ſubjects, becauſe they are bound to obey and ſerve him, and he is called their liege Lord, becauſe he ſhould maintain and defend them. Whereby it appeareth, that in this point the Law of England, and of Scotland is all one. Therefore it is truly ſaid that protectio trahit ſubjectionem, & ſubjectio protectionem. And hereby it plainly appeareth, that ligeance doth not begin by the oath in the Leet; for many men owe true ligeance that never were ſworn in a Leet, and the ſwearing in a Leet maketh no denization, as the book is adjudged in 14 H. 4. fol. 19. This word ligeance is well expreſſed by divers ſeveral names or Synonymia which we find in our books. Sometime it is called the obedience or obeyſance of the ſubject to the King, obedientia regi, 9 E. 4. 7. 9 E. 4. 6. 2 R. 3. 2. in the book of entries, Ejectione firmæ 7. 14 H. 8. cap. 2. 22 H. 8. cap. 2. 8. &c. Sometime he is called a natural liege man that is born under the power of the King, ſub poteſtate regis, 2 H. 3. tit. Dower. V. le Statute de 11 E. 3. cap. 2. Sometimes ligeance is called Faith, Fides, ad fidem regis, &c. Bracton who wrote in the reign of H. 3. lib. 5. tractat. de exceptionibus. cap. 24. fol. 427. Eſt etiam alia exceptio quæ competit ex perſona quærentis, propter defectum nationis, ut ſi quis alienigena qui fuit ad fidem regis Franc. &c. And Fleta (which book was made in the reign of E. 1.) agreeth therewith; for lib. 6. c. 47. de exceptione ex omiſſione participis, it is ſaid, vel dicere potuit, quod nihil juris clamare poterit tanquam particeps eo quod eſt ad fidem regis Franciæ, quia alienigenæ repelli debent in Anglia ab agendo, donec fuerunt ad fidem regis Angliæ. Vide 25 E. 3. de natis ultra mare, foy & ligeance del Roy Dengliterre: & Litt. l. 2. c. Homage, ſalve le foy, quod ieo doy a noſtre ſur le Roy: and Glanvil, l. 9. c. 1. Salva fide debita domino Regi & hæredibus ſuis. Sometimes ligeance is called ligealty, 22 Aſſ. Pl. 25. By all which it evidently appeareth, that they that are born under the obedience, power, faith, ligealty, or ligeance of the King, are natural ſubjects, and no aliens. So as, ſeeing now it doth appear what ligeance is, it followeth in order, that we ſpeak of the ſeveral kinds of ligeance. But herein we need to be very wary, for this caveat the law giveth ubi lex non diſtinguit, nec nos diſtinguere debemus: and certainly lex non diſtinguit, but where omnia membra dividentia are to be found out and proved by the law it ſelf.

How many kind of ligeances there be

2. There is found in the law four kinds of ligeances: the firſt is, ligeantia naturalis, abſoluta, pura, & indefinita: and this originally is due by nature and birthright, and is called alta ligeantia, and he that oweth oweth this is called ſubditus natus. The ſecond is called ligeantia acquiſita, not by nature but by acquiſition or denization, being called a denizen, or rather donaizon, becauſe he is ſubditus datus. The third is ligeantia localis, wrought by the law, and that is when an alien that is in amity cometh into England, becauſe as long as he is within England, he is within the Kings protection; therefore ſo long as he is there, he oweth unto the King a local obedience or ligeance, for that the one (as it hath been ſaid draweth the other. The fourth is a legal obedience, or ligeance which is called legal, becauſe the municipal laws of this realm have preſcribed the order and form of it; and this to be done upon oath at the Torn or Leet. The firſt, that is, ligeance natural, &c. appeareth by the ſaid acts of Parliament, wherein the King is called natural liege Lord, and his people natural liege ſubjects; this alſo doth appear in the indictments of Treaſon which of all other things are the moſt curiouſly and certainly indited and penned:) for in the indictment of the Lord Dacre, in 26 H. 8. it is ſaid prædictus dominus Dacre debitum fidei & ligeantiæ ſuæ quod præfato domino regi naturaliter & de jure impendere debuit, minime curans, &c. And Reginald Pool was indicted in 30 H. 8. for committing treaſon contra dominum regem ſupremum & naturalem dominum ſuum. And to this end were cited the indictment of Edward Duke of Somerſet in 5 E. 6. and many others both of ancient and latter times. But in the indictment of Treaſon of John Dethick in 2 & 3 Phil. & Mar. it is ſaid, quod prædict. Johannes machinans, &c. prædict. dominum Philippum & dominam Mariam ſupremos dominos ſuos, and omitted (naturales) becauſe King Philip was not his natural liege Lord. And of this point more ſhall be ſaid when we ſpeak of local obedience. The ſecond is ligeantia acquiſita, or denization: and this in the books and records of the law appeareth to be threefold: 1. abſolute, as the common denizations be, to them and their heirs, without any limitation or reſtraint: 2. limited, as when the King doth grant letters of denization to an alien, and to the heirs males of his body, as it appeareth in 9 E. 4. fol. 7. in Baggots caſe; or to an alien for term of his life, as was granted John Reynel, 11 H. 6. 3. It may be granted upon condition; for cujus eſt dare, ejus eſt diſponere, whereof I have ſeen divers precedents. And this denization of an alien may be effected three manner of ways: by Parliament, as it was in 3 H. 6. 55. in Dower: by letters patents, as the uſual manner is: and by conqueſt, as if the King and his ſubjects ſhould conquer another Kingdom or Dominion, as well Antenati as Poſtnati, as well they which fought in the field, as they which remained at home for defence of their country, or imployed elſewhere, are all denizens of the Kingdom or dominion conquered. Of which point more ſhall be ſaid hereafter.

Ligeantia naturalis.

3. Concerning the local obedience, it is obſervable, that as there is a local protection on the Kings part, ſo there is a local ligeance of the ſubjects part. And this appeareth in 4 Mar. Br. 32. & 3 & 4 Phil. & Mar. Dyer 144. Sherley a French man, being in amity with the King, came into England, and joyned with divers ſubjects of this realm in treaſon againſt the King and Queen, and the indictment concluded contra ligeantiæ ſuæ debitum; for he owed to the King a local obedience, that is, ſo long as he was within the Kings protection: which local obedience being but momentany and incertain, is ſtrong enough to make a natural ſubject; for if he hath iſſue here, that iſſue is a natural born ſubject: a fortiori he that is born under the natural and abſolute ligeance of the King (which as it hath been ſaid, is alta ligeantia) as the Plaintiff in the caſe in queſtion was, ought to be a natural born ſubject; for localis ligeantia eſt ligeantia infima, & minima, & maxime incerta. And it is to be obſerved, that it is nec cœlum, nec ſolum, neither the climate nor the ſoil, but ligeantia and obedientia that make the ſubject born: for if enemies ſhould come into the realm, and poſſeſs a town or fort, and have iſſue there, that iſſue is no ſubject to the King of England, though he be born upon his ſoil, and under his meridian, for that he was not born under the ligeance of a ſubject, nor under the protection of the King. And concerning this local obedience, a precedent was cited in Hill. 36 Eliz. when Stephano Ferrara de Gama, and Emanuel Lewes Tinoco, two Portugals born, coming into England under Queen Elizabeths ſafe conduct, and living here under her protection, joyned with Doctor Lopez in treaſon within this Realm againſt her Majeſty: and in this caſe two points were reſolved by the Judges. Firſt, that their indictment ought to begin, that they intended treaſon contra dominam Reginam, &c. omitting theſe words (naturalem dominam ſuam) and ought to conclude contra ligeantiæ ſuæ debitum. But if an alien enemy come to invade this realm, and be taken in war, he cannot be indicted of treaſon: for the indictment cannot conclude contra ligeantiæ ſuæ debitum, for he never was in the protection of the King, nor ever owed any manner of ligeance unto him, but malice and enmity, and therefore he ſhall be put to death by martial law. And ſo it was in anno 15 H. 7. in Perkin Warbecks caſe, who being an alien born in Flanders, feigned himſelf to be one of the ſons of Edward the fourth, and invaded this realm with great power, with an intent to take upon him the dignity royal: but being taken in the war, it was reſolved by the Juſtices, that he could not be puniſhed by the Common law, but before the Conſtable and Marſhal (who had ſpecial commiſſion under the great Seal to hear and determine the ſame according to martial law) he had ſentence to be drawn, hanged, and quartered, which was executed accordingly. And this appeareth in the book of Griffeth Attorney general, by an extract out of the book of Hobart, Attorney general to King H. 7.

4. Now are we to ſpeak of legal ligeance, which in our books, viz. 7 E. 2. tit. Avowry 211. 4 E. 3. fol. 42. 13 E. 3. tit. Avowry 120. &c. is called Sute Royall, becauſe that the ligeance of the ſubject is only due unto the King. This oath of ligeance appeareth in Britton, who wrote in anno 5 E. 1. cap. 29. (and is yet commonly in uſe to this day in every Leet) and in our books; the effect whereof is: You ſhall ſwear, that from this day forward, you ſhall be true and faithfull to our Sovereign Lord King James, and his heirs, and truth and faith ſhall bear of life and member, and terrene honour, and you ſhall neither know nor hear of any ill or damage intended unto him, that you ſhall not defend. So help you Almighty God. The ſubſtance and effect hereof is (as hath been ſaid) due by the law of nature, ex inſtitutione naturæ, as hereafter ſhall appear: the form and addition of the oath is, ex proviſione hominis. In this oath of ligeance five things were obſerved. 1. That for the time it is indefinite, and without limit, from this day for-

forward; Secondly, Two excellent qualities are required, that is, to be true and faithful; 3. To whom, to our Soveraign Lord the King and his heirs: (And albeit Britton doth say, to the King of of England, that is spoken propter excellentiam, to design the person, and not to confine the ligeance; for a Subject doth not swear his ligeance to the King, only as King of England, and not to him as King of Scotland, or of Ireland, &c. but generally to the King;) 4. In what manner, and faith and troth shall bear, &c. of life and member; that is, untill the letting out of the last drop of our dearest heart blood. 5. Where, and in what places ought these things to be done, in all places whatsoever; for, you shall neither know nor hear of any ill or damage, &c. that you shall not defend, &c. so as natural ligeance is not circumscribed within place. It is holden 12 H. 7. 18. b. That he that is sworn in the Leet, is sworn to the King for his ligeance, that is, to be true and faithful to the King: and if he be once sworn for his ligeance, he shall not be sworn again during his life. And all Letters patents of denization be, that the Patentee shall behave himself tanquam verus & fidelis ligeus domini Regis. And this oath of Ligeance at the Tourne and Leet was first instituted by King Arthur; for so I read, Inter leges sancti Edwardi Regis ante conquestum 3. cap. 35. Et quod omnes principes & comites, proceres, milites, & liberi homines debent jurare, &c. in Folkemote, & similiter omnes proceres regni, & milites, & liberi homines universi totius regni Britanniæ facere debent in plano Folkemote fidelitatem domino Regi, &c. Hanc legem invenit Arthurus qui quondam fuit inclitissimus Rex Britonum, &c. hujus legis authoritate expulit Arthurus Rex Saracenos & inimicos a regno, &c. & hujus legis authoritate Etheldredus Rex uno & eodem die per universum regnum Danos occidit. Vide Lambert inter Regis Edwardi, &c. fol. 135 & 136. By this it appeareth, when and from whom this legal ligeance had his first institution within this realm. Ligeantia in the case in question is meant and intended of the first kind of ligeance, that is, of ligeance natural, absolute, &c. due by nature and birth-right. But if the Plaintiffs father be made a denizen, and purchase lands in England to him and his heirs, and die seised, this land shall never descend to the Plaintiff, for that the King by his Letters Patents may make a denizen but cannot naturalize him to all purposes, as an Act of Parliament may do; neither can Letters Patents make any inheritable in this case that by the common Law cannot inherit. And herewith agreeth 36 H. 8. tit. Denizen. Br. 9.

[7]

Homage is two fold.

[b]

Homage in our Books is twofold, that is to say, Homagium Ligeum, and that is as much as ligeance, of which Bracton speaketh lib. 2. cap. 35. fol. 79. Soli Regi debetur sine dominio, seu servitio: and there is Homagium feudale, which hath his original by tenure. In Fit. Nat. Brev. 269. there is a writ for respiting of this latter homage (which is due ratione feodi sive tenuræ:) Sciatis quod respectuamus homagium nobis de terris & tenementis quæ tenentur de nobis in capite debit. But Homagium ligeum, i. Ligeantia, is inherent and inseparable, and cannot be respited.

3. Now are we come unto (and almost past) the consideration of this circumstance, where natural ligeance should be due: For by that which hath been said it appeareth, that ligeance, and faith and truth which are her members and parts, are qualities of the mind and soul of man, and cannot be circumscribed within the predicament of ubi, for that were to confound predicaments, and to go about to drive the predicament of Quality into the predicament of ubi. Non respondetur ad hanc quæstionem, ubi est? Verus & fidelis subditus est: sed ad hanc quæstionem, qualis est? recte & apte respondetur, verus & fidelis ligeus, &c. ut, But yet for the greater illustration of the matter, this point was handled by it self, and that ligeance of the subject was of as great an extent and latitude, as the royal power and protection of the King, and e converso. It appeareth by the Statute of 11 H. 7. cap. 1. and 2 E. 6. cap. 2. that the subjects of England are bound by their ligeance to go with the King, &c. in his wars, as well within the Realm, &c. as without. And therefore we daily see, that when either Ireland or any other of his Majesties dominions be infested with invasion or insurrection, the King of England sendeth his subjects out of England, and his subjects out of Scotland also into Ireland, for the withstanding or suppressing of the same, to the end his rebels may feel the swords of either nation. And so may his subjects of Gernsey, Jersey, Isle of man, &c. be commanded to make their swords good against either rebel or enemy, as occasion shall be offered; whereas if natural ligeance of the subjects of England should be local, that is, confined within the realm of England or Scotland, &c. then were not they bound to go out of the continent of the realm of England or Scotland, &c. And the opinion of Thirninge in 7. H. 4. tit. Protect. 100. is thus to be understood, that an English subject is not compellable to go out of the realm without wages, according to the Statutes of 1 E. 3. c. 7. 18 E. 3. c. 8. 18 H. 6. c, 19 &c. 7 H. 7. c. 1. 3 H. 8. c. 5. &c. In anno 25 E. 1. Bigot Earl of Norfolff and Suffolk, and Earl Marshal of England, and Bohun Earl of Hereford and high Constable of England, did exhibit a petition to the King in French, (which I have seen antiently recorded) on the behalf of the Commons of England, concerning how and in what sort they were to imployed in his Majesties wars out of the Realm of England: and the Record saith, that, post multas & varias altercationes, it was resolved, they ought to go but in such manner and form as after was declared by the said Statutes, which seem to be but declarative of the common Law. And this doth plentifully and manifestly appear in our books, being truly and rightly understood. In 3 H. 6. tit. Protection 2. one had the benefit of a protection, for that he was sent into the Kings wars in comitiva of the protector: and it appeareth by the Record, and by the Chronicles also, that this imployment was into France; the greatest part thereof then being under the Kings actual obedience, so as the subjects of England were imployed into France for the defence and safety thereof: In which case it was observed, that seeing the protector, who was Prorex, went, the same was adjudged a voyage royal, 8 H. 6. fol. 16. the Lord Talbot went with a company of Englishmen into France, then also being for the greatest part under the actual obedience of the King, who had the benefit of their protections allowed unto them. And here were observed the words of the writ in the Register, fol. 88. where it appeareth that men were imployed in the Kings wars out of the realm per præceptum nostrum, and the usual words of the writ of protection be in obsequio nostro. 32 H. 6. fol. 4. it appeareth, that Englishmen were pressed into Guyan, 44 E. 3. 12. into Gascoyne with the Duke of Lancaster, 17 H. 6. tit.

Protection.

Protection, into Gaſcoyn with the Earl of Huntington, ſteward of Guyan, 11 H. 4. 7. into Ireland, and out of this realm with the Duke of Glouceſter and the Lord Knolles: Vide 19 H. 6. 35. And it appeareth in 19 Ed. 2. tit. Avowrie 224. 26 Aſſ. 66. 7 H. 1. 19. &c. that there was forinſecum ſervitium, forreign ſervice, which Bracton, fol. 36. calleth regale ſervitium: and in Fitz. N. B. 28. that the King may ſend men to ſerve him in his wars beyond the ſea. But thus much (if it be not in ſo plain a caſe too much) ſhall ſuffice for this point for the Kings power, to command the ſervice of his Subjects in his wars out of the Realm, Whereupon it was concluded, That the ligeance of a natural born ſubject was not local, and confined only to England. Now let us ſee what the Law ſaith in time of peace, concerning the Kings protection and power of command, as well without the realm, as within, that his Subjects in all places may be protected from violence, and that juſtice may equally be adminiſtred to all his Subjects.

In the Regiſter fol. 25. b. Rex univerſis et ſingulis admirallis, caſtellanis, cuſtodibus caſtrorum, villarum, [b] *et aliorum fortaliciorum præpoſitis, vicecom. majoribus, cuſtumariis, cuſtodibus portuum, et aliorum locorum maritimorum ballivis, miniſtris, et aliis fidelibus ſuis, tam in tranſmarinis quam in ciſmarinis partibus, ad quos, &c. ſalutem. In the Regiſter fo. 26. *Rex univerſis et ſingulis admirallis, caſtellanis, cuſtodibus caſtrorum, villarum, et aliorum fortaliciorum præpoſitis, vicecom. majoribus, cuſtumariis, cuſtodibus portuum, et aliorum locorum maritimorum ballivis, miniſtris, et aliis fidelibus ſuis, tam in tranſmarinis quam in ciſmarinis partibus ad quos, &c. ſalutem. And certainly this was, when Lyons in France (bordering upon Burgundy, an antient friend to England was under the actual obedience of King Henry 6. For the King commanded fidelibus ſuis, his faithful Magiſtrates there, that if any injury were there done, it ſhould be by them reformed and redreſſed, and that they ſhould protect the party in his peſon and goods in peace. Et ſi quid eis forisfact', injuriatum vel contra eos indebite attentatum fuerit, id eis ſine dilatione corrigi, et ad ſtatum debitum reduci faciatis, prout ad vos et quemlibet veſtrum noveritis pertinere: penocellas ſuper domibus ſuis in ſignum præſentis ſalvis gardiæ noſtræ (prout moris erit facientes. In cujus, &c. per unum annum duratur.* T. &c. By all which it [b] is manifeſt, that the protection and government of the King is general over all his dominions and kingdoms, as well in time of peace by juſtice, as in time of war by the ſword, and that all be at his command, and under his obedience. Now ſeeing power and protection draweth ligeance, it followeth, that ſeeing the Kings power, command and protection, extendeth out of England, that ligeance cannot be local, or confined within the bounds thereof. He that is abjured the Realm, Qui abjurat regnum amittit regnum, ſed non regem, amittit patriam, ſed non patrem patriæ: for notwithſtanding the abjuration, he oweth

the King his ligeance, and he remaineth within the Kings Protection; for the King may pardon and reſtore him to his countrey again. So ſeeing that ligeance is a quality of the mind, and not confined within any place; it followeth, that the plea that doth confine the ligeance of the Plaintif to the kingdom of Scotland, Infra ligeantiam regis regni ſui Scotiæ, et extra ligeantiam regis regni ſui Angliæ, wherby the Defendants do make one local ligeance for the natural ſubjects of England, and another local ligeance for the natural ſubjects of Scotland, is utterly unſufficient, and againſt the nature and quality of natural ligeance, as often it hath been ſaid. And Coke, chief Juſtice of the Court of Common pleas, cited a ruled caſe out of Hinghams Reports, Tempore E.1. which in his argument he ſhewed in Court written in parchment, in an antient hand of that time. Conſtance de N. brought a writ of Ayel againſt Roger de Cobledike, and others, named in the writ, and counted that from the ſeiſin of Roger her grandfather it deſcended to Gilbert his ſon, and from Gilbert to Conſtance, as daughter and heir. Sutton dit, Sir, el ne doit eſte reſponde, pur ceo que el eſt Froncois & nient de la ligeance ne a la foy Dengliterre, & demand. judgement ſi el doit action aver: that is, ſhe is not to be anſwered, for that ſhe is a French woman, and not of the ligeance nor of the faith of England, and demand Judgment, if ſhe this action ought to have. Bereford (then chief Juſtice of the Court of Common pleas) by the rule of the Court diſalloweth the plea, for that it was too ſhort, in that it referred ligeance and faith to England, and not to the King: and thereupon Sutton ſaith as followeth; Sir, nous voilomus averre que el ne eſt my de la ligeance Dengliterre, ne a la foy le Roy, & demaund. judgement, & ſi vous agardes que el doit eſte reſponde, nous dirromus aſſets: that is, Sir, we will aver, that ſhe is not of the ligeance of England, nor of the faith of the King, and demand judgment, &c. Which latter words of the plea (nor of the faith of the King) referred faith to the King indefinitly and generally, and reſtrained not the ſame to England and thereupon the plea was allowed for good, according to the rule of the Court: for the book ſaith, that afterward the defendant deſired leave to depart from her writ. The rule of that caſe of Cobledike did (as Coke chief Juſtice ſaid) over-rule this caſe of Calvin, in the very point now in queſtion; for that the plea in this caſe doth not referre faith or ligeance to the King indefinitly and generally, but limiteth and reſtraineth faith and ligeance to the kingdom: Extra ligeantiam regis regni ſui Angliæ, out of the ligeance of the King of his kingdom of England: which afterwards the Lord Chancellor and the chief Juſtice of the kings Bench, having copies of the ſaid antient Report, affirmed in their arguments. So as this point was thus concluded, Quod ligeantia naturalis nullis clauſtris coercetur, nullis metis refrænatur, nullis finibus premitur.

4. & 5. By that which hath been ſaid it appeareth, that this ligeance is due only to the King; ſo as therein the queſtion is not now, cui, ſed quomodo debetur. It is true, that the King hath two capacities in him: one a natural body, being deſcended of the blood royal of the Realm; and this body is of the creation of Almighty God, and is ſubject to to death, infirmity, and ſuch like; the other is a politique body or capacity, ſo called, becauſe it is framed by the policy of man (and in 21 E.4.39.b. is called a myſtical body;) and in this capacity the King is eſteemed to be immortal, inviſible, not ſubject to death infirmity, infancy, nonage, &c. Vide Pl.Com. in le caſe de Seignior Barkley 238. et in le caſe del Dutchie 213. Vide 6 E. 291. et 26 Aſſ. pl. 54. Now ſeeing the King hath but one perſon, and ſeveral capacities, and one politque capacitie for the Realm of England, and another for the Realm of Scotland, it is neceſſary to be conſidered, to which capacity ligeance is due. And it was reſolved, that it was due to the natural perſon of the King (which is ever accompanied with the poltique capacity, and the politique capacity as it were appropriated to the natural capacity) and it is not due to the politique capacity only, that is, to the crown or kingdom diſtinct from his natural capacity, and that for divers reaſons. Firſt, every ſubject (as it hath been affirmed by thoſe that argued againſt the Plaintiff) is preſumed by Law to be ſworn to the King, which is to his natural perſon, and likewiſe the King is ſworn to his ſubjects (as it appeareth in *Bracton lib.3. de actionibus, cap.9 fol.*107.) which oath he taketh in his natural perſon: for the politique capacity is inviſible and immortal; nay, the politique body hath no ſoul, for it is framed by the policy of man. 2. In all indictments of Treaſon, when any do intend or compaſs mortem et deſtructionem domini Regis (which muſt needs be underſtood of his natural body, for his politique body is immortal, and not ſubject to death) the indictment concludeth, contra ligeantiæ ſuæ debitum; ergo, the ligeance is due to the natural body. Vid. Fit. Juſtice of peace 53. *et Plo.Com.*384. in the Earle of Leiceſters caſe. 3. It is true, that the King in genere dieth not, but, no queſtion, in individuo he dieth: as for example, *H.*8. E.6. &c. and Queen Elizabeth died, otherwiſe you ſhould have many Kings at once. In 2 & 3 Ph.& Mar. Dyer 128. one Conſtable diſperſed divers bills in the ſtreets in the night, in which was written, that K. E.6. was alive and in France, &c. and in Colman ſtreet in London he pointed to a young man, and ſaid that he was K. Ed. the ſixt. And this being ſpoken de individuo (and accompanied with other circumſtances) was reſolved to be high Treaſon; for the which Conſtable was attained and executed. 4. A Bodie politque (being inviſible) can as a body politique neither make or take homage: Vide 33 H. 8. tit. Fealty, Brook. 5. In fide, in faith or ligeance nothing ought to be feigned, but ought to be ex fide non ficta. 6. The King holdeth the kingdom of England by birth right inherent, by deſcent from the blood royal, whereupon ſucceſſion doth attend; and therefore it is uſually ſaid, to the King, his heirs and ſucceſſors, wherein heirs is firſt named, and ſucceſſors attendant upon heirs. And yet in our antient books ſucceſſion and ſucceſſor are taken for hereditance and heirs. Bracton lib.2. de acquirendo rerum domino, cap.29. Et ſciendum eſt, quod hæreditas eſt ſucceſſio in univerſum jus quod defunctus anteceſſor habuit, ex cauſa quacunque acquiſitionis vel ſucceſſionis, et alibi affinitatis jure nulla ſucceſſio permittitur. But the title is by deſcent, by Queen Elizabeths death the crown and kingdom of England deſcended to his Majeſty, and he was fully and abſolutely thereby King, without any eſſential ceremony or act to be done ex poſt facto: for coronation is but a royal ornament and ſolemnization of the royal deſcent, but no part of the title. In the firſt year of his Majeſties reign, before his Majeſties coronation, Watſon and Clerke, Seminary prieſts, and others, were of opinion, that his Majeſty was no compleate and abſolute

To whom and how ligeance is due.

King

King before his coronation, but that coronation did add a confirmation and perfection to the deſcent; and therefore (obſerve their damnable damned conſequent) that they by ſtrength and power might [11] before his coronation take him and his royal iſſue into their poſſeſſion, keep him priſoner in the Tower, remove ſuch Counſellors and great officers as pleaſed them, and conſtitute others in their places, &c. And that theſe and others of like nature could not be Treaſon againſt his Majeſty, before he were a crowned King. But it was clearly reſolved by all the Judges of England, that preſently by the deſcent his Majeſty was completely and abſolutely King, without any eſſential ceremony or act to be done ex poſt facto, and that coronation was but an royal ornament, and outward ſolemnization of the deſcent. And this appeareth evidently by infinite Preſidents and book caſes, as (taking one example in a caſe ſo clear for all) King Henry the ſixt was not crowned until the eighth year of his reign, and yet divers men before his coronation were attainted of Treaſon, of Felony, &c. and he was as abſolute and compleate a King, both for matters of Judicature, as for grants, &c. before his coronation, as he was after, as it appeareth in the Reports of the 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7 years of the ſame King. And the like might be produced for many other Kings of this Realm, which for brevity in a caſe ſo clear I omit. By which it manifeſtly appeareth, that by the Laws of England there can be no interregnum within the ſame. If the King be ſeiſed of land by a diſeaſible title, and dieth ſeiſed, this deſcent ſhall tolle the entry of him that right hath, as it appeareth by 9 E. 4. 51. But if the next King hath it by ſucceſſion, that ſhould take away no entry, as it appeareth by Littleton fol. 97. If a diſſeiſor of an infant convey the land to the King, who dieth ſeiſed, this deſcent taketh away the entry of the Infant, as it is ſaid in 34 H. 6. fol. 34. 45. lib. Aſſ. pl. 6. Plow. Com. 234. where the caſe was, that King H. 3. gave a Mannor to his brother the Earl of Cornwal in tail (at what time the ſame was a fee ſimple conditional) King H. 3. dyed, the Earl before the Statute of Donis conditional' (having no iſſue) by deed exchanged the Mannor with warranty for other lands in fee, and dyed without iſſue, and the warranty and aſſets deſcended upon his nephew King Edward the firſt; and it was adjudged, that this warranty and aſſets, which deſcended upon the natural perſon of the King, barred him of the poſſibility of reverter. In the reign of Edw. 2. the Spencers, the father and the ſon, to cover the Treaſon hatched in their hearts, invented this damnable and damned opinion, That homage and oath of ligeance was more by reaſon of the Kings Crown (that is, of his politique capacity) than by reaſon of [b] the perſon of the King, upon which opinion they inferred execrable and deteſtable conſequents: 1. If the King do not demean himſelf by reaſon in the right of his Crown, his lieges be bound by oath to remove the King, 2. Seeing that the King could not be reformed by ſute of Law, that ought to be done per effee; 3. That his lieges be bound to govern in aid of him, and in default of him. All which were condemned by two Parliaments, one in the reign of Edw. 2. called Exilium Hugonis le Spencer, and the other in Anno 1 Ed. 3. cap. 1. Bracton lib. 2. de acquirendo rerum dominio, cap. 24. fol. 55. ſaith thus, Eſt enim corona Regis facere juſticiam & judicium, & tenere pacem, & ſine quibus corona conſiſtere non poteſt nec tenere; hujuſmodi autem jura ſive juriſdictiones ad perſonas vel tenementa transferri non poterunt, nec a privata perſona poſſideri, nec uſus nec executio juris, niſi hoc datum fuit ei deſuper, ſicut juriſdictio delegata delegari non poterit quin ordinaria remaneat cum ipſo Rege. Et lib. 3. de actionibus, ca. 9. fol. 107. Seperare autem debet Rex, cum ſit Dei vicarius in terra, jus ab injuria, æquum ab iniquo, ut omnes ſibi ſubjecti honeſte vivant, & quod nullus alium lædat, & quod unicuique quod ſuum fuerit recta contributione reddatur. In reſpect whereof one ſaith, That Corona eſt quaſi cor ornans, cujus onementa ſunt miſericordia et juſticia. And therefore a Kings Crown is an Hieroglyphick of the Laws, where Juſtice, &c. is adminiſtred; ſo ſaith P. Val. lib. 41. pag. 400. Coronam dicimus legis judicium eſſe, propterea quod certis eſt vinculis complicata, quibus vita noſtra veluti religata coercetur. Therefore if you take that which is ſignified by the Crown, that is, to do Juſtice and Judgment, to maintain the Peace of the Land, &c. to ſeperate right from wrong, and the good from the ill; that is to be underſtood of that capacity of the King, that in rei veritate hath capacity, and is adorned and indued with indowments as well of the Soul as of the body, and thereby able to do Juſtice and Judgment according to right and equity, and to maintain the peace, &c. and to find out and diſcern the truth, and not of the inviſible and immortal capacity that hath no ſuch indowments; for of it ſelf it hath neither ſoul nor body. And where divers Books and acts of Parliament ſpeak of the ligeance of England, as 31 Ed. 3. tit. Coſinage 5. 42 Edw. 32. 13 E. 3. tit. Br. 677. 25 Edw. 3. Stat. de natis ultra mare. All theſe and other ſpeaking briefly in a vulgar manner (for loquendum ut vulgus) and not pleading (for ſentiendum ut docti) are to be underſtood of the Ligeance due by the people of England to the King; for no man will affirm, that England itſelf, taking it for the Continent thereof, doth owe any ligeance or faith, or that any faith or [12] ligeance ſhould be due to it: but it manifeſtly appeareth, that the ligeance or faith of the Subject is proprium quarto modo to the King, omni, ſoli, et ſemper. And oftentimes in the Reports of our Book caſes, and in acts of Parliament alſo, the Crown or kingdome is taken for the King himſelf, as in Fitzh. Natur. Brev. fol. 5. Tenure in capite is a Tenure of the Crown, and is a Seigniorie in groſſe, that is of the perſon of the King: and ſo is 30 Hen. 8. Dyer fol. 44, 45. a Tenure in chief, as of the Crown, is meerly a Tenure of the perſon of the King, and therewith agreeth 28 Hen. 8. tit. Tenure, Br. 65. The Statute of 4 Hen. 5. cap. ultimo gave Priors aliens, which were conventual to the King and his heirs, by which gift ſaith 34 H. 6. 34. the ſame were annexed to the Crown. And in the ſaid Act of 25 Edw. 3. whereas it is ſaid in the beginning, within the ligeance of England, it is twice afterward ſaid in the ſame Act within the Ligeance of the King, and yet all one ligeance due to the King. So in 42 Edw. 3. fol. 2. where it is firſt ſaid, the Ligeance of England, it is afterwards in the ſame caſe called, the Ligeance of the King; wherein though they uſed ſeveral manner and phraſes of ſpeech, yet they intended one and the ſame Ligeance. So in our uſual Commiſſion of Aſſiſe, of Gaol delivery, of Oyer and Terminer, of the Peace, &c. power is given to execute Juſtice, Secundum legem & conſuetudinem regni noſtri Angliæ; and yet Littleton lib. 2. in his Chapter of Villenage fol. 43. in diſabling of a man that is attainted in a Premunire saith, That the same is the Kings Law; and so doth the Register in the writ of ad jura regia style the same.

The reasons wherefore by the policy of the Law the King is a body politique, are three, viz. 1. causa majestatis, 2. causa necessitatis, and 3. causa utilitatis. First, causa majestatis, That the King cannot give or take but by the matter of Record for the dignity of his person. Secondly, causa necessitatis, as to avoid the attainder of him that hath right to the Crown, as it appeareth in 1 *H.*7.4. lest in the interim there should be interregnum, which the Law will not suffer. Also by force of this politique capacity, though the King be within age, yet may he make Leases and other Grants, and the same shall bind him; otherwise his Revenue should decay, and the King should not be able to reward service, &c. Lastly, causa utilitatis, as when lands and possessions descend from his collateral Ancestors, being Subjects, as from the Earl of March, &c. to the King, now is the King seised of the same in jure coronæ, in his politique capacity; for which cause the same shall go with the Crown; and therefore, albeit Queen Eliz. was of the half blood to Queen Mary, yet she in her body politique enjoyed all those fee simple lands, as by the Law she ought, and no collateral cosen of the whole blood to Queen Mary ought to have the same. And these are the causes wherefore by the policy of the Law the King is made a body politique: So as for these special purposes the Law makes him a body politique, immortal, and invisible, whereunto our ligeance cannot appertain. But to conclude this point; our ligeance is due to our natural liege Soveraign, descended of the blood Royal of the Kings of this Realm. And thus much of the first general part de Ligeantia.

The reasons wherefore the King by judgment of Law hath a politique capacity.

The second general part De Legibus.

Now followeth the second part, de Legibus, wherein these parts were considered: First, That the ligeance or faith of the Subject is due unto the King by the Law of Nature: Secondly, That the Law of Nature is part of the Law of England: Thirdly, That the Law of Nature was before any Judicial or Municipal Law: Fourthly, That the Law of Nature is immutable.

The Law of Nature.

The Law of Nature is that which God at the time of creation of the nature of man infused into his heart, for his preservation and direction; and this is Lex æterna, the Moral Law, called also the Law of Nature. And by this Law, written with the finger of God in the heart of Man, were the people of God a long time governed, before that Law was written by Moses, who was the first Reporter or Writer of the Law in the world. The Apostle in the second Chapter to the Romans saith, Cum enim gentes quæ legem non habent naturaliter ea quæ legis sunt faciunt. And this is within that command of the Moral Law, Honora patrem, which doubtless doth extend to him that is pater patriæ. And the Apostle saith, Omnis anima potestatibus sublimioribus subdita sit. And these be the words of the great Divine, Hoc Deus in sacris Scripturis jubet, hoc lex Naturæ dictat, ut quilibet subditus obedist superiori. And Aristotle, Natures Secretary *Lib.*5. Æthic. saith, That jus naturale est, quod apud omnes homines eandem habet potentiam. And herewith doth agree Bracton lib. 1. *cap.*5. and Fortescue cap. 8, 12, 13. & 16. *Doctor & Student cap.*2, & 4. And the reason hereof is, for that God and Nature is one to all, and therefore the Law of God and Nature is one to all. By this Law of Nature is the Faith, Ligeance, and Obedience of the Subject due to his Soveraign or Superiour. And Aristotle 1 Politicorum proveth, that to Command and to Obey is of Nature, and that Magistracy is of Nature: For whatsoever is necessary and profitable for the preservation of the society of man, is due by the Law of Nature: But Magistracy and Government are necessary and profitable for the preservation of the society of man; therefore Magistracy and Government are of Nature. And herewith accordeth *Tully lib.*3. de Legibus, Sine imperio nec domus ulla, nec civitas, nec gens, nec hominum universum genus stare, nec ipse denique mundus potest. This Law of Nature, which indeed is the eternal Law of the Creator, infused into the heart of the Creature at the time of his creation, was two thousand years before any Laws written, and before any Judicial or Municipal Laws. And certain it is, That before Judicial or Municipal Laws were made, Kings did decide causes according to natural equity, and were not tied to any rule or formality of Law, but did dare jura. And this appeareth by Fortescue, cap. 12, & 13. and by Virgil that Phylosophical Poet, 7 Ænead.

Hoc Priami gestamen erat, cum jura vocatis
More daret populis.

And 5 Ænead.

——— Gaudet regno Trojanus Acestes,
Indicitque forum & patribus dat jura vocatis.

And *Pomponius lib.*2. cap. de origine juris, affirmeth, that in Tarquinius Superbus time there was no Civil Law written, and that Papirius reduced certain observations into writing, which was called Jus civile Papirianum. Now the reason wherefore Laws were made and published, appeareth in *Fortescue cap.*13. and in *Tully lib.*2. officiorum: At cum jus æquabile ab uno viro homines non consequerentur, inventæ sunt leges. Now it appeareth by demonstrative reason, that Ligeance, Faith, and Obedience of the Subject to the Soveraign, was before any Municipal or Judicial Laws: 1. For that Government and Subjection were long before any Municipal or Judicial Laws: 2. For that it had been in vain to have prescribed Laws to any, but to such as ought Obedience, Faith, and Ligeance before, in respect whereof they were bound to obey and observe them: Frustra enim feruntur leges nisi subditis & obedientibus. Seeing then that Faith, Obedience, and Ligeance, are due by the Law of Nature, it followeth that the same cannot be changed or taken away; for albeit Judicial and Municipal Laws have inflicted and imposed in several places, or at several times, divers and several punishments and penalties for breach or not observance of the Law of Nature (for that Law only consisted in commanding or prohibiting, without any certain punishment or penalty) yet the very Law of Nature it self, never was nor could be altered or changed. And therefore it is certainly true, that Jura naturalia sunt immutabilia. And herewith agreeth *Bracton lib.*1. *cap.*5. and Doctor and Student cap. 5. & 6. And this appeareth plainly and plentifully in our Books.

If

If a man have a Ward by reason of a Seigniory, and is Outlawed, he forfeiteth the Wardship to the King: But if a man hath the Wardship of his own Son or Daughter, which is heir apparent, and is Outlawed, he doth not forfeit this Wardship; for nature hath annexed it to the person of the Father, as appeareth in 33 H. 6. 55. Et bonus rex nihil a bono patre differt, & patria dicitur a patre, quia habet communem patrem, qui est pater patriæ. In the same manner, maris & fœminæ conjunctio est de jure naturæ, as Bracton in the same book and chapter, and St. Germin in his book of the Doctor and Student, cap. 5. do hold. Now if he that is attainted of Treason or Felony, be slain by one that hath no authority, or executed by him that hath authority, but pursueth not his warrant, in this case his eldest son can have no appeal, for he must bring his appeal as heir, which being ex provisione hominis, he loseth it by the attainder of his Father: but his Wife (if any he have) shall have an appeal, because she is to have her appeal as Wife, which she remaineth notwithstanding the attainder, because maris & fœminæ conjunctio is de jure naturæ, and therefore (it being to be intended of true and right Matrimony) is indissoluble: and this is proved by the book in 33 H. 6. 57. So if there be Mother and Daughter, and the Daughter is attainted of felony, now cannot she be heir to her Mother for the cause aforesaid; yet after her attainder if she kill her Mother, this is Paricide and Petit-treason; for she remaineth her daughter, for this is of Nature, and herewith agreeth 21 E. 3. 17. b. If a man be attainted of Felony or Treason, he hath lost the Kings legal protection, for he is thereby utterly disabled to sue any action real or personal (which is a greater disability than an alien in league hath) and yet such a person so attainted hath not lost that protection which by the Law of Nature is given to the King; for that is indelebilis & immutabilis, and therefore the King may protect and pardon him, and if any man kill him [14] without warrant, he shall be punished by the Law as a Man-slayer; and thereunto accordeth 4 Ed. 4. and 35 H. 6. 57. 2 Ass. pl. 3. By the Statute of 25 Ed. 3. cap. 22. a man attainted in a Præmunire, is by expres words out of the Kings protection generally; and yet this extendeth only to legal protection, as it appeareth by Littleton, fol. 43. for the Parliament could not take away that protection which the Law of Nature giveth unto him; and therefore, notwithstanding that Statute, the King may protect and pardon him. And though by that Statute it was further enacted, That it should be done with him as with an Enemy, by which words any man might have slain such a person (as it is holden in 24 H. 8. tit. Coron. Br. 197.) until the statute made anno 5 Eliz. cap. 1. yet the King might protect and pardon him. A man Outlawed is out of the benefit of the Municipal Law; for so saith Fitzh. Nat. Brev. 161. Utlagatus est quasi extra legem positus: and Bracton lib. 3. cap. 11. saith, that caput gerit lupinum; yet is he not out either of his natural ligeance, or of the Kings natural protection; for neither of them are tyed to Municipal Laws, but is due by the Law of Nature, which (as hath been said) was long before any Judicial or Municipal Laws. And therefore if a man were Outlawed for Felony, yet was he within the Kings natural protection, for no man but the Sheriff could execute him, as it is adjudged in 2 lib. Ass. pl. 3. Every Subject is by his natural Ligeance bound to obey and serve his Soveraign, &c. It is enacted by the Parliament of 23 H. 6. that no man should serve the King as Sheriff of any County, above one year, and that, notwithstanding any clause of non obstante to the contrary, that is to say, notwithstanding that the King should expresly dispence with the said Statute: howbeit it is agreed in 2 H. 7. that against the expres purview of that act, the King may by a special Non obstante dispence with that act, for that the act could not bar the King of the service of his Subject, which the Law of Nature did give unto him. By these and many other cases that might be cited out of our books, it appeareth, how plentiful the authorities of our Laws be in this matter. Wherefore to conclude this point (and to exclude all that hath been or could be objected against it) if the obedience and ligeance of the Subject to his Soveraign, be due by the Law of Nature, if [b] that Law be parcel of the Laws as well of England, as of all other nations, and is immutable, and that Postnati and we of England are united by birthright in obedience and ligeance (which is the true cause of natural subjection) by the Law of Nature; It followeth, that Calvin the Plaintiff being born under one ligeance to one King, cannot be an alien born; And there is great reason, that the Law of Nature should direct this case, wherein five natural operations are remarkable; First, the King hath the Crown of England by birthright, being naturally procreated of the bloud royal of this Realm: Secondly, Calvin the Plaintiff naturalized by procreation and birthright, since the descent of the Crown of England, Thirdly, ligeance and obedience of the subject to the Soveraign, due by the Law of Nature; Fourthly, protection and government due by the Law of Nature; Fifthly, this case, in the opinion of divers, was more doubtfull in the beginning, but the further it proceeded, the cleerer and stronger it grew; and therefore the doubt grew from some violent passion, and not from any reason grounded upon the Law of Nature, quia quanto magis violentus motus (qui fit contra naturam) appropinquat ad suum finem, tanto debiliores & tardiores sunt ejus motus; sed naturalis motus, quanto magis appropinquat ad suum finem, tanto fortiores & velociores sunt ejus motus. Hereby it appeareth how weak the objection grounded upon the rule of Quando duo jura concurrunt in una persona, &c. is: For that rule holdeth not in personal things, that is, when two persons are necessarily and inevitably required by Law (as in the case of an alien born there is; and therefore no man will say, that now the King of England can make war or league with the King of Scotland, & sic de cæteris: And so in case of an alien born, you must of necessity have two several ligeances to two several persons. And to conclude this point concerning Laws, Non adversatur diversitas regnorum sed regnantium, non patriarum sed patrum patriarum, non coronarum sed coronatorum, non legum municipalium sed regum majestatum. And therefore thus were directly and clearly answered as well the objections drawn from the severalty of the Kingdoms, seeing there is but one head of both, and the Postnati and us joined in ligeance to that one head, which is copula & tanquam oculus of this case; as also the distinction of the Laws, seeing that ligeance of the Subjects of both Kingdoms, is due to their Soveraign by one Law, and that is the Law of Nature.

For

The third general part concerning both kingdoms.

For the third, It is first to be understood, that as the Law hath wrought four unions, so the law doth still make four seperations. The first union is of both kingdoms under one natural liege Soveraign King, and so acknowledged by the Act of Parliament of recognition. The second is an union of ligeance and obedience of the Subjects of both kingdoms, due by the law of nature to their Soveraign: [15] And this union doth suffice to rule and over-rule the case in question; and this in substance is but a uniting of the hearts of the Subjects of both kingdoms one to another, under one head and soveraign. The third union is an union of protection of both kingdoms, equally belonging to the subjects of either of them: And therefore the two first arguments or objections drawn from two supposed several ligeances, were fallacious, for they did disjungere conjungenda. The fourth union and conjunction is, of the three Lions of England, and that one of Scotland, united and quartered in one escucheon.

Concerning the seperations yet remaining: First, England and Scotland remain several and distinct kingdoms: 2. They are governed by several judicial or municipal Laws; 3. They have several distinct and separate Parliaments; 4. Each kingdom hath several Nobilities; For albeit a Postnatus in Scotland, or any of his posterity, be the heir of a Nobleman of Scotland, and by his birth legitimated in England, yet he is none of the Peers or Nobility of England: for his natural ligeance and obedience, due by the Law of nature, maketh him a Subject, and no alien within England: but that subjection maketh him not noble within England, for that Nobility had his original by the Kings creation, and not of nature. And this is manifested by expres authorities, grounded upon excellent reasons in our books. If a Baron, Vicount, Earl, Marques, or Duke of England, bring any action real or personal, and the defendant pleadeth in abatement of the writ, that he is no Baron, Vicount, Earl, &c. and thereupon the demandant or Plaintiff taketh issue; this issue shall not be tryed by Jury, but by the record of Parliament, whether he or his ancestor, whose heir he is, were called to serve there as a Peer, and one of the Nobility of the Realm. And so are our books adjudged in 22 Ass. 24. 48 Edw. 3. 30. 35 H. 6. 40. 20 Eliz. Dyer 360. Vide in the 6. part of my Reports, in the Countes of Rutlands Case, So as the man, that is not de jure a Peer, or one of the Nobility, to serve in the upper house of the Parliment of England, is not in the legal proceedings of Law accounted Noble within England. And therefore if a Countee of France or Spain, or any other foreign kingdom, should come into England, he should not here sue, or be sued, by the name of Countee, &c. for that he is none of the Nobles that are members of the [b] upper house of the Parliament of England: and herewith agreeth the Book cases of 20 Edw. 4. 6. and 11 Edw. 3. tit. Bre. 473. Like Law it is, and for the same reason, of an Earl or Baron of Ireland, he is not any Peer, or of the Nobility of this Realm: and herewith agreeth the Book in 8 R. 2. tit. Proces pl. ultim. where in an action of Debt proces of Outlawry was awarded against the Earl of Ormond in Ireland; which ought not to have been, if he had been noble here. Vide Dyer 20 Eliz. 360.

But yet there is a diversity in our books worthy of observation, for the highest and lowest dignities are universal; for if a King of a forreign nation come into England, by the leave of the King of this Realm (as it ought to be) in this case he shall sue and be sued by the name of a king: and herewith agreeth 11 E. 3. tit. Br. 473. where the case was, that Alice, which was the wife of R. de O. brought a writ of Dower against John Earl of Richmond, and the writ was, Præcip. Johann. Comiti Richmondiæ cujus terræ et hæredis of William the son of R. de O. the tenant pleaded, That he is Duke of Britaine, not named Duke, judgment of the writ? But it is ruled, that the writ was good, for that the Dukedom of Brittain was not within the Realm of England. But there it is said, that if a man bring a writ against Edward Baliol, and name him not King of Scotland, the writ shall abate for the cause afore said. And hereof there is a notable president in Fleta lib. 2. cap. 14. where treating of the jurisdiction of the Kings Court of Marshalsey it is said, Et hæc omnia ex officio suo licite facere poterit, (sc. Seneschallus aulæ hospitii Regis) non obstante alicujus libertate, etiam in alieno regno dum tamen reus in hospitio Regis poterit inveniri, secundum quod contigit Paris. anno 14 Ed. 1. de Engelramo de Nogent capto in hospitio Regis Angliæ (ipso Rege tunc apud Parisiam existente) cum discis argenti furatis recenter super focis, Rege Franciæ tunc præsente, et unde licet curia Regis Franciæ de prædicto latrone per castellanum Paris. petita fuerit habitis hic et inde tractatibus, in consilio Regis Franciæ tandem consideratum fuit, quod Rex Angliæ illa regia prærogativa et hospitii sui privilegio uteretur et gauderet, qui, coram Roberto Fitz-John milite tunc hospitii Regis Angliæ Seneschallo de latrocinio convictus, per considerationem ejus Curiæ fuit suspensus in patibulo Sancti Germani de Pratis. Which proveth, that though the King be in a forreign kingdom, yet he is judged in Law a King there. The other part of the said diversity, is proved by the book case in 20 Ed. 4. fol. 6. where, in a writ of debt brought by Sir John Duglas Knight, against Elizab. Molford, the defendant demanded judgment of the writ, for that the Plaintiff was an Earl [16] of Scotland, but not of England; and that our Soveraign Lord the King had granted unto him safe conduct, not named by his name of dignity, judgment of the writ, &c. And there Justice Littleton giveth the rule: the Plaintiff (saith he) is an Earl in Scotland, but not in England; and if our Soveraign Lord the King grant to a Duke of France a safe conduct to merchandise, and enter into his Realm, if the Duke commeth and bringeth merchandise into this land, and is to sue an action here, he ought not to name himself Duke, for he is not a Duke in this land, but only in France. And these be the very words of that book case: out of which I collect three things. First, that the Plaintiff was named by the name of a Knight, whersoever he received that degree of dignity, Vide 7 H. 6. 14. accord. 2. That an Earl of another kingdom or nation is no Earl (to be so named in legal proceedings) within this Realm: and herewith agreeth the book 11 Ed. 3. the Earl of Richmonds Case before recited. 3. That albeit the King by his Letters Patents of safe conduct do name him Duke, yet that appellation maketh him no Duke, to sue or to be sued by that name within England: So as the Law in these points apparent (in our books) being observed, and rightly understood it appeareth how causeless their fear was, that the adjudging of the Plaintiff to be no alien should make a confusion of the Nobilities of either kingdom.

Now

Now are we in order come to the fourth Noun (which is the 4. general part) Alienigena; wherein 6. things did fall into conſideration. 1. Who was Alienigena, an alien born born by the Laws of England. 2. How many kinds of aliens born there were. 3. What incidents belonged to an alien born. 4. The reaſon why an alien is not capable of inheritance or freehold within England. 5. Examples, reſolutions, and judgments, reported in our books in all ſucceſſion of ages, proving the Plaintiff to be no alien. 6. Demonſtrative concluſions upon the premiſſes, approving the ſame. The fourth general part De Alienigina.

1. An Alien is a ſubject that is born out of the ligeance of the King, and under the ligeance of another, and can have no real or perſonal action for or concerning land; but in every ſuch action the tenant or defendant may plead, that he was born in ſuch a Country which is not within the ligeance of the King, and demand if he ſhall be anſwered. And this is in effect the diſcription which Littleton himſelf maketh, lib. 2. cap. Villen. fol. 43. Alienigena eſt alienæ gentis ſeu alienæ ligeantiæ, qui etiam dicitur peregrinus, alienus, exoticus, extraneus, &c. Extraneus eſt ſubditus, qui extra terram, i. poteſtatem Regis natus eſt. And the uſual and right pleading of an alien born, doth lively and truly deſcribe and expreſs what he is. And therein two things are to be obſerved; 1. That the moſt uſual and beſt pleading in this caſe is, both excluſive and incluſive, viz. extra ligeantiam domini Regis, &c: et infra ligeantiam alterius Regis, as it appeareth in 9 Ed. 4. 7. Book of Entries fol. 244. &c. which cannot poſſibly be pleaded in this caſe, for two cauſes; Firſt, for that one King is Soveraign of both kingdoms; 2. One ligeance is due by both to one Soveraign, and in caſe of an alien, there muſt of neceſſity be ſeveral Kings and ſeveral liegeances. Secondly no pleading was ever extra regnum, or extra legem, which are circumſcribed to place, but extra ligeantiam, which (as it hath been ſaid) is not local or tied to any place. Who is an Alien. [b]

It appeareth by Bracton lib. 3. tract. 2. c. p. 15. fol. 134. that Canutus the Daniſh king, having ſetled himſelf in this kingdom in peace, kept notwithſtandſng (for the better continuance thereof) great Armies within this Realm. The Peers and Nobles of England diſtaſting this government, by armes and armies, (Odimus accipitrem quia ſemper vivit in armis) wiſely and politiquely perſwaded the king, that they would provide for the ſafety of him and his people, and yet his armies carrying with them many inconveniences, ſhould be withdrawn; And therefore offered, that they would conſent to a law, that whoſoever ſhould kill an alien, and be apprehended, and could not acquit himſelf, he ſhould be ſubject to juſtice: but if the manſlayer fled, and could not be taken, then the Town where the man was ſlain ſhould forfeit 66 marks unto the King: and if the Town were not able to pay it, then the Hundred ſhould forfeit and pay the ſame unto the Kings treaſure; whereunto the King aſſented. This Law was penned, Quicunque occiderit Francigenam, &c. not excluding other aliens, but putting Francigena a French man for example, that others muſt be like unto him, in owing ſeveral ligeance to a ſeveral Soverain, that is, to be extra ligeantiam Regis Angliæ, and infra ligeantiam alterius Regis. And it appeareth before out of Bracton and Fleta, that both of them uſe the ſame examples (in deſcribing of an alien) ad fidem Regis Franciæ. And it was holden, that except it could be proved, that the party ſlain was an Engliſh man, that he ſhould be taken for an alien; and this was called Engleſheire, Engleſheria, that is, a proof that the party ſlain was an Engliſh man. (Hereupon Canutus preſently withdrew his armies, and within a while after loſt his crown, and the ſame was reſtored to his right owner) The ſaid law of Engleſherie continued until 14 Ed. 3. cap. 4. and then ſame was by Act of Parliament ouſted and aboliſhed. So amongſt the laws of William the firſt, (publiſhed by Maſter Lambert fol. 125. Omnis Francigena (there put for example as before is ſaid, to expreſs what manner of perſon alienigena ſhould be) qui tempore Edwardi propinqui noſtri fuit particeps legum et conſuetudinum Anglorum (that is, made denizen) quod dicunt ad Scot & lot perſolvat ſecundum legem Anglorum. [17]

Every man is either Alienigena, an Alien born, or ſubditus, a Subject born. Every Alien is either a friend that is in league, &c. or an enemy that is in open war, &c. Every Alien enemy is either pro tempore, temporary for a time, or perpetuus, perpetual, or ſpecialiter permiſſus, permitted eſpecially. Every Subject is either natus, born, or datus, given or made: And of theſe briefly in their order. An Alien friend, as at this time, a German, a Frenchman, a Spaniard, &c. (all the Kings and Princes in Chriſtendom being now in league with our Soveraign, but a Scot being a Subject, cannot be ſaid to be a friend, nor Scotland to be ſolum amici) may by the Common Law have, acquire, and get within this Realm, by gift, trade, or other, lawfull means, any treaſure, or goods perſonal whatſoever, as well as an Engliſhman, and may maintain any action for the ſame: But Lands within this Realm, or houſes (but for their neceſſary habitation only) Alien friends cannot acquire, or get, nor maintain any action real or perſonal, for any land or houſe, unleſs the houſe be for their neceſſary habitation. For if they ſhould be diſabled to acquire and maintain theſe things, it were in effect to deny unto them trade and traffique, which is the life of every Iſland. But if this Alien become an enemy (as all Alien friends may) then he is utterly diſabled to maintain any action, or get any thing within this Realm. And this is to be underſtood of a temporary Alien, that being an enemy may be a friend, or being a freind may be an enemy. But a perpetual enemy (though there be no wars by fire and ſword between them) cannot maintain any action, or get any thing within this Realm. All infidels are in Law perpetui inimici, perpetual enemies (for the Law preſumes not that they will be converted, that being remota potentia, a remote poſſibility) for between them, as with the devils, whoſe ſubjects they be, and the Chriſtian, there is perpetual hoſtility, and can be no peace; for as the Apoſtle ſaith, 2 Cor. 6. 15. Quæ autem conventio Chriſti ad Belial, aut quæ pars fideli cum infideli, and the Law ſaith, Judæo Chriſtianum nullum ſerviat mancipium, nefas enim eſt quem Chriſtus redemit blaſphemum Chriſti in ſervitutis vinculis detinere. Regiſter 282. Infideles ſunt Chriſti et Chriſtianorum inimici. And herewith agreeth the Booke in 12 Hen. 8. fol. 4. where it is holden that a pagan cannot have or maintain any action at all. How many kind of Aliens there be. [c]

And

By what Laws kingdoms gotten by conqueſt, &c. ſhall be governed.

And upon this ground there is a diverſity between a conqueſt of a kingdom of a Chriſtian King, and the conqueſt of a kingdom of an Infidel; for if a King come to a Chriſtian kingdom by conqueſt, ſeeing that he hath vitæ et necis poteſtatem, he may at his pleaſure alter and change the Laws of that kingdom, but until he doth make an alteration of thoſe Laws, the antient Laws of that kingdom remain. But if a Chriſtian King ſhould conquer a kingdom of an Infidel, and bring them under his ſubjection, there ipſo facto the Laws of the Infidel are abrogated, for that they be not only againſt Chriſtianity, but againſt the Law of God and of Nature, contained in the Decalogue, and in that caſe, until certain Laws be eſtabliſhed amongſt them, the King by himſelf, and ſuch Judges as he ſhall appoint, ſhall judge them and their cauſes according to natural equity, in ſuch ſort as Kings in antient time did with their kingdoms, before any certain Municipal Laws were given, as before hath been ſaid. But if a King have a kingdom by title of deſcent, there, ſeeing by the Laws of that kingdom he doth inherit the kingdom, he cannot change thoſe Laws of himſelf, without conſent of Parliament. Alſo if a King have a Chriſtian kingdom by conqueſt, as King Henry the ſecond had Ireland, after King John had given unto them, being under his obedience and ſubjection, the Laws of England for the government of that Country, no ſucceeding King could alter the ſame without Parliament. And in this caſe whiles the Realm of England and that of Ireland were governed by ſeveral Laws, any that was born in Ireland was no Alien to the Realm of England. In which preſident of Ireland three things are to be obſerved: 1. That then there had been two diſcents, one from Henry the ſecond to King Richard the firſt, and from Richard to King John, before the alteration of the Laws. 2. That albeit Ireland was a diſtinct Dominion, yet the title thereof being by Conqueſt, the ſame by judgment of Law might by expreſs words be bound by act of the Parliament of England. 3. That albeit no reſervation were in King Johns Charter, yet by judgment of Law a Writ of Error did lie in the Kings Bench in England of an erroneous Judgment in the kings bench of Ireland. Furthermore, in the caſe of a conqueſt of a Chriſtian kingdom, as well thoſe that ſerved in Wars at the Conqueſt, as thoſe that remained at home for the ſafety and peace of their Country, and other the kings ſubjects, as well Antenati as Poſtnati, are capable of lands in the kingdom or country conquered, and may maintain any real action, and have the like priviledges and benefits there, as they may have in England.

Ireland.

The third kind of enemy is, inimicus permiſſus, an enemy that cometh into the Realm by the Kings ſafe conduct, of which you may read in the Regiſter fol. 25. Book of Entries Ejectione firmæ 7. 32 H. 6. 23. &c. Now what a Subject born is, appeareth at large by that which hath been ſaid de ligeantia; and ſo likewiſe de ſubdito dato, of a donaiſon; for that is the right name, ſo called, becauſe his legitimation is given unto him; for if you derive denizen from deins nee, one born within the obedience or liegeance of the King, then ſuch a one ſhould be all one with a natural born ſubject. And it appeareth before out of the Laws of King W. 1. of what antiquity the making of denizens by the King of England hath been.

Of the incidents to an Alien.

3. There be regulary (unleſs it be in ſpecial caſes) three incidents to a ſubject born. 1. That the parents be under the actual obedience of the King. 2. That the place of his birth be within the Kings dominion. And 3. the time of his birth is chiefly to be conſidered; for he cannot be a ſubject born of one kingdom that was born under the ligeance of a king of another kingdom, albeit afterwards one kingdom deſcend to the king of the other. For the firſt, it is termed actual obedience, becauſe though the King of England hath abſolute right to other kingdoms or dominions, as France, Aquitain, Normandy, &c. yet ſeeing the King is not in actual poſſeſſion thereof, none born there ſince the Crown of England was out of actual poſſeſſion thereof, are Sujects to the King of England. 2. The place is obſervable, but ſo as many times ligeance or obedience, without any place within the kings dominions may make a ſubject born, but any place within the Kings dominions without obedience can never produce a natural ſubject. And therefore if any of the kings Ambaſſadors in forreign Nations, have children there of their wives, being Engliſh women, by the Common Laws of England they are natural born ſubjects, and yet they are born out of the kings dominions. But if Enemies ſhould come into any of the Kings dominions, and ſurpriſe any Caſtle or Fort, and poſſeſs the ſame by hoſtility, and have iſſue there, that iſſue is no ſubject to the King, though he be born within his dominions, for that he was not born under the kings ligeance or obedience. But the time of his birth is of the eſſence of a ſubject born; for he cannot be a ſubject to the king of England, unleſs at the time of his birth he was under the ligeance and obedience of the king. And that is the reaſon that Antenati in Scotland (for that at the time of their birth they were under the ligeance and obedience of another king) are Aliens born, in reſpect of the time of their birth.

Wherefore an Alien born is not capable of Lands.

4. It followeth next in courſe to ſet down the reaſons, wherefore an Alien born is not capable of inheritance within England, and that he is not for three reaſons. 1. The ſecrets of the Realm might thereby be diſcovered. 2. The revenues of the Realm (the ſinews of War, and Ornament of Peace) ſhould be taken and enjoyed by ſtrangers born. 3. It ſhould tend to the deſtruction of the Realm. Which three reaſons do appear in the Statutes of 2 Hen. 5. cap. and 4 H. cap. ultimo. But it may be demanded, Wherein doth that deſtruction conſiſt? Whereunto it it anſwered: Firſt, it tends to deſtruction tempore belli; for then ſtrangers might fortifie themſelves in the heart of the Realm, and be ready to ſet fire on the Commonwealth, as was excellently ſhadowed by the Trojan Horſe in Virgils ſecond Book of his Eneads, where a very few men in the heart of the City, did more miſchief in few hours, than ten thouſand men without the walls in ten years. Secondly, tempore pacis, for ſo might many Aliens born get a great part of the inheritance and freehold of the Realm, whereof there ſhall follow a failer of Juſtice (the ſupporter of the Commonwealth) for that Aliens born cannot be returned of Juries for the tryal of Iſſues between the king and the ſubject, or between ſubject and ſubject. And for this purpoſe, and many other, ſee a Charter (worthy of obſervation) of king Edw. 3. written to Pope Clement, Datum apud Weſtm. 26. die Sept. ann. regni noſtri Franciæ 4. regni Angliæ 17.

5. Now

5. Now are we come to the Examples, Reſolutions, and Judgments of former times; wherein two things are to be obſerved: Firſt, How many Caſes in our Books do over-rule this Caſe in queſtion (for ubi eadem ratio ibi idem jus, & de ſimilibus idem eſt judicium. 2. That for want of an expreſs Text of Law in terminis terminantibus, and of examples and preſidents in like caſes (as was objected by ſome) we are driven to determine the queſtion by natural reaſon: for it was ſaid, Si ceſſet lex ſcripta id cuſtodiri oportet quod moribus & conſuetudine inductum eſt, & ſi qua in re hoc defecerit, recurrendum eſt ad rationem. But that receiveth a threefold anſwer: Firſt, That there is no ſuch rule in the Common or Civil Law; but the true rule of the Civil Law is, Lex ſcripta ſi ceſſet, id cuſtodiri oportet quod moribus & conſuetudine inductum eſt, & ſi qua in re hoc defecerit, tunc id quod proximum & conſequens ei eſt, & ſi id non appareat, tunc jus quo urbs Romana utitur, ſervari oportet. Secondly, If the ſaid imaginative rule be rightly and legally underſtood, it may ſtand for truth: for if you intend ratio for the legal and profound reaſon of ſuch as by diligent ſtudy and long experience and obſervation are ſo learned in the Laws of this Realm, as out of the reaſon of the ſame they can rule the caſe in queſtion, in that ſenſe the ſaid rule is true: But if it be intended of the reaſon of the wiſeſt man that profeſſeth not the Laws of England, then (I ſay) the rule is abſurd and dangerous; for cuilibet in ſua arte perito eſt credendum, & quod quiſque norit in hoc ſe exerceat. Et omnes prudentes illa admittere ſolent quæ probantur iis qui in ſua arte bene verſati ſunt. Ariſt. 1. Topicorum, cap. 6. Thirdly, There be multitudes of Examples, Preſidents, Judgments, and Reſolutions in the Laws of England, the true and unſtrained reaſon whereof doth decide this queſtion; for example: The Dukedom of Acquitain, whereof Gaſcoin was parcel, and the Earldom of Poytiers, came to King Henry the Second by the marriage of Elianor, daughter and heir of William Duke of Acquitain, and Earl of Poytiers, which deſcended to Rich. 1. Hen. 3. Ed. 1. Ed. 2. Ed. 3. &c. In 27. lib. Aſſ. pl. 48. in one caſe there appear two Judgments and one Reſolution to be given by the Judges of both Benches in this Caſe following. The poſſeſſions of the Prior of Chelſey in time of War were ſeiſed into the Kings hands, for that the Prior was an alien born: The Prior by petition of right ſued to the King, and the effect of his Petition was, That before he came Prior of Chelſey, he was Prior of Andover, and whiles he was Prior there, his poſſeſſions of that Priory were likewiſe ſeiſed for the ſame cauſe, ſuppoſing that he was an alien born; whereupon he ſued a former petition, and alledged that he was born in Gaſcoin within the ligeance of the King: which point being put in Iſſue and found by Jury to be true, it was adjudged he ſhould have reſtitution of his poſſeſſions generally without mentioning of advowſons. After which reſtitution, one of the ſaid advowſons became void, the Prior preſented, againſt whom the King brought a Quare Impedit, wherein the King was barred, and all this was contained in the latter petition. And the Book ſaith, that the Earl of Arundel, and Sir Guy de B. came into the Court of Common Pleas, and demanded the opinion of the Judges of that Court concerning the ſaid Caſe, who reſolved, that upon the matter aforeſaid the King had no right to ſeize. In which caſe, amongſt many notable points, this one appeareth to be adjudged and reſolved, that a man born in Gaſcoin under the Kings ligeance, was no alien born, as to lands and poſſeſſions within the Realm of England, and yet England and Gaſcoin were ſeveral and diſtinct Countries. 2. Inherited by ſeveral and diſtinct titles. 3. Governed by ſeveral and diſtinct Municipal Laws, as it appeareth amongſt the Records in the Tower, Rot. Vaſc. 10 Ed. 1. Num. 7. 4. Out of the extent of the Great Seal of England, and the Juriſdiction of the Chancery of England. 5. The like Objection may be made for default of trial, as hath been made againſt the Plaintiff. And where it was ſaid that Gaſcoin was no Kingdom, and therefore it was not to be matched to the caſe in hand, it was anſwered, that this difference was not without a diverſity as to the caſe in queſtion; for if the plea in the Caſe at the Bar be good, then without queſtion the Prior had been an alien; for it might have been ſaid (as it is in the Caſe at Bar) that he who was born extra ligeantiam Regis Regni ſui Angliæ, & infra ligeantiam Dominii ſui Vaſconiæ, and that they were ſeveral Dominions, and governed by ſeveral Laws: But then ſuch a conceit was not hatched, that a King having ſeveral Dominions ſhould have ſeveral ligeances of his Subjects. Secondly, it was anſwered, That Gaſcoin was ſometime a Kingdom, as likewiſe Millain, Burgundy, Bavair, Britain, and others were, and now are become Dukedoms. Caſtile, Arragon, Portugal, Barcelona, &c. were ſometime Earldoms, afterwards Dukedoms, and now Kingdoms. Bohemia and Polonia were ſometimes Dukedoms, and now Kingdoms, and (omitting many other, and coming nearer home) Ireland was before 32 H. 8. a Lordſhip, and now is a Kingdom, and yet the King of England was as abſolute a Prince and Soveraign when he was Lord of Ireland, as now, when he is ſtiled King of the ſame. 10 Ed. 3. 41. an exchange was made between an Engliſhman and a Gaſcoin, of lands in England and in Gaſcoin; Ergo the Gaſcoin was no alien, for then had he not been capable of lands in England, 1 H. 4. 1. the King brought a Writ of right of Ward againſt one Sybil, whoſe husband was exiled into Gaſcoin; Ergo Gaſcoin is no parcel or member of England, for exilium eſt patriæ privatio, natalis ſoli mutatio, legum nativarum amiſſio, 4 E. 4. 10. the King directed his Writ out of the Chancery under the Great Seal of England, to the Mayor of Burdeaux (a City in Gaſcoin) then being under the Kings obedience, to certifie, whether one that was outlawed here in England, was at that time in the Kings ſervice under him in obſequio Regis: whereby it appeareth, that the Kings Writ did run into Gaſcoin, for it is the trial that the Common Law hath appointed in that caſe. But as to other caſes, it is to be underſtood, that there be two kind of Writs, viz. Brevia mandatoria & remedialia, & brevia mandatoria & non remedialia: brevia mandatoria & remedialia, as Writs of Right, of Formedon, &c. of Debt, Treſpaſs, &c. and ſhortly, all Writs real and perſonal, whereby the party wronged is to recover ſomewhat, and to be remedied for that wrong that was offered unto him, are returnable or determinable in ſome Court of Juſtice within England, and to be ſerved and executed by the Sheriffs, or other Miniſters of Juſtice within England, and theſe cannot by any means extend into any other Kingdom, Country or Nation, though that be under the Kings actual ligeance and obedience. But the other kind of Writs that are mandatory, and not remedial, are not tied to any place, but do follow ſubjection and ligeance; in what Country or Nation ſoever the Subject is, as the Kings Writ to command any of his Subjects reſiding in any forreign Country to return into any of the Kings own Dominions, Sub fide & ligeantia quibus nobis tenemini. And ſo are the aforeſaid mandatory Writs cited out of the Regiſter of Protection for ſafety of Body and Goods, and requiring, that if any injury be offered, that the ſame be redreſſed according to the Laws and Cuſtoms of that place. Vide le Regiſter, fol. 26. Stamford Prærog. cap. 12. fol. 39. ſaith, That men born in Gaſcoin are inheritable to lands in England. This doth alſo appear by divers Acts of Parliament: for by the whole Parliament, 39 E. 3. cap. 16. it is agreed, that the Gaſcoins are of the ligeance and ſubjection of the King. Vide 42 Edw. 3. cap. 2. & 28 H. 6. cap. 5. &c.

Guyen. Guienna.

Guyen was another part of Aquitain, and came by the ſame title: and thoſe of Guyen were by Act of Parliament in 13 H. 4. not imprinted, ex Rott. Parliament. eodem anno, adjudged and declared to be no aliens, but able to poſſeſs and purchaſe, &c. lands within this Realm. And ſo doth Stamford take the Law, Prærog. c. 12. f. 39. And thus much of the Dukedom of Aquitaine, which (together with the Earldom of Poytiers) came to King Henry the Second (as hath been ſaid) by marriage, and continued in the actual poſſeſſion of the Kings of England by ten deſcents, viz. from the firſt year of King Henry the Second, unto the two and thirtieth year of King Henry the Sixth, which was upon the very point of three hundred years, within which Dutchy there were (as ſome write) 4 Archbiſh. 24 Biſhop. 15 Earldoms, 202 Baronies, and above a thouſand Captainſhips and Bailiwicks: and in all this long time neither Book-Caſe nor Record can be found wherein any plea was offered to diſable any of them that were born there, by forreign Birth, but the contrary hereof directly appeareth by the ſaid Book-Caſe of 27 lib. Aſſ. 48.

Normandy. Normannia. Normandia.

The Kings of England had ſometime Normandy under actual ligeance and obedience. The queſtion is then, whether men born in Normandy, after one King had them both, were inheritable to lands in England; and it is evident by our Books that they were: for ſo it appeareth by the declaratory Act of 17 E. 2. de Prærogativa Regis, c. 12. that they were inheritable to and capable of lands in England: for the purview of that Statute is, Quod Rex habebit eſcaetas de terris Normannorum, &c. Ergo Normans might have lands in England: & hoc ſimiliter intelligendum eſt, ſi aliqua hæreditas deſcendat alicui nato in partibus tranſmarinis, &c. Whereby it appeareth, that they were capable of lands within England by deſcent. And that this Act of 17 E. 2. was but a declaration of the Common Law, it appeareth both by Bracton who (as it hath been ſaid) wrote in the Reign of Henry the Third, lib. 3. tract. 2. c. 1. f. 116. and by Britton who wrote in 5 E. 1. c. 18. that all ſuch lands as any Norman had either by deſcent or purchaſe, eſcheated to the King for their treaſon, in revolting from their natural liege Lord and Soveraign. And therefore Stamford Prærog. cap. 12. fol. 39. expounding the ſaid Statute of 17 E. 2. cap. 12. concludeth, that by that Chapter it ſhould appear (as if he had ſaid, it is apparent without queſtion) that all men born in Normandy, Gaſcoin, Guyan, Anjou, and Britain, (whiles they were under actual obedience) were inheritable within this Realm as well as Engliſh-men. And the reaſon was, for that they were under one ligeance due to one Soveraign. And ſo much (omitting many other authorities) for Normandy: ſaving I cannot let paſs the Iſles of Jernſey and Gerſey, parts and parcels of the Dukedom of Normandy, yet remaining under the actual ligeance and obedience of the King. I think no man will doubt, but thoſe that are born in Jernſey and Gerſey (though thoſe Iſles are no parcel of the Realm of England, but ſeveral Dominions, enjoyed by ſeveral titles, governed by ſeveral Laws) are inheritable and capable of any lands within the Realm of England, 1 E. 3. fol. 7. Commiſſion to determine the title of lands within the ſaid Iſles, according to the Laws of the Iſles: and Mich. 41 E. 3. in the Treaſury, Quia negotium prædictum nec aliqua alia negotia de inſula prædict. emergentia non debent terminari niſi ſecundum legem inſulæ prædict. &c. And the Regiſter, fol. 22. Rex fidelibus ſuis de Jerſey & Gerſey. King William the Firſt brought this Dukedom of Normandy with him, which by five deſcents continued under the actual obedience of the Kings of England, and in or about the ſixth year of King John, the Crown of England loſt the actual poſſeſſion thereof, until King Henry the Fifth recovered it again, and left it to King Henry the Sixth, who loſt it in the 28*th* year of his Reign: wherein were (as ſome write) one Archbiſhoprick, and ſix Biſhopricks, and an hundred ſtrong Towns and Fortreſſes, beſides thoſe that were waſted in War. Maud the Empreſs, the only daughter and heir to Henry the Firſt, took to her ſecond husband Jeffery Plantaginet, Earl of Anjou, Tourein, and Mayne, who had iſſue King H. 2. to whom the ſaid Earldom by juſt title deſcended, who, and the Kings that ſucceeded him, ſtiled themſelves by the name of Comes Andegaviæ, &c. until King E. 3. became King of all France: and ſuch as were born within that Earldom, ſo long as it was under the actual obedience of the King of England, were no aliens, but natural born Subjects, and never any offer made that we can find to diſable them for forreign Birth.

Jernſey and Gerſey.

Manne. Mannia.

But leave we Normandy and Anjou, and ſpeak we of the little, but yet ancient and abſolute Kingdom of the Iſle of Man, as it appeareth by divers ancient and authentick Records; as taking one for many. Artold King of Man ſued to King H. 3. to come into England to confer with him, and to perform certain things which were due to King H. 3. thereupon King H. 3. 28. Decemb. ann. Regn. ſui 34. at Wincheſter by his Letters Patents gave licence to Artold King of Man as followeth; Rex omnibus ſalutem. Sciatis, quod licentiam dedimus, &c. Artoldo Regi de Manne veniendo ad nos in Angliam ad loquend' nobiſc', & ad faciend' nobis quod facere debet; & ideo vobis mandamus quod ei Regi in veniendo ad nos in Angl', vel ibi morando, vel inde redeundo nullum faciatis aut fieri permittatis damnum, injuriam, moleſtiam, aut gravamen, vel etiam hominibus ſuis quos ſecum ducet, & ſi aliquid eis forisfactum fuerit, id eis ſine dilatione faciatis emendari. In cujus, &c. duratur. uſq; ad feſtum Sancti Michaelis. Wherein two things are to be obſerved; 1. That ſeeing that Artold King of Man ſued for a licence in this caſe to the King, it proveth him an abſolute King, for that a Monarch or an abſolute Prince cannot come into England without licence of the King, but a ſubject being in league, may come into this Realm without licence; 2. That the King in his licence doth ſtile him by the name of a King. It was reſolved in 11 H. 8. that where an office was found after the deceaſe of Thomas Earl of Darby, and that he died ſeiſed, &c. of the Iſle of Man, that that the ſaid office was utterly void, for that the Iſle of Man, Normandy, Gaſcoin, &c. were out of the power of the Chancery, and governed by ſeveral Laws; and yet none will doubt, but thoſe that are born within that Iſle, are capable and inheritable of lands within the Realm of England. Wales was ſometimes a Kingdom, as it appeareth by 19 H. 6. fol. 6. and by the Act of Parliament of 2 H. 5. cap. 6. but whiles it was a Kingdom, the ſame was holden, and within the fee, of the King of England: and this appeareth by our Books, Fleta, lib. 1. cap. 16. 1 E. 3. 14. 8 E. 3. 59. 13 E. 3. tit. Juriſdict. 10 H. 4. 6. Plow. Com. 368. And in this reſpect, in divers ancient Charters, Kings of old time ſtyled themſelves in ſeveral manners, as King Edgar, Britanniæ Βασιλεὺς, Etheldrus, totius Albionis Dei providentia Imperator, Edredus magnæ Britaniæ Monarcha, which among many other of like nature I have ſeen. But by the Statute of 12 E. 1. Wales was united and incorporated into England, and made parcel of England in poſſeſſion; and therefore it is ruled in 7 H. 4. fol. 14. that no protection doth lie quia moratur in Wallia, becauſe Wales is within the Realm of England. And where it is recited in the Act of 27 H. 8. that Wales was ever parcel of the Realm of England, it is true in this ſenſe, viz. that before 12 E. 1. it was parcel in tenure, and ſince it is parcel of the body of the Realm. And whoſoever is born within the fee of the King of England, though it be in another Kingdom, is a natural born Subject, and capable and inheritable of lands in England, as it appeareth in Plow. Com. 126. And therefore thoſe that were born in Wales before 12 E. 1. whiles it was only holden of England, were capable and inheritable of lands in England.

Wales. Cambria. Wallia.

Now come we to France and the members thereof, as Callice, Guynes, Tournay, &c. which deſcended to King Ed. the Third as ſon and heir to Iſabel, daughter and heir to Philip le Beau, King of France. Certain it is, whiles King Henry the Sixth had both England, and the heart and greateſt part of France, under his actual Ligeance and Obedience (for he was Crowned King of France in Paris) that they that were then born in thoſe parts of France, that were under actual Ligeance and Obedience, were no aliens, but capable of, and inheritable to lands in England. And that is proved by the Writs in the Regiſter, fol. 26. cited before. But in the inrolment of Letters Patents of Denization in the Exchequer int. originalia, Anno 11 H. 6. with the Lord Treaſurers Remembrancer, was ſtrongly urged and objected: for (it was ſaid) thereby it appeareth, that King H. 6. in Anno 11. of his Reign, did make denizen one Reynel, born in France: Wheunto it was anſwered, that it is proved by the ſaid Letters Patents, that he was born in France before King Henry the Sixth had the actual poſſeſſion of the Crown of France, ſo as he was Antenatus: and this appeareth by the ſaid Letters Patents, whereby the King granteth, that Magiſter Johannes Reynel ſerviens noſter, &c. infra Regnum noſtrum Franciæ oriundus, pro termino vitæ ſuæ ſit ligeus noſter, & eodem modo teneatur ſicut verus & fidelis noſter infra Regnum Angliæ oriundus, ac quod ipſe terras infra Regnum noſtrum Angliæ ſeu alia Dominia noſtra perquirere poſſit & valeat. Now if that Reynel had been born ſince Henry the Sixth had the quiet poſſeſſion of France (the King being Crowned King of France about one year before) of neceſſity he muſt be an Infant of very tender age, and then the King would never have called him his ſervant, nor made the Patent (as thereby may be collected) for his ſervice, nor called him by the name of Magiſter Johannes Reynel: But without queſtion he was Antenatus, born before the King had the actual and real poſſeſſion of that Crown.

France. Gallia. Francia. [22]

Callice is a part of the Kindgom of France, and never was parcel of the Kingdom of England, and the Kings of England enjoyed Callice in and from the Reign of King Edward the Third, until the loſs thereof in Queen Maries time, by the ſame title that they had to France. And it is evident by our Books, that thoſe that were born in Callice, were capable and inheritable to lands in England, 42 E. 3. cap. 10. Vide 21 H. 7. 33. 19 H. 6. 2 E. 4. 1. 39 H. 6. 39. 21 E. 4. 18. 28 H. 6. 3. b. By all which it is manifeſt, that Callice being parcel of France, was under the actual obedience and commandment of the King, and by conſequent thoſe that were born there, were natural born Subjects, and no Aliens. Callice from the Reign of King Ed. 3. until the fifth year of Queen Mary, remained under the actual obedience of the King of England. Guines alſo, another part of France, was under the like obedience to King Henry the Sixth, as appeareth by 31 H. 6. fol. 4. And Tournay was under the obedience of Henry the Eighth, as it appeareth by 5 Eliz. Dier, fol. 224. for there it is reſolved, that a baſtard born at Tournay, whiles it was under the obedience of Henry the Eighth, was a natural Subject, as an iſſue born within this Realm by Aliens. If then thoſe that were born at Tournay, Callice, &c. whiles they were under the obedience of the King were natural Subjects, and no Aliens, it followeth, that when the Kingdom of France (whereof thoſe were parcels) was under the Kings obedience, that thoſe that were then born there, were natural Subjects, and no Aliens.

Callice. Calecia. Caletum. [b] Guines. Tournay.

Next followeth Ireland, which originally came to the Kings of England by Conqueſt, but who was the firſt Conqueror thereof, hath been a queſtion. I have ſeen a Charter made by King Edgar, in theſe words: Ego Edgarus Anglorum Βασιλεὺς, omniumq; inſularum Oceani, quæ Britanniam circumjacent, Imperator & Dominus, gratias ago ipſi Deo omnipotenti Regi meo, qui meum Imperium ſic ampliavit & exaltavit ſuper Regnum patrum meorum, &c. mihi conceſſit propitia divinitas, cum Anglorum Imperio omnia Regna inſularum Oceani, &c. cum ſuis ferociſſimis Regibus uſque Norvegiam, maximamque partem Hiberniæ, cum ſua nobiliſſima civitate de Dublina, Anglorum Regno ſubjugare, quapropter & ego Chriſti gloriam & laudem in Regno meo exaltare, & ejus ſervitium amplificare devotus diſpoſui, &c. Yet for that it was wholly Conquered in the Reign of Henry the Second, the honour of the Conqueſt of Ireland is attributed to him, and his ſtile was, Rex Angliæ, Dominus Hiberniæ, Dux Normanniæ, Dux Aquitaniæ, & comes Andegaviæ, King of England, Lord of Ireland, Duke of Normandy, Duke of Aquitain, and Earl of Anjou. That Ireland is a Dominion ſeparate and divided from England, it is evident by our Books, 20 H. 6. 8. Sir John Pilkington's Caſe, 32 H. 6. 26. 20 Eliz. Dyer 360. Plow. Com. 360. And 2 R. 3. 12. Hibernia habet Parliamentum, & faciunt leges, & noſtra Statuta non ligant eos, quia non mittunt milites ad Parliamentum (which is to be underſtood, unleſs they be eſpecially named) ſed perſonæ eorum ſunt ſubjecti Regis, ſicut Inhabitantes in Caleſia, Gaſconia & Guyan. Wherein it is to be obſerved, that the Iriſh man (as to his ſubjection) ſubjection) is compared to men born in Calice, Gaſcoin, and Guyan. Concerning their Laws, Ex rotulis patentium de Anno 11 Regis H. 3. there is a Charter which that King made, beginning in theſe words:

[23] Rex, &c. Baronibus, militibus & omnibus libere tenentibus L. ſalutem, ſatis ut credimus veſtra audivit diſcretio, quod quando bonæ memoriæ Johannes quondam Rex Angliæ pater noſter venit in Hiberniam, ipſe duxit ſecum viros diſcretos & legis peritos, quorum communi conſilio & ad inſtantiam Hibernenſium Statuit & præcepit leges Anglicanas in Hibernia, ita quod leges eaſdem in Scripturas redactas reliquit ſub ſigillo ſuo ad ſcaccarium Dublin. So as now the Laws of England became the proper Laws of Ireland; and therefore, becauſe they have Parliaments holden there, whereat they have made divers particular Laws concerning that Dominion, as it appeareth in 20 H. 6. 8. & 20 Eliz. Dyer 360. and for that they retain unto this day divers of their ancient Cuſtoms, the Book in 20 H. 6. 8. holdeth, that Ireland is governed by Laws and Cuſtoms, ſeparate and divers from the Laws of England. A Voyage-Royal may be made into Ireland. Vide 11 H. 4. 7. & 7 E. 4. 27. which proveth it a diſtinct Dominion. And in Anno 33 Reg. El. it was reſolved by all the Judges of England in the caſe of Orurke an Iriſh man, who had committed High Treaſon in Ireland, that he by the Statute of 33 H. 8. c. 23. might be indicted, arraigned, and tried for the ſame in England, according to the purview of that Statute: the words of which Statute be, That all Treaſons, &c. committed by any perſon out of the Realm of England, ſhall be from henceforth inquired of, &c. And they all reſolved (as afterward they did alſo in Sir John Perrot's Caſe) That Ireland was out of the Realm of England, and that Treaſons committed there, were to be tried within England by that Statute. In the Statute of 4 H. 7. cap. 24. of Fines, proviſion is made for them that be out of this land, and it is holden in Plow. Com. in Stowel's Caſe 375. that he that is in Ireland, is out of this land, and conſequently within that proviſo. Might not then the like plea be deviſed as well againſt any perſon born in Ireland, as (this is againſt Calvin that is a Poſt-natus) in Scotland? For the Iriſh man is born extra ligeantiam Regis Regni ſui Angliæ, &c. which be verba operativa in the plea: But all men know, that they are natural born Subjects, and capable of and inheritable to lands in England. Laſtly, to Scotland. Scotia. conclude this part with Scotland it ſelf; in ancient time part of Scotland (beſides Berwick) was within the power and ligeance of the King of England, as it appeareth by our Books 42 E. 3. 2. the Lord Beaumount's Caſe, 11 E. 3. c. 2. &c. and by Preſidents hereafter mentioned; and that part (though it were under the King of Englands ligeance and obedience) yet was governed by the Laws of England. Ex rot. Scotiæ, Anno 11 E. 3. amongſt the Records in the Tower of London. Rex, &c. Conſtituimus Rich.

[b] Talebot Juſticiarium noſtrum villæ Berwici ſuper Twedam, ac omnium aliarum terrarum noſtrarum in partibus Scotiæ, ad faciend' omnia & ſingula quæ ad officium Juſticiarii pertinent ſecundum legem & conſuetudinem Regni Scotiæ. And after Anno 26 E. 3. ex eodem rot. Rex Henrico de Percey & Richardo de Nevil, &c. volumus & vobis & alteri veſtrum tenore præſentium committimus & mandamus, quod homines noſtri de Scotia ad pacem & obedientiam noſtram exiſtentes, legibus, libertatibus, & liberis conſuetudinibus, quibus ipſi & anteceſſores ſui tempore celebr6 memoriæ Alexandri quondam Regis Scotiæ rationabiliter uſi fuerunt, uti & gaudere deberent, prout in quibuſdam Indenturis, &c. plenius dicitur contineri. And there is a Writ in the Regiſter 295. a. Dedimus poteſtatem recipiendi ad fidem & pacem noſtram homines de Galloway. Now the Caſe in 42 Edw. 3. 2. (which was within ſixteen years of the ſaid grant, concerning the Laws in 26 E. 3.) ruleth it, That ſo many as were born in that part of Scotland, that was under the ligeance of the King, were no aliens, but inheritable to lands in England; yet was that part of Scotland in another Kingdom governed by ſeveral Laws, &c. And if they were natural Subjects in that caſe, when the King of England had but part of Scotland, what reaſon ſhould there be, why thoſe that are born there, when the King hath all Scotland, ſhould not be natural Subjects, and no Aliens? So likewiſe

Barwick. Barwick is no part of England, nor governed by the Laws of England; and yet they that have been born there, ſince they were under the obedience of one King, are natural born Subjects, and no Aliens, as it appeareth in 15 R. 2. cap. 7. &c. Vide 19 H. 6. 35. & 39 H. 6. 39. And yet in all theſe caſes and examples, if this new deviſed plea had been ſufficient, they ſhould have been all Aliens againſt ſo many judgments, reſolutions, authorities, and judicial Preſidents in all ſucceſſions of ages. There were ſometimes in England, whiles the Heptarchy laſted, ſeven ſeveral Crowned Kings of ſeveral and diſtinct Kingdoms, but in the end the Weſt Saxons got the Monarchy, and all the other Kings melted (as it were) their Crowns to make one Imperial Diadem for the King of the Weſt Saxons over all. Now when the whole was under the actual and real ligeance and obedience of one King, were any that were born in any of thoſe ſeveral and diſtinct Kingdoms, Aliens one to another? Certainly they being born under the obedience of one King and Soveraign, were all natural born Subjects, and capable of and inheritable unto any lands in any of the ſaid Kingdoms.

[24] In the holy Hiſtory reported by St. Luke, Ex dictamine ſpiritus ſancti, cap. 21. & 22. Act. Apoſtolorum, it is certain, that St. Paul was a Jew, born in Tarſus, a famous City of Cilicia: for it appeareth in the ſaid 21. Chapter, 39 verſe, by his own words: Ego homo ſum quidem Judæus a Tarſo Ciliciæ non ignota civitatis municeps. And in the 22. Chapter, 3. verſe, Ego ſum vir Judæus natus Tarſo Ciliciæ, &c. and then made that excellent Sermon there recorded, which when the Jews heard, the Text ſaith, verſe 22. Levaverunt vocem ſuam dicentes, tolle de terra hujuſmodi, non enim fas eſt eum vivere: vociferantibus autem eis & projicientibus veſtimenta ſua, & pulverem jactantibus in aerem, Claudius Lyſias the popular Tribune, to pleaſe this turbulent and prophane multitude (though it were utterly againſt juſtice and common reaſon) the Text ſaith, Juſſit Tribunus induci eum in caſtra, 2. flagellis cædi, & 3. torqueri eum (quid ita?) ut ſciret & propter quam cauſam ſic acclamarent: and when they had bound Paul with cords, ready to execute the Tribunes unjuſt commandment, the bleſſed Apoſtle (to avoid unlawful and ſharp puniſhment) took hold of the law of a Heathen Emperour, and ſaid to the Centurion ſtanding by him, Si hominem Romanum & indemnatum licet vobis flagellare? Which when the Centurion heard, he went to the Tribune, and ſaid, Quid acturus es? Hic enim homo civis Romanus eſt. Then came the Tribune to Paul, and ſaid unto him: Dic mihi ſi tu Romanus es? at ille dixit, etiam. And the Tribune anſwered, Ego multis multa ſumma civitatem hanc conſequutus ſum. But Paul not meaning to conceal the dignity of his birth-right, ſaid, Ego autem & natus ſum: as if he ſhould have ſaid to the Tribune, you have your freedom by purchaſe of money, and I (by a more noble mean) by birth-right and inheritance. Protinus ergo (ſaith the Text) diceſſerunt ab allo qui illum torturi erant, Tribunus quoque timuit poſtquam reſcivit, quia civis Romanus eſſet, & quia alligaſſet eum. So as hereby it is manifeſt, that Paul was a Jew, born at Tarſus in Cilicia, in Aſia Minor, and yet being born under the obedience of the Roman Emperour, he was by birth a Citizen of Rome in Europa, that is, capable of and inheritable to all priviledges and immunities of that City. But ſuch a plea as is now imagined againſt Calvin might have made St. Paul an Alien to Rome. For if the Emperour of Rome had ſeveral ligeances for every ſeveral Kingdom and Country under his obedience, then might it have been ſaid againſt St. Paul, that he was extra ligeantiam Imperatoris Regni ſui Italiæ, & infra ligeantiam Imperatoris Regni ſui Ciliciæ, &c. But as St. Paul was Judæus patria & Romanus privilegio, Judæus natione & Romanus jure nationum; ſo may Calvin ſay, that he is Scotus patria & Anglus privilegio, Scotus natione & Anglus jure nationum. [b]

Samaria in Syria was the chief City of the ten Tribes; but it being uſurped by the King of Syria, and the Jews taken priſoners, and carried away in captivity, was after inhabited by the Panyms. Now albeit Samaria of right belonged to Jury, yet becauſe the people of Samaria were not under actual obedience, by the Judgment of the Chief Juſtice of the whole World they were adjudged Alienigenæ, Aliens: For in the Evangeliſt St. Luke, c. 17. when Chriſt had cleanſed the ten Leapers, Unus autem ex illis (ſaith the Text) ut vidit quia mundatus eſſet, regreſſus eſt, cum magna voce magnificans Deum, & cecidit in faciem ante pedes ejus gratias agens, & hic erat Samaritanus. Et Jeſus reſpondens dixit, nonne decem mundati ſunt, & novem ubi ſunt? Non eſt inventus qui rediret & daret gloriam Deo niſi hic alienigena. So as by his judgment this Samaritan was Alienigena, a Stranger born, becauſe he had the place, but wanted obedience. Et ſi deſit obedientia non adjuvat locus. And this agreeth with the Divine, who ſaith, Si locus ſalvare potuiſſet, Satan de cœlo pro ſua inobedientia non cecidiſſet. Adam in Paradiſo non cecidiſſet, Lot in monte non cecidiſſet, ſed potius in Sodom.

6. Now reſteth the ſixth part of this diviſion, that is to ſay, ſix demonſtrative illations, or concluſions, drawn plainly and expreſly from the premiſes.

1. Every one that is an Alien by birth, may be, or might have been an enemy by accident; but Calvin could never at any time be an enemy by any accident; Ergo he cannot be an alien by birth. Vide 33 H. 6. fol. 1. the difference between an alien enemy and a ſubject traytor. Hoſtes ſunt qui nobis, vel quibus nos bellum decernimus, cæteri proditores, prædones, &c. The major is apparent, and is proved by that which hath been ſaid. Et vide Magna Charta, cap. 30. 19 E. 4. 6. 9 E. 3. c. 1. 27 E. 3. c. 2. 4 H. 5. c. 7. 14 E. 2. ſtat. 2. c. 2. &c.

2. Whoſoever are born under one natural ligeance and obedience, due by the Law of Nature to one Soveraign, are natural born Subjects: But Calvin was born under one natural ligeance and obedience, due by the Law of Nature to one Soveraign; Ergo he is a natural born ſubject. [p]

3. Whoſoever is born within the Kings power or protection, is no Alien: But Calvin was born under the Kings power and protection; Ergo he is no Alien. [25]

4. Every ſtranger born muſt at his birth be either amicus, or inimicus: But Calvin at his birth could neither be amicus nor inimicus; Ergo he is no ſtranger born. Inimicus he cannot be, becauſe he is ſubditus, for that cauſe alſo he cannot be amicus; neither now can Scotia be ſaid to be ſolum amici, as hath been ſaid.

5. Whatſoever is due by the law or conſtitution of man, may be altered: But natural ligeance or obedience of the ſubject to the Soveraign cannot be altered; Ergo natural ligeance or obedience to the Soveraign is not due by the law or conſtitution of man. Again, whatſoever is due by the Law of Nature, cannot be altered: But ligeance and obedience of the ſubject to the Soveraign is due by the Law of Nature; Ergo it cannot be altered. It hath been proved before, that ligeance or obedience of the inferior to the ſuperior, of the ſubject to the Soveraign, was due by the Law of Nature many thouſand years before any Law of man was made: Which ligeance or obedience (being the only mark to diſtinguiſh a ſubject from an alien) could not be altered; therefore it remaineth ſtill due by the Law of Nature. For Leges naturæ perfectiſſimæ ſunt & immutabiles, humani vero juris conditio ſemper in infinitum decurrit, & nihil eſt in eo quod perpetuo ſtare poſſit. Leges humanæ naſcuntur, vivunt, & moriuntur.

Laſtly, whoſoever at his birth cannot be an alien to the King of England, cannot be an alien to any of his ſubjects of England: But the Plaintiff at his birth could be no alien to the King of England; Ergo the Plaintiff cannot be an alien to any of the ſubjects of England. The major and minor both be propoſitiones perſpicuæ veræ. For as to the major it is to be obſerved, that whoſoever is an alien born, is ſo accounted in Law in reſpect of the King: And that appeareth firſt by the pleading ſo often before remembred, that he muſt be extra ligeantiam Regis, without any mention making of the ſubject. 2. When an alien born purchaſeth any lands, the King only ſhall have them, though they be holden of a ſubject, in which caſe the ſubject loſeth his Seigniory. And as it is ſaid in our Books, an Alien may purchaſe ad proficuum Regis; but the act of Law giveth the alien nothing: And therefore if a woman alien marrieth a ſubject, ſhe ſhall not be endowed, neither ſhall an alien be tenant by the courteſie. Vide 3 H. 6. 55. 4 H. 3. 179. 3. The ſubject ſhall plead, that the Defendant is an alien born for the benefit of the King, that he upon office found may ſeize, and 2. that the Tenant may yield to the King the land, and not to the alien, becauſe the King hath beſt right thereunto. 4. Leagues between our Soveraign and others are the only means to make aliens friends, & fœdera percutere, to make Leagues, only and wholly pertaineth to the King. 5. Wars do make aliens enemies, and bellum indicere belongeth only and wholly to the King, and not to the ſubject, as appeareth in 19 Ed. 4. fol. 6. 6. The King only without the ſubject may make not only Letters of ſafe conduct, but Letters Patents of Denization, to whom, and how many he will, and enable them at his pleaſure to ſue any of his [b]

Subjects

Subjects in any action whatſoever, real or perſonal, which the King could not do without the ſubject, if the ſubject had any intereſt given unto him by the Law in any thing concerning an alien born. Nay, the Law is more preciſe herein than in a number of other caſes, of higher nature: for the King cannot grant to any other to make of ſtrangers born denizens, it is by the Law it ſelf ſo inſeparably and individually annexed to his Royal Perſon (as the Book is in 20 H. 7. fol. 8.) For the Law eſteemeth it a point of high Prerogative, Jus Majeſtatis, & inter inſignia ſummæ poteſtatis, to make aliens born ſubjects of the Realm, and capable of the lands and inheritances of England, in ſuch as any natural born ſubject is. And therefore by the Statute of 27 H. 8. cap. 24. many of the moſt ancient Prerogatives and royal Flowers of the Crown, as authority to pardon Treaſon, Murther, Manſlaughter, and Felony, power to make Juſtices in Eyre, Juſtices of Aſſiſe, Juſtices of Peace and Gaol-Delivery, and ſuch like, having been ſevered and divided from the Crown, were again reunited to the ſame: But authority to make Letters of Denization, was never mentioned therein to be reſumed, for that never any claimed the ſame by any pretext whatſoever, being a matter of ſo high a point of Prerogative. So as the pleading againſt an alien, the purchaſe by any alien, leagues and wars between aliens, denizations, and ſafe conducts of aliens, have aſpect only and wholly unto the King. It followeth therefore, that no man can be alien to the ſubject that is not an alien to the King, Non poteſt eſſe alienigena corpori, qui non eſt capiti, non gregi qui non eſt Regi.

The 5. general part concerning Inconveniences.

Now are we come to conſider of legal inconveniences: And firſt of ſuch as have been objected againſt the Plaintiff, and ſecondly of ſuch as ſhould follow, if it had been adjudged againſt the Plaintiff.

Of ſuch inconveniences as were objected againſt the Plaintiff, there remain only four to be anſwered; for all the reſt are clearly and fully ſatisfied before: 1. That if Poſtnati ſhould be inheritable to our laws and inheritances, it were reaſon that they ſhould be bound by our Laws; but Poſtnati are not bound by our Statute or Common Laws; for they having (as it was objected) never ſo much Freehold or Inheritance, cannot be returned of Juries, nor ſubject to ſcot or lot, nor chargeable to Subſidies or Quinzimes, nor bound by any Act of Parliament made in England. 2. Whether one be born within the Kingdom of Scotland, or no, is not triable in England, for that it is a thing done out of this Realm, and no Jury can be returned for the tryal of any ſuch Iſſue: And what inconvenience ſhould thereof follow, if ſuch pleas that wanted tryal ſhould be allowed (for then all aliens might imagine the like plea) they that objected it, left it to the conſideration of others. 3. It was objected, that this Innovation was ſo dangerous, that the certain event thereof no man could foreſee, and therefore ſome thought it fit, that things ſhould ſtand and continue as they had been in former time, for fear of the worſt. 4. If Poſtnati were by Law legitimated in England, it was objected what inconvenience and confuſion ſhould follow, if (for the puniſhment of us all) the Kings Royal Iſſue ſhould fail, &c. whereby thoſe Kingdoms might again be divided. All the other arguments and objections that have been made, have been all anſwered before, and need not to be repeated again.

1. To the firſt it was reſolved, That the cauſe of this doubt was the miſtaking of the Law: For if a Poſtnatus do purchaſe any lands in England, he ſhall be ſubject in reſpect thereof, not only to the Laws of this Realm, but alſo to all ſervices and contributions, and to the payment of Subſidies, Taxes, and publique Charges, as any Denizen or Engliſh man ſhall be; nay, if he dwell in England, the King may command him by a Writ of Ne exeat Regnum, that he depart not out of England. But if a Poſtnatus dwell in Scotland, and have lands in England, he ſhall be chargeable for the ſame to all intents and purpoſes, as if an Engliſh-man were owner thereof, and dwelt in Scotland, Ireland, in the Iſles of Man, Jernſey, or Gerſey, or elſewhere. The ſame Law is of an Iriſh-man that dwels in Ireland, and hath land in England. But if Poſtnati, or Iriſh-men, men of the Iſles of Man, Jernſey, Gerſey, &c. have lands within England, and dwell here, they ſhall be ſubject to all ſervices and publique Charges within this Realm, as any Engliſh-man ſhall be. So as to ſervices and charges, the Poſtnati and Engliſh-men born are all in one predicament.

2. Concerning the trial, a threefold anſwer was thereunto made and reſolved: 1. That the like Objection might be made againſt Iriſh-men, Gaſcoins, Normans, men of the Iſles of Man, Jernſey, and Gerſey, of Berwick, &c. all which appear by the rule of our Books to be natural born ſubjects; and yet no Jury can come out of any of thoſe Countries and places, for trial of their Births there. 2. If the Demandant or Plaintiff in any action concerning lands be born in Ireland, Jernſey, Gerſey, &c. out of the Realm of England, if the Tenant or Defendant plead, that he was born out of the ligeance of the King, &c. the Demandant or Plaintiff may reply, that he was born under the ligeance of the King at ſuch place within England; and upon the evidence the place ſhall not be material, but only the Iſſue ſhall ſhall be, whether the Demandant or Plaintiff were born under the ligeance of the King in any of his Kingdoms or Dominions ſoever: And in that caſe the Jury (if they will) may find the ſpecial matter, viz. the place where he was born, and leave it to the judgment of the Court; and that Jurors may take knowledge of things done out of the Realm in this and like caſes, vide 7 H. 7. 8. b. 20 Ed. 3. Averment 34. 5 Rich. 2. tit. Trial 54. 15 Ed. 4. 15. 32 Hen. 6. 25. Fitz. Nat. Br. 196. Vive Dowdale's Caſe, in the Sixth part of my Reports, fol. 47. and there divers others Judgments be vouched. 3. Brown in Anno 32 Hen. 6. reporteth a Judgment then lately given, that where the Defendant pleaded, that the Plaintiff was a Scot, born at St. Johns Town in Scotland, out of the ligeance of the King; whereupon they were at Iſſue, and that Iſſue was tried where the Writ was brought, and that appeareth alſo by 27 Aſſ pl. 24. that the Jury did find the Prior to be born in Gaſcoin: for ſo much is neceſſarily proved by the words trove fuit.) And 20 Ed. 3. tit. Averment 34. in juris utrum, the death of one of the Vouchees was alledged at ſuch a Caſtle in Britain, and this was inquired of by the Jury: And it is holden in 5 Rich. 2. tit. Trial 54. That if a man be adhering to the enemies of the King in France, his Land is forfeitable, and his adherency ſhall be tried where the land is, as oftentimes hath been done, as there it is ſaid by Belknap: And Fitz. Nat. Bre. 196. in a Mortdauncſtor, if the anceſtor died in itinere peregrinationis ſuæ verſ. terram ſanctam, the Jury ſhall inquire of it. But in the caſe at Bar, ſeeing the Defendant hath pleaded the truth of the caſe, and the Plaintiff hath not denied it, but demurred upon the ſame, and thereby confeſſed all matters of fact, the Court now ought to judge upon the eſpecial matter, even as if a Jury upon an Iſſue joyned in England, as is aforeſaid, had found the eſpecial matter, and left it to the Court. [27]

3. To the third it was anſwered and reſolved, That this judgment was rather a renovation of the judgments and cenſures of the reverend Judges and Sages of the Law in ſo many Ages paſt, than any Innovation, as appeareth by the Books and Book-caſes before cited: neither have Judges power to judge according to that which they think to be fit, but that which out of the Laws they know to be right and conſonant to Law. Judex bonus nihil ex arbitrio ſuo faciat, nec propoſito domeſticæ voluntatis, ſed juxta leges & jura pronuntient. And as for timores, fears grounded upon no juſt cauſe, Qui non cadunt in conſtantem virum, vani timores æſtimandi ſunt.

4. And as to the fourth, it is leſs than a dream of a ſhadow, or a ſhadow of a dream: for as it hath been often ſaid, Natural legitimation reſpecteth actual Obedience to the Soveraign at the time of the Birth: for as the Antenati remain aliens as to the Crown of England, becauſe they were born when there were ſeveral Kings of the ſeveral Kingdoms, and the uniting of the Kingdoms by deſcent ſubſequent, cannot make him a Subject to that Crown to which he was an alien at the time of his Birth: So albeit the Kingdoms (which Almighty God of his infinite goodneſs and mercy divert) ſhould by deſcent be divided, and governed by ſeveral Kings; yet was it reſolved, That all thoſe that were born under one natural Obedience, whiles the Realms were united under one Soveraign, ſhould remain natural born Subjects, and no Aliens; for that naturalization due and veſted by Birth-right, cannot by any ſeparation of the Crowns afterward be taken away: nor he that was by judgment of Law a natural Subject at the time of his Birth, become an Alien by ſuch a matter ex poſt facto. And in that caſe, upon ſuch an accident, our Poſtnatus may be ad finem utriuſque Regis, as Bracton ſaith in the afore-remembred place, fol. 427. Sicut Anglius non auditur in placitando aliquem de terris & tenementis in Francia, ita nec debet Francigena & alienigena qui fuerit ad fidem Regis Franciæ audiri placitando in Angliæ: ſed tamen ſunt aliqui Francigenæ in Francia, qui ſunt ad fidem utriuſque, & ſemper fuerunt ante Normanniam deperditam & poſt, & qui placitant hic & ibi, ea ratione quæ ſunt ad fidem utriuſque, ſicut fuit Willihelmus comes marſchallus & manens in Anglia, & M. de Gynes manens in Francia, & alii plures. Concerning the reaſon drawn from the Etymologies, it made againſt them, for that by their own delivation, alienæ gentis and alienæ ligeantiæ is all one: But arguments drawn from Etymologies are too weak and too light for Judges to build their judgments upon: for Sæpenumero ubi proprietas verborum attenditur, ſenſus veritatis amittitur: and yet when they agree with the Judgment of Law, Judges may uſe them for Ornaments. But on the other ſide, ſome inconveniences ſhould follow, if the plea againſt the Plaintiff ſhould be allowed: for firſt it maketh Ligeance local; videlicet, Ligeantia Regis Regni ſui Scotiæ, and Ligeantia Regis Regni ſui Angliæ: whereupon ſhould follow, Firſt, That faith or ligeance, which is univerſal, ſhould be confined within local limits and bounds: Secondly, That the Subject ſhould not be bound to ſerve the King in Peace or in War out of thoſe limits; Thirdly, It ſhould illegittimate many, and ſome of noble blood, which were born in Gaſcoign, Guyan, Normandy, Callice, Tournay, France, and divers other of his Majeſties Dominions, whiles the ſame were in actual obedience, and in Berwick, Ireland, Jerſey, and Gerſey, if this plea ſhould have been admitted for good. And thirdly, this ſtrange and new deviſed plea inclineth too much to countenance that dangerous and deſperate Error of the Spencers, touched before, to receive any allowance within Weſtminſter-Hall. [a] [b] [28]

In the proceeding of this caſe, theſe things were obſerved, and ſo did the Chief Juſtice of the Common Pleas publickly deliver in the end of his argument in the Exchequer Chamber. Firſt, That no commandment or meſſage by word or writing was ſent or delivered from any whatſoever to any of the Judges, to cauſe them to incline to any opinion in this caſe: which I remember, for that it is honourable for the State, and conſonant to the Laws and Statutes of this Realm. Secondly, There was obſerved, what a concurrence of Judgments, Reſolutions, and Rules there be in our Books in all ages concerning this caſe, as if they had been prepared for the deciding of the queſtion of this point: and that (which never fell out in any doubtful caſe) no one opinion in all our Books is againſt this Judgment. Thirdly, That the five Judges of the Kings Bench, who adjourned this caſe into the Exchequer Chamber, rather adjourned it for weight than for difficulty, for all they in their arguments una voce concurred with the Judgment. Fourthly, That never any caſe was adjudged in the Exchequer Chamber with greater concordance and leſs variety of opinions, the Lord Chancellor and twelve of the Judges concurring

in one opinion. Fifthly, That there was not in any remembrance ſo honourable, great, and intelligent an auditory at the hearing of the arguments of any Exchequer Chamber caſe, as was at this caſe now adjudged. Sixthly it appeareth, That Juriſprudentia legis communis Angliæ eſt ſcientia ſocialis & copioſa: ſociable, in that it agreeth with the principles and rules of other excellent Sciences, divine and humane; copious, for that quamvis ad ea quæ frequentius accidunt jura adaptantur, yet in a caſe ſo rare, and of ſuch a quality, that loſs is the aſſured end of the practice of it (for no alien can purchaſe lands, but he loſeth them, and ipſo facto the King is intituled thereunto, in reſpect whereof a man would think few men would attempt it) there ſhould be ſuch a multitude and Farrago of authorities in all ſucceſſions of Ages, in our Books and Book-Caſes, for the deciding of a point of ſo rare an accident. Et ſic determinata & terminata eſt iſta quæſtio.

Bulwer's Caſe.

[1] BUlwer of Dalling in Norfolk brought an Action upon his Caſe againſt George Smith, and declared How that one Henry Heydon Eſquire did recover 20 l. in the Common Pleas againſt the Plaintiff, and after Judgment, and before Execution, the ſaid Henry Heydon died, and afterwards the ſaid Defendant knowing thereof, at W. in the County of Norfolk to outlaw the Plaintiff upon the ſaid Judgment in the name of Henry Heydon malitioſe & deceptive machinatus eſt, in performance of which the Defendant Trin. 23 Eliz. at Weſtminſter in Midd. took forth a Writ of Capias ad Satisfaciend' in the name of the ſaid Henry upon the ſaid Judgment, directed to the Sheriffs of London, who by the procurement of the Defendant returned Non eſt inventus; whereupon the Defendant purchaſed a Writ of Exigent in the name of the ſaid Henry, which Writ the ſaid Sheriffs by the procurement of the ſaid Defendant returned, that at ſeveral Huſtings the now Plaintiff had been demanded, Et ad Huſtingum de communibus placitis tent' in Guildhalda civitat. prædict. die Lunæ prox. poſt feſtum Apoſtol' Simonis & Judæ, Anno ſupradict. prad. the now Plaintiff quint. exactus fuit, &c. & ideo ipſe the Plaintiff utlagatus fuit: And afterwards Paſch. 24 Eliz. the Defendant purchaſed out of the Common Pleas a Writ of Capias utlagatum, in the name of the ſaid Henry, directed to the Sheriff of Norfolk to arreſt his body, &c. which Writ did mention that the ſaid now Plaintiff was outlawed die Lunæ prox. ante feſtum Apoſtolorum Simonis & Judæ, &c. And the ſaid Writ the Defendant at W. aforeſaid in the ſaid County of Norfolk, did deliver to one Robert Godfrey then Deputy to the Sheriff of the ſaid County, to the intent that he ſhould execute the ſaid Writ; the which Robert by force of the ſaid Writ took and arreſted the now Plaintiff, and did impriſon him by the ſpace of two months, until the now Plaintiff purchaſed his Charter of pardon, by reaſon of which Outlawry he forfeited all his Goods and Chattels: And upon this Declaration the Defendant did demur in Law; And the principal cauſe of the Demurrer was, becauſe that this Action by the

[b] pretence of the Defendant, ought to have been brought in Midd. where the wrong began, for there (as it was ſaid) the Defendant took out as well the Capias ad Satisfaciend. as the Exigent and the Capias Utlagatum alſo. And although the Capias Utlagat. was executed in Norfolk, yet the Action ought to be brought where the wrong began; as in the caſe of Conſpiracy in 42 E. 3. 14. and divers other caſes were put; Alſo, by the Outlawry which was in Lond. all his Goods and Chattels were forfeited, where it is more reaſon to bring the Action, than in Norff. But it was anſwered and reſolved, That the Action was well brought in Norfolk, for it is a Maxim in Law, Quod ibi ſemper debet fieri triato, ubi juratores meliorem poſſint habere notitiam. And in Norfolk was the viſible wrong, for there the Plaintiff was impriſoned for the ſpace of two months, and therefore it is great reaſon the Plaintiff have his action there, and it doth not appear by the Record what Goods and Chattels the Plaintiff had at the time of the Outlawry, but for the aggravating of the damages, the Plaintiff may give in evidence what Goods and Chattels he hath forfeited by the Utlawry. And this action doth conſiſt upon two parts, one matter of record, and the other matter in fact; and none of the matters of record, but it is mixed with matter in fact, and there is no matter of fact, but it is mixt with matter of record: for the Writs and the Utlawry are matters of record, but mixed with matters in fact, ſcil. taking forth, and proſecution of them by the Defendant in the name of Henry Heydon, which are matters in fact: alſo the impriſonment is a matter in fact, but it is mixed with the Writ of Capias utlagatum, which is of record; ſcil. if the Plaintiff was arreſted by vertue thereof. And matters in fact are triable only by the Country, and not matters of record: and when one matter in one County is depending upon the matter in the other County, there the Plaintiff may chooſe in which County he will bring his action, (if not, that the Defendant upon the general Iſſue pleaded, ſhall be prejudiced in his trial, as he ſhall not be in this caſe;) as if two conſpire to endite a man in one County, and they by their malicious proſecution make make the execution of their conſpiracy in another County, and there cauſe the party to be indicted, the Plaintiff may have his action of conſpiracy in which County he will, for they put their conſpiracy in one County, in execution in the other, and the matter of record of the Indictment is mixed with matter of fact. But if they conſpire in one County, by force of which conſpiracy, without any other act by them, he is indicted in another County, there the writ ought to be brought in the County where the conſpiracy was, for the Defendants have done nothing in the County where the Indictment was, nor were parties nor privies to the finding of the Indictment, but only by the conſpiracy in the other County. And the ſame appeareth in 14 E. 4. 3. b. and ſo the Books in 42 E. 3. 14. 20 H. 6. 10. Fitz. N. B. 116. b. and other Books are well reconciled. If a Manaſſe be made in Eſſex by which my Tenants do depart in London, I ſhall have my Action in Eſſex, and not in London; for in ſuch Caſe I have done nothing in London, 9 H. 6. 42. In all Caſes where the Action is founded upon two things, [2] and both are material, or traverſable, and the one without the other doth not maintain the Action, there the Plaintiff may chuſe to bring his action in which of the Counties he will; as if a Servant be retained in one County and departeth in another, and therewith agreeth 41 E. 3. 1. 34 H. 6. 18. 38 H. 6. 15. 14 E. 4. 6. 20 H. 6. 11. 29 H. 8. & 18. Vide 20 E. 3. 25. &c. So if a man be arreſted in execution in one County, and he eſcape into another, the Plaintiff may chooſe to bring his Action in which of the Counties he will, and therewith agreeth 14 E. 4. 3. 30 H. 6. 6. 11 Eliz. Dyer 278. So in a Writ of Annuity founded upon preſcription againſt a Man of Religion, or body politique, where the Church or houſe is in one County, and the ſeiſin is alledged in another County, the Plaintiff may chooſe in which County he will bring his Action, 48 E. 3. 26. 4 H. 4. 1. 4 H. 6. 5. b. 10 H. 6. 19. 39 H. 6. 15. 2 E. 4. 28. 4 E. 4. 26. &c. F. N. B. 152. Otherwiſe if the Annuity be granted in one County, to be paid in another, the action lieth where the grant was; and ſo is 8 H. 6. 23. So if a man cite one in one County to appear before the Admiral in another County, for a thing done in the body of the County, by force of which the party appeareth, he may have his action in the one County or the other at his pleaſure, 5 Ma. Dyer 159. b. vide 42 E. 3. 14. 44 E. 3. 31, 32. 46 E. 3. 8. 3 H. 4. 3. a. 38 H. 6. 14. 14 E. 4. 3. The ſame Law of the Spiritual Court. So if the Defendant call a protection in one County, and remaineth in another, he may bring his action in which of the Counties he pleaſeth, vide 20 H. 6. 10. So if a man hath a ſtroke in one County, and he dieth in another County, the appeal of Murder may be brought in the one or the other County, and yet the Defendant did nothing in the County where the party dieth, but the death which followeth the ſtroke maketh the Felony, 18 E. 3. 32. 9 H. 6. 63. 45 Aſſ. pl. 9. 43 Ed. 4. 3 H. 7. 12. 4 H. 7. 18. 6 H. 7. 10. 11 H. 4. 93. If a man commit Robbery in one County, and carrieth the goods into divers Counties, the party robbed may have an appeal of Felony in which of the Counties he will, but not an appeal of Robbery but only in the County where the Robbery was done; For it is felony in all the Counties where the goods are carried (for felony doth not deveſt property) but it is not Robbery (which ought to be done to the perſon of a man) but only in the County where the Robbery was done, vide 4 H. 7. 5. b. 29 H. 8. 39. 40, Dyer, 11 H. 4. 93. Vide 3 E. 3. Aſſ. 446. In Debt if a man diſtraineth upon a Leaſe for years in one County, of land in another County, he ought to bring his Action where the Leaſe was made, and not where the land lieth; for the action is grounded upon the contract made by the leaſe, 38 H. 6. 15. acc. per Cur. 8 H. 6. 23. acc. vide 4 H. 6. 18. 14 E. 4. 3. 29 H. 8. Dyer 40. So the Law well explained in [b] caſes in which are varieties of opinions in our Books. But if a leaſe be made in one County, and the land lieth in another, the Action of waſt ſhall be brought where the land lieth, and not where the Leaſe was made, although the term be paſſed, for the land and damages, or damages only for the waſt, ſhall be recovered, 14 E. 4. 3. acc. If a man promiſeth to cure one in one County, and miſ-doth in another, the Plaintiff hath his election to bring his action in which of the Counties he will, and therewith agreeth 11 R. 2. Action ſur le Caſe 37. If a man doth not repair a wall in Eſſex which he ought to repair, for which cauſe my land in Midd. is drowned, I may bring my action in Eſſex, for there is the Defendants fault, as it is adjudged in 7 H. 4. 8. or I may bring it in Midd, for there I have the damage, as it is proved by 11 R. 2. Action ſur le Caſe 3. So if one forgeth a Deed in one County, and proclaimeth it in another, the Plaintiff may chooſe in which County to bring his action, 29 H. 8. 38. Vide 22 H. 6 5. But when the Defendant upon pleading Not Guilty ſhall be prejudiced in his trial, there the Plaintiff hath not election to bring his Action in which County he will. Vide 29 H. 8. Dyer 38. where Gawyn ſued an appeal of Robbery in the County of Wilts, where the Robbery was done, againſt Huſſey and Gibbs as acceſſories; and declared that the principals named in the Writ, and who were attainted, did the Robbery in the County of Wilts, and that the Defendants feloniouſly at London before the Robbery done, did abbet them to do it; and it was adjudged, That although the Plaintiff cannot have but one appeal againſt the Principals and Acceſſories, and againſt the Principal of neceſſity it ought to be brought in the County of Wilts, yet becauſe that thoſe of the County of Wilts upon Not Guilty pleaded, and London cannot joyn, and thoſe in Wilts cannot enquire of a thing in London, although it be tranſitory (for in caſe of Felony which concerneth the life of a man, every act ſhall be tried in the proper County where the act was in truth done) the appeal againſt the ſaid Acceſſories did abate. Vide 43 E. 3. 17, 18, 19. And it is to be obſerved, that in all Real Actions, if any iſſue riſeth upon the Land, or in any action in which the poſſeſſion of the land or local thing, or which riſeth upon the land by reaſon thereof, is to be recovered, all theſe ſhall be brought in the County where the land lieth; As in a Writ of Right of Ward of Land, or writ of Entruſion of Ward, theſe ſhall be brought in the County where the land lieth, although that the refuſal were, or the Seignory be in another County, 29 E. 3. 3. 38 H. 6. 14. 22 R. 2. bre. 937. acc. So in a Writ of Right of Ward for the body only, it ſhall be brought in the County where the Land is, for that is in the right and favour of the land, 21 E. 3. 42. 30 E. 3. 25. 9 E. 3. 12, 13. 10 E. 3. 7. acc. and the reaſon of 45 E. 3. 6. agreeth with it, although the Judgment there is mentioned to be given contrary. But a Writ of Raviſhment of Ward ſhall be brought where the Raviſhment was, and not where the Land is, or where the body is carried; for it is found upon the Raviſhment, 38 Hen. 6. 14. 22 Rich. 2. Brev. 937. & 12 Eliz. Dyer 289. And a Writ Forfeiture of Marriage ſhall be brought [3] where the land is, for the Writ doth ſuppoſe an intruſion into the land; and therewith agreeth the ſaid Book in 22 R. 2. & 38 Hen. 6. 15. And a Writ de valore maritagii ſhall be brought where the land is; for the Lord needeth not make any tender, but if he maketh tender, and the other refuſeth, and he alledge it in one County, then the Writ de valore maritagii lieth in the County where the refuſal was, 22 Rich. 2. Brev. 937. 38 H. 6. 15. Writs of Quare Impedit, and Quare Incumbravit ſhall be always brought where the Church is; for by the one the Plaintiff ſhall recover the preſentment, and by the other the Biſhops Clerk ſhall be removed, and the Plaintiffs Clerk admitted, 38 Hen. 6. 15. accord. vide 4 Ed. 3. 9. Otherwiſe it is in the Kings Caſe. But a Quare non admiſit ſhall be brought in the County where the refuſal was, and not in the County where the Church is, becauſe damages are only to be recovered, and the refuſal is the beginning of the wrong, and the ground of the Action; and ſo is the Book adjudged in 37 Hen. 6. 14. & 15. F. N. B. 47. And a Quare Impedit of a Prebend ſhall be brought in the County where the Cathedral Church is, and not in the County where the body of the Prebend is; for the Plaintiffs Clerk is to be inducted, and inſtalled in the Cathedral Church, and therewith agreeth 21 Edw. 3. 5. & 2 Eliz. Dyer 194. but 43 Ed. 3. 34. & 15 Ed. 3. Br. 335. ſeem contrary. Vide 27 Ed. 3. 37. And ſo the Law is well explained in a caſe in which there was different opinions in our Books. And if a man at the Common Law hath a Rent iſſuing out of two Counties, he cannot have an Aſſiſe in one County, becauſe every part of the Land in the two Counties is charged with Rent, and all ſhall be put in view, as it is agreed in 18 Edw. 2. Aſſiſe 380. 18 Edw. 3. 32. 10 Ed. 3. 21. 10 Aſſ. p. 4. & 18 Aſſ. p. 1. But if a man maketh a Leaſe pur auter vie of Land in two Counties, rendring Rent, and the Rent is behind, and ceſtui que vie dieth, the Leſſor ſhall have an Action of Debt in which of the Counties he will; for now it is changed into Debt; and in that caſe no Land ſhall be put in view, but the perſon of the Debtor ſhall be only charged by the Common Law. So if a Rent be iſſuing out of the Land of B. in two Counties, and the Rent is behind, and he who hath the Rent dieth, his Executors may have an Action of Debt againſt B. in which of the Counties they will, upon the Statute of 32 Hen. 8. for although he ought to bring his Action in one of the Counties, yet at the Common Law the perſon of the Defendant is chargeable in the Action of Debt, and not the Land. And before the Statute of 6 Rich. 2. cap. 2. a Writ of Debt and Accompt againſt a Receiver, and ſuch Actions, muſt be brought in ſuch County where the party might be beſt brought in to anſwer, and the Plaintiff might count of a Contract or Receipt, &c. in any other County, quia debitum & contractus, &c. ſunt nullius loci. See for that 2 Ed. 3. 44. 6 Ed. 3. 266. & 275. 8 E. 3. 380. 10 E. 3. 7. 19 E. 3. Juriſd. 29. 29 E. 3. 26. 33 E. 3. tit. Juriſd. 37. 40 E. 3. 7. 3 Hen. 6. 15 Ed. 4. 10. 21 Ed. 4. 88.

[b] As in 22 Hen. 6. 9. & 10. where the King granted the Office of Surveyor of packing of all manner of Cloathes within London and the Liberties thereof, which are in two Counties, and the Aſſiſe was brought in Middleſex, and there Newton and Paſton ſaid, That there is a great difference between an Aſſiſe of a Rent, and that Aſſiſe: For where a Rent charge is going out of Lands in divers Counties, every parcel is chargeable with the whole, and all the Terr-Tenants ought to be named: But here the perſon is charged, and not the land, yet the Office for which the Aſſiſe was brought did extend in two Counties. And if a Fine, or Feoffment be made of Lands in two Counties with Warranty, the Warrantia Chartæ may be brought in any of the Counties, 29 Ed. 3. 3. It is purviewed by the Statute of 7 Rich. 2. cap. 10. That Aſſiſe of Novel diſſeiſin ſhall be granted and made of a Rent behind due of Tenants in divers Counties, to be holden in conſinio comitat. and thereupon the Aſſiſe ſhall be taken and tried by the people of the ſame Counties, in the ſame manner and form as it is done of a Common of Paſture in one County appendant to Tenements in another County: For at the Common Law, if a man had had Common of Land in one County appendant or appertenant to Land in another County, he ſhould have two ſeveral Writs to the Sheriffs of the ſeveral Counties: Or if the Land to which, &c. lay in one County, and the Lands in which lieth in another County, there he ſhall have a Writ of Aſſiſe to the Sheriff of the County where the Land to which, &c. lieth, and ſeveral Writs to the Sheriffs of the Counties where the lands in which, &c. lie; and all that appeareth in the Regiſter, and Fitz. Nat. Brev. 180. a. And the ſame Law is when a Nuſans is done in one County, and the land to which, &c. is in another County, as it appeareth alſo in the Regiſter, and Fitz. Nat. Br. 183. k. So if a man hath a Rent in three or four Counties, it ſeemeth that he who is diſſeiſed may have ſeveral Aſſiſes to be brought in conſinio comitatuum: for the Letter of the Statute of 7 Rich. 2. is general of Rent due of Tenements in ſeveral Counties. And although it hath a reference to the Caſe of Common of Paſture, &c. yet foraſmuch as in the Caſe of Common of Paſture, if the land in which, &c. lieth in ſeveral Counties, and the land to which, &c. lieth in another County, there ſhall be as many Writs as there are ſeveral Counties: thence it followeth, that ſuch ſhall he have who hath a Rent iſſuing out of lands in many Counties. Alſo the caſe of Common is put exempli gratia & ſimilitudinarie, & nullum ſimile quatuor pedibus currit; and it is not neceſſary that a ſimile agree in all points. And the Statute of 7 Rich. 2. was made to ſatisfie a doubt which was conceived before: for thereby it is enacted, That Writs in ſuch caſe ſhall be made in the Chancery without any manner of contradiction, as well of diſſeiſins before done, as after to be done. And the doubt was upon the Statute of Magna Charta, [4] c. 2. Recognitiones de nova diſſeiſina, & de morte anteceſſor. non capiantur niſi in ſuis comitatibus. And ſome hold that the ſame was not obſerved when the Juſtices of Aſſiſe did ſit in conſinio comitatus, and namely, when there are twenty Counties meſne between the two Counties, as it is in the Book in 5 Ed. 4. 2. But that doubt alſo might be conceived upon the ſaid Aſſiſe of Novel diſſeiſin of Common when the land in which, &c. is in one County, and the land to which, &c. in another County (which caſe without queſtion is not reſtrained by the ſaid Statute: For Aſſiſe of Novel diſſeiſin of Common Paſture lay at the Common Law, as by the Statute of Weſtm. 2. cap. 29. it appeareth) Vide 10 Ed. 3. 21. & 10 Aſſ.

& 10 Aſſ. p. 4. And if need were, the Statute of Weſt. 2. cap. 28. doth extend to the ſaid caſe of Rent, by which it is provided, Quod quotieſcunque de cætero evenerit in Cancellaria, quod in uno caſu reperitur breve, & in conſimili caſu, cadente ſub eodem jure, & ſimili indigente remedio, non reperitur, concordent clerici in Cancellaria in brevi faciendo, &c. vel ad proximum Parliamentum de conſenſu Juriſperitorum fiat breve. And the Statute concludeth with the effect of a Maxim of the Common Law, Quod Curia Domini Regis non debet deficere conquerentibus in juſtitia perquirenda. Vide 38 Edw. 3. 33. where the caſe was, That the King brought a Writ of Right of the fourth part of the Tythes and Offerings of the Church of St. Dunſtan in the Weſt, in Fleetſtreet, in the Suburbs of London, againſt the Prior of St. Johns of Jeruſalem in England: there Candiſh took exception to the Writ, becauſe that although this Writ was given by the Statute of Weſt. 2. cap. 5. towards the end, and Artic. Cler. cap. 2. which Statutes gave, that he ſhall have a Writ Ad petendum advocationem decimarum petitar. &c. And this Writ is brought of the fourth part of Tythes and Offerings, which is not warranted by the Statute, Judgment of the Writ, foraſmuch as the Statute doth not give any Writ of the fourth part of Tythes. Thorpe the Chief Juſtice, who gave the rule ſaid, Although the Statute doth not hint by expreſs words, but of Tythes, yet thoſe in the Chancery may make a Writ in conſimili caſu, and the Writ is good enough; wherefore anſwer. And in 18 Ed. 2. brev. 827. a Writ of Entry was brought in the County of Suſſ. the Tenant pleaded a Releaſe of the anceſter of the Plaintiff with Warranty, which was deemed, and found for the Plaintiff in London by a Jury of Fridayſtreet, &c. for which the demandant did recover; and the Tenant brought an attaint, and there Exception was taken, becauſe in the Writ is not compriſed to attach the party, Judgment, &c. And for the Plaintiff it was ſaid, That the Writ was granted to the Sheriffs of London to ſummon the four and twenty, and attach the twelve, and another Writ to the Sheriff of Suſſ. to attach the party where the land lieth; and both the Writs were read in Court. To which it was ſaid, That there was no ſpecial Law, that did maintain that Writ which is out of the common courſe. Beresford the Chief Juſtice, who gave the rule, ſaid, In a new caſe there is a new remedy, &c. wherefore anſwer. And therefore if there be Lord and Tenant, and the Tenancy doth extend into two Counties, in this caſe if the Rents and Services be behind, the Lord may have ſeveral Writs for Cuſtoms and Services, for every County one Writ, and ſhall have them returnable at one day in the Common Pleas, and then to count upon them as his caſe is, quia aliter curia Regis deficeret conquerentibus in juſtitia perquirenda, and therewith agreeth Fitz. Nat. Brev. 151. b. & 31 Edw. 1. Droit pl. ultimo. And the ſame is a good example, pro quolibet conſimili caſu, &c. ſimili indigente remedio. Vide 12 Ed. 1. tit. Attaint 71. a very good caſe; and the Reaſon and rule of the Book in 21 Ed. 3. 18. is to be obſerved, where the Caſe was, That a fine was levied of a Mannor in one County, and the Tenancy lay in another County; now where the per quæ ſervitia ſhould be brought was the queſtion; and it was adjudged, that it was well brought in the County where the Mannor was. And there Stone gave the rule of the Court in theſe words: He cannot have another Writ, for it behoveth that his Writ be brought according to the fine, and brought in the County where the Note is levied. Vide 11 Rich. 2. tit. Action ſur le caſe 36. 7 H. 4. 8. Vide 26 Hen. 6. tit. Covenant 9. 41 Aſſ. pl. 12. 9 Hen. 5. 6. 22 Hen. 6. 5. And in the principal caſe where it was objected, that the ſaid Capias utlagatum was erroneous; for it was proximum ante feſtum, where it ſhould be, poſt feſtum, &c. The Court took no regard to it; for the Error in the Writ which the Defendant himſelf hath wrongfully brought ſhall not advantage himſelf: for inaſmuch that he was impriſoned and troubled thereby, the ſame gave cauſe of action to the Plaintiff. Alſo the Court did not regard the clauſe that the Defendant at W. in the County of Norff. &c. malitioſe & deceptive machinatus fuit, &c. for the ſame is ſo ſecret and ſo uncertain, that it cannot be tried.

Hill. 27 Eliz. in the Exchequer.

Sir Miles Corbet's Caſe.

[5]

BEtween Sir Edw. Clere, and Miles Corbert, Eſq; now a Knight, it was reſolved in a Caſe concerning the Parſonage of Marham in the County of Norff. That where in the County of Norff. there is a ſpecial manner of Common called Shacke which is to be taken in Arable Land, after Harveſt until the land be ſowed again, &c. and that began in ancient time in this manner; The fields of Arable lands in this Country doth conſiſt of the Lands of divers ſeveral perſons lying intermixt in many ſeveral ſmall parcels, ſo that it is not poſſible for any of them without treſpaſs to others, that they can feed their cattel in their own land, and thefore every one doth put in their cattel to feed promiſcue in the open field. Theſe words, To have Shacke, is as much as to ſay to go at liberty, or at large: In which the policy of old times is to be obſerved, That the ſeverance of fields in ſuch ſmall parcels to ſo many ſeveral perſons, was to avoid Incloſure, and to maintain Tillage. But it is to be marked, That the ſaid Common called Shacke, which in the beginning was but in the nature of a feeding becauſe of Neighbourhood, for avoiding of ſute, within ſome places of that Country, is by cuſtom altered into the nature of a common appendant or appurtenant, and in ſome places it retaineth his original nature: and the rule to know it is the cuſtom and uſage of every ſeveral Town, or place; for conſuetudo loci eſt obſervand. And therefore if in the Town of D. (exempli gratia) one who hath purchaſed divers parcels together, in which the Inhabitants have uſed to have Shacke, and long time ſince have incloſed it, and notwithſtanding alwaies after Harveſt, the Inhabitants have had Shacke there by paſſing into it by bars or gates with their cattel, there it ſhall be taken as Common appendant or appurtenant, and the owner cannot exclude them of common there, notwithſtanding that he will not common with them, but hold his own lands ſo incloſed in ſeveralty: and that is proved by the uſage, for notwithſtanding the ancient Incloſure, the Inhabitants have had common there. But if in the Town of S. the cuſtom and uſage hath been, That every owner of the ſame Town hath incloſed their own Lands from time to time, and ſo have held it in ſeveralty, there this uſage proveth, That it was but in the nature of Shacke originally, [b] for the cauſe of Neighbourhood, and ſo it continueth, and therefore there he may Incloſe and hold in ſeveralty, and exclude himſelf to have Shacke with the other. And although that in the ſaid Town of D. the uſage hath been, That notwithſtanding the Incloſure by divers Inhabitants of late times, the other Inhabitants have had Shacke there; yet if a man hath an ancient cloſe of ancient time taken out of the field, and he and all thoſe whoſe eſtate he hath, hath holden the ſame alwaies in ſeveralty, he may well keep the ſame incloſed: For as to ſuch parcel ſo anciently encloſed, the Shacke there doth retain his ancient and original nature. And he who claimeth Shacke there cannot preſcribe to have Common in it. Mark well this Reſolution, which ſtanding with reaſon, and no Inconvenience, Innovation, or cauſe of ſuits or trouble can thereupon ariſe, but quiet and repoſe ſhall be thereby in many caſes eſtabliſhed, which I thought fit to be Reported, becauſe it is a general caſe in the ſaid Country. And at the firſt the Court was utterly unknowing of the nature of this Common called Shacke. It was alſo reſolved at the ſame time, That if the Commons of the Town of A. and of the Town of B. are adjoyning, and that one ought to have Common with the other by the rule of Neighbourhood, and in the Town of A. there are fifty Acres of Common, and in B. there are an hundred Acres of Common; In that caſe the Inhabitants of the Town of A. cannot put more cattel into their Common of fifty Acres than the ſame will feed, without any reſpects to the Common within the Town of B. nec e converſo: for the original cauſe of this Common for cauſe of Neighbourhood, was not for profit but for preventing of Suits in a Champian Country; for the reciprocal eſcapes of the one Town in the other: And therefore if the Town of A. will feed fifty beaſts, it is no prejudice to the one or the other if the cattel of one Town eſcape and feed in the Common of the other Town reciprocally: for if all the cattel feed promiſcue together through the whole, there ſhall not be prejudice to one or the other.

Caſes upon the Statute of 13 Edw. 1. of Wincheſter.

[6] IT is enacted by the ſaid Act, That from henceforth every County be ſo well kept, That immediately upon Robberies and Felonies committed, ſuch freſh ſute be made from Town to Town, and from County to County, &c. And after the Felony or Robbery is done, the County ſhall have no longer ſpace than forty days, within which forty days it ſhall behove them to agree for the Robbery and Treſpaſs, or elſe that they anſwer for the bodies of the Offenders, &c. Upon which words divers Reſolutions have been.

Trinit. 27 Eliz. in the Common Pleas.

Sendhill's Caſe.

TRinit. 27 Eliz. it was holden by the whole Court of Common Pleas, in a Caſe which happened in Harleſton in the County of Suff. That if a man be robbed in his houſe, be it in the day or in the night, the Hundred in which the houſe is ſhall not be charged with it: For although the words of the ſaid Act are general, without ſpeaking of any place in ſpecial, yet ſuch Robbery is not within the ſaid Act, for three cauſes: 1. Becauſe every mans houſe is his Caſtle, which he ought to keep and defend at his peril; and if any one be robbed in his houſe, it ſhall be eſteemed his default and negligence. 2. It is not lawful for any other to enter into the houſe of another for the ſafeguard of it. 3. Such Robbery for which the Hundred ſhall anſwer by force of the ſaid Act, ought to be committed openly, ſo that the Country may take notice of it themſelves; for it was adjudged in Aſhpole's Caſe next following, that there needeth not to have Hue and Cry, or notice given to the Country, neither by the words of the ſaid Act of 13 Edw. 1. nor by the meaning thereof; for it may be that the party robbed was bound, or maihemed, &c. ſo that he cannot make Hue and Cry, or give notice to the Country; but when a Robbery is ſecretly done in a houſe they cannot take notice of it.

Trin. 28 Eliz. in the Common Pleas.

Aſhpole's Case.

BEtween Aſhpole and the Inhabitants of Evenger, it was reſolved by the whole Court, That although the Statute is general, and doth not make mention of any time, That the Robbery ought to be done in the day time, and out of the night; and there the caſe was, That a Robbery was done in January preſently after Sun-ſet, during day-light; and it was adjudged that the Hundred ſhould anſwer, becauſe it was convenient time for men to travel, or to be about their buſineſs or work; and therewith agreeth the Book in 3 Ed. 3. Coron. 293. That one killed another at the hour of evening, and eſcapeth, by the Common Law, the Town ſhall be amerced; for it is in Law accounted part of the day, and not of the night. [6]

Trinit. 29 Eliz. in the Common Pleas, Rot. 1027.

Milborne's Case.

BEtween Milborn and the Inhabitants of Dunmow in Eſſex it was adjudged, That for a Robbery done in the Morning, ante lucem, the Hundred ſhall not be charged, becauſe the Robbery was committed in the Night; and although that no time be ſpecified in the Statute, yet by good expoſition it doth not extend to a Robbery done in the night; for no laches or negligence can be imputed to the Hundred for default of well guarding the Country in the night; alſo in the night they cannot make purſuit after the Offenders, or enquire for them, and then to charge them when they are deprived of their convenient means ſhall be hard. And as it hath elſewhere been often ſaid, It is a good expoſition of a Statute to expound it according to the reaſon of the Common Law. And at the Common Law, if a man be killed in a Town by day, that is, ſo long as there is full day-light, and he who killeth eſcapeth, the Town where this Felony was done ſhall be amerced: And ſo it is holden in 21 Ed. 3. Coron. 238. Dum quis felonice occiſus fuit per diem, niſi felo captus fuit, tota villa illa oneretur. And therewith agreeth alſo the ſaid Book of 3 Ed. 3. But if ſuch Murder or Manſlaughter be done in the night, the Town ſhall not be amerced by the Common Law, becauſe (as it hath been ſaid) no laches or negligence can be imputed to the Inhabitants of the Town: and God hath appointed the day for men to labour, and travel about their buſineſs, and the night to take their repoſe and reſt, and therefore the Prophet ſaith, Poſuiſti tenebras, & facta eſt nox, in qua pertranſeunt Beſtiæ ſylvæ, &c. ſol oritur, & congregati ſunt, exit homo ad opus & operationem, & redit veſpere: So Savage beaſts paſs and repaſs in the night, and then men are at reſt, and in the day men apply themſelves to their labours and affairs, and then the Beaſts retire to their Dens. And the Poet ſaith, Pſal. 104.

Ut jugulent homines ſurgunt de nocte Latrones.

And the Common Law is, Men cannot diſtrain for rent or ſervice in the night, as it is adjudged in 12 E. 3. Diſtreſs 17. & 11 H. 7. 5. acc. But for damage-feazance, a man may diſtrain in the night for the neceſſity of the Caſe, for otherwiſe perhaps he ſhall not diſtrain at all, and therewith agreeth 10 E. 3. 21. And further it is acted by the ſaid Statute of Wincheſter, That in Cities and great Towns which are incloſed, the Gates ought to be ſhut from Sun-ſet, till Sun-riſing; After which Statute, if in ſuch City or Town incloſed any Murder or Manſlaughter be done in the day, or in the night, and the Offendor eſcapeth, ſuch City or Town ſhall be amerced. For now the Act hath changed the reaſon of the Law, and therefore the Law it ſelf is changed; For Ratio eſt Legis anima, & mutata Legis ratione, mutatur & Lex. For at the Common Law, if a Man be killed in the night, as it hath been ſaid, there was not any fault in the City or Town; but now if they do not keep their Gates ſhut according to the Statute, by which the Offendor eſcapeth, then there is fault and negligence in them; and therewith agreeth the Book in 3 E. 3. Coron. 299. where the Caſe is, It was preſented, That one killed another in the night; and it was asked, Where the Felon was? And they ſaid, That he is fled; and becauſe it was in the night, they ought not to be charged. Lowther Juſtice who gave the Rule, ſaid, That the Town ſhould be ſhut, by the Statute, from ſuch an hour; and becauſe the Townſmen of the Town took him not, all the Town was amerced: Alſo it was holden upon the ſaid Act of 13 E. 1. That if divers do commit a Robbery, thoſe of the Hundred ought to apprehend all the Felons; for although they apprehend ſome of them, it ſhall not be ſufficient for to excuſe them. For the words of the ſaid Act of 13 E. 1. are, That they anſwer for the bodies of the Offenders; which in conſtruction ſhall be taken for all the Offenders. But now by the Statute of 27 Eliz. cap. 13. a new Law is made, amongſt others, in theſe points following, viz. 1. That none ſhall have an action upon the ſaid Statute, if that [7]

the

the party robbed doth not, ſo ſoon as he can, give notice of the ſaid Felony to ſome of the Inhabitants of ſome Town, Village, or Hamlet, next adjoyning to the place where the Robbery was committed. 2. If they in the purſuit do apprehend any of the parties Offenders, the ſame ſhall excuſe them, although they do not apprehend them all. See the Act of 27 Eliz. cap. 13. which hath added to the ſaid Statute of Winchester, and altered the ſame in divers points.

Mich. 28 & 29 Eliz. In the Court of Wards.

The Earl of Bedford's Case.

[b] IN the Court of Wards, the Caſe was, That Francis Earl of Bedford being ſeiſed of certain houſes in the Strand in the County of Midd. in tail, ſcil. to him and the heirs of his body, and ſeiſed of other lands in Fee holden in Capite, by Deed indented made leaſes of the ſaid houſes, whereof he was ſeiſed in tail, for 21 years, rendring rent (which leaſes were not warranted by the Statute of 32 H. 8. but were voidable by the Iſſues in tail) and died; the Reverſion deſcended to the heirs general of the Earl, that is to ſay, to two daughters and heirs of Henry Lord Ruſſel, eldeſt ſon of the ſaid Earl, (which Henry died in the life of his Father) and it appeared that the ſaid Leaſes were to have continuance after the ſaid daughters ſhould be out of Ward: And by office after the death of the ſaid Earl it was found, That he died ſeiſed of the ſaid eſtate tail of the ſaid houſes, and that they deſcended to the ſaid heirs general, by force whereof the ſaid houſes were ſeiſed into the Queens hands. And in this caſe two points were reſolved: 1. That the King in privity and right of the heirs in tail, ſhall avoid the ſaid Leaſes during the time that they ſhall be in ward; as if a Biſhop maketh a Leaſe for years not warranted by the Statute, ſo that the Leaſe is voidable by the Succeſſor, and dieth, the King ſhall avoid the Leaſe during the vacation of the Biſhoprick, in privity and right of the Biſhoprick, for the King in none of the ſaid caſes is as ſtranger. The ſame Law is when a Subject is Gardian in Knights Service, he in the right of the heir, within age, and his Ward, ſhall avoid voidable Leaſes as to his own Intereſt, but it ſhall not prejudice the heir of his election at full age; For cuſtos ſtatum hæredis in cuſtodia ſua exiſtentem, meliorem, non deteriorem facere poteſt. So if the heir within age before the entry of the Gardian, or the anceſtor, being within age, maketh a Leaſe for years rendring rent, the Gardian may enter in the right of the heir, and ſhall avoid the Leaſe. But the Lord by eſcheat ſhall not avoid voidable eſtates made by

[8] his Tenant who was an Infant; for regularly, none ſhall avoid voidable eſtates for Infancy, but the Infant himſelf, or his heirs, but the Gardian ſhall avoid the ſaid voidable Leaſes in the right of the Infant himſelf, and ſo a difference: and the King in the caſe of a Biſhop, ſhall avoid the Leaſe in the right of the Biſhoprick, which continueth although the Biſhop be dead. And that was one of the points adjudged in the Exchequer, in the great Caſe between Auſtine and Sir John Baker, 2 Mariæ, which I have ſeen, and which ſhall be related more at large in the Reſolution of the ſecond point of this caſe. Vide 16 Eliz. Dyer 337. Patentee of Queen Elizabeth of lands given to a Parſon and his Succeſſors to ſuperſtitious Uſes, ſhall avoid after his death a Leaſe for life (which is voidable by the Succeſſor) made by the Parſon, by the intent of the Act of 1 E. 6. of Chantries, vide 7 Eliz. Dyer 239. Hoskin's Caſe. 2. It was Reſolved, That although the King in the right of the heir had avoided it for his time, yet it doth not avoid the Leaſes ſo abſolutely, that the heirs in tail after the Kings Intereſt determined, by the acceptance of the rent cannot make them good: For the Kings act cannot determine the power and election of the iſſues in tail, or of the Succeſſor of the Biſhop, in the caſe before put, to make the Leaſes good by acceptance of the rent. And when voidable Leaſes being void for a time ſhall be alwaies avoided, and when not, this difference was taken and Reſolved by the Court; ſcil. When the intereſt of him who maketh the avoidance is but for part of the Term, ſo that it appeareth that a reſidue remaineth; and when he who maketh the avoidance hath all the Intereſt, ſo that no reſidue remaineth: and becauſe in the caſe at Bar it appeareth, that after the Kings Intereſt determined, there remaineth a reſidue of the term, &c. But if the Patron of the Church of D. doth grant the next avoidance to another, and afterwards, and before the Statute of 13 Eliz. the Parſon, Patron, and Ordinary, make a Leaſe for years, rendring rent, and the Parſon dieth, the Grantee preſenteth, who is admitted, inſtituted, and inducted, and dieth, this Leaſe was avoided in all abſolutely, and therefore ſuch Leaſe cannot ſtand againſt the ſecond Succeſſor, 2 E. 3. 8. If an Advowſon of a Church by Licence be granted to a Prior and his Succeſſors, and afterwards the ſame Church is appropriated to him and his Succeſſors, ſo as they be perpetual Parſons imparſonees, in that caſe if the wife of the Grantor be endowed of the Advowſon, and preſenteth a Clerk, who is admitted, inſtituted, and inducted, the Appropriation is defeated for ever, for the whole eſtate of the Parſon imparſonee is avoided, and ſo it was adjudged as Sir Jeffery Scrope reporteth in 2 E. 3. 8. and in ſuch ſenſe is the Book to be underſtood. For although the wife was endowed of the Advowſon, yet if ſhe had died before any was admitted and inſtituted to the ſame Church at her preſentation, the Church had remained appropriated, and ſo the Quære in 6 E. 6. 72. Dyer, is well reſolved. So if a Feme covert (as a Feme ſole) levieth a fine by her ſelf of Land, whereof ſhe is the old estate of the Wife revested in her, and the Husband seised of the whole estate in the right of his Wife, and therewith agreeth 17 E. 3. 52. 17 Ass. pla. 17. 7 H. 4. 23. 2 R. 3. 20. 9 H. 6. 33. But when but part of the estate or Term is defeated, there it is otherwise, as in the said Case of Austine and Sir John Baker, it was adjudged, which Case as I have seen it in effect, was, Sir Tho. Wyatt was Tenant in tail of the Mannor of East forleigh in the County of Kent, viz. to him and to the heirs males of his body of the gift of H. 8. to hold of him in Capite, the reversion to the King, his heirs and successors. Sir Tho. Wyatt by Indenture demised the said Mannor to Austine for 26 years rendring 13 l. rent to the said Sir Tho. and his heirs, and afterwards Sir Tho. died, and all that was found by Office, and that Sir Tho. Wyatt was his son and heir male of full age, by which the King had Primer seisin of the land it self, and for his Interest did avoid the Lease, and afterwards Sir Tho. the son sued Livery and accepted of the rent of Austine, and afterwards committed High Treason, for which he was Attainted. In this case it was adjudged, that for as much as the King had avoided the Lease but as to his Primer seisin, that after livery made it is in the election and power of the issue in tail, by acceptance of the rent, to affirm the Lease; because the Lease was avoided by the King but for part of the Term. So if Tenant in tail taketh a wife, and maketh a lease for 30 or 40 years, rendring rent, which is avoidable by the issue in tail, and dieth, and afterwards the wife recovereth her Dower, in that case the wife shall avoid the Lease, and yet, if she dieth within the Term, the issue in tail at his election may either affirm or disaffirm the Lease. And it was said, That if the Tenant in tail maketh a Lease for 30 or 40 years, rendring rent, which is avoidable by the issue in tail, and afterwards Tenant in tail dieth without issue, his wife with child with a son, by which the Donor entreth, and as to him avoideth the Lease, and afterwards the son is born, the Lessee reentreth, the son at his full age by acceptance of the rent, may affirm the Lease; for the Lease was never absolutely void, nor simpliciter, but secundum quid, and upon the matter ex post facto was defeated but for a time. And although that filius in utero matris, est pars viscerum matris, (vide 3 Ass. pl. 2. 22 Ass. pl. 94. 22 Edwardi tertii, Corone 120. Stamford 21.) yet the Law in many Cases hath consideration of him in respect of apparent expectation of his birth. See the opinion of Saunders and Browne in Stowel's Case, Plow. Com. for avoiding of a fine, vide temp. E. 1. Gard. 1. 3. & 31 E. 1. bre. 873. for the wardship of him. Vide 38 E. 3. 7. & 41 E. 3. & 11 E. 3. Voucher, that [9] he shall be vouched in his Mothers belly, 11 H. 6. 13. a devise of Land (devisable by custom to one in his Mothers belly, 41 E. 3. deteinment of Charters for the heir in his Mothers belly, 3 Eliz. Dyer 186. An Adulterer doth counsel the woman to kill the child when he is born, who doth accordingly; the Adulterer is accessary, yet at the time of the counsel the child was in his Mothers belly. But it was said, That if Tenant in tail maketh a Lease for 30 or 40 years, rendring rent, and afterwards taketh a wife, and dieth without issue, his wife young with child, and afterwards the wife recovereth her Dower of the same Land; she before the sons birth shall not avoid the Lease, for her estate is quodammodo a continuance of part of the estate tail, and the same is proved 10 E. 3. 26. 34 Ass. pl. 15. & 23 E. 3. Dower 130. that she shall be attendant for a third part of the services that Tenant in tail did, which she should not be, if to all intents the estate tail were utterly extinct, and Tenant in Dower is in the Per by her husband, and in of his estate. Vide Litt. 93. in Descents, 38 Ass. 26. 7 H. 5. 2. 8 E. 2. Entre 75. &c. Vide 33 H. 8. Dyer 51. b. Tenant in tail before the Statute of 27 H. 8. of Uses, made a feoffment in fee to the use of him and his heirs; and also before the said Act, he and his Feoffees made a Lease for years, rendring rent, and died after the Statute, the Land descended to his issue, who before entry upon the Termor levied a fine to another, and by the better opinion of both the Benches, besides Saunders; the Alienee shall not avoid it; for although the sum were remitted, yet the Lease was not meerly void, without actual entry by the issue. Vide Plow. Com. 437.

[b] ſeiſed in Fee to another and his heirs; in this caſe if the Husband doth not enter, that fine ſhall bind the Wife and her heirs for ever: and in the ſame caſe, if the Husband entreth and dieth, the Conuſee ſhall not have the land; for by the entry of the Husband the whole eſtate of the Conuſee was defeated, and the

Trin. 33 Eliz. in the Common Pleas.

Ughtred's Case.

HEnry Ughtred Esquire brought a Writ of Annuity against William Marquess of Winchester, son and [b] heir of John Marquess of Winchester, and declared, how that John Marquess of Winton, 20. Decemb. 17 Eliz. tam pro bono & favorabili affectione & benevolentia quas gessit erga eundem Henricum, quam pro confidentia & fidelitate reposit. in eodem Henrico, by his writing did constitute and authorise the said Henry to be Captain of the Fort or Bulwark of the Castle of Netley, alias Letley, in the County of Southampton, To have and exercise the said Office of Captain, during the life of the said Henry, and gave him authority during his life to nominate from time to time a Master Gunner, one Porter, and six Souldiers, &c. And further by the said writing the said John Marquess did grant, pro consideratione prædicta, & pro meliore manutentione ipsius Henrici & magistri tormentor. & sex militum in defensione & tuitione castri prædicti, for him and his heirs, to the said Henry during his life, an Annuity of 32 l. at the feasts of St. Michael, and the Annunciation of our Lady by equal portions, by force of which he was seised of the said Office, and of the said Annuity for his life; and afterwards 10. Nov. 18 Eliz. the said John Marquess died; and the Defendant his son and heir for 11 years before the Writ brought did withhold the Annuity, which in all amounted to 368 l. upon which declaration the Defendant did demur in Law; and according to the Statute did shew divers causes: 1. Because it doth not appear by the declaration, That the said

John

John Lord Marques had power or interest to grant the said Office; and also, because the Plaintiff hath not averred, that he hath exercised the said Office, nor that he did appoint a Master Gunner, Porter, or the Souldiers, and divers other causes were shewed; but notwithstanding these, Judgment was given by the Justices of the Common Pleas for the Plaintiff; whereupon the Marques brought a Writ of Error, and divers Errors were assigned, but all were over-ruled by the Court but one. And that was, that the [10] Plaintiff in the writ of Annuity had not averred in his declaration, that he had exercised the said Office, &c. But after many arguments and consideration of all the Books, in which prima facie seemeth to be some difference in opinions. It was Resolved, that the declaration was good without such averment; and their reason was, That in all cases where an interest or estate doth commence upon a Condition precedent, be the Condition or thing to be performed by the Plaintiff or Defendant, or by any other; and be the Condition in the affirmative or negative, there the Plaintiff ought to shew it in his declaration, and to averr the performance thereof: for there the Interest or estate doth begin in him by the performance of the Condition, and is not in him till the condition be performed. But otherwise it is when the interest and estate passeth presently and vests in the Grantee, and is to be defeated by matter ex post facto, or condition subsequent, be the condition or thing to be performed by the Plaintiff or Defendant, or by any other, and be the condition in the affirmative or negative, there the Plaintiff may declare generally, without shewing the performance thereof, and the same shall be pleaded by him who will take advantage of the condition or matter ex post facto, for every one ought to alledge that which maketh for him, and which is for his avail; and none shall be forced to alledge that which is against himself. And it may well be, that the condition subsequent, or matter ex post facto stands upon many parts; (as in the case at Bar it happeneth) which would be tedious to rehearse all, when issue shall be taken but upon one of them, and the Defendants may plead any one of them which he pleaseth in bar of the action, and so the pleading shall be mort short and compendious, which is the most commendable, if it be sufficient. Here in the case at Bar, the condition was to be performed by the Plaintiff himself, and therefore the case is the stronger, but because that the Plaintiff by the said grant was presently seised of the said Office and Annuity for the term of his life, which ought to be defeated by the not using the said Office, or other subsequent matter: the subsequent matter maketh against him, and therefore shall be pleaded by the Defendant, and therewith agreeth 15 H. 7. 1. In a Writ of Annuity against the successor of a Prior upon a grant made by his predecessor until he was advanced to a Benefice of holy Church, and the Plaintiff declared generally, without saying that he is yet advanced: and for that cause exception was taken to it, and notwithstanding the declaration was adjudged good, because the condition went in defeasance of the annuity, which ought to be shewed on the Defendants part. And also this is an annuity which beginneth before the condition shall be performed, which performance shall wave on the part of the Grantor, and not like where the condition was, That if the Grantee doth such a thing that [b] then he shall have such an annuity, then if he will demand it, he ought to alledge in facto, that the condition is performed; for by the performance thereof the annuity doth begin. And so is the difference by all the Justices; and these are the words of the Book. And so it is said in Colthirst's Case, Plow. Com. 25. b. If I grant unto one that when he shall be promoted unto a Benefice, that he shall have an annuity; if he demand the annuity, he ought first to shew that he is promoted to a Benefice. But if an annuity be granted to one until he be promoted to a Benefice, there he shall have a Writ of Annuity, and shall not shew that he is not yet promoted to a Benefice, because the annuity doth precede, and the promotion is subsequent, and goes in defeasance of the annuity; and therefore it ought to be shewed on the contrary part. But when a man is not intitled but to an action, and the action lieth not, if the condition or consideration be not performed, then the Plaintiff in his declaration ought to shew the performance of it, for the same amounteth to a condition precedent, because the action beginneth upon the condition or consideration performed, as the Book is in 3 Hen. 6. 33. b. Put case that I retein a man to go with me to Rome for forty shillings, that by the going beginneth first the cause of the duty, in which case if he bringeth an action of debt for the same, in his declaration he ought to declare, that he was there, otherwise the declaration shall abate. So if I retein one to serve me for forty shillings by the year; for here by the consideration performed doth the duty begin, so that it is in the nature of an act precedent, and so was the opinion of all the Court in the said Book. But the case in 48 Edw. 3. 3. & 4. was affirmed for good Law, where it appeareth, That Indentures were made between Sir Ralph Pool Knight, of the one part, and Sir Richard Tolcelser of the other part, by which Sir Ralph did covenant with Sir Richard to serve him with three Esquires of Arms in the Wars of France, and Sir Richard did covenant therefore to pay him two and forty Marks: in that case each party had equal remedy, one for the service, and the other for the money, and therefore in debt for the two and forty Marks he may chuse either to declare in general, or specially at his pleasure, by the Rule of the Court. Also when an interest doth pass presently, and is to be defeated by matter ex post facto, yet if it appear to the Court by matter in Law, that the action shall not be maintenable without shewing the performance of the condition, or consideration, there the Plaintiff ought for to add the same for the maintenance of his action, as in 39 Hen. 6. 21, 22. the case was, R. Abbot of Chester granted to John Brewin Esq, by his Deed (without the consent of the Covent) a yearly rent of forty shillings out of his Monastry, pro consilio suo eidem R. Abbati & conventui ejusdem loci impenso, & imposterum impendendo; the said R. Abbot died, and John Brewin brought a Writ of Annuity against the Successor, and added, that he hath given to the said R. nuper Abbati & conventui consilium suum apud W. in negotiis domus prædict. [11] agendis, ad proficuum domus: And Prisot and all the whole Court held that the action was not maintenable against the Successor without such averrment. For the action is not maintenable against the Successor for no contract or grant made by the Abbot only without the Covent, if not that the effect or consideration thereof cometh to the profit of the House. And that such a general averrment was good, for it shall be too long to shew all the causes specially, and therefore against the Successor he ought ought to take ſuch averrment. But in an action againſt the Abbot himſelf, who made the grant, it needeth not to make ſuch averrment, as it is agreed there by all the Court. And ſo for theſe differences: 1. Between an intereſt, or eſtate veſted, and which is to be deveſted by condition or matter ſubſequent, and a condition or matter which precedes the eſtate or intereſt. 2. Between a thing in action which in judgment of Law is to commence upon condition or conſideration precedent, and intereſts or eſtates which begin preſently. 3. When equal remedy is given to both by reciprocal covenants. 4. When by matter apparent the Plaintiffs action ſhall not be mainteined without averrment, although it be in the caſe of an eſtate or intereſt veſted, you will the better underſtand your Books, which ſeem prima facie to diſagree, 21 Ed. 4. 49. 22 Ed. 4. 43. 9 Ed. 4. 20. 37 Hen. 6. 8. 36 Hen. 6. 2. Dyer, 10 Eliz. 270. in Avowry, and 15 *Eliz. Englefield's Caſe.

BEtween the Queen, and Margaret Englefield, Francis Englefield, and others, in an Information upon Intruſion in the Exchequer, which began Trinit. 32 Eliz. the caſe in effect was ſuch, Sir Francis Englefield ſeiſed of the Mannor of Englefield in the County of Berks in Fee, by Indenture dated 2. Jan. 18 Eliz. between him and the ſaid Francis his Nephew, covenanted for the advancement of his blood, &c. to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of himſelf for life, and afterwards to the uſe of his ſaid Nephew, and to the heirs males of his body, and afterwards to the right heirs of the Nephew. And it was further conteined in the ſame Indenture, That becauſe his Nephew was an Infant, ſo that his proof was not then ſeen, and becauſe the Uncle did not think convenient to ſettle the ſaid Inheritance in the Nephew abſolutely, ſo long as the Uncle ſhould live, without a bridle to retein him, if after he ſhould be prodigal, or ſhould be given to intollerable Vices; for this cauſe it was provided, That if the Uncle by himſelf, or by any other during his natural life, deliver or offer to the Nephew a Gold, Ring, to the intent to make void the uſes, that then all the uſes ſhall be void. Hill. 26 Eliz. Sir Francis was Indicted in the Kings Bench by a Jury of Middleſex for Treaſon done at Nemures in Hanonia in partibus tranſmarinis, 20. Octob. 18 Eliz. upon which Indictment he was Outlawed, and afterwards, 4. Aug. 28 Eliz. the Queen by Patent under the Great Seal did leaſe the Land to Foſter and Fitton, two of the Defendants, for forty years, and alſo demiſed to them for forty years, omnes & ſingulos boſcos, ſubboſcos, arbores, & terras boſcales: And afterwards at the Parliament 29. Octob. 28 Eliz. the attainder was confirmed. And further it was Enacted, That he ſhall be attainted of High Treaſon, and ſhall forfeit to the Queen all his Mannors, Lands, Tenements, &c. the day of the Treaſon committed, or at any time after, and that the ſame ſhall be in the actual poſſeſſion of the Queen without office. But further it was provided, by the ſaid Act, That nothing therein ſhould extend to make void any leaſe of Land, or any gift of Goods made by the Queen under the Great Seal, or Exchequer Seal, after the Treaſon committed, &c. And at the ſame Parliament another Act was made, by which it was enacted, That every perſon and perſons which hath, or claimeth to have any eſtate or intereſt, of, in, or out of any land of any of the perſons attainted ſince 18 Eliz. not inrolled of Record, nor certified into the Exchequer, made ſince 1 Eliz. by any of the perſons attainted ſince 18 Eliz. of Treaſon, for conſpiring of the Queens death (as the ſaid Treaſon of Francis Englefield was) within two years after the laſt day of this Seſſion of Parliament, ſhall openly ſhew, and bring forth, into the Queens Majeſties Court of Exchequer, the ſame, his, or their grant, conveyance, and aſſurance, and there in the Term time, in open Court, the ſame ſhall offer and exhibit, upon his, or their Oath, affirming that they have not the ſame, nor can come by it, or that it was never put in writing, then the effect thereof to be entered and enrolled of Record. Or elſe every ſuch conveyance and aſſurance ſhould be void and of none effect to all intents and purpoſes: Saving to every perſon and perſons (other than parties and privies to ſuch conveyance, and ſuch as ſhall not exhibit the ſaid conveyance according to the true meaning of this Act all ſuch right, &c. And afterwards, the 17. Martii, 31 Eliz. the Queen by her Letters Patents under the Great Seal, reciting the uſes, and proviſo of tendring of the Ring, and that the benefit and advantage of the ſaid condition is given to her by the Statutes of this Realm, doth depute, authorize, and in her place and perſon hath put, Richard Broughton and Henry Bouchier, joyntly and ſeverally to deliver or offer the Ring of Gold to Englefield the Nephew, to the intent to make void the uſes in the Indentures. Broughton and Bouchier 8. Martii, 31 Eliz. offer the Ring (and read to him the Patent) to the ſaid Francis the Nephew, which he refuſed: All which fact, with the Patent they certified into the Exchequer 19 Martii 31 Eliz. and the life of Sir Francis Englefield was averred. And the Defendants were charged for intruſion 20 Martii, 31 Eliz. and with the cutting of certain Trees of Elm, and Aſh, and certain Under-woods. And in this Caſe, after many arguments at Bar, and upon open argument at Bench, theſe points were reſolved: 1. The Queen was Tenant for auter vie, and made a

Leaſe for forty years, although that the Queen (having an eſtate but for auter vie) cannot abſolutely contract for a Leaſe for forty years; yet without any recital, or mention of the eſtate for life, the Leaſe is good; for the Leaſe for years is in judgment of Law leſs than the Leaſe for auter vie, and the Queen doth not any wrong or prejudice to any by the demiſe, and is not deceived in her grant; for in Judgment of the Law it is a Leaſe for one and forty years, if ceſtui que vie ſhall ſo long live, but if the Queen had granted a greater eſtate than ſhe lawfully might, as an eſtate in tail, or in fee, there becauſe ſhe could not lawfully do it, ſhe was deceived, and by conſequence her grant void. See the caſe of Alton Woods, in the firſt part of my Reports. And it was ſaid, That if the Queen granteth totum ſtatum ſuum (having a term, or eſtate for life, extent, or other particular eſtate) it is good
[b] enough; for the Queen doth not grant more than ſhe may do by the Law, nor doth any wrong, or make alteration of any eſtate by her grant. And it was Objected, That this condition ſhall not be given to the Queen by the Statute of 33 Hen. 8. cap. 20. for three cauſes: 1. This condition is annexed to Sir Francis with ſuch inſeparable privity, that it cannot be given to another; for in this caſe, the ſubſtance of the condition is the intent and mind of Sir Francis, but becauſe his intent and mind cannot appear without open act, for this cauſe the Ring ſhall be tendred as a declaration of his intent, which was inward and ſecret to himſelf, ſo that the tender of the Ring is but the outward ceremony, but the ſubſtance of the condition is the mind and will of Sir Francis, which cannot be paſſed over to another. Alſo in this caſe Nature is made Judge; for the Uncle is to judge of the quality and diſpoſition of the Nephew, and whether he giveth cauſe to his Uncle to revoke and diſanul his eſtate; and therefore as natural love and affection cannot be transferred to another, ſo this conveyance, of which natural love and affection is the cauſe of the creation of it, and the judge of the determination of it, cannot be revoked or determined by any other; and all that agreeth with the reaſon of the Common Law; for the Wardſhip of the eldeſt Son which the Law of Nature giveth to the Father is inſeparable, and cannot be forfeited or transferred to another, as it is agreed in 33 H. 6. And Homage Anceſtrel is inſeparable, becauſe it is annexed to the blood of the Lord and the Tenant. 2. By the general words of the Act of 33 Hen. 8. conditions ſeparable, and which may be performed by others, and not inſeparable, are given to the King, as appeareth by divers caſes grounded upon divers Acts of Parliament here put, and after agreed. 3. It was Objected, That the ſame being a collateral condition, although that the condition be given to the King, ſcil. the benefit of it, if it be performed, yet the performance of it is not given to the King by the Act. And therefore Sir Francis ought for to tender the Ring, and not the Queen. And therefore put caſe, that the condition had been, if the Chief Juſtice of England, for the time being, ſhall tender a Ring after the attainder of Sir Francis, the Queen cannot tender it; and the reaſon of the ſaid Books in 12 Hen. 4. 2. & 9 Hen. 7. 17. & 20. 4 Hen. 8. Dyer 1. &c. was urged, where collateral conditions cannot be altered, and other things taken in ſatisfaction of them between the ſame parties; a fortiori here, for here the perſon who by expreſs words ought to perform the condition ſhall be changed. As to the firſt and ſecond Objection, Manwood Chief Baron, and the whole Court held, That all the force and effect of the condition in the caſe at Bar did conſiſt upon the tender of the Ring; and the other matter of reaſon and cauſe, which moved and induced him to leave the power and bridle in himſelf, was not any parcel of the proviſo, but a flouriſh (as he termed it) and preamble; and nothing is parcel of the con-
[13] dition but that which cometh after the proviſo, and that is the tender of the Ring. And as to that, the difference was taken and agreed by the whole Court, ſcil. Between conditions which are perſonal and individual, and cannot be performed by any other; and conditions which are not ſo inſeparably annexed to the perſon but that they may be performed by any other; as it was reſolved in the caſe of Thomas Duke of Norfolk, who in Anno 18 Eliz. conveyed his lands to the uſe of himſelf for life, and afterwards to the uſe of Philip Earl of Arundel his eldeſt Son in tail, with divers Remainders over, with proviſo, That if he ſhould be minded to alter, and revoke the ſaid uſes, and ſhould ſignifie his mind in Writing under his proper hand and Seal, and ſubſcribed by three credible witneſſes, that then, &c. And afterwards the ſaid Duke was attainted of High Treaſon, that this proviſo or condition was not given to the Queen by the ſaid Act of 33 Hen. 8. becauſe the performance of the ſame was perſonal and inſeparably annexed to his perſon, that is to ſay, to ſignifie his mind by writing under his own hand, which none could but the Duke himſelf: upon which point all the poſſeſſions of the Dukedom ſo conveyed were ſaved, and not forfeited by the attainder, 35 Hen. 6. 56. The Templers held divers of their poſſeſſions in Frankalmoign (which Tenure as Littleton ſaith, is annexed in privity to the blood of the Donor) and afterwards they were diſſolved, and by Parliament, anno 17 Ed. 2. their poſſeſſions were given to the Hoſpitalers, to hold them in the ſame manner as the Templers held, yet they by thoſe general words held not in Frankalmoign, becauſe the privity of the Tenure on the part of the Tenant doth not continue, and this privity being perſonal and inſeparable, by ſuch general words was not transferred to the Hoſpitalers. The ſame Law of the Impropriation of a Church, which alſo is an incident inſeparable to a Houſe of Religion to which the Church is impropriate. And therefore it is adjudged in P. 3 Ed. 3. that the Hoſpitalers by the ſaid Act of 17 Ed. 2. ſhould not have the Impropriation, for it was inſeparably annexed to the Corporation of Templers, which thing conſiſting in inſeparable privity by general words of an Act of Parliament, ſhall not be transferred to others. So was it adjudged Trin. 25 Eliz. in the Marqueſs of Wincheſters Caſe, which ſee in the Fourth Part of my Reports, That by general words of all Hereditaments, &c. a Writ of Error which a perſon attainted had was not given to the King; for a Writ of Error is a Writ which lieth in privity. And the Chief Baron ſaid, That he never ſaw in any Act of Parliament actions which belonged to the perſon attainted given to the King. In the time of Hen. 8. Br. Corodie 3. it is holden, That a Founderſhip, which alſo is a thing annexed inſeparably to the blood of the Founder, ſhall not be forfeited by attainder, vide L. 5. Ed. 4. But in the Caſe at Bar, the condition ſcil. the tender tender of the Ring, is not annexed to the perſon of Sir Francis, but every one may do it as well as he. [b] The ſame Law of payment of money, delivery of gilt ſpurrs, or other like. As to the third Objection it was reſolved, That when the Statute giveth the condition to the Queen, that the performance thereof (which is not perſonal, and inſeparable) is alſo given to the Queen, as incident to it: For the performance is the ſubſtance and the effect of the condition; and the Statute putteth the King in the place of the perſon attainted, to do the ſame for the performance of the condition, which is feaſible, and which is not inſeparably annexed to the perſon of him who is attainted. 4. It was objected, That although the condition ſhall be given to the Queen, and the performance of it alſo, yet the leaſe ſhall not be void; for the eſtate for life of Sir Francis was not ſubject to the condition. For a uſe at the Common Law was a truſt and confidence repoſed in a perſon, that another perſon ſhould have the profits, ſo that there ought to be a ſeparation of the poſſeſſion from the uſe, either by Covenant, or Feoffment, Fine, or other Conveyance, by the which there is a tranſmutation of the poſſeſſion: But in our Caſe he himſelf ſtood ſeiſed to the uſe of himſelf for life, which could not be as an uſe, for he himſelf is Terr-Tenant and there is not any ſeparation of the poſſeſſion, and it is not any truſt or confidence, and he could not have a Subpœna againſt himſelf before the Statute; and the Statute of 27 H. 8. doth execute the poſſeſſion to him only who hath an uſe, and who hath not a poſſeſſion before; But Sir Francis in our caſe had the poſſeſſion before, and therefore the Statute cannot give a poſſeſſion to him, but his eſtate for life was parcel of his old eſtate. And note, The Statute of 27 H. 8. ſaith, To the uſe of another perſon, &c. ſo that another perſon ought to have the uſe, than he who hath the poſſeſſion. And vide 30 H 8. Feoffments al uſes 47. Ceſtuy que uſe in tail before the Statute was enfeoffed by the Feoffees; and after the Statute of 27 H. 8. was made, the Statute ſhall not give him a poſſeſſion in tail according to the uſe, becauſe he had the poſſeſſion before, becauſe there was not any ſeparation of the uſe and poſſeſſion at the time of the making of the Statute. And then if the eſtate for life be parcel of his old eſtate, it is not ſubject to the ſame Proviſo or Condition, and by conſequence by the performance of the Condition, the eſtate for life is not defeated, and then the leaſe for 40 years, which is derived out of the ſame, remaineth good. But it was Reſolved by the Court, That Sir Francis had an eſtate for life by the limitation of the uſe, and the operation of the Statute of 27 H. 8. And they much relied upon the reaſon and Rule of Bainton's Caſe in Plow. Com. That a man for the advancement of his heirs males, may Covenant to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of himſelf and the heirs of his body, in that caſe there is no ſeparation of the poſſeſſion and uſe, and yet the Statute doth create an eſtate in tail in poſſeſſion in him, in which caſe all the eſtate tail is in himſelf: [14] but that is for the benefit of the heir male, although it is in futuro, and not in præſenti, for none can know who ſhall be his heir male, For Solus Deus facit hæredes, non homo. But in this caſe it is for the benefit of the Nephew in præſenti to have the uſes raiſed according to the Indentures. 4. It was objected, That although the eſtate for life be defeated by the Condition, yet the Queen ſhall not avoid her own leaſe; For when the Queen hath an eſtate for the life of another, and ſhe maketh a leaſe for years, although that the Queen doth perform the Condition, ſhe ſhall not avoid the leaſe. As if in ſuch caſe a common perſon had had an eſtate for life, and the Queen the Condition, and the common perſon had made a leaſe of the land, and the Queen had confirmed it, and afterwards the Condition is performed, yet the leaſe is good. And if a Mortgagee maketh a leaſe for years, and the Mortgagor confirmeth it, and afterwards the Condition is performed, the leaſe ſhall not be avoided. And Arden's Caſe was cited. Tenant in tail maketh a leaſe for life, now he hath gained a new Fee by wrong, and afterwards he granteth a Rent-Charge, or maketh a leaſe for years, and afterwards Tenant for life dieth, he ſhall not avoid his charge or leaſe, although he be in of another eſtate, becauſe he had a deſeaſible poſſeſſion, and ancient Right, the which if they be in ſeveral hands, ſhould be good; as the leaſe of one, and the confirmation of the other, and being in one hand ſhall be as much in judgment of Law. Note the leaſe is the ſtronger caſe than the charge, 11 H. 7. 21. Edrich Tenant in tail made a feoffment to his uſe upon condition, and afterwards upon his Recognizance the land is extended by the Statute of 1 R. 3. and afterwards he performeth the condition, yet the intereſt of the Conuſee ſhall not be avoided, and yet the eſtate is charged Cauſa qua ſupra. And all that was affirmed by the Court. But as to that it was Reſolved, That the demiſe of the Queen ſhall not enure (to her ſpecial prejudice) to two intents, ſcil. to a demiſe of the land, and alſo a ſuſpenſion of her condition, by which ſhe may defeat the eſtate for life, and the other eſtates as it ſhall be in the caſe of a common perſon, either to a demiſe in reſpect of his preſent eſtate for the life of another, and alſo to a confirmation in reſpect of his condition; by which otherwiſe ſhe may diſpoſe all, as it ſhall be in the caſe of a common perſon. For the grant of the Queen ſhall be taken according to her expreſs intention comprehended in her grant, and ſhall not extend to any other thing by conſtruction or implication which doth not appear by her grant that her intent did extend to. And therefore in ſuch caſes the Queen ought to be truly informed, and ſhe ought to make a ſpecial and particular grant, which by expreſs words may enure to all ſuch ſeveral intents as are deſired; as 17 E. 3. 39. An advowſon holden of the King is aliened to an Abbot, now the King hath title to the advowſon for the Mortmain, and afterwards the King by his Letters Patents granteth to the Abbot that he may hold the advowſon to his own uſe, yet he ſhall not loſe the advantage of Mortmain, for when the King hath two rights in him, he cannot exclude himſelf of both without ſpecial words, vide 9 H. 7. 14. Plow. Com. 397. &c. And if in this caſe the demiſe of the Queen ſhall amount to a confirmation by force of her condition, or if the demiſe ſhall amount to a ſuſpenſion of the condition, then upon that it ſhould follow, that ſhe during the term could not perform the condition, which ſhould be very prejudicial to the Queen. 6. And as to the Tender by force of the ſaid Letters Patents, and the Certificate thereof into the Exchequer, It was objected, That the ſame ſhall not be ſufficient, but the Tender ought to be found by office, for although that the Letters Patents are of Record, yet the Tender it ſelf is matter in fact, which ought to be found by Office; For the Certificate of the Bishop by force of the Kings Writ, or of the Marshal of the Kings Host, as in 2 Ed. 4. 1. which in the like cases are not traversable, but are trials in Law and shall bind parties. But in our case, if this Certificate which is not made upon any ordinary course of proceeding shall be good in Law, it shall be great prejudice to the party; for no Certificate which is allowed and warranted by the Common Law, is traversable; and then the matter may be false, and the party disinherited, and yet he shall not have any remedy, which shall be very inconvenient. But it was Resolved by the whole Court, That the Tender and Certificate in this case was good enough, and that the party grieved if it be false, may traverse the same, and shall not be concluded by it, for the same was not in nature of a trial, but of a Record to inform and satisfie the Queen of her title. Also they Resolved, That presently by the Tender of the Ring according to the Proviso, or Condition, the uses were determined, and void in Law, and by consequence the land vested in the Queen by force of the Attainder, and of the Act of 33 H. 8. 7. It was objected, That the said Conveyance was void by the Act of 28 Eliz. And then Sir Francis, at the time of his Treason com[b] mitted, and Attainder thereupon, seised of the said Lands in Fee which were forfeited to the Queen, and vested in her by the said act of 33 H. 8. and by consequence, the said Lease made by the Queen (being at the time thereof seised in Fee) is good. And to prove that the Conveyance was void by the Statute before the said tender of the Ring, so that the estate was not defeated by the Condition, but the Conveyance in which the Condition was contained was void by the act of 28 Eliz. before the said tender of the Ring, and before the Lease made; The words of the Statute are, That every person, &c. within two years after the last day of that Session, shall openly shew and bring forth into the Exchequer his conveyance, and there in the Term time in open Court shall exhibit, &c. the same to be entred and inrolled of record, &c. And the tender of the Ring was 18. Mart. before which day all the Terms in the two years were past; so that after Hillary Term past Ann. 31. it was not possible that the Conveyance should be enrolled within the two years in open Court in Term time. For the two years passed by effluxion of time before Easter Term; And therefore presently after Hillary Term passed, the Conveyance was void; and by consequence the Condition also. And thereupon the Case in Temps E. 1. Covenant 29. & F. N. B. was put. That although the Covenant be that he leave the wood in as good plight, &c. at the end of the Term, if the Lessee cutteth down the trees, he shall presently have an action of Covenant, for it is not possible that he leave the trees, &c. at the end of the Term, so that the impossibility of the act shall give a present action upon a future Covenant. But it was Resolved by the Court, That at the time of the tender of the Ring the said Conveyance, and by consequence the Condition was in force. And their reason was, because that the Statute doth not require that the enrolment of the Conveyance, which is the act of the Court, shall be within the two years; but the shewing and exhibiting thereof, which is the act of the party, ought to be within the two years: For as to the shewing and exhibiting of the Conveyance, the words are (within two years, &c. shall, &c. there in the Term time in open Court exhibit the same) then the words next following are, (to be entred and enrolled of record) so that no time is limited when it shall be enrolled; but if the words had been, (and then and there shall be entred and enrolled of record) then the Conveyance ought to have been enrolled within the two years: but as the words are, it may be enrolled after the two years, And this was the first case (that I know) that was argued and adjudged upon the same Act of 33 H. 8. which giveth Conditions of persons attainted of Treason to the King. And in the Argument of this case, the case of Thomas Markenfield Esq; Anno 19 Eliz. in the Exchequer, and divers other cases of persons attainted of Treason, who had power of Revocation, were cited: and upon consideration of them by the Barons, they resolved ut supra, and gave judgment for the Queen. But the Counsel of Sir Francis Englefield were not satisfied with the Judgment, and chiefly as to the principal point: For they conceived, that as the Case is, the Condition was so inseparably annexed to the person of Sir Francis, that the same was not given to the Queen by the said Act of 33 H. 8. And their advice was to bring a Writ of Error. But at the next Parliament, scil. 35 Eliz. a special Act of Parliament was made for to establish the forfeiture to the Queen.

Trin. 34 Eliz.

The Case of Swans.

BEtween the Queen, and the Lady Joan Young, late the wife of Sir John Young Knight, deceased, and Thomas Saunger Defendant, the Case was such; And Office was found at W. in the County of Dorset, 18. Septemb. Ann. 32 Eliz. before Sir Matthew Arundel and others Commissioners of the Queen under the Great Seal, Quod villa de Abbotsbury, *in prædict. Saunger, & quod quilibet eorum est valoris 2 s. 6 d. quodque major pars tempore captionis dictæ inquisitionis minime fuer. signat. which Office being certified into the Exchequer, a Writ was directed to the Sheriff of the same County to seise all the said white Swans not marked, by force whereof [16] the Sheriff returned, that he had seised 400 white Swans, &c. To which afterwards, Hil. 34 Eliz. the said Joan Young and Thomas Saunger pleaded; Quod prædict. æstuaria sive aqua, jacet in Parochia de Abbotsbury bury in Com. Dorset (and abutted it) and that before the Inquisition taken, The Abbot of Abbotsbury was seised de prædict. æstuaria, & de ripis & solo ejusdem in fee, and that at the time of the Inquisition, and time out of mind, &c. there was, and yet is, quidem volatus cignorum & cignettorum ferorum, called a Game of Wild Swans, in æstuaria sive aqua illa, & ripis, & solo ejusdem nidificant. gignen' & frquentant. Anglice haunting, de quo quidem volatu cignorum & cignettorum, prædict. Com. Dorset nuper dict. Monasterio, &c. adeo plene & integre &c. & in tam amplis modo & forma, &c. and that the said Giles died, and that the same descended to Giles Strangwaies his Cosin and heir, who demised to the Defendants the said Game of Swans for one year, and prayed quod manus dictæ Dominæ Reginæ amoveantur. Upon which the Queens Attorney did demur in Law.

1. It was Resolved, That all white Swans not marked, which have gained their natural liberty, and are swimming in an open and common River may be seised to the Kings use by his Prerogative, because that Volatilia, (que sunt feræ naturæ) alia sunt regalia, alia communia: and so Aquatilium, alia sunt regalia, alia communia: as a Swan is a Royal Fowl; and all those, the property whereof is not known, do belong to the King by his Prerogative: and so Whales and Sturgeons are Royal Fishes, and belong to the King by his Prerogative. And there hath been an ancient Officer of the Kings called Magister deductus cignorum, which continueth to this day. But it was Resolved also, That the Subject may [b] have property in white Swans not marked, as some may have Swans not marked in his private waters, the property of which belongeth to him, and not to the King; and if they go out of his private waters into an open and common River, he may bring them back and take them again. And therewith agreeth Bracton, lib. 2. cap. 1. fol. 9. Si autem animalia fera facta fuerint mansueta, & ex consuetudine eunt, & redeunt, volant, & revolant, (ut sunt Cervi, Cigni, Pavones, & Columbæ, & hujusmodi) eo usque nostra intelliguntur, quamdiu habuerint animum revertendi. But if they have gained their natural liberty, and are swimming in an open and common River, the Kings Officer may seise them in the open and common River for the King: For a white Swan without such pursuit as aforesaid cannot be known from another, and when the property of the Swan cannot be known, the same being of its nature a Fowl Royal, doth belong to the King; and in this case the Book of 7 H. 6. 27. was vouched, where Sir John Tiptoft brought an action of Trespas for wrongful taking of his Swans; the Defendant pleaded that he was seised of the Lordship of S. within which Lordship, all those whose estate he hath in the said Lordship, had had time out of mind, &c. all estraies within the said Mannor; and we say that the said Swans were estraying at the time in the place where, &c. and that we as Lords did seise and make proclamations in Fairs and Markets, and so soon as we had notice that they were your Swans, we delivered them to you at such a place. The Plaintiff replies, That he was seised of the Mannor of B. joyning to the Lordship of S. and we say, that we and our Ancestors, and all those, &c. have used time out of mind, &c. to have Swans swimming through all the Lordship of S. and we say, that long time before the taking we put them in there, and gave notice of them to the Defendant that they were our Swans; and prayed his Damages. And the opinion of Strange there was well approved by the Court, That the Replication was good: For when the Plaintiff may lawfully put his Swans there, they cannot be estraies, no more than the Cattel of any can be estraies in such a place where they ought to have Common; because they are there where the Owner hath an interest to put them, and in which place they may be without negligence or lacheſs of the Owner. Out of which Case, these points were observed concerning Swans: 1. That every one who hath Swans within his Mannor, that is to say, within his private waters, hath a property in them, for the Writ of Trespas was of wrongful taking his Swans; scil. Quare cignos suos, &c. 2. That one may prescribe to have a Game of Swans within his Mannor, as well as a Warren, or Park. 3. That he who hath such a Game of Swans may prescribe, [17] that his Swans may swim within the Mannor of another. 4. That a Swan may be an Estray, and so cannot any other Fowl be that I have ever read in any Book. In 2 R. 3. 15, & 16. The Lord Strange and Sir John Charleton brought an Action of Trespas against three, because the Defendants had taken and carried away 40 Cignets of the Plaintiffs in the County of Bucks, to his damages of 10 l. One of the Defendants pleaded, That the water of Thamise doth run through the whole Realm, and that the County of Buckingham is adjoyning to the Thamise, and that the Custom of the said County of Buckingham is, and hath been time out of mind, &c. That every Swan (for Cignet in the Book is taken for a Swan) which hath course in any water, which water runs to the Thamise within the same County, That if any Swan cometh upon the land of any man, and there buildeth, and hath Cignets upon the same land, that then he who hath the property of the Swan shall have two of the Cignets, and he who hath the land shall have the third Cignet, which shall be of less value than the other two: and that was adjudged a good custom, because the possessor of the land doth suffer them to build there, where he may drive them off. And by this Judgment it also appeareth, That a man may alledge a Custom or Prescribe in Swans or Cignets. And in the same Case it is said, That the truth of the matter was, that the Lord Strange had certain Swans which were Cocks, and Sir John Charleton certain Swans which were Hens, and they had Cignets between them; and for these Cignets the owners did joyn in one Action; for in such case by general custom of the Realm, which is the Common Law in such case, the Cignets do belong to both the owners in common equally, scil. to the owner of the Cock, and the owner of the Hen; and the Cignets shall be divided betwixt them. And the Law thereof is grounded upon a reason in nature; for the Cock Swan is an emblem or representation of an affectionate and true Husband to his Wife above all other Fowl; for the Cock Swan holdeth himself to one female only; and for this cause nature hath conferred upon him a gift beyond all others; that is, to die so joyfully, that he singeth sweetly when he dieth; upon which the Poet saith;

and

Cantator, cygnus, funeris ipse sui, &c.

And therefore this case of the Swan doth differ from the case of Kine, or other bruit beasts. Vide 7 Hen. 4. 9. And it was agreed, That none can have a Swan-mark, which in Latin is called (cigninota) if it be not by the grant of the King, or of his Officers authorised thereto, or by prescription. And if he hath a lawful Swan-mark, and hath Swans swimming in open and common Rivers, lawfully marked therewith, they belong to him ratione privilegii. But none shall have a Swan-mark, or Game of Swans, if he hath not Lands or Tenements of an Estate of Freehold of the yearly value of five Marks, above all charges, upon pain of forfeiture of his Swans: And that is by the Statute of 22 Ed. 4. cap. 6. And he who hath such a Swan-mark may grant it over. And therefore I have seen a notable president in the time of Hen. 6. which is such, Notum sit omnibus præsentibus & futuris, quod ego Johannes Steward Miles,
[b] dedi & concessi Thomæ filio meo primogenito, & hæredibus suis, cigninotam meam, armorum meorum, prout in margine laterali pingitur, quæ mihi juræ hæreditario descendebat, post mortem Johan. Steward militis patris mei: Habend. sibi & hæredibus suis, una cum omnibus cignis & cigniculis, cum dicta nota baculi nodati signat', sub conditione quod quilibet feria solis durante vita, a gula Augusti, usque ad Canisprivium apud domum meam de Darford, unum cigniculum bene signatum mihi aut meis deliberet, quod si defecerit, tunc volo, quod hoc præsens chirographum cassetur penitus, & pro nihilo habeatur. In cujus rei testimonium, ad instantiam Matildæ uxoris meæ, meum sigillum secretum Christi crucifixi presentibus feci apponi. Hiis testibus, Rob. Clerico, Johan. de Conyers, Alano Fabro, & al'. Dat. apud domum meam mansionalem de Darf. in vigilia S. Dunst. Ep. anno Regni Regis Henrici post conquestum Angliæ sexti 14. And in the Margent was painted a little ragged staff. And in this case it was Resolved, That in some of them which are feræ naturæ, a man hath jus proprietatis, a right of property, and in some of them a man hath jus privilegii, a right of priviledge. And there are three manner of rights of Property, scil. Property absolute, Property qualified, and Property possessory. A man hath not absolute property in any thing which is feræ naturæ, but in those which are domitæ naturæ. Property qualified and possessory a man may have in those which are feræ naturæ, and to such property a man may attain by two ways, by industry, or ratione impotentiæ & loci, by industry, as by taking of them, or by making of them tame, mansueta, i. e. manui assueta, or domestica, i. e. domi assueta: But in those which are feræ naturæ, and by industry made tame, a man hath but a qualified property in them, scil. so long as they remain tame, for if they do attain to their natural liberty, and have not animum revertendi, the property is lost, ratione impotentiæ & loci: As if a man have young Shovelers or Goshawks, or the like, which are feræ naturæ, and build in my land, I have possessory property in them, for if one taketh them when they cannot fly, the owner of the soil shall have an action of Trespass, Quare boscum suum fregit, & tres pullos esperuorum suorum, or ardearum suarum, precii tantum, nuper in eodem bosco nidificant', cepit & asportavit; and therewith agreeth the Register, and Fitz. Nat. Brev. 86. b. & 98. b. 10 Ed. 4. 14. 18 Ed. 4. 8. 14 Hen. 8. 1. b. Stamford 25. b. &c. Vide 12 Hen. 8. 4. & 18 Hen. 8. 2. But when a man hath savage Beasts ratione privilegii, as by reason of a Park, Warren, &c. he hath not any property in the Deer, or Conies, or Pheasants, or Partridges; and therefore in an action, Quare Parcum, Warrennam, &c. fregit & intravit, & 3. damas, lepores, cuniculos, phasianos, perdices, &c. cepit & asportavit, he shall not say (suos) for he hath not property in them, but they do belong to him ratione privilegii, for his game and pleasure, so long as they remain in the priviledged place: for if the owner of the Park dieth, his heir shall have them, and not his Executors or Administrators, because without them the Park which is an Inheritance is not compleat; nor shall [18] Felony be committed of them, But of those which are made tame, in which a man by his industry hath any property, Felony may be committed of them. And therewith agreeth the rule in 3 Hen. 6. 55 b. 8 Ed. 4. 5. b. 22 Hen. 6. 59. which is ill reported, and 43 Ed. 3. 24. vide 22 Ass. 12 Hen. 8. 3. 13 Eliz. Dyer 306. 38 Edw. 3. 10. Vide 2 Ed. 2. tit. Distress, 2 Ed. 2. Avowry 182. But a man may have property in some things which are of so base nature, that no Felony can be committed of them, and no man shall lose life or member for them, as of a Blood-hound, or Mastiff, molossus, 12 Hen. 8. 3. Vide 18 Hen. 8. 2. But he who stealeth the Eggs of Swans out of the Nest, shall be imprisoned for a year and a day, and fined to the King, one moity to the King, the other to the owner of the land where the Eggs were taken, and that by the Statute of 11 Hen. 7. cap. 17. And it hath been said of old time, That he who stealeth a Swan in an open and common River, lawfully marked, the same Swan (if it may be) shall be hung in a house by the beak, and he who stole it, shall in recompence thereof, give to the owner so much Wheat that may cover all the Swan, by putting and turning the Wheat upon the head of the Swan, until the head of the Swan be covered with the Weat. And it was Resolved, That in the principal case the prescription was insufficient; for the effect of the prescription is to have all wild Swans, which are feræ naturæ, and not marked, nidificant', gignent', & frequentant', within the said Creek. And such prescription for a Warren shall be insufficient, scil. to have all Pheasants and Partridges, nidificantes, gignentes, and frequenting within his Mannor. But he ought to say, to have free Warren of them within his Mannor: For although they are nidificantes, gignentes, and and frequenting within the Mannor, he cannot have them jure privilegii, but ſo long as they are within the place. But it was Reſolved, That if the Defendants had alledged, that within the ſaid Creek there had been time out of mind, &c. a game of wild Swans not marked, building and breeding; and then have preſcribed, that ſuch Abbot and all his Predeceſſors, &c. had uſed at all times to have and take to their uſe ſome of the ſaid Game of wild Swans and their Cignets within the ſaid Creek, the ſame had been good; for although that Swans are Royal Fowls, yet in ſuch a manner a man may preſcribe in them; for that may have a lawful beginning by the Kings grant: For in Rot. Parliam. 16 *Rich.*2.*part.*1. numero 39. like grant was of wild Swans unmarked in the County of Cambridge, to B. Bereford Knight. The like grant in Rot. Parl. ann. 30 Edw. 3. part. 2. num. 20. the King granted to C. W. all his wild Swans unmarked between Oxford and London for ſeven years. In Rot. Parl. an. 1 Hen. 4. part. 6. num. 14. A grant was made to John Fenne, to ſurvey and keep all wild Swans unmarked, ita quod de proficuo reſpondeat ad Scaccarium. By which it appeareth, that the King may grant wild Swans unmarked; and by conſequence a man may preſcribe in them within a certain place, becauſe it may have a lawful beginning. And a man may preſcribe to have Royal Fiſh within his Mannor, as is holden in 39 Ed. 3. 35. for the reaſon aforeſaid. And yet without preſcription they do belong to the King by his Prerogative. Mich. 39 & 40 Eliz. in the Exchequer.

Sir Thomas Cecil's Caſe.

Sir Thomas Cecil being ſeiſed of the Mannor of Strickſton in the County of North. did enter into communication with one Foſter to exchange divers parcels thereof with him for certain Lands which the ſaid Foſter had in the ſame Town; and before any exchange perfected, Sir Thomas did convey the ſaid Mannor, and the ſaid land of the ſaid Foſter by the ſpecial name of Foſter, by Deed indented and inrolled, to Queen Elizabeth, her heirs and ſucceſſors, and covenanted with the Queen that he was ſeiſed as well of the ſaid Mannor as of the ſaid land late Foſters, of a good eſtate in Fee-ſimple; and the ſaid Sir Thomas was bound unto the Queen in an Obligation of ten thouſand pound to perform the ſaid Covenant amongſt others. And the ſaid Sir Thomas had before that time exhibited an Engliſh Bill into the Exchequer Chamber, containing the matter aforeſaid; and that the ſaid lands, parcel of the ſaid Mannor intended to be given in exchange to Foſter, were of greater value than the land of the ſaid Foſter, ſo that the Queen was deceived in the value; which lands parcel of the Mannor paſſed to the King by the Conveyance of the Mannor, and not leſs, the Covenant and Obligation of the ſaid Sir Thomas as to that was broken and forfeited by the rigour of Law. But the ſaid Sir Thomas in his Bill did relie upon the Statute of 33 Hen. 8. cap. 39. by which it is enacted, That if any perſon to whom any ſuch debt, or duty is, or at any time hereafter ſhall be demanded, alledge, plead, declare, or ſhew in any of the ſaid Courts, good, perfect, and ſufficient cauſe, and matter in Law, reaſon, or good conſcience, in bar or diſcharge of the ſaid Debt, or duty, or why ſuch perſon or perſons ought not to be charged or chargeable to, or with the ſame, and the ſame cauſe or matter ſufficiently prove in ſuch one of the ſaid Courts as he or they ſhall be impleaded, ſued, vexed, or troubled for the ſame; That then the ſaid Court, and every of them, ſhall have full power and authority to accept, judge, and allow of the ſame proof, and wholly and clearly to acquit and diſcharge all, and every perſon and perſons that ſhall be ſo pleaded, vexed, ſued, or troubled for the ſame, any thing in this preſent Act mentioned to the contrary notwithſtanding, &c. And that Proceſs was ſued againſt him upon the ſaid Bond out of the Court of Exchequer. Upon which Act of Parliament, and the matter aforeſaid (being as he ſuppoſed good, perfect, and ſufficient cauſe and matter in reaſon, and good conſcience within the ſaid Act to diſcharge him of the ſaid Bond) The ſaid Sir Thomas by his ſaid Bill prayed to be relieved, and thereupon he had a Commiſſion to examine Witneſſes, to prove the matter of his Bill to be true; which was returned, and publiſhed. And upon the hearing of the cauſe in the Exchequer Chamber, it appeared by teſtimony of divers witneſſes, That the Plaintiff had made direct proof of all the parts of his Bill, And now in this Term, 39 & 40 Eliz. divers Queſtions were moved touching that matter. The firſt and the principal was, If the branch of the ſaid Act doth extend to any Debt mentioned in the ſaid Act, for which the King hath remedy by the Common Law, or in ſuch debts, or ſuch caſes only for which the ſaid Act giveth remedy to the King which he had not before. 2. If the Court may make a diſcharge by decree upon that Engliſh Bill within the intention of the Act. And as to the firſt, It is to know, that divers branches of the Act are to be conſidered: 1. The Act maketh all Obligations to the King in nature of a Statute Staple. 2. Another branch giveth there ſuit to the King, although the Obligation had been made to another to the uſe of the King. 3. That the King upon ſuit upon every Obligation made, or to be made, ſhall recover damages and coſts. 4. The Statute giveth remedy to the King for recovery of his debt or duty, &c. by Capias, Extend' fac. Subpœna, Attachment, and Proclamation of Allegiance (if need be) or otherwiſe as to any of the Courts ſhall be by their diſcretions thought expedient for the ſpeedy recovery of the Kings Debts. 5. There is a clauſe, That the King ſhall be preferred in his execution before common perſons. 6. The heir who claimeth by the gift of his Anceſtor ſhall be bound to pay the Debt to the King (due before or after the gift) by Judgment, Recognizance, Obligation, or other ſpecialty, and ſhall bind the [19] [b]

the land alſo to the Kings debts againſt the iſſue in tail; then cometh the ſaid Proviſo whereof the Queſtion doth ariſe. Provided always, and be it enacted, That if any perſon, &c. And it was Objected, That it ſhall extend only in ſuch caſes in which remedy given to the King by this Statute; as where a Bond was made to the uſe of the King, or in charging the iſſue in tail, or in charging the heir who claimeth by gift before the debt accrued, &c. there becauſe the Statute giveth the King remedy which he had not before, this branch giveth to the party ſo charged by this Act, a plea to diſcharge him, either by matter of bar in Law, or in good Conſcience. And that was ſtrongly enforced by the Concluſion of this Proviſo: for the concluſion is, (as it appeareth before) any thing in this Act before mentioned to the contrary notwithſtanding; So that the ſence was, That the party might take any matter in Law or good Conſcience, notwithſtanding any thing contained in this Act; which is as much as to ſay, that this Act ſhall be no impediment to it. But in our Caſe, the King hath remedy by the Common Law, and therefore this Proviſo ſhall not help him. As to that it was anſwered and reſolved by the Court, That the ſaid Sir Thomas Cecil upon the matter aforeſaid was to be relieved by the Aid of this Proviſo. For the ſaid Act of 33 H. 8. hath given benefit and advantage to the King: 1. In making every Bond made to the King in nature of a Statute Staple. 2. In giving remedy to the King himſelf for Obligations made to others to his uſe. 3. To recover coſts and damages. 4. In ſuing of execution for all his debts. 5. In charging the iſſue in tail, and the heir who hath the land of the gift of his anceſtor: and therefore it was the intent of the Act to gratifie the ſubject, that where new proviſion was made for the levying of the Kings debt in more ſpeedy and beneficial manner, than the King had before, the ſubject alſo ſhould have ſome new benefit which he had not before, and that was to diſcharge himſelf by matter alledged to be a diſcharge in good Conſcience: Alſo this Proviſo giveth not benefit only to him who hath matter in good Conſcience, but alſo to him who hath good, perfect, and ſufficient cauſe and matter in Law, reaſon, (and then cometh) good conſcience: And without queſtion the firſt words, (cauſe and matter in Law) ſhall extend to all the Kings debts and proceſs thereupon, as well at the Common Law, as upon this Act. And the Concluſion of the ſaid branch maketh not againſt it, for the ſence of that was, that he plead matter in Law or good Conſcience, and that [20] nothing contained in the ſaid Act ſhall be an impediment to it. And ſo was it holden in the like caſe upon other words, in the ſecond Saving of 27 H. 8. cap. 10. of Uſes, in Cheinie's Caſe, where the Proviſo ſaveth the right, &c. of &c. as if the Act had not been made; and there the caſe was, That the Leſſor did enfeoff the Leſſee to the uſe of others, in which caſe, if the Statute had never been made, the term had been drowned at the Common Law. But Trin. 27 Eliz. it was Reſolved, That the Term was ſaved, and the ſame expoſition made of the words as before. Alſo theſe notable preſidents were cited, which were Reſolved in the Exchequer by the Barons upon Conference had with the two chief Juſtices; one in the caſe of Sir William Herbert, in Trin. 37 Eliz. who was relieved upon the ſaid branch of the ſaid Act by matter in Equity, becauſe in Scire facias againſt him as heir to Matthew Herbert his Father, the Sheriff returned Scire feci, and upon his default Judgment was given, as you may ſee in Matthew Herbert's Caſe, in the Third Part of my Reports. And becauſe in truth he was never ſummoned, and had good matter, if he had notice thereof, to plead in diſcharge of the ſaid Recognizance, becauſe he had no land by deſcent from his Father, nor any land from him after the Recognizance acknowledged, all which he ſhewed in Certain in an Engliſh bill in the Exchequer Chamber: upon which, upon Conference had by Sir Roger Manwood and the other Barons with the two chief Juſtices, by decree he was diſcharged of the ſaid Recognizance. The other caſe cited was, Thomas Duke of Norfolk was attainted by Parliament, Anno 38 H. 8. And King E. 6. ſold to Sir Edw. Rous divers Timber trees growing upon the poſſeſſions of the ſaid Duke in Suffolk, and Sir Edward was bounden in an Obligation to King Ed. 6. for payment of certain money, and before the ſaid Sir Edw. cut down any of the ſaid Trees, Edw. the Sixth died. And at a Parliament holden 1 Mariæ, it was declared by Parliament, that the ſaid Attainder of the ſaid Duke of Norfolk was void; for which cauſe the ſaid Sir Edw. could never enjoy the ſaid Trees according to his bargain: And in a Scire facias in the Exchequer upon the ſaid Obligation againſt the heir and Terr-Tenant of Sir Edw. anno 27 Eliz. they appeared, and pleaded all the matter in Equity in bar and diſcharge of the ſaid Obligation as a Latin plea in the Exchequer. And upon good Conſideration of the Statute of 33 H. 8. by the Barons, and of the ſaid plea, at laſt (after the ſame had depended long) it was Reſolved by the Barons, that the Defendants were to be relieved within the ſaid Act; and that the Defendants might well plead the ſame in Bar. And thereupon Popham the Attorney-General ſeeing the opinion of the Court, ulterius proſequi non vult. Both which preſidents I ſhewed to the Juſtices; and accordingly it was reſolved by all the Juſtices of England, (who met together to give their opinions in the ſaid Caſe) That Sir Thomas Cecil
[b] was to be relieved upon the ſaid matter in Equity, within the purview of the ſaid branch of 33 H. 8. And ſecondly, That the Court of Exchequer Chamber might well upon the ſaid Engliſh Bill (although that the ſuit was by proceſs at the Common Law in the Court of Exchequer before the Barons) make a decree in the caſe; for to this purpoſe they are but one Court. Then it was moved, If the Proviſo next following after the branch concerning the equal charging of land liable to the Kings debt in the hands of every owner and poſſeſſor, that any of them ſhall not be charged only, but all entirely, if the ſame extendeth to all the Kings debts; and to all executions, for the levying of them as well at the Common Law, as upon the ſaid Act. And it was Reſolved by them, That the ſaid branch did extend to all Executions for the Kings debts, as well at the Common Law, as upon the ſaid Act; and that all ſhould be equally extended by force of that branch according to the purview of that Act. It was alſo Reſolved, That although the Obligation made were for performance of Covenants, Yet after that it was broken, (as it was in the caſe at Bar at the time of ſealing and delivery thereof) That the ſame was a debt to the King by Obligation within the Act.

Trin. 41 Eliz. in the Exchequer.

The Lord Anderſon's Caſe.

BEtween the Lord Anderſon Chief Juſtice of the Court of Common Pleas, and Sibthorpe of the Middle-Temple, a Queſtion was moved upon the branch of the Act of 33 H. 8. cap. 30. That is to ſay, That all Mannors, Lands, &c. which now be, or that hereafter ſhall come, or be in, or to the poſſeſſion or ſeiſin of any perſon to whom the ſaid Mannors, Lands, &c. have heretofore or hereafter ſhall deſcend, &c. in fee-ſimple, or fee-tail, &c. by, or after the deceaſe of his or their anceſtor or anceſtors as heir, or by gift of his anceſtor, whoſe heir he is, which ſaid anceſtor or anceſtors was, is, or ſhall be indebted to the King, or to any other perſon to his uſe, by judgment, recognizance, obligation, or other ſpecialty; That then, in every ſuch caſe, the ſame Mannors, Lands, &c. ſhall be and ſtand by authority of this Act from henceforth charged and chargeable, to and for the payment of the ſame debt. If Tenant in tail of the Mannor of D. be bound in a Recognizance to J. S. which Recognizance afterwards cometh to the King, by by the Attainder of J. S. of High Treaſon, and afterwards Tenant in tail dieth, and the iſſue in tail alieneth the Land bona fide, If the Queen may extend the Mannor of D. in the hands of the alienee. And in this caſe four points were Reſolved by the Barons upon Conference had with Popham Chief Juſtice, and divers other Juſtices: 1. It was Reſolved, that before the ſaid Statute of 33 H. 8. If Tenant in tail of Lands came endebted to the King by Judgment, Recognizance, Obligation, or otherwiſe, and dieth, the King ſhall not extend the Land in the ſeiſin of the iſſue in tail; For the King is bound by the Statute of Donis Conditionalibus, as it is adjudged in Plowden's Commentaries in the Lord Berkley's Caſe 22. in the principal Caſe; And therewith agreeth, as to the point in Queſtion, the Reſolution of the Exchequer, and of the Court of Surveyors in the Caſe of Brown, Father of Juſtice Brown, as it is reported in Plowden's Commentaries 249. b. So one point well reſolved, in which there was variety of opinions in our Books. Vide 39 Aſſ. p. 18. 47 E. 3. 8. Regiſter 143, 144. F. N. B. 217. a. & b. 2. It was Reſolved, That if Tenant in tail becometh indebted to the King by the Receipt of the Kings money, or otherwiſe, if it be not by Judgment, Recognizance, Obligation, or other ſpecialty, and dieth, the Land in the ſeiſin of the iſſue in tail by force of the ſaid Act of 33 H. 8. ſhall not be extended for the Kings debt, for the Statute of 33 H. 8. extendeth only to the ſaid four Caſes; and all other debts remain at the Common Law. 3. It was Reſolved, That if Tenant in tail becometh indebted to the King by any of the four ways mentioned in the ſaid Act, and dieth, and before any proceſs or extent the iſſue in tail bona fide alieneth the Land in tail, that now this Land ſhall not be extended by force of the ſaid Act of 33 H. 8. for as it appeareth by the words of the ſaid branch, it maketh the Land in the poſſeſſion or ſeiſin of the heir in tail only liable againſt the iſſue in tail, and not the alienee. For the effect of the Proviſo as to that purpoſe is, That all lands which ſhall be in the poſſeſſion or ſeiſin of any perſon, to whom the ſame ſhall deſcend in fee tail as heir, whoſe anceſtor was indebted to the King, &c. That then, in every ſuch caſe, the ſame land ſhall be charged with the Kings debt: So that by expreſs purview of the Act, the Land ſhall be only extended ſo long as it is in the poſſeſſion or ſeiſin of the heir in tail; for the Act ſaith, That in every ſuch caſe the land ſhall be charged, and for as much as the Land againſt the iſſue in tail was not extendable before the ſaid Act, the King had benefit to extend the ſame in the poſſeſſion of the heir in tail, which he could not before, but the King cannot extend the ſame in the hands of the alienee, for that the Statute doth not extend unto it: and the makers of the Act had reaſon to favour the Purchaſor, Farmor, &c. of the heir in tail, more than the heir himſelf, for that they are ſtrangers to the debts of the Tenant in tail, and they come to the land bona fide, and upon good conſideration. And there is another clauſe next following to the ſaid branch, the effect of which is, That our Soveraign Lord, his heirs or ſucceſſors, ſhall not be barred, delayed, &c. to demand and receive their juſt, &c. debts againſt any of his ſubjects, as heir or heirs, &c. if any ſuch perſon or perſons ſhall ſay or alledge, that they have no lands, &c. but only intailed or given to them by any their anceſtors to whom they be heirs: So that by this clauſe alſo the intent of the makers of the Act appeareth, that the heir in tail ſhall be only charged with the Kings debt. But lands in Fee ſimple were extendable by the Common Law in whoſe hands ſoever they came, and there as to them the Statute was but declarativum antiqui juris; but as to eſtates in tail, it was introductivum novi juris againſt the iſſue in tail, and that in the caſe at Bar maketh the difference of the ſaid Caſes, although that both be joyned together in the ſame ſentence. And Popham Chief Juſtice ſaid, That ſo it hath been reſolved in the Exchequer before that time, in the Caſe of Serjeants Nicholls Father of the Serjeant that now is, That the Lands in the hands of the Purchaſor of the iſſue in tail ſhall not be extended by the ſaid Act of 33 H. 8. for the debt that the Father of the iſſue in tail owed to the King (by one of the four ways mentioned in the Act) but was diſcharged by the opinion of the Court of Exchequer. 4. It was Reſolved, That for as much as the ſaid debt in the Caſe at Bar was originally due to a Subject, that ſuch debt is not within the ſaid Act to charge the land in the poſſeſſion or ſeiſin of the heir in tail: For the ſaid Act, as to charge Lands intailed againſt the iſſue, extendeth only to debts originally and immediately due to the King by Judgment, Recognizance, Obligation, or other ſpecialty; For the words are, (indebted to the King, or any other to his uſe by judgment, &c.) which is intended to be an immediate debt, and not to debts which were due to ſubjects, and did belong or occur to the King by Attainder, Utlary, Forfeiture, gift of the party, or by any other collatteral way or means, for which the Statute of 33 Hen. 8. hath a Clauſe a little before the ſaid branch, for the ſhort and general manner and form of pleading in ſuch caſes (for the recovery of them in the Courts mention'd in the ſaid act) on the Kings part, ſcil. That the party ſuch a year and day did give the ſame debt to the King, or was attainted, outlawed, or other offence, forfeiture, deed, act or thing committed or done, by reaſon whereof the ſaid debts did accrue and ought to remain, come, and be to the King. So that the ſeveral manners of penning of theſe two branches manifeſt the intention of the makers of the Act, to prefer immediate debts due to the King by Judgment, &c. before debts of Subjects, which accrued to the King by Aſſignment, Attainder, Utlary, &c. and the reaſon was, becauſe that debts due immediately to the King by Judgment, Recognizance, Obligation, or other ſpecialty, are in their nature higher, and better known, and found upon Search, than debts due to Subjects. Alſo when J. N. is endebted to J. S. by Judgment, Recognizance, Obligation, or other ſpecialty, and afterwards J. S. is Outlawed, &c. by which the debt cometh to the King by the Outlawry, &c. it cannot be properly ſaid, that J. N. is endebted to the King by Judgment, Recognizance, Obligation, or other ſpecialty; for by them he was endebted to J. S. and J. S. by his Outlawry (which is the Kings title) hath forfeited them to the King. So that by force of the Judgment, &c. and Outlawry, the debt doth belong to the King. And the words of the Act are (indebted to the King, or any other to his uſe by Judgment, &c.) ſo that they ought immediately be due to the King himſelf; or if it be to any other than the [b] King, it ought to be originally to the uſe of the King, and that it is not when the debt is originally due to a Subject to his own uſe, and forfeited to the King by a ſubſequent act. And ſo it was reſolved, That for ſuch debt the King ſhall not extend either againſt the Alienee of the heir in tail, or againſt the heir in tail himſelf; for ſuch debts are not within the Act of 33 H. 8. as to charge the heir in tail; and ſo remain at the Common Law as debts immediately due to the King, which are not due by Judgment, Recognizance, Obligation, or other ſpecialty, as before hath ſaid.

Butt's Caſe.

IN a Replevin between Fiſh and But, the Caſe in effect was, One ſeiſed of Black Acre in fee, and alſo poſſeſſed of White Acre for years, by Deed granted a Rent out of both to A. to have and perceive to him for the term of his life, with clauſe of diſtreſs in both: And for Rent behind A. doth diſtrein in White Acre, and if the diſtreſs were good or not, was the Queſtion. And it was agreed by [23] the whole Court, That the diſtreſs was well taken. And in that Caſe theſe points were reſolved: 1. That if Leſſee for years of a Carve of Land, granteth to another a Rent out of the ſaid Carve for the life of the Grantee, that it is a good charge during the term, if the Grantee ſo long liveth; for the grant ſhall be taken ſtrong againſt the grantor, and ſhall not be void, when by any conſtruction it may be made good (Vide Plow. Comment. in Welchden's Caſe) that in ſuch caſe the Grantee hath but a Chattel. So if the Leſſee for years granteth the Carve of Land to another, for the term of his life, he hath the whole term if he live ſo long, as well as in the caſe of a Deviſe. 2. It was Reſolved, That when a Rent is granted out of Land in fee, and out of a term for years, to have and perceive to the Grantee for the term of his life, that that, as an eſtate of Freehold, according to the purport of the Deed, cannot iſſue out of the term for years, but out of the Land which the Grantor hath in Fee-ſimple only, becauſe the Freehold of the Rent may go out thereof, and not out of a Chattel. And one entire Rent cannot be a Freehold out of Black Acre, and a Chattel out of White Acre. And to make two Rents where one only is granted by one to another, ſhall be in that caſe injurious, and the pact and agreement of the parties cannot charge ſuch thing with Rent, which is not chargeable by the Law, as out of a Hundred, or Advowſon 30 Lib. Aſſiſarum pla. 5. out of a Fair, 14 E. 3. Scire facias 122. the Earl of [b] Kents Caſe; Nor a Rent can be granted or reſerved of any eſtate of Freehold out of any other Hereditament which is not Manurable, or in poſſeſſion, reverſion, or by poſſibility, but is hæreditamentum incoporeum; for privata non derogant juri communi: And in an Aſſiſe they cannot be put in view, or any diſtreſs can be taken in them. But in the Caſe at Bar, White Acre is hæreditamentum corporeum, and Manurable; but for the exility and incapacity of intereſt that the Grantor hath in it, this Rent of Freehold cannot iſſue thereout, but ſhall go only out of the Land in Fee-ſimple. And in the Caſe at Bar, in an Aſſiſe brought of this Rent, the Land in fee ſhall only be put in view, and if the Grantee accept a Leaſe, or grant of White Acre, it ſhall not ſuſpend his Rent. 3. It was Reſolved, That White Acre ſhall be during the term ſubject to the diſtreſs of the Grantee for the Rent during the years, although the Rent doth not iſſue thereout, as in 46 Edw. 3. 14. when land is charged with a Rent in fee, goods and chattels may be bound to the diſtreſs. And it was ſaid, foraſmuch as White Acre is only charged with diſtreſs, if the Grantee taketh a Leaſe of any part thereof, that it is no ſuſpenſion of the diſtreſs, but that he may diſtrein in the reſidue; for it is not going out of the Land, but to be taken upon the Land: as if I have Warren in anothers land, and take a Leaſe of parcel of the Land, although the Land be charged with Warren, yet foraſmuch as it doth not iſſue out of the Land it is not any ſuſpenſion. Vide 35 Hen. 4. 6. 56. 14 Hen. 4. 6. &c. for a man may have a Warren in his own lands: So he may in many Caſes diſtrein in his own poſſeſſions, as in 31 E. 3. Diſtreſs 64. & 7 H. 6. 3. per Curiam, one Tenant in common may diſtrein the cattel of the other in the land which they have in common: and 26 Hen. 8. 5. he may preſcribe to diſtrein in his own land, but not to have a Rent out of his own land. If a man by Deed granteth a Rent of 40 s. to another out of his Mannor of D. to have and perceive perceive to him and his heirs; and granteth further by the ſame Deed, that if the Rent be behind, the Grantee ſhall diſtrein in the Mannor of S. be the Mannor of S. (in the ſame County or in another, and be it granted by one or divers Deeds) the rent is only iſſuing out of the Mannor of D. and it is but a pein that he may diſtrein the Mannor of S. but both the Mannors are charged, one with the Rent, the other with the diſtreſs for the Rent, one iſſuing out of the land, the other to be taken upon the land. And if I grant unto you, that you and your heirs ſhall diſtrein for a Rent of forty ſhillings within my Mannor of S. the ſame by conſtruction in Law ſhall amount to a grant of a Rent out of my Mannor of S. for if it ſhall not amount to a grant of a Rent, the grant ſhall be of little or no effect, if the Grantee ſhall have only a bare diſtreſs, and no rent in him; for then he ſhall never have an Aſſiſe thereof; and that is the reaſon, That it is often ruled and reſolved, that it ſhall amount unto a grant of a rent by conſtruction of Law, ut res magis valeat, 3 Edw. 3. 12. 3 Aſſ. pl. 7. 14 Aſſ. pl. 14. 16 Edw. 3. tit. Grants 64. 18 Edw. 3. 32. 26 Aſſ. pl. 38. 30 Aſſ. pl. 12. 46 Edw. 3. 18. 32. 8 Hen. 4. 19. 9 Hen. 6. 9. 22 Hen. 6. 11. Littl. 48. b. And in ſuch caſe the Grantee ſhall not have a Writ of Annuity. But when one granteth a Rent out of the Mannor of D. and further granteth, that if the Rent be behind, the Grantee ſhall diſtrein for the ſame Rent in the Mannor of S. it is but a penalty in the Mannor of S. for three cauſes: 1. The Law needeth not make conſtruction that it ſhall amount to a grant of a Rent; for here a Rent is expreſſly granted to be iſſuing out of the Mannor of D. and the parties have expreſly limited out of what land the Rent ſhall go, and in what land the diſtreſs ſhall be taken, and the Law ſhall not make an expoſition againſt the expreſs words and intent of the parties, when it may ſtand with the rule of Law; Quoties in verbis nulla eſt ambiguitas, ibi nulla expoſitio contra verba expreſſa fienda eſt. 2. If in that caſe it ſhall amount to a grant a Rent out of the Mannor of S. then the Grantor ſhall be twice charged; for if the Grantee bringeth a Writ of Annuity, it ſhall extend only to the Mannor of D. for upon the grant of a diſtreſs in the Mannor of S. no Writ of Annuity lieth, becauſe the Mannor of S. is only charged and not the perſon of the Grantor, as to that; ſo for this caſe the bringing of the Writ of Annuity cannot diſcharge the Mannor of S. of any Rent; and ſo the Law, by conſtruction againſt the words and intention of the parties, ſhould do injury to the Grantor to charge him twice. 3. If in ſuch caſe the Mannor of S. in which the diſtreſs is only appointed, ſhall be in another County, then it hath been often adjudged, that the Rent ſhall not iſſue out of it, but the diſtreſs ſhall be as a means and remedy to compel the Tenant of the Land to pay the Rent. And it was ſaid, That there was not any difference in reaſon, that the Law in conſtruction ſhould make the Rent to be iſſuing out of it, when it lieth in the ſame County, and not when it lieth in ſeveral Counties, for the words in both Caſes are all one, and it is not any reaſon to ſay, that he ſhall fail of recovery by Aſſiſe.. Vide ſupra in Bulwer's Caſe, and the Books in 1 Aſſ. pl. 10. 1 Ed. 3. 21. and other Books, do not ſay that the Rent iſſueth in ſuch caſe out of both, but that the Land in which the diſtreſs ſhall be taken is charged; and that is true; for it is charged with diſtreſs: and foraſmuch as it was charged with diſtreſs, their opinion was, that the Tenants of both ſhould be named in the Aſſiſe. See the Books in 9 Ed. 3. 13. 31 Aſſ. pl. 27. 17 Ed. 4. 16. 10 Aſſ. pl. 4. 10 Ed. 3. 18. 2 Ed. 2. Aſſ. 360. 1 Aſſ. 10. 3 Aſſ. 32 Hen. 6. 27. 22 Aſſ. pl. 66. 31 Aſſ. pl. 27. 29 Edw. 3. Aſſ. 366. And the opinion of Finchden in 41 Edw. 3. 15. was affirmed for good Law, That if the Mannor of D. out of which rent is granted, be recovered by eigne title, that all the rent is extinct. But if the Mannor of S. in which the diſtreſs is limited, be evicted, yet the whole rent remaineth. So if the Grantee purchaſeth parcel of the Mannor of S. the rent is not extinct, becauſe the rent goeth only out of the Mannor of D. Vide 17 Edw. 4. 7. the like caſe. And it was ſaid, That if a man granteth a rent out of three Acres, and further granteth, that if the rent be behind, that he ſhall diſtrein for the rent in one of the Acres, the rent is entire, and cannot be a Rent ſeck out of two Acres, and a Rent charge out of the third Acre, but it is for the whole a Rent ſeck; and yet he ſhall diſtrein for it in third Acre. So if a rent be granted to Two and their heirs out of one Acre of Land, and that it ſhall be lawful for one of them and his heirs to diſtrein in the ſame Acre, for the ſame it is a rent ſeck, for as much as they ſtand joyntly ſeiſed of one entire rent, it cannot be as to one a rent ſeck, and to the other a rent charge, and that diſtreſs is as appurtenant to the rent; and therefore if he who hath the rent dieth, the ſurvivor ſhall diſtrein; and if both grant over the rent he ſhall diſtrein for it. But if a man granteth a rent out of Bl. Acre to one and his heirs, and granteth to him that he may diſtrein for it in the ſame Acre for the term of his life, the ſame is a rent charge for life, and a rent ſeck after diverſis temporibus. Otherwiſe is it if the diſtreſs be limited for years in the ſame land, there it wholly remaineth a rent ſeck, becauſe the Fee and Freehold are ſeck in ſuch caſe. But it was adjudged in the Caſe at Bar, that the Avowry was inſufficient for divers cauſes: 1. Becauſe in the Avowry no mention was of any land but of the land in which he had but a leaſe for years, ſc. quod conceſſit extra terram illam inter alia quendam reddit', &c. Whereas in his Avowry he ought to have derived the rent out of the land in Fee-ſimple only, for out of the ſame only in judgment of Law, the rent for life was iſſuing: And although that the Plaintiff in bar to the Avowry hath diſcloſed all the truth of the ſpecial matter which in judgment of the Law maketh for the Avowant, and he hath made his caſe better for him than the Avowant hath made it for himſelf, yet the ſame doth not make the Avowry, which wanteth ſubſtance, good; for the Avowry which is in the nature of a Count, ought to contain ſufficient matter upon which he may have judgment to have a return of the cattel. But if the Avowry or other Count or Replication, &c. wanteth form, or omitteth circumſtance of time, place, &c. there the plea of the other party may have ſuch imperfections, but cannot ſupply the defect of matter of ſubſtance. Vide 6 Ed. 4. 2. b. 6 H. 7. 10. 18 Ed. 4. 16. 18 Ed. 3. 34. Plow. Com. Barkley's Caſe 230. 38 H. 6. 17, 18, & 19. 22 E. 4. 2. 5 H. 7. 13. 7 H. 6. 6. b. &c. 2. The Avowant pleaded the grant out of the term for years only, and concluded, virtute cujus, he was ſeiſed in Dominico ſuo ut de libero tenemento pro termino vitæ ſuæ, which is repugnant to have a Freehold out of a term for years. And ſo Judgment was given againſt the Avowant for inſufficient pleading.

Caſes of Quare Impedit.

Paſch. 31 Eliz. in the Common Pleas.

Hall's Caſe.

[b] John Hall brought a Quare Impedit againſt the Biſhop of Bath and Wells, and Thomas Maunton Clerk, Defendants, for diſturbing him to preſent to the Vicaridge of Wollauington appendant to the Mannor of Wollauington, whereof the Dean of Windſor was ſeiſed in his demeſne as of Fee in right of the Deanery, and preſented Robert Pitman his Clerk, who was inſtituted and inducted, and conveyed that Mannor to the Earl of Leiceſter by Leaſe for years, who aſſigned all his intereſt to George Sidenham Knight, who granted the ſame to Chriſtopher Roll; and during his poſſeſſion the Vicaridge became void by the death of Robert Pitman; and that the ſaid Chriſtopher Roll preſented one John Davies his Clerk to the ſaid Vicaridge, who was admitted, &c. And afterwards the ſaid Chriſtopher Roll did grant his intereſt in the ſaid Leaſe to the Plaintiff. And afterwards the Vicaridge became void by the deprivation of the ſaid John Davies, for which it did belong to the Plaintiff to preſent, and the Defendants did diſturb him to his damages, &c. To which the Biſhop pleaded, that he claimed nothing but as Ordinary, and demanded Judgment, if without ſpecial diſturbance, &c. And Thomas Maunton ſaid, That he claimed nothing in the ſaid Vicaridge, but that he is Vicar of the Church of the preſentation of the ſaid George Sidenham, who is yet alive, not named in the Writ, and demanded Judgment of the Writ. The Plaintiff to the Biſhops plea prayed Judgment, for as much as he claimed nothing in the Vicaridge, and it was granted, but ceſſet executio until, &c. And as to the plea of Thomas Maunton he did demur in Law. And the ſole queſtion of the Caſe is, If the Quare Impedit lieth againſt the Biſhop and the Incumbent without naming the Patron. And it was reſolved, That the Writ ſhould abate, and that the Patron ought to be named

[26] in the Writ, and that for divers cauſes, 1. Becauſe in this caſe the Patronage ſhall be recovered againſt him who hath nothing in the Patronage. And it is not reaſon that he who is Patron ſhall be diſpoſſeſſed and ouſted of his Patronage, when he is a ſtranger, and not party to the Writ, and eſpecially in this caſe, when he may be made party to the Writ. 2. At the Common Law the Incumbent ſhall not plead any plea which doth concern the right of Patronage, and therefore it ſhall be againſt reaſon that he ſhall be only named in the Writ, who at the Common Law cannot defend the Patronage, and he who hath the Patronage, and who may plead to the right of it ſhall be omitted in the Writ: For at the Common Law every one ſhall plead that plea which is fit for him, and pertinent to his Caſe: as in Aſſiſe againſt Diſſeiſor and Tenant, the Tenant ſhall plead a plea which concerneth the Tenancy, and not the Diſſeiſin. And the Incumbent at the Common Law ſhall not plead to the right of the Patronage in which he hath nothing, but the Patron ſhall plead to that. And the miſchief was, that by faint pleading and confeſſion of the Patron in a Quare Impedit the Incumbent was without remidy, as the Book is adjudged in 18 Ed. 3. 23. which was before the Statute of 25 Ed. 3. Vide 22 Hen. 6. 28. 9 Hen. 6. 30, 31. &c. But the Statute of 25 Ed. 3. cap. 7. doth enable the poſſeſſor, &c. (which is as much to ſay as the Incumbent after induction, as it is holden in 4 Hen. 8. Dyer 1. to counterplead the title of the King, and to have his anſwer, and to ſhew, and defend his right upon the matter, although he claim nothing in the Patronage, and by equity he ſhall plead againſt all common perſons, as the Books are in 9 Hen. 6. 30, 31. & 22 Hen. 6. 28. 13 Hen. 8. 13. 14 Hen. 8. 29. Vide 39 Ed. 3. 30. 27 Ed. 3. 81. 46 Edw. 3. 13. 19. 47 Ed. 3. 11. 2 Rich. 2. Incumbent 4. 8 Hen. 5 9. 7 Hen. 4. 34. 13 Hen 4. 7. 22 Hen. 6. 26. 16 Edw. 4. 11. 2 Hen. 7. 14. 10 Hen. 6. 4. Statham. And it is to be obſerved, that alwaies when the Incumbent pleads in bar, he firſt ſaith, that he is, perſona imperſonata Eccleſiæ præd. &c. by which it is implied, that he is admitted, inſtituted, and able to plead in bar, ſcil. againſt the King, that he is admitted, inſtituted, and inducted; and againſt a common perſon, that he is admitted and inſtituted, for then is Eccleſia plena & conſulta, againſt a common perſon as it is holden in 9 H. 6. 31. 22 H. 6. 27. 21 E. 4. 34. b. 24 E. 3. 30. 25 E. 3. 47. 38 E. 3. 9. a. 44 E. 3. 3. But this difference in the caſe at Bar was taken and agreed; That when by the Judgment in the Quare Impedit, the Inheritance, eſtate, or intereſt of the Patron in the Patronage is to be deveſted by the Judgment in the Quare Impedit brought by J. S. there J. N. who preſented, (and his Clerk received) ought to be named in the Writ; but when the Inheritance, eſtate or intereſt of the Patron ſhall not be deveſted by the Judgment, then, if another diſturber be named in the Writ, it is not needful to name the Rightful Patron in the Writ, and with this difference agree our Books. For in 42 E. 3. 7. One brought a Quare Impedit againſt an other; the Defendant ſaid, that he claimed nothing in the Patronage, but ſaid, that the Biſhop did preſent him by Lapſe, Judgment if, &c. and there Belkyap prayed a Writ to the Biſhop, becauſe that he hath diſclaimed in the Patronage; and the Court would not grant it, becauſe, that in as much as neither the Patron, nor the Biſhop (who in the ſame caſe was in the place of the Patron) were not named

[b] in the Writ, It was adjudged that the Writ ſhould abate; and if ſuch Writ ſhall be maintenable, every Patron by Covin between a ſtranger and the Incumbent may be ouſted of his Advowſon; and therewith agree 9 H. 6. 30, 31. 3 H. 4. 2, & 3. 13 H. 8. 13. But in 7 H. 4. 25, 37. there in a Quare Impedit, becauſe that the preſentation was only recovered, and not the Advowſon, nor the Patron put out of poſſeſſion, the Writ was adjudged good, without naming of the Patron. If a Quare Impedit be brought againſt the Patron and the Incumbent, and the Patron dieth pendant the Writ, the death of the the Patron ſhall not abate the Writ,as it is adjudged in 9 H.6.31. For there are two miſchiefs,one if the Writ ſhall abate the diſturbance ſhall be unpuniſhed; and although that the Writ was well brought,yet the Plaintiff ſhall be without remedy, becauſe there wanteth a diſturber: And of the other part the other miſchief is,That if the Writ ſhall not abate,but the Plaintiff ſhall procced to Judgment and execution, the very Patron ſhall be out of poſſeſſion: And for as much as in the one caſe, if the Rightful Patron ſhall be out of poſſeſſion, he hath remedy by a Writ of Right to recontinue the Advowſon; and in the other caſe, if the Writ ſhall abate, the Plaintiff ſhall be without remedy, which ſhall be the greater miſchief, for this cauſe the Writ ſhall ſtand good, and ſhall not abate: and therewith agree 7 H. 4. 26. b. 13 H. 8. 13. 9 H. 6. 57. And a Quare Impedit well brought by divers, as Coperceners, or Joynt-tenants,&c. ſhall not abate by the death of one of them; Nor a Quare Impedit brought by the Husband and Wife ſhall not abate by the death of the Wife, becauſe that otherwiſe the Plaintiff (if the ſix months be paſt) ſhall be without remedy,as the Books are in F. N. B. 35.b. 38 E. 3. 43. 37 H. 6. 11. 7 H. 4. 19. 14 *H.*4.12. 9 H. 6. 30. 37. 1 H. 5. 13. 17 E. 3. 11. 17 E. 3. 304. But if the King preſenteth, and his Clerk is admitted and inſtituted, &c. there the Quare Impedit may be brought for neceſſity againſt the Biſhop or Incumbent, for it doth not lie againſt the King; So of the Pope if he uſurp, 12 *H.*8.12. 4 *H.*7.15. &c. Vide 47 E. 3. 11. The King brought a Quare Impedit againſt Walter Dawtree of the Church of Retfield, and made his title, for as much as Hamond Biſhop of Rocheſter had preſented to the ſaid Church by uſurpation being void (the Advowſon of which of right did appertain to three daughters and heirs) his Clerk, who was admitted, inſtituted and inducted, and he died,by which it belonged to the King to preſent, for as much as the Biſhop had gained that Advowſon to him and his Succeſſors without Licence, by which the Advowſon was become in Mortmain. The Defendant pleaded, That he is Parſon of the Preſentment of William Wycleſey Predeceſſor of the Biſhop that now is, Thomas by name, ſo that the Patronage is in Thomas; who we conceive ought to be named in the Writ; by which we conceive that our Lord the King, to this Writ, in which the Patron is not named, ought not to be anſwered; For we conceive, That a Quare Impedit doth not lie againſt the Incumbent alone, without naming the Patron, where it is expreſly ſhewed that there is a Patron, who may plead in bar of the Plaintiff or other thing to ouſt the King of the Action, which lieth not in the knowledge of the Incumbent to plead. And it was adjudged, That the Kings Writ was good againſt the Incumbent alone, becauſe he may give by the Statute what anſwer he will alone in maintenance of his poſſeſſion of his Church; and the now Biſhop who is Succeſſor, is no diſturber, for the Defendant came in by the Predeceſſor; and therefore ſhall not be charged with damages or coſts. And afterwards John Hall perceiving in the principal Caſe, the Reſolution of the Court, diſcontinued his ſuit, and loſt his preſentation, illa vice. [27]

Sir Hugh Portman's Caſe.

IN a Quare Impedit by Sir Hugh Portman againſt the Biſhop of Canterbury, and Montgomery Clerk, ad Eccleſiam de Chelſey in the County of Somerſet, and made his title by reaſon of a grant of the next Avoidance unica vice, divers points were reſolved: 1. If the Plaintiff in a Quare Impedit be Nonſuit after appearance, the ſame is peremptory, and a good bar in another Quare Impedit, although it be brought within the ſix months; and the reaſon thereof is, becauſe the Defendant (upon title made by which he is become actor) ſhall have a Writ to the Biſhop to admit,&c. his Clerk into the ſame Church,&c. which is a good bar in another Quare Impedit and therewith agreeth 19 E. 4. 9. 22 H. 6. 44. 33 H. 6. 1. 55. 20 *E.*4. 14. 21 E. 4. 2. b. F. N. B. 38. b. The ſame Law if the Plaintiff in the Quare Impedit diſcontinueth his ſuit, the Defendant upon title made, ſhall have a Writ to the Biſhop, and by conſequence the ſame is peremptory, and therewith agreeth 31 H. 6. 15. But if the Writ of Quare Impedit within the ſix months abateth for falſe Latin, or inſufficiency of form, the ſame is the fault of the Clerk, and ſhall not be peremptory to the Plaintiff, nor the Defendant thereupon ſhall have a Writ to the Biſhop, but the Plaintiff may have a new Writ of Quare Impedit, and therewith agreeth 3 H. 6. 3. 31 H. 6. 15. F.N.B. 38. b. vide 34 Aſſ. pl. 9. the like. So if the Writ abate for Miſnoſmer of the Plaintiff or Defendant, if the Plaintiff confeſſeth it, the Defendant ſhall not have a Writ to the Biſhop, for it may be the fault of the Clerk in the writing of it. And therewith agreeth F. N. B. 38. vide 31 H. 6. 15. But if the Plaintiff be made a Knight hanging the Writ, the Writ ſhall abate, and the Defendant ſhall have a Writ to the Biſhop, and by conſequence the ſame is peremptory; for (as we ſee by common experience in theſe times) the ſame is the Plaintiffs act, and none is forced or compelled to it. Baskervile's Case.

[28] IN a Quare Impedit in the Common Pleas, the Case was, That 1 Mariæ title to present by Lapse was come to the Queen to the Church of Cusep in the County of Hereford. Sir Nicholas Arnold the Patron presented one Evans, who was thereto admitted, instituted and inducted, and died, and if the Queen hath lost her title to present by Lapse, or not, was the Question; And it was adjudged, that the Queen hath lost it. For the Queen had but unam & unicam præsentationem hac vice, which cannot be extended to the second Avoidance; For negligence to present, shall lose the subject one presentment only by Lapse, and not divers; and if the Queen hath primam & proximam præsentationem granted to her, she cannot take the second. And otherwise great inconvenience would follow to the Patron; For the Queen may forbear to present, and suffer divers to present by usurpation one after the other, and take her turn when she would, and the Patron might be in a manner thereby disinherited. And the Statute of Prærogativa Regis, quod nullum tempus occurrit Regi, is to be intended when the King hath an estate or interest certain or permanent, and not when his interest is specially limited, when and how he shall take, and not otherwise; for the time is the substance of his title, and in such case of time, occurrit Regi. And so was it at another time adjudged, Pasch. 28 Eliz. Rot. 412. in the Common Pleas, between Beverley Plaintiff, and the Bishop of Canterbury and Gabriel Cornwall Defendants for the Church of Somby in the County of Lincoln.

Maund's Case.

[b] IN a Replevin between Maunde and Gregory, the Defendant shewed, That a Rent-charge out of a house and certain lands was granted by Deed to one and his assigns, for his life, pro consilio impendendo, payable yearly at four Feasts, and for default of payment, if it be demanded, that it shall be lawful for the Grantee and his assigns to distrein, the Grantee assigned the rent to the Avowant, the Tenant attorned, the Assignee upon the land demanded the rent after the day, and for default of payment did distrain and avow, upon which the Plaintiff did demur in Law. In that case it was Resolved, 1. That a rent granted to one and his assigns, pro consilio impendendo, may be assigned over by the express words of the Grantor, who granted the same to him and his assigns; for modus & conventio vincunt legem. 2. That in that case the Assignee needeth not demand the rent at the day, as he ought to do in case of reentry, (for there all the interest or estate shall be defeated) or when any sum nomine pœnæ shall be forfeited, in both these cases demand ought to be precisely at the day a convenient time before Sun-set, in the one case in respect of the Condition, and in the other in respect of the penalty. But in the case of distress, he who hath the rent may demand it at what time he will, for no loss or penalty shall follow upon it: and so was it adjudged in the Common Pleas, Mich. 40 & 41 Eliz. between Stanley and Read, where the case was, That a Rent-charge was granted payable at a certain day, and if it be behind and demanded, that it should be lawful for the Grantee to distrein. The Avowant shewed, how that he made a demand at the day; The Plaintiff traversed that he did not demand it the same day, (intending to make the day part of the issue) upon which the Plaintiff did demur; And it was adjudged against the Plaintiff; For if the demand were at any time after the day, and before the distress, it is sufficient. 3. It was Resolved, That if a [29] man hath a rent-seck, payable yearly at the Feast of Easter, and hath once seisin of the rent, and Easter passeth, and no tender or demand made of the rent, he may, although it be after the day of payment, come to the Land and there demand the rent, and although the Tenant of the Land be not there, yet upon such demand, if none be there ready to pay the rent, it is a denying of the rent, upon which he who hath the rent shall have an Assise, for as much as no penalty shall follow thereon, but only to have remedy to recover his rent and the arrerages, with costs and damages, and therewith agreeth Litt. 51. and the Book of Entries, fol. 79. b. 29 Ass. p. 52. But in the same Case, if the Tenant at the last instant of the Feast of Easter be ready upon the Land to pay the rent, and he who hath the rent, or any for him cometh to demand or receive the rent, there he who hath the rent cannot come in the absence of him who is Tenant of the Land, and demand it, and so make him a disseisor, and render damages and costs, without any default in him. But in such Case, he who hath the rent, because the default was in him, ought to make a demand of the rent of the person upon the Land, and if he cannot find him upon any part of the Land out of which the Rent is issuing, then in such case he ought to demand the rent at the next Feast of Easter, with all the arrerages, and although it be in the absence of the Tenant, yet it shall amount to a disseisin of the rent; and thereupon he who hath the rent shall recover all the arrerages, with damages and costs.

Discon-

Diſcontinuance of Proceſs, by the Death of the Queen.

Trin. 1 Jacobi.

THe Reſolution of the Juſtices after the death of Queen Elizabeth, concerning Diſcontinuance of Proceſs, &c. There are two manners of Re-ſummons and Reattachments, the one general, the other ſpecial. The effect of the general is, That the King doth direct a Writ (exempli gratia) to the Kings Bench in this form; Mandamus vobis, quod ad ſectam noſtram omniumque ligeorum populi noſtri, qui proſequi voluerint extra & ſuper omnia ſive aliqua recorda, placita, brevia, præcepta, proceſſus, billas loquelas, appella, fines, & alia memoranda quæcunq; in curia noſtra coram nobis exiſten. vel in poſterum coram nobis proventur. omnimoda brevia reſummonit. reattachiament. & omnium aliorum proceſſuum pro nobis & dictis ligeis populi noſtri in hac parte habend. ſecundum bonas intentiones & propoſita ſubſcript. mutatis mutandis prout caſus requirit, ſecundum diſcretiones veſtras adjudicetis. Special Reſummons is in ſuch form, Rex, vic. Salut. Reſummoneas per bonos ſummonitores A. B. quod ſit coram nobis in craſtino, &c. ubicunq; tunc fuer. in Anglia, audit' record' & judicium ſuum de loquela quæ fuit in Cur. Dom. Hen. nuper Regis Angliæ, &c. ita quod loquela illa tunc ſit in eodem ſtatu quo fuit in priſtina curia prædicti nuper Regis in Octabis, &c. ultim. præterit', de quo die loquela prædicta adjornat. fuit uſq; &c. tunc proxim. ſequent. ante quem diem loquela prædicta remanſit ſine die, eo quod prædict. nuper Rex diem ſuum clauſit extremum. And note, upon the general Reſummons the Original and the iſſue (if any be joyned) is revived, for the ſame is a full Record, and ought to be entred, but the proceſs before the iſſue joyned, nor the voucher, nor the garniſhment, &c. ſhall not be revived without a ſpecial Writ reciting all the ſpecial proceeding, 5 H. 7. 40. 9 H. 6. 41. 13 E. 4. 1. 1 E. 5. 2. And it appeareth by the Book of Entries, tit. Reattachment 499. that if iſſue be joyned, and the Jury returned, and day given for trial, before which day the King dieth, yet by ſpecial Reſummons all ſhall be revived, for the Jury was returned of Record, and the Record thereof was made full and perfect; and therewith agreeth 1 Ma. 118. Vide 21 E. 3. 44. contrary in the caſe of Aid preyer, for there the Jury is not revived as it is there holden: but a Venire facias de novo ſhall be awarded. And it is to know, That the Defendant ſhall never have a Reſummons or Reattachment, becauſe he had not nor could have any Summons or Attachment; and therefore at the Common Law, if a Verdict had paſſed for the Defendant, and before the day in bank the King died, in that caſe the plea is diſcontinued, and the Defendant might by Certiorari remove the Record, and although that the parties ſhall never plead any plea, yet the Defendant ought to ſue forth a Scire facias, and thereupon have Judgment, but without a Scire facias he ſhall not have Judgment; becauſe that the parties have no day in Court, and the Scire facias ſhall revive the Record, and give day to the parties, againſt the opinion of Littleton, 10 E. 4. 13. although that he ſaith that it was ſo adjudged, that the Defendant in ſuch caſe ſhould preſently have Judgment. But at the Common Law by the demiſe of the King the plea was diſcontinued, and the proceſs which was awarded and not returned before the Kings death, was loſt: For by the Writ of the Predeceſſor nothing can be executed in the time of a new King, if it be not in ſpecial caſes: For by the demiſe of the King not only the Juſtices of the one Bench, and of the other, and the Barons of the Exchequer, but the Sheriffs alſo, and Eſcheators, and all Commiſſions of Oyer and Terminer, Gaol-delivery, and Juſtices of Peace are determined by the death of the Predeceſſor, who made them. And for the remedy thereof was the Statute of 1 Edw. 6. cap. 7. made, which provideth, That by the demiſe of the King, any action, ſuit, bill, or plaint, that ſhall depend between party and party, in any of the Kings Courts, and other Courts of Record, ſhall not in any wiſe be diſcontinued, or put without day, but that the Proceſs, Pleas, Demurrers, and Continuances ſhall ſtand good and effectual, and be proſecuted forth in ſuch manner and form, and in the ſame eſtate, condition, and order, as if the ſame King had lived. So that now, If any Judicial Writ or Proceſs in any Court of Record were awarded in the time of the Predeceſſor, it may now be executed in the time of the Succeſſor, 1 Elizab. Dyer 165. accord. But yet that Act hath not provided remedy for all the miſchiefs. 1. For if the Original be not returned before the Kings death, the ſame is loſt; for the words are depending in any Court: But in appeal of death, if the Writ be delivered to the Sheriff within the year, and before the return thereof; or that the Sheriff hath done any thing, the King dieth, and the year expireth before the day of the return, in that caſe the Common Law giveth remedy to the Plaintiff, ſcil. a Certiorari to the Sheriff, returnable in the Kings Bench; and thereupon the Plaintiff ſhall have a Re-attachment, although he cometh not in by the return of the Sheriff, but by Certiorari; and the reaſon is, for the neceſſity of the matter, for otherwiſe the Plaintiff who lawfully brought his Writ within the year, without any fault in him, ſhall loſe his appeal, the year being now paſt. And therefore foraſmuch as by the act of Law the Writ is diſcontinued, the Law ſhall give a mean to revive it, to the end the party ſhall not be without remedy. So if a man bring a Formedon againſt a Pernor of the profit within the year after title accrued, and before the return of the Writ the King dieth, the Writ ſhall be removed in the Common Pleas by Certiorari, and thereupon he ſhall have Reſummons for the miſchief, as it is holden in 10 Ed. 4. 13. & 14. a. 2. By the demiſe of the King all Offices of Sheriffs are determined; and therefore till new Patents of their Offices nothing can be done. But in London, and other places, where there are Sheriffs of Inheritance by Charter, there they may execute any Proceſs, or Judicial Writ awarded in the time of the Predeceſſor. 3. In the County Court, and the like Courts which are not Courts of Record it remaineth

as it was at the Common Law; for the words of the Act are (in any of the Kings Courts, or other Court of Record.) Alſo the Statute extendeth only to Actions, Suits, &c. between party and party; and therefore it ſhall not extend to caſes where the King is party; and therewith agreeth Stamford 98. b. And therefore it is needful to know what the Common Law is in ſuch caſes. If an Information of Intruſion, or other Information be preferred, either meerly for the King, or tam pro Domino Rege quam pro ſeipſo, and the Defendant pleadeth to Iſſue, or a demurrer be joyned, and afterwards the King dieth, all is abated and loſt, but only the Information, and the ſame ſhall ſtand; for the entry in the Exchequer is (ſhewing the continuance and death of the King Hen. 8.) per quod loquela remanſit ſine die, & Dominus Edwardus ipſum nuper Regem in regimine hujus Regni ſucceſſit, ac regimen ejuſdem Regni ſuper ſe aſſumpſit, ſuper quo concordatum, quod prædict' Defendens attachietur de novo ad reſpondend' dicto Domino Regi nunc, and thereupon an Attachment is awarded, upon the return of which the Defendant ſhall appear and plead de novo; For although that it is true, that the King in genere doth not die (for there is no interregnum) yet in this individual, Henry the King, and Edward the King, &c. dieth. And that appeareth by Record, Hill. anno 6 Ed. 6. Rot. 50. an information of Intruſion was preferred againſt John Schrymſal Eſq; for intruding into the Mannor of Offeley, in the County of Stafford. The like Record Mich. anno 6 Ed. 6. Rot. 15. an Information preferred by the Kings Attorney, for the King only, againſt Michael Harecourt upon the Statute of Maintenance, Hill. 5 Ed. 6. Rot. 22. In the Exchequer in an Information upon the Stat. 32 Hen. 8. for buying of Titles, tam pro Domino Rege quam pro ſeipſo, [31] after Iſſue joyned the King died, the Defendant appeared upon the Attachment, and pleaded de novo. The like by the ſame Record, Rot. 24. The like by the ſame Record, Rot. 54. The like Mich. 1 & 2 Phil. & Mar. in the Exchequer, Rot. 131. in an Information of Intruſion againſt Richard Alford, who appeared and pleaded a ſpecial plea; upon which there was a demurrer in Law, and the demurrer entred; and afterwards Queen Mary died, and upon that a Subpœna iſſued to appear de novo, returnable Hill. 1 Eliz. which is in ligula brevium ibidem; and thereupon the Defendant pleaded another ſpecial Plea, upon which Iſſue was taken. And note, That to ſuch effect as the preſidents are in the Exchequer, ſo they are alſo in the Kings Bench as to all manners of Informations. The like Paſch. 5 Ed. 6. Rot. 38. where in a Popular Action the King died after demurrer upon the Evidence, and before Judgment, and the Defendant pleaded de novo. Upon which Records the Law appeareth to be, That in all the ſaid Caſes the King being meerly party, or when the Information is tam pro Domino Rege quam pro ſeipſo, when the King dieth before Judgment, all the proceeding upon the Information is utterly abated and loſt, quia Rex Henricus, &c. fuit pars qui mortuus eſt. But the Information or Indictment which is recorded for the King ſhall ſtand, and the ſaid Defendant ſhall be driven to anſwer it de novo, and nothing ſhall ſtand but the Information; for the ſame is a Record, and cannot abate. And the Law hath great reaſon in it; for upon many penal Statutes the Suit is to be commenced within a certain time, and therefore if the Information or Indictment ſhall not continue in force after the Kings death, by the Kings death, which is the act of God, the offence ſhould be unpuniſhed. But if the King bringeth an original Writ, as Quare Impedit, &c. there by the Kings death the Writ ſhall abate, becauſe the King, for whom Judgment ſhould be given, is dead, and after the death of the King, who is party, no Proceſs can be awarded upon the original, as it may be upon an Information or Indictment. Vide Mich. 3 & 4 Eliz. Dyer 206. vide 4 Edw. 4. 43. & 44. Br. Offices 25. If one be indicted in the time of one King, and pleadeth to Iſſue, and afterwards the King dieth, he ſhall plead de novo, as you may ſee in the Caſe of Edward Smith, who pleaded to Iſſue upon an Indictment of Felony in Midd. in 3 & 4 Phil. & Mar. in the Kings Bench, and after the death of Queen Mary repleaded in 3 & 4 Eliz. and was acquitted. So Clement Palmer being arraigned in the Kings Bench upon a Non-ſuit in an Appeal, at the Suit of the Queen, Trin. 4 & 5 Phil. & Mar. and pleaded to Iſſue, Queen Mary died, and Mich. 1 & 2 Eliz. he repleaded. And Paſch. 1 Edw. 5. Traverſe of an Office in Chancery, and the Record ſent into the Kings Bench, and afterwards the King died. And by the ſaid Statute of 1 Edw. 6. it is enacted, That in all Caſes, where any perſon or perſons heretofore have been, or hereafter ſhall be found guilty of any manner of Treaſon, Murder, Manſlaughter, [b] Rape, or other Felony whatſoever, for the which judgment of death ſhall, or may enſue, and ſhall be repried to priſon without Judgment, &c. That the Juſtices of Gaol-delivery ſhall have full power and authority to give Judgment of death againſt ſuch perſon ſo found guilty, and repried, &c. Before that Act at the Common Law, if a man had been indicted and convicted by verdict or confeſſion before any Commiſſioners, and before Judgment the King died, in that caſe no Judgment could have been given; for the King, for whom the Judgment ſhould be given, is dead; and the authority of the Judges which ſhould give Judgment is determined: And this Act doth remedy thoſe ſpecial Caſes. But all the Kings Suits by Original, Bill, Information, or Indictment, or for any other offence, do remain at the Common Law.

THe King was informed, That divers Mannors and Lands were intailed to Gilbert de Clare Earl of Gloucester, and the King who now is, is heir of the body of the said Gilbert inheritable to the said Land; Some of which Mannors, the King and others his Progenitors for good consideration have granted to divers Subjects; all which grants (as was pretended) was in respect of the said ancient intail utterly void. The King that now is, of grace and good will to his Subjects, for their quiet and repose, required Popham chief Justice, and Coke Attorney General, to consider how by Law he might establish the estate of the said Patentees and others claiming under them, against the said estate tail. Whereupon, they severally in the Vacation time did consider upon that point; and afterwards upon conference they agreed in one, That the King being Tenant in tail, by a gift made to some of his Ancestors being Subjects (and the question is moved) may by fine levied upon a grant and render bar the Estate tail, and that for divers reasons. 1. For as much as the King is bound by the Statute of donis conditionalibus, as it is adjudged in the Lord Barkley's Case, Plow. Com. 240. By which Act the King is restrained of alienation; for it is enacted by the said Act, quod finis ipso jure sit nullus; reason is, that the King shall take benefit of the Acts of 4 H. 7. & 32 H. 8. which enableth Tenant in tail to bar his issues: For it is agreed in all our Books, that the King shall take benefit of any Act, although that he be not named, 12 H. 7. 21. 35 H. 6. 60. the Lord Barkley's Case, Plow. Com. 240. And it shall be hard, that the King being issue in tail of a gift made to a Subject, shall be in worse condition than if he had not been King. 2. There is a great difference when the King claimeth in respect of his natural capacity, as heir of the body, per formam doni, as heir of the body of a Subject; for there he shall be bound by an Act of Parliament (and that was the principal reason of the Judgment in the said Lord Barkley's Case, where the gift was to King H. 7. and to the heirs of his body) and when the King claimeth a thing in respect of his Royal and politick capacity, there a general Act shall not bind him, if he be not especially named, if it be not in special Cases. 3. In the Case at Bar, The Bar which the Statute of donis conditionalibus doth work, is against the Issues in tail; for the Tenant in tail himself, without any help of the Act might bar himself (and so might the King also by special grant.) There the issues in tail at the time of the Fine levied by the King are but Subjects, who are bound by the said Acts, and the Estate tail barred by the Fine and Proclamations. And note, that the Act of 32 H. 8. doth recite, that (for the avoiding of all strifes and controversies) which general word (all) includeth also the Case of the King. And it was observed that the Statute of Donis, &c. which bindeth the King saith, quod dominus Rex perpendens, quod necessarium est in casibus prædictis ponere remedium, statuit, quod voluntas donatoris, &c. And the Statute of 4 H. 7. which giveth power to cut off the estate tail, saith, The King considereth that Fines ought to be of greatest strength to avoid strifes and debates, and to be a final end and conclusion: It is enacted that after the Fine engrossed and proclaimed, &c. the same Fine shall conclude privies, &c. Within which words the Kings Issues are included. Also the Statute of 32 H. 8. Enacteth, That all Fines levied of any Lands intailed to the person so levying the same Fine, or to any of his Ancestors, &c. And Gilbert de Clare was in propriety of speech the Kings Ancestor, and so within the express Letter of the Act. But it seemed to them, that after the Render made it is needful to have Letters Patents, to grant to the Conusee by express words, that he may enter into the Lands; For otherwise the Fine being executory upon Grant and Render, it may be doubted if the Conusee, without such grant may enter upon the King. And afterwards, Mich. 5. Jacobi, after the death of Justice Popham, this opinion upon consideration and conference had with Fleming and Coke, chief Justices, and with Tanfield, chief Baron, was affirmed for good Law for the reasons and causes before given. And divers Fines have been since levied by the King according to that Resolution. [32] [b]

Mich. 2 Jacobi.

Nevil's Case.

IN this Term, this Case by the Command of the King was propounded to all the Judges. In the 21. year of Richard the Second, Ralph Nevil, Lord of Raby, was by Letters Patents under the Great Seal created Earl of Westmerland, to him, and the heirs males of his body; which Ralph, by Margaret Stafford his first Wife had Issue, Ralph Earl of Westmerland, to whom Charles late Earl of Westmerland was lineal heir Male of the body of the said Ralph the first Donee; and the said Ralph the first Donee, by Joan, daughter of John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, had Issue, George Lord Latimer (for all his elder Brothers were dead without Issue Male) from whom is lineally descended Edward Nevil, who [33]

now is the next Issue Male of the first Donee; and afterwards Charles Earl of Westmerland was attainted by Outlawry, and by Parliament, of High Treason, and died without Issue Male; and now the said Edward Nevil claimed to be Earl of Westmerland. And in this case three questions were moved to all the Judges of England. 1. If the said limitation of the said dignity to the said Ralph and the heirs Males of his body be within the Statute of Donis conditionalibus, or a Fee-simple conditional at the Common Law. 2. Admitting that it was an Estate tail within the said Statute, if by the attainder of Treason the Estate tail were forfeited by a condition in Law tacite annexed to the state of the dignity. 3. If the estate of the dignity were forfeited by the Act of 26 H. 8. cap. 13. Or that the said Edward Nevil as heir Male of the first Donee ought to be heir of Westmerland. And these points were argued and debated at Serjeants Inn in Fleetstreet by the Kings Attorny General, and by the Council of the said Edward Nevil. And as to the first, it was objected, That the said Dignity was not within the Statute of Donis, &c. for divers causes. 1. Because the same was a great Dignity derived from the King, as the Fountain of all Dignity, and therefore it is not within the said Act, which speaketh only de tenementis, quæ multotiens dantur sub conditione, viz. cum aliquis terram suam dat alicui viro, &c. So that this Dignity cannot be [b] within this word Tenements, or Land. 2. The Statute saith, in omnibus prædict. casibus post prolem suscitat. hujusmodi feoffati habuer. potestat. alienandi, &c. But the dignity was adherent to the Blood of the Donee, and cannot be aliened nor granted, neither after nor before Issue; and therefore such Cases of Dignities were out of the mischief, the words and the intents of the makers of the Act of Donis, &c. And the opinion in Manxel's Case in Plowd. Comm. the grant of a thing which doth not concern Land or Tenements, nor exercisable in Lands or Tenements, as an Annuity which is personal, is not within the Statute of Donis. And it was said, this Dignity was personal, and annexed to the blood of the Donee, and by consequence cannot be intailed within the said Act. But it was resolved by all the Judges of England, That a name of Dignity may be intailed within the said Act: For in the Case at Bar the same doth concern Land; for he was made by the said Letters Patents Earl of Westmerland, which by the Common Law is the great Conservator of the Peace; and Sheriffs are called Vicecomites, because in ancient times they were Deputies to Earls, though now the same is changed. And therefore such Offices of Dignity of any place doth concern Land, and therefore may be intailed within the said Statute, as it is said in Plowd. Comm. in Manxel's Case. The office of Steward, Receivor, or Bayliff of such a Mannor may be intailed within the said Statute, because it is exercisable within Lands, 5 E. 4. The office of the Marshal of England was intailed, 1 H. 7. 28. An estate tail may be of a Forrestership, 18 E. 3. 27. The office of Serjeancy, or custody of the Church of Lincoln was intailed. 32 H. 8. 28. The Earldom of Shrewsbury was intailed to John Talbot, Knight, and the heirs males of his body. And I have seen a Parliament Writ in Anno 27 H. 6. by which Bromflet was summoned to the Parliament by the name of the Lord Vesey, with limitation in the Writ, to him and the heirs males of his body. And it is to know, that as in ancient time the Senators of Rome were elected a censu, of their revenues; so here in ancient times in conferring of Nobility, respect was had to their revenues, by which their Dignity and Nobility might be supported and maintained. And therefore a Knight ought to have twenty pound per annum, a Baron thirteen Knights fees and a quarter, an Earl twenty Knights fees (for there was not any Duke within England from the time of the Conquest until 11 E. 3. and the Duke of Cornwall was the first Duke after the Conquest within England.) And that appeareth by the Statute of Magna Charta, cap. 2. For always the fourth part of such Revenue, which is requisite by the Law to the Dignity shall be paid to the King for a Relief as the Relief of a Knight is five pound, which is the fourth part of twenty pound, which is a Knights Revenue; and the Relief of a Baron is an hundred Marks, which is the fourth part of his revenue, four hundred Marks, and includeth thirteen Knights Fees and a quarter; and the Relief of an Earl is an hundred pound, which is the fourth part of four hundred pound, the revenue of an Earl. And it appeareth by the Records of the Exchequer, that the Relief of a Duke shall amount to two hundred pound, and by consequence his revenue ought to be eight hundred pound per annum; and that is the reason in our Books, that every one of the Nobility is presumed in Law to have sufficient Freehold ad sustinendum nomen & onus. Vide 3 H. 6. 48. 11 H. 4. 15. 14 H. 6. 2. See the Countess of Rutland's Case in the sixth part of my Reports. Vide Cambden fol. 107. Necdum hæreditaria fuit hæc dignitas (scil. Comitis) verum cum Gulielmus Normanus, jam victor, summam rerum in hoc regno administraret, comites creati sunt feudales, hæreditarii, & patrimoniales, ut in antiquis cartis videre est, de tertio denario comitatus, i. qui de placitis proven. in eodem comitatu. And every Baron and other of Nobility is always created of some place: and now to what value the said old Rents in the time of H. 3. & E. 1. at this day do amount unto, every one knoweth. And so it was clearly resolved, that the Dignity in the Case in question was within the Statute of Donis conditionalibus; and with this Resolution agree divers Presidents, and practice always in use; for the Earldom of Northumberland was intailed by Queen Mary to Thomas Percy and the heirs males of his body; and for default of such Issue, that Henry his Son should be Earl, to him and the heirs males of his body: and in such case by the attainder of Thomas of Treason, Henry was after his death Earl of Northumberland, by force of his Remainder, and his Issue doth enjoy the same at this day. So Ambrose Dudley was by Queen Elizabeth created Earl of Warwick, to him and the heirs males of his body, and for default of such Issue, that Robert his Brother shall be Earl, to him and the heirs males of his body: And Robert was created Earl of Leicester in tail, with such limitation to his Brother Ambrose; and many other presidents are to the same effect. As to the second point it was resolved, That although this Dignity be within the Statute of Donis conditionalibus, yet by the attainder of Treason (if the Statute of 26 H. 8. had not been made) this Dignity had been forfeited by force of a condition in Law tacite annexed to the estate of the Dignity: For those who are Earls have an office of great trust and confidence, and are created to two purposes; 1. Ad consulendum regi tempore pacis. 2. Ad defendendum regem & patriam tempore belli: and therefore Antiquity hath given them two Ensigns to resemble

these two duties: For first, their head is adorned with a Cap of Honour and Coronet, and their body with a Robe in resemblance of Counsel. 2. They are girt with a Sword, in resemblance that they should be faithful and loyal to defend their Prince and Country. And of both these Bracton speaketh, Lib. 1. cap. 8. Comites, viz. sive a comitat. sive a societat. nomen sumpser', qui etiam dici possunt consules a consulendo; reges enim tales sibi associat, ad consulendum & regend' populum Dei, ordinantes eos in magno honore & potestate, & nomine, quando accingunt gladiis, i. ringis gladiorum. By which it appeareth these two ends, Counsel and Defence. Then when such person against the duty and end of his dignity, taketh not only Counsel, but Arms also against the King to destroy him, and thereof is attainted by due Course of Law, by that he hath forfeited his dignity by a Condition tacite annexed to the estate of the dignity; in the same manner, as if Tenant in tail of an office of trust misuse it, or use it not, these are forfeitures of such Officers for ever by force of a condition in Law tacite annexed to their estates, as it is holden in 11 E. 4. 1. 20 E. 4. 5, 6. 39 H. 6. 32. 22 Ass. 34. 8 H. 4. 18. 2 H. 7. 11. 14 H. 7. 1. Plow. Com. 370. Nevil's Case. As to the third point, it was Resolved by all the Justices, that if the same had not been forfeited by the Common Law, that by the Statute of 26 H. 8. cap. 13. the said Charles hath forfeited the Dignity. For the words of the Act are, shall lose and forfeit to the Kings Highness, his heirs and successors, all such Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments which any such offender shall have any estate of Inheritance in use or possession, by any right, title or means: And this Dignity was an Hereditament, and therein the said Charles had an estate of Inheritance. And where the Statute saith (in use or possession) that was to express, that all manner of Inheritances were either in use, or in possession, (for that Act doth not extend to rights or titles) and it was necessary to add this word Use, for by the Common Law an Use, which was but a Trust and Confidence, was not forfeited by Attainder of Treason. And when an Use was expressed, then the addition of possession was necessary; for otherwise nothing but Uses should be given to the King. And therefore it was Resolved, That an Annuity of an Inheritance shall be forfeited by force of this Act by Attainder of Treason, for the same is an hereditament; and that was the first general Act by which an Estate tail was forfeited to the King for Treason. At the Common Law before the Statute of Donis Conditionalibus, If lands had been given to one and the heirs males of his body, in that case as well the Donor as the Donee had a possibility: the Donor of a Reverter if the Donee died without issue male, and the Donee to have power to alien if he had issue male. For if the Donee had issue a Son, now to some intent the Condition was performed, For post prolem suscitatam, he had potestatem alienandi; and the reason thereof was, because that he having a Fee simple, and having issue, his issue could not avoid the alienation, because he claimed Fee simple, whereof the Father might bar him. And although that the Donee and his issue also after such alienation died without issue, yet the Donor, who had but a possibility or a condition in Law, and no Reversion or Estate in him, could not have recovered the Land against the Alienee; for by the having of issue the Condition was performed as to this intent, scil. to make any alienation. But in the same Case at the Common Law if the Donee had issue a Son and dieth, yet the Son had not an absolute Fee simple in him, but only the same power which his Father had, sc. to Alien; and if such issue died without issue, and without making of any Alienation, the Land did revert to the Donor, as Brian holdeth, 12 E. 4. 3. & 18 E. 3. 46. by Huse. For a Collateral heir who is not heir of the body of the Donee is not within the form of the gift, the limitation being to the heirs males of the body of the Donee; which limitation of heirs males of the body, doth exclude all Collateral heirs for ever to inherit: But the policy of the Law was, to give power after issue to alien for two causes; one, that an estate of a Purchaser should not be avoided by a Remote possibility, sc. if the Donee and his issue should die without issue: 2. If he having a Fee simple should not have power to alien after issue, it should be in a manner a perpetuity, and a restraint of Alienation for ever, which the Common Law for many causes would not suffer, and in 4 H. 3. Formedon 64. it is adjudged, That where Lands were given in Frank marriage, and the Donees had issue and died, and afterwards the issue died without issue; that his Collateral heir should not inherit; for the Donor recovered the Land in a Formedon in the Reverter: and in the said Case if the Donee had issue two Sons, and dieth, and the eldest Son hath issue a daughter, and dieth without issue male, the younger Son shall inherit a Fee-simple, per formam doni at the Common Law: So if Lands were given to one, and to his heirs females of his body, and he hath issue a Son and a Daughter, and dieth, the Daughter shall inherit an Estate in Fee-simple per formam doni. And mark well, the Statute of Donis, &c. doth not create an Estate tail, but of such Estate was Fee-simple Conditional, and descendable in such form at the Common Law, as now by the Statute the Land shall descend; And the only mischief was, that the Donee after issue had power to alien in dishinherison of his issues, and bar of the Reversion: but it doth not appear by the said Act, that although that the Donee had issue, yet he had not an absolute fee, so that the Collateral heir of the issue should inherit; for the words of the Act are, Et præterea cum deficiente exitu de hujusmodi feoffatis; tenementum sic datum ad donatorem vel ad ejus hæredes reverti debuit, per formam in Carta de dono hujusmodi expressam, licet exitus, si quis fuerit, obiisset, per factum tamen & feoffamentum, &c. excluſi fuerunt hucusque de reversione, &c. by which it appeareth, that if the heir in tail dieth without issue, and without any alienation made, that the Land shall revert, and by consequence shall not descend to the Collateral heir. 30 E. 1. Formedon 65. If the donee in tail alieneth before the Statute, and afterwards hath issue, and then the issue dieth without issue, the Land shall revert: For he had not power to alien at the time of the alienation, but such alienation shall bar the issue, as it is adjudged in 19 E. 2. Formedon 61. because that he claimeth Fee simple. Note, these Rules yet hold place in case of a grant of an Annuity, to one and the heirs males of his body, and all other Inheritances which are not within the Statute de Donis Conditionalibus.

Penal Statutes.

[b] THis Term upon Letters directed to the Judges to have their Reſolution concerning the validity of a Grant made by Queen Elizabeth, under the great Seal, of the penalty and benefit of a penal Statute, and to make a Warrant to the Lord Chancellor, or Keeper of the great Seal, to make as many diſpenſations, and to whom he pleaſed; And upon great conſideraton and deliberation by all the Judges of England, It was Reſolved, That the ſaid grant was utterly againſt Law. And in that caſe theſe points were Reſolved, 1. That when a Statute is made by Parliament for the good of the Commonwealth, the King cannot give the penalty, benefit and diſpenſation of any ſuch Act to any ſubject; Or give power to any Subject to diſpenſe with it, and to make a Warrant to the great Seal for Licenſes in ſuch caſe to be made: For when a Statute is made pro bono publico, and the King (as the head of the Commonwealth, and the Fountain of Juſtice and Mercy) truſted by the whole Realm with it, this confidence and truth is ſo inſeparably joyned and annexed to the perſon of the King in ſo high a point of Sovereignty, that he cannot transfer the ſame to the diſpoſition or power of any private perſon, or to any private uſe; for it was committed to the King by all his Subjects for the good of the Commonwealth. And if he may grant the penalty of one Act, he may grant the penalty of Two, and ſo in infinitum. And ſuch grant of a penalty was never ſeen in our Books. But it is true, the King may (upon any cauſe moving him in reſpect of time, place, or perſon, &c.) make a Non Obſtante to diſpenſe with any particular perſon, that he ſhall not incurr the penalty of the Sta-
[37] tute, and therewith agree our Books. But the King cannot commit the Sword of Juſtice, or the Scale of his Mercy concerning any penal Statute, to any Subject, as is aforeſaid. 2. It was Reſolved, That the penalty of an Act of Parliament cannot be levied by any grant of the King, but only according to the purport and purview of the Act: for the Act which giveth the penalty ought to be followed only in the proſecution and levying thereof; and great inconveniences would follow, if penal Laws ſhould be transferred to Subjects. 1. Juſtice thereby ſhould be ſcandalized; for when ſuch Forfeitures are granted, or promiſed to be granted before that they are recovered, the ſame is the cauſe of a more violent and undue proceeding. 2. When it is publickly known that the Forfeiture and penalty of an Act of Parliament is granted, it is a great cauſe that the Act it ſelf is not executed; for the Judge and Jurors, and every other is thereby diſcouraged. 3. Thereupon will follow, That no penalty ſhould by any Act of Parliament be given to the King, but limited to ſuch uſes with which the King could not diſpence. And hereupon divers who had ſued to have benefit of certain penal Laws, were upon this Reſolution denied. And the Certificate of all the Judges of England concerning ſuch grants of penal Laws and Statutes, was in theſe words. May it pleaſe your Lordſhips, we have (as we are required by your honourable Letters of the 21 of October laſt) conferred and conſidered amongſt our ſelves (calling to us His Majeſties Council learned) of ſuch matters as were thereby referred unto us, and have thereupon with one conſent reſolved for Law and conveniency as followeth. Firſt, That the proſecution and execution of any penal Statute cannot be granted to any, for that the Act being made by the policy and wiſdom of the Parliament for the general good of the whole Realm, and of truſt committed to the King, as to the head of Juſtice, and of the weal publick, the ſame cannot by Law be transferred over to any ſubject; neither can any penal Statute be proſecuted, or executed, by his Majeſties grant, in other manner or order of proceeding, than by the Act it ſelf is provided and preſcribed: Neither do we find any ſuch grants in any former ages: And of late years: upon doubt conceived, that penal Laws might be ſought to be granted over, ſome Parliaments have forborn to give forfeitures to the Crown, and have diſpoſed thereof to the relief of the Poor, and other charitable uſes, which cannot be granted or imployed otherwiſe. We are alſo of opinion, That it is inconvenient, that the Forfeitures upon penal Laws ſhould be granted to any other, before
[b] the ſame be recovered or veſted in his Majeſty by due and lawful proceeding: for that in our experience it maketh the more violent and undue proceeding againſt the Subject, to the ſcandal of Juſtice, and the offence of many. But if by the induſtry or diligence of any, there accreweth any benefit to his Majeſty, after the recovery, ſuch have been rewarded out of the ſame at the Kings good pleaſure, &c. Dated 8. Novembr. 1604. And to this Letter all the Judges of England ſet their hands.

Lillingſton's Caſe.

John Duncomb brought an Action of Debt againſt Thomas Lillingſton, (which began in the Common Pleas, Paſch. 4. Jacobi, rot.) 704. for 195 l. and declared, That one Fauſtine Dixwell, and Mary his Wife, and the ſaid Thomas Lillingſton, and Mary his Wife, were ſeiſed of the Rectory of Lillingſton in the County of Bedford in Fee, and Mich. 31 Eliz. thereof levied a fine to Papworth and Chambers, and the heirs of Papworth, who granted and rendred a Rent-charge of 30 l. out of the ſaid Rectory to the ſaid Fauſtine for his life, to begin after the death of Mary his Wife, the rent yearly to be paid at the Feaſts of St. Michael the Archangel, and the Annunciation: Proviſo ſemper, quod prædict. Conceſſio prædict. annualis redditus 30 l. non aliqualit. ſe extendat ad onerand. dict. Papworth & Chambers ſed tantummodo ad onerand. dict. Rectoriam tota vita ipſius Fauſtini; and rendred the ſaid Rectory to Fauſtine and Mary during the life of Mary, the remainder to Thomas Lillingſton and Mary his Wife in tail, the remainder to the right heirs of Lillingſton. 2 Octob. 33 Eliz. the ſaid Fauſtine before Sir Chriſtopher Wray, chief Juſtice, acknowledged a Recogniſance of 500 l. in the nature of a Statute ſtaple, according to the Statute of 23 H. 8. to Duncomb now Plaintiff: 20 Aug. 39 Eliz. Mary the Wife of Fauſtine died, after whoſe death Lillingſton and Mary his Wife entred into the Rectory, and were thereof ſeiſed in tail, the remainder in fee to Lillingſton. The ſaid Fauſtine 15 Aprilis 40 Eliz. by his deed releaſed to the ſaid Lillingſton and his heirs the ſaid Rent of 30 l. per annum. The Plaintiff 21 Aprilis 40 Eliz. ſued out of the Chancery a Certiorari to the Clerk of the Statutes, &c. whereupon the ſaid Recogniſance in the nature of a Statute ſtaple was certified; and ſued forth an Extent, by which the ſaid Rent was extended, and upon Liberate delivered to the Plaintiff, the Plaintiff, for ſix years and a half ending at the Feaſt of Saint Michael the Archangel, Anno 2 Jacobi, brought the action of Debt againſt Lillingſton, who all that time was Tenant of the Land, and averred the life of Fauſtine. And upon all this Caſe two points were moved; 1. If this Rent of 30 l. per annum being extinct by the ſaid Releaſe, hath ſuch eſſence as to the Plaintiff the Conuſee, that it may be extended and delivered to the Plaintiff. 2. Admitting that it may be extended and delivered to the Plaintiff, if the Plaintiff as this caſe is, may maintain an Action of debt. As to the firſt it was objected, That this Recognizance is in the nature of a Statute ſtaple, and the Statute of 27 E. 3. cap. 9. to which the Statute of 23 H. 8. cap. 6. referreth, giveth power to the Maiors of the Staple to take Recognizance of Debts, &c. and that upon Certificate of ſuch Recognizance in the Chancery, a Writ be ſent to arreſt the bodies of the Debtors, without letting them to bail, and to ſeiſe their lands and Tenements, goods and chattels, and that the Writ be returned into the Chancery with the Certificate of the value of the ſaid Lands and Tenements, Goods and Chattels, and that execution be made from time to time in the ſame manner as is contained in the Statute Merchant: Upon which words it was urged, That the rent extinct before execution was not within the ſaid words, ſcil. of ſeiſure the Lands and Tenements of the ſaid Debtors. For at the time of the execution ſued the Debtor had not the Rent, but it was utterly extinct, and gone by the Releaſe. 2. The Writ of Extent is to extend omnes terras & catalla ipſius Fauſtini, & in manus dict. nuper Reginæ ſeiſiri faceret, & ea præfat. Johanni liberari faciat; and for as much as the Rent was extinct before the Writ of Extent, it is not in being, or to be extended, or taken into the Kings hands, or to be delivered to the Plaintiff. 3. It ſhall be againſt reaſon, that the Free-hold of the Rent being extinct, the Plaintiff ſhould have Execution of it, and thereby to have but a Chattel: and the opinion of 3 & 4 Phil. & Mar. Dyer, was cited, where the opinion is, That a Rent extinct cannot be extended. To which it was Anſwered and Reſolved, That to ſome purpoſes by the Common Law a rent extinct ſhall be ſaid in eſſe as to a ſtranger; and therefore, if the Husband ſeiſed of a Rent in fee, releaſeth the Rent to the Tenant of the Land, and afterwards the Husband dieth, now the Wife ſhall be endowed of this Rent ſo extinct, and ſhall have a Writ of Dower. The words of which Writ are, Præcipe A. quod juſte reddat B. tertiam partem 30 libr. reddit': and the Writ of Dower, Unde nihil habet is, Præcipe quod juſte reddat B. &c. rationabilem dotem ſuam quæ ei contingit de libero tenemento quod fuit, &c. and ſhe ſhall have Grand Cape, or a Petit Cape, as her Caſe requireth, to ſeiſe the Rent into the Kings hand; For quoad perentem, it is in being, although in truth the Rent be extinct: and ſee in the Lord of Aburgaveny's Caſe in the ſixth part of my Reports, many Caſes where a thing extinct ſhall be ſaid in eſſe for the benefit of a ſtranger. 2. It was obſerved, That the ſaid Act of 23 H. 8. cap. 6. (by force of which the ſaid Recognizance in the Caſe at Bar was taken) for the execution referreth to the Statute Staple and Statute Merchant. ſcil. the ſaid Act of 27 E. 3. referreth to Statute Merchant, de Anno 13 E. 1. The words of which Statute are, (And when the Lands of the Debtors be delivered to the Merchant, he ſhall have ſeiſin of all the Lands that were in the hands of the Debtor, the day of the Recognizance made, in whoſe hands ſoever that they come afterwards, by Feoffment or otherwiſe.) Then preſently by the Recognizance acknowledged, the Rent was bound, and ſhall be extended by the expreſs purview of the Statute, in whoſe hand ſoever that it cometh, and no more than the Releaſe of Fauſtine ſhall hurt after Execution had by the Conuſee, no more ſhall it do before Execution, for the Rent was liable to Execution preſently, by the acknowledging of the Recognizance. So if a Man hath Judgment to recover debt or damages, the Rent which he hath of any Eſtate of Free-hold is thereby lyable to it; and therefore although that after Judgment he releaſeth it, the Plaintiff ſhall have Execution of a moity by Elegit, which is given by the Statute of Weſt. 2. cap. 18. the words of which Statute are;

That

That they deliver to him the moyety of the lands of the debtor; which by Conſtruction of Law, is of all which he had at the time of the Judgment given, or at any time after. And in Cheny's Caſe, 27 Eliz. in the Court of Wards it was Reſolved, That where he in the Reverſion did enfeoff Leſſee for years to the uſe of another, that although the Leaſe ſhall be ſurrendred and extinct by the Common Law, yet by the ſaving of the Statute of 27 H. 8. for Uſes, the term of the Feoffee was ſaved. Alſo in the ſame Court 28 Eliz. in one Iſed's Caſe it was Reſolved, That where the Lord did enfeoff his Copyholder to the uſe of others, that the Copy-hold eſtate by the ſaving of the ſaid Act was preſerved. So in the Caſe at Bar, by the Act of Mercatoribus, all the lands (which includeth all hereditaments extendable) which the debtor had at the day of the Recognizance acknowledged, ſhall be delivered; which Act doth preſerve the Rent in being as to the execution of the Conuſee. And the Caſe in 21 E. 3. 18. and F. N. B. 223. If Lord and Tenant Abbot be, and the Lord releaſeth to the Abbot his Seigniory, the ſame is Mortmain by the Statute de Religioſis, and the Lord paramount ſhall have it by force of the ſaid Act, and yet the words of the Act are Dominus feodi taliter alienati, ſhall have it, and by Releaſe the ſame is extinct, and yet as to the Lord paramount it is in conſtruction of Law in eſſe, and he ſhall have it. 3. It ſhall be hard, That the Conuſor by his own Act ſhall bar the Conuſee, who is a ſtranger to the Releaſe, of his execution of the Rent, which perhaps was a chief cauſe of taking of the ſaid Recognizance, to have execution of it; and it is more reaſon to relieve the Conuſee in whom there is no fault, than the Tenant of the Land, who ought not to be miſconuſant of all Charges upon the Lands which are of Record. 4. Every Execution hath in judgment of Law relation and retroſpect to the Judgment, as it appeareth in Shelly's Caſe in the firſt part of my Reports. And the ſaid Caſe of Dower, and the Grand Cape, and Petit Cape thereupon, and [b] the Statute of Mercatoribus, which bindeth all the Land which the Conuſor had the day of the Recognizance acknowledged in whoſe hands ſoever it cometh, doth give full and ſufficient anſwer to all the ſaid Objections. And the opinion of one Serjeant Obiter in 3 & 4 Mar. was utterly denied. As to the ſecond point, it was Reſolved by the whole Court, That the Action of debt lieth not ſo long as the Extent endureth, for ſo long hath the Rent continuance, although the Free-hold thereof be determined. And all that, as to this point which was reſolved in Ognel's Caſe in the fourth part of my Reports, was affirmed to be good Law: and 9 H. 7. 17. That if the Lord granteth his Seignory for years; the grantee during the years ſhall not have an Action of Debt. And it was alſo Reſolved, That although there is an expreſs Proviſo, that the perſon ſhall not be charged in a Writ of Annuity, yet in ſuch Caſe after the Annuity or Rent determined, the perſon of the Tenant of the land ſhall be charged in Debt for the arrearages, becauſe the Annuity is determined, and he hath no other Remedy, as it is holden in Ognel's Caſe, and 6 Eliz. Dyer 227. there cited. It was alſo Reſolved, That if a Man granteth a Rent-charge for life out of his Land, and the Rent is behind; and the grantor doth enfeoff A. and the Rent is behind in his time; and afterwards A. enfeoffeth B. and the Rent is behind in his time, and afterwards the grantee dieth, his Executors ſhall have an Action of Debt againſt each of them, for the Rent behind in his time. For Qui ſentit commodum ſentire debet & onus, as it is alſo holden in Ognel's Caſe.

Bedell's Caſe.

Hill. 1 Jacobi Rot. 375. in the Kings Bench. Between Eliz. Bedell Plaintiff in Debt, and Michael Bedell Defendant, the Caſe was ſuch. Robert Bedell ſeiſed of a Meſſuage, &c. in Iver and Langley in the County of Bucks in Fee, by the ſaid Elizabeth his Wife had iſſue three Sons; James was the ſecond Son, and Michael the Defendant the third. The ſaid Robert by Indenture Tripartite, between him and his Wife of the firſt part; the ſaid James his ſecond Son of the ſecond part; and the ſaid Michael his third Son on the third part, In conſideration of natural love and affection which he hath to the ſaid James and Michael, and for their better preferment and advancement, and to the intent that the ſame Tenements ſhould continue in his name and blood, Covenanted by the ſaid Indentures, that he and his heirs would ſtand ſeiſed of the ſaid Tenements to the uſe of himſelf for life; and after his deceaſe to the uſe of the ſaid Elizabeth his Wife for life, and after their deceaſes, of one moity to the uſe of the ſaid James in tail, and of the other moity to the uſe of the ſaid Michael in tail, &c. and afterwards Robert died, and all this matter was found by ſpecial verdict. And the ſole queſtion was, if (as this Caſe is) any Uſe ſhould ariſe to Elizabeth his Wife or not. And it was objected, that the Wife was not within the conſiderations which were expreſſed in the Indentures, and no other conſideration can be added than is contained in the deed, and all ought to appear therein, and nothing is left to the word or averment of the parties. To which it was anſwered and reſolved, That a conſideration which ſtandeth with the deed, and is not repugnant to it, may be well averred, as it is adjudged in 3 & 4 Phil. & Mar. Dyer 146. in Viller's Caſe; which ſee in the firſt part of my Reports in Mildmay's Caſe, 176. 2. Admit that other conſideration than what is expreſſed in the deed could not be added, yet in this Caſe there is an expreſs conſideration: For when he limiteth the ſame to the uſe of his Wife for term of life, it importeth ſufficient conſideration in it ſelf; and there needeth not any averment; for manifeſta probatione non indigent, as in 13 H. 4. 17. where the Statute of Weſtm. 1. cap. 38. ordaineth, That the Writ of Aſſiſe of Mortdaunceſter have the term of Limitation from the Coronation of King H. 3. there it is holden, That if an Infant bringeth an Aſſiſe of Mortdaunceſter of the poſſeſſion of his Mother or Father, he needeth not allege, that it was after the Coronation of King H. 3. for the ſame appeareth. So if the Father, Tenant by Knight's Service enfeoffeth his Son and Heir Apparent within age, it needeth not be averred that the ſame was by colluſion, for the ſame is apparent. Wimbiſh's Caſe in Plow. Com. and 27 H. 8. Dacres Caſe. 33 H. 6. 14. 35 H. 6. 32. & quædam tacita habentur pro expreſſis. So if I covenant in conſideration of Fatherly love and affection to my eldeſt Son, to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of my eldeſt Son for life, in tail, and after to the uſe of my ſecond Son in tail, and after to the uſe of ſuch one my Couſin in fee, although the conſideration expreſſed in words reſpects only my eldeſt Son, yet the conſideration apparent in the deed, in limiting the uſe to my ſecond Son, or my Couſin, is a conſideration ſufficient to raiſe the uſe. So if I covenant to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of my Wife, Son, or Couſin, it ſhall well raiſe an uſe without any expreſs words of conſideration: For ſufficient conſideration appeareth, and fatherly love or affection appear. But if the Father by deed indented, in conſideration of a hundred pound payed by the Son, covenanteth to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of his Son, there no uſe ſhall be raiſed to the Son, if the deed be not enrolled, by the Statute of 26 H. 8. cap. 10. For the ſame is in the nature of a Bargain and Sale, and there expreſſum facit ceſſare tacitum. And after this Judgment a Writ of Error was brought the ſame Term upon the new Statute, and by all the Juſtices of the Common Pleas, and Barons of the Exchequer, the Judgment was affirmed. Note it well.

Beresford's Caſe.

[41] IN the Court of Wards between James Beresford Relator, and Thomas Beresford, and others Defendants, the caſe was ſuch; Aden Beresford being ſeiſed of the Mannors of Fennibently, Bircham, and other Lands in Fee, by his deed, 14 Junii, 40 Eliz. did enfeoff William Fleetwood, and others in Fee to the uſes of certain Indentures bearing date the 20th of Novemb. 34 Eliz. ſcil. to the uſe of the ſaid Aden the Father, for term of his life, and after his deceaſe to the uſe of George Beresford, ſon and heir apparent of the ſaid Aden, and the heirs males of his body lawfully begotten; and for default of ſuch iſſue to the uſe of Aden Beresford, ſon of James Beresford, and of the heirs males of the ſaid Aden, ſon of the ſaid James, lawfully begotten; and for default of ſuch iſſue to the uſe of the heirs Male of the body of the ſaid James Beresford lawfully begotten; and for default of ſuch iſſue, to the uſe of Thomas Beresford, third ſon of the ſaid Aden, and of the heirs males of the body of the ſaid Thomas, lawfully begotten; and for default of ſuch iſſue, to the uſe of Humphrey Beresford, fourth ſon of the ſaid Aden, and of the heirs males of his body, lawfully begotten, with divers remainders over, and with remainder to the heirs females of the body of George, and ſo of Aden, the ſon of James, lawfully begotten, with the remainder to the right heirs of Aden the Father for ever. And the only queſtion of the Caſe was, What eſtate Aden the ſon of James had: and in this Caſe two points were argued before the two Chief Juſtices, and chief Baron, at Serjeants Inn. And it was objected, That Aden the ſon of James had not fee-tail but fee-ſimple; for the limitation to him is, To the uſe of Aden, and of the heirs males of the ſaid Aden lawfully begotten; and here wanteth theſe words (of the body) ſo that now the limitation is not but in effect, to the uſe of Aden, and the heirs males of the ſaid Aden, for theſe ſubſequent words [b] (lawfully begotten) are implied; for every heir ought to be lawfully begotten. And limitation to one, and to his heirs males, is without queſtion a Fee-ſimple. And a Judgment in the Kings Bench between Abraham and Trigg, Hill. 38 Eliz. Rot. 739. was ſtrongly urged, where a Feoffment was made to the uſe of certain Indentures (as this Caſe is) where one limitation was, ad opus & uſum Gabrielis Dormer & hæredum maſculorum ſuorum legitime procreatorum, & pro defectu talis exitus, to the uſe of divers others in tail in remainder: and upon argument at the Bar and Bench, it was adjudged, That Gabriel had a Fee ſimple; for it is not limited of what body the heirs males ſhall be begotten, but his intent was, quod ſinguli hæredes ſui maſculi ſhould inherit, which intent did not ſtand with the Rule of Law; and although a Remainder be limitted over, which could not be upon a Fee-ſimple, yet the ſame cannot againſt the Rule of Law make words of Fee-ſimple to be converted to an eſtate in tail. And they concluded with Littleton fol. 6. b. that the reaſon wherefore when Lands are given to one and his heirs males or females, it is a Fee-ſimple, is, becauſe it is not limitted by the gift of what body the Iſſue male or female ſhall be begotten, and ſo cannot in any manner be taken by equity of the Statute of Donis conditionalibus, and therefore it is a Fee-ſimple. So in the caſe at bar; and therewith agreeth 8 E. 3. 49. where lands were given to one, & hæredibus ſuis legitimis, the ſame is Fee-ſimple, which is all one with a limitation to one, & hæredibus ſuis legitime procreatis. But it was anſwered and reſolved by the ſaid Juſtices and chief Baron, that all the Remainders over were lawfully veſted: For it was agreed that to an eſtate in tail is requiſite in all gifts and limitations of uſes, that the heirs be limitted to be procreated or begotten on ſome body certain, either by expreſs words, or by words which do amount to ſo much: for theſe preciſe words (de corpore) are not neceſſary to the creation of an eſtate tail, ſo long as there are words which do amount to ſo much; as in 5 H. 5. 6, where the gift was Dedi unum meſuag. R. & K. uxori ejus & hæredibus eorum, & aliis hæredibus dict. R. ſi dict. hæredes de R. & K. exeuntes obierint ſine hæredibus de ſe. In this caſe theſe words (de corpore) are omitted, and yet it was adjudged a good eſtate in tail, for there are words which do amount to as much; for the gift in effect is, to the Husband and Wife, and to the heirs of the Husband and Wife begotten, or of the ſaid R. & K. exeunt. or hæredibus de ſe, and all is by force of this preposition (de) [42] and (iſſuing.) And in 12 H. 4. Brev. Land was given to one, & hæredibus quos ſibi contigerit habere de uxore ſua, there wanted words (de corpore) yet becauſe it doth amount to as much, it is adjudged a good eſtate tail. And 3 E. 3. Brev. 743. Land is given to one, & hæredibus quos ſibi contigerit habere de uxore ſua, there wanted words (de corpore) yet becauſe it doth amount to as much, it is adjudged a good eſtate tail. And 3 E. 3. Brev. 743. Land is given to one, & hæredibus ſuis de prima uxore ſua, the ſame is a good eſtate tail. And it was reſolved, if Land be given to one, & hæredibus de ſe exeuntibus, that the ſame is a good eſtate tail. And in theſe Caſes, the principal cauſe is by force of the preposition (de.) And divers other caſes were put, for which cauſe it was concluded, That either words (de corpore) or which do amount to ſo much, are requiſite to the Creation of an eſtate tail. And it was reſolved in that Caſe at Bar, there were words which did amount to as much; for by the Statute de donis conditionalibus, voluntas donatoris in charta doni ſui manifeſte expreſſa de cetero obſervetur; and therefore in this Caſe ſuch conſtruction ſhall be made that ſhall produce three effects. 1. To ſtand with the Rule of Law. 2. With the intent of the Donor. 3, That all the parts of the Indenture may ſtand together. And therefore tranſlate the ſaid Limitation to Aden in Latin, and then the Limitation is, ad uſum Adeni & hæredum maſculorum de dicto Adeno ligitime procreatorum, or

& hæred. maſculorum legitime procreatorum de dicto Adeno, which is as much as if he had ſaid, By the ſaid Aden lawfully begotten; for all is one in effect: For this word (de) or (ex) coupled with the word ſubſequent procreat' doth appropriate the heirs males to be of the body of Aden; for de Adeno, or ex Adeno, and de corpore Adeni, are all one. And the ſame is directly proved by the Judgment in the Caſe of 5 H. 5. 6. For there was (de) and (exeunt.) and here is (de) and (procreat.) which are all one in effect. And in the ſaid Caſe of Abraham and Trigge there wanted (de). And as to that which was objected, That the Limitation in Latin might well be, ad uſum dicti Adeni, & hæredum maſculorum dicti Adeni (in the Genetive caſe) legitime procreat. and not (de dicto Adeno) or if the Limitation be not certain to make the eſtate tail, theſe are words certain enough to make it a Fee-ſimple. To that it was anſwered and reſolved: 1. It ought to be, de dicto Adeno; for otherwiſe it ſhall be againſt the meaning of the giver, and all the words of Remainder ſhall be void; and always ſuch conſtruction ſhall be made, that all the parts of the deed may ſtand together, if it may ſtand with the Rule of Law. 2. The ſubſequent clauſe is (and for the default of ſuch Iſſue) and Iſſue cannot be of Aden, if the words be not (ex Adeno) and therefore the one clauſe doth well explain the other. And according to this Reſolution the Caſe was decreed accordingly. Vide 35 Aſſiſe pla. 14. 37 Aſſiſe pla. 14. 39 Aſſiſe pla. 24 Edw. 3. 28. 18 Edw. 2. Br. 836.

Mich. 5 Jacobi, in the Courts of Wards.

Kenne's Caſe.

IN the Court of Wards, between Thomas Robertſon, and Elizabeth his Wife, Plaintiff, and Florence Lady Stallenge defendant, the Caſe was ſuch; Chriſtopher Kenne Eſquire was ſeiſed of the Mannor of Kenne in the County of Somerſet, holden by Knights ſervice in capite, and 37 Hen. 8. de facto took to Wife Elizabeth Stowel, and afterwards the ſaid Elizabeth Stowel had iſſue Martha, mother of Elizabeth, now one of the Plaintiffs: and afterwards 1 & 2 Phil. & Mar. in the Court of Audience, between the ſaid Chriſtopher Kenne, Plaintiff, and Elizabeth Kenne, Defendant, the Judge there gave ſentence in theſe words; Prætenſ. tractat. contract. ſponſalia, & matrimonium, quin verius effigiem matrimonii inter Chriſtopherum Kenne, & Elizab. Stowel in minore & ſua impubertatis ætate eorundem aut eorum alterius de facti', habit. contracti', & celebrat. fuiſſe & eſſe, eoſdemque Chriſtopherum & Elizab. tam tempore contractus, & ſolemnizationis dicti' prætenſ. matrimonii, quam etiam continuo poſtea eidem matrimonio prætenſ. & ſolemnizationi ejuſdem, diſſenſiſſe, contraveniſſe, reclamaſſe, & reluctaſſe, adeo prætextu hujuſmodi prætenſ. tractat', contract', ſponſalia, & matrimonium de jure nullum & nulla, irritum & irrita, caſſum & caſſa, invalidum & invalida, & minus efficax & inefficatia, fuiſſe & eſſe, viribuſque juris caruiſſe, carere, & carere debere; necnon antedictos Chriſtopherum Kenne & Eliz. Stowel, quatenus de facto fuer. ad invicem matrimon. ut prædicitur copulat', ab invicem ſeperand' & divorciand' fore debere pronunciamus, decernimus, & declaramus, eoſque ſeparamus, & divorciamus, eiſdemque Chriſtophero & Elizab. licentiam & libertatem ad alia vota convolanda concedimus, tribuimus, & impertimur per hanc ſententiam noſtram definitivam, ſive hoc finale noſtrum decretum, quam ſive quod ferimus & promulgamus in hiis ſcriptis, &c. And after the ſaid Divorce the ſaid Chriſtopher Kenne married and took to wife Elizabeth Beckwith. And afterwards, anno 5 Eliz. before the Commiſſioners Eccleaſtical, the ſaid Elizabeth Beckwith did libel againſt the ſaid Chriſtopher Kenne, that he (before the marriage contracted betwixt them) had married with the ſaid Elizabeth Stowel, whereupon Proceſs was awarded againſt the ſaid Elizabeth to appear, and upon due examination the cauſe was ſentenced, That the marriage betwixt the ſaid Chriſtopher Kenne and Elizabeth Beckwith was lawful, and ſentenced them ad exequenda conjugalia obſequia, &c. And that the ſaid Chriſtopher Kenne was never lawfully married to the ſaid Elizabeth Stowel; and afterwards the ſaid Elizabeth Beckwith died, after whoſe death the ſaid Chriſtopher Kenne married the ſaid Florence, by whom he had iſſue the ſaid Elizabeth, and died: and anno 36 Eliz. it was found by office in the County of Somerſet, by force of a Mandamus, after the death of the ſaid Chriſtopher Kenne, that the ſaid Elizabeth Kenne was his daughter and heir, and that ſhe was within age, ſc. of the age of ten months. The Wardſhip of the Cuſtody of whom the Queen granted to Sir Nicholas Stallenge, and the ſaid Florence then his Wife: Whereupon the ſaid Martha pretending her ſelf to be daughter and heir to the ſaid Chriſtopher Kenne, with her Husband Silveſter Williams exhibited their Bill into the Court of Wards againſt the ſaid Sir Nicholas and Florence, ſurmiſing that the ſaid Martha was daughter and heir of the ſaid Chriſtopher Kenne on the body of Elizabeth Stowel his lawful Wife (as ſhe pretended) alledging that they at the time of their marriage, in anno 37 H. 8. were above the age of conſent, and that they did cohabit together nine or ten years before the ſaid ſuppoſed Divorce, during which cohabitation the ſaid Martha was gotten betwixt them, and prayed leave that the ſaid Silveſter and Martha might traverſe the ſaid Office. To which the ſaid Sir Nicholas and Florence anſwered, and the Plaintiffs examined divers witneſſes, and before Prohibition Sir Nicholas died; and thereupon the ſaid Silveſter and Martha exhibited a Bill of Reverter againſt the ſaid Florence; and afterwards the ſaid Martha having iſſue Elizabeth, the woman now Plaintiff, died. After whose death the said Robertson and Elizabeth his Wife brought a new Bill of reviver to review the former Sute, in which the Witnesses were examined. And this case was referred to Fleming and Coke chief Justices, and to Tanfield chief Baron, and to Yelverton and Williams Justices, and Snigg and Altham Barons of the Exchequer. And in this Case three questions were moved. 1. If against the first Divorce the Plaintiffs shall be received to averr, that they did agree and consent to the Marriage; or that they shall be concluded by the said sentence of Divorce. 2. The second question was, if they shall have a Traverse of the said Office before an Office found for them. 3. If they shall have a Bill of Reviver upon a Bill of Reviver, as this Case is. And as to the first it was objected, that it appeareth by Littleton, Lib. 2. fol. 22. That by the Statute of Merton, cap. 6. and 35 H. 6. 40. &c. That the Common Law and Parliaments have taken notice of the age of consent of the Male to be fourteen, and of the Female to be twelve years; and therefore the same is triable at the Common Law. And if in truth the Husband and Wife are of age of consent at the time of the Marriage, no Divorce after pretending that they were within age of consent shall conclude the parties or their heirs, but they may prove the contrary at the Common Law, and chiefly in the Case at Bar, because the same concerneth Inheritance, and the true descent thereof; & sententia contra matrimonium nunquam transit in rem judicatam. 2. Admitting that they were within age of consent, if they be together, and have issue, although that a Divorce for impuberty and minority of years be had, yet it is but evidence, and shall not conclude the parties in any Action at the Common Law to prove their assent, for as much as the Divorce is had for that Case, and the cause is triable at the Common Law, the Divorce shall not conclude them. And 11 H. 7. 27. was cited, That he who pleadeth a Divorce ought to shew the cause of the Divorce; and if the cause be triable at the Common Law (as it is in the Case at Bar) there it shall not conclude; but if it be a thing not tryable at the Common Law, as a precontract, profession, &c. there it is otherwise. But as to that it was resolved by all the Justices and Barons, that the said sentence should conclude as long as it remained in force, and that for divers causes. 1. The Ecclesiastical Judge hath sentenced the contract and marriage to be void and of no effect, and although that they were of the age of consent, yet if the original contract was void and of no effect, then there was just cause of Divorce. 2. There were words of Divorce and separation, eosdem divorciamus & separamus; and giveth to each of them liberty ad alia vota convolanda. 3. If the marriage had been infra annos nubiles, the Ecclesiastical Judge is Judge as well of the assent as of the first Contract, and what shall be a sufficient assent, or not; and although the Ecclesiastical Judge sheweth cause of his sentence, yet for as much as he is Judge of the original matter, scil. of the Loyalty of the Matrimony, we shall never examine the Cause whether it be true or not; For of things, (the Cognizance whereof belongeth to the Ecclesiastical Court,) we must give credit to their sentences, as they give to the Judgments in our Courts. Also the Rule of their Law is, Quod masculi quidem puberes, feminæ viri potentes matrimonio consentiri possunt: and the determination thereof doth belong to their Cognizance. And as to the Case of 11 H. 7. 29. it is true, That the cause of the divorce ought to be shewed, because that some divorce doth dissolve the Marriage, scil. a vinculo matrimonii, Bastardeth the issue, and barreth the Wife of her Dower, and some a Mensa & Thoro, and doth not dissolve the Marriage, nor bar the wife of Dower, nor bastardize the issue; But in the case of Deprivation, there the cause needeth not be shewed; for be it right or wrongful, upon cause or without cause, it standeth, and every deprivation doth disable and remove the party deprived, as well for one cause as for another, as long as the deprivation standeth in force. Vide 8 Ass. 9 E. 4. 24. 7 E. 4. 32. 3 H. 6. 12 H. 8. 5. And Coke chief Justice cited the case in 22 E. 4. tit. Consultation 5. Corbett's Case, where the Case was. That Sir Richard Corbett had issue by Elizabeth his Wife, two Sons, Robert the eldest, and Roger the younger, and died; Robert the eldest being within the age of fourteen years took one Maud to Wife, and at full age they cohabited together, & habuerunt carnalem copulam, & cogniti & reputati pro viro & uxore palam; and afterwards the said Robert put away his Wife, having no Issue by her, and married one Lettice, &c. living the said Maud, and had issue Robert by her; and afterwards Robert who so married Lettice, died, and Lettice openly told, that she was the lawful Wife of Robert, and her Son a Mulier, for which Roger the Son of the said Robert Corbett sued in the Spiritual Court to reverse the marriage between Robert his Brother and Lettice, and that Lettice be put to silence; for which cause Lettice sued a Prohibition. And in that Case three points were resolved, 1. That if Robert and Maud had had Issue, and had been unjustly divorced, and afterwards Robert had married Lettice, and had issue and died, the issue of Robert and Maud might sue in the Ecclesiastical Court to avoid the divorce; for so long as the divorce stood in force (the Common Law giveth so great credit to it) the Issue could not have remedy by the Common Law. And note in the Case no cause of the divorce doth appear, but because the marriage was had betwixt them when the parties were infra annos nubiles: and in the said Case of Divorce, the issue shall have his sute originally to reverse it in the Spiritual Court, for a divorce is a Spiritual judgment, and ought to be reversed in the Spiritual Court. But in the Case of Corbett there is no divorce, nor any other Spiritual Judgment that should disable the said Roger; and therefore he ought originally to begin at the Common Law as heir, and he shall have all Actions in the Temporal Court as heir, and all benefits as heir against the issue of Lettice, notwithstanding the second marriage; for they are void in all Law, Temporal and Spiritual, and the action and original to bastardize any, shall not be moved originally in the Spiritual Court, when no Spiritual sentence doth disable him, but he shall begin in the Temporal Court, and then if need be, they shall write to the Spiritual Judge if general bastardy be alledged: and the reason thereof is, because a man may be a Bastard in the Temporal Law, and Mulier in the Spiritual Law, and e converso. For a man who is begotten in Adultery during the Coverture is Mulier by the Temporal Law, and Bastard by the Spiritual Law. If a man beateth a Clark, if he sueth in the Spiritual Court to excommunicate him for the offence, it is well; but if he sueth there to have amends, a Prohibition lieth. 2. It was resolved in the said Case of Corbett, That when the Spiritual Court shall have Jurisdiction, it behoveth, that that the whole Caſe be Spiritual; as if a Parſon libelleth againſt a Lay-man for taking away his Tithes, the Temporal Court ſhall have Juriſdiction, for it is mixt with the Temporalty: And in the ſame caſe the matter is mixt (by conſequence) with the Temporalty, ſcil. that the one is heir, and that the other is a Baſtard; But if the ſaid Caſe of Tithes be between Parſon and Parſon, or between a Parſon and a Lay-man, if the right of the Tithes cometh in Queſtion, the Spiritual Court ſhall have the Juriſdiction. See the Statute de circumſpecte agatis, where it is ſaid, That mere ſpiritualia, do belong to the Eccleſiaſtical Cognizance. And Linwood, cap. de foro competent. fo. 7. ſaith, mere ſpiritualia ſic dicta, quia non habent mixturam temporalium: and where the ſaid Act ſaith, de mortali peccato, Linwood expoundeth it, and ſaith, Non intelligas de omni peccato mortali, ſed a tali cujus punitio de ſua natura ſpectat ad forum eccleſiaſticum: nam ſi de ratione cujuſlibet peccati mortalis cognoſceret Eccleſia, ſic periret temporalis gladii juriſdictio, cum vix eſſet dare cauſam quin ratione peccati poſſit deferri ad Eccleſiam. 3. It was Reſolved in the ſaid Caſe of Corbett, That when all the cauſe is originally ſpiritual; yet if after in the Spiritual Court they are to try a Temporal thing, a Prohibition ſhall lie: as if one Parſon ſaith, That the place is within his Pariſh, and the other contrary, after ſuch matter ſhewed, a Prohibtion ſhall lie, and therewith agree 29 E. 3. 23. & 5 H. 5. 10. Note Reader, a good difference between a Repeal of a ſentence of divorce given in the life of the parties, and a ſentence of divorce after the death of the parties. For it appeareth by the ſaid Caſe of 22 E. 4. That a ſentence of divorce may be repealed in the Spiritual Court by a ſute there after the death of the parties; but if any of the parties be dead before any divorce ſentenced in the Eccleſiaſtical Court, there they cannot ſue in the Spiritual Court to declare the marriage void, and to baſtardize the iſſue. For the trial doth originally belong to the Kings Court, and no diſability is by the ſentence in the Spiritual Court, and therewith agree 39 Aſſ. p. 10. 39 E. 3. 31. and 24 H. 8. title Baſtardy 44. b. That a divorce after the death of any of the parties, or a ſentence declaratory that the marriage was void after the death of any of the parties, ſhall not bind them; for it is but in effect to baſtardize the iſſue, of which they have not originally cognizance, as before hath been ſaid. Vide 19 Aſſ. p. 2. 2. If two be married infra annos nubiles, and afterwards at full age a divorce be betwixt them, it diſſolveth the Marriage, for there the Wife brought an Aſſiſe againſt her husband. See Burie's Caſe in the fifth part of my Reports, fol. 98. and ſee Cawdrie's Caſe in the ſame Book; and ſee Bunting's Caſe in the fourth part of my Reports, fol. 28. & 11 H. 7. 9. 34 H. 6. 14. 12 H. 8. 5. As to the ſecond point it was objected that the party ſhall have traverſe without any Office found for him; For when a direct and ſufficient Office is found in one County by force of Diem clauſit extremum, or Mandamus, after the death of the Anceſtor, there ſhall never Office again be found for the ſame Land, as long as it ſtandeth in force; for otherwiſe the Law ſhall never have an end; and threwith agree 4 H. 7. 15. 14. E. 4. 5. 15 E. 4. 11. 2 H. 7. 12, 18. and therefore it ſhall be hard for him to find an Office for him, before he may traverſe; where by the Law he cannot find in ſuch Caſe any Office. 2. It was Objected, That the Statute of 2 E. 6. cap. 8. hath remedied it if any Office were requiſite by the Common Law, the words of which Act are. And whereas one perſon or more is or ſhall be found heir to the Kings Tenant by Office where any other perſon is or ſhall be heir, or if one perſon or more be or ſhall be found heir by office in one County, and another perſon or perſons is or ſhall be found heir to the ſame party in another County, &c. Be it enacted, that every perſon grieved by any ſuch Office ſhall and may have his or their traverſe to the ſame immediately, or after, at his or their pleaſure, and proceed and have like trial and advantage, as in other caſes of traverſe. By which it appeareth, that the party grieved ſhall have Traverſe (without ſpeaking of any Office) and proceed and have ſuch advantage as in other caſe of Traverſe; and in other caſes of Traverſe there needeth not any Office. But it was Reſolved, That as the Caſe at Bar is, the Plaintiff ought to have an Office found before he can traverſe. And as to the firſt Objection it was Anſwered and Reſolved, that in ſuch ſpecial Caſe of finding of an heir, he who is right heir and grieved by the office, ſhall have a new Writ of Diem clauſit extremum, or Mandamus. For he is a ſtranger to the ſaid Office, and therefore the Office ſhall not conclude him. And the ſaid Rule, and the Books are to be intended, That the ſame perſon ſhall not have a new Diem clauſit extremum, or Mandamus, after an Office once duly found; but another perſon ſhall have one in that Caſe to prove himſelf heir, and therewith agree 30 Aſſ. p. 28. F. N. B. 261, 262. 4 H. 7. 15. 12 R. 2. Livery 28. Stamf. prærog. 52. b. And that there ought to be an Office before he traverſe, the Common Law therein hath great reaſon; for when the King is ſure of Wardſhip, or Primer ſeiſin by Office, it is not reaſon that any one who pretendeth himſelf heir ſhould traverſe the Office that the other is not heir, until the King be ſure to have profit by him, either by Wardſhip or Primer ſeiſin; for then after the firſt Office avoided by traverſe, he might ſhew matter to bar the King of Wardſhip or Primer ſeiſin, which ſhall not be reaſonable. Alſo at the Common Law Enterpleader lyeth, where by two ſeveral Offices in one and the ſame County ſeveral perſons are ſeverally found heirs to one perſon, to one and the ſame Land; Ergo, the party grieved may have a Writ to find an Office for him; for otherwiſe no Enterpleader can be: for the heir who was firſt found heir ſhall have a Scire facias in the Chancery, againſt him who is found heir by the ſecond Office, (becauſe the King is in doubt to whom to make Livery) upon which if he appear, and juſtifie the ſecond Office, for the tryal of the privity of the blood, then he ought to traverſe the firſt Office, (for all the enterpleading ſhall be thereupon) and upon the tryal thereof, he who is found heir ſhall have Livery. So that it clearly appeareth, that he who traverſeth the Office in ſuch Caſe ought to have an Office found for him by the Common Law; and therewith agreeth 36 E. 3. Traverſ. 44. 16 E. 4. 4. F. N. B. 162. For he who ought to ſue Livery, ought to have an Office before that he traverſeth. Otherwiſe is it of a ſtranger who deſtroyeth the Kings Title, Vide 36 E. 3. Traverſ. 44. 12 E. 4. 18. 16 E. 4. 4. 43 Aſſ. p. 20. 9 H. 7. 24. 5 E. 4, 5. 12 H. 6. 46 E. 3. bre. 618. As to the ſecond Objection, it was Anſwered and Reſolved, That the ſaid Act of 2 E. 6. giveth not traverſe to him who pretendeth himſelf to be heir againſt an Office found for another heir, without an Office found for him: for [45]

for that is incident to it, which is not taken away by the general words of the Act, for then all Enterpleaders ſhall be thereby alſo taken away, which never was the intention of the Act; But the intent of the makers of the Act was, to take away a great doubt at the Common Law, which was, if one be found heir within age by one Office, and afterwards another is found heir in the ſame County of full age, if any traverſe and Enterpleader ſhall be immediately, or if traverſe and enterpleading ſhall ſtay until the full age of the Infant, was vexata quæſtio, as it appeareth in our Books, ſcil. 36 E. 3. Traverſe 44. 5 E. 4. 4. 1 H. 7. 14. F. N. B. 162. And therefore to oust that doubt was the Statute of 2 E. 6. made, by which it is enacted, That the party grieved ſhall have traverſe immediately, which word (immediately) proveth the Intention of the ſaid Act to provide for the ſaid doubt, and to give him who was grieved in ſuch Caſe a Traverſe preſently; but not to alter the foundation of the Traverſe, ſcil. Office, which ought to be found for the party grieved before that he can traverſe: And where the Statute ſaith, That he ſhall have a Traverſe preſently, it is to be intended that he ought to obſerve all Incidents to a Traverſe: For the Office is the ground and foundation of his Traverſe. As to the 3. point, It was Reſolved by the greater part, That a Bill of Reviver upon a Bil of Reviver ſhall not be admitted, for the infiniteneſs: For infinitum in jure reprobatur; And no Wri of Journeys Accompts ſhall be brought upon Journeys Accompts. But it was Reſolved by all, that as this Caſe is, the laſt Bill of Reviver was abſurd, For the ſame prayeth that the former Bill be revived; and the firſt Bill prayeth, That Martha may Traverſe, and Martha is dead. And ſo firſt the divorce ſo long as it doth remain in force doth bind the Right; 2. The not finding of the Office doth diſable the Plaintiff to traverſe the Office: And laſtly, The Bill of Reviver upon the Bill of Reviver as this Caſe is, is not maintenable.

PART VIII.

Hill. 3 Jacobi.

The Case of the Prince.

THE King, at the supplication of the most Noble Prince HENRY, his first begotten Son, Duke of Cornwall, brought a Scire facias against Henry Lindley, Knight, and Serjeant Hele, to repeal Letters Patents of Queen Elizabeth, bearing date the second of May, in the thirty seventh year of her Reign, by which the Queen granted to the said Henry Lindley, and to one Gelly Merick (now dead) and their heirs, the Manors of West Taunton, Trelowie and Landulph, in the County of Cornwall, to the end the King might make Livery of them to the said Duke, as members and parts of the [14] Dutchy aforesaid, and that by force of three Acts of Parliament, two in 11 Edw. 3. whereof the [b] one is in form of a Charter by authority of Parliament, by which the Prince was created Duke of Cornwall, and the possessions of the Dukedome of Cornwall thereby given to him, with special limitation, and the possessions annexed to the said Dutchy, so as they shall not be severed, with special cause of Revivification, although that the special limitation at any time should cease, &c. And of the Act of 32 Hen. 8. by which the three Manors are made parcels of the said Dutchy to all intents and purposes, &c. Sir Henry Lindley, and Serjeant Hele, and one Warwick Hele, Knight, Ten-tenants of the said three Manors were summoned; and, after three imparlances, the said Sir Henry Lindley as to the said two several Acts of Parliament, anno 11 Edw. 3. severally pleaded Nul tiel record. Serjeant Hele, and the said Warwick, pleaded the said Letters Patents of Queen Elizabeth, with a non obstante the said Act of 32 H. 8. and conveyed to them a joynt estate, to them, and to the heirs of the Serjeant; and further pleaded the Act of Confirmation of Letters Patents at [15] the Parliament holden 43 Elizab. And as to the Pleas of the said Sir Henry Lindley, the King's Attorney pleaded and shewed an Exemplification by Inspeximus of the said Charter of 11 Edw. 3. under the Great Seal (as in the Record where it is entered in hæc verba) and demanded Judgement if against the same he should be admitted to plead Nul tiel record. And demurred in Law upon the Plea of Serjeant Hele and Warwick, who joyned with him. And further, ut amici Curiæ, and and to inform the Court of the truth of the state which the King, that now is, hath in the residue of the said Manors, parcel of the said Dutchy, they repeated to the Court part of the Act of 1 Hen. 7. concerning the Dutchy of Cornwall. And Henry Lindley demurred in Law upon the Replication of the Attorney General, with whom the Attorney joined. The cause that I have made an abstract of the Case so compendious is, that I have added the whole Record at length, and if the Case should be also put at large, it would extend this Case to an unnecessary prolixity. In this Case four Questions were thought worthy of consideration. 1. If the Instrument of 17. Martii, anno 11 Edw. 3. to Prince Edward, be a Charter made in time of Parliament, or a Charter established by authority of Parliament, and the same is the principal and fundamental point upon which the whole doth

[b] depend. 2. If there were any other Act but the said Charter; and if there be any other Act, if the King's Writ be good which alleges another Act. 3. Admitting that the Prince shall be Duke of Cornwall, what estate Prince Edward shall have in the Honour and Dukedome of Cornwall, and how he hath it, by descent, or purchase: For if the Prince hath but a particular estate, then, after the particular estate ended, the said Serjeant Hele and his heirs shall have the said Manor until, &c. And then a special Judgement ought to be given, with a Quoad, &c. and no general Judgement that the Letters Patents shall be void, nor the inrollment cancelled. 4. If against such Act of Parliament Nul tiel record may be pleaded. And the Lord Chancellor, because that the Cause was of great importance and consequence, assisted himself with one Judge of each of the Courts at Westminster, sc. Coke chief Justice of the Common Pleas, Fleming chief Baron of the Exchequer, and Williams one of the Judges of King's Bench, (for Sir John Popham, Knight, late chief Justice of the King's Bench, who was called to it, and heard some of the Arguments at the Barr, dyed depending the [16] Plea.) And this Case was strongly argued at the Barr, by Stephens the Prince's Attorney, for the King, and by Serjeant Heron for the Defendants. And at another day by Doddridge the King's Solicitour, and by Serjeant Houghton for the Defendans. And lastly, by Hobart the King's Attorney General. And afterwards, the same Terme, the Case was argued by Williams and the chief Baron in one day; and at another by the chief Justice of the Common Pleas and the Lord Chancellour. And as to the first point it was resolved by the Lord Chancellour and the said Justices, That the said Charter was made by Authority of Parliament. And because that Duo sunt instrumenta ad omnes res, aut confirmandas, aut impugnandas, Ratio & Authoritas; They confirmed their opinions, 1. by Reason; and then by Authorities in Law. For the first they gave two Reasons, ex visceribus causæ,

First, Ex impossibili; and that for three Causes: 1. It should be impossible if the said Charter was not established by Parliament, that the estate, either of the Honour to be Duke of Cornwall, or of the possessions thereof being limited in such special manner as it is, should be sufficient in Law. For [b] the limitation of both is, Habendum & tenendum eidem Duci, & ipsius & hæredum suorum Regum Angliæ filiis primogenitis & dicti loci Ducibus, in regno Angliæ hæreditariè successuris. So that he who ought to inherit by force of this Grant, ought to be the first begotten Son and Heir apparent of the King of England, and of such King as is Heir to Prince Edward, and that such first begotten Son and Heir apparent of the Crown shall inherit the Dukedom in the life time of his Father. So that if there be King Grandfather, Father and Son, now the Father being the first begotten Son of the Grandfather is Duke of Cornwall in the life of the King, and the same instant that the Grandfather dieth, the Father is King, and the same instant also the Son is Duke of Cornwall; which course of Inheritance being against the Rules of the Common Law, cannot be created by Charter without the force and strength of an Act of Parliament. And in this Case the eldest Son of the King hath this Dignity by right of Inheritance, in like manner as the eldest Son of Grandees and Peers of the Realm which have supereminent Dignities in them, have in appellation and courtesie onely; as if the Grandfather be a Baron, Father and Son are, and the King createth the Grandfather an Earl, eo instante the Father is a Baron in appellation and courtesie, and eo instante that the Grand-
[17] father dieth, the Father is Earl, and the Son Baron by courtesie. 2. It shall be impossible that the possessions of the Dutchy shall be so annexed by Charter in the same manner as the Charter doth purport; For the Clause of annexation is, Quæ quidem omnia Castra, Burg', Vill', Maneria, &c. put' Ducatui præsenti Charta nostra pro nobis & hæredibus nostris annectimus & unimus eidem imperpetuum remansur', ita quod ab eodem Ducatu aliquo modo nullatenus separentur, nec alicui seu aliquibus alii, quam dicti loci Ducibus per nos vel hæredes nostros donentur, seu quomodolibet concedantur; Which indissoluble and inseperable annexation cannot be made in such manner by Charter onely, without Act of Parliament. 3. It shall be impossible by the Rule of Law, That an estate in Land should cease, and revive again, as by the Clause of Revivification is intended by Charter onely; the which Clause is, Ita quod præfat' Duci, seu aliis ejusdem loci Ducibus decedent, & filio seu filiis, ad quos dictus Ducatus prætextu Doni & Concessionis nostrorum prædictorum spectare dignoscitur, tunc non apparentibus, idem Ducatus cum Castris, Burg', Villis, &c. ad nos vel hæredes nostros Reges Angliæ revertatur,
[b] in manibus nostris & ipsorum hæredum nostrorum Regum Angliæ retinend', quousque de hujusmodi filio seu filiis in dicto regno Angliæ hæreditate succes'jur' appareat, ut dictum est, quibus tamen successive Ducatum illum cum pertinentiis, pro nobis & hæredibus nostris concedimus & volumus liberari, tunc prout superius est expressum. For although that a Rent newly created (to which no man may have an antient Right) may cease for a time, and revive again, yet Land which is of a more solid nature, and to which another may have an antient right, cannot so doe, as it is resolved in Corbet's Case in the First Part of my Reports.

The second Reason was, ex absurdo, That six others being created Earls at the same time for the Honour of the Prince, all their Creations and Donations shall be firm and good in Law to some of them, and the heirs of their bodies; and to others in Fee-simple, and that the Creation of the Prince himself, and of such a most noble Prince, and the Grant to him of the said Castles, Manors, &c. shall be either void in Law, or but an Estate at will; and especially in such a time when there were Judges (who alwaies attended the Parliament) well learned and understanding the Law.

Then it is to see what Authorities and Precedents there are to prove the said Charter hath the force
[18] of an Act of Parliament. And the same was proved four manner of waies. 1. Out of the Charter it self, and Authorities in Law agreeing to it. 2. By Grants and Estates by the Prince, and by Letters Patents of Kings. 3. By Judgements given according to the ordinary course of Law, and Resolutions of the Judges in all the King's Courts. 4. By Resolutions in Parliaments by the King and the whole Body of the Realm.

1. In

1. In the Charter it self made to the Prince two Clauses were observed, which prove, that it hath the force of an Act of Parliament. 1. In the beginning of the Charter it is said, Considerationis nostræ intuitus ad personam dilecti & fidelis nostri Edwardi, Comitis Cestriæ, filii nostri primogeniti, intimos convertentes, volentésque ejusdem personam honorari, eidem filio nostro nomen & honorem Ducis Cornubiæ de communi consensu Prælatorum, Comitum, Baronum, & aliorum de Consilio nostro in præsenti Parliamento convocat. existent. Dedimus, &c. By which it appeareth, that the Charter was made by Authority of Parliament. And it was resolved, that this Clause doth extend to all the parts of the Charter, which Clause of it self had been sufficient. 2. In the close and end of the Charter, which is parcel of the Record, it is said, Dat. per manum nostram apud Westm. 17 die Martii, anno regni nostri 11. Per ipsum Regem & totum Consilium in Parliamento. Which Clause also proveth that it [b] was made by Authority of Parliament. And it was more for the Honour of the King that the Creation and Donation should be in the form of a Charter, and that Witnesses should be called unto it, so that nothing should be omitted which belonged to a compleat Charter, and so principally to proceed from the King, as the Fountain of all Honour and Dignity; then if the Creation and Donation had been onely by Act of Parliament; in which all should be Donours. Note Reader, If Letters Patents pass by Bill signed without Privy Seal, the Patent is subscribed, per ipsum Regem, (and then the Bill signed doth remain with the Chancellour for his Warrant:) and when it passeth by Bill signed, and Privy Seal also, then the Privy Seal, and it signed remaineth with the Clerk of the Signet, and the Lord Privy Seal hath an Extract thereof to make the Privy Seal, and then the Letters Patents are subscribed, per Breve de Privato Sigillo: and if authoritate Parliamenti be added, then it passeth according to the Act of 27 Hen. 8. cap. 11. And when the King signeth the Patent it self in the upper part, and the Signature and Great Seal go together, then it is subscribed, Per ipsum Regem manu sua propria. And when it is made by Authority and Consent of [19] Parliament, then it is subscribed, Per ipsum Regem, & totum Consilium in Parliamento, or to the like effect. And it is to know, That in ancient times, as well when any Land, Franchise, or Hereditament, did pass from the King of any Estate of Inheritance, as in the Creation of any to Honour or Dignity by Letters Patents, the Conclusion was with His testibus: but of long time for Lands, Franchises or Hereditaments, this form hath been discontinued, and now is, and so it hath been of long time, the Patent concludes, Teste meipso, &c. But in all Creations to Honour and Dignity by Letters Patents the ancient form of Conclusion of His testibus is continued to this day; And that Acts of Parliament do goe in the form of the King's Charter, we have many Examples in Law. 1. Magna Charta, made 9 Hen. 3. which beginneth, Imprimis, Concessimus Deo, & hac præsenti Charta nostra confirmavimus pro nobis & hæredibus nostris imperpetuum, &c. and the Charter concludes with His testibus, and Datum per manum nostram, as ours doth: And although it doth not appear in the Charter it self by expres words, that the same was by Authority of Parliament, yet because that all parts of it cross and change the Common Law, which a Charter in it self cannot doe, and it appeareth by the last Chapter, That for the said Grand Charter, Archiepiscopi, Episcopi, Abbates, Priores, Comites, Barones, Milites, liberi tenentes, [b] & omnes de regno nostro dederunt nobis quintodecimam partem omnium mobilium suorum: this Clause in the Conclusion of the Charter proveth the same by implication to be an Act in form of a Charter. And lastly, the same hath alwaies had the allowance of an Act of Parliament, and therefore ought to be so taken; which is a stronger Case then ours is, for here are full and expres words; and Anno 21 Edw. 3. brev. 881. in the Earl of Chester's Case the 11. Chapter of Magna Charta, Quod Communia Placita non sequant. Curiam nostram, is cited to take away the Jurisdiction of the King's Bench; And this Grand Charter hath been allowed and confirmed above thirty times. So the Act of 21 H. 3. de anno Bissextili, the same beginneth, Rex Justiciariis suis de Banco, &c. in the forme of a Patent or Writ. The Statute of Protections, Anno 33 E. 1. de conjunctim feoffatis, Anno 34 E. 1. which beginneth, Rex omnibus ad quos, &c. and concludes, In cujus rei testimonium has Literas nostras fieri fecimus Patentes. Teste, &c. So the Statute of Articuli Cleri beginneth, Edw. Dei gratia, Omnibus ad quos, &c. and concludes, In cujus, &c. Teste, &c. Two Statutes made Anno 14 E. 3. one pro Clero, and the other concerning England, that it shall not be in the subjection of France, [20] and many other Acts of Parliament are made in the form of the King's Charter. And it was resolved, that these words in an Act or Charter, (By Authority of Parliament) are sufficient to make the same an Act of Parliament. Bracton calleth the Court of Parliament, Magna Curia, Magnum Consilium, and Commune Consilium regni. The said Statute de anno Bissextili: Rex per Consilium fidelium subditorum: The Statute of Bigamie, Anno 4 E. 1. In præsentia venerabilium patrum quorundam Episcoporum Angliæ, & aliorum de Consilio Regis. 7 E. 1. De Religiosis, De Concilio Prælatorum, Comitum, Baronum, & aliorum fidelium regni nostri, de Consilio nostro existentium, providimus, statuimus, ordinavimus: And in the beginning of the Act, Dominus Rex in Parliamento suo Statuta edidit, 13 E. 1. The Statute of Winchester, in the purview of the Act it is said, Our Lord the King, to abate the power of Felons, hath established a pein in this case, &c. And in the end of the said Act the King commands and forbids, That from thenceforth neither Fair nor Market be holden in Churchyards, &c. 20 E. 1. the Statute De vocat. ad Warrant. Dominus Rex de Communi Consilio suo statuit. The Statute of Appellatis 28 E. 1. Dominus Rex in Parliamento statuit 27 Edw. 3. cap. 1. Staple, the Court of Parliament is called the Great Council: and many Acts to this purpose were cited, to shew the variety of penning of Acts of Parliament: and the original Writs which are founded upon any Statute say, Quare de Communi Consilio regni nostri Angliæ provisum sit, &c. and the Writ upon the Statute of Labourers saith, Cum per Consilium nostrum de communi utilitate regni ordinatum sit, 11 H. 7. 27. If an Act of Parliament be penned by assent of the King and of the Lords spiritual and temporal, and of the Commons; Or it is enacted by Authority of Parliament, it is a good Act; but the most usual way is, That it is enacted by the King, by the assent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and of the Commons, 7 Hen. 7. 14. & 34 Edw. 3. 12. acc. and there it is said, that there are many Statutes which are indited, Quod Dominus Rex statuit: yet if they be entred in the Parliament Roll, and alwaies allowed for Acts of Parliament, it shall be intended that it was by Authority of Parliament: But if an Act be penned, that the King with the assent of the Lords, or with the assent of the Commons, it is no Act of Parliament; for three ought to assent to it, sc. the King, the Lords and the Commons, or otherwise it is not an Act of Parliament; and the Record of the Act doth expres against which of them gave their assent, the same [21] excludeth all other intendments that any other gave their assent: and so it is the difference between a general and particular penning of an Act of Parliament. Vide 8 H. 6. cap. 29. and 5 R. 2. cap. 2. of Fugitives: 21 E. 3. 60. The Bishop of Norwich his Case. And at this very Parliament of 11 E. 3. Henry, son of Henry Earl of Lancaster, was created by Charter, ad requisitionem Prælatorum, & Procerum & Commnnitatis regni nostri in instante Parliamento nostro apud Westm. convocat. to be Earl of Derby, to him and the heirs males of his body. Also by onother Charter, the King created William de Bohun, de communi assensu Prælat', Comit', Baronum, & aliorum de Consilio nostro in præsenti Parliamento nostro, Earl of Northampton, to him and the heirs of his body. And at the same Parliament by Charter created Hugh de Audley Earl of Glouceſter, de definito dict. Parliam. nostri Consilio, &c. And by Charter with the like words the King at the same Parliament created Will. de Clynton Earl of Huntingdon in tail; Robert de Ufford Earl of Suffolk in Fee-simple; Will. de Monte acuto Earl of Salisbury in Fee-simple; and all these were Creations with Donations, ad sustinend. nomen & onus, by Authority of Parliament, in form of the King's Charter, with Hiis testibus, and some with such subscription, Per Regem & Consil. in Parliamento; and some, Per Regem & Consilium in [b] pleno Parliamento; and others, Per ipsum Regem & totum Consilium in Parliamento; all which are of one effect. And those were the Proofs collected out of the Charter it self, and other Acts of Parliament which are penned in the form of the King's Charter.

2. The same is proved by Letters Patents, as Ex rotul. Patentium de anno 14 E. 3. num. 18. which was within three years after the Charter; The King granted to the Prince, by the name of Edward Duke of Cornwall, &c. to be Lieutenant of the Realm so long as the King shall be beyond the Sea. In anno 21 E. 3. ex rot. patent. in Turre, The said Prince (within ten years after his Creation) for the fine of a thousand Marks did demise to Tideman de Limbergh, Cunagium Stannariæ totius Ducatus Cornubiæ pro tribus annis, necnon emptionem Stanni tam infra dictum Ducatum Cornubiæ quam Com. Devon. fossi & fodiendi quod vendi debet, Reddendo annuatim three thousand Marks; which the Prince could not have done, if he had but an Estate at will, as at the first he had not, if the said Charter had not the force of an Act of Parliament. Other Letters Patents were cited in 5 H. 4. ex rot. patent. ibidem. Rex, &c. Sciatis quod Regnum Angl. primogeniti filii in Ducatum Cornub. hereditariè successur'. And divers other Patents were cited to the same effect.

3. The same is proved by Judgements and Resolutions of Judges; In 18 Ass. pl. 5. Thorp saith, [22] That it was adjudged in Parliament, that if a gift be made to one and to his heirs males, that his Sisters and other heirs collateral, as well as heirs males, shall be inheritable, because upon such gift he had Fee-simple; and it was inferred, that such Resolution might well be at the Parliament 11 Edw. 3. where the said Creation of the Prince, and annexation of the said Lands, were in consideration: And because the same could not take effect by gift or grant, it was advised that it should be by Act of Parliament, because there was not any such descent or course of Inheritance by the Common Law, 21 Edw. 3. 41. where the Manor of Berkhamsted was by the said Charter annexed to the said Dutchy, the Judges there allowed the gift of the said Manor to be good to the Prince, which could not be, as it hath been often said, if it had not the force of an Act of Parliament. 39. Edw. 3. 12. The King, anno 11. of his Reign, at his Parliament holden at Westminster, made the Prince Duke of Cornwall, and many others Earls of this Realm, amongst which was Will. de Monte acuto, Earl of Salisbury. And in 43 Ass. pl. 15. & 45 Ass. pl. 6. the gift and annexation of the possessions of the said Dukedome granted by the said Charter unto the Prince was allowed to
[b] be good. 50 E. 3. inter record. in the Tower in the same year. Johann. the Wife of the said Prince was by order of Law endowed in Chancery of the possessions granted by the said Charter to the Prince her Husband; ergo, the Charter did convey an Estate of Inheritance to the said Prince. Anno 5 H. 4. ex Rot. Parl. the same year a Petition in Parliament was exhibited by the Commons, for the Resumption of all Grants and Letters Patents before made of the Lands of the said Dutchy of Cornwall, to which the King and the Lords with great Gravity and Justice, knowing the danger such private Bills would introduce, although the same doth concern the King's eldest Son (an excellent Precedent to give a Caveat to pass few or no private Bills between subject and subject, but to referre them either to the Courts of Equity, or of Law, where the Cause may be duly examined, and upon deliberation discerned and adjudged) gave such answer, It is agreed by the King and the Lords in Parliament, that the said Lord the Prince have Writs of Scire facias, or other recovery, the best he may have by the Statutes and Laws of the Kingdom, according as the Case doth require. And thereupon a Scire facias was brought in the name of the King at the Petition of the Prince, Trinit. 5 Hen. 4. in the Chancery, to repeal a Grant which Rich. 2. made (and which was [23] confirmed by King Henry the Fourth) of the Manor of Risberghe, parcel of the said Dutchy, to Sir Lewis Clifford, and his heirs, who was returned, summoned, and made default; Per quod de advisament' Justiciariorum, &c. consideratum fuit tunc & ibidem, quod Literæ prædict' præfat. Ludovico ut præfertur factæ revocentur & adnullentur, &c. Another Scire facias was brought anno 6 Hen. 4. in the name of the King, at the Petition of the Prince, in the Chancery, to repeal a Grant made by King Richard the Second, and confirmed by King Henry the Fourth, of the Manor of Helesion, Helesion, in Kerier in the County of Cornwall, to Nicholas Sarnfield, Knight, and Margaret his Wife, for their lives: And at the Returne of the Scire facias, sc. Octab. Hill. The Prince by Thomas Beston his Atturney appeared, and the said Margaret also, her Husband being dead. Et prædictus Princeps petit quod Literæ prædict. in forma prædicta facti. revocentur & adnihilentur, & quod prædictum manerium, &c. in manus Domini Regis seisiatur, & eidem Principi tanquam membrum & parcell' Ducatus prædicti juxta formam & effectum dictorum doni & concessionis, & unionis præfati avi Domini Regis, habendum & tenendum, liberetur. And that Record was delivered by the Chancellour in the King's Bench (Gascoigne being then chief Justice) and thereupon Margaret pleaded the Grant of King Richard the Second to her for life, and prayed in aid of the King, and had it, and the Court gave day, &c. And the Prince at the day brought a Procedendo in loquela, dum tamen ad judicium reddendum Domino Rege inconsulto nullatenus procederetur: and thereupon Margaret made default, and thereupon day is given to the Prince, &c. At which day the Prince brought a Procedendo ad judicium, upon which the Court gave Judgement as followeth: Consideratum est, quod Literæ præd' in forma præd' factæ revocentur & adnullentur, & quod dictum manerium, &c. in manus Domini Regis, &c. seisiatur, & eidem Principi tanquam membrum & parcell' Ducatus prædicti juxta formam & effectum dictorum doni, concessionis & unionis præfati avi dicti Regis, habendum & tenendum liberetur. And in Mich. 30 Hen. 8. in memorandis Scaccar. Rot. 16. the Record saith, Ad Parliament. 11 E. 3. tent. inter alia ordinatum & inactitatum fuit, quod Comit' Cornubiæ imperpetuum moraretur ut Ducatus fil' senior. Regum Angliæ qui essent Reges propinquiores Reg. absque aliquo modo donari, &c. And there is no opinion in Law against it; for the Case in 1 Mar. 94. Dyer is such (the Record of which I have seen, which is entred Trin. 7 E. 6. Rot. 303. In a Replevin by Thomas Chafine, Esq. against the Lord Stourton, for taking, &c. at Meere in the County of Wilts, the Defendant did avow for damage fesant; and because the place where doth contain two hundred acres of Land, whereof King H. 8. was seised in fee; and 35 Hen. 8. demised the same to one Pyster for years, who granted the same to the Lord Sturton, and in barr of which avowrie, the Defendant Chafin pleaded, Quod Dom. Rex Edw. quondam Rex Angl. tertius, progenitor dom. Reg. nunc, fuit sesit. de manerio de Mere in Com. præd. unde, &c. in dominico suo ut de feodo in jure Coron. suæ Angl. & sic inde seisitus existens, ad Parliament. suum tent. apud Westmonast. in Comitatu Midd. die Lunæ proim. post festum Sancti Matth. Apostoli anno regni sui undecimo, inter cætera, per assens. omnium tam Prælat', Comitum, Baron', & aliorum, quam genitum de communitate, accordatum fuit, Quod pro honore dicti nuper Regis & terræ suæ, & ad fortificationem ejusdem, & pro eo quod ex antiquo esset Dux Cornubiæ, quod dict' quondam Rex præficeret Dominum Edw. filium suum tunc Comit' Cestriæ, Ducem Cornub. & quod filius senior regn. Angl. viz. illi qui essent prox. hæred. de regno Angl', essent Duces Cornub. & quod dict. Comitatus esset dict. dom. Edw. in nomine Ducatus, & quod dict. Comit. Cornub. imperpetuum moraretur ut Ducatus filiorum seniorum reg. Angl. qui essent prox. hæredes regni absque alit' donat. existen', prout in eodem actu, inter alia, plenius continetur. Posteaque præd. nuper Rex Edwardus tertius seisitus existens de præd' Maner. de Mere cum pertinentiis unde, &c. in dominico suo ut de feodo & jure, ut de jure coron. suæ Angliæ, per Literas suas patentes, quarum dat' est apud Westm. xvij. die Martii, anno regni sui undecimo, & in Curia hic prolat', recitans per easdem, quod cum nuper personam dilecti & fidelis ipsius nuper Regis Edw. tunc Comitis Cestriæ filii sui primogeniti honorare volens: Eidem filio suo nomen & honorem Ducis Cornubiæ dederit, ipsumque in Ducem Cornub. præfecerit, & gladio cinxerit, ut decerit, Dederit & concesserit, & per easdem Literas suas Patentes, pro se & hæredibus suis confirmaverit eidem filio suo sub nomine & honore Ducis dict. loci, inter alia, præd. manerium de Mere, cum pertinent': Habendum & tenendum eidem nuper Duci & ipsius & hæredum suorum Regum Angl. filiis primogenitis, dicti loci Ducibus, in regno Angliæ hæreditariè successuris, quod quidem Manerium cum pertinentiis, idem nuper Rex Edw. 3. prædict. Ducatui pro se & hæredibus suis per prædict' Literas Patentes, inter alia, annexit & univit eidem in perpetuum remansur', ita quod, &c. And further pleaded the Clause of Revivification, as in the Charter. By force of which Act, and of the said Letters Patents, the said Edward the Prince fuit seisitus de Manerio prædicto, inter alia, eidem Ducatui unit' & annexo & ejusdem Ducatus parcell. in dominico suo, ut de feodo & jure: And afterwards the said Prince Edward died, by which King Edw. 3. was seised of the said Manor in fee, and then he died, and the same descended to King Henry the Eighth, ut consanguineo & hæredi ipsius Edw. 3. and afterwards King Hen. 8. had issue Edw. 6. his first begotten Son, by which he was Duke of Cornwall, &c. And afterwards King Hen. 8. made the Lease to Pistor, prout, &c. And afterwards King Ed. 6. anno 4. demised the said two hundred acres to Chafine for one and twenty years, upon which it was demurred in Law. And because the said Charter of King Edw. 3. was pleaded (without authority or force of Parliament) there it seemed,

First, that the Prince had but an Estate at will.

Secondly, that the King could not unite and annex the said Manour to the said Dutchy by his said Letters Patents without Authority of Parliament, and make it parcell of the Dutchy, and to alter the form and course of the Dutchy.

Thirdly, per mortem Ducis Cornubiæ, the Manour came to the King as an Escheat for want of a Duke and first begotten Son, and was then knit and rejoyned to the Crown in lieu of the Seigniory, and by the birth of any other Son it could not be severed, &c. And although that all that was but the motion of the Chancellour; for the Book saith, Quod Justiciarii noluerunt arguere istum casum, ut credo, propter pregnantiam Mariæ Reginæ. But if the same opinion should be admitted, yet it proveth nothing against this Resolution; for by the said Act mentioned in the Plea, nothing passeth, but the Charter ought to pass the said Manour, and the same cannot pass in such manner without Authority of Parliament, nor the Charter alone could not annex the said Manour to be parcell of the Dutchy, and the Charter was not pleaded to be made by Authority of Parliament. And for the opinion in Altonwood's Case, in the First Part of my Reports, it is there also admitted, that the said Grant was onely by Charter.

4. It is proved by Judgements and Resolutions of the Judges in Parliament, That the said Charter hath the authority and force of Parliament; 1. ex Rot. Parliam. anno 5 Hen. 4. a Judgement given in Parliament against Sir John Cornwall and his Wife Countess of Huntingdon, for certain Manours which she had of the Dutchy of Cornwall, and which were annexed to it: also by the Act of 33 Hen. 6. which see inter originalia de 35 Hen. 6. rot. 29. ex remem. Thesaurar. in Scaccario: Et ex Rot. Parliamenti de 9 H. 5. where it is resolved and affirmed by both Acts of Parliament, that the said King Edw. 3. by his Charter 17 Martii anno 11. of the common assent and counsell of the Prelates, Earls, Barons, of others of council in his Parliament, gave, &c. as in the Charter. And it is provided by the same Act of 9 Hen. 5. That the Manour of Istelworth which was annexed by the said Charter, &c. should be several and disannexed; in which two things were observed.

[26] 1. That the said Charter of King Edw. 3. hath the authority and force of Parliament.

2. That the said Manour of Istelworth was so annexed that it could not be severed and disannexed but by Act of Parliament: and all the same is affirmed also by another Act of Parliament, anno 38 Hen. 6. ex Rot. Parliament. Vide the Act of 3 Edw. 4. ex Rot. Parl. and the Act of 32 Edw. 4. ex eodem Rot. of a very long exchange between the King and the Earl of Huntingdon, which Act is revoked by an Act made 11 H. 7. And see the Act of 1 H. 7. ex Rot. Parliament. of the same year, (part of which is pleaded by Serjeant Hele and Warwick Hele,) by which it is enacted that Hen. 7. should have and hold the Dukedome of Cornwall, &c. to him and to his heirs, in as large and ample manner and form, &c. as the Kings H. 6. and Edw. 4. or any of them enjoyed the same Manour, &c. But they omitted this subsequent Clause, &c. And be it also ordained and established by the same Authority, that whensoever our Sovereign Lord by the grace of God have first a Son of his body lawfully begotten, and that the same Son and Prince have and enjoy the said Dutchy of Cornwall, &c. in as ample and large form and manner as any Prince, first begotten Son of any King, hath had or enjoyed before

[b] this Act. And all that which hath been said, is resolved and affirmed by Authority in Parliament, anno 32 H. 8. mentioned in the Scire facias; for which it was resolved by the Lord Chancellour and the said Justices, That the said Charter hath the authority and force of an Act of Parliament.

As to the second Point it was resolved, That the Charter having the authority and force of Parliament, is sufficient in it self, without any other Act; and if the King's Scire facias hath sufficient matter it shall never abate for surplusage not material. Vide 4 Hen. 6. 16. 45 Edw. 3. 6. a. 49 Ass. pl. 26. Vide the Act of 9 Hen. 5. For there it is affirmed by the whole Parliament, That at the Parliament holden at Westminster the Monday next after the Feast of Saint Matthew the Apostle in the 11. year of the reign of King Edward the Third, amongst other things, it was agreed, That the eldest Sons of the Kings of England, &c. those who shall be next heirs to the Realm of England, were Dukes of Cornwall, and that the County of Cornwall shall alwaies remain as Dutchy to the eldest Sons of the Kings of England, which shall be next heirs to the said Realm, without be-

[27] ing given elsewhere. And thereupon King Edward by his Charter 17 Martii then next following, of common assent and counsel of the Prelates, Earls, Barons, and other of his Council being, the said Parliament gave, &c. but the Court did relie upon the King's Charter, with the authority and assent of Parliament.

As to the third Point it was resolved, That the Prince hath an Estate in Fee-simple in the said Dukedom: for every Estate of Inheritance is either Fee-simple or Fee-tail, and the same is not an Estate tail, for it is not limited or restrained either by express words or by any that do amount to so much, to the heirs of the body of the Prince; for the Gift is not to the said Prince, & ipsius & hered. suorum Regum Angliæ filiis primogenitis. So that he who ought to inherit ought to be first begotten Son of the heirs of the Black Prince, be it heir lineal or collateral; but such heir ought to be King of England. Which manner of limitation was short, excellent, and curious; for to raise an Estate of Inheritance these essential words (his heirs) were not omitted, although that afterwards they were qualified, as by the limitation appeareth. And that the same was an Estate of Inheritance is proved by the said Record of 50 Edw. 3. by which it appeareth, That the Wife of the Black Prince was endowed. And it appeareth by the Book of 21 Edw. 3. 41. that the said Prince

[b] in the said Manour of Berkhamsted (parcell of the said Dutchy of Cornwall) had Fee. And the said Judgements in 5 and 6 H. 4. prove it; for there Judgement generally is given, That the Letters Patents should be revoked and made void, &c. which Judgement could not have been given, if any Estate, or Reversion, or Possibility did remain in the Patentee, for then the Letters Patents shall not be made void, but the Judgement should be that the Letters Patents should be made void and annulled as to the Estate of the Prince. Also it appeareth by the Law de 33 H. 6. ex Rot. Parl. and by the Act of Parliament 38 H. 6. out of the same Roll, that Edward, eldest Son of H. 6. had his Livery as inheritable by descent due to him by birth-right; and so had Edward, the first begotten Son of Edw. 4. and Arthur, the first begotten Son of Hen. 7. to whom Livery was made of the said Dutchy which belonged to them jure hæreditario. In anno 22 E. 4. ex Rot. Parliament. in the said long Exchange between the King and the Earl of Huntingdon, there the Prince is adjudged to be seised of the Dutchy of Cornwall in Fee-simple; and it was unanimously resolved by the Lord Chancellour and the said Justices, That the Prince hath a Fee-simple by descent in the Honour and Possessions of the said Dutchy.

[28] As to the fourth Point it was resolved, That against a general Act of Parl. or such Act whereof the Judges ex officio ought to take notice, the other party cannot plead Nul tiel record; For of such Act the Judges ought to take notice: But if it be misrecited, the party ought to demur in Law upon it. And in that case the Law is grounded upon great reason; for God defend if the Record of such Acts shall be lost, or burnt by Fire, or other means, that the same should be to the general prejudice of the Commonwealth, but although that it be lost or burnt, the Judges by Printing, or by the Record in which it was pleaded, or by other means, may inform themselves of it. See Partridge and Croker's Case, &c. Plowd. Com. fol. 78.

And it was resolved, that this Act, which concerneth the King, and the Prince which shall be the first begotton Son of the King and heir apparent to the Crown for the time being, perpetuis futuris temporibus, is such an Act whereof the Judges and all the Kingdom ought to take notice: For every subject hath an interest in the King and none of his subjects who is under his Laws are divided from him, being their Head and Sovereign, so that the business and things of the King doth touch the whole Kingdom, and especially when the same concerneth the Prince, the first begotten Son of the [b] King, and heir apparent to the Crown, Coruscat enim Princeps radiis Regis patris sui, & censetur una persona cum ipso Rege, as it is said in the Act of Parliament of 38 Hen. 6. And therefore if any one intend the Death of the Prince, and declare the same by open act, the same is Treason, by the ancient Common Laws of England, and so declared by the Statutes of 25 Edw. 3. 1 Hen. 5. 7. If the Prince, as Prince of Wales, hath Judgement to recover, and afterwards the Crown descendeth unto him, he as King shall sue execution. And with the reason of this Resolution in this Point agreeth the Rule of the Court in Plowd. Com. in the Lord Berkley's Case, 231. That the Act of 35 Hen. 8. which concerneth the capacity of the Queen, was such an Act whereof the Judges ought to take knowledge, because the same concerneth the King's Wife, and by the same reason in this Case of the Prince. And it was agreed, That if Nul tiel record shall be admitted to be pleaded in this Case, that the substance and effect of the Record is sufficient to maintain the said Scire facias, doth appear in the Record exemplified under the Great Seal. It was also resolved, that the Act of 43 Eliz. of Confirmations of Letters Patents pleaded by Serjeant Hele and Warwick, Hele do not extend to this Case for two manifest Reasons.

1. Because the Act doth supply onely certain particular defects, as Misnosmer of the Manors, &c. [29] Misrecital or non-recital of Leases and other special Imperfections mentioned in the Act.

2. The Act maketh the Letters Patents good onely against the King, his heirs and successors, with a saving to all others, and therefore without question the Right of the Prince cannot be bound thereby: And that the Act of 1 Hen. 7. which the said Serjeant Hele and Warwick, pleaded, as amici Curiæ to inform the Court of the truth, helped them not; for by the same it is enacted, That King Hen. 7. shall have to him and his heirs the said Dutchy in as ample and large manner as H. 6. or E. 4. had it; which words of reference preserve the Dutchy of Cornwall according to the Limitation of Creation by the Charter of 11 E. 3. But in truth the Serjeant and his Son have not performed the office of a good friend; for they have omitted one Clause in the same Act which expresly concerneth the preservation of the said Dutchy of Cornwall to the first begotten Son of the King, &c. and therefore they have endeavoured to deceive the Court and to suppress the truth. And lastly it was resolved that in such Scire facias brought by the King to repeal Letters Patents made of any parcel of the Dutchy, to the end that the King may make Livery to the Prince, that the King or [b] the Prince may reply to any Barr pleaded by the Defendants; and both waies are good in Law; but the best form is that the King's Attorney till Livery be sued do reply, as he did in this Case at Barr. And as to the Clause of Non obstante in the Letters Patents of Queen Elizabeth, it was resolved, that the same cannot take away the force of the said Acts of Parliament nor prejudice the Prince that now is of his Right in the Dukedom.

And in this Case divers things were observed:

1. That the eldest Son of every King, after the said Creation, was Duke of Cornwall, and so allowed; as Henry of Monmouth first begotten Son of Hen. 4. and Henry of Windsor, first begotten Son of Hen. 5. and Edward of Westminster, the first begotten Son of Hen. 6. and Edward of Westminster, the first begotten Son of Edw. 4. and Arthur of Winchester, the first begotten Son of Hen. 7. and Edward of Hampton, the first begotten Son of Hen. 8. And all these have enjoyed the style, honour and possessions of the said Dutchy of Cornwall, so that the possession hath been alwaies without interruption with the first begotten Sons of the Kings at all times after the said creation in 11 Edw. 3. which is about three hundred years: So that after the creation there was never any first begotten Son of any King but he was Duke of Cornwall. [30]

2. That Richard de Burdeaux, who was Son of the black Prince, was not Duke of Cornwall by force of the said Creation; for although that after the death of his Father he was heir apparent to the Crown, yet because he was not the first begotten Son of any King of England (for his Father died in the life time of King Edw. 3.) the said Richard was not in the limitation of 11 Edw. 3. and therefore in an. 50 E. 3. he was created Duke of Cornwall by a special Charter: Nor Elizabeth the eldest Daughter of King Edw. 4. was not Dutchess of Cornwall, for she was the first begotten Daughter of the King, and the limitation is to the first begotten Son. Neither was King Hen. 8. in the life of his Father, after the death of Prince Arthur his Brother, by force of the said creation Duke of Cornwall; for although he was the sole Son and heir apparent of Hen. 7. yet forasmuch as he was not the first begotten Son, he was not within the said limitation; for Prince Arthur was his first begotten Son.

3. The great care and regard that every King hath from time to time of the said Creation to preserve the said Dukedom to his eldest Son. And after divers Continuances the Judgement was given as followeth.

Calye's Caſe.

[32] IT was reſolved by the whole Court this Term, That if a man cometh to a common Inn, and delivereth his Horſe to the Hoſtler, and requireth him to put him to Paſture, which is done accordingly, and the Horſe is ſtoln, the Innholder ſhall not anſwer for it; for the words of the Writ which lieth againſt the Hoſtler are, Cum ſecundum legem & conſuetud. regni noſtri Angliæ hoſpitatores qui hoſpitia com. tenent ad hoſpitandos homines, per partes ubi hujuſmodi hoſpitia exiſtunt tranſeuntes, & in eiſdem hoſpitantes, eorum bona & catalla infra hoſpitia illa exiſtentia abſque ſubtractione ſeu amiſſione cuſtodire die & nocte tenentur, ita quod pro defectu hujuſmodi hoſpitatorum ſeu ſervientium ſuorum hoſpitibus hujuſmodi damnum non eveniat ullo modo, quidam malefactores quendam equum ipſius A. precii 40*s. infra hoſpitium ejuſdem* B. &c. inventum, pro defectu ipſius B. ceperunt, &c. See the Regiſter amongſt the Writs of Treſpaſs, 105. and Fitz. Nat. Brev. 94. a. b. by which original Writ (which is in ſuch caſe the ground of the Common Law) all the Caſes concerning Hoſtlers may be decided. For,

1. It ought to be a common Inn; for if a man be lodged with another (who is not an Inholder) upon requeſt, if he be robbed in his houſe by the ſervants of him who lodgeth him, or any other, he ſhall not anſwer for it; for the words are, Hoſpitatores com. hoſpitia tenent, &c. And ſo are [b] the Books in 22 *H.*6.21.38. 2 *H.*4.7. 11 H. 4.45. 42 *Aſſ. pl.*17. 42 E. 3.11. 10 El. Dyer 226. 5 Mar. Dyer 158. And the Writ needeth not mention that the Defendent keepeth a common Inn; for the words of the Writ in the Regiſter are, infra hoſpitium ejuſdem B. but the ſame is to be intended in the Writ; for the recital of the Writ is, hoſpitatores qui communia hoſpitia tenent, &c. and the one part ought to agree with the other, and the latter words do depend upon the other, and the Plaintif ought to declare that he keepeth a common Inn; and ſo the Books in 22 H. 6. 22. 11 H. 4. 45. 10 Eliz. Dyer 266. &c. are well reconciled.

2. The words are, ad hoſpitandos homines per partes ubi hujuſmodi hoſpitia exiſtunt tranſeuntes, & in eiſdem hoſpitantes; by which it appeareth that common Inns are inſtituted for Paſſengers and wayfairing men; for the Latin word for an Inn is, diverſorium, becauſe he who lodgeth there is, quaſi divertens ſe à via; and ſo diverſoriolum. And therefore if a neighbour who is no Traveller, as a Friend, at the requeſt of the Inholder lodge there, and his goods be ſtolen, &c. he ſhall not have an Action; for the Writ is, ad hoſpitandos homines, &c. tranſeuntes in eiſdem hoſpitantes.

3. The words are, eorum bona & catalla infra hoſpitia illa exiſtentia, &c. So that the Inholder by Law ſhall anſwer for nothing that is out of his Inn, but onely for thoſe things which are infra hoſpitium. And becauſe the Horſe, which at the requeſt of the Owner is put to Paſture, is not within the Inn, for this cauſe the Inholder is not held by the Law to anſwer for him, if he be ſtolen out of the Paſture; for the thing with which the Hoſtler ſhall be charged ought to be within the the Inn, and therewith agree the Books in 11 Hen. 4. 45. 22 Hen. 6. 21. 42 E. 3. 11. 42 Aſſ. pla. 17. where Knivet ſaith, that the Inholder is bound to anſwer for himſelf, and all the men of his chamber or hoſterie, for they are infra hoſpitium: And with this reſolution in this point agreed the opinion of the two Juſtices of Aſſiſe, viz. the two chief Juſtices Wray and Anderſon in the County of Suffolk in Lent Vacation, 26 Eliz. That if an Inholder lodgeth a man and his horſe, and the Owner requireth the horſe to be put to paſture, and there he is ſtoln, the Inholder ſhall not anſwer for him. But it was holden by them, that if the Owner doth not require it, but the Inholder of his own head putteth his Gueſts horſe to graſs, he ſhall anſwer for him if he be ſtoln, &c. And it is to be obſerved that this word Hoſtler is derived à hoſtle, and hoſpitater, which is uſed in Writs for an Inholder, is derived ab hoſpitio, and hoſpes eſt quaſi hoſtium petens.

4. The words are, Ita quod pro defectu hoſpitator. ſervientium ſuorum, &c. hoſpitibus hujuſmodi damn. non eveniat, &c. by which it appeareth that the Inholder ſhall not be charged, if the fault be not in him or his ſervants, in the well and ſafe keeping and cuſtody of their Gueſts goods and chattels within their common Inn; for the Inkeeper is bound in Law to keep them ſafe without any ſtealing or purloyning; and it is no excuſe for the Inkeeper to ſay, that he delivered the key of the chamber-door to the Gueſt in which he is lodged, and that he left the chamber-door open, but he ought to keep the goods and chattels of his Gueſts in ſafety; and therewith agree 22 H. 6. 21. 11 Hen. 4. 45. 42 Edw. 3. 11. And although that the Gueſt doth not deliver his goods to the Inholder to keep, nor acquainteth him with them, yet if they be carried away, or ſtoln, the Inkeeper ſhall be charged, and therewith agreeth 42 Edw. 3. 11. And although that thoſe who ſtole or carried away the goods be unknown, yet the Inkeeper ſhall be charged, anno 22 Hen. 6. 38. 8 Rich. 2. Hoſtler 7. Vide 22 Hen. 6. 21. But if the Gueſts ſervant, or he who cometh with him, or he who deſireth to lodge with him, ſteal, or carrieth away his goods, the Inkeeper ſhall not be charged; for the fault is in the Gueſt to have ſuch a ſervant, or companion; and the words of the Writ are, pro defectu hoſpitator' ſeu ſervientium ſuorum. Vide 22 Hen. 6. 21. But if the Inkeeper appointeth one to lodge with him, he ſhall anſwer for him as it there appeareth. The Inkeeper requireth his Gueſts that he will put them in ſuch a chamber under Lock and Key, and then he will warrant them, the Gueſts let them lie in an outward Court, where they are taken away, the Inkeeper ſhall not be charged, for that the fault is in the Gueſt, as it is holden 10 Eliz. Dyer 266. [33]

5. The words are, hoſpitibus damnum non eveniat: Theſe words are general, and yet foraſmuch as they depend upon precedent words, they ſhall produce two effects, viz.

Firſt, they ſhew the firſt words.

Secondly, they are reſtrained by them; for the firſt words are; eorum bona & catal' infra hoſpitia illa exiſtentia abſque ſubtractione cuſtodire, &c. which words (bona & catalla) by the ſaid words, ita quod, &c. hoſpitibus damnum non eveniat, although that of his proper nature, they extend not to Charters or Evidences concerning Free-hold, or Inheritance, or Obligations, or other Deeds or Specialties; being things in action. Yet in this caſe it is expounded by the latter words to extend to them; for by them great damages happen to the Gueſt. And therefore if one bringeth a bag or cheſt, &c. of Evidences into the Inn, or Obligations, Deeds, or other Specialties, and by default of the Inkeeper they are taken away, the Inkeeper ſhall anſwer for them, and the Writ ſhall be bona & catalla generally; and the Declaration ſhall be ſpecial. 2. Theſe words, bona & catalla, reſtrain the latter words to extend onely to moveables: And therefore by the latter words, If the Gueſt be beaten in the Inn, the Inkeeper ſhall not anſwer for it; for the injury ought to be done to his moveables which he bringeth with him; and by the words of the Writ, the Inholder ought to keep the goods and chattels of his Gueſt, and not his Perſon; and yet in ſuch caſe of Battery, hoſpiti damnum evenit. And theſe words aforeſaid, abſque ſubtractione ſeu amiſſione, extend to all moveable goods, although that of them Felony cannot be committed; for the words are not, abſque felonica captione, &c. but, abſque ſubtractione, which may extend to any moveables, although that Felony cannot be of them, as of Charters, Evidences, Obligations, Deeds, Specialties, &c. [b]

Pain's Caſe.

BEtween Pain Plaintif in Treſpaſs, and Sams and Tanner Deſendants, for Treſpaſs done in Lands in B. in the County of Eſſex, upon Not guilty pleaded, the Jurors gave a ſpecial Verdict to this effect. A man hath iſſue two daughters, the Lands, in which the Treſpaſs was, were given to the eldeſt daughter, and to the heirs of her body begotten, the Remainder to the youngeſt daughter, and to the heirs of her body, &c. The eldeſt daughter took to husband the ſaid Sams, one of the Defendants, who had iſſue, which was heard cry, and died, and afterwards the eldeſt daughter died without iſſue, after whoſe death the ſaid Sams held himſelf in as Tenant by the curteſie, upon whom the youngeſt daughter did enter, and the ſaid Sams, and Tanner as ſervant to him did re-enter, upon which re-entrie the youngeſt Siſter brought the ſaid action of Treſpaſs: And it was objected for the Plaintiff, that the Husband in this caſe ſhall not be Tenant by the curteſie, be- [34]

cauſe the eſtate of the Wife was determined, and the eſtate of the Husband which is derived out of the eſtate of the Wife cannot continue longer then the primitive eſtate endureth; for ceſſante ſtatu primitivo ceſſat derivatus; and therefore if Tenant in tail make a Leaſe for lives according to the Statue of 32 Hen. 8. cap. 38. and afterwards dieth without iſſue, this Leaſe being derived out of the eſtate tail, ſhall not continue longer then the eſtate tail, againſt the opinion in 33 Hen. 8. 48. Dyer, quod fuit conceſſum per totam Curiam. And when the Wife dieth without iſſue, he in the Remaider ſhall enter by force of an immediate gift to him, and his iſſue ſhall have a Formedon in the deſcender upon an immediate gift; and it is not like the caſe of Dower; for the [b] Wife ſhall be endowed although that ſhe hath not any iſſue; and therefore although the eſtate determineth or not for want of Iſſue, yet the Wife by the Law ſhall be endowed, but a man ſhall not be Tenant by the curteſie if he hath no iſſue, nor if he hath iſſue, if not the ſame iſſue, or ſome other ſupport the eſtate which ſhall hold by the curteſie; and Dower is more favoured than the eſtate of a Tenant by the curteſie; for a woman ſhall be endowed of Lands where the huſband hath but a ſeiſin in Law; but a man ſhall not be Tenant by the curteſie of Land if the Wife be not actually ſeiſed in deed. To which it was anſwered and reſolved by the whole Court, That it was the Common Law, if Lands had been given to a woman, and the heirs of her body, and had taken a Husband, and ſhe had iſſue, and the iſſue died, and the Wife alſo without iſſue, by which the inheritance of the Land did revert to the donor, in that caſe the eſtate of the Wife is determined, and yet the Husband ſhall be Tenant by the curteſie, for the ſame is tacitè implied in the gift. It is adjudged in 21 Hen. 8. Dower 19. That if a man hath iſſue by a woman Inheretrix which is dead, which iſſue might inherit the Land, he ſhall be Tenat by the curteſie, although the Wife by a former Husband have iſſue inheritable, and although that his iſſue be dead. And therewith Littleton agreeth, lib. 1. cap. Dower, fol. 10. b. In every caſe where a man taketh a Wife ſeiſed of ſuch eſtate of the Tenements, ſo that the iſſue which he hath by his Wife might by poſſibility inherit the ſame Tenements of ſuch eſtate as the Wife hath, as heir to the Wife, in ſuch caſe, after the death of the Wife, he ſhall have the ſame Lands by the curteſie of England, otherwiſe not. By which Maxim it appeareth, that the ſeiſin of the Wife ought to be of ſuch inheritance which ought to have this incident amongſt others, that the iſſue, which the Husband ſhall have by her, might by poſſibility inherit; and that may fail either in reſpect of the iſſue, or in reſpect of the manner of Inheritance; In reſpect of the iſſue, if it be born dead. And therefore Glanvil, lib. 7. c. 18. Si ex uxore ſua hæred. habuerit filium vel filiam clamantem & auditum infra quatuor parietes, &c. Et Bract. l. 5. de except. c. 30. fol. 437, 438. Si quis uxor. duxerit habentem hæredit. vel meritagium, vel aliquam terram cauſa donationis, ſi liberos int' ſe habuerint ex iſtis nuptiis procreat', ſi uxor præmoriat', remanebit viro hæredit. & terra ſua, tota vita ipſius viri, ſive ſuperſt. fuerint liberi ſive mortui, dum tamen ſemel aut vocem aut clamorem dimiſerint, quod audiatur int. quatuor parietes, ſi hoc probet: Et licet partus moriat. in ipſo partu, vel vivus naſcat', vel forte ſemimortuus, licet vocem non emiſerit, ſolent obſtetrices in fraud' veri hæred' proteſtari partum vivum naſci & legitim. & ideo neceſſe eſt vocem probar'; & licet naturalit. mutus naſcatur & ſurdus, tamen clamorem emittere debet, ſive maſculus ſit ſive femina (unde verſus) Nam dicunt E. vel A. quoquot naſcuntur ab Eva. And Fleta, lib. 6. cap. 56. and he agreeth with Bracton almoſt in the ſame words. So that Littl. lib. 1. cap. 4. fol. 7. might well ſay, Some have ſaid, That he ſhall not be Tenant by the curteſie if the Child which he hath by his [35] Wife be not heard cry; for by the Cry it is proved that the Child was alive; ideo quære. But he ſaith before in the ſame Chapter, If the Husband have iſſue alive or dead; ſo that in his opinion the Crying is not neceſſary; for it is true if the iſſue be born alive, it ſufficeth, and the Crying of the Child is but a proof that it is alive: And the ſame is well proved by the form of pleading (which is the ſtrongeſt proof in Law) for the Pleading ſuch caſe is, Quod quædam A. G. fuit ſeiſita de tenementis prædictis in dominico ſuo ut de feodo, & ſic inde ſeiſita cepit in virum J. W. per quod idem J. & A. fuerunt ſeiſiti de tenementis prædictis cum pertinentiis in dominico ſuo ut de feodo in jure ipſius A. ipſique ſic inde ſeiſiti exiſtentes habuer. exitum inter eos, &c. poſteáque præd. A. uxor prædicti J. obiit, idémque J. ipſam ſupervixit, & tenuit in tenementis prædict. ac inde fuit ſeiſitus in dominico ſuo, ut de libero tenemento, ut tenens inde per legem Angliæ. And if in that caſe iſſue be taken, quod non habuerunt exitum, &c. the effect of the iſſue ſhall be whether they had iſſue born alive, quia mortuus exitus non eſt exitus; and the Crying is but a proof of the life. Vide 22 H. 8. Dyer 25. But in the caſe at Bar, to remove all ſcruples, it was found that the iſſue was heard cry. And in this caſe it was well reſolved, that Glanvil, Bracton, Britton and Fleta, may be vouched for antiquity and ornament; and in caſes where they concurre with the later Authorities of Law, and do not impugne the common experience and allowance in Judicial proceedings at this day. 2. If the Wife be delivered of a Monſter, who hath not any ſhape of Mankind, it is no iſſue in the Law; but although the iſſue have any deformity or defect in the hand or foot, and yet hath humane ſhape, it ſufficeth; and therewith agreeth Bracton ubi ſupra. Item, cum ſi partum ediderit, tamen prius declinavit ad monſtrum, & cum clamorem emittere deberet, emittit rugitum, & hinc videtur quod tenere non debet exceptio (id eſt, tenere don debet per legem Angliæ) quia partus monſtroſus eſt cum non naſcat. ut homo. Sed non dico partum monſtroſum licet natura membra minuerit vel amplificaverit, minuerit, ut in defect. digitor. vel hujuſmodi, ampliaverit, ut ſi plur. digitos vel articul. ſicut ſex vel plures, ubi non debet habere niſi quinque, ſi inutilia natur. reddidit membra, ut ſi curvus fuer', vel gibboſus, vel membra tortuoſa habuerit. 3. In ſome caſe the time of the birth is material, and in ſome not; and therefore when the Lord Dyer was Serjeant (he was, as himſelf ſaith in the Common Pleas) of counſel with this caſe. One Reppes of Norfolk took to Wife an Inheretrix, who was great with Child by him, and died in her Travail, and the iſſue was ripped out of his Mother's belly alive, and by reference out of the Chancery to the Juſtices they reſolved, That he ſhould not be Tenant by the curteſie, for the ſame ought to begin by iſſue and be conſummated by the death of the Wife, and the eſtate of Tenant by the curteſie ought to take away the immediate deſcent. But if a man hath iſſue by his Wife, and afterwards Land deſcendeth to the Wife, be the iſſue alive or dead at the time of the deſcent, he ſhall be Tenant by the curteſie, for the time of the birth of the iſſue is not material, if it be in the life of the Wife. In reſpect of the manner of Inheritance; as if Lands be given to a woman, and the heirs males of her body, and ſhe taketh a Huſband, and hath iſſue a daughter, the Husband ſhall not be Tenant by the curteſie; for the iſſue cannot by any poſſibility inherit the ſame Lands; and ſo out of the Rule of Littleton, and of the Judgement in 21 H. 3. And at the Common Law, if Lands had been given to Husband and Wife, and to the heirs of their two bodies begotten, and they had iſſue, and the Husband died, and ſhe took another Husband and had iſſue, the ſecond Husband ſhould be Tenant by the curteſie; and ſo is it adjudged 30 E. 1. Formedon 66. which proveth that the iſſue by the ſecond Husband might inherit; for at the Common Law after iſſue, it was taken to three purpoſes that the Tenant in tail had a plain Fee-ſimple, 1. To alien; 2. To forfeit it by Attainder of Felony, as the Book is in 7 E. 3. 6, & 7. b. So that although the Tenant in tail afterwards died without iſſue, the Land ſhould not revert to the Donor; 3. That the Tenant in ſpecial tail by having of iſſue had a full Fee-ſimple to make the Lands deſcendable to her iſſues by any other Husband; For as by her alienation ſhe might make ſtrangers to the blood to be abſolutely inheritable: ſo by conſtruction of Law, after iſſue had, all lineal heirs of her body by what Husband ſoever they were begotten, ſhould inherit her, as a benefit and incident tacitè annexed to her eſtate by the Law; for it was ſaid, that by the having of iſſue the ſame was given and diſpoſed in Law to the Husband for his life; which diſpoſition and alteration of eſtate, although it be for life, tacitè as an incident to it maketh the iſſues of the ſecond Husband inheritable. As if a man hath iſſue a ſon and a daughter by one woman, and a ſon by another woman, and dieth, if the eldeſt ſon maketh a Leaſe for life, againſt whom the Wife of the Father recovereth Dower, and afterwards the eldeſt ſon dieth, the Siſter ſhall have the Reverſion in fee, becauſe the eldeſt hath altered the Reverſion by his Leaſe for life, and the Tenant in dower leaveth the Reverſion in the Leſſee for life, Vide 7 H. 5. 4. But that the iſſue of the ſecond Husband ſhall inherit in ſuch caſe, is directly proved by the Statute de Donis conditionalibus, Nec habeat de cætero ſecundus vir hujuſmodi mulieris aliquid in tenemento ſic dato per conditionem poſt mortem uxoris ſuæ per legem Angliæ, nec exitus de ſecundo viro & muliere ſucceſſionem hæreditariam: For if the iſſue of the ſecond Husband ſhall not inherit, the ſecond Husband ſhall not be Tenant by the curteſie; the ſame was adjudged in the Caſe in 21 H. 3. And Fleta, ubi ſupra, ſaith, Lex tamen iſta ad ſecundos viros non extenditur, eo quod palam inhibetur per ſtatutum. But after iſſue had, the Tenant in tail at the Commhn Law had not ſuch a Fee-ſimple, that his collateral heir which is not heir of his body, ſhould inherit. And if Land were given before the Statute to Husband and Wife, and the Heirs of their two bodies, and they have iſſue, and the Wife dieth, and the Husband taketh another Wife, ſhe ſhall be endowed, as is held in 12 Edw. 4. 2. Markham's Caſe: and by conſequence the iſſue, which ſhe by poſſibility might have, ſhall inherit the Land. And Vide Fitz. tit. Tail 2. and mark the agreement of the Law in both the ſaid Caſes. And where Littleton ſaith, as heir to the Wife, theſe words are very material; for that is a true reaſon, that a man ſhall not be Tenant by the Courteſie of a ſeiſin in Law, for in ſuch caſe the Iſſue ought to make himſelf heir to him who was laſt actually ſeiſed, &c. Vide 11 H. 4. 11. 40 E. 3. 9, &c. And the Tenant by the Courteſie ſhall be attendant to the Lord paramount, which he cannot be, becauſe the Wife died before that ſhe was actually ſeiſed; But Tenant in Dower ſhall not be attendant to the Lord paramount but to the heir, and therefore ſhe ſhall be endowed of a ſeiſin in Law. And the Caſe at barr is directly within the ſaid Maxim, for the iſſue of the Husband which he had by his Wife, might by poſſibility have inherited the Wife. 2. It appeareth, That at the Common Law the Husband ſhall be Tenant by the Curteſie if he hath iſſue, although afterwards the Wife dieth without iſſue, as it is adjuged in 30 E. 1. as above, and this caſe is not reſtrained by the Statute aforeſaid. 3. Littleton lib. 1. cap. 7. agreeth with this Judgement, for he ſaith, That Tenant by the Curteſie of England is, where a man taketh a Wife ſeiſed in Fee-ſimple, or in Fee-tail general, or as heir of ſpecial tail, and hath iſſue by the ſame woman male or female, heard or alive; be the iſſue afterwards dead (Note that) or alive, there, if the Wife dieth, the Husband ſhall hold the Land during his life by the Courteſie of England. So that it appeareth by him, that it is not material, if the Eſtate tail continue or not. 4. It appeareth, That the true reaſon of Dower, and the reaſon of this Caſe, (ſcilicet) the poſſibility of the iſſue to inherit, &c. are all one. And if Tenant in tail taketh a Husband, and hath iſſue and dieth, now the Husband is Tenant by the Courteſie; and although that afterwards the iſſue dieth without iſſue, ſo that the Eſtate tail is determined; yet his Eſtate ſhall continue and endure, for it is not derived meerly out of the Eſtate of the Wife, but it is created by the Law by privilege and benefit of Law tacitè annexed to the Gift.

Pasch. 30 Eliz.

The Case of Barretry.

[b] NOte, at an Evidence upon a Traverse of an Indictment of Barretry, It was holden by the Court, That a common Barretor, is a common mover, or stirrer up, or maintainer of Sutes, Quarrels, or Parts, either in Courts or in the Country: In Courts of Record, and in the County, Hundred, and other inferiour Courts. In the Country in three manners; 1. In disturbance of the peace; 2. In taking or detaining of the possession of houses, lands, or goods, &c. which are in question or controversie, not onely by force, but also by craft or deceit, and for the most part in suppression of truth and right; 3. By false inventing and sowing of Calumny, rumors and reports, whereby discord and disquiet ariseth between his Neighbours. And all the said Qualities of a common Barretor are proved by the Indictment of Barretry, and by our Books; For first it is said in the Indictment, Quod est communis Barrecator, within which word is included a Quarreller in his own cause, and a mover and maintainer of Quarrels of others, for the most part in suppresion of truth and right: And the same appeareth by the Statute of Westm. 1. cap. 32. It is provided, That no Sheriff suffer any Barretors or maintainers of Quarrels in their County-Courts, &c. In 40 Edw. 3. 33. The Plaintiff counted in a Decies tantum, that the Recognitors in an Assise, took of certain people who were Barretors and embracers of the said sute, sc. of every one 20 s. which was in a Cause depending in a Court of Record. The Stat. of Ragman, the King wills and enjoyneth the Justices, That none in Complaining, nor in Answering, be not surprised nor encompassed by Hocketors or Barretors; that the truth be not followed, and the Trespasses remain unpunished. And the
[37] Statute of Westm. 1. cap. 18. For as much as the common Fine and Amerciament of the whole County in Eyre of the Justices by false Judgements, or for other Trespasses is unjustly assessed by Sheriffs and Extortioners on the Shires, so that the same is many times increased, and the parcels otherwise assessed than they ought to be, to the damage of the People. And the same shall suffice for stirring up and mainting of sutes in Courts: and for moving and maintaing of sutes in in the Country, Littleton, lib. 3. cap. Warranty, fol. 158. If A. de B. be seised of a house, and F. de G. who hath no right enter in the same house, claiming the house to him and his heirs, but the said A. doth continually dwell in the said house, in that case the possession of the Freehold shall be continually adjudged in A. But if the said F. G. make a Feoffement to certain Barretors in the Country for maintenance for them to have in the same house by a Feoffement with warranty, by force whereof the said A. de B. dareth not stay in the said house, but goeth out thereof, &c. this Warranty doth commence by Disseisin. By all which, and by many other Authorities which might be cited it appeareth, That a common Barretor is a common mover and maintainer of sutes, either in Courts, or in the Countrey. If it be asked wherefore this Polypragmon is called Barretor: Some derive a Barretor from the French word (Barrateur) which signifieth a Deceiver: Others, from the Latin word (Baratro) which signifieth a vile Knave, or Unthrift: Others, because they maintain Pleas at Barrs in Courts where causes are debated, or stirr causes of sutes, derive this word Barretor from two Legal words; (Barra) which signifieth the Barr where causes are debated, &c. and (rettum,) which, as it appeareth by the Writ de Homine replegiando, signifieth a Crime or Offence; and therefore a common Barretor is principally an Offender in moving or maintaining of sutes at barres, sc. in Courts, or in the Country, which are causes of sutes in Courts, he is called a Barretor or Barr offender. In the Civil Law Barrataria dicitur quando Judex petit aliquid indebitum ut Justitiam faciat. But in the Law of England, this word Barrett doth signifie a Quarrel, whence he who moveth and maintaineth Quarrels is called a Barretor, and the same is so expounded by the whole Parliament in 33 E. 1. in the Statute of Conspiracy; Where the Act saith, Stewards and Bailiffs of Great Lords, who by their Seigniory, Office, or Power, take upon them to maintain and uphold Pleas or Barrets, to have parties with those which touch their [b] Seigniories with themselves. Where it is manifest that Barrets signifieth Quarrels; but he ought to be Communis Barrecator, sc. not in one or two, but in many Causes, so that he may be proved a Common Barretor. 2. The words of the Indictment are, Pacis Domini Regis Perturbator, scil. a common Mover or Maintainer of brawls and frayes, by which the Peace is broken; The other words of the Indictment are, Communis Malefactor, Calumniator, & Seminator litium & discordiarum inter vicinos suos: Malefactor, because that he willingly and maliciously doth wrong to his Neighbours, either openly after warning, or secretly in the night, &c. quia qui male agit odit lucem. Calumniator, so called, because by false and malicious Scandals he doth endeavour to robb his neighbour of his good name, which is a great Motive of Discords and Quarrels, and is against the Law of God, Levit. 19. Non facias Calumniam proximo tuo: Seminator litium & discordiarum inter vicinos suos; and from such seeds presently grow up many ill herbs, Inimicus homo superseminavit zizania. And the same is against the Commonwealth; for Expedit reipublicæ, quod sit finis litium. And this Barretor is Seminator litium, &c. And the same also is against the Law of God, Levit. 19. Non eris susurro in populo. In ancient Indictments, after these words, Pacis Domini Regis Perturbator, these words are added, & Oppressor vicinorum suorum, and that is either by force, as in the case of Littleton, in taking or keeping of possession, or by fraud and malice, under colour of Law, as by multiplicity of unjust and feigned sutes, or by Information upon penal Laws, or in his own caſe, or in malicious bringing of a ſpecial Supplicavit, or Latitat, of the Peace; and all the ſame by fraud and malice to enforce the poor party ad redimendam vexationem, to give him money, or to make other Compoſition; and the ſame is the moſt dangerous Oppreſſor, for he oppreſſeth the Innocent by colour and countenance of Law, which was inſtituted to protect the innocent from all oppreſſion and wrong; And therefore the ſaid words in the old Indictments (if the truth of the caſe be ſuch) are material to be inſerted in the Indictment of Barretry.

Trin. 30 Eliz. Rott. 1012. In the Common Pleas.

Grieſlye's Caſe.

IN a Replevin brought by Thomas Kingſton againſt Richard Bailie the elder, and Richard Bailie the younger, in a place called Stockings in Kingſton, in the County of Stafford, the Defendants, as Bailiffs to Thomas Grieſly Eſquire, did acknowledge the taking of the Cattel in the place where, &c. For they ſay, That the place where, &c. containeth ſix Acres; and that the ſaid Thomas Grieſly was ſeiſed of the Mannor of Kingſton, within which Mannor the place where, &c. is, in his demeſne as of Fee, And preſcribeth to have Curiam viſus franc' pleg' coram ſeneſchallo ſuo infra manerium illud tenend' bis per annum, viz. ſemel infra menſem proximum poſt feſtum Paſchæ, & iterum infra menſem proximum poſt feſtum Sancti Michaelis Archangeli de omnibus inhabitantibus & reſidentibus infra manerium prædict. tanquam ad manerium illud pertin. quodque infra manerium præd. habetur, &, à tempore cujus contrarii memoria hominum non exiſtit, habebatur talis conſuetudo, quod inhabitantes & reſidentes infra manerium præd. ad inquirendum & præſentandum ea quæ ad viſum franc' plegii pertinent onerati & jurati, annuatim, ad Curiam viſ. franc' plegii illius apud manerium illud, infra menſem proxim. poſt feſtum Sancti Michaelis Archangeli tent', elegerunt & eligere conſueverunt unum idoneum hominem de inhabitantibus infra manerium prædict. ad eſſendum Conſtabulorium de Kingſton pro ann. tunc proxim. ſequen', qui quidem homo ſic electus officium illud pro uno anno exercere per totum tempus præd. conſuevit, & ſi præſens fuerit hujuſmodi electioni tunc per totum tempus præd. jurari conſuevit per ſeneſchallum curiæ præd. in aperta curia ad officium illud exercendum. And that at the Court of View of Frankpledge holden at the ſaid Mannor, 8 Octob. 28 Eliz. before John Newport, the Steward of the ſaid Tho. Grieſly of the ſaid Court, the ſaid Thomas Kingſton being an Inhabitant within the ſaid Mannor, was according to the ſaid Cuſtom choſen to be Conſtable of Kingſton for one year then next following, by the Jurors and Preſenters of the ſaid Court, and he being preſent in Court was charged by the ſaid Steward to take the ſaid Oath, which he utterly refuſed to doe, and departed in Contempt of the Court. For which cauſe the ſaid John Newport then Steward of the ſaid Court, in the ſaid Court ſet a fine of 5 li. upon the ſaid Thomas Kingſton. And becauſe the ſaid ſum of 5 li. was not paid to the ſaid Tho. Grieſly, they made conuſans of the diſtreſs of the Plaintifs cattel, as Bailifs of the ſaid Thomas Grieſly, in the place where, &c. upon which the Plaintif did demurr in Law: And in this caſe theſe Queſtions were moved and debated; 1. If the Steward may impoſe a fine in this caſe. 2. If this fine ought to be affered or not. 3. If the Lord of a Leet may diſtrain for ſuch fine without any Cuſtome enabling him ſo to doe. As to the firſt, It was reſolved by the whole Court, That if any contempt or diſturbance to the Court be done to the Court in any Court of Record, that the Judges may ſet upon the Offender a reaſonable fine, and a Leet is a Court of Record, and the Steward is Judge there; and therefore if any contempt or diſturbance be to the Court before him, he may ſet a reaſonable fine upon the Offendors: As if the Bailif of a Leet refuſeth in Court to execute his office, the Steward may ſet a reaſonable fine upon him; and therewith agreeth the book in 7 H. 6. 12. b. So if a Tithingman refuſe to make a Preſentment in a Leet, the Steward ſhall ſet a Fine upon him, as it is holden 10 H. 6. 7. So if one of the Jurors in a Leet depart before giving his verdict, he ſhall be fined by the Steward, as it appeareth in the Book of Entries, title Amerciament in Debt, fol. 149. and ſo of the like. But Courts which are not of Record cannot impoſe a fine or commit any to priſon. As to the ſecond, It was objected, That the fine in the caſe at barr ought to be affered: and that the ſame is proved by the Statute of Magna Charta, cap. 14. A Freeman ſhall not be amerced for a ſmall offence, but after the quantity of the offence, and for a great offence after the manner thereof, ſaving to him, &c. and none of the ſaid amercements ſhall be aſſeſſed, but by the Oaths of good and honeſt men of the vicinage: Earls and Barons ſhall not be amerced but by their equals, &c. And by the Statute of Weſt. 1. cap. 6. No City, Borough, or Town, nor any man ſhall be amerced without a reaſonable cauſe, and according to the quanitaty of his Treſpaſs; that is to ſay, every Freeman ſaving his Free-hold, a Merchant ſaving his Merchandiſe, and a Villain ſaving his gainure, and that by his and their equals. And 10 E. 3. 9, and 10. was cited, and ſtrongly urged, where the caſe was, That William Freeman brought a Replevin againſt the Abbot of Ramſey, and others, that they had wrongfully taken his Cattel. The Lord avoweth that taking, by reaſon that he is Lord of the Hundred of F. within which Hundred he hath a Leet in the Town of M. (where the Plaintiff is reſiant) to hold once a year, ſcil. every year after the Feaſt of Eaſter when he will warn it, &c. and at the Leet warned and holden there at ſuch a day, &c. twelve were ſworn to preſent things preſentable, and that the ſaid William was one of them; and after that they had received their Charge, they were commanded to anſwer to their Charge, and to preſent, &c. and they refuſed; for which cauſe the ſaid William, and the others were amerced, and the amercement of him was aſſered to half a mark; and for the ſaid half mark he did avow: and there Exception is taken by Aſhton to the Avowry, becauſe the amercement was upon them all in common, and the aſſeſſing of the amercement was ſeveral, ſcil. upon William half a mark, &c. Parning, It ſhall be thus according to Law; for becauſe all refuſed all ſhall be amerced, but every one ſhall be aſſered by himſelf according to the quantity of his offence. As in Aſſiſe of Novel diſſeiſin all the diſſeiſors ſhall be amerced, and aſſeſſed upon each of them. Aſhton, If a Decenary or a Town is amerced in Eire, the Aſſeſſment ſhall be in common, &c. It is not like the caſe, for when a Decenary or Town is amerced, there is no certain perſons named, as there is in this caſe. And the avowry was awarded to be good; By which it appeareth, that a fine impoſed for a contempt in Court ought to be aſſered. To which it was anſwered and reſolved, That in the caſe at barr the fine impoſed by the Steward was well enough without aſſeſſing; and therefore the difference is between a fine and an amercement; for a fine is alwaies impoſed and aſſeſſed by the Court, but an amercement, which is called in Latin Miſericordia, is aſſeſſed by the Country. And this word (afferer) is as much as to ſay, ponere in certitudinem, ſeu taxare, ſcil. to aſſeſs or tax, and the afferance as much to ſay as aſſeſſment, or taxation. And Afferors are Aſſeſſors or Taxers, and are derived from the French word (afferer) which ſignifieth taxare, &c. And therefore it appeareth by the Statute of Weſtm. 1. cap. 18. that it is enacted, That amercements before Juſtices in Eire, &c. ſhall be aſſeſſed by the Oaths of Knights and of honeſt men; where the word aſſeſſed, is as much as aſſered. And the Statutes of Magna Charta, and Weſtm. 1. extend to amercements, and not to fines; For amercements ought to be aſſered, or taxed, or aſſeſſed by equals; as if the Demandant or Plaintiff be Nonſute, or if judgement be given againſt the Tenant or Defendant, or againſt the Bail becauſe the principal doth not appear, or upon the Plaintiff becauſe he doth not proſecute, or pro falſo clamore, or the like; the Juſtices ſhall never aſſeſs any amercement, but by the ſaid Statute they ought to be aſſeſſed by their equals. But the Court in ſuch caſes ſaith, Ideo in miſericordia generally, without taxing or aſſeſſing any Sum certain; and the Clerk of the Warrants in the Common Pleas doth make eſtreats of theſe amercements, and delivereth them to the Clerks of the Aſſiſes within every Circuit, to deliver them to the Coroners in every County to aſſere; that is to ſay, to aſſeſs the amercements, which they doe accordingly; and ſuch an aſſeſment by the Coroners in every County hath been hold a ſatisfaction of the ſaid Statute of Magna Charta, by which it is enacted, That none of the ſaid amercements ſhall be aſſeſſed, but by the Oaths of good and lawfull men of the Vicinage. And the Coroners of the County were thought moſt indifferent, becauſe they are choſen by the whole County: But if a man be non-ſute after the Jury be ready to give their Verdict, the Court may cauſe the amercement to be preſently aſſered in Court by the ſame Jury, as it is holden in 18 Edw. 3. 13. And it ſeemeth the Statute of Magna Charta was but an affirmance of the Common Law. For Glanvile, who wrote in the time of Hen. 2. Lib. 9. Cap. 11. ſaith, Eſt autem miſericordia Domini Regis, qua quis per juramentum legalium hominum de vicineto eatinus amerciandus eſt, ne aliquid de ſuo honorabili tenemento amittat. And Fleta, Lib. 1. Cap. 48. recites the Statute of Magna Charta, and Weſtm. 1. A Freeman ſhall not be amerced, &c. but by the Oath of his equals, viz. of good and honeſt men of the Vicinage, who have beſt knowledge of their abilities. And Bracton, Lib. 3. Cap. 1. fol. 116. b. ſaith, Of thoſe who are in the King's mercy, and are not amerced, It is to ſee how one ſhall be amerced; and it is to be known, That a Knight and a Freeman ſhall not be amerced, but according to the meaſure of his offence, and according to the offence, be it great or ſmall, and ſaving his Freehold; a Merchant not but ſaving his Merchandiſe; and a Villain, not but ſaving his gainure, and this by the judgement of honeſt men of the Vicinage, qui affidabunt ſimul cum ſerviente. But Earls and Barons are not to be amerced but by their equals, and according to the meaſure of their offence, and this by the Barons of the Exchequer, or before the King himſelf: A Clerk ſhall not be amerced according to his Eccleſiaſtical Benefice, but according to the quantity of his Lay Fee, and the meaſure of his offence. And the Aſſeſſors ſhall ſwear to doe the ſame truly; that for hatred they ſhall not grieve any, nor ſpare any for love, and that they ſhall conceal thoſe things which they heard, Vide 38 Edw. 3. 31. 9 Hen. 6. 2. 19 Ed. 9. 21 Edw. 4. 77. An Earl, Baron, and Biſhop ſhall be amerced 100 l. and 12 Edw. 4. 9. a Duke to 10 li. Vide 1 Hen. 6. 7. in the Earl of Northumberland's Caſe. Note, that although the Statute of Magna Charta be in the negative, Earls and Barons ſhall not be amerced but by their equals, and but according to the quantity of the offence, yet uſage hath reduced the ſame to a certainty. But note, Reader, as to amerciaments, this difference; between amerciaments in actions real or perſonal, of the Demandant, or Tenant, &c. upon preſentment or indictment, as for repairing of a Brige, or a High-way, &c. and the like; for as it is aforeſaid, ſuch amercements according to the ſaid Acts ought to be aſſered by equals; And amercements of any who hath adminiſtration of Juſtice, or of any Officer or Miniſter, who hath the execution of the King's Writs; for ſuch amercements ſhall be aſſeſſed by the Juſtices or Judges of the Court, where the cauſe dependeth. And there are two Reaſons of this difference.

Firſt, theſe later ſorts of amercements are out of the Statutes of Magna Charta, and Weſtm. 1. for two Cauſes.

1. The words are, Liber homo non amercietur, &c. extendeth to private men, and not to thoſe who have adminiſtration of Juſtice, or Miniſters who have executions of Writs.

2. The words are, By the Oaths of good and honeſt men of the neighbourhood, which may have knowledge of the abilities of the parties, as Fleta ſaith, but the ſame doth not extend to the offences of commiſſion or omiſſion done by thoſe who have adminiſtration of Juſtice, or by Officers or Miniſters

Miniſters who have execution of the King's Writs, which Offences are done to Courts themſelves, and therefore by the Court ought to be aſſered and aſſeſſed.

The ſecond Cauſe of the ſaid Difference is, Quia eventus judiciorum ſunt incerti, and the Plaintif or Defendant may have publick cauſe of ſute or defence, till he hear that which the adverſe party can allege and prove to the contrary; and therefore it is great reaſon that ſuch Amercements which ariſe upon ſuch Cauſes ſhall be aſſered by equals in the Country, according to the ſaid Statutes, and not by the Court. But the Offence of one who hath the Adminiſtration of Juſtice, or of an Officer or Miniſter who hath Execution of the Kings Writs, in point of his Office, is malum in ſe, and hath not any probability or colour of excuſe; and yet both the kinds of Amercements are ſtiled with this word, ſcil. miſericordiæ, becauſe whoſoever hath the aſſering of them ought to uſe great moderation: And this Difference appeareth in our Books. And therefore in 22 Edw. 3. 2. a. John [b] of London's Caſe, in a falſe Judgement, if the Judgement be reverſed, the Suters, who were the Judges, ſhall be amerced, and the Amercement ſhall be aſſered by the Juſtices, for the Suters had the Adminiſtration of Juſtice; and therewith agreeth the Book of Entries, titulo, Falſe Judgment, pl. 13. Et quod ſectatores Curiæ prædictæ ſunt in miſericordia, quæ aſſeratur per Curiam domini Regis hic ad, &c. And if the Sheriff return, Cepi corpus, and hath not the body, at the day, the Entry is, Ideo idem Vicecomes in miſericordia, & aſſeratur per Juſtic' hic ad, &c. And therewith alſo agreeth the Book of Entries, Capias 19, 20. So if a Writ be delivered of Record to the Sheriff to be executed, & Vicecomes non miſit Breve, the Record ſaith, Ideo Vicecomes in miſericordia, & aſſeratur per Juſticiarios, ad, &c. and the ſame appeareth by the ſaid Book, Record. 2. So if a Habeas corpus be directed to the Sheriff, Gaoler, or Keeper of a Priſon, &c. and he bring not the body, &c. the Entrie is, Idem ideo A. in miſericordia, & aſſeratur per Juſtic, ad, &c. And ſo of the like. And in L. 5 E. 4. 6. it is reſolved by the Juſtices, that that which is aſſeſſed upon an Officer or Miniſter of the Court, is called Amercement and not a Fine; but upon a ſtranger to the Court for a miſdemeanour it is called Fine, and not Amercement. But upon a Nonſute in real or perſonal Action, or Barr to the Demandant or Plaintiff, or Judgement againſt the Tenant or Defendant, the Entrie is, In miſericordia generally, and the ſame ought to be aſſered by equals, Fitz. Nat. Brev. 76. So if A. be amerced upon a Preſentment, for not repairing a Bridge, or of a Highway in a Leet; Ideo A. in miſericordia, & amerciamentum indè aſſeratur per aſſeratores in eadem Curia adtunc electos & juratos. ad, &c. See the Book of Entries title Treſpaſs in Amercements 2. So if one be amerced for default of a Sute at a Leet, the Amercement ought to be aſſered per probos & legales homines, Book of Entries, Replevin, Amercement 2. And as to the ſaid Book of 10 Edw. 3. 9. It appeareth that the Amercement was aſſered, but it doth not appear by whom it was aſſered or aſſeſſed, and therefore it ſhall be intended to be done by the Steward; for in truth it was a Fine: And it is to be known, That if a Jury or a Leet do tax an Amercement it is ſufficient, without other afferement; for the Amercement is the act of the Court and the afferement of the Jury, and therewith agreeth 8 Hen. 7. 4. Vide 7 Edw. 3. 15. Aſtelie's Caſe. 45 Edw. 3. 26, 27. But if the Steward do affere an Amercement upon the preſentment of the Jury it is void, and ſhall not bind, vide 45 E. 3. fol. 27. But the Court ſhall aſſeſs Fines, and the ſame ſhall not be aſſered by others, if it be not in ſpecial Caſes; and that not onely upon Contempts and Miſdemeanours done in Court, but upon Writs of Capias pro fine, or upon Confeſſions, &c. as it appeareth Trinit. 22 Hen. 7. rott. 510. in the Common Pleas, where he who was taken by Capias pro fine prayed that he might be admitted [43] ad finem ſuum cum domino Rege faciend', & admittatur pro 5. s. ſolut' hic in Curia ad manus J. R. Clerici Roberti Reade capital' Juſticiar' dom' Regis hic in partem ſolutionis pro reparatione & emendatione ciſtarum pro record' de banco hic in iiſdem cuſtodiend' ordinat' ex præcepto Curiæ. And Trin. anno 4 Hen. 8. rot. 306. in the like Caſe, & ſuper hoc finis eorundem T. & J. occaſione prædict. aſſeratur per Juſticiarios hic ad 2. s. &c. But if a Juror doth appear, and is adjorned upon a pain, and maketh default, in that caſe becauſe he ſhall be fined according to the yearly value of his land; it ſhall be enquired of by the other of his Companions of the Jury; for in ſuch caſe the Court cannot know it, and therewith agreeth 4 Edw. 4. 6. & 9 Hen. 4. 5. Vide 20 Aſſ. pl. 11. And finis dicitur quia finem litibus imponit, and is not traverſable, as it is holden in 7 Hen. 6. 13. that is, the Party redeemeth his offence by his money, and thereby maketh an end of it, and of his impriſonment, and for that cauſe it is called alſo Redemption, as it appeareth in the Judicial Regiſter 31. ad ſatisfaciendum nobis de Redemptione ſua pro quadam tranſgreſſione, &c. And this Writ is called Capias pro fine, which Fine is expreſſed in the Writ by this word redemption; and the Statute of Marlebridge, cap. 3. Non ideo puniatur Dominus per redemptionem, id eſt, per finem. Another Difference is, if a man be convicted before the Sheriff in the County of a Recaption, he ſhall be but amerced, but if he be convicted thereof in the Common Pleas, he ſhall be fined, and the Reaſon of this difference is, becauſe that the County Court is not a Court of Record, and therefore cannot impoſe a Fine, for no Court can fine but ſuch a Court which is a Court of Record. Vide Fitz. Nat. Brev. 73. b. And by theſe Differences you will the better underſtand your Books, which are plentifull in theſe matters. As to the third Point it was objected, that for Amercement of things preſentable in a Leet, the Lord may diſtrein, but not for a Fine impoſed by the Steward; but of that an action of Debt lieth. To that it was anſwered and reſolved, that there are two manner of Offences, ſome done out of Court, and ſome done in Court; of thoſe which are done out of Court, the Jurors of the Leet have conuſance, and therefore power to preſent them. and to aſſeſs an Amercement for them, but for Contempts and Miſdemeanours in Court before the Steward himſelf, he hath conuſance of them, and therefore may impoſe a Fine for them, and therefore he needeth not to make enquiry; ſo that thoſe whohave conuſance of the thing are fit to impoſe a Fine or Amercement for the thing; and if for the Seſs, ſc. for Amercements of Offences out of Court a Diſtreſs ſhall be incident of com-

[b] mon right, à fortiori, for Fines impoſed for Offences done in the ſame Court a Diſtreſs ſhall be incident, quia quod licitum eſt pro minore, & pro majore licitum eſt; and a Fine is more then an Amercement, and both impoſed by Authority of the Leet: And as nothing is more naturally to be puniſhed by the Court Leet than Offences in the ſame Court, ſo for no Sum impoſed for any Offence by Authority of the Leet a Diſtreſs is more incident than for ſuch as is impoſed for Offences done in the ſame Court. Vide 8 Rich. 2. Avowrie 194. 41 Edw. 3. 26. 45 E. 3. 38. 47 E. 3. 12. 2 H. 4. 20. 11 Hen. 4. 89. 7 Hen. 6. 12. 10 Hen. 6. 7. 12 Hen. 7. 15. 3 H. 7. 4. 21 Hen. 7. 40. Fitzh. Nat. Brev. 100. 23 Hen. 8. br. Leet 37. And it ſhall be hard to drive the Lord to his Action of Debt for every ſmall Fine or Pain, but the Lord may deſtrein and ſell them, or diſtrein and put them in the Pound, at his pleaſure.

Note, Reader, the ſaid Cuſtom, &c. Eligere unum idoneum hominem de inhabitantibus infra manerium ad eſſendum Conſtabularium, &c. well agrees with the Law: for the Common Law requireth, that every Conſtable be idoneus homo; that is to ſay, apt and fit to execute the ſaid Office; and he is ſaid to be idoneus homo who hath theſe things, Honeſty, Knowledge, and Ability; Honeſty to execute his Office truly, without malice, affection, or partiality; Knowledge to know what he ought duly to doe; and Abilitie as well in eſtate as in body, that he may intend and execute his Office, when need is, diligently; and not for impotencie or povertie to neglect it; for if poor men ſhall be choſen to this Office, who get their living by the labour of their hands, they will rather ſuffer Felons and other Malefactors to eſcape than loſe their labour by which they and their Wives and Children live: And the Commonwealth doth conſiſt in the well ruling of particular Towns, and the rule of them will not well be kept; but where the Officers are idonei, that is to ſay, Honeſt, Knowing, and of Abilitie. And this word idoneus is oftentimes in Law attributed to thoſe which have any Office or Function. And therefore if a Coroner, who is alſo an ancient Officer, be minus idoneus ad Officium illud exequendum, it is a good cauſe to remove him. F. N. B. 163, 164. Regiſter 177. that is to ſay, If the Coroner be ſenio confractus, aut morbo paralyſis percuſſus, aut terras & tenementa in eodem Comitatu non habet, aut electus eſt in officio Vicecomitis, &c. for he ought to be choſen Coroner, qui melius ſciat, & poſſit intendere Officium illud, F. N. B. 163. Regiſter 177. as appeareth by the Writs de Coronatore eligendo. And ſo he who is Conſtable ought to be idoneus, that is to ſay, who beſt knoweth, and can intend the ſaid Office. And in Letters Patents [42] of Incorporating of Inhabitants of a Town into Mayor, or Bailiffs and Burgeſſes, the words are, quod ipſi de ſeipſis eligere poſſunt unum hominem idoneum, or, duos homines idoneos, &c. And the Law requireth, that he who the Patron preſenteth to a Benefice be perſona idonea, for the words of the Writ of Quare impedit are, Præſentare idoneam perſonam ad Eccleſiam de, &c. and properly they are ſaid idonei, qui poſſunt & volunt in Eccleſiis deſervire, ſcil. qui moribus, honeſtate, & literarum ſcientia ſunt decorati. And if one be elected Conſtable who is not fit, he by the Law may be diſcharged of his Office, and another man who is fit appointed in his Place.

Hill. 45 Eliz. In the Starr-Chamber.

Whittingham's Caſe.

[b] THE Caſe in the Starr-Chamber, Hill. 45 Eliz. was, That Richard Whittingham was ſeiſed of three Meſſuages, &c. in Craford, in the County of Kent, holden of the Queen in Socage, as of the Manor of Newbery in Craford in fee; and by his Will in writing deviſed them to Prudence, his Baſtard Daughter, and her heirs, and died. Prudence, being within the age of 21 years, by Deed, as was pretended, did enfeoff Stephen and others of the ſaid Tenements in fee, and died within age without iſſue, and if this Feoffement ſhall prevent the Queen of her Eſcheat was the Queſtion; and upon conſideration had with the two chief Juſtices, it was reſolved, That if there be Lord and Infant Tenant, and the Infant doth make a Feoffement in fee, and doth execute the ſame by livery and ſeiſin by his own hands, and afterwards dieth without heir, that the Lord ſhall not take benefit of any Eſcheat in that caſe. And as to that, it is to know, that there are three manner of Privities; ſc. Privity in Blood; Privity in Eſtate; and, Privity in Law. Privies in Blood are ment of Privies in blood inheritable, and that in three manners, ſc. inheritable as general heir, inheritable as ſpecial heir, and inheritable as general and ſpecial heir. Privies in Eſtate are, as Jointenants, Husband and Wife, Donor and Donee, Leſſor and Leſſee, &c. Privies in Law are, when the Law without Blood, or Privity of Eſtate, doth caſt the Land upon one, or make his Entry lawfull; as the Lord by Eſcheat, the Lord who entreth for Mortmain, the Lord of a Villein, &c. And firſt, Privies inheritable, as general heir, ſhall take benefit of Infancy; and therefore if an In-[43] fant, Tenant in Feeſimple, maketh a Feoffement, and dieth, his heir ſhall enter. The ſame Law of him who is heir general and ſpecial. As if a man giveth Lands to one and the heirs males of his body, and the Donee within age maketh a Feoffement in fee, his Son who is heir general and ſpecial ſhall enter. The ſame Law is of him who is ſpecial heir, and not general; as if in the ſame caſe the Donee hath iſſue two Sons, and the eldeſt hath iſſue a Daughter, and the Donee dieth, and the eldeſt Son, within age, maketh a Feoffement, and dieth without iſſue male, the younger is ſpecial heir per formam doni, and ſhall avoid his brother's Feoffement, although he be not general heir, becauſe he is

Privy

Privy in blood, and hath the Land by descent: So if Lands be given to one, and the heirs females of his body, and the Donee having issue a Son and Daughter maketh a Feoffement within age, and dieth, the Daughter being heir special (to whom the Right of Entry descendeth) shall enter, and not the Son, who hath nothing by descent: So of the heir in Borough English; for in all Cases when any claimeth by descent as special heir, he shall take benefit of a Right of Entry which descendeth to him for the infancy of his Ancestor: the same Law, if his Ancestor were Non compos mentis at the time when he made the Feoffement, because that in these, and the like cases, the heir general cannot enter, because that no Right or Title doth descend to him, but the Right doth descend to the special heir. So if Tenant in tail within age maketh a Feoffement in Fee, and is attainted of Felony, in that case the Issue shall enter for the Infancy, yet he is not general heir, for the Blood is corrupted.

Also Privies in estate (if it be not in special cases) shall not take advantage of the Infancy of the other. And therefore, if Donee in tail within age maketh a Feoffement in fee, and dieth without issue, the Donor shall not enter, because there was Privity betwixt them onely in estate, and no Right doth accrue to the Donor by the death of the Donee. So if two Jointenants be in Fee within age, and one maketh a Feoffement in fee of his moiety, and dieth, the Survivor cannot enter by reason of the Infancy of his Companion, for by his Feoffement the Jointure was severed so long as the Feoffement doth remain in force; and therefore in such case the heir of the Feoffor shall have Dum fuit infra ætatem, or shall enter into the moiety; But if two Jointenants be within age, and they join in a Feoffement, in such case a Joint-right doth remain in them, and therefore if one dieth, the Right shall survive, and the Survivor shall have the Right of the Land as from the first Feoffor: And therefore I conceive with Littleton cap. Discont. 44. that the Survivor may enter in respect of a Right accrued to him, otherwise this mischief will follow, That the heir of the Feoffor who dieth could not enter, because that the Right doth survive, nor the Survivor shall [b] enter, because he shall not take benefit of the Infancy of his Companion, but that the Survivor shall be driven to his Writ of Right, which without doubt he may have, because that after the Feoffement the Jointenants might have joined in it. And if the Husband within age maketh a Feoffement in fee, and dieth, the heir of the Husband cannot enter and avoid this Feoffement, because that nothing descendeth to him from the Husband; for the Law doth not respect what estate the Ancestor giveth, but what estate he hath before the gift, and what Right or Title the Ancestor doth leave to descend to his heir: and therefore if an Infant be Tenant in tail, and maketh a Feoffement in fee, and dieth without issue; his collateral heir cannot enter to avoid this Feoffement; for although by his Feoffement he giveth Fee-simple, yet when he dieth without issue, nothing descendeth to the heir, in respect of which he may enter: So if Lands be given to one and the heirs females of his body, and he hath issue a Son, and maketh a Feoffement in fee, and dieth within age without issue female, the Son shall not enter in this case for the said Infancy, because that no Right descendeth to him. So if an Infant be Tenant pur auter vie, and make a Feoffment in fee, and Cestuy que use dieth, the Infant or his heir shall never enter upon the Feoffee, but he in Reversion or remainder: But forasmuch as the Infant himself, during his life, might have entred upon the Feoffee in the Right of his Wife onely, and not in respect of any Right which he himself hath, it seemeth reasonable with Littleton, fol. 43. That the Wife in the said Case, when the Husband within age maketh a Feoffement in fee, may enter in her own Right, in whose Right her Husband might have entred; and the rather, because the Husband's heir cannot enter: But if the Husband within age had taken a Wife Tenant in general tail, and made a gift in tail to another, by which he gained a new Reversion in fee, there the Entry is given to the Wife for the cause aforesaid, that is to say, that the Husband might have entred in her Right; also the heir of the Husband who hath gained the new Reversion might have also entred; but if he doth not enter, and defeat the Estate tail made by the Husband Infant, presently the new Reversion by Act in Law doth vanish from the one, and vest in the other, and the Wife by operation in Law shall be presently seised of her ancient Estate: for when the Estate tail is defeated, which was the cause of gaining the new Reversion, the heir cannot have the Estate which his Ancestor had before the gift; for his Ancestor before the gift had nothing, but in the Right of his Wife, which determined by his death, as it is holden in 4 H. 6. 2. where the Case was, That a man seised of certain Lands in the Right of his Wife, made a Feoffement thereof by Deed indented to certain persons, upon condition that he should lease the Lands again to the Husband and Wife for their lives, with divers [44] Remainders over in tail, the Remainder to the right heirs of the Husband, and afterwards the Husband died, the Feoffees leased the Land to the Wife for life, with Remainders over in tail, the Remainder to the right heirs of the Wife, where it should be to the right heirs of the Husband: And in that case it is resolved, That for the Condition broken the Husband's heir might enter; for although that no Right descendeth to him from the Husband, whose Estate is determined by death, yet the Title of Condition, which he himself created upon the Feoffement, and reserved to him and his heirs, should descend after his death to his heir: and so a difference between a Title of Entry by reason of a Condition, and a Right of Entry by reason of Infancy; for none shall take benefit of the Infancy of his Ancestor; but he who hath a Right descended to him from the same Ancestor, but the heir may take benefit of a Condition, although that no Right descendeth to him from the same Ancestor. Three other Points are in a manner resolved in the said case of 4 Hen. 6. 1. That when the Husband's heir entreth for the Condition broken thereby, the Feoffement which made the Discontinuance is defeated, and by consequence, the Discontinuance it self is defeated: 2. That after that the heir of the Husband hath entered for the Condition broken, the Estate of the heir doth vanish, and presently the Estate is revested in the Wife, without Entry or Claim made by her, for the heir doth enter by force of the Condition, and not in respect of any Right, and there two Cases are put to prove it: 1. If Tenant for life maketh a Feoffement in fee upon Condition, who entreth for the Condition broken, now the Feoffement is avoided, and by consequence the Reversion presently by the Entry revested. 2. If her Husband himself had entred for the Condition broken, the same had revested the Estate in the Wife. The third Point observable in the said Case of 4 Hen. 6. is, That although that the Wife hath accepted an Estate for life, and so concluded her self by acceptance to have any Cui in vita, yet when the Estate which she hath taken is defeated by the Condition, the Conclusion by the acceptance is also avoided. Vide Littleton cap. Discontinuance, 43. Privies in Law, as Lord by Escheat, &c. shall never take benefit of Infancy; because he is a Stranger to him, and when the Infant dieth without heir, the Feoffement is unavoidable. The same Law of Coverture, and Non sanæ memoriæ, and here you will better understand your Books, 14 *Edw. 3. Dum fuit infra ætatem 6. F. N. B. 192. 21 Edw. 3. 50. [b] It was also resolved, That if the Estate of the Infant had been upon Condition to be performed by the Infant, and the Condition had been broken during his minority, that the Land had been lost for ever. Note, Reader, That as to that it is to know, that there are two manner of Conditions, scil. a Condition in fact, that is, expressed, as to pay mony, or to doe, or not to doe any other Act, &c. and Condition in Law, that is, implied: Also Conditions in Law are of two natures, scil. by the Common Law, or by the Statute: And Conditions in Law by the Common Law are in two sorts, one which is founded upon a Confidence and Skill, and the other without Confidence or Skill. Conditions in Law by Statute Law are also of two qualities, scilicet, When the Statute for Execution of the Condition in Law giveth Recovery, and when the Statute giveth an Entry and no Recovery; as to the Condition in Law which is founded upon Skill and Confidence, as the Office of Parkership, Stewardship, &c. in fee, which descendeth to an Infant, or a Feme Covert, if the Condition in Law annexed to the said Offices be broken, the same shall barr the Infant, and Feme Covert for ever: the same Law of Liberties and Franchises: But if the Infant or Feme Covert be Lessee for life, or Tenant by the courtesie, or Tenant in dower, and the Infant, or the Husband of the Wife maketh a Feoffement in fee, and the Lessor entreth for the forfeiture, as he may, yet it shall not barr the Infant or Feme Covert, but that the Infant, or Feme Covert, after the death of the Husband may enter, for the same is by force of a meer Condition in Law, without any Skill or Trust annexed to the Estate. If an Infant, or a Feme Covert, Lessee for life doth waste, and the Lessor recovereth in an Action of Waste, it shall bind the Infant and Feme Covert; For the Statute giveth the Action to recover the Land. The same Laws of Cessavit, and of other like cases: As if an Infant be Gaoler, and suffereth an Escape, there an Action lieth. But if the Condition in Law be by force of a Statue Law, which giveth Entry, and no Action, as if an Infant, or the Husband seised in the Right of his Wife, alienateth in Mortmain, there, although that the Lord, of whom the Land is holden, entreth; yet the Right of the Infant or Feme Covert is not barred; no more than in the Case of a Condition in Law by the Common Law, which is grounded upon the Alienation of the Infant, Tenant for life, or of the Husband, &c. where the Entry of the Lessor is given by the Common Law. And so you will better understand your Books in 31 Ass. pl. 17. Br. Covenant, 71. Plow. Com. Stowell's Case, 355. Doctor and Student, 113. Vide 31 Edw. 3. Age 54. 14 Edw. 3. 88. 28 Edw. 3. 99. 2 Edw. 2. Age 132. 4 Edw. 3.

[45] Note, Reader, That a Condition in Law by force of a Statute which giveth a Recovery, is stronger than a Condition in Law without a Recovery: for if Lessee for life maketh a Lease for years, and afterwards entreth into the Land and committeth a Waste, and the Lessor doth recover in an Action of Waste against the Lessee for life, he shall avoid the Lease for years made before Waste done: But if Lessee for life maketh a Lease for years, and afterwards entreth, and maketh a Feoffement in fee, the Lessor shall not avoid the Lease for years. So if the Tenant maketh a Lease for years, and afterwards is attainted of Felony, and dieth without heir. The Lord by Escheat, although that he recovereth by Writ of Escheat, shall not avoid the Terme. But afterwards it appeared in the principal Case, that the said supposed Feoffement of the said Prudence was executed by Letter of Attorney made by the said Prudence, for which cause it was resolved that the same was void, and that the Land did escheat to the Queen.

Mich. 6 Jacobi. In the Common Pleas.

Jehu Webb's Case.

JEhu Webb brought an Assise against Sir Thomas Knyvet, Knight, Lord Knyvet, John Freeburne, and Roger Rolles, de libero tenemento in Westminster, and made his Plaint, de Officio Magistr. ludorum pilarum palmarum; Anglicè, the Office of the Master of the Tennis playes of the King, that now is in Westminster; And for his title said, That the said Office is an ancient Office in Westminster aforesaid, and that the King that now is, 25. Nov. Anno 5. by his Letters Patents, of his certain knowledge and meer motion, did give and grant to the said Jehu the aforesaid Office of Master of the Tennis playes, as well within the Palace of Westminster, as of the said Lord the King elsewhere; To have and enjoy the said Office to the said Jehu, during the life of the said Jehu; by force whereof the said Jehu was seised of the said Office with the Appurtenances for his life, and that he took and received the Profits thereof to his own use, until the Defendants wrongfully disseised him: and the Defendants pleaded No wrong, No disseisin. And upon the Evidence to the Recognitors of the Assise this Term, it was holden by the whole Court, That where the Grant was in English, Of the Office of the King's Tennis playes in Westminster, that that Grant shall be taken in a reasonable Sense; that is to say, the Tennis playes for the King's household, and not onely for the Tennis play when the King himself playeth in his Royal person; For the King is the Head of his household, and therefore from the most worthy part, the Tennis playes for the household may be well called the King's Tennis playes: So where a Commission is made to take Boys singing in Cathedral Church, &c. or other places where Children are taught to sing, for the furnishing of the King's Chapel, these general words by construction of Law have a reasonable intendment; scil. that such Boys as are brought up and taught [46] to sing to seek and get their living by it, may be taken for the King's Chapel; but the Son of a Gentleman, or any other, who is taught to sing for his ornament, delight, or recreation, and not thereby to get his living, cannot be taken against his will, or the consent of his Parents or Friends; and so it was resolved by the two Chief Justices, and all the Court of Star-chamber Anno 43 Eliz. in the Case of one Evans, who had by colour of such Letters Patents taken the Son of Clifton (a Gentleman in Norfolk) who was taught to sing for his recreation: which Evans for the said Offence was grievously punished. And in the Case at Barr divers Questions were moved, in what Case an Assise lay by the Common Law, and in what by the Statute of Westm. 2. c. 25. It is to be observed, that at the Common Law there was but two forms of Writs of Assise of Novel Disseisin, scil. Assise de libero tenemento, and Assise of Common of Pasture for his Cattel, &c. which was so necessary, that without the same his Freehold could not be manured. And the same appeareth by 35 Ass. pl. 11. 4 Edw. 2. Ass. 451. 11 Hen. 6. 22. and other Books, that Assise de libero tenemento lay of Land, Rent, and all other things whereof a Præcipe quod reddat lay at the Common Law. But of Profits apprender in a certain place, the Statute of Westm. 2. Cap. 25. gave an Assise of Novel Disseisin in the place of a Quod permittat, which was the remedy for them at the Common Law before the said Statute, as is to be seen in 4 E. 3. Ass. 449. 8 E. 2. Ass. 384. 16 E. 2. Ass. 370. 31 E. 1. Ass. 440. &c. And in some case, the Statute giveth an Assise in case where there was not any clear and certain remedy at the Common Law: for if one had not such Profits apprender but for terme of his life, it was holden that he should not have a Quod permittat of them, because that such Writ was in the nature of a Writ of Right, as appeareth in 30 E. 1. Quod permittat 9. where in a Quod permittat battel was waged. Vide 4 E. 3. 38. 32 Edw. 1. Juris utrum, 14. F. N. B. 124. B. C. And therefore the Statute saith, That a Writ of Novel Disseisin shall hold place in more Cases then it hath done heretofore; And first, the Statute beginneth, with Profits taken, gathered, or received, in the soil of another, &c. as in Woods, scil. of Estovers of wood, and Profit to be taken in Woods. 2. Of Nutts and Acorns, and such Fruites to be gathered in the Land of another, which are Examples of Profits to be taken in Woods. 3. Of a Corody, and of the Parts thereof, which belong to Living and Clothing, [b] scil. delivery of Corn, and other Victuals and necessaries, as Apparel, Lodging, Washing, &c. in a certain place yearly to be received; which is well explained by this word recipiend' for a Corody is properly to be received, and the Estovers and the other Profits to be taken, scil. capiend' & colligend'. So that the first Profits are Profits taken or gathered; and the Corody is, a Profit received.

4. Of Toll, and the species thereof, Tronage, Passage, Pontage, Pannage, and such like to be taken in certain places. Tolnetum, id est, Theolonium, id est, Τελώνιον Græcè, & Latinè Vectigal, quod dicitur à vehendo, quia, præstatur de rebus quæ vehuntur, à vehendis mercibus sic dictum, unde dicuntur Vectores qui vehunt. And Bracton, lib. 2. cap. 24. numero 3. Si cui concedatur talis libertas, &c. quod Theolonium & Consuetudines capiat, (which is the word that the Statute useth, *scil. See Fleta, lib. 1. cap. 47. and note that Bracton wrote in the end of Henry the Third, Father of King Edward 1. and Fleta wrote in the reign of King Edw. 1. who made the said Act. That an Assise lay of Common of Piscarie, &c. And these opinions had great probability of reason, but because there wanted a Writ for them in the Register, for that cause before this Statute an Assise did not lie of them, but a Quod permittat; and it appeareth by Bracton, lib. 5. De Exceptionibus, cap. 17. fol. 413. who wrote a little before the making of the said Act, That Original Writs cannot be changed, but by Act of Parliament. For there he divideth Writs into three branches. Sunt quædam Brevia formata (id est, originalia) seu de cursu; (which appeareth there, where first formed and made by Authority of Parlament:) Quædam judicialia ex eis (id est, ex originalibus) sequentia, &c. Quædam magistralia, quæ nec sunt de cursu, nec formata, id est, de aliqua certa forma, & sæpius variant, secundum varietatem casuum factorum & querelarum: (as are Actions upon the Case, Actions of Deceit, Prohibitions, &c. which have not any certain forme, &c.) And of the Original Writs, formed, or of course, Bracton wrote divers remarkable things, Breve quidem cum sit formatum ad similitudinem juris, quia breviter & paucis verbis intentionem proferentis exponit & explanat, sicut regula juris rem quæ est breviter enarrat, &c. Sunt Brevia quædam formata sub certis Casibus de cursu, & de Communi Consilio totius regni concessa & approbata, quæ quidem nullatenus mutari poterint absque consensu & voluntate eorum. By which it appeareth, that Writs formed, and of Course, that is, Originals, were [b] at first authorized by Parliament, and without Parliament cannot be altered or changed, and therewith agree our Books, for in as much as the Original Writ of Assisa ultimæ præsentationis was formed in these words, Quis advocatus tempore pacis præsentavit ultimam personam quæ mortua est, this form shall hold, and cannot be changed, although that the Incumbent resigneth, as it appeareth in 18 E. 2. Assise de Darrein presentment, 20. and F. N. B. 31 H. Also the Writ of Warrantia Chartæ is framed in these words, Quod juste, &c. warrantizet B. unum messuagium in D. &c. unde chartam habet, &c. And yet if he be bounden to Warranty by force of an Exchange, or by Homage ancestrel, the Writ shall not be altered. 9 E. 4. 49. 21 H. 6. 8. Fitz. Nat. Br. 134. and many other Cases may be put upon them same ground. Also Bracton further saith, Communia Brevia inter omnes pro jure generaliter observari debent cum sunt originalia, & actionibus originem præstent: And therewith agreeth Fitzherbert in his Preface to his Nat. Brevium: In every Art and Science there are certain Rules and Fundamentals, to which a Man ought to give credit and belief, and which he cannot deny: In like manner, there are divers Rules and Fundamentals in the knowledge of the Common Law of the Land, to which a Man ought to give credit and belief, and not deny them, which are necessary for those who will understand the Law, especially at the beginning, for upon those Foundations the whole Law doth depend. For which cause in times past a very profitable Book was composed, called the Register, which containeth divers Principles, by which he shall be well instructed who would understand the said Laws.

And that was the cause, that forasmuch as there was no Original Writ formed of Assise of Novel disseisin of Common of Turbarie, Piscarie, &c. but onely of Common of Pasture, for that cause no Assise of Novel disseisin lay of them before the said Statute of 13 E. 1. And therewith also Fleta agreeth, They are called Writs cum sint formata ad similitudinem regulæ juris, quæ breviter & paucis verbis intentionem proferentis exponit & explanat: sicut regula juris rem quæ est breviter enarrat, &c. Et sunt quædam Brevia formata sub certis Casibus, & quædam de cursu, quæ Consilio totius regni sunt approbata, quæ quidem mutari non poterint absque eorundem contraria voluntate. Sunt & Brevia ex eis sequentia, quæ dicuntur judicialia. And whereas afterwards at the same Parliament of Westm. 2. cap. 24. It is enacted, Et quotiescunque de cætero evenerit in Cancellaria quod in uno casu reperitur Bre', & in consimili casu cadente sub eodem jure & simili indigente remedio non reperitur, Concordent Clerici de Cancell' in Bre' faciendo, vel atterminent querentes in proxim' Parliament. & scribantur Casus in quibus concedere non possunt, & referant eos ad proxim' Parliament. & de Consensu Jurisperitorum fiat Breve ne contingat de cætero quod Curia Domini Regis deficiat de Conquerentibus in Justitia perquirenda. [49] And the Preamble of the said 24. Chapter was consonant to the Conclusion, de cætero non recedant à Curia Regis sine remedio. By force of which Act the Writ called the Writ de Ingressu in consimili casu was formed by the Clerks of the Chancery, as it is adjuged in 3 E. 3. Entry 8. which was given in the same age that the said Act was made, and F. N. B. 206. f. Vide 38 E. 3. 13.

Note, Reader, at the time of the making of the said Act, as it appeareth by Fleta, lib. 2. c. 12. The Clerks of the Chancery (which are meant in the said Act) were grave, wise, and circumspect men, sworn to the King, of deep Knowledge of the Laws and Customs of England: for the words of the Book are, Est autem inter cætera quoddam Officium quod dicitur Cancellaria, quod viro provido & discreto, &c. magnæ dignitatis debet committi, &c. cui associentur Clerici honesti & circumspecti, Domino Regi jurati, qui in Legibus & Consuetudinibus Anglicanis notitiam habeant pleniorem, &c. And the Writs which they form, are called Brevia Magistralia, because that these Clerks, for their Knowledge, were called Magistri Cancellariæ, as those who wrote Writs of Course were, and yet are called Cursitorii, Cursitors: and as the Writs which the Cursitors write are called Brevia de Cursu, so the Writs which the Masters draw in difficult Cases, are called Brevia Magi-

And yet if he be bounden to Warranty by force of an Exchange, or by Homage ancestrel, the Writ shall not be altered. 9 E. 4. 49. 21 H. 6. 8. Fitz. Nat. Br. 134. and many other Cases may be put upon them same ground. Also Bracton further saith, Communia Brevia inter omnes pro jure generaliter observari debent cum sunt originalia, & actionibus originem præstent: And therewith agreeth Fitzherbert in his Preface to his Nat. Brevium: In every Art and Science there are certain Rules and Fundamentals, to which a Man ought to give credit and belief, and which he cannot deny: In like manner, there are divers Rules and Fundamentals in the knowledge of the Common Law of the Land, to which a Man ought to give credit and belief, and not deny them, which are necessary for those who will understand the Law, especially at the beginning, for upon those Foundations the whole Law doth depend. For which cause in times past a very profitable Book was composed, called the Register, which containeth divers Principles, by which he shall be well instructed who would understand the said Laws.

And that was the cause, that forasmuch as there was no Original Writ formed of Assise of Novel disseisin of Common of Turbarie, Piscarie, &c. but onely of Common of Pasture, for that cause no Assise of Novel disseisin lay of them before the said Statute of 13 E. 1. And therewith also Fleta agreeth, They are called Writs cum sint formata ad similitudinem regulæ juris, quæ breviter & paucis verbis intentionem proferentis exponit & explanat: sicut regula juris rem quæ est breviter enarrat, &c. Et sunt quædam Brevia formata sub certis Casibus, & quædam de cursu, quæ Consilio totius regni sunt approbata, quæ quidem mutari non poterint absque eorundem contraria voluntate. Sunt & Brevia ex eis sequentia, quæ dicuntur judicialia. And whereas afterwards at the same Parliament of Westm. 2. cap. 24. It is enacted, Et quotiescunque de cætero evenerit in Cancellaria quod in uno casu reperitur Bre', & in consimili casu cadente sub eodem jure & simili indigente remedio non reperitur, Concordent Clerici de Cancell' in Bre' faciendo, vel atterminent querentes in proxim' Parliament. & scribantur Casus in quibus concedere non possunt, & referant eos ad proxim' Parliament. & de Consensu Jurisperitorum fiat Breve ne contingat de cætero quod Curia Domini Regis deficiat de Conquerentibus in Justitia perquirenda. [49] And the Preamble of the said 24. Chapter was consonant to the Conclusion, de cætero non recedant à Curia Regis sine remedio. By force of which Act the Writ called the Writ de Ingressu in consimili casu was formed by the Clerks of the Chancery, as it is adjuged in 3 E. 3. Entry 8. which was given in the same age that the said Act was made, and F. N. B. 206. f. Vide 38 E. 3. 13.

Note, Reader, at the time of the making of the said Act, as it appeareth by Fleta, lib. 2. c. 12. The Clerks of the Chancery (which are meant in the said Act) were grave, wise, and circumspect men, sworn to the King, of deep Knowledge of the Laws and Customs of England: for the words of the Book are, Est autem inter cætera quoddam Officium quod dicitur Cancellaria, quod viro provido & discreto, &c. magnæ dignitatis debet committi, &c. cui associentur Clerici honesti & circumspecti, Domino Regi jurati, qui in Legibus & Consuetudinibus Anglicanis notitiam habeant plenioremi, &c. And the Writs which they form, are called Brevia Magistralia, because that these Clerks, for their Knowledge, were called Magistri Cancellariæ, as those who wrote Writs of Course were, and yet are called Cursitorii, Curlitors: and as the Writs which the Cursitors write are called Brevia de Cursu, so the Writs which the Masters draw in difficult Cases, are called Brevia Magistralia.

ſtralia. But when ſuch Clerks ſo knowing of the Law failed, then the Judges in many caſes gave allowance to ancient forms of Writs, and drove the Party to make a ſpecial Count when the Writ doth warrant the Count in ſubſtance, although there be variance in Circumſtance, as in the ſaid Caſes of Darrein preſentment, and Warrantia Chartæ, and many others, the ſubſtance of the one is the Avoidance, and Death or Reſignation, but the Circumſtance; and in the other Warranty is the ſubſtance, and the manner of it but the Circumſtance. But when the Caſe will not bear it, (as in Aſſiſe of Common of Paſture, he cannot make his plaint of Common of Piſcarie, Turbarie, &c.) the laſt refuge is to refer the ſame ad proximum Parliamentum, as the Statute ſpeaketh.

Note, Reader, in the ſaid Statute of Weſtm. 2. cap. 24. a little before it is ſaid, Et in Regiſtro de Cancellaria non eſt inventum aliquod Breve in iſto Caſu ſpeciali. And therefore the Statute provided remedy in it, by which appeareth alſo the Antiquity of the Regiſter, which is as ancient as Original Writs, of whoſe Antiquity ſee in the Preface to the Third Part of my Reports. And in the principal Caſe Exception was taken to the Plaint, becauſe that in his title he ſaith, Quod
[b] Officium prædictum eſt antiquum Officium in Weſtm. prædict. quodque prædictus Dominus Rex nunc, &c. & per Literas ſuas Patentes, &c. conceſſit eidem Jehu Officium Magiſtri Ludorum pilarum palmarum, &c. Habend' idem Officium eidem Jehu, durante vita ſua, &c. And doth not ſhew that any Profit doth belong to the ſaid Office. And a man ſhall not maintain an Aſſiſe of an Office without Profit, as the Book in 27 Hen. 8. But it was anſwered and reſolved, That the Plaint was well enough: For true it is, that of an Office of charge no Aſſiſe lieth, as it is holden in 30 Aſſ. pl. 4. 8 Ed. 4. 22. and 27 Hen. 8. 12. And 30 Aſſ. pl. 4. There the Aſſiſe was brought of the Office of Meſſor of the Mannor of D. with the Appurtenances: And there Shard took a difference between an ancient Office and a new Office; For in an Aſſiſe of a new Office firſt erected and appointed, there the Plaintiff ought to ſhew what Fee or Profit is granted for the exerciſing of it, for it cannot have a Fee and Profit belonging to it, as an ancient Office may. And there Burton ſaith, that their opinion was, That if a man maketh his Plaint of an Office, and of the Profit, the Plaint had abated; for by the Recovery of the Office, the Fee and Profit, as parcel of it, ſhall be recovered. And therewith agreeth the Book in 8 E. 4. 22. where in an Aſſiſe of an Office in the Common Pleas, he made his Plaint of the Office and Fee, and Wages and Commodities; and Choke excepted againſt it, becauſe he complaineth of one thing twice, ſcil. of the Office and of the Fee: Jenney, who was of Counſel with the Plaintiff, we have amended our Plaint; For it is no other but of the Office, with the Appurtenances. Pigot. Then the Plaint is not good: For a man ſhall not maintain an Aſſiſe of an Office without Profit. And the Court held the Plaint good as to that, and therewith agree 5 Edw. 4. 3. 22 Hen. 6. 9. 9 Edw. 4. 6. And it is to know, that if a man be diſſeiſed of the whole Office he ſhall have an Aſſiſe de Officio cum Pertinenciis; but if he be diſſeiſed of parcel of the Profits, he may have an Aſſiſe of theſe parcels onely, 22 Hen. 6. 11. 13 Edw. 3. Plaint 23. If a man giveth to me the Keeping of a Park, taking two pence a day, and a Robe, the Plaint ſhall not be of the Office or Keeping, if I be not diſſeiſed of the whole Office: But if I be diſſeiſed of the Robe or Fee, the Plaint ſhall be onely thereof. And 3 Edw. 3. Aſſiſe 175. An Aſſiſe of Novel diſſeiſin was brought, and he made his Plaint of a Profit apprender, for the Keeping of the Park and Wood of Preſton, every day of the year a penny halfpenny for his Poulter, and a Robe, and the Aſſiſe was maintained. And there Scrope held, that if I have a Corodie to take Four Loaves, and Four Flagons of Ale in the Week, although they are but one Corodie and one Freehold, yet if I be diſſeiſed onely of the Bread, I ſhall not complain of both, ſcil. of the Ale and the Bread, but onely of the Bread, otherwiſe my Plaint ſhall abate: But if I be diſſeiſed of Two of the Loaves onely, I ſhall make my Plaint of all the Four Loaves, with which agreeth
[50] 22 H. 6. 9. and 12 Aſſ. pl. 23. Aſſiſe was brought of Meat and Drink, as appurtenant to his Office. And in the principal Caſe at Bar, The Aſſiſe for the Plaintiff againſt Roger Rolls in duobus Sphæriſteriis, Anglicè, Tennis Courts, whereof one is called the Cloſe Tennis Court, and the other called the Brake in Weſtminſter aforeſaid, and aſſeſſed Damages and Coſts, and acquitted the Lord Knyvett, and John Freeborn, of the Diſſeiſin of the ſaid Office aforeſaid. Ideo conſideratum eſt quod prædictus Jehu recuperet ſeiſinam ſuam verſus præfatum Rogerum de Officio prædicto in prædictis duobus Sphæriſteriis per viſum recognitorum Aſſiſæ prædictæ, with Damages and Coſts, & prædictus Rogerus in miſericordia, & prædictus Jehu in miſericordia, pro falſo clamore ſuo verſus præfat' Tho. Knyvett, & Johannem Freeborn, eo quod ipſi de diſſeiſina prædict' ſuperius acquietati exiſtunt, & prædict' Thomas & Johannes Freeborn eant inde ſine die, &c. And it is to know, that at the Common Law, the Aſſiſe was remedium maximè feſtinum, & remedium maximè beneficiale feſtinum, for therein the Defendant ſhall not be eſſoigned, nor caſt a Protection, alſo the Defendant ſhall not pray in aid, but onely of the King, nor ſhall not vouch a ſtranger, nor any party to the Writ, unleſs he enter preſently into the Warranty: The ſame Law of Receipt. Alſo the Plea ſhall not remain for Nonage, neither of the Plaintiff nor Defendant; and in many other reſpects the Aſſiſe is feſtinum remedium; it is alſo maximè beneficiale; for in no Action at the Common Law a man ſhall recover the Land it ſelf and Damages, but onely in an Aſſiſe againſt the Diſſeiſor. See the Statute of Glouceſter, cap. 1. And in ſome caſe a man ſhall have an Aſſiſe of Novel diſſeiſin at the Common Law when he himſelf is ſeiſed of the Freehold of the Land: As when the Lord doth ſo often diſtrein the Tenant of the Land that he cannot manure his Land; in that caſe the Tenant of the Land may have an Aſſiſe, and the Writ ſhall be general, but he ſhall make a ſpecial Plaint, that the Lord, &c. did often diſtrein, & c. and the Judgement ſhall not be quod Querens recuperabit ſeiſinam tenementorum prædictorum, for the Plaintiff himſelf is ſeiſed of the Freehold, but the Judgement ſhall be that he ſhall have and hold the Land, abſque multiplici diſtrictione, &c. So in his caſe who feedeth another's ſeveral, the Tenant of the Land ſhall have an Aſſiſe by the Common Law.

And

And the Statute of Weſtm. 2. cap. 25. is but an affirmance of the Common Law; for in the ſame manner he ſhall have an Aſſiſe for Fiſhing in his ſeveral Piſcarie, or Turbarie, and the Writ ſhall be general, as it appeareth by the Statute. But the Plaintiff in his Plaint ought to ſhew that the Defendant claiming Common of Paſture in his ſeveral with his cattel, &c. and the Judgement ſhall not be that he ſhall recover ſeiſin of the Tenements, &c. but that he ſhall have and hold the ſame in ſeveralty; for the Plaintiff himſelf is ſeiſed of the Freehold, and therefore he cannot make his Plaint to be diſſeiſed of his Freehold; for it is not ſo: and then the Judgement ſhould not follow it. Vide F. N. B. 178. b. 27 Aſſ. pl. 30, & 51. 28 Aſſ. pl. 50. Weſtm. 2. cap. 25. [b]

Syms Case.

[51] James Game brought a Formedon in the Remainder againſt William Sims and Mary his Wife, and demanded one Houſe and forty five Acres of Land, ſix Acres of Meadow in Wethermonford, &c. in the County of Eſſex, of the gift made by Henry Winter to Stephen his Son, and to the heirs males of his body; the Remainder to John his Son, and to the heirs males of his body, &c. the Remainder to Alice Winter, and her heirs; and that the Demandant was Son and heir to Alice, and that Stephen and John were dead without iſſue, &c. The Tenant pleaded in barr a Fine levied by the ſaid Stephen to William Brown of the Tenements aforeſaid; By which he did grant that he and his heirs would warrant the Tenements aforeſaid, with the Appurtenances, &c. againſt all People. After which Fine the ſaid John died without Iſſue, and afterwards the ſaid Stephen died without iſſue. After whoſe death the Warranty of the ſaid Stephen ſpecified in the ſaid Fine did deſcend to the ſaid Alice, as Siſter and heir of the ſaid Stephen, and after the deſcent of the ſaid Warranty the ſaid Alice died, after whoſe death the Warranty aforeſaid did deſcend to the ſaid James, as Son and heir of the ſaid Alice, and demanded Judgement if the ſaid James ſhould have the Action aforeſaid againſt the Warranty aforeſaid, &c. The Defendant confeſſed the Fine aforeſaid, &c. and the death of John Winter without iſſue, and that the ſaid Stephen died prout, &c. But further ſaid, that the ſaid Warranty of the ſaid Stephen did deſcend to the ſaid Alice, as Siſter and heir to the ſaid Stephen, and to one Thomaſin Rampton as coheir of the ſaid Stephen, and ſhewed how: And after the death of the ſaid Alice, the ſaid Warranty as to one moiety of the ſaid Tenements did deſcend to the ſaid James, as Son and heir of the ſaid Alice, &c. Upon which the Tenant did demur in Law; And if the ſaid Warranty which deſcended upon both the heirs ſhould barr the ſaid Alice and her heir for the whole, or for the moiety, foraſmuch as the ſaid Warranty deſcendeth upon both, and Alice onely had Right to the ſaid Land, was the Queſtion. And it was objected that it ſhould be a barr but for one moiety, becauſe the Warranty doth not onely deſcend upon her but upon the other Siſter. And the caſe in 45 Edw. 3. 23. was cited, which is abridged by Br. Warrantie, 14. where he abridgeth the caſe to this effect. Husband and Wife Tenants in ſpecial tail, to them and the heirs of their bodies, have iſſue a Daughter, the Husband diſcontinueth the Eſtate tail with Warranty, and the Wife dieth; and he took another Wife, and had iſſue another Daughter, the Husband died; the eldeſt Daughter took Husband, and they brought a Formedon, &c. And the Tenant did rebutt for one moiety by reaſon of the Warranty and Aſſets, and recovered for the other moiety, for he could not rebutt for the other moiety, becauſe that the Warranty did not deſcend onely upon him. But it was reſolved by Coke Chief Juſtice, and the whole Court, That in the Caſe at Barr, Alice and her heir was barred for the whole; for the Warranty is entire and extendeth to the whole Land, and is a Barr to every perſon upon whom the ſame deſcendeth of all the Right which he hath in the Land; and if each of them hath Right jointly or ſeverally, each is barred; and if one onely hath the Right and the other nothing, ſhe which hath the onely Right ſhall be barred of the whole, for as to that purpoſe the whole Warranty doth deſcend to each of them. And therewith agreeth a Caſe adjudged in the Point in 5 Edw. 2. Warrant. 78. where Sibil brought a Sur cui in vita, of the Diſſeiſin of Margery her Grandmother; the Tenant pleads, that the ſaid Sibil is coheir with Elin and Maud, to one Walter, their coſen, whoſe heirs they are, and that the ſaid Walter did enfeoffe the Tenant with Warranty, Judgement, &c. And there it is objected, That in a manner as one ſhall vouch he ought to rebutt, but you cannot vouch us, quaſi diceret, that he ſhould not vouch one onely, becauſe the Warranty deſcendeth upon all, and in the ſame manner, that he ſhould not rebutt onely againſt one, but it ought to be for a third part, becauſe the Demandant is not ſole heir to the Warranty. To whom Hervie Chief Juſtice anſwered; You are three coheirs, and the Tenant may barr you all, ergo, one alone. And he ſheweth the Deed of Walter, whoſe heirs you are, which you do not deny, wherefore, by Judgement of the Court, you ſhall take nothing, &c. And therewith agreeth 4 Hen. 7. 18. where it is holden, That if three Coparceners alien in Fee with Warranty, every Warranty ſhall be collateral to the other, and yet the Warranty of her who firſt dieth doth deſcend upon both the others. And the Caſe in 6 Edw. 3. 50. was in effect, That A. ſeiſed of three Acres made a Feoffement to one B. with Warranty, and died ſeiſed of [52]

the other two Acres, having iſſue two Daughters, who make partition, and each hath one Acre, the Wife of A. doth purchaſe the part of one Coparcener, and afterwards brought a Writ of Dower againſt B. who vouched the two Daughters and heirs of A. the one (who had enfeoffed the Demandant of her part) entred into the Warranty, as one who had nothing by deſcent, the other pleaded all the ſaid ſpecial matter, pretending that foraſmuch as the Demandant hath purchaſed the part of one, that ſhe ſhould not recover the whole in value againſt the other, but for a moiety, becauſe that the Warranty did diſcend upon both. But it was adjudged, that he ſhould recover the whole value againſt her who had by deſcent; for when two men are vouched, and the one hath nothing, the other who hath, ſhall anſwer the whole in value, and yet the Warranty did not deſcend upon him alone. And it was lawfull for the woman Demandant to purchaſe the part of one, and therefore it ſhall not prejudice her. Vide 11 Hen. 4. 20. 41 Edw. 3. 3. 10 Hen. 7. 13. And it was ſaid, That the Book in 45 Edw. 3. 23. doth not warrant ſuch opinion, as hath been collected upon it; for the principal Caſe in the Book at large (which is the Fountain) is, that in a Precip' quod reddat the Tenant did vouch two as heirs, and ſaid that one was within age, and prayed that the parol might demurr; the Demandant ſaid that he was full of age, and prayed that he might be inſpected in Court; upon which Proceſs was awarded, tiel ſignatur ſub ſuo periculo, at which day he came not, nor no Writ was returned, and the Demandant prayed Judgement for the moiety, becauſe one of them who was vouched made default, and prayed Summons ad Warr. againſt the other. To which the Demandant ſaid, That Summon. ad Warr. he could not have, becauſe that he who is Vouchee is Demandant: To which the Tenant ſaid, That the Anceſtor of theſe who were vouched by Deed which here is, did enfeoffe one R. with Warranty, whoſe Eſtate we have, Judgement if againſt the Deed; with Averment that he hath Aſſets by deſcent. To which the Demandant ſaith, that he hath nothing by deſcent. And the Court gave Judgement for one moiety in reſpect of the default of one of the Vouchees which the Tenant hath loſt by his Voucher, for which moiety he can plead nothing; and for the other moiety, although he hath vouched the Demandant by a ſtrange name, and ſo in a manner pleaded in chief, yet foraſmuch as the Demandant hath taken him from this Voucher as to him, becauſe he is Demandant himſelf, he may plead the Warranty and Aſſets in barr for the other moiety. Upon which Plea no Judgement is given in the Book, and therefore [b] the Court regarded not the ſaid Collection of Brook, foraſmuch as the Book is adjuged upon another Point, ſcil. upon default of one of the Vouchees; but it was affirmed by the whole Court, That in the ſaid Caſe of Warranty and Aſſets, the lineal Warranty is as entire as the collateral Warranty; but in as much as the lineal Warranty is not a Barr to the Iſſue in tail without Aſſets, and Aſſets is to be adjudged according to the value, which may be more or leſs; for this cauſe the lineal Warranty ought to follow the Aſſets, becauſe that without Aſſets the lineal Warranty is no Bar. As if Warranty and Aſſets be pleaded in a Formedon brought of four Acres, each of the yarly value of twelve pence, and iſſue is taken upon the Aſſets, and it is found that but one Acre of the value of twelve pence deſcended, it is no Barr but for one Acre, as it is holden in 40 E. 3. 15. 21 E. 3. 9. againſt the Book in 21 Edw. 3. 28. But otherwiſe it is in Debt or Annuity brought againſt the heir, becauſe that Lands of their nature are deviſeable, and the Demandant in the Formedon may recover part, and be barred of the reſidue; but Debt or Annuity in ſuch caſe are entire, and not deriſable, as it is ſaid in 5 Richard 2. Annuity 21. Annale aut debitum Judex nec ſeparet ipſum. And the opinon of the Lord Brook, although it was not well collected out of the Book, was affirmed for Law, if the juſt Aſſets of the Land in demand, and not more doth deſcend upon the Demandant and the other Daughter, for then the Demandant ought to recover the moiety, becauſe ſhe hath no Aſſets but as to one moiety, and the lineal Warranty onely is no Barr. But if the moiety of the Land which deſcendeth upon the Demandant be of equal value to the Land in demand, ſhe ſhall be barred of the whole, for a lineal Warranty when Aſſets to the value of the Land in demand deſcendeth, is as entire and full a Barr as to the Demandant of a collateral Warranty, deſcend the Warranty in the one caſe or in the other upon the Demandant onely, or upon her and any other. And the Statute of Glouceſter doth enact, That if the Warranty of the Tenant by the courteſie be pleaded, the heir of the Wife ſhall not be barred by the Deed of his Father, from whom no inheritance doth deſcend, &c. And if inheritance doth deſcend from the part of the Father, then be he barred of the value of the inheritance which deſcendeth to him. By force of which Statute, the collateral Warranty which without Aſſets was a Barr entirely to the whole by the Common Law, is now but a proportionable Barr, having reſpect to the Aſſets deſcended; and the lineal Warranty and Aſſets pleaded in Formedon in the deſcender is taken to be within the equity of the ſaid Act; as it is reſolved in 11 Edw. 2. Statham Garr. 21 Edw. 3. 28. 38 Edw. 3. 23, &c. Plow. Com. in Fulmerſton's Caſe, fol. 110. But where in the ſaid Fulmerſton's Caſe it is ſaid, if in the one caſe or the other Aſſets is not deſcended at the time of the Aſſiſe of Mortdanceſter, or Formedon brought, but afterwards Aſſets deſcend, that the Tenant ſhall have a Scire facias in the caſe of Warranty made by Tenant by the courteſie, to have the Land which was of the Seſin of his Mother, and not of the Aſſets by [53] the expreſs purview of the ſaid Statute of Glouceſter, and in the caſe of Warranty made by Tenant in tail which is taken within the equity of the ſaid Act, the Iſſue in tail ſhall have a Scire facias to have the Aſſets which afterwards deſcendeth, and not the Land given in tail: and Equity is the reaſon that the caſe taken within the equity of the former Law ſhall not follow the purview thereof, but ſhall have another and diverſe conſtruction; for equity requireth that incertainty be avoided, as the authour of contention, and that there ſhould be an end of controverſies according to equity and right, the final end of all Laws: And therefore the ſaid Statute of Glouceſter well provided an abſolute and juſt end in the caſe of Tenant by the courteſie of Land in Fee-ſimple; for when the Tenant in ſuch caſe after Aſſets deſcended doth recover the inheritance of the Mother, which he hath

he hath purchased, the same maketh an end of that Controversie, so that the Demandant or his heirs shall be by force of the said Act barred for ever to claim the said Land. But if in the said Case of Formedon, the Tenant after Assets descended shall have a Scire facias for the Land intailed, then if the Assets shall be aliened, the issues inheritable to the Estate tail may by Writ of Formedon in the descender recover the Land in tail, which shall be cause of new Sute and Contention, and shall not answer to the final intention of the Purview of the said Act; and therefore according to the rule of Wisedom, Sapiens incipit à fine, to make a perpetual barr as well in that Case as in the other. It was adjudged reasonable and consonant to the final intention of the Makers of the said Act, That in that Case of an Estate tail the Tenant should have a Scire facias, to have the Assets which descendeth to the Issue in tail in Fee-simple, which as to them shall be a perpetual Barr against him and his heirs, which in just and proportionable equity agreeth with the other Case. Vide 43 E. 3. 26. and 40 E. 3. 39. &c. Where it is holden, that if Warrantie and Assets be pleaded against the Issue in tail, and if the Demandant hath nothing by descent, and Land descendeth to the Issue afterwards, he shall have a Scire facias to have the value. And therefore if in a Mortdancester, Cosinage, Aiel, Besaiel, &c. the Tenant pleadeth the Warrantie of the Tenant by the courtesie with Assets, or in a Formedon the Tenant pleads a lineal Warranty with Assets, and the Demandant taketh Issue upon the Assets, and it is found by Inquest that nothing descended for which the Demandant recovereth, and after that Recovery Assets descendeth, the Tenant shall never have a Scire facias to take the benefit of the said Act, for divers reasons.

1. Because the said Trial is so peremptory to him, as if Assets had been found by the Inquest; it had been to the Demandant.

2. There is no Record upon which he can ground his Scire facias.

3. By the putting himself upon the Trial of Assets, he hath waived the advantage which he might have had upon the said Act.

4. He who will take benefit of that Act ought not to begin with Falsity. But if the Tenant will take benefit of the said Act, he ought to plead the Warranty, and to acknowledge the Demandant's Title, and pray the Advantage of the Statute where Assets shall after descend, to be saved to him, [b] and upon that Record, when Assets shall descend he shall have a Scire facias; and that standeth with the Letter and Intention of the said Act; for the words are (by Writ of Judgement which issue out of the Rolls of the Justices.) So that the Scire facias ought to be grounded upon the Rolls of the Justices. Also the Statute goes farther; To resummon the Warranty, as it hath been done in other Cases, scil. where the Warrantee or Vouchee cometh in Court, and saith, that nothing is descended to him from him by whose Deed he is vouched, &c. which if the Tenant cannot gainsay, &c. he shall have the benefit of the Assets which afterwards descendeth to the Vouchee; but if he taketh Issue that Assets is descended to him, and the same by Inquest be found against him, that nothing descended, then he shall never have any benefit of the Assets which shall afterwards descend to the Vouchee. But it was said, If Assets be found by the Inquest, but not to the value, there the Demandant shall have benefit of the Assets which afterwards descend, because the Vouchee's Plea is false; and on the other part, it shall be hard to drive the Demandant, who is a stranger, to know the precise value of the Land which the Vouchee hath by descent, but he may well take knowledge whether he hath any Land by descent from the same Ancestor or not. And in this Case divers good Differences were observed, which do appear in our Books.

1. Between a collateral Warranty, and an Estoppel: for a collateral Wrranty shall bind the Right of him who claimeth, not by him who maketh the Warranty; but an Estopple shall bind only the heir who claimeth the Right of him to whom the Estoppel was: As at the Common Law before the said Statute of Glouceſter, cap. 3. If the Husband had aliened the Land which he had in the Right of his Wife with Warranty, and the Husband and Wife died, in that Case the Right descended from the Wife, and yet that Warranty being collateral to the Title of the Land should barr the Wife's heir. But it is adjuged in 18 Edw. 3. 9. That where Lands were conveyed to the Husband and Wife, and to the heirs of the Husband, and the Husband gave them in Tail, and the Husband died, the Wife should recover the Land against the Donee by Writ of Cui in vita, supposing that she had the Lands to her and her heirs in Fee; the Wife after the Recovery enfeoffed another, and died, the Donee in tail dieth without issue, the issue of the Husband and Wife brought a Formedon in the Reverter against the Feoffee of the Wife; and although that the Issue was heir to the Wife who was estopped by the said Recovery in the Cui in vita, to say that she had a lesser Estate than a Fee-simple, yet the Issue who claimeth the Reversion of the Land as Heir to the Husband, shall not be bound by that Estoppel made by the Wife, although that he be Heir to her also, for then by her own act the Wife who hath but an Estate for life, might barr the Heir who hath Right, and who claimeth as Heir to his Father; But a collateral Warranty cannot take effect without the Act of God, scilicet, the Death of him who maketh it, and in the mean time the Estate to which, &c. may be abated. But in this point the Warranty and the Estoppel concurr, that both shall descend upon the general Heir to him who made the Warranty or Estoppel, and not upon the particular Heir, as upon the younger Son: And not upon the Sister of the half blood, &c. [54] as it appeareth 35 Hen. 6. 34. and as to the Heir who doth not claim the Land as Heir to him who made the Estoppel, as hath been said, shall not be bound thereby for his disadvantage: so in the same Case he shall not be capable of the disadvantages, if it be not in special Cases. And therefore it is adjudged in 38 Edw. 3. 10. That if a Woman her self bind her self and her Heirs to acquital to the Tenant and his Heirs, and after the Woman taketh a Husband, and the Tenant by his Deed doth grant to the Husband, that he nor his Heirs shall be bound to the said Acquital, and afterwards the Husband and Wife have Issue and die, this Issue although he be Heir to the Husband, yet becauſe that the Bond of Acquital doth deſcend to him as Heir to his Mother, he ſhall not be capable of the ſaid Advantage of the ſaid Diſcharge, quia Hæres dicitur ab hæreditate, & non hæreditas ab Hærede. But therein alſo there is a difference between Advantages in groſs, as in the Caſe of 38 E. 3. and Advantages which by the Grant are made appurtenant or incident to another thing: As if a man be ſeiſed of a Houſe in the Right of his Wife, and another granteth to the Husband and his Heirs, to have ſufficient Eſtovers to burn in the ſame Houſe, in that Caſe the Eſtovers are appurtenant to the ſaid Houſe, and ſhall diſcend to the Iſſue of the Husband and Wife. So if one hath a Houſe of the part of his Mother, and one granteth to him, that he and his Heirs ſhall have competent Houſebote to be burnt in the ſame Houſe, the ſame is appurtenant to the Houſe; and although it be a new Purchaſe, yet it ſhall go with the Houſe to the Heir of the Part of the Mother. The ſame Law if a Man hath a Rent-ſeck by deſcent of the Part of his Mother, and the Terr-tenant granteth to him and his Heirs that he ſhall diſtrein for the Rent, &c. the ſame is as appurtenant to the Rent, and ſhall goe with the Rent to the Heir of the Part of the Mother. And ſo it is holden in 5 E. 2. Avowrie 207. in Jordan's Caſe. That where Alice was ſeiſed of a Manor in Fee, and took to Husband one Jordan, and had Iſſue Sibill; and afterwards Jordan and his Wife died, and Sibill was ſeiſed of the Mannor, as Heir of the Part of her Mother, who before the Statute of Quia Emptores terrarum did enfeoffe P. of parcel of the Mannor by four ſhillings Rent, and afterwards Sibill died without Iſſue: And there the Queſtion was, Who ſhould have this Seigniory and Rent of four ſhillings newly created, either the Heir of the Part of the Mother, or the Heir of the Part of Jordan the Father? And there Beresford Chief Juſtice of the Bench ſaith, When Sibil enfeoffeth P. of parcel of the Mannor which deſcendeth to her from Alice, theſe Services are then appurtenant to the Remainder of the Mannor; by which the death of Sibill without Heir of her

[b] body cannot defeat this Appendance. So it is holden in 7 H. 6. 4, 6. That if a Man be ſeiſed of Land of the Part of his Mother, and maketh a Gift in tail rendring Rent, this new Rent which is incident to the Reverſion, ſhall goe with the Reverſion to the Heir of the Part of the Mother. And it is to be known, that there is a difference between Eſtopples or Concluſions which ſtand upon recompence, and other Eſtopples which ſtand upon affirmance or admittance of any matter by matter of Record: As if an Abator marrieth with the right Heir, and hath Iſſue by her, and the Abator maketh a Leaſe for life rendring Rent, and he and his Wife die, in this Caſe the Iſſue hath the meer Right of the Part of his Mother; and yet if he accepteth the Rent, and maketh Acquittance, it ſhall eſtopp him and his Heirs to avoid the ſaid Leaſe, in reſpect of the acceptance of the Recompence: and therewith agree 37 H. 6. 27. Vide 28 H. 6. 24. But an Eſtoppel which accrueth by admittance, &c. of Record, ſhall not conclude the Heir who claimeth not the Right by the ſame Anceſtor, as it is adjudged in 18 E. 3. aforeſaid.

Mich. 6 Jacobi. In the Common Pleas.

Roger Earl of Rutland's Caſe.

[55] ROger Earl of Rutland brought an Aſſiſe of Novel diſſeiſin againſt Gilbert Earl of Shrewſbury, and others, complaining him to be diſſeiſed of his Free-hold in Clipſon, in the County of Nottingham, and made his Plaint to be diſſeiſed of the Office of Keeper of the Park called Clipſon Park, and of the Pannage and Herbage of the ſaid Park of Clipſon aforeſaid: and for title of free-hold of the ſaid Office, and of the Pannage and Herbage aforeſaid, the Plaintiff ſaid, That Queen Elizabeth was ſeiſed of the ſaid Park in Fee in the right of her Crown, and the 19th of March, Anno by her Letters Patents granted to Thomas Markham Eſq; the Office of Keeper of her Park called Clipſon Park, (without ſaying prædict.) And the ſaid Thomas Markham aforeſaid, of her Park called Clipſon Park, fecit, ordinavit, & conſtituit per eaſdem Literas Patentes, To have and to hold to him for terme of his life, with all Fees due and accuſtomed: And further granted by the ſaid Letters Patents to the ſaid Thomas Markham, Pannagium & Herbagium prædict' Parci ſui de Clipſon, To have and to hold the ſaid Pannage and Herbage to the ſaid Thomas Markham for terme of his life. And afterwards the Queen ſo ſeiſed of the ſaid Park as is aforeſaid, died thereof ſeiſed. After whoſe death the ſaid Park deſcended to the King that now is: and the ſaid Thomas Markham of the ſaid Office, and Pannage and Herbage aforeſaid, in forme aforeſaid being ſeiſed, the ſaid King, 9 Junii, Anno Regni ſui primo, by his Letters Patents, &c. reciting the ſaid Eſtate of the ſaid Tho. Markham of and in the aforeſaid Premiſes, ſo as beforſaid granted unto him, granted to the ſaid Earl of Rutland the aforeſaid Office of Keeper of the aforeſaid Park, called Clipſon Park, To have and to hold to him for his Life, ſo ſoon as the ſaid Office, by Death, Surrender, Forfeiture, or any other ways whatſoever, ſhould become void, with all Fees, &c. And further granted by the ſame Latters Patents the ſaid Herbage and Pannage to the ſaid Earl of Rutland for terme of his Life (without ſhewing when [b] the Eſtate of the Herbage and Pannage ſhould begin) adeo plenè & integrè prout præd' Tho. Markham, &c. habuit, tenuit, ſeu gaviſus fuit, &c. And afterwards the ſaid Thomas Markham, 9 Martii, Anno quarto Regis nunc died, after whoſe death the Plaintiff was ſeiſed of the ſaid Office, and of the Herbage and Pannage, till diſſeiſed by the Defendants. To which the Defendants pleaded the general Iſſue, Nul tort, nul diſſeiſin; and as to the Office, the Recognitors of the Aſſiſe found for the Plaintiff, Plaintiff; and as to the Herbage and Pannage they found the Letters Patents at large as above; and if the Herbage and Pannage pass by the said Letters Patents they found for the Plaintiff. And the matter in Law was such, The King grants the Herbage and Pannage of the Park of C. to Tho. Markham for life, and afterwards the King reciting the Grant to Markham, and that he is living, grants the Herbage and Pannage of the said Park to Roger Earl of Rutland for his life, without shewing when it shall begin. And if the said Grant to Roger Earl of Rutland, of the said Herbage, &c. were good or not, was the Question. And it was objected, that the said Grant to Roger Earl of Rutland was void for the incertainty of the beginning thereof, for it cannot begin presently, because that then Markham had it for life, and it doth not appear, that it should begin after the death of Markham, or Forfeiture, or Surrender, or when it should begin, and for such incertainty the Grant in the King's Case shall be void. And the Cases in 3 H. 7. ult. 6 H. 7. 14. and 8 H. 7. 12. were cited, that the King cannot grant the Reversion of an Office which one hath for life; but may recite how that such a one habeat & teneat such an Office for terme of his life, and grant Offic' præd' post mortem, &c. but if the King granteth the Office to another (without such special recital) for life, the second Grant is void. Vide 11 E. 4. 1. b. 32 E. 3. Avowrie, 112. But it was resolved by Coke Chief Justice, Walmsley, Warburton, Daniel, and Foster, Justices, that the said Grant of the Herbage and Pannage was good; and in this Case divers Points were resolved.

1. That the King hath divers manners of Inheritances. 1. Some to give only in Possession, and not in Reversion, as a Corody in a house of Religion, or to present to a Church of his Patronage, as it is agreed in 39 H. 6. 48. for in these Case, and other like, the King hath but a Presentation or Commendation when the Corodie or Church is void, and not before, and cannot give the Corodie or present to the Church in Reversion. 2. The King hath some Inheritances which the King may grant as well in Reversion, as in Possession, but he cannot use or exercise them himself, as Offices, as 1 H. 7. 29. b. a man granteth an Office of Service, as Foresterships, &c. cum omnibus terris eidem Officio pertinentibus, the Remainder to the King in Fee; in this Case, although that the King cannot be Officer to any one, yet the King is capable thereof, to grant the Office to another, which he himself cannot use or exercise; also such Office may be forfeited to the King, and the King may have an Inheritance in it to give, &c. Vide 3, 6, and 8 H. 7. before. 3. Other Inheritances the [56] King hath, as well to use and enjoy himself, as to grant to another, scil. in Possession, Remainder, or Reversion; as Houses, Lands, Tenements, Commons, Herbage, and Pannage, and the like, which are Parcels of his Inheritance.

2. It was resolved, That the King was not deceived in his Grant, for he hath recited the Estate of Markham which he hath in the Herbage and Pannage for terme of his life, and that Markham was then living, so that the King well knew that he could not grant that in Possession, which another then held for terme of his life, but it ought to take effect as it might by Law. And the Case of the Lord Chandos, in the Sixth Part of my Reports, was resolved to be a stronger Case, for there the King mistook the Law, thinking that by the surrender of the Letters Patents the Estate tail was extinct, and that he thereupon was seised in Fee, and therefore he granted the Mannor in Possession, and yet the Reversion did pass without any word of Reversion, for the Grant ought to take effect, as by Law it may; which Case of the Lord Chandos was affirmed for good Law by the whole Court: But in the Case at Barr the King mistook nothing, nor took upon him to grant that which he could not grant, nor was deceived in any part of his Grant; And when the King's Charter may be taken to two intents, in many Cases it shall be taken to such intent as is most beneficial for the King; but if it may be taken to one intent good, and to another intent void, then for the King's honor, and for the benefit of the Subject, it shall be taken to such intent as the King's Grant may take effect, for it was not the King's intent to make a void Grant. And therewith agreeth the Reason and Rules of the Book of 21 E. 4. 44. where King Richard the Second granted to the Abbot of Waltham, that he and his successors should not be Collectores Decimarum, &c. Concess. Regi per Clerum Angliæ, nec alicujus inde parcell. in that case if the Grant be taken litterally per Clerum Angliæ, that is, per totum Clerum Angliæ, the Grant is void; for all the Clergy of England never meet at one Convocation, but every Province hath a several Convocation, and therefore the King's Grant shall not be taken in such sense, for then the Grant shall be void; but it shall be taken in such sense as it may stand with Law, and that is by the Clergy, as the Clergy can grant Tenths, and that is in their several Provinces: and the same is also a stronger Case than the Case at Barr, for here the words of the Grant may well stand with the King's meaning, scil. to grant the Herbage and Pannage in Reversion, for in Possession he cannot grant it; but in the Case of 21 E. 4. the words of the Grant, and the King's intent varying, the Letter giveth place to the King's intention. And the Case of Sir John Molyns, in the Sixth Part of my Reports, was cited, in which Case also the words were against the King's intent, for at that time of the Grant there was not any [b] Chief Lord, for then all Segnories were extinguished; but yet for the King's honor, and to make his Grant to take effect, it was adjuged, that the Tenure was revived.

3. It was resolved, That there was not any Incertainty in the said Grant of the Herbage and Pannage to the Plaintiff when the same should take effect in Possession; for the same shall begin when the first Grant shall be ended and determined, and although it may determine by three ways, scil. Death, Surrender, or Forfeiture, yet it cannot determine but once, and which of them first happeneth, then the Grant to the Plaintiff shall begin: so that there is not any Incertainty in this Grant, for it is implied in Law, that the second Grant shall begin after the determination of the first Grant, & expressio eorum quæ tacitè insunt nihil operatur. And therefore, if the King reciting that such a one holdeth the Mannor of D. for his life, granteth the Manor to B. for his life; in this Case the Law implieth, that the second Grant shall take effect after the determination of the first Grant; the same

Law of a gift in Tail, or of a grant in Fee. And it was ſaid by Coke Chief Juſtice, and affirmed by other Juſtices, That of late times ſuch nice and ſtrict conſtruction hath been ſtreined by ſome of Letters Patents to ſubvert the force and effect of them, that many Letters Patents are drawn into Queſtion, which is to the King's diſhonour, the diſenheriſin of the Subject, and againſt the reaſon and ancient rule of the Law, as it appeareth in all our Books, & talis certitudo certitudinem confundit, ſuch nice and captious pretence of certainty doth confound true and legal certainty, & maledicta Expoſitio eſt quæ corrumpit & confundit Textum. And it was ſaid, That it was reſolved in Auditor King's Caſe, That where the Queen granted a Mannor to B. and his heirs, (in the Premiſes of the Letters Patents,) To have and to hold the ſaid Mannor to B. and his Aſſigns (leaving out Heirs in the Habendum) that the Fee of the Mannor did paſs by the Premiſes of the Letters Patents, and the Habendum was void; for the Premiſes were certain enough to paſs the Fee-ſimple, and the omiſſion of Heirs in the Habendum ſhould not overthrow that which was certain in the Premiſes. Which Caſe was affirmed for good Law by the whole Court, for the Queen's intent doth appear to paſs a Fee-ſimple by the Premiſes, and her Grant ought to be conſtrued ſecundum intentionem Regis, & non in deceptionem Regis: and when a literal and ſtrict conſtruction is made to make his Grant void, contra intentionem Regis, it ſoundeth of deceipt, and it is a great indignity to him; propter apices juris to make his Charter under the Great Seal of things which he may lawfully grant, void and of none effect, quia apices juris non ſunt jura. And as to the Caſe of Office, it was ſaid, That the ſaid Books which were cited, prove that the King may not grant reverſionem Officii, [57] for he hath no Reverſion, but an Inheritance grantable in Reverſion. Alſo when one is Officer for life, if the King, without reciting the ſame, granteth the Office to another for life, the ſecond Grant is void for want of a recital: But no Book ſaith, That if the King reciteth the firſt Grant of the Office, &c. and that the Officer is living, and granteth the Office to another for life, that this laſt Grant ſhall be void, for want of certainty of the beginning; for the Law, upon the matter which appeareth, ſhall limit the beginning, to the end the King's Grant ſhall not be void. And Exception was taken to the Plaint, foraſmuch as in alleging the Grant to the ſaid Tho. Markham, the Plaint is, That Queen Elizabeth did grant the Office Parci ſui vocat. Clipſon Park (without ſaying prædict') and therefore it was objected, It ſhall be intended another Park. But it was reſolved, That upon Conſideration had of all the parts of the Plaint, it appeareth, that it was the ſame Park: For the Plaintiff doth begin his Plaint, Pro titulo liberi tenementi de Officio prædicto. Alſo he ſheweth, that the Queen was ſeiſed, &c. de Parco prædicto, and ſo ſeiſed, granted Officium Parci ſui de Clipſon, which ought to be intended the ſame Park whereof the ſeiſin was alleged at the time of the Grant, and the rather in reſpect of this Pronoun poſſeſſorie (ſui) and in all other parts of the Plaint (prædict') is added. So that it is well ſaid in Long's Caſe in the Fifth Part of my Reports, that there are three manners of Certainties; 1. Certain in a common intent, and that ſufficeth in Barrs for thoſe who defend themſelves: 2. To a certain intent in general, and that is ſufficient in Indictments, Plaints, Counts, and Replications, &c. 3. To a certain intent to every particular intent, and that is rejected in Law, for there it is ſaid, Quod talis certitudo certitudinem confundit: and ſo was it adjudged in the Point in Aſſiſe brought by the Lady Ruſſel againſt the Lord Admiral: and this Aſſiſe being (after a general Verdict for the Plaintiff for part, and a ſpecial Verdict for the reſidue) adjorned into the Common Pleas, Judgement was there given; But the Aſſiſe ought to be brought in proprio Comitatu, by the Statute of Magna Charta, cap. 12.

And after this Judgement a Writ of Error was brought, and all that which was reſolved by the Court of Common Pleas was affirmed for good Law, by Fleming Chief Juſtice; Fenner, Yelverton, Williams, and Crooke, Juſtices of the King's Bench. But for other Errors not aſſigned nor moved in the Common Pleas, in which the Juſtices of the King's Bench were not all agreed, the Judgement was reverſed. And ſo this Caſe, as to the Points reported by me, was reſolved by both [b] Courts: And afterwards, upon a new Aſſiſe brought before Warburton and Foſter, Juſtices of Aſſiſe in the County of Derby, at the next Aſſiſes, the Plaintiff had a general Verdict, according to the opinion of all the Juſtices, and Judgement alſo at the ſame Aſſiſes, and Execution awarded, &c. Et ſic finita eſt iſta Quæſtio.

Mich. 6 Jacobi.

Beecher's Caſe.

[58] BEE cher brought Debt upon two Obligations, one of 3000 li. the other of 2000 li. by Quo minus in the Exchequer againſt Sir Thomas Shirley, Knight, who Trin. 41 Eliz. pleaded in barr payment according to the Conditions of the Obligations, &c. and the Parties were at iſſue, and tried for the Plaintiff: but for default of a good Viſne Judgement was arreſted, and afterwards, ſcil. Hill. 44 Eliz. the Plaintiff per Johannem Osbourne, his Attorney, venit hic in Curia, & fatetur ſe in Curia hic ulterius nolle proſequi: upon which Judgement was given that the Defendant eat ſine die, and no Amercement upon the Plaintiff. Upon which Judgement the Plaintiff brought a Writ of Error in the Exchequer Chamber: and upon ſundry Arguments by the Plaintiffs and Defendants Counſel Counsel at several days, It was resolved by the Court, and the two Chief Justices, that the Judgement was erroneous for divers Causes.

1. It was resolved, That a Rextraxit cannot be, if not that the Plaintif or Defendant be in Court in proper person, for the Entry is in divers manners, (as it appeareth after) as, Quod Querens in propria persona sua venit & dicit, quod ipse placitum suum prædict' ulterius prosequi non vult, sed abinde omnino se retraxit, &c. or being present in Court and demanded, where the Entry is, à secta sua prædicta in contemptum Curiæ se retraxit, or, fatetur se ulterius nolle prosequi, &c. and therewith agreeth 3 H. 6. 14. 21 E. 4. 43. & 4 E. 3. 23. where the Case was, That three Coparceners were Plaintiffs in a Writ of Deceit, and two of them did appear in person, and the third by Attorney; and said, that they would not forward sue, and could not, because that one was by Attorney; for which cause they were Non-sute. Vide Lib. d'Entries, 92. title Attaint, Br. 5. title Appeale, 56. title Tresp. 589. a. 13, 14, 15, 16. title Conspiracy, 125. b. 6 Edw. 3. 30, and 31. John Fremd's Case, in a Formedon, the Attorney of the Tenant cannot depart in despight of the Court, but a Grand cape shall be awarded. And it is to know, that at the Common Law, when any one was by the King's Writ commanded to appear, it was alwaies taken that he should appear in person, and could not appear by Attorney; but after that he had appeared, the Courts of Chancery, King's Bench, and Common Pleas, and all other Judges who held Plea by Writ, might, after appearance, have admitted him by Attorney: otherwise when Plea was holden without Writ, if the King granted not a Writ De Attornato faciendo, and that appeareth by Britton, cap. 126. fol. 287. But see the Statute of Westm. 2. cap. 11. and other Statutes, which gave remedy in many cases, but the Case at Barr is not remedied by any Statute. But it was objected, That it is true, in rigor of Law, the Plaintiff in the Case at Barr ought to have appeared in proper person, but yet it is not Error; for if the Court admit the Plaintiff or Defendant by Attorney where he ought for to appear in person, it is not Error; as in 37 H. 6. 27. If the Court admit one upon a Capias or Exigent by Attorney, where by rigor of Law he ought to appear in person, it is not Error. F. N. B. 25. acc. To that, it was answered and resolved, That there is a difference between Cases where the Defendant or Tenant cannot by the Law appear by Attorney, and in Cases where the Defendant or Tenant may appear by Attorney, but upon some Process by reason of some Default or Contempt; he ought to appear in person. In the first Case, If the Court admit the Defendant or Tenant by Attorney, the same is Error; but in the other not: come si inf. soit admit de appearer per Attorn. ceo est Error, &c. mes quant le Defendant poit fair Attorney, and the cause that enforceth him to appear in person, is the Contempt to the Court, and the Court may dispense with the Contempt in their discretion, and admit him by Attorney, and that is no prejudice to the Plaintiff; But in the Case at Barr, the Law requireth that he appeare in proper person to make the Retraxit, because it shall be a perpetual Barr, and in a manner a Release, and the admittance of the Court cannot prejudice the Plaintiff in so high a degree. But in all dilatory matters the admission of the Court may turn the Plaintiff or Demandant to delay, but shall never barr the Plaintiff or Demandant; As if the Court granteth Process against the Testimonies, or grant View, or Aid, where it is not grantable, it is no Error, as it is holden in 5 H. 7. 8. and 8 H. 7. 9. b. and the reason is given there, because the Demandant is not prejudiced in his Right, but only detained; But if the Court admit a Voucher where it ought not to be, the same is Error, as it is holden 8 H. 7. 11. a. The same Law if an Essoign be cast and allowed where it is not allowable, it is not Error; but to deny any of these dilatories, where of right the Court ought to grant them, is Error, as appeareth in the said Books, and 21 E. 4. 65. 22 E. 4. 15, &c. And a Retraxit is alwaies on the Plaintiff or Demandant's part, and a Departure in despight of Court is alwaies on the Defendant's or Tenant's part, and the Entry there is, Quod Tenens recessit in contemptum Curiæ, and in one Case the Plaintiff or Demandant is barred, and in the other Case the Plaintiff or Demandant shall have Judgement presently, Qui semel Actionem renunciavit amplius repetere non potest. See for these matters, 20 E. 2. Excommengement 28. 4 E. 3. 23. in Formedon. 6 E. 3. 31, 32, 34. in Quare impedit. 8 E. 3. 3. b. & 68. 38 E. 3. 13. 16 Rich. 2. Cause de remover Plea, 12. 3 H. 4. 2. 11 H. 4. 94. 3 H. 6. 13. 9 H. 6. 38. 39 H. 6. 16. 33. Prisoit. 7 H. 7. 39. *Vide tit. [57]

2. It was resolved, That the Plaintiff in this case ought to be amerced, for it is a stronger case than the case of a Non-sute, which is but a Default, or Not-appearance; but a Retraxit is a voluntary acknowledgement that he hath no cause of Action, and therefore he will no farther proceed; and for this cause it is a Barr for ever. And it was objected, That the Plaintiff should not assign that for Error, because it was for his advantage that he was not amerced, and a man shall never assign that for Error which is for his advantage, 7 E. 3. 25. by Herle, 8 H. 5. 2. 11 H. 4. 8. F. N. B. 21. as to say, that he was essoigned, where he ought not to be essoigned, or that he had a longer day then the common day, or that Aid was granted to him where it was not grantable. To which it was answered and resolved, That it is true, that in Proceeding or Delay, which is advantageous for the Party, he shall not assign it for Error; but in the Case at Barr the Judgement is not perfect, for the Amercement ought to be parcel of the Judgement, and it is also for the King's advantage, and therefore divers Judgements have been reversed in the King's Bench, because that the Judgement was, Ideo in misericordia, where it should be, Capiatur; and yet it was for the Partie's advantage; but because the Judgement was erronious, and the Error of the Court in giving it; for this cause it hath been often adjudged, that it is not amendable, but the whole Judgement shall be reversed. Vide 29 Ass. pl. 26. 7 E. 6. Dyer 89. 14 Eliz. Dyer 315. See now the Doubts well explained. And because it is material in all Judgements to know when the Plaintiff or Demandant, Tenant or Defendant shall be amerced or fined, in as much as the mistaking thereof doth make the Judgement erronious, it is very necessary to understand the true sense of Law in these Cases.

[b]

And this word (finis) hath divers ſignifications in Law, quia aliquando ſignificat Pretium, aliquando Pœnam, & aliquando Pacem. For, 1. The Price or Sum which is the cauſe of obtaining of a Benefit is called a Fine, as Fine in the Hamper for the King's Writs, Fine for Alienation, Fine for Admiſſion of a Copyholder, Fine for obtaining Leaſes, and other like. 2. That which the Offendor giveth in ſatisfaction of his Offence, is called a Fine, and in that ſence, it is Pœna. And, 3. The Aſſurance which men have of enjoying their Lands and Inheritances in peace, is called a Fine, quia finem litibus imponit. And all theſe are called Fines, becauſe they are Ends, or Cauſes of Ends, of all the ſaid Buſineſſes.

Amercement is in Latin called Miſericordia, and the Cauſe thereof is, becauſe by the Common Law (which is a Law of mercy) no man ought to be amerced ſo much as he deſerved, but leſs. Vide F. N. B. 76.

1. In all Actions Quare vi & armis, as Reſcous, Treſp. vi & armis, &c. if Judgement be given againſt the Defendant, he ſhall be fined and impriſoned, for to every Fine, Impriſonment is incident; and alwaies when the Judgement is, quod Defendens capiatur, it is as much as to ſay, Capiatur uſque finem fecit. Vide 19 H. 6. 8. 34 H. 6. 24. 11 H. 4. 25. 30 Aſſ. pl. 28. And if there be divers Defendants, they ſhall be ſeverally fined. So in an Aſſiſe, if the Diſſeiſin be found with force, the Defendant ſhall be fined and impriſoned; otherwiſe if the Diſſeiſin be found without force; for the Writ of Aſſiſe doth not mention vi & armis, but, injuſtè & ſine judicio diſſeiſivit, 33 H. 6. 21.

2. In a Writ of Deceit upon a real Action upon a Recovery by default, if it be found that the Tenant was not lawfully ſummoned, the Judgement ſhall be, Et prædict' Defend' pro falſitate & deceptione prædict' capiatur: and the writ of Deceit is, Oſtenſum eſt nobis ex parte A. quod B. in Curia noſtra falſo & in deceptione Curiæ recuperavit ſeiſinam, &c. and that is the cauſe, ſcil. the deceit to the Court in obtaining the Judgement, that he ſhall be fined and impriſoned; but in an Action perſonal, the deceit between party and party, is in the nature of an Action upon the Caſe, there the Defendant ſhall not be fined and impriſoned, but only amerced, for there is no deceit done to the Court, but to the party.

[60] 3. If the Defendant plead a falſe Deed to him, or deny his own Deed, and the ſame be found againſt him, or if he, relicta verificatione, doth confeſs the Action, he ſhall be fined for his Falſitie, quia certi debemus de proprio facto; but if he denieth his Anceſtors Deed, or pleadeth the Deed of his Anceſtor, and ſame be found againſt him, yet he ſhall not be fined, but amerced only, quia de alieno facto. So you will better underſtand your Books in 3 E. 6. Dyer 67. 26 Aſſ. p. 5. 33 H. 6. 54. 34 H. 6. 20. But if he denieth a Recovery, or other Record to which he is party, he ſhall not be fined, 10 Aſſ. p. 10. 16 Aſſ. p. 19. for it is not his act, but the act of the Court, and he doth not deny the Record abſolutely, but, non habetur tale recordum.

4. If the Defendant in a Replevin claimeth Property falſely, and it is ſo found in proprietate probanda, he ſhall be fined and impriſoned, 11 H. 4. 4.

5. In Appeal of Death, Robbery, or other Appeal of Felony or Mayhem, if the Plaintiff be barred, or if he be non-ſute, or if the Writ abate by his own default he ſhall be fined and impriſoned, 8 H. 4. 17. 20. for the Malice is the higher which concerneth life or member.

6. So in Attaint 32 Aſſ. p. 9. 42 E. 3. 26. if the Plaintiff be nonſute or barred, he ſhall be fined and impriſoned. So if the Attaint paſs againſt the Defendant, if he were not party to the firſt Record, he ſhall be fined and impriſoned, but if he were not party to the firſt Record, as Tenant by Receit, or other Terr-tenant, he ſhall not be fined, 14 Aſſ. p. 2. 42 E. 3. 26. 9 E. 4. 33.

7. If any uſeth the Countenance of the Court (which was conſtituted to make an end of Controverſies and Sutes) for double Vexation, he ſhall be fined: As if a man ſueth in the Common Pleas, and afterwards for the ſame cauſe ſueth in London, or any ſuch Court, the Plaintiff ſhall be fined for his unjuſt Vexation, 9 H. 6. 55. 14 H. 7. 7. and in a Recaption the Plaintiff ſhall recover damages, and the Defendant ſhall be fined and impriſoned for his double Vexation.

8. For Contempts done to any Court of Record againſt the King's Command by his Writ under the Great Seal, the Defendant ſhall be fined and impriſoned, as in Quare non dimiſit, Quare incumbravit, Attachment upon Prohibition, &c. Vide 19 E. 3. Quare non dimiſit, 7. 23 E. 3. 22. 26 E. 3. 75. 20 E. 2. Coron. 233. Stamf. 132. The Statute of 25 E. 3. cap. 6. &c. but when the Demandant or Plaintiff, or the Tenant or Defendant, ſe retraxit, or receſſit, in contemptum Curiæ, yet there is no Contempt againſt the King's Command by his Writ. And by theſe differences you will better un[b] derſtand your Books in caſes of Fines and Impriſonment, and learn the true reaſon and ſenſe of the Law.

9. In all Caſes, where a thing is forbidden by any Statute, the Offender ſhall be fined and impriſoned, 35 H. 6. b. 19 H. 6. 4. in Maintenance. Vide 9 E. 4. 28. And that is the reaſon, That where the Statute of Marlebridge forbiddeth, Quod nullus de cætero liceat ex quacunque cauſa diſtrictiones facere extra feodum ſuum, nec in Regia via, vel communi Strata; that the party who is diſtreined in the High-way cannot plead the ſame in barr of Avowrie, for then the King ſhould loſe his Fine; but ſhall be driven to an Action upon the Statute, in which the King ſhall have his Fine, and therewith agreeth 11 R. 2. Avowrie, 87. Vide 19 E. 2. bre. 8. 41. 21 E. 3. 11. 39 E. 3. 20. 43 E. 3. 30. F. N. B. 90. & 173. Regiſter 97.

10. In ſome Action the Defendant ſhall be fined in one Court, and but amerced in another Court, and yet the Offence ſhall be all one; as in a Writ of Recaption, if it be brought in the Common Pleas, and Judgement be there given, the Defendant ſhall be fined and impriſoned as hath been ſaid, but if the Writ be brought in the County Court, and the Defendant be convict before the Sheriff in the County, the Judgement ſhall not be, Quod capiatur, quia nulla Curia, quæ recordum non habet, habet, poteſt imponere finem, neque aliquem mandare Carceri, quia iſta ſpectant tantummodo ad Curias de Recordo, and therefore in ſuch Caſes he ſhall be only amerced. And although that the Writ, ſcil. the Reception is of Record, yet foraſmuch as the Judges in the Court, ſcil. the Suters are not Judges of Record, nor the Court is of Record, they cannot impoſe a Fine, or commit to Priſon. And ſo in the like Caſes. Vide F. N. B. 73. d. 8 E. 4. 5. 34 H. 6. 24.

Now is to ſee concerning Amercement.

1. In all Writs of Præcipe quod reddat, as Writ of Right, Formedon, Writ of Aiel, &c. Writs of Entrie, &c. Præcipe de quod permittat, as to have Eſtovers, Common, &c. Or, Præcipe quod faciat, as Writ of Cuſtoms and Services, &c. If the Demandant be barred, or if he be Nonſute, or if his Writ abate for matter or form, the Demandant ſhall be amerced. But if there be two Demandants, and the Writ abate for the death of one of them, the other ſhall not be amerced, 28 E. 3. 23. 46 E. 3. in tit. Accompt 40. 5 E. 3. 3. 22 H. 6. 7. 38 E. 3. 31. 7 H. 6. 36. 41 Aſſ. 14. So in all the ſaid Writs of Præcipe, if Judgement be given againſt the Defendant or Tenant he ſhall be amerced.

2. In all Perſonal Actions, as Det, Detinue, and the like Actions without force or deceit to the Court, and alſo in Actions which comprehend force or deceit to a Court of Record; if the Plaintiff be barred, nonſute, or the Writ abate becauſe vicious in matter, or form, he ſhall be amerced only, and not fined; but if the Writ abate by the death of one Plaintiff, or if one Plaintiff appeareth, and the other be nonſute, (which in Law in a Perſonal Action is a Nonſute of both) he who ſurviveth, or appeareth, ſhall not be amerced; for no default is in him, but he onely who appeareth not. 47 E. 3. 6. & 43 Aſſ. pl. 3. 7 H. 6. 36. 38 E. 3. 31. 41 Aſſ. 14 And in the ſame Actions which are without force or fraud to the Court, the Defendant ſhall be amerced. [61]

3. If one Demandant in a real Action, or one Plaintiff in a perſonal Action where Summons and Severance lieth, as in Debt by Executors, if one Demandant or Plaintiff be nonſute, and the other ſueth forward, he who is nonſute ſhall not be amerced, 28 H. 6. 1. 21 E. 4. 77.

4. In all judicial Proceſs if the Plaintiff be barred, nonſute, or if the Writ abate, the Plaintiff ſhall not be amerced, becauſe that the Proceſs is founded upon a Judgement and Record, 11 H. 4. 55. in Quid Juris clamat, Scire facias, &c. 21 E. 3. 23. 9 E. 3. 32. in Per quæ ſervicia, 18 Hen. 6. tit. Pledges 1. And in theſe Actions the Plaintiff ſhall not find Sureties, becauſe that he ſhall not be amerced.

5. In all Actions real and perſonal, if part be found for the Demandant or Plaintiff, and part againſt him, or all or part againſt one Tenant or Defendant, and nothing, or but part, againſt the other, the Demandant or Plaintiff ſhall be amerced; if not that no default be in the Demandant or Plaintiff. And therefore in Treſpaſs of Batterie againſt Husband and Wife, ſuppoſing the Batterie to be done by them both, and the Wife is only found guilty, &c. and the Husband acquitted, yet the Plaintiff ſhall not be amerced, for the Plaintiff cannot have another Writ in ſuch caſe, and no default in him. Vide 22 Aſſ. 8. 7 Aſſ. pl. 14. 31 Aſſ. pl. 31. Br. Amerc. 42. 40 E. 3. 40. 21 H. 6. 41.

6. In all Actions real or perſonal, where there is but one Tenant or Defendant, he ſhall not be twice amerced, but there where there is but one Demandant or Plaintiff, the Plaintiff may be divers times amerced, 9 E. 3. 6. 31 Aſſ. pl. 31. 21 H. 6. 41. 40 E. 3. 40.

7. Upon Diſcontinuance in a real or perſonal Action the Demandant or Plaintiff ſhall not be amerced, for the ſame is the Act of the Court, 38 E. 3. 31. The ſame Law, and for the ſame cauſe, when the Court is ouſted of the Jurisdiction. [b]

8. In all Actions real or perſonal (in which there is not contained any force or deceit to the Court) if the Tenant or Defendant appeareth the firſt day, and rendreth the thing demanded to the Demandant or Plaintiff, he ſhall not be amerced; for he doth what the King commandeth by his Writ; for where the Writ is, Præcipe quid reddat, &c. the ſame in Judgement of Law is, that he render the ſame at the return of the Writ in Court, and not in the Country, as it is reſolved in Vaughan's Caſe, in the Fifth Part of my Reports, fol. 49. And there the cauſe of the Amercement of the Defendant or Tenant is well explained. But in Actions in which the Offence is ſuppoſed with force, or in deceit of the Court, if the Defendant at the firſt day confeſſeth the Action, yet he ſhall be fined and impriſoned, for his Appearance and Confeſſion is a manifeſtation, and no ſatisfaction for the Offence.

9. In all Actions, when a real and perſonal Writ doth abate for want of form or matter, or the Demandant or Plaintiff be barred, the Judgement is, Quod Petens, ſive Querens nihil cap. per breve ſuum, ſed ſit in miſericord' pro falſo clamore ſuo inde, & præd' Tenens ſeu Defendens eat inde ſine die. And in all ſuch Caſes the Eſtreat out of the Common Pleas into the Exchequer, which the Clerk of the Warrants maketh in ſuch Caſes is, De A. pro falſo clamore ſuo verſus S. in placito, &c. Vide Fitz. Nat. Brev. 76. But if the Demandant or Plaintiff be nonſute in any Action (certain ſpecial Caſes excepted) the Judgement is, Ideo conſideratum eſt quod prædict' Querens & Plegii ſui de proſequendo ſint inde in miſericordia, &c. & præd' Def. eat inde ſine die; and there the Eſtreat is, De Johanne N. pro ſe & pleg. ſuis, quia non eſt proſecutus breve ſuum verſus B. in placito, &c. Vide Fitz. Nat. Brev. 76. But in Caſe of Retraxit the Judgement is, Quod nihil capiat per breve ſuum præd', ſed ſit in miſericordia pro falſo clamore, &c.

10. That there are ſome perſons who ſhall not be amerced, and therefore they ſhall not find Sureties; ſome for the dignity of their perſons, as the King, and ſo the Queen, for as to that ſhe partaketh of the King's Prerogative. Vide Fitz. Nat. Brev. 31. fol. 47. C. 101. A. 18 Edw. 3. 2. Br. tit. Amerecement 53. Some for imbecillity of age, as Infants, and therefore they ſhall not find Sureties; but the Entrie is, Ideo in miſericordia, ſed perdonatur, quia Infans. Vide 43 Aſſ. 45. 44 E. 3.

Amerce-

Amercement 10. 3 Edw. 3. Infant 14. 14 Aſſ. pl. 41. 17 Edw. 3. 75. Bract. fol. 254. Fitzh. Nat. Brev. 195. h.

[62] Thirdly: True it is, if the Tenant do diſclaim, he ſhall not have a Writ of Error, becauſe that by his diſclaimer he hath barred himſelf of the Right of the Land, for the words of Diſclaimer of the Tenant are, Nihil habet, nec habere clamat, in terra illa, nec die impetrationis originalis brev. prædict', &c. habuit, ſive clamavit, ſed aliquid in terra illa habere de advocat. & diſclamat. And againſt the ſame he cannot have a Writ of Error to have reſtitution of the Land againſt this diſclaimer. Vide 6 Edw. 3. 7. and Fitz. Nat. Brev. 22. C. And if the Retraxit in the Caſe at Barr had been duly made, it was objected, That againſt the ſame no Writ of Error lay; but here the Retraxit it ſelf was erroneous; becauſe the Atturney did it where it ought to be done in proper perſon. Alſo the Plea was diſcontinued, as appeareth by the Record. And foraſmuch as the Tenant or Defendant after the departure in deſpight of the Court might have a Writ of Error, or if he hath an Eſtate for life or in tail, Quod ei deforceat, Fitz. Nat. Brev. 155. l. And the Defendant or Tenant againſt his own confeſſion may have a Writ of Error; It was reſolved, That although the Plaintiff in proper perſon had made a Retraxit, yet he may have a Writ of Error, either in the Judgement or in the Proceeding; for no imperfection is ſaved in ſuch Caſe by any Statute when Judgement is given upon Retraxit, and it is no more than a Confeſſion of the Party of the Defendant; for the effect of the Entrie of a Retraxit is, Quod idem Querens fatetur (ſeu cognovit) ſe ulterius nolle proſequi verſus Def. de placito præd', which Confeſſion is a Barr in all Actions, although that the words are de placito ſuo prædicto, and therefore it is not like a Diſclaimer, by which the Tenant diſclaimeth, and barrs himſelf abſolutely of all his Right in the Land.

Fourthly: It was reſolved; That the Entrie of the ſaid Retraxit was inſufficient; for it appeareth by the Precedents that there are ſundry manners of Entries of a Retraxit. 1. After both Parties have appeared in Court, the Entrie is, Et poſtea eodem die revenit hic ad barram præd' Tenens per Attorn. ſuum præd. & præd' Petens tunc ſolemniter exactus non venit, ſed à ſecta ſua præd' in contempt' Cur' ſe retraxit. Ideo conſideratum eſt quod Petens nihil capiat per brev. ſuum præd. ſed ſit in miſericordia pro falſo ſuo clamore inde, & quod prædictus Tenens eat ſine die. And that appeareth, Trint. 5 Hen. 6. Rott. 320. in the Common Pleas. Another form of a Retraxit is, Et ſuper hoc idem Querens dicit, quod ipſe non vult ulterius placitum ſuum præd. proſequi, ſed abinde omnino ſe retraxit, &c. Ideo, &c. Another form is, Quod idem Querens fatetur ſe (ſeu cognovit ſe) ulterius nolle proſequi verſus præd' Defendent. &c. de placito præd. And the Entrie of departure in deſpight of [b] Court on the part of the Tenant is, Et prædict' A. licet ſolemniter exactus non revenit, ſed in contemptum Curiæ receſſit & defaltam fecit. And the ſame is when in Judgement of Law he is preſent in Court, and being demanded departeth in deſpight of the Court, the ſame amounteth to a Bar in reſpect of the deſpight and contempt of the Court; and yet the Judgement is there given upon his default, as appearth before. Otherwiſe where he imparleth to a certain day, for there he is not in Judgement of Law preſent in Court; and ſo the difference. Vide anno 20 Edwardi 3. Excom. 22. and all the Books aforeſaid. And if the Writ do abate for falſe Latin, or other matter or form upon Plea to the Writ, the Judgement is, Quod præd. Tenens, or Defendens, eat inde ſine die. And alſo if the Demandant or Plaintiff be upon a Barr pleaded, &c. by Judgement of Law to be barred, the words of the Judgement are all one, ſcil. quod præd' Tenens, or Defendens, eat inde ſine die; and alwaies the Judgement ſhall have relation to the Plea, ſcil. if upon a Plea in Barr, then the Judgement ſhall be applied to it: If to the Writ, then the Judgement ſhall be applied to the Writ only; and therewith agree the Books in 3 H. 4. 1. & 3 H. 4. 11. Vide upon Plea of Excom. which doth not abate the Writ, 11 Rich. 2. Excom. 25. the Entry is, Remaneat loquela ſine die quouſque, &c.

Mich. 6 Jacobi. In the Common Pleas.

Swayn's Caſe.

[63] Richard Swayne, Eſquire, brought an Action of Treſpaſs againſt Walter Becket, for breaking of his Cloſe at Hannington in the County of Wilts, and lopping of 10 Oaks and 15 Aſhes, &c. And upon Not-guilty, the Caſe as it was ſpecially found, was ſuch; Queen Elizabeth was ſeiſed of the Mannor of Hannington in the County of Wilts in Fee in the Right of her Dutchy of Lancaſter, and that the ſaid Oakes and Aſhes ſo lopped, were growing upon a yard and a half of Land parcel of the ſame Mannor and Copyhold Land, &c. and demiſable for 1, 2, or 3 Lives; And afterwards the Queen by Indenture under the Seal of the Dutchy of Lancaſter, Anno 29. of her reign did demiſe the ſame Mannor to John Wolly, Eſquire, exceptis omnibus boſcis, ſubboſcis, arboribus, & marem. &c. To have and to hold to him (except before excepted) for 21 years, who, 35 Eliz. aſſigned all his Intereſt to John Plummer, and others, and afterwards the Queen died, and then the King that now is, by his Letters Patents under the Dutchy Seal, granted to Alexander, Lord Fitz, Richard Swayne, and Peter Whetcombe, reverſionem prædict' ac præmiſſa ſic ut præfertur, except. And at a Court holden by the Leſſee 17 Octobr. 3 Jac. Regis, their Steward granted by Copy of Court Roll, to the ſaid Walter Becket now Defendant, &c. a Houſe, and the ſaid yard and a half of Land upon which the ſaid Oaks and Aſhes were growing, for term of Life, ſecundum conſuetudinem Manerii;

and that within the ſaid Manor there hath been ſuch a Cuſtome, That every Copyholder, Tenant for life hath uſed to take all Trees growing upon their Copyhold Lands, to be imploied for fewel in his Copyhold houſe, and for Bounds and Fences, and other neceſſary Reparations to be in and upon the Cuſtomary Lands and Tenements; And that the Defendant did lop the ſaid Trees upon his Copyhold, and imployed the ſame for Bounds and Fences in and upon his Copyhold Lands and Tenements, &c. And the Doubt was, That foraſmuch as the ſaid Leſſees held the Court by virtue of the ſaid Leaſe of the Manor, (out of which Leaſe the ſaid Trees were excepted) if the Defendant, to whom they by their Steward granted the ſaid Tenements by Copy, might lop the ſaid Trees, which by the ſaid Exception were divided from the ſaid Leaſe. And in this Caſe divers Points were reſolved by Coke Chief Juſtice, Walmſley, Warburton, Daniel, and Foſter, as after appeareth. But firſt it was objected, Quod nemo poteſt plus juris in alium transferre quam ipſe habet; and the Lords pro tempore who held the ſaid Court, and made the Grant to the Defendant, had nothing in the Trees, for they were excepted out of their Leaſe; Ergo, the Copyholder who claimeth by Grant of the Leſſees could not meddle with the Trees. But it was anſwered and reſolved by the whole Court, that notwithſtanding the Severance by the Exception, and notwithſtanding that the Defendant came in by a voluntary Grant of the Lords for life, and not by Surrender, that yet ſuch Grantee by Copy ſhould have Eſtovers; For the Eſtate of the Copyholder (who cometh in by voluntary Grant) is not derived out of the Eſtate or Intereſt of the Lord of the Manor, for the Lord of the Manor is but an Inſtrument to make the Grant: but the Cuſtom of the Manor (after the Grant made) eſtabliſheth and maketh it firm to the Grantee: ſo that although the Grant be new, yet the title of the Copyholder is ancient, and ſo ancient that the ſame by force of Cuſtom exceedeth the memory of Man. And therefore neither for Infancy, Non ſanæ memoriæ, Coverture, nor other ſuch diſabilities, neither in reſpect of exility, baſeneſs, or incertainty of the Intereſts or Eſtates of the Lords (as at Will, or upon Condition, &c.) the Grants by Copy ſhall be avoided, becauſe they claim in by force of a good and ancient Cuſtom which hath no diſability of Perſon, or defect of a perfect Intereſt. And Paſch. 26 Eliz. in the King's Bench it was adjudged, That if the Lord taketh a Wife, and afterwards granteth the Land by Copy according to the Cuſtom, and dieth, his Wife being endowed of the Land amongſt other, ſhall not avoid the Eſtate by Copy, for although that her Title of Dower was before the Grant, yet the Title of the Copyholder, which is the Cuſtom, is ancienter than the Title of Dower; and ſo the Copyholder, who cometh in by voluntary Grant, ſhall not be ſubject to the Charges or Incumbrances of the Lord before the Grant. And all that, in this Caſe was affirmed for good Law. 2. It was reſolved, That when the Copyholders for life, according to Cuſtom, have uſed to have Common in the Waſtes of the Lord of the Manor, or Eſtovers in his Woods, or any other Profit apprender in any other part of the Manor, and afterwards the Lord alieneth the Waſtes, or Woods, to another in Fee, and afterwards granteth certain Copyhold houſes and lands for Lives, ſuch Grantees ſhall have Common of Paſture, or Common of Eſtovers, &c. notwithſtanding the Severance, for the Title of the Copyholder, is paramount the Severance, and the Cuſtom doth unite the Common, or Eſtovers, which are but Acceſſories or incident, as long as the Houſe and Lands being principal, is maintained by the Cuſtom, which cuſtomary Appurtenances are not appertaining to the Eſtate of the Lord, for he is the Owner of the Freehold and Inheritance of all the Manor, but they are appertaining to the cuſtomary Eſtate of the Copyholder, after the Grant made unto him. Which Profit apprender being due by Cuſtom to the Copyhold Tenement, notwithſtanding the Feoffement or Fine, &c. of the Waſte or Woods, made by the Lord, doth remain and is preſerved by the Cuſtom, which is, as hath been ſaid, the Title of the Copyholder, and is paramount the Severance: But if the Copyholder had derived his Intereſt from the Eſtate of the Lord, then clearly by the Feoffement, or Fine, &c. of the Lord, all thoſe who claim by him ſhall be barred of any Profit apprender in the ſame Waſte or Woods. See Murrel's Caſe, in the Fourth Part of my Reports, that after the Cuſtom hath fixed a cuſtomary Intereſt, no Severance of the Inheritance ſhall overthrow the Copyhold. And ſee Brown's Caſe, ibid. And if a man granteth a Rent to another upon Condition, and afterwards maketh a Feoffement of the Land, yet the Condition to determine the Rent doth remain, and is not extinct by the Feoffement, for it is collateral to the Title of the Land. And note a difference between Preſcription which is made in the Perſon of any, as he and all his Anceſtors, &c. and all thoſe whoſe Eſtate he hath, &c. and Cuſtom which lieth upon the Land, as infra Manerium talis habetur Conſuetudo, &c. And this Cuſtom ſhall bind the Law, as Gavelkind, Borough-Engliſh, and the like. But after ſuch Severance of the Waſte, or Woods, &c. The Copyholder, when he entitleth himſelf to Common, or Eſtovers, &c. in pleading, ſhall not plead generally, quod infra Manerium prædict' talis habetur, &c. Conſuetudo, &c. for after the Severance, the Waſte or Wood, &c. is not within the Manor, but abſolutely divided from it; but ſhall plead that until ſuch a time, ſcil. before the Severance, talis habetur, & toto tempore, &c. Conſuetudo, &c. And then ſhew the Severance, as he ought in the Caſe of Murrell, where the Lord of the Manor alieneth the Freehold and Inheritance of the Copyhold. Vide 3 H. 6. 9. 11 H. 6. 23. 39 H. 6. 13, 14. 7 E. 4. 32. 20 E. 4. 6. b. 22 E. 4. 44. And Coke chief Juſtice ſaid, That the Caſe at Barr was a general Caſe, for in all Leaſes of Manors made by Queen Elizabeth, or the King that now is, ſuch Exception of Trees and Timber is. And Judgement was given for the Defendant.

Mich. 6 Jacobi.

Sir William Foſter's Caſe.

[b] IN a Replevin between Bernard Cowper Plaintiff, and Sir William Foſter Defendant, of taking his Cattel, ultimo die Auguſti, anno quarto Jacobi Regis, at Stratfield in the County of Berks, in a certain place called Rye-piddle, the ſaid Sir William did avow the taking as Baily of Edward Gregory, Eſquire, and Mary his Wife, Adminiſtratrix of the Good's and Chattels which were Thomas Foſter's, Gent. and ſaid, that the place where doth contain three Acres of Land, parcel of the Manor of Bechilwick in the ſaid County, whereof Charles Foſter, Eſquire, was ſeiſed in Fee, and 30 Jan. Anno 4 Edw. 6. by his Deed indented did enfeoff of the ſaid Manor Richard Puttenham, to him and his Heirs, yielding therefore yearly to the ſaid Charles, his Heirs and Aſſigns, 6 li. 13 s. 4 d. at the Feaſts of Michael and the Annunciation, by equal portions, with clauſe of Diſtreſs, and afterwards the ſaid Charles died ſeiſed of the ſaid Rent. After whoſe death the ſame deſcended to the ſaid Thomas Foſter, as to his Son and Heir, and afterwards, ſcilicet, 10 Julii, anno 25. died inteſtate, and becauſe that 100 li. of Rent aforeſaid was behind for fifteen years ended 10 Eliz. he avowed the taking as Bailiff to the ſaid Husband and Wife, Adminiſtratrix of the ſaid Thomas Foſter. The Plaintiff in bar of his Avowry pleaded, Quod nec prædictus Tho. Foſter, nec anteceſſores ſui, nec aliqui alii quorum ſtatum præd' Tho. Foſter habuit in reddit. præd' unquam fuerunt ſeiſiti de eodem reddit infra 40 annos jam ultimos elapſos ante prædictum tempus quo, &c. Upon which the Avowant did demurr in Law. And this Avowry is grounded upon the Statute of 32 H. 8. 37. which giveth Diſtreſs to an Executor or Adminiſtrator, in like manner and form as
[65] the Teſtator, &c. might or ought to have done. But the matter in Law was founded upon another Act made at the ſame Parliament, cap. 3. of Limitations, for by the ſame Act it is enacted, That no perſon or perſons ſhall hereafter make any Avowry or Conuſans for any Rent, Sute, or Service, and allege any Seiſin of any Rent, Sute, or Service in the ſame Avowry or Conuſans; in the poſſeſſion of his or their Anceſtor or Predeceſſor, &c. above fourty years next before the making of the ſaid Avowry or Conuſans. And it was reſolved by the whole Court, That theſe words ought to be intended where the Avowant was driven to allege any Seiſin by force of any old Statute of Limitation,
[b] and that was when the Seiſin was material, and of ſuch force that it ſhould not be avoided in Avowry, although it were by encroachment, as of Rent between the Lord and Tenant. But in the caſe of Reſervation or Grant of a Rent, there the Deed is the Title, and the beginning thereof appeareth, and no encroachment in that caſe ſhall hurt, nor any Seiſin is material: The ſame Law of a Gift in tail after the Statute of Donis conditionalibus rendring Rent; there no encroachment ſhall be prejudicial, or ſeiſin requiſite, for the Reſervation is the Title, and the beginning thereof appeareth within time of memory: and this Conſtruction ſtands with the words of the Act, for the words are, No man ſhall make Avowry, and allege any Seiſin, &c. By which it appeareth, that that branch doth extend only where the Avowant ought to allege ſeiſin; but when no ſeiſin is requiſite, it is out of the words and intent of the Act, for the ſame intends to limit a time for the ſeiſin, when ſeiſin was required by the Law to be alleged, and not to compell any one to allege ſeiſin where ſeiſin was not neceſſary before. *Vide Plow. Note, Reader, Leſſee for life, or Donee in tail ſhall not have, Nè injuſte vexes againſt the Donor, for in as much as the Reſervation is his Title, no encroachment upon them ſhall hurt them, but they ſhall avoid the ſame in Avowrie; and the Statute of Magna Charta, cap. 10. upon which the Writ of Ne injuſte vexes is grounded, ſcil. quod nullus diſtringatur ad faciendum majus ſervitium de libero tenemento quam inde debetur, doth not extend to Donee in tail, Leſſee for life, or Grantee of a rent-charge, which appeareth by theſe words, majus ſervitium, which is meant between very Lord and very Tenant.

Mich. 6 Jacobi. In the Exchequer.

Loveday's Case.

IN an Information in the Exchequer upon the Statute of Usury by C. qui tam, &c. against Loveday, the Defendant pleaded to Issue, and a Jury was returned who gave an imperfect Verdict, for they found an Acceptance, &c. and no Loan, &c. for which the Court awarded a new Venire facias, and thereupon another Jury was returned and appeared; and when they were ready to give their Verdict the Plaintiff was non-sute, upon which Judgement was given; And now the Plaintiff brought a Writ of Error in the Exchequer-Chamber, and assigned for Error, that the Court of Exchequer in the said Case did erre in granting a new Venire facias; but ought to have granted a new Nisi prius; for an imperfect Verdict is no Verdict, as anno 20 Edw. 4. 6. an insufficient Indictment is no Indictment. And at the Common Law, if the Recognitors of the Assise give Verdict which is not well examined by the Justices, and therefore imperfect, in this Case the Plaintiff shall have a Certificate of Assise, and the first Imperfection shall be enquired by the first Jurors; and that appeareth in Fitz. Nat. Brev. 181. 7 Hen. 4. 45. 43 Assise, pl. 5. 12 Hen. 4. 9. And the words of the Writ are, Quia super quibusdam Articulis contingent Assisam Novæ disseis. &c. quædam sunt dubitationes, &c. But it was resolved by the Court, and the two Chief Justices, That the Venire facias was well awarded: For when a Jury (returned by force of any Venire facias to try an Issue) hath given a Verdict which is accepted and recorded by the Court; be it perfect or imperfect, the Jurors are discharged thereof for ever, and shall never be called back in the same Cause to try the same Issue; But if the Verdict be so imperfect that Judgement cannot be given upon it, then the Court shall award a new Venire facias, to try the said Issue by others; and therewith agreeth the Book in 18 Edw. 4. 48. where it is resolved, because the Enquest found part to be holden of the Demandant, and found not by what Services the same was holden, nor what Arrerages were behind, and for that Cause was not fully taken, that a new Venire facias shall be awarded to return a new Jury, and not a new Trial to try the same Issue again by the same Jury. So in 27 Hen. 6. 4. In Conspiracy against divers, all plead Not-guilty, and one Venire facias was awarded against all, and the Sheriff returned not the Writ; and the Plaintiff prayed several Venire facias against the Defendants, and had it, and it was found for the Plaintiff, and all the Justices adjudged the same a Jeofail, so that the Plaintiff could not have Judgement upon the said Verdict, which was fully found, forasmuch as the first Award was of one joint Venire facias, the Plaintiff could not vary, (to have several Writs de Venire facias) from the first Award; and therefore the Court did award Venire facias de novo, 21 Hen. 6. 21. 21 Edw. 4. 26, 27. And as to the Case of Assise, the Recognitors are not returned to try any certain Issue, for there is a Jury the first day before any Plaint, Plea, or Issue. 2. There no new Process can be awarded; for the Recognitors who are but once returned, shall stand. But when a Jury is returned upon a Venire facias, which is a judical Process for the Trial of an Issue certain, there the Court, if the Verdict be imperfect, may award a new judicial Process, scilicet, Venire facias de novo; but the Court cannot so doe in Case of Assise, for they are returned upon the Original, and because the Writ of Assise is festinum remedium, the Plaintiff shall have a Writ of Certificate de Assise, to supply the first Imperfections (which happen for default of good examination) according to the truth of the matter. And Judgement was affirmed. [b] [66]

Edward Crogate's Case.

[b] EDward Crogate brought an Action of Trespass against Robert Mary, for driving of his Cattel in Townbarningham in Norfolk, &c. The Defendant pleaded, That a House and two Acres in Bassingham, in the said County, were parcel of the Manor of Thurgarton in the same County, and demised, and demisable, &c. by Copy, &c. in Fee-simple, &c. according to the custom of the Manor, of which Manor William late Bishop of Norwich was seised in Fee in the Right of his Bishoprick, and prescribed to have Common of Pasture for him and all his Customary Tenants of the said House, and two Acres of Land in a great piece of Pasture called Bassingham Common, pro omnibus averiis, &c. omni tempore anni, and the said Bishop, at such a Court, &c. granted the said House and two Acres by Copy to one Will. Marys, to him and his Heirs, &c. and that the Plaintiff put in his said Cattel in the said great piece of Pasture, for which cause, the Defendant, as servant to the said William, and by his Commandment, molliter drew the said Cattel out of the said place, where the said William had Common in prædicta villa de Townbarningham, adjoining to the said Common of Bassingham, &c. The Plaintiff replyed, de injuria sua propria absque tali causa: Upon which the Defendant did demurr in Law. And it was objected on the Plaintiffe's part, that the said Replication was good, because the Defendant doth not claim any Interest, but justifieth by force of a Commandment; to which de injuria sua propria absque tali causa may be fitly applied: And this Plea of De injuria sua propria, [67] scilicet, of his own wrong, shall have reference only to the Commandment, and to no other part of the Plea, and cited the Books in 10 Hen. 6. 3. 9. 16 Hen. 7. 3. &c. 3 Hen. 6. 35. & 19 Hen. 6. 7. &c. But it was adjudged, That the Replication was insufficient. And in this Case divers Points were resolved.

1. That, absque tali causa, doth referr to the whole Plea, and not only to the Commandment; for all maketh but one Cause, and any of them, without the other, is no Plea by it self. And therefore in a False Imprisonment if the Defendant justifieth by a Capias to the Sheriff, and a Warrant to him, there, De injuria sua propria generally is no good Replication, for then the matter of Record shall be parcel of the cause (for all maketh but one cause) and the matter of Record ought not to be put in issue, to the trial of the people; but in such case he may reply De injuria sua propria, and traverse the Warrant, which is matter in fact: But upon such a Justification by force of any proceeding in the Admiral Court, Hundred, or County, &c. or any other which is not a Court of Record, there De injuria sua propria generally is good, for all is matter of fact, and all maketh but one cause. And by these differences you will agree your Books in 2 H. 7. 3. 5 H. 7. 6. 16 H. 7. 3. 21 H. 7. 37. 19 H. 6. 7. 42 E. 3. 29. 17 E. 3. 44. 18 E. 3. 10. 2 E. 4. 6. 12 E. 4. 10. 14 H. 6. 16. 21 H. 6. 5. 13 R. 2. Issue 16.

2. It was resolved, That when the Defendant in his own Right, or as Servant to any other, claimeth an Interest in the Land, or to any Common, or Rent going out of the Land; or to any Way or Passage upon the Land, &c. there De injuria sua propria generally is no Plea. But if the Defendant justifieth as Servant, there De injuria sua propria in some of the said Cases, with traverse of the Commandment, the same being made material, is good. And so you will agree all your Books, scilicet, 14 H. 4. 32. 33 H. 6. 5. 44 E. 3. 18. 2 H. 5. 1. 10 H. 6. 3. 9. 39 H. 6. 32. 9 E. 4. 22. 16 E. 4. 4. 21 E. 4. 6. 28 E. 3. 98. 28 H. 6. 9. 21 E. 3. 41. 22 Ass. 42. 44 E. 3. 13. 45 E. 3. 7. 24 E. 3. 72. 22 Ass. 85. 33 H. 6. 29. 42 E. 3. 2. For the general Plea De injuria sua propria, &c. is properly when the Defendant's Plea doth consist meer upon excuse, and upon no matter of Interest whatsoever: And it is said, De injuria sua propria, because the injury properly in this sense is to the person, or to the fame; as Battery or Imprisonment to the Person; or, Scandal to the Fame; there, if the Defendant excuse himself upon his own Assault, or upon Hue and Cry, there properly De injura sua propria generally is a good Plea, for there the Defendant's Plea doth consist only upon matter of Excuse.

3. It was resolved, That when by the Defendant's Plea any Authority or Power is mediately or immediately derived from the Plaintiff, there, although no Interest be claimed, the Plaintiff ought to answer it, and shall not reply generally De injuria sua propria. The same Law of an Authority [b] given by the Law; as to view Waste, 12 Edw. 4. 10. 9 Edw. 4. 31. 20 Edw. 4. 4. 41 Edw. 3. 2. 16 Hen. 7. 3.

Lastly it was resolved, That in the Case at Bar the Issue shall be full of multiplicity of matter, where an Issue ought to be full and single, for parcel of the Manor, demisible by Copy, grant by Copy, prescription of Common, &c. and Commandment shall be parcel of the Issue. And so by the Rule of the whole Court Judgement was given against the Plaintiff.

John Trollop's Case.

Lancelot Richeſon brought Debt upon Obligation of 34 li. by Quo minus in the Exchequer a- [68]
gainſt John Trollop, Eſquire, and upon Iſſue and Verdict againſt Trollop, upon which Trollop brought a Writ of Error againſt the ſaid Richeſon, who pleaded an Excommunication, & profert hic in Cur. literas Clementis Colnor, Legum Doctoris, reverendi in Chriſto patris, Tobiæ nuper Dunelm. Epiſcopi vic' in ſpiritualibus generalis, & officialis principalis legitime fulciti, ſigillo conſiſt. Dunelm. ſignat', viz. Clemens Colnor, &c. univerſis & ſingulis Clericis & literatis quibuſcunque per totam diœceſin Dunelm. ubilibet conſtitut', ſalut': and recited that he did proceed againſt him for Recuſancy, and that for Contempt, in not appearing, &c. being lawfully cited and forewarned, he was excommunicated, Vobis igitur tenore Præſentium mandamus quatenus præfat' Joh. Trollop, ſic ut præmittitur per nos excommunicatum fuiſſe & eſſe, in Eccleſia veſtra Parochial' diebus Dominicis, & aliis feſtivis, &c. publice denuncietis, & cum effectu declaretis, &c. and demanded Judgement if he ſhould be anſwered. The Plaintiff ſaid, That after the ſaid Excommengement the King by his general Pardon in his Parliament Anno 3. did pardon all Contempts, &c. and all that he might pardon; and averred that neither the Offence nor the Perſon, &c. is excepted, &c. Upon which the Defendant in the Writ of Error did demurr in Law. And it was reſolved by the Court, and the two Chief Juſtices, that the ſaid Plea of Excommunication was inſufficient for two Cauſes.

1. Becauſe the ſaid Excommengement is certified by the Official or Commiſſary of the Biſhop, where it ought to be certified by the Biſhop, who is the immediate Officer to the Court, for no Certificate of Excommunication by any ſhall diſable one, but the Certificate of him to whom the Court may write to abſolve the party excommunicated, as the Biſhop, Gardian of the Spiritualties, &c. and therewith agree the Books in the Point in 34 E. 3. Excommengement 23. 20 E. 3. Excommengement 24. 41 Aſſ. p. 29. 20 H. 6. 1. 8 H. 6. 3. 7 E. 4. 14. 14 H. 4. 14. Vide 11 H. 6. 64. that it was ſo ordained by the Parliament, 12 E. 4. 15, 16. F. N. B. 64. cap. 65. a. But the Chan- [b] cellors of the Univerſity of Cambridge, or Oxford, may certifie an Excommengement, for they doe it by the King's Charter, Regiſter, F. N. B. 64. c.

2. If the Biſhop himſelf had certified it, yet it had been inſufficient, for the direction ought to be to this Court in particular, or at leaſt, Univerſis ſanctæ matris Eccleſiæ filiis; But in the Caſe at Bar it is directed, Univerſis & ſingulis Clericis & literatis quibuſcunque per totam diœceſin Dunelmenſ. ubilibet Conſtitut. By which particular direction the Court is excluded; as a Certificate of an Excommengement in the Chancery ſhall not ſerve in any other Court; neither ſhall a Protection directed to one Court, ſerve in another: for always a Certificate directed to a particular Court and in particular manner, ſhall extend no farther; and therewith agreeth 20 Hen. 6. 25. 2 Edw. 4. 4. And it was objected, That an Excommengement is a Spiritual Judgement, and therefore the Temporal Judges ſhall not diſpute upon the manner of it. To which it was anſwered and reſolved by the Judges, That the Judges of the Common Law ſhall adjuge upon the manner (and in ſome Caſes) of the matter alſo of Certificate in caſe of Excommunication; as if the Biſhop himſelf be ſued, and he pleadeth an Excommengement by himſelf, or his Commiſſary (who is his Deputy) although it be for another cauſe than that is in queſtion, it ſhall not diſable the Plaintiff, becauſe that he himſelf is Party, and therewith agree 16 E. 3. Excommeng. 5. 5 E. 2. Excommengement 27. 5 E. 3. 8. 8 E. 3. 69. 18 E. 3. 58. 9 H. 7. 21. 10 H. 7. 9. Alſo if a Prohibition be brought againſt a Biſhop, and he ſheweth forth the Letters of the Archbiſhop, that the Plaintiff is excommenged, propter diverſas contumacias, without ſhewing any Cauſe in ſpecial of the Excommuncation, it ſhall not diſable the Plaintiff. The ſame Law if any other be Defendant in any Action, and would diſable the Plaintiff by Excommunication, he ought to ſhew the Biſhop's Certificate, containing the principal Cauſe why the Plaintiff is excommunicated, to the end that the Judges of the Law may know whether the Spiritual Court have Conuſans of the original Cauſe, and if the Excommengement be againſt the Law, the Court ought to write to them to abſolve the party; which they cannot doe if the Certificate be general; and if the Biſhop refuſeth, his Temporalties at the Common Law ſhall be ſeiſed, 28 E. 3. 97. 22 E. 4. 20. 20 E. 3. Excom. 9. 13 H. 7. 16. and in 14 H. 4. 14. Hanks there ſaith, That a Doctor of the Civil Law ſaid to him, That no Letter of Certificate of Excommengement (although it be of the Biſhop) ſhall be allowed, if the principal Cauſe be not contained in the Writ; F. N. B. 64. f. The Biſhop ought to expreſs the Cauſe and Sute againſt the Plaintiff ſpecially in the Certificate, vide 3 H. 4. 3. miſreported in the Report: For the opinion there is reformed in 14 H. 4. 14. as appeareth before. Vide Fleta, lib. 6. cap. 26. Weſt. 2. cap. 43. Alſo the Biſhop ought to certifie that which hath been ſentenced in his own Court, and not in another Court; And therefore he cannot certifie, that another Biſhop hath certified to him, or that he hath ſeen a Sentence of Excommengement made by another Biſhop; but the Biſhop may certifie an Excommengement made by his Commiſſary or Official, for that the Biſhop's Court and his [69]
Comiſſary doth in his Right, F. N. B. 65. a. 33 E. 3. Excom. 29. 9 H. 7. 21. 10 H. 7. 8.

But if the Biſhop maketh a Certificate, and dieth before that it be received, it is nothing worth, but his Succeſſor ought to certifie it, F. N. B. 65. 8 E. 2. Excommeng. 26. 14 E. 3. ibid. 8. But note, Reader, in ſome Caſe the Vicar General may certifie an Excommengement; but the ſame is when the Bishop is in remotis agendis, which is as much as to say, Out of the Kingdom in the King's Service; But the Court will understand thereof by matter of Record, scil. by Writ out of the Chancery directed to them, and not by the surmise of the party, and then for necessity (which is alwaies the Law of time, for Necessitas est Lex temporis,) the Certificate of the Vicar General shall be allowed, because that no other can doe it. And therewith agreeth 31 E. 3. 10. F.N.B. 64. And after that a Bishop is elect, and before he is consecrated, he may certifie an Excommengement, for the power of the Guardian of the Spiritualities ceaseth after his election by the King's Conge de eslier: and therefore for necessity he ought to certifie, F. N. B. 62. N. and Register.

And it is to know, That when a Plea of Excommengement is allowed, the Writ shall not abate, but the Entry is, Quod remaneat loquela sine die quousque, &c. 3 Hen. 6. 3. 3 Edw. 4. 8. 3 Ass. p. 12.

The Point in Law in the Case at Bar was, If the general Pardon should discharge a man excommunicated of the Excommunication or not, and by the Award of the Court the Defendant was ruled to answer over.

Whitlock's Case.

[b] IN a Replevin between John Chappel Plaintiff, and William Whitlock Defendant, for taking of a Gelding in Kings-Ash, in the County of Devon, in a place called Cunnie Park; the Defendant did avow the taking in the place where, &c. as in his Freehold, for damage feasant. The Plaintiff in barr of the Avowrie pleaded, That one William Whitlock the elder was seised of a Messuage, 20 acres of Land, 12 acres of Wood, and 20 acres of Heath in Kings-Ash aforesaid in Fee, whereof the place where is parcel, and demised the said Tenements to one Joan Bulhead for her life, by force whereof she was seised for life, the Reversion expectant to the said William Whitlock the elder; and the said William Whitlock the elder, 11 Marcii, 18 Eliz. by his Indenture Tripartite, in consideration of a Marriage to be solemnized between William Whitlock the younger, and Margaret Daughter of John Boteler, covenanted and agreed by the said Indentures, That the said William Whitlock the elder, before the Feast of the Birth of Christ next ensuing, would assure and convey unto Leon. Yeo, and Anthony Whitlock, and their Heirs, the Tenements aforesaid, to the uses, intents and purposes declared in the said Indentures, and to no other uses or intents, viz. until the said Marriage unto the use of the said William Whitlock the elder and his Heirs, and after the said Marriage to the use of Will. Whitlock the elder for terme of his life, without Impeachment of Waste, [70] and afterwards to the use of the said William Whitlock the younger, and the Heirs of his body, and after to the use of John Whitlock and his Heirs. And by the said Indenture it was further provided, granted and agreed, That it should be lawfull for the said William Whitlock the elder, at any time then after to make Lease or Leases, Grant or Grants, as well in Possession as Reversion of the Tenements aforesaid, with the Appurtenances, whereof, &c. or of any part thereof. Provided alwaies, that the said Lease or Leases, Grant or Grants, should not exceed the number of three Lives at the most, or 21 one years, and that upon every such Lease or Leases, Grant or Grants, the the most ancient and accustomed yearly Rent, Heriot, and Services, or more should be rendered and reserved, paiable during the said Lease or Leases, Grant or Grants; and that the said Leon and Anthoney, and their Heirs, should stand seised to the use of every such Fermor, &c. And afterwards, 10 Maii, 18 Eliz. the said William the younger and Margaret entermarried, and afterwards, Trin. 18 Eliz. William Whitlock the elder levied a Fine of the said Tenements aforesaid, according to the same Indentures, to the uses therein contained, by force whereof, and of the Statute of Uses, the said William Whitlock the elder was seised of the Reversion of the said Tenements, &c. for his Life, the Remainder over according to the said Indentures. And the said William Whitlock the elder so seised, 1 Septemb. 31 Eliz. demised to one Christian Hearne the Tenements aforesaid, with their Appurtenances, wherein, &c. amongst others, To have and enjoy to the said Christian and her Assigns for 99 years fully to be compleat and ended, if the said Christian and one Peter Rattenburie, or any of them should so long live, the said terme to begin after the death or determination of the Estate of the said Joan Bulhead, yielding and paying therefore yearly after the beginning of the said Lease, to the said William Whitlock the elder, his Heirs and Assigns, and such Person and Persons to whom the Inheritance of the Premises after the death of the said William the elder shall of right belong or appertain, during the said terme 14 s. at the four most usual Feasts yearly to be paid. And the Plaintiff justified under the said Lease, and averred the Life of Peter Rattenburie, and that the most ancient and accustomed yearly Rent, Heriot and Services, &c. were reserved, &c. upon which the Avowant did demurr in Law. And in this Case two Questions were moved.

1. If William Whitlock the elder had pursued his Authority or not, in making of the said Lease for 99 years, determinable upon the said two Lives.

2. If the said Reservation of the Rent were according to the said Proviso, &c.

And

And as to the first it was objected, That the Authority was distinguished, scil. either to make a Lease not exceeding the number of three lives, or 21 years; by which it appeareth that the intention was either to make a Lease for three lives, &c. or if he would make a Lease for years, that it ought to be for 21 years; but in the case at bar, the Lease is not for three lives, &c. nor for 21 years, but for 99 years, if two or any of them so long shall live, and so his Authority was not pursued. And if one hath power to make Leases for lives, he cannot make a Lease for 99 years determinable upon three lives, quod fuit concessum per totam Curiam. But it was answered and resolved by the Court, that in the case at bar, the Lease was good, and the Power which the Lessor had well pursued; For the Proviso of Creation of his Power to make leases is absolute in the beginning, affirmative and indefinite, scil. to make a lease or leases, grant or grants, &c. as well in the possession as in reversion of the Tenements, or any parcel thereof, &c. which is without limitation. Then the Proviso of Correction is added, scil. That such lease or leases, grant or grants, shall not exceed the number of three lives at most, or 21 years, which clause is negative, and doth qualifie the generality of the first Proviso; So that the Power by the first is general, and by the second the Lease ought not exceed three lives, &c. And when the Lease is made for 99 years determinable upon two lives, the same doth not exceed the number of three lives, although in truth it is not a lease for lives. 2. The Power is as well to make leases in possession as reversion, with the limitation aforesaid: and a Lease for three lives cannot be made a reversion, but a lease for years determinable upon three lives may, and the Lessor himself hath but a reversion expectant upon an Estate for life at the time of the creation of the said Power. So that the intention of the parties was to make a Lease for years absolutely but for 21 years, but any other terme determinable upon 3 lives, &c. which is in equippage with 21 years, he well might. And the difference was taken and agreed between a particular Power affirmative, and a general Power restrained with a negative; For it is true, That if one hath Power to make a Lease for three lives, or 21 years, there he may make a Lease for 99 years, if three so long live, for the same doth not exceed the number of three lives, but in truth is less, for every terme for years, which is but a Chattel, is less in estimation of Law than an Estate for life, which is a Free-hold. [b]

As to the second Point it was objected, That the said Reservation was such, that the same was not payable during the said Lease as it ought, but onely during the life of the Lessor; for he having but an Estate for life, doth reserve the Rent to him and his heirs, and his heirs cannot have it, and the latter words, scil. To such person and persons who shall have the Premisses, &c. are meerly void, for no Rent can be reserved but to the Lessor, Donor, or Feoffor, and his heirs, who are Privies in blood, and not to any who is Privie in estate, as he in the reversion or remainder, &c. But it was resolved, That the Reservation in the case at bar is good. For the said Lease hath not his essence from the Estate of the Lessor, which he hath for life, but the Lease hath his essence out of the said Fine, and in Construction of Law doth preceed the Estate for life and all the Remainders; for after the Lease made, the same is as much as if the Use had been limited originally to the Lessee for the said terme, and then the other limitations in construction of Law follow it: And that is the cause that the usual clause in such Indentures is, That the Conusees and their Heirs shall stand seised to the use of such Lessees, &c. So that the Lessee in the case at bar doth derive his Estate out of the Estate which passeth by Fine. Then when the Lessor reserveth Rent to him and his Heirs, the same is good, for the same by construction of Law doth preceed the limitations, uses, and then the same being well reserved, the same is well transferred to every one to whom any use is limited. So if the reservation be to the Lessor, and to every person to whom the Inheritance or Reversion of the Premisses shall appertain during the terme the same is also good, for the Law doth distribute that to every one to whom any limitation of the use shall be made. And in such case no Lease is reserved to a Stranger, but the Reservation doth preceed the limitation of the uses to Strangers. But it was agreed, That the most clear and sure way, was to reserve Rent yearly during the same terme, and leave the Law to make the distribution, without mentioning a Reservation to any person. But it was resolved, That all the said three wayes were good enough and effectual in Law. [71]

Greneley's Case.

IN an Ejectione firmæ between Owen Greneley Plaintiff, and Philip Greneley Defendant, upon a Demise made by Stephen Greneley of three Acres of land in St. upon Arrow in the County of Hereford, and upon Not Guilty pleaded, the Jury gave a special Verdict to this effect: William Woodhouse and John Badland were seised of the said three Acres in fee, and 20 Octob. 38 Hen. 8. did thereof enfeoffe Philip Greneley the elder, and Isabel his Wife, To have and to hold to the said Philip and Isabel, and to the Heirs of their two bodies lawfully begotten: Philip the elder, 1 Decemb. 17 Eliz. did enfeoffe Philip Greneley the younger of the said three Acres in fee; and afterwards 20 Eliz. Philip the elder died, and Isabel overlived him; and afterwards the said Isabel (before any Entry made by her, viz. 26.) died; and the said Stephen Greneley the Lessor of the [b]

Plaintiff

Plaintiff was Heir of their two bodies, &c. And the only Question in this case was, If the said Feoffement of Philip the elder to Philip the younger, hath taken away the Entry of the said Stephen, or that the Entry of Stephen was lawfull or not.

1. It was resolved, That at the Common law this Feoffement was a Discontinuance to the issue, for the issue ought to claim as Heir of their two bodies individually, and as Heir to one he cannot inherit, and by consequence cannot enter, for his Entry ought to ensue his Title and his Action, and the Formedon in the Descender in such case is, Quod C. dedit D. & E. uxori ejus & heredibus de corporibus ipsorum D. & E. exeuntibus, & quod post mortem præd' D. & E. præfato K. filio & hæred' ipsorum D. & E. descendere debet per formam doni prædicti, &c. Regist. Orig. 238. b. By which it appeareth that in his Formedon he ought to make himself Heir to both, and not to the [72] Survivor: So if the said Donees had been disseised, and a Descent cast, and afterwards the Father died, and before Entry the Mother died, the Entry of the Issue is not congeable, because he ought to claim as Heir of both their bodies, and as Heir to the Father he is bound by the descent, as his Father himself was, and as Heir to his Mother only he cannot enter, for he hath not any such Title. Vide 35 H. 6. 45. b. in Assise, but if the Mother in such case had entred, and re-continued the Estate tail, then the Discontinuance was utterly prorogued and removed, and the Estate tail actually revested in the Wife; which after her death doth descend to the Issue.

2. It was resolved, That although the Husband and Wife had a joint and undivided Estate in tail, and the words of 32 H. 8. cap. 28. are, That no Fine, Feoffement, or other Act or Acts hereafter to be made, suffered, or done by the Husband only, of any Manors, Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments, being the Inheritance or Freehold of his Wife, during the coverture between them, &c. That this joint Estate was within these words, (the Inheritance or Freehold of his Wife) for she hath a Freehold and Inheritance in the Land, although she hath not the sole Freehold or Inheritance. So hath it been alwaies taken upon the Statute of West. 2. cap. 3. In casu quando vir amiserit per defaltam tantum, quod fuit jus uxoris suæ, &c. propter quod statuit Rex, quod mulier post mortem viri sui habeat Recuperare per breve de Cui in vita, &c. that a joint Estate to Husband and Wife hath been alwaies taken in these words (jus uxoris) and yet it was not the sole and only Right of the Wife; and according to this Resolution in the principal case was it adjudged in Beamount's Case, and therewith agreeth Eliz. Dyer, Hawtrey's Case.

3. It was resolved, That by the said Act the Entry of the Issue in tail was lawfull in the case at bar; for the words of the Act go farther, (shall in any wise be or make any Discontinuance, or be prejudicial or hurtfull to the said Wife, or to her Heirs, or to such as shall have Right, Title, or Interest to the same, by the death of such Wife or Wives. But that the same Wife or her Heirs, and such other to whom such Right shall appertain after her decease, shall or may then lawfully enter into all such Manors, Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, according to their Rights and Titles therein. So that if the Issue in tail shall not be within these words, (her heirs) because that he is Heir to both, sc. to Father and Mother; yet without Question he is within these words, (or to such as have Right by the Death of such Wife.) And in this case a difference was taken and agreed, between a Discontinuance, which implieth a wrong, and a lawfull Bar, which implieth a right; and therefore, if Lands are given to Husband and Wife, and to the Heirs of their two bodies begotten, and the Husband levieth
[b] a Fine with Proclamations, and committeth High Treason, and dieth, and the Wife before, or after Entry dieth, the Issue is barred; and the Conusee, or the King hath Right to the Land, because that the Issue cannot claime as Heir to both; and therewith agreeth 18 Eliz. 351. b. adjudged. Vide 5 Hen. 7. 32. Colt's Assise. And it was resolved, That the Statute of 32 Hen. 8. extendeth only to Discontinuances, although that the Act hath general words, or be prejudicial or hurtfull to the Wife or her Heirs, &c. But the Conclusion is, (shall lawfully enter, &c. according to their Rights and Titles therein,) which they cannot doe, when they are barred, and have no Right, Title, or Interest; and this Statute giveth advantage to the Wife, &c. so long as she hath Right, but it doth not extend to take away a future Bar, although the Statute giveth Entry without limitation of any time, but the Entry ought to wait upon the Right. And therefore, If the Husband levieth a Fine with Proclamation to another, and dieth, now the Wife may enter by force of the Statute; For yet the Fine is not any Bar to her, but her Right doth remain, which she may re-continue by Entry; but if she surcease her time, five years after the death of her Husband, she is barred of her Right, and by consquence she cancot enter; and the Statute speaketh of Fine only, and not of Fine with Proclamations; and therewith agreeth 6 E. 6. Dyer 72. b. And it was resolved, That if the Husband be Tenant in tail, the Remainder to the Wife in tail, that if the Husband maketh a Feoffement in fee, and dieth without Issue, the Wife may enter, because it was the Inheritance of the Wife; But if the Husband suffereth a Common Recovery, and dieth without Issue, there the Wife is barred, and cannot enter by force of this Statute: But this Statute was made to relieve him who hath Right, and to suppress Wrong, and to advance Right without respect to the Warranty of the Discontinuee, if he hath any. And if before the Stature of Donis conditionalibus Lands had been given to Husband and Wife, and the Heirs of their two bodies begotten, and they have Issue, and the Husband post prolem suscitatam alienateth the Land, and dieth before the Statute, and the Wife survived, and died before the Statute, the Issue should have a Formedon: For notwithstanding the same Alienation, a Right doth remain, for as much as the Husband only alienated, which Right is entailed by the Statute; and before the Statute the Issue in such case might have a Sur cui in vita, and claime as Heir of the body of both, for the Feoffement was no Bar, but a Discontinuance: and therewith agreeth 21 Edw. 3. 45. 12 Hen. 4. 7. And in all cases where the Wife might have a Cui in vita by the Law, she shall enter by force of this Statute of 32 Hen. 8. and where the Issue cannot have a Sur cui in vita, or Formedon, there he shall not not enter within the remedy of this Statute. And therefore if the Husband hath Iſſue, and alieneth, and the Wife dieth, the Iſſue ſhall not enter during the life of the Husband, becauſe at the Common Law he had no remedy to recover the Land during the Husband's life, and the words of the Act are, (according to their rights and titles therein.) But if the Husband alieneth, and afterwards the Wife is divorced cauſa præcontractus, or any Divorce which diſſolveth the Marriage à vinculo Matrimonii, there the Wife during the Husband's life may enter, for the words of the Act are, (no fine, feoffement, &c.) during the Coverture between them. And although that afterwards the Husband and Wife are divorced, yet the Feoffement was made during the Coverture between them. And although that the Statute ſaith, (But that the ſame Wife, &c.) the ſame is meant of her who was his Wife at the time of the Alienation, for when the Husband dieth, ſhe is not then his Wife, but ſhe is called Wife to deſcribe the Perſon only who ſhall enter; and it is not ſaid in the Statute that the Wife ſhall enter after the death of her Husband, but generally, that ſhe ſhall enter according their right and title; be it in the life of the Husband after a Divorce à vinculo Matrimonii, or after his death. Trin. 7 Jacobi. In the Common Pleas.

The Lord Stafford's Caſe.

BEtween Thomas Malyn Plaintiff, and Tho. Tully Defendant, in a Replevin, which began in the Common Pleas, Trin. 6 Jacobi, Rott. 2341. upon the pleading the parties demurred in Law, and upon the whole Record the Caſe was ſuch. Queen Mary was ſeiſed of a Park called Eſtwood Park, within the Manor of Thorneburie, in the County of Glouceſter, in Fee, and by her Letters Patents, 10 Julii, in the ſecond year of her reign, granted the ſaid Park to Henry Lord Stafford, and Urſula his Wife, and to the Heirs of the body of the ſaid Henry Lord Stafford, by force whereof the Lord Stafford and Urſula his Wife was ſeiſed accordingly, the Reverſion over expectant to the ſaid Queen Mary, her Heirs and Succeſſors, which Reverſion of Fee-ſimple by the death of Queen Mary deſcended to Queen Elizabeth. Hill. 3 Eliz. Tindall levied a Fine to the Lord Stafford, and Urſula his Wife, come ceo, and to the Heirs of the Lord Stafford, of the ſaid Park, by which Fine the Lord Stafford and his Wife did render the ſame to Tindall for 25 years: And afterwards Henry Lord Stafford, ult. Junii, 7 Eliz. died, and Urſula his Wife ſurvived, and held in as Survivor, and the Remainder of the ſaid Eſtate tail deſcended to Henry Lord Stafford the Son: And afterwards Queen Elizabeth by her Letters Patents 10 Julii, 7 Eliz. reciting the former Eſtate, the Reverſion and Reverſions thereof to the ſaid Queen Eliz. her Heirs and Succeſſors expectant, the ſaid Queen by the ſaid Letters Patents, and for the Sum of 53 li. 18 s. paid by Tho. Tindall, Gent. did grant to the ſaid Tho. Tindall the Reverſion of the ſaid Park, &c. To have and to hold to him and the heirs of his body lawfully begotten. And further, The ſaid late Queen Elizabeth willed and declared by the ſaid Letters Patents, That if the ſaid Tho. Tindall, his Heirs or Aſſigns, at any time after ſhould pay or cauſe to be paid, or any of them ſhould pay or cauſe to be paid, at the Receipt of the Exchequer of the ſaid late Queen, her Heirs or Succeſſors, to the uſe of the ſaid late Queen, her Heirs or Succeſſors, the Sum of 20 s. of lawfull mony of England, for the Premiſſes, ultra the ſaid Sum of 53 li. 18 s. [74] then the ſaid late Queen Elizabeth, of her farther ſpecial grace, certain knowlege and meer motion, by the ſaid Letters Patents, for her, and her heirs and ſucceſſors, conceſſit & declaravit quod from thenceforth, the ſaid Tho. Tindal. & hæredes ſui haberent & tenerent, ac habere, tenere, & gaudere valerent & poſſent, ſibi & hæredibus ſuis in perpetuum virtute earundem Literarum Patentium ſuarum prædict' reverſionem prædicti Parci, cum pertinentiis inter alia habend', tenend' & gaudend', ea omnia & ſingula Præmiſſa cum pertinent. præfat. Tho. Tindall, hæredibus & aſſignatis ſuis: by force whereof the ſaid Tho. Tindall was ſeiſed of the ſaid Reverſion in tail; And he being ſo ſeiſed, the Reverſion over to the Queen, as aforeſaid, the ſaid Thomas Tindall, 23 Feb. 8 Eliz. at the Receipt of the Exchequer, paid to Tho. Gardiner, then one of the Tellers of the Exchequer, to the uſe of the ſaid Queen, the Sum of 20 s. for the ſaid Park, above the ſaid Sum of 53 li. 18 s. which 20 s. was received, as by the Record of the Receipt thereof, in the ſaid Court of Exchequer at Weſtminſter aforeſaid remaining fully appeareth, by force whereof he was ſeiſed of the ſaid Reverſion in fee expectant upon his Eſtate tail: And afterwards Henry Lord Stafford, 8 Eliz. died; After whoſe death the ſaid Remainder deſcended to Edward Lord Stafford his Son, who, Paſch. 8 Eliz. levied a Fine to Clark and others of the ſaid Park with Proclamations, and afterwards the ſaid Urſula, 10 Eliz. died, and afterwards Edward Lord Stafford died, and Edward Lord Stafford, that now is his Son and Heir, pretending that the ſaid Reverſion in fee did not accrue to Thomas Tindall by the paiment of the ſaid 20 s. but remained in the Crown, by the ſaid Thomas Malyn diſtreined the Cattel of Tulley the Plaintiff in the ſaid Park, who claimed under the ſaid Fine; And to enforce the Letters Patents of Queen Eliz. the Statute of Confirmation of Letters Patents made 18 Eliz. was pleaded; which was not pertinent to this Caſe; But the principal Point of the Caſe was, If by the paiment of the ſaid 20 s. the ſaid Tindall hath gained the Reverſion of the Fee out of Queen Eliz. For if no Reverſion remaineth in the Queen, then the Fine with Proclamations doth bar the Lord Stafford that now is, who claimeth as Iſſue in tail; and if the Reverſion doth remain in her at the time of the Fine, then the Fine levied by Edward Lord Stafford the Father doth not bar him. [b]

[b] And this Caſe was very well argued by the Serjeants, ſcil. Hutton, Nichols, and Harris the younger, and Houghton, and afterwards this Terme the ſame was argued by all the Juſtices at Bench, ſcil. Coke Chief Juſtice, Walmeſley, Warburton, Daniel, and Foſter. And two Objections were made againſt the Subſtance of the Grant; and two againſt the Form of the Grant. The Objections againſt the Subſtance were,

1. That ſuch Condition cannot be annexed to a thing which lieth in Grant, but to a thing which lieth in livery; and therefore it was ſaid, that Rents, Commons, Advowſons, Reverſions, &c. cannot be granted for life or years, with Condition to have Fee, but only Land which lieth in livery, for the increaſe of ſuch future Eſtate for the moſt part taketh its effect by Livery, then by Grant; for without Livery ſuch future Eſtate will not paſs in caſe of Land, and it ought to paſs ab initio by the firſt Livery; and a man cannot grant a Rent in eſſe, or a Common, or Advowſon, or a Reverſion, or any thing which lieth in grant to begin à futuro, as from Michaelmas next following, or after ſuch thing done, &c. And all the Books in Law which ſpeak of ſuch Condition for increaſe of an Eſtate, put the caſe alwaies of Lands, to which Livery is requiſite, 31 Edw. 3. Voucher, 281. 31 E. 3. Feoffements and Faits, 119. 2 E. 2. Quid juris clamat, 31. 12 E. 2. Voucher, 265. 7 E. 3. 10. 10 E. 3. 40, 55. 10 Aſſ. p. 15. & 19. 12 Aſſ. p. 5. 32 E. 3. Garr. 30. 43 E. 3. 35. 43 Aſſ. p. 41. 44 E. 3. Attaint. 22. 50 E. 3. 27. 6 R. 2. Quid juris clamat, 20. 27 H. 6. 7. Plow. Com. Saye's Caſe, 272. Plow. Com. the Lord Lovel's Caſe, 487.

The ſecond Objection was, That ſuch Condition which ſhall increaſe an Eſtate, ought alwaies to drown the firſt Eſtate upon the Encreaſer, and make all but as one Eſtate and one Grant, and therefore ought to be annexed to an Eſtate for years or life, which ſo may drown upon the Performance of the Condition, that all ſhall be but as one Eſtate or Grant, and not ſeveral and divided Eſtates; and therefore in all the ſaid Books ſuch Condition is alwaies annexed to an Eſtate which may drown; but in the Caſe at Bar the Condition is annexed to an Eſtate in tail, which cannot drown by the acceſs of a Fee-ſimple to it: and ſuch Condition was never annexed to any Eſtate tail, in any Book or Precedent which can be ſhewed.

As to the Objections to the Form of the Grant, the firſt was, That after that the Queen had granted the Reverſion to Thomas Tindall, and to the Heirs of his body, She now upon the contingit granteth to him prædictam reverſionem to him and his Heirs: in which the Queen was deceived in her Grant, for prædicta reverſio, is that which the Queen hath granted to Tindall in tail, which now ſhe cannot grant in Fee-ſimple, for intentio Reginæ non convenit cum Lege, for that which ſhe hath granted firſt in Tail, ſhe cannot afterwards grant in Fee, and the Eſtate tail was granted abſolutely, [75] and cannot be drowned or deſtroyed by the ſaid Grant upon the ſaid Contingency.

The ſecond Objection, as to the Form of the Grant, was, That the ſaid Grant did ſound only in Covenant, which in the Caſe of Inheritance ſhall not transferr it in the King's Caſe, as it may in caſe of a Chattel, and therefore the words are, That the Queen willeth and declareth, That if the ſaid Tho. Tindall pay 20 s. then the ſaid Queen doth grant, That the ſaid Tho. Tindall and his Heirs ſhall have the ſaid Reverſion; ſo that the Reverſion it ſelf is not granted, but it is a Grant which ſoundeth in the nature of a Covenant, that he ſhall have the ſaid Reverſion.

But it was reſolved by the whole Court upon ſolemne Argument, That the ſaid Grant was good. And as to the two firſt Objections it was reſolved, That ſuch Grant with a Condition precedent may be made, as well of things which lie in grant, as of land which lieth in livery, and may be annexed as well unto an Eſtate tail, which cannot be drowned, as to an Eſtate for life, or years, which may be drowned by the acceſs of a greater Eſtate; but ſuch Encreaſer of an Eſtate by force of a common Precedent, ought to have Four Incidents; 1. It ought to have a particular Eſtate, as a foundation upon which the Encreaſer of the greater Eſtate ſhall be built; 2. Such particular Eſtate ought to continue in the Leſſee or Grantee, until the Encreaſer happen; 3. It ought to veſt at the time the Contingent falleth, otherwiſe it ſhall never veſt; 4. The particular Eſtate and the Increaſe ought to take effect by one and the ſame Inſtrument or Deed, or by ſeveral Deeds delivered at one and the ſame time, and there ought to be a precedent Eſtate, upon which the Eſtate, as upon a foundation, may accrue and encreaſe. But Coke Chief Juſtice ſaid, That ſuch Foundation ought to be permanent and not revocable at the will of the Grantor or Leſſor; And therefore if a man granteth an Advowſon to another at will, upon Condition that if he doe ſuch a thing, &c. that he ſhall have Fee, in this Caſe the Eſtate at will is not any ſuch Foundation as the Law requireth to ſupport an Accruer of an Eſtate of Freehold or Inheritance, for the Grantor may determine
[b] the Will before the Condition performed, and ſo avoid his own Grant, and a Leaſe at will cannot ſupport a Remainder over. And if a man granteth an Advowſon, or a Rent, &c. for years upon Condition that if the Leſſee pay 10 s. within one year, that he ſhall have for life, and if after the year he pay 20 s. that he ſhall have Fee; the Leſſee payeth the 10 s. within the year, and after the year he payeth the 20 s. according to the Condition, yet he ſhall have but for life, for the Eſtate for life at the time of the Grant was but in Contingency, which is no Foundation upon which an Eſtate can increaſe; for a poſſibility cannot accrue upon a poſſibility, and the Eſtate in Fee-ſimple cannot accrue upon the Eſtate for years, for the ſame is drowned by the acceſs of the Eſtate for life, as ſhall be afterwards ſaid.

As to the ſecond; The Privity of Eſtate ought to continue; and the ſame is proved by the ſaid Caſe of the Lord Lovell. And therefore if the Leſſee for life, or years, or Donee in tail who hath ſuch a Condition annexed to his Eſtate, alien before the Condition performed; or if Leſſee for life, or years, ſurrendreth to the Leſſor, he ſhall never after take benefit of ſuch Condition, for the Privity of Eſtate in ſuch caſe ought to continue, for the Increaſe of the Eſtate ought to enure upon the particular Eſtate, as upon a Foundation; And therefore, if in ſuch caſe the Leſſee for life, or years, or the the Donee in tail alienateth all his Estate, and take back an Estate, and afterwards perform the Condition; yet nothing can accrue to him, because that by the absolute alienation the privity was once absolutely destroyed, which cannot be revived by taking back any Estate; As if one Coparcener after partition maketh a Feoffement in fee, and taketh back an Estate to her self again and her Heirs, yet the privity of the Estate to have Aid paramount is destroyed, 11 Hen. 4. 22. Vide 38 Edw. 3. 10. b. So if Tenant by Homage ancestrel maketh a Feoffement in fee, and taketh back an Estate to him in fee, he shall not hold by Homage ancestrel. Littl. lib. 2. fol. 33. But if Lessee for life, &c. grant his Estate upon condition, and entreth for the condition broken, and afterwards performeth the condition, there peradventure the Fee shall accrue to him; for the possibility was not absolutely destroyed; and when he entreth for the condition broken, he hath his old Estate; and it needeth not that the particular estate continue to all respects, but if such a Privity of Estate continueth which is capable of an Accruer, it is sufficient. And therefore, if such Lessee for life maketh a Lease for years, or if Lessee for years maketh a Lease for a lesser terme; or if such Donee maketh a Lease for his own life, or for years, yet for the Privity of Estate which continueth in them; they are capable of an Accruer of an Estate: But if such Tenant in tail maketh a Lease for the life of another, there he is not capable of any Accruer, because he hath gained a new Reversion in fee, and the first Privity remaineth not, and yet in such case if the Lessee for life dieth, there the first Privity of Estate is revived. So if a man maketh a Gift to one, to have and to hold to him and the Heirs of his body of his Wife lawfully begotten, with such condition ut supra, and afterwards the Wife dieth without Issue, so that now he is become Tenant in tail after possibility, &c. in this case, although that the Estate be changed, yet forasmuch as the Privity remaineth, he may by the performance of the Condition, have Fee after. So if a Lease be made to two with condition to have Fee, and one dieth, the Survivor may perform the Condition, and have Fee. But if the said Joint-tenants have made partion of the terme, the Condition is destroyed; for the Estate in Fee ought to accrue to them jointly, and not in severalty. And in the case at bar, although that Tho. Tyndall had died before the performance of the Condition, his Heirs of his body might have performed it, for although that the persons were altered, yet the same Estate continueth; and this power to perform the Condition descendeth to his Heir, as an Inheritance annexed to the foundation which descendeth to him, and he, after the Condition performed, shall have the Reversion in Fee quodam modo by descent, as in Shelley's Case, in the First Part of my Reports. And although it be requisite that Privitie of Estate continue; yet it is not requisite that the Accruer do drown the particular Estate; for if a man maketh a Lease for life, the Remainder for life, or in tail, upon condition that if the first Lessee doth such a thing, that he shall have Fee; in this case by the Performance of the condition he shall have Fee, and yet it shall not drown the Estate for life, quod fuit concessum per Curiam. And if a man maketh a Lease for years, upon condition that if the Lessor do oust him within the terme, that he shall have Fee; in this case if the Lessor do oust him, now the interest of the terme is turned into a Right; and yet the Lessee in such case shall have Fee, for two Causes. 1. because it is the act and wrong of the Lessor himself, whereof he shall not take advantage: 2. at the same instant that the Lessor doth put him out, at the same instant the Lessee hath fee, and the title of the Lessee is by force of the Condition, which is paramount the ouster; and therewith agreeth 6 R. 2. Quid juris clamat. 20. And that a Possession in an instant is sufficient to support the encrease of a Fee, appeareth in 12 E. 2. Voucher 265. A man maketh a Lease for years upon condition, that if the Lessor doth not pay to the Lessee 100 marks at the end of the terme, that he shall have Fee, there the end of the terme doth consist upon an instant of time. And if the Estate tail of the Lord Stafford had determined for want of Issue, and Ursula had died, so that the Reversion of Tho. Tyndall had come in possession; yet forasmuch as the Privity of the Estate continueth, although that the Quality of the Reversion is altered to a Possession, the Condition remaineth. But there is a difference between the Continuance of the Privity of the Estate of the Lessor or Grantor, and of the Privitie of Estate of the Lessee or Grantee; for the Privitie of the Estate on the part of the Lessor needeth not continue; for although the Lessor or Grantor alieneth his Reversion, or be attainted, &c. yet the Condition remaineth; for by no act that he can doe can he frustrate or derogate from his Grant; and therewith agreeth 31 Edw. 1. Feoffements and Faits, 119. 6 R. 2. Quid juris clamat, 20. and Plowden's Com. in the Lord Lovel's Case. But if Lessee for years with condition to have Fee accept a Release from the Lessor for his life, or in tail, and afterwards the condition is performed, he shall not have Fee, because that the Estate for years, which is the foundation upon which the Accruer is, by his acceptance of a greater Estate, is drowned, and hath no continuance: As if Lessee for years without impeachment of Waste taketh an Estate for his life, the Privilege which was annexed to the Estate for years, is lost, 5 Hen. 5. 9. 3 Ed. 4. 44. in Mary de la Idles Case. 28 H. 8. Dyer 10. 6. And it was resolved, that if the Queen had died before the Condition performed, that yet Tyndall might have performed the Condition; and if the Queen under her Great Seal had refused to take the money; yet if Tyndall had tendred the money at the Receipt of the Exchequer that he had gained the Fee-simple, for the Queen by no means could countermand or hinder the encrease of the Estate in such case.

As to the third, it was resolved; That if the Condition had been that when Tyndall shall pay to I. S. 20 s. that he shall have Fee, that presently by the paiment by operation of Law, the Fee shall be devested out of the Queen, and vested in Tyndall, and that for necessity, for if it shall not vest at the time of the Condition performed, it shall never vest; and therefore if Office, or Petition, Monstrans de droit, or other thing should be requisite, it should make the Queen's Grant void, and disable the Queen to make such Grant, and therewith agreeth Plow. Com. in the Lord Lovel's Case, for there it is said, when the Condition is performed, the Fee-simple shall be immediately out of the King, without Petition or Monſtrans de droit, or other Circumſtance, for if he ought to ſay, to uſe ſuch Circumſtances, then it ſhould not veſt preſently; and if it ſhall not veſt preſently it ſhould never veſt; for if an Eſtate cannot be enlarged at the time of the enlargement appointed, it ſhall never be enlarged; and theſe are the words of the Book; and therefore for neceſſity the Fee-ſimple ſhall paſs in the Caſe at bar out of the Queen without any circumſtance; for the Law will not require Circumſtances when they ſhall ſubvert the Subſtance. And therefore there is a notable Caſe in 49 E. 3. 16. where the Caſe was, That Iſabel Goodcheap was ſeiſed in Fee of a certain Houſe in London, and by her Will in writing, and enrolled, deviſed the ſaid Houſe, being holden of the King, to Richard Goodcheap, to him and to the Heirs of his body: ſo that if he die without Iſſue, that the Lands ſhall be ſold by her Executors, or Executors of the Executors, and made W. D. and W. W. and I. de T. her Executors, and died without Heir. Richard Goodcheap died without Iſſue, by which the Houſe came to the King by Eſcheat, and afterwards I. one of the Executors died, W. W. refuſed, and W. D. ſold, &c. And there the Queſtion is, If the Sale by one Executor be good, or not? But it is there argued by all, That if the Sale be good, that the ſame ſhall deveſt the Land out of the King, and the cauſe is for neceſſity of Law, for if the Sale ſhall not deveſt the Land at the time of the Sale, no Sale ſhall be made at all, and the Executors, who have but a Power, cannot have a Petition, Monſtrans de droit, or other Remedy. [77]

As to the fourth Incident, it was reſolved; That it ought to be by one and the ſame Grant, or by two Deeds delivered at one time, which is all one in effect; For, Quæ in continenti fiunt in eſſe videntur; and the reaſon thereof is, Becauſe the Foundation, ſcil. the particular Eſtate, and the Increaſe of the Eſtate thereupon is but one Grant to take effect out of one Root, although it veſt at ſeveral times, yet when it is veſted, it hath its vigor and force of one Grant. And therefore it is well ſaid in 27 H. 6. that when he hath performed the Condition he hath Fee from the time of the beginning of the Leaſe, as by one Grant, and one and the ſame Eſtate.

As to the firſt Objection againſt the Form of the Grant, ſcil. Prædictam reverſionem, to conſtrue the ſame to extend to the Eſtate tail granted before to Tyndall, (which the Queen cannot grant again) and not to the Reverſion of the Fee; (which the Queen may grant, and which is mentioned before) ſhall be a Conſtruction tending to the great diſhonour of the Queen, and in great damage and diſenheriſin of the Subject: In diſhonour of the Queen for three Cauſes; 1. To have her Grant under the Great Seal by captious and nice conſtructions avoided; 2. Preſume ſuch Ignorance in the Queen (who was a wiſe, learned and moſt excellent Princeſs, and the Phœnix of her Sex) that ſhe intended to grant that which ſhe could not grant, and not that which ſhe could grant. 3. That the Queen (as it was objected) cannot make ſuch a Grant in futuro, when a Subject may doe it without queſtion; and therefore à fortiori, the Queen might doe it in ſuch caſe. Alſo the ſame ſhould tend to the damage of the Subject who ſhall have the King's Charter under the Great Seal, but by ſuch nice and captious Conſtruction ſhall loſe the Land contained therein; which ſhall turn to the overthrowing of him and his whole family and poſterity. And the Caſe of Sir John Molyns, the Lord Chandos, and the Earl of Rutland, were affirmed for good Law. But, Note, the Queen granteth not only the Reverſion aforeſaid, but alſo all and ſingular the Premiſſes, &c. which words make this Caſe clear.

And as to the laſt of the ſaid two Objections, It was reſolved by the whole Court, That the words were ſufficient to paſs the Inheritance of the Lands, for to paſs a future Eſtate upon a Contingent, words in future are apt and ſufficient enough, as in all Charters and Letters Patents of Lands, the Clauſe of Grant of Liberties and Franchiſes are all with ſuch words in effect as theſe are, becauſe they are contingent, and future. And the invention of this Grant to Tyndall was commended by the Juſtices, for when the Lord Stafford was Tenant in tail the Reverſion to Queen Mary, if the Queen had granted the whole Fee-ſimple, then by a Common Recovery, or Fine levied, the Lord Stafford might have barred his Iſſues; and by a Common Recovery the Reverſion to Tyndall in Fee, which was not the meaning of the Queen, or of Tyndall, but the Purpoſe was, that it ſhould be in the power of Tyndall and the Heirs of his body to hold and reſtrain the Lord Stafford and the Heirs of his body, that they ſhould not alien or bar his Reverſion in tail, by taking the Fee-ſimple out of the Crown by the Performance of the Condition to enable them to alien. But Coke Chief Juſtice in his Argument moved a Queſtion upon the Statute of 34 H. 8. cap. 20. That if the Lord Stafford and his Wife had ſuffered a Common Recovery with Voucher, if the ſame ſhould not bar the Reverſion which Tyndall had in tail, the Reverſion in Fee being in the Crown: And thereupon he did conſider the words of the ſaid Act, The Preamble of which ſeemeth for to provide for the Heirs of the bodies of the King's Donees in tail. And the Queſtion mentioned in the Preamble is, Whether ſuch feigned and untrue Recoveries againſt ſuch Tenant in tail, &c. ſhould after the death of the Tenant in tail, bind the Heirs in tail, or not: And the body of the Act is, For the plain declaration whereof, and to avoid and extinct from henceforth diverſity of opinions in ſuch caſes, Be it ordained and enacted, that no ſuch feigned Recovery, hereafter to be had by aſſent of parties, againſt any ſuch Tenant in tail of any Lands, &c. whereof the Reverſion or Remainder at the time of ſuch Recovery had, ſhall be in the King, ſhall bind or conclude the Heirs in tail, whether any common Voucher be had in ſuch feigned Recovery or not, but that after the death of any ſuch Tenant in tail, &c. the Heirs in tail may enter, &c. So that by the Letter of the Act no remedy is provided for him in the Reverſion or Remainder in tail, although that the Reverſion of the fee be in the King. But yet the Chief Juſtice held, that by neceſſary conſequence ſuch Reverſions and Remainders in tail are preſerved by the ſaid Act: for when there is Tenant in tail, the Remainder in fee, and Tenant in tail ſuffereth a Common Recovery, the reaſon of bar of the Eſtate of him in the Remainder who is a Stranger to the Recovery is, by Conſequent, becauſe that the Common Recovery doth bar the Eſtate [b]

of Tenant in tail, who is party to the Recovery, and by Conſquent, all Reverſions and Remainders of common perſons expectant thereupon: But when the Act of 34 Hen. 8. provided, That no Common Recovery had againſt Tenant in tail, who is party to the Recovery, ſhall barr the Iſſues when the King hath the Reverſion, &c. thereby incluſive the Act doth preſerve the Reverſions and Remainders in tail of the King's Grants, for they cannot be barred, but when the Eſtate tail, upon which they depend, is barred; and that is the cauſe, that when Tenant in tail is in of another Eſtate, and ſuffereth a Common Recovery as Tenant, it ſhall not bar any Reverſion or Remainder, becauſe the ſame ſhould bar the Eſtate of the Tenant in tail, who is party to the Recovery; for, Quod non valet in principali in acceſſoria ſeu conſequenti non valebit, & quod non valet in magis propinquo, non valebit in magis remoto. And if the Lord Stafford might have barred the Reverſion in tail of Tho. Tyndall before the Condition performed, the Invention of the ſaid Grant had failed of his final purpoſe: for which cauſe it ſeemed to the ſaid Lord Chief Juſtice, that the ſaid Act doth preſerve the Reverſion of the ſaid Tho. Tyndall; which was argued by the whole Court. [78]

Laſtly, It was reſolved by the whole Court, That if the Reverſion in fee had remained in the Crown, That the Fine levied by the ſaid Edward Lord Stafford, the Father, had not barred the Lord Stafford that now is, but that he might enter, according to the Reſolution in Noteley's Caſe, Paſch. 31 Eliz. in the Common Pleas, and eſpecially, by reaſon of theſe words in the ſaid Act of 34 H. 8. The ſaid Recovery, or any other thing or things hereafter to be had, done, or ſuffered, by or againſt the ſaid Tenant in tail, to the contrary notwithſtanding.

Wiat Wield's Caſe.

IN a Replevin between William Wood Plaintiff, and William Norton, Eſquire, Defendant, upon taking of his Sheep at Croydon, in the County of Surrey, in a place called Norwood; The Defendant ſaith, That the place where, &c. doth contain 200 Acres, part of the Manor of Croydon, and entituleth himſelf to have Common there, and avoweth for damage feaſant. The Plaintiff, in bar of the Avowrie, ſaith, That before and at the time of the taking, he himſelf was, and as yet is ſeiſed of five Acres of Land in Croydon aforeſaid in fee, and that he and all thoſe whoſe Eſtate he hath in the ſaid five Acres, time out of mind, &c. have uſed to have Common of paſture in the ſaid 200 Acres for all his Cattel commonable, upon the ſaid five Acres of Land levant and couchant at all times of the year, as to the ſaid five Acres of Land appertaining; for which cauſe he put in his Cattel, &c. To which the ſaid Defendant ſaith, That before the ſaid William Wood had any thing in the ſaid five Acres of land, one Wiat Wield was ſeiſed of a Meſſuage and 40 Acres of land in Croydon aforeſaid, whereof the ſaid five Acres were parcel, in Fee, and that the ſaid Wiat, and all thoſe whoſe Eſtate he had in the ſaid Meſſuage and fourty Acres of land, whereof, &c. had time out of mind Common of paſture in the ſaid 200 Acres for all his Cattel commonable upon the ſaid Meſſuage and fourty Acres of land, whereof, &c. levant and couchant, as to the ſaid Meſſuage and fourty Acres of land appertaining. And that the ſaid Wiat Wield, ſo ſeiſed of the ſaid five Acres, did enfeoffe one John Wood in Fee, whoſe Eſtate the ſaid William Wood before the taking, &c. had, Idemque Willielmus Wood colore inde clamans Communiam paſturæ in the ſaid 200 Acres, pro omnibus averiis ſuis communicalibus ſuper prædict' quinque acris terræ, levant and couchant, &c. put in his Cattel, and he took them damage feaſant; upon which the Plaintiff did demurr in Law. And the laſt Terme and this Terme this Caſe was argued by the Serjeants at the bar, and this Terme by the Juſtices of the Bench, ſcil. Coke Chief Juſtice, Walmeſley, Warburton, Daniel, and Foſter: And in this Caſe two Points were reſolved: [b] [79]

1. That (be the Common appendant or appurtenant) the Common in the Caſe at Bar is apportionable.

2. That the Pleading thereof was ſufficient.

As to the firſt it was agreed, that Common appendant was of Common right, and ſeverable, and although that the Commoner purchaſeth parcel of the Land in which, &c. yet the Common ſhall be apportioned, but in ſuch caſe Common appurtenant, and not appendant, by purchaſe of parcel of the Land in which, &c. is extinct for the cauſes and reaſons given in Terringham's Caſe, all which was affirmed for good Law by the whole Court. And it was ſtrongly urged, that the Common appurtenant ſhall not be ſeverable in the Caſe at bar for divers cauſes.

1. Becaſe that this Common appurtenant wholly belonged to a Houſe and fourty Acres of Land by preſcription; and he by his own Act cannot make this entire thing ſeveral.

2. The Feoffee of parcell ſhall not have Common, becauſe that the Preſcription faileth, for no Common was ever appurtenant to that Parcel, but to the Meſſuage of the whole Land.

3. Common appurtenant is a thing againſt Common right, and therefore by the act of the party ſhall be no more ſevered or divided, than a Condition or Nomine pœnæ, or any other thing againſt Common right. As to that it was anſwered and reſolved, That it appeareth by the Preſcription, that the ſaid Common is ſeverable, for the Preſcription is to have Common in the Land, in which, &c. to be taken by the mouths of his Beaſts which are levant and couchant upon the Land, to which, &c. and the ſame extendeth to the whole, and every parcel, and it cannot be more damage to the Tenant of the Land in which, &c. after the Severance, than it was before, for no other Beaſts can paſture there, but thoſe which are levant and couchant upon the Land, to which, &c. But if he who hath Common appurtenant purchaſeth parcel of the Land in which, &c. all the Common is extinct; Or, if he taketh a Leaſe of parcel of the Land, all is ſuſpended, becauſe it is the folly of the Commoner to entermeddle with part of the Land in which he hath Common, which

[b] belongeth not to him. But when the Commoner entermeddleth not but with his own Lands, by alienation thereof, the ſame in ſuch caſe ſhall not turn to his prejudice, for the ſame is not againſt any Rule of the Law, as the other caſe, when he purchaſeth part of the Land, in which, &c. becauſe that his Common appurtenant was againſt Common right; and he cannot common in his own Land which he hath purchaſed. And it ſhall be a great inconvenience, If by alienation of parcel the Alienee ſhall loſe the Common which belongeth to him, for then the Alienor ſhall loſe his Common alſo, for by the reaſon which hath been made, Wiat Wield could not preſcribe to have Common to the Houſe and 35 Acres, becauſe that the Common was entirely appurtenant to the Meſſuage and 40 Acres, and if the Law ſhould be ſuch, all Common appurtenants in England ſhould be deſtroyed (which ſhould be againſt the Commonwealth) for no Land doth continue in ſo intire a manner, every Acre together with another, as it hath been ab initio, but by preferment of younger Sons, advancement of Daughters, paiment of Debts, or other neceſſary Conſiderations, part hath been ſevered; and therefore this caſe is not like to a Condition, or Nomine pœnæ, which are entire, and not ſeverable by the act of parties, but is like to a Rent reſerved upon a Leaſe for years: And therefore, If a man maketh a Leaſe of three Acres, each of equal yearly value, rendring 30*s.* rent, and the Leſſor granteth the Reverſion of one Acre, and the Tenant attorneth, the Grantee ſhall have 12 d. rent, for although that it was one Leaſe, one Reverſion, and one Rent, yet the ſame was incident to the Reverſion, which was ſeverable, and the Rent ſhall wait upon the Reverſion, and upon every part of it. So in the Caſe at bar, although that at the beginning there was but one Common attendant upon the Tenancy; yet foraſmuch as the ſame is attendant upon the Tenancy which is ſeverable, and upon every part of it, the Alienee of part of the Tenancy ſhall have Common. So if he who hath ſuch Common appurtenant leaſeth part of the Land to another, the Leſſee ſhall have Common for the Beaſts levant and couchant; and if an Advowſon be appendant to a Manor which deſcendeth to divers Coparceners, and the Coparceners make partition of the Manor to which, &c. without ſpeaking of the Advowſon, the Advowſon, notwithſtanding the Diviſion and Severance from the Manor to which, &c. doth remain appendant, 13 Ed. 3. Quare Imp. 38. 19 Ed. 3. ibid. 59. 17 Ed. 38. 43 Ed. 3. 35. 13 E. 2. Quare Imp. 170. 2 H. 7. 50. Vide 4 *Eliz. Vinyor's Caſe.

[b] TRin. 7 Jacobi, Rott. 2629. Robert Vinyor brought an Action of Debt againſt William Wylde, upon an Obligation of 20 li. 15 Julii, Anno 6. of the ſame King. The Defendant demanded Oyer of the Bond and Condition endorſed, which was, That if the above bounden William Wylde do and ſhall from time to time, and at all times hereafter, ſtand to, abide, obſerve, perform, fulfill and keep, the rule, order, judgement, arbitrament, ſentence and final determination of William Rugge, Eſquire, Arbitrator indifferently named, elected and choſen, as well on the part of the ſaid William Wylde, as on the part of the ſaid Robert Vinyor, to rule, order, adjudge, arbitrate, and finally determine all matters, ſutes, controverſies, debates, griefs, and contentions heretofore moved and ſtirred, and now depending between the ſaid parties, touching and concerning the ſum of Two and twenty pence heretofore taxed upon the ſaid William Wylde for divers kind of Pariſh buſineſs, within the Pariſh of Themilthorpe, in the County of Norfolk, ſo as the ſaid award be made and ſet down in writing under the hand and ſeal of the ſaid William Rugge, at or before the Feaſt of Saint Michael the Archangel next enſuing after the date of theſe Preſents, That then, &c. And the Defendant pleaded, That the ſaid William Rugge made no arbitrament, de & ſuper Præmiſſis, &c. The Plaintiff replyed, That after the making of the ſaid Writing obligatory, and before the ſaid Feaſt of St. Michael, ſcil. 22 Aug. Anno 6. ſupradict. apud Themilthorpe præd. prædict' Williel' Wylde per quoddam ſcriptum ſuum cujus datus eſt eiſdem die & anno revocavit & abrogavit, Anglice, [82] did call back, omnem authoritatem quamcunque quam idem Willielmus Wylde per prædict' ſcriptum obligatorium dediſſet & commiſiſſet præfat' Willielmo Rugge arbitratori ſuo, & adtunc totaliter deadvocavit, & vacuum tenuit totum & quicquid dict' Willielmus Rugge poſt deliberationem ejuſdem ſcripti ſibi faceret in circa dict' arbitrium, regulam, &c. undo ex quo præd' Willielmus Rugge poſt confectionem præd' ſcripti, & ante præd' Feſtum Sancti Mich' tunc prox' ſequen' in forma prædict' exoneravit, & abrogavit arbitratorem præd' de omni authoritate arbitrandi de & ſuper Præmiſſis in condit. præd. ſuperius ſpecificat', contra formam & effectum conditionis illius, & ſubmiſſionis in eadem mentionat', idem Robertus petit judicium, &c. Upon which the Defendant did demurr in Law. And in this Caſe three Points were reſolved.

1. That

1. That although that William Wylde the Defendant was bound in a Bond to ſtand to, abide, obſerve, &c. the Rule, Order, Abitrament, &c. yet he may countermand the ſame; for a man cannot by his act make ſuch Authority, Power, or Warrant not countermandable; which by the Law of his nature is countermandable; As if I make a Letter of Attorney to make Livery, or to ſue an Action in my name; or if I aſſigne Auditors to make an Accompt; or if I make one my Factor; or if I ſubmit my ſelf to an Arbitrament; although that theſe are done by expreſs words irrevocably, yet they may be revoked: So if I make my Teſtament and laſt Will irrevocably, yet I may revoke it, for my act or my words cannot alter the Judgement of the Law to make that irrevocable, which of its own nature is revocable. And therefore (where it is ſaid in 5 Edw. 4. 3. b. If I be bounden to ſtand to the Award which I. S. ſhall make, I could not diſcharge that Arbitrament, becauſe I am bound to ſtand to his Award, but if it be without Obligation it is otherwiſe) it was reſolved, That in one caſe, or the other, the Authority of the Arbitrator may be revoked; but then in the one caſe I ſhall forfeit my Bond, and in the other I ſhall forfeit nothing; for, ex nuda ſubmiſſione non oritur actio: and therewith agreeth Brooke in abridging of the ſaid Book of 5 Edw. 4. 3. and ſo the Book of 5 Edw. 4. is well explained, Vide 31 H. 6. 30. 28 H. 6. 6. 49 E. 3. 9. 18 E. 4. 9. 8 E. 4. 10.

2. It was reſolved, That the Plaintiff needeth not averr, that the ſaid William Rugge had notice of the ſaid Countermand, for that is implied in theſe words, revocavit & abrogavit omnem auctoritatem, &c. for without Notice it is no Revocation or Abrogation of the Authority: and therefore if there was no Notice, then the Defendant might take Iſſue, quod non revocavit, &c. [b] and if there were no Notice, it ſhall be found for the Defendant; as if a man plead, quod feoffavit, dedit, or demiſit pro termino vitæ, the ſame impleth Livery, for without Livery, it is not Feoffement, Gift or Demiſe: But there is a difference when two things are requiſite to the performance of an act, and both things are to be done by one and the ſame part, as in caſe of Feoffement, Gift, Demiſe, Revocation, Countermand, &c. And when two things are requiſite to be performed by ſeveral perſons; as of a Grant of a Reverſion, Attornement is not implied in it, and yet without Attornment the Grant hath not perfection, but forasmuch as the Grant is made by one, and the Attornement is to be by another, it is not implied in the pleading of the Grant of one; but in the other caſe both things are to be done by one and the ſame perſon, and that maketh the difference. And therewith agreeth 21 Hen. 6. 30. where William Bridges brought an Action of Debt for 200 li. upon an Arbiterment againſt William Bentley, the Defendant pleaded, that before any Judgement or Award made by the Arbitrators, the ſaid William Bentley diſcharged the Arbitrators at Coventry, in the County of Warwick; and the ſame was holden a good Bar, and yet he did not averr any Notice to be given. So it is adjudged in 28 Hen. 6. 6. 6 H. 7. 10, &c.

3. It was reſolved, That by this Countermand or Revocation of the Power of the Arbitrator; the Obligee ſhall take benefit of the Obligation, and that for two Cauſes; 1. becauſe he hath broken the words of the Condition, which are, That he ſhould ſtand to, and abide, &c. the Rule, Order, &c. and when he countermandeth the Authority of the Arbitrator, he doth not ſtand to and abide, &c. which words are put in ſuch Conditions, to the intent that there ſhould be no countermand, but that an end ſhould be made by the Arbitrator of the Controverſie, and that the Power of the Arbitrator ſhould continue till he had made an Award; and when the Award is made, then there are words to compell the Parties to perform it, ſcil. obſerve, perform, fulfill, and keep the Rule, Order, &c. and this Form was invented by prudent Antiquity: and it is good to follow in ſuch Caſes the ancient Forms and Precedents, which are full of Knowledge and Wiſedom: and with this Reſolution agreeth the ſaid Book of 5 Edw. 4. 3. which is to be intended as aboveſaid, That the Obligor cannot diſcharge the Arbitrament, but he ſhall forfeit his Bond, and the Book giveth the Reaſon, which is the Cauſe of this Reſolution, ſcil. Becauſe I am bound to ſtand to his award, ſcil. to ſtand to his award, which I do not when I diſcharge the Arbitrament. The other Reaſon is, becauſe the Obligor by his own act hath made the Condition of the Obligation (which was endorſed for the Obligor, to ſave him from the Penalty of the Obligation) impoſſible to be performed, and by conſequence his Obligation is become ſingle, and without the benefit or help of any Condition, becauſe he hath diſabled himſelf to perform the Condition. Vide [83] 21 Ed. 4. 55. per Choke, & 18 Ed. 4. 18. b. & 20. a. If one be bound by an Obligation, with Condition that the Obligor ſhall give leave to the Obligee for the time of ſeven years to carry Wood, &c. in that caſe although that he give him leave, yet if he countermand it, or diſturbe the Obligee, the Obligation is forfeited. And afterwards Judgement was given for the Plaintiff.

Sir Richard Pexhall's Caſe.

[b] IN a Second Deliverance brought by Euſtace Barton againſt Nicholas Moore, for taking of his Cattel the 17 of April, 5 Jacobi, at Broxhead, in the County of Southampton, in a place called Gate, the Defendant did avow the taking, becauſe Sir Richard Pexhall, Knight, was ſeiſed of the ſaid Manor of Broxhead within the ſaid County, whereof the place in which, &c. was parcell in fee; and held the ſame of the Biſhop of Wincheſter in Socage, as of his Manor of Sutton, and was alſo ſeiſed of the Manors of Beanraper, Cranes, Chinham, Steventon, and divers other Manors, Lands and Tenements, and a Houſe in London deviſable by Cuſtom in Fee, and held the ſaid Manor of Steventon of the Queen by Knights Service in capite, and ſo ſeiſed made his Will in writing, and thereby deviſed to Elianor his Wife the ſaid Houſe in London, and two parts of the ſaid Manors, Lands and Tenements for 13 years, and added a Proviſo, that the ſaid Deviſe ſhould not be prejudicial to any Eſtate, Title, or Intereſt for year or years, life or lifes, which ſhould be after deviſed in the ſame Will; and after in the ſame Will gave and bequeathed to the ſaid Nicholas Moore his Kinſman 10 li. iſſuing and payable de & ex præd' Meſſuag. & de & ex præd' duabus partibus maneriorum & cæterorum tenementorum præd' quarterly at the moſt uſual Feaſts, and for not payment thereof to diſtrein; and the Diſtreſſes to detein quouſque, &c. And that the ſaid Sir Richard ſo ſeiſed, died ſeiſed, and for 20 li. for two years ended Anno 16 Eliz. he avowed and averred the value of the ſaid Manors and Tenements aforeſaid at the time of the Will, &c. to be 200 li. per annum, above
[84] all repriſes: and it appeareth by the Bar to the Avowrie, that the words of the Will were, I will and bequeath to Dame Elianor my Wife, all my Manors, Lands, Tenements, &c. for the terme of thirteen years next after my deceaſe: Provided that this Gift, Deviſe and Bequeſt, made to the ſaid Elianor, ſhall not be prejudicial to any of the Eſtate or Eſtates, Titles, or Intereſt for year or years, life or lives that ſhall be hereafter in this preſent Will given or bequeathed. And further in the ſame Will deviſed, Item, I give and bequeath to my Coſin Nicholas Moore a hundred Sheep, and ten Bullocks, and 10 li. iſſuing and payable out of my Lands and Tenements quarterly, at the moſt uſual Feaſts, and for non-payment to diſtrein, and the Diſtreſs to detein untill he be ſatisfied of the Arrerages, and to keep the Court and Courts of all my Manors upon lawfull requeſt to the ſaid Nicholas, by him or his deputy during his life, and when the ſaid Nicholas ſhall think it moſt convenient and meet to keep. And upon the whole Record, the Queſtions which aroſe out of this part of the Will were two.

1. If Sir Richard Pexhall hath power, by the Act of 34 H. 8. to deviſe this Rent of the 10 li. to Nicholas Moore out of all the Lands?

2. What Eſtate Nicholas Moore hath in the Rent?

As to the firſt, it was objected, That Sir Richard Pexhall had not purſued the power which the Act of 34 H. 8. hath given to him; For the words of the Act are, That every one, &c. may deviſe any Rent, Common, or other Profit out of the ſame two Parts, (viz. out of his Manors, Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments in three Parts to be divided) or out of any Part thereof, or as much thereof as ſhall amount to the full clear yearly value of two Parts thereof: And the ſole Queſtion doth depend upon the ſaid Clauſe of 34 H. 8. for the Statute of 32 H. 8. giveth not any Power to the Owner of the Land, to deviſe Rent, Common, or other Profit out thereof: And in this Caſe, where Sir Richard hath a Power to deviſe a Rent, &c. out of two Parts by this Act, he hath deviſed a Rent out of all his Lands, and ſo hath not purſued the Authority which the Act hath given to him, and the Clauſe of 34 H. 8. which followeth next after the ſaid branch of the Act, by which it is enacted, That by the Authority aforeſaid, the ſaid Will ſo declared ſhall be good and effectual for two Parts of the ſaid Manors, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, although the Will declared be made of the whole, or of more than of two Parts, extend only to a Deviſe of the Land it ſelf, and not to any Rent, Common, or Profit out thereof; as appeareth by the Letter thereof, and by all the ſubſequent branches concerning the Diviſion, and this Clauſe is an Explanation of the Act of 32 H. 8. when all is diviſed, but, as hath been ſaid, the Power to deviſe a Rent, &c. out of the Land, is only given by the Statute of 34 H. 8. And the opinion in Butler and Baker's Caſe in the Third Part of [b] my Reports, 33. was cited, where it is ſaid, that if a man ſeiſed of three Acres, (holden by Knights Service) each of the yearly value of 12 d. and deviſeth a Rent of 3 s. out of theſe three Acres, this Deviſe is void for the whole, becauſe he doth not purſue the Power which the Statute preſcribeth; but in ſuch caſe, If he deviſeth a Rent of 3 s. which is the value of all, out of two Parts, it is good, becauſe that in that caſe the value doth extend to the Land, and not to the Rent, for the words are, any Rent, without reſtraint. As to that it was anſwered and reſolved by the Court, 1. That it is true, that the Statute of 32 H. 8. doth not extend to a Deviſe of any Rent, &c. out of the Land, but the Power as to that is given by the Statute of 34 H. 8. which hath two diſtinct branches as to this Point; 1. That every one having a ſole Eſtate in Fee-ſimple, &c. of and in any Manors, &c. and having no Manors, &c. holden of the King, or of any other perſon by Knights ſervice, ſhall have full and free liberty, power, and authority, to give, diſpoſe, will, or deviſe, &c. all his Manors, &c. or any Rent, Common, or other Profit, out of, or to be perceived of the ſame, or out of any

any parcell thereof, at his own free will and pleasure, any Clause in the said former Act notwithstanding. By this branch it appeareth, That he who hath no Lands holden by Knights service may devise any Rent, Common, or Profit out of his Lands whereof he is seised in fee, to what value he will, although the Rent, Common, or Profit doth exceed the value of the Land; for the words are, at his own free will and pleasure. The second branch is, When any is sole seised of any Manors, &c. holden of the King by Knights service in Capite, shall have full and free liberty to devise, &c. by his last Will in writing, &c. two parts of all his Manors, &c. or any Rent, Common, or Profit, out of, or to be perceived of the same two parts, or out of any parcel thereof in three parts to be divided, or as much thereof as shall amount to the full and clear yearly value of two parts thereof, in three parts to be divided at his own free will and pleasure. The third branch is, That all and singular persons having a sole Estate in Fee-simple, &c. of and in any Manors, &c. holden of the King by Knights service, and not in chief, or holden of any other person in Knights service, shall have full and free liberty, &c. by his last Will and Testament in writing, &c. two parts of the said Manors, &c. or any Rent, Common, or other Profit, out of, or to be perceived of the said two parts, or out of any parcell thereof in three parts to be divided, or as much thereof as shall amount to the full and clear yearly value of two parts thereof in three parts to be divided, at his free will and pleasure. The fourth branch is, And that the said Will so declared shall be good for two parts of the said Manors, &c. although it be declared of the whole. And also for the whole of all other such Manors, &c. not holden by Knights service, and of any Rent, Common, or other Profit, out of, or to be perceived of the same, or out of any parcell thereof, at his free will and pleasure. By all these branches it appeareth, that it is principally for the King or Lord (of whom the Land is holden by Knights service, &c.) that the owner of the Land hath not power by his own will to charge but two parts, and by consequence the same tendeth to the benefit of the Heir; For in Case when there is not any Tenure to draw Wardship, &c. there the owner may at his free will and pleasure devise the whole. Then in the Case at Bar where the Manor of Steventon was holden of the King by Knights service in Capite, Sir Richard had not power to charge but two parts; yet when he chargeth the whole, he chargeth two parts and more, and therefore it shall be good, for so much as the Statute doth enable him, and void for the residue, Quia quando plus fit quam fieri debet, videtur etiam ipsum fieri quod faciendum est; but forasmuch as Sir Richard hath not power by his Will to charge but two parts, the charge of the whole is void for the third part, not only as to the King, or other Lord, but as to the Heir also, because that as to the third part the Will doth remain at the Common Law, which was utterly void; and according to this Judgement, and for the same reason, was it adjudged, Mich. 3 & 4 Phil. & Mar. in the Common Pleas, Rott. 126. in Umpton and Hide's Case, That a Will in writing after the Statute of 32 H. 8. and before the Statute of 34 H. 8. declared of the whole Land, whereof part was holden of the King by Knights service in Capite, was good for two parts: and so it had been if the Statute of 34 H. 8. had never been made, which is all one in reason with the Case at Bar; and by this Construction the true intention as well of the Testator in his Will, as of the said Acts of Parliament, without prejudice to any is well observed. And there is a difference between the common case of Licence, and the Case at Bar. For if the King license one to alien two parts of his Manor of D. which is holden of him in Capite, and he alieneth the whole Manor, he hath not pursued the Licence, for by his Alienation the whole Manor passeth, which is not according to his Licence: But when an Act of Parliament doth authorize the Owner of Lands holden in Capite to charge two parts thereof, which he could not doe by the Common Law, in this Case, if he charge the whole Land it is meerly void for the third part, and thereby he hath well pursued the Authority which the Statute hath given to him, to charge two parts. So if a man hath the moiety of the Manor of D. known by the name of the Manor of D. and he alieneth the Manor, he hath well pursued the Licence, for in truth nothing passeth but the moiety; and so you will better understand the Law, amongst the various opinions Obiter, in Plow. Com. 68. b. and in Butler and Baker's Case. [b]

As to the second Point it was agreed by the whole Court, that he hath an Estate for life in the said 10 li. per annum; 1. Because if it had been in Grant, the Grantee should have it for life: for if a man by his Deed granteth a Rent of 10 li. issuing and paiable out of all his Lands quarterly at the usual Feasts, and for non-paiment to distrein for the Rent, and all the arrerages, in this Case the Grantee shall have the Rent for life: Also, in respect that he ought to hold the Courts of all his Manors for his life, Et officium & feodum sunt concommitantia, and he shall have such Estate in the Fee, as he hath in the Office. But it was objected, that then the Divisee should have also 100 Sheep and Bullocks yearly for his life, as well as the Rent; which was denied by the Court for two Causes; 1. the second (Et) in the said sentence doth disjoin and sever the Rent, from the Sheep and Bullocks; as in the Case of 9 E. 4. 43. where two were bounden to stand to the Arbitrament of I. S. de omnibus actionibus personalibus, sectis & querelis, this word (personalibus) shall be referred to all; But if the words were, de omnibus actionibus personalibus & sectis & querelis, it shall be otherwise; for the last (Et) doth disjoin querelis from the whole first part of the sentence, and shall be taken generally, without any reference to personalibus. So in the Case at Bar, when Sir Richard deviseth 100 Sheep, and 10 Bullocks, and 10 li. the last (and) doth sever and disjoin the Rent from the Sheep and Bullocks: 2. These words (payable quarterly) at the usual Feasts, ought to have reference to the Rent, for 10 Bullocks per annum cannot be delivered quarterly. And Judgement was given for Nicholas Moore the Avowant. [85]

Buckmere's Caſe.

[86] IN a Formedon in the Remainder, brought by George Buckmere, Oliver Fowler, William Buckmere, Chriſtopher Buckmere, and Nicholas Buckmere, againſt Robert Sayer, and Vrſula his Wife, of a houſe in Kent of the nature of Gavelkind, the Caſe was ſuch; Thomas Bole had iſſue three Daughters Marion, Johan, and Catherine, and gave the ſaid houſe to Marion, and the heirs of her body begotten; the remainder of the other moiety of the ſaid houſe to Johan, and to the heirs of her body begotten, the remainder of the other moiety to Catherine, and the heirs of her body begotten; and if Johan ſhould die without Iſſue, the remainder of her moiety to Catherine and the heirs of her body, with the like remainder for want of Iſſue of Catherine to Johan: and afterwards Marion did diſcontinue, and died without Iſſue, & de eadem Mariona eo quod obiit ſine hærede de corpore ſuo exeunte remanſit jus (which proveth ſhe diſcontinued, for otherwiſe it ſhould be tenementa præd' remanſ.) unius medietatis tenementorum præd' cum pertin' per formam, &c. præd' Johannæ Bole: & remanſit jus alterius medietatis eorundem tenementorum cum pertinentiis, per formam, &c. præfat. Catherinæ Bole, and afterwards Johan died without iſſue, by which the right of her moiety did remain to the ſaid Catherine, and after the death of Catherine, deſcendit jus integrorum tenementorum iſtis Georgio, &c. and the Tenants did demurr in Law upon this Count, becauſe that the Demandants do demand by one Writ of Formedon ſeveral remainders, where the Demandants ought to [b] have demanded the ſeveral remainders by ſeveral Writs. And becauſe it is to ſee in what caſes the Demandant or Plaintiff ſhall join divers cauſes of Action in one and the ſame Writ againſt the Tenant or Defendant, It is to know, That there is a difference between real and perſonal Actions, and between Actions real which are founded upon a title in the Writ, and Actions real meerly founded upon wrong or deforcement. Real Actions, which are founded upon title, are, as in a Writ of Eſcheat. Præcipe A. quod reddat B. 10 acras terræ, &c. quas C. de eo tenuit, & quæ ad ipſum B. reverti debent tanquam eſcaeta ſua, eo quod præd' C. obiit ſine hærede. So the Ceſſavit, Præcipe A. quod reddat B. unum meſſuagium quod idem A. de eo tenuit per certa ſervitia, & quod ad ipſum B. reverti debet, &c. eo quod idem A. in faciend' ſervitia per biennium jam ceſſavit. So the Writ of Ward, and the Writ of Meſne, and the Writs of Formedon in the Deſcender, Remainder, and Reverter. Then put caſe, that B. before the Statute of Quia Emptores terrarum, had enfeoffed A. of Black acre, to hold by Fealty at 3 d. and by another Deed had enfeoffed him of White acre, to hold of him by Fealty at 6 d. and afterwards A. had died without heir, B. ſhould not have one Writ of Eſcheate of theſe two acres, for the Writ ſhall ſay, Præcipe C. quod reddat B. duas acras, quas A. de eo tenuit, which ſhall be intended an intire Tenure; and therefore in ſuch caſe the Demandant is driven to ſeveral Writs upon the ſeveral Tenures; and therewith agreeth 21 H. 7. 39. So, and upon the ſame reaſon upon a Ceſſer, in ſuch Caſe the Lord ought to have ſeveral Writs of Ceſſavit: and therewith agreeth 3 Ed. 3. 47. 14 Ed. 3. Ceſſavit 20. 10 Ed. 4. 1. 10 Hen. 7. 24. So upon ſeveral Tenures the Tenant ſhall have ſeveral Writs of Meſne againſt the Meſne and ſhall not join them in one Writ; and therewith agreeth 2 H. 5. 2. b. And one ſhall not have one Writ of Ward of the body and Land upon ſeveral Tenures, as it is holden in 6 Edw. 3. 48. 3 Hen. 6. 53. 17 H. 6. Gard 117. But a Writ of Ward of Land was founded upon two ſeveral Tenures in 46 E. 3. br. 619. but there it is holden, that if he had demanded the body, the Writ ſhould have abated. Then put caſe B. by one Deed giveth the Manor of D. to A. and to the heirs of his body, and afterwards B. by another Deed giveth 50 acres of Land to A. and to the heirs of his body, and afterwards A. dieth without Iſſue, The Donor upon theſe diſtinct Gifts ſhall not have one Writ of Formedon in the Reverter, ſuppoſing Quod idem B. dedit prædict' Manerium & 50 acras terræ cum pertinentiis eidem A. & quæ ad præfat. B. reverti debent, &c. no more than upon ſeveral feoffements (as above) and tenures reſerved, he ſhall have one Writ of Eſcheat, or one Writ of Ceſſavit; both which Writs do ſuppoſe, quod tenementa prædicta reverti debent. So of two ſeveral diſtinct Gifts to one with ſeveral Remainders over to one, he ſhall not have one Writ of Formedon in the remainder, nor the Iſſue of ſuch Donee one Writ of Formedon in the deſcender, for the foundation of theſe Writs is the Gift which is diſtinct and ſeveral; and therefore in ſuch caſes, upon the ſeveral foundations, there ought to be ſeveral Writs founded. But if Land be given to a man, and to his Siſter, and to the heirs of their bodies iſſuing, in this caſe they are Joint-tenants, for life, and have ſeveral Inheritances, ſcil. the Brother one moiety to him and to the Heirs of his body, and the Siſter the other moiety to her and to heirs of her body; and in this caſe, although that the Inheritances were ſeveral, yet becauſe the foundation was one, and at one time, and as out of one root, for this cauſe the Donor ſhall have one Writ of Formedon in the Reverter, and therein ſhall ſhew the Gift as it was to the Brother and Siſter, and conclude in the cloſe of the Writ, Quia uterque eorum obiit ſine hærede de corpore, &c. which words prove that each of them hath ſeveral right; and ſo is the Book adjudged in Roger Dardernes Caſe, in 17 E. 3. 51, & 78. 18 E. 3. 39. which is all one Caſe. So, if Lands be given to Father and Son, and to the heirs of their two bodies begotten, the remainder over in fee, and afterwards the Father dieth without any Iſſue but the Son,

Son, and afterwards the Son dieth without Iſſue, and a Stranger abateth, he in the remainder ſhall have one Formedon in the remainder, although the Eſtate tails were ſeveral, yet foraſmuch as aſwell the ſeveral Eſtates in tail, and the remainder alſo depend upon one joint Eſtate in the Father and Son for their lives, and all begin at one time, for this cauſe one Formedon in the remainder lieth. So in the ſaid Caſe of 17 E. 3. If Land had been given to Brother and Siſter, and the Heirs of their two bodies begotten, the remainder over in fee, if the Brother dieth without Iſſue, now the Siſter hath an Eſtate for life in one moiety, the remainder over in fee, and for the other moiety an Eſtate tail, the remainder in fee, and afterwards the Siſter hath Iſſue and dieth, and a Stranger abateth, now for one moiety the remainder doth begin, and after the Iſſue dieth without Iſſue, although that the remainder falleth at ſeveral times, yet he in remainder ſhall have one Formedon, for both remainders, which depend upon one Eſtate, come to one and the ſame perſon. And ſo is the Book to be intended in 31 Hen. 6. 14. where it is ſaid, a man may have one Formedon of divers Gifts. Vide 44 E. 3. tail 13. a good Caſe, and 50 E. 3. Feoffements and faits 97. 7 H. 4. 88.

So it was reſolved in the Caſe at Bar, That when the whole is deviſed to Marion in tail, although that the Deviſor divideth the remainder by moieties, yet, when the whole Land doth remain to Catherine, and all the remainders depend upon one Eſtate, and begin by Demiſe at one time, the Heirs of the body of Catherine ſhall have one Formedon in the remainder, in the ſame manner as if the remainder had been limited to Catherine and Johan, and to the Heirs of their two bodies, the remainder for default of Iſſue of Johan to Catherine, and to her Heirs for ever.

But all Actions real, which are founded upon Wrong or Deforcement, and do not comprehend any Title in them, there the Demandant may demand in one Writ divers Lands and Tenements, which come to him by ſeveral Titles: As if divers Lands deſcend to me from ſeveral Anceſtors, and I am diſſeiſed or deforced of them, I may have a Writ of Right, or a Writ of Entrie in the nature of an Aſſiſe, or a Writ of Aſſiſe, and comprehend all theſe Rights in one Writ, becauſe that in theſe Writs no Title is made in the Writ. Vide Litt. 5 Ed. 4. 80. 12 Ed. 4. 1. 17 Ed. 3. 52. 17 Aſſ. 10. 12 E. 3. Aſſiſe 112. 22 Aſſ. p. 52. 66. 7 Aſſ. p. 18. 7 E. 3. Aſſiſe 138. and 15 Edw. 3. Charge, 9. 15 Aſſ. pl. 11. But if I bring a Writ of Entrie upon a Diſſeiſin done to my Mother and Aunt, Coparceners in Fee-ſimple, the Writ ſhall abate, for there Title is made in the Writ, and it appeareth that there was ſeveral Cauſes of Action, becauſe that the Title is by ſeveral Anceſtors, and therewith agreeth the Book in 31 H. 6. 14. 6. and 43 E. 3. 17. So if an Eſtate tail deſcendeth to two Daughters Coparceneres, and one entreth into the whole, and the other hath Iſſue, and ſhe who entreth dieth without iſſue, in this caſe, the Iſſue ſhall have ſeveral Writs of Formedon in the Deſcender of one moiety of the Poſſeſſion of his Mother, quam inſimul tenuit, and of the other moiety of his Poſſeſſion of her Grandmother; and therewith agreeth 43 E. 3. 16, & 17.

And in perſonal Actions the Plaintiff may comprehend ſeveral Wrongs, and ſeveral Cauſes of Actions, as one Action of Treſpaſs for ſeveral Treſpaſſes made at ſeveral days, and in ſeveral places. Vide 31 H. 6. 14. 8 E. 4. 5. & 44 E. 3. 34. 14 H. 8. 12. F. N. B. 60. An Action of Waſte upon ſeveral Leaſes, for in the Prohibition of Waſte at the Common Law againſt Tenant in Dower, &c. damages were only recovered which was in the perſonalty: So of Debt upon ſeveral Leaſes.

Note, Reader, As to the bringing of Writs of Formedon theſe Differences; 1. If a Remainder [88] be executed in a Writ of Formedon in the Deſcender he ſhall never ſpeak of this Remainder, but the general Writ of Formedon in the Deſcender ſhall ſerve in that caſe, and he ſhall count of an immediate Gift; for he cannot have a Formedon in the Remainder, when the Remainder is once executed. But if a Leaſe for life be made, the remainder in tail to A. the remainder in tail to B. if A. dieth without Iſſue in the life of the Tenant for life; if B. be driven to his Formedon in the Remainder, in his Formedon he ought to mention the Remainder to A. although it were determined or ſpent, as is aforeſaid. For the Demandant in the Formedon in the Remainder ought to make mention of all the precedent Remainders in tail, 8 E. 3. 19. 38 E. 3. 26. 44 E. 3. 8. a. 50 E. 3. 1. 11 H. 4. 39. 18 H. 8. 4. F. N. B. 219. Vide Regiſter 239. b. & 243. b. & 244. a. brevia nunquam ſatis mentionem de remanere quando breve eſt in the Deſcender.

2. If a Man bringeth a Formedon in Reverter or Remainder, as here, the omiſſion of the eldeſt Son who ſurvived the Father, or the like in the Pedigree on the part of the Donee, or of him in the Remainder, ſhall abate the Writ; but of the part of the Donee, although that the Donee had many Iſſues in lineal deſcent inheritable to the Eſtate tail, and which attend the Eſtate, the Demandant needeth not to name any of the Iſſues in the Clauſe & quæ poſt mortem; but ſhall ſay, quæ poſt mortem of the Donee ad ipſum reverti debet, eo quod the Donee died without Iſſue; and that for two cauſes. 1. Becauſe that the Demandant is a Stranger to the Pedigree of the Donee. 2. Becauſe if the Iſſue ſhall be ſuppoſed by the Writ to die without Iſſue, yet it may be that the Eſtate tail is not ſpent, for the Iſſue may have Brothers, or Coſins, inheritable to the Donee, and the Land ought not revert to the Donor ſo long as the Eſtate tail continueth. And in ſome old written Regiſters the Clauſe is, eo quod the Iſſue died without Iſſue. But the printed Regiſter, which imitateth the moſt ancient and trueſt Precedents is; Et quod poſt mortem of the Donee reverti debet, eo quod the Donee died without Iſſue, and therewith agree 22 H. 6. 36. by the Juſtices, 4 Eliz. Dyer 216. by the Juſtices, and 28 H. 8. Dyer 14, 16. Vide 18 E. 3. 42. 26 E. 3. 75. 45 E. 3. 44. 42 E. 3. 20. 44 E. 3. 40. 10 E. 3. 35 E. 3. droit 30. 47. 18 E. 2. Formedon 58, 59. Regiſter 239. b.

3. In a Formedon in the Deſcender, the Demandant (becauſe he is Privy, and ought to know [b] his Pedigree and Deſcent) ought to make mention of every one to whom any Right did deſcend; as after a Diſcontinuance made by the Father, if the eldeſt Son ſurviveth his Father and dieth without Iſſue, yet the younger Brother ought to make mention of him in a Formedon in the Deſcender, otherwiſe if the eldeſt Brother dieth without Iſſue in the life of the Father: à fortiori he ought to make mention of every Heir in tail to hold the Eſtate; that is, who was ſeiſed by force of the tail. But obſerve alſo therein a difference, for if any of the Heirs in tail ſurvive their Father, and holdeth the Eſtate tail, he ought to be named in the Writ Son and Heir; but if he ſurviveth, and dieth before that he was ſeiſed, he need not name him Heir, but may name him Son only, Et quod poſt mortem præd' D. & E. filii ejuſdem D. & E. filii & hæredis præd' D. &c. So is the Writ when the eldeſt Son doth not enter, and when the younger Son entreth and is ſeiſed. Vide Regiſter 238. b. F.N.B. 212. f. 10 E. 3. 49, 50. 44 E. 3. 21, 40. 4 E. 2. Formedon 48. 11 E. 2. ibid. 56. 46 E. 3. 9. 6 E. 3. 261. 8 E. 3. 379. 11 H. 4. 72.

4. In a Formedon in the Deſcender it behoveth alwaies that the Demandant make himſelf Son and Heir, or Coſin and Heir to him who was laſt actually ſeiſed by force of the Tail, for a later Seiſin of any Heir in tail after, ſhall abate the Writ. 2. It behoveth, that he who was laſt ſeiſed be made Heir in tail to the Donee, or otherwiſe the Writ is vicious, and it is not ſufficient that he be named Son, for he may be Son and not Heir. But the ſureſt way for the Demandant is to make every one he nameth in the Writ to be Son and Heir in the Writ although they were never ſeiſed by force of the Tail, and it is not material although he name them Heirs, if they were ſeiſed or not, and thereby the Demandant ſhall be certain to make himſelf Heir as well to the Donee per formam doni, as to him who was laſt ſeiſed. And therewith agree 22 H. 6. 36. 8 H. 6. Formedon 4. 11 H. 6. 20. 8 E. 3. 11. 10 E. 3. 49. 27 E. 3. 81. 38 E. 3. 29. 48 E. 3. 7. 49 E. 3. 21. Regiſter 23, F. N. B. 212. And, Note, in the Formedon in the Diſcender there is the Clauſe, Et quod poſt mortem, &c. and then the Deſcent, and no Clauſe, De eo quod, &c. for that is moſt convenient when the Eſtate tail is ſpent, which ſerveth well in a Formedon in the Reverter or Remainder, but not in [89] the Deſcender, if not in ſpecial Caſes. And ſo by theſe Differences, and the Reaſon of them, you will better underſtand your Books. Note in the Caſe at Bar, although that the Heirs of the body of Catherine claim the Remainder by Deſcent, yet foraſmuch as Catherine was never ſeiſed in Poſſeſſion of the Eſtate tail, but only of the Remainder; for this Cauſe the Writ ſhall ſay, remanere debet, and not, deſcendere debet; for the Writ ſhall never ſay, Deſcendere debet, to one as Son and Heir, if the Anceſtor ſtood not ſeiſed, by the Rule in the Regiſter, 241. a. & b.

Mich. 7 Jacobi. In the Common Pleas.

Fraunces Caſe.

[b] IN a Replevin between Richard Milnor Plaintiff, and Tho. Fraunces Defendant, which began Mich. 6 Jacobi, Rott. 2220. of taking his Cattel at Bloxwith in the County of Stafford, in a place called Newland, the Defendant did avow the taking of the Cattel in the place where, which contained ſix Acres, &c. becauſe it was his Freehold, and ſo did avow for damage feaſant. The Plaintiff in bar to the Avowry pleaded, That one Richard Frances was ſeiſed of the ſaid ſix Acres in Fee, and held them in Socage, and 7 December, by his Will in writing (whereof he made Richard, Edward, and James his Sons, his Executors) deviſed them to John Fraunces his eldeſt Son for the terme of ſixty years, if the ſaid John ſhould ſo long live, the Remainder thereof to the ſaid Thomas Fraunces for his life, the Remainder to the Heirs males of the body of the ſaid John Fraunces, the remainder to the Heirs males of the body of the ſaid Thomas, with divers remainders in Tail to his other Sons, the remainder to the right Heirs of the Deviſor: and afterwards, 30 Jan. next following the Deviſor died, by which John entred into the ſaid ſix Acres, and was thereof poſſeſſed, and 25 Martii, 5 Jacobi, demiſed the ſaid ſix Acres to the Plaintiff for one year next enſuing, for which he put in his Cattel, &c. In bar of which Avowrie, the ſaid Thomas ſaid, That the ſaid Richard
[90] Fraunces the Father was ſo ſeiſed, &c. and made his Will, as in the Bar to the Avowrie is alleged. And further, that the ſaid Richard Fraunces the Father was ſeiſed of twenty Acres of Paſture in Tibbington, and of a Houſe and five Acres of Land in Dorlaſton in the ſaid County, and alſo of the ſaid ſix Acres, in which, &c. And the ſaid Richard the Father, after the making of the ſaid Will, 8 Jan. 45 Eliz. by his Deed of all his ſaid Lands, did enfeoffe Richard Fraunces his Son, and John Alport, their Heirs, to the Uſes and Intents following; ſcil. to the uſe of the ſaid Richard Fraunces the Father for his life; and after his death of the Lands of Tibbington to the uſe of the ſaid Thomas Fraunces and his Heirs; and of the Lands in Dorlaſton, to the uſe of the ſaid James Fraunces and his Heirs and Aſſigns; and of the ſaid Lands in Bloxwith, in which, &c. to the uſe of the ſaid John Fraunces for ſixty years, after the death of the Deviſor, if he ſo long ſhould live; and after to the uſe of the ſaid Thomas for life, and after to the Heirs Males of the body of the ſaid John; and afterwards to the Heirs males of the body of the ſaid Thomas, with divers other Remainders in tail, to his other Sons, the Remainder to the right Heirs of the Feoffor, with this Proviſo in the Deed: And farther by the aforeſaid Writing it was Provided, That if the ſaid John Fraunces ſhould diſturb the ſaid Thomas Fraunces, or the ſaid James Fraunces, or their Heirs or Aſſigns, or any of them, &c. ſo that they cannot quietly have, hold, and enjoy ſuch Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, as he the ſaid Richard Fraunces the Father had conveyed to them, and to every or either of them, or any part or parcel of the ſaid Lands, Tenements, &c. Or if the ſaid John Fraunces, his Executors, Executors, Administrators or Assigns, &c. shall not suffer the Executors of the said Richard Fraunces, or his Assigns, quietly to have, remove, take, and carry away all and every the goods and chattels of the said Richard Fraunces the Father, which should be and remain in his then dwelling house, &c. or should doe any thing to hinder and prejudice the intent of the said Richard Fraunces his Father concerning the same in his last Will and Testament expressed; that then the said uses limited to the said John Fraunces and his Heirs, should cease, and be utterly void to all intents; and afterwards, 30 Jan. 45 Eliz. Richard the Father died, and the said John entred into the said six Acres, and was thereof possessed, the remainder over as aforesaid; and that the said Richard the Father at the time of the Feoffement did dwell in a house in Bloxwith aforesaid, which is the Messuage mentioned in the said Proviso. And that the said Richard the Father was possessed of a Bedstead, a Table-board, and a Cup-board, as of his proper goods, and died thereof possessed in the said house: after whose death John entred into the said house where the said goods were, and took them, and was thereof possessed. And the said Executors 12 Feb. 45 Eliz. came to the said house, and there would have taken and carried away the said goods, and requested the said John, ad permittendum ipsos bona & catalla præd' capere & asportare, prædictúsque Johannes Fraunces ad tunc & ibidem non permisit ipsos Executores to take and carry away the goods and chattels, secundum formam & effectum prædicti scripti Feoffamenti, sed idem Johannes ne ipsi bona & catalla præd' in eodem messuagio, ut prefertur existent. caperent & asportarent penitus prohibuit & impedivit; by which the said terme of sixty years, limited to the said John, did cease; whereupon the said Thomas did enter, as in his remainder, and was thereof possessed for life, &c. Upon which the Plaintiff did demurr in Law. [b]

And it was objected on the Plaintiffe's part, That the said Proviso was utterly void to cease the Uses limited by the said Deed to the said John, for nothing by the Deed is limited to him but for sixty years, for in as much as he took but a Lease for years, the remainder limited to his Heirs males of his body, after the death of Thomas, doth not vest in him, but remaineth in contingency: otherwise if John had taken an Estate for life: and the Proviso was void, and the Use and Uses limited to the said John Fraunces and his Heirs, where no such Use was limited to him; and therefore the Proviso void: and Provisoes and Conditions which goe in destruction and defeasance of Estates are odious in Law, and shall be taken strictly, and shall not be construed to make void any other Use or Estate, which is not within the words of the Proviso; For, Conditio beneficialis quæ statum construit, benignè secundum verborum intentionem est interpretanda, odiosa autem quæ statum destruit, strictè secundum verborum proprietatem est accipienda: as if a Feoffement be made upon such Condition, that the Feoffee shall give the Land to the Feoffor, and to the Wife of the Feoffor, and to the Heirs of their two bodies begotten, the remainder to the right Heirs of the Feoffor, if the Husband dieth living the Wife, the Feoffee by the Law ought to make the Estate to the Wife, &c. so near the Condition, and also so near the Intent of the Condition as he can doe, as Littleton holdeth, lib. 2. cap. Condition, fol. 82. scil. to lease the Land to the Wife for terme of her life, without Impeachment of Waste, and after her decease to the right Heirs of her Husband and her begotten, the remainder to the right Heirs of the Husband. So Littleton saith there, If the Husband and Wife die before the Deed made, &c. and therewith agreeth the Book in 2 H. 4. 5. by all the Justices, (although it was said) that 18 Ass. p. ult. & 19 E. 3. Entre congeable 39. are contrary: But when Conditions do enure in destruction of Estates, then they shall be taken strict; as if a Feoffement be made in Fee of certain Lands, upon condition that the Feoffee shall not give the Land to the Husband and Wife, and to the Heirs of their two bodies begotten, if the Husband dieth without Issue, and the Feoffee maketh a Lease for life to the Wife without Impeachment of Waste (as above) it is no breach of the Condition, for it is taken strict, becausse that it extendeth to the destruction of the Feoffement. So in the Case at Bar, forasmuch as the said Proviso doth extend to the destruction of a former Use and Estate, it shall be taken strictly, and shall not destroy another Use by construction, then that only to which in words it extendeth. To which it was answered and resolved by the whole Court, That it is true, that Conditions or Provisoes which shall destroy former Estates, shall be taken strictly, but in this Case the words of the Proviso were sufficient to cease the Use limited to John for years, and the Use limited to the Heirs males of his body; for the words of the Proviso are, That then the said Uses limited to the said John Fraunces and his Heirs should cease; and therefore if it be asked what Uses shall cease? the Proviso will answer, prædicti Usus; if it be further asked, To whom are prædicti Usus limited? The Proviso will answer, To the said John, and to his Heirs; and if it be further enquired, What Use expressed before the Indenture is limited to John? the Deed will answer, To John for sixty years, &c. And, What Use before mentioned in the Indenture, To his Heirs? the Deed will answer, A remainder to the Heirs males of his body: So these words (prædicti Usus) by reference to the Uses before expressed, in the same Deed, make the words of the Proviso to be sufficient to cease the Use before limited to the said John, and the said Use before limited to his Heirs to cease: and it is all one to say prædicti Usus before limited to his Heirs, and to say the Uses before limited prædictis Hæredibus: In both which Cases this word (prædicti) hath so strong reference, as if the Uses before limited had been particularly recited in the Proviso; and, verba accipienda sunt cum effectu. But note, Reader, the said Books in 18 Ass. p. ult. & 19 E. 3. Entr. Cong. 39. are not contrary unto Littleton, and 2 H. 4. in the Case aforesaid, but are ruled upon another reason, & hæc sunt diversa, & non adversa, as it appeareth in the Second Part of my Reports, in the Lord Cromwell's Case, fol. 80. a. where the said Cases are very well and at large explained; and therefore the outward semblance of Discord between our Books in this and other Cases, doth arise upon ignorance of the inward understanding of the said Cases, and the true reason and rule of them; for the most part every particular Case is adjudged upon a particular reason. [91]

2. It was reſolved, That a verbal denial is not any breach of the Condition, but there ought to be an act done; as after requeſt made by the Executors, to ſhut the door againſt them, or to
[b] lay his hands upon them, and to have reſiſted them, or the like Acts, ſo that by reaſon of any ſuch Act, he would not ſuffer them to take and carry away the ſaid goods, according to the ſaid Proviſo. And Coke Chief Juſtice held, That in ſuch caſe it is not ſufficient to ſay, That the ſaid John did not ſuffer the ſaid Executors quietly to have, remove, and take, the aforeſaid goods: or that impedivit illos, &c. but he ought to allege a ſpecial breach, by reaſon of ſome ſpecial diſturbance or interruption in ſuch caſe by ſome Act, to which the other party may have certain anſwer, and upon which an Iſſue certain may be taken, of which the Jury may inquire, and the Court may judge if it be a ſufficient breach of the Proviſo, or not; and he cited the Book in 10 E. 3. 40. Roger Fannel's Caſe. In an Aſſiſe brought by John againſt Roger Fannell of 20 Acres of Land, and upon nul tort pleaded, the Aſſiſe found this ſpecial matter, That Roger Fannell leaſed by Deed to John the Plaintiff a Houſe and the 20 Acres of Land for 12 years, and in ſurety of her Term made him a Charter of Feoffment, upon ſuch Condition, That if the Leſſee was diſturbed within the Terme, that he cannot have the Tenement till the end of the Terme, that he ſhould hold the Tenements to him and his Heirs for ever: And further ſaid, That John was diſturbed of the Tenements, by which he was ſeiſed in the Manor, and prayed the opinion of the Court. And this Enqueſt was inſufficient for three Cauſes.

1. Becauſe the Recognitors have found a diſturbance, and have not found by whom the diſturbance was done; for if the diſturbance was done by a Stranger without the aſſent or procurement of the Leſſor, the Leſſor ſhall not loſe his Inheritance.

2. They have not found how the diſturbance was done, but generally, the Leſſee was diſturbed; ſo that the Court cannot judge that it was a diſturbance to make the Leſſor to loſe his Inheritance.

3. Whether Livery and Seiſin were made, &c. And therefore it appeareth in the Book, that Shard asked the Recognitors, 1. By whom he was diſturbed? 2. How he was diſturbed? 3. If Livery were made upon the one Charter and the other? To the firſt, they anſwered, by the Leſſor; To the ſecond, by the Sale, ſcil. by Feoffement in fee; To the third, upon one and the other: and thereupon John did recover, quod nota, a very good Caſe to this purpoſe. And he cited alſo the Caſe in 35 H. 6. barr. 162. The Maſter of St. Katherine's leaſed three Houſes to one by Indenture, upon Condition that he ſhould not permit or harbour any lewd woman within the ſaid Houſes, if he be warned thereof by the Maſter, or his Servant, and if ſhe ſtay there by the ſpace of ſix weeks after warning by the Maſter or his Servant, that then the Maſter and his Succeſſors ſhould re-enter; And it was ſhewed, that the Leſſee did ſuffer ſuch a lewd woman to ſtay there, for which ſuch a Servant of the Maſter gave warning to him, that he do not ſuffer her to dwell there; and he would not, but ſuffered the ſaid woman to continue there by the ſpace of ſix weeks, for which the Maſter did put him out, &c. To which the Leſſee ſaid, That after the ſaid warning given, the Ma-
[92] ſter commanded the ſaid lewd woman to be in one of the ſaid Houſes, and continue there for ſix weeks after; without that ſhe continued there by the Plaintiff. And it was holden by the whole Court, that that Replication was not good, becauſe the Indenture is, Quod non permittat any lewd woman to continue there: As if I be bound to enfeoffe you of one Acre of Land before ſuch a day, within which time you diſſeiſe me, the ſame is not to the purpoſe, for he had no colour to enter upon me, and I may re-enter and make the Feoffement; So in the ſame Caſe, the Maſter had no colour to put the lewd woman into poſſeſſion; for which cauſe the Leſſee might well put her out. So it is no plea without ſpecial matter ſhewed: wherefore the Leſſee ſaid, That the Maſter did out him, and with force and arms againſt the will of the Leſſee put her in poſſeſſion, and made her continue there violently with force againſt the Leſſee's will for ſix weeks, &c. and that was holden a good plea. And ſo it is in the caſe of Feoffement before, ſuch ſpecial pleading is good, ſcilicet, that he did diſſeiſe him, and kept it with force, ſo that he could not enter: and theſe are the words word for word of the ſaid Caſe: à fortiori in the Caſe at Barr, the ſaid Prohibition by word, without an Act done by which the Executors cannot take the goods, is no breach of the Proviſo.

3. It was reſolved, That although the Defendant in the Caſe at Barr had particularly ſhewed a ſpecial act of Diſturbance againſt the words of the Proviſo, That yet the ſaid John ſhould not loſe his terme; for none ſhall loſe any Eſtate, or Intereſt, which he lawfully hath, without ſome act or default in himſelf; and therefore in this Caſe, foraſmuch as John the eldeſt Son was a Stranger to this Feoffement, he ſhall not loſe his Eſtate, without Notice given to him of the Proviſo, and of the Will of his Father, Quod noſtrum eſt ſine facto ſive defectu noſtro amitti ſeu in alium tranſferri non poteſt. And the opinion of Popham Chief Juſtice in Mallorie's Caſe, in the Fifth Part of my Reports, fol. 113. That the Feoffee of Land, or Bargainee of a Reverſion by Deed indented and enrolled, ſhall not take advantage of a Condition for non-payment of Rent reſerved upon a Leaſe, upon demand by them, without notice thereof given to the Leſſee; nor the Leſſor by acceptance of Rent ſhall diſpence with a collateral Condition broken by the Leſſee, without notice given to the Leſſor, as it is adjudged in Penant's Caſe, in the Third Part of my Reports, 64. b. And the Judgement, Hill. 1 Jacobi, between Beconſhaw Plaintiff, and Southcote and others Defendants in this Court, that if the Eſtate of the Lord of the Manor ceaſe by limitation of an Uſe, and the Uſe and Eſtate thereof transferred to another, who demanded the Rent of a Copyholder, who denieth to pay the ſame to him, is no forfeiture, without Notice given to the Copyholder of the alteration of the Uſe and [b] Eſtate: And another Judgement in this Court, That the Bargainee of a Manor by Deed indented and enrolled, ſhall not take advantage of a forfeiture of Copyhold for denial of paiment of Rent to him, without Notice given to him of the Bargain and Sale, were all affirmed for good Law by the

by the whole Court. And this agreeth with the reason of Barrough's Case, Mich. 18 & 19 Eliz. Dyer 354. a. where Uses were limited by Fine under this Proviso, That if B. at any time during his life, &c. do pay, or cause to be paid to the said A. 20 li. at the Fontstone within the Cathedral Church of Sarum, that then, &c. the Conusees in the said Fine and their Heirs should stand seised to the use of B. and his Heirs. And it was resolved by Wray, Dyer, and Manwood, that tender of the 20 li. at the place according to the Proviso in the absence of A. and no Notice of the time of the tender before given by B. to A. is not good in Law to make the first Uses, for the incertainty of time during the life of B. and therefore in such case notice of the time of the tender ought to be given, although that he to whom the paiment should be made was party to the Conveyance, but in such case when B. will make a tender, he ought to give notice to A. that he will at such time make the tender to him, and require him to be there to receive it; and then if he at the time appointed maketh a tender, although that A. absent himself, it is a good performance of the Proviso to make the Uses to cease. But if a man bind himself in a Bond to performe the Award of I. S. and I. S. maketh an Award, the Obligor ought to take notice thereof at his peril, for that he hath bound himself thereto. And in such case no notice is requisite to be given to him, as it is holden in 1 H. 6. fol. 5. A man was bounden in an Obligation, upon Condition that if he did accompt before an Auditor by the Obligee to be assigned, when he should be required, of certain Receipts of the Manor of D. and should pay to him the Arrerages that should be found upon his Accompt before the said Auditor; that then the Obligation should be void: In Debt upon that Bond, The Defendant pleaded, That the Plaintiff did assign him such an Auditor, before whom he accompted, and that he hath been alwaies ready to pay the Arrerages found before the Auditor, if the said Auditor had given him notice: And it was holden by the whole Court, in 18 E. 4. 18, & 24. that the Plea was insufficient, for in as much as he hath bound himself thereto, he hath taken upon him to take notice thereof at his peril. And therefore Brian, Vavasor, and Catesby, Justices, agreed, That in the said Case of Arbitrament, the Obligor ought to take notice thereof at his peril. And so they said it was adjudged in the same King's time in the King's Bench: and so is the Law without question, against a sudden opinion in 8 E. 4. 1. So make a good difference, when a man bindeth himself to doe or perform any thing to be awarded, &c. by a stranger, he thereby taketh upon himself to take notice at his peril of all things incident thereunto for the saving of his own Bond; But it appeareth in the principal Case, and in the other Case beforesaid, the Law shall not compell one to take notice of acts done between Strangers, or of any thing incertain, upon pain of Forfeiture of his Estate, or Interest, but in such case notice ought to be given to those who are to have the loss. [93]

4. It was resolved, That although that now it appeareth, that the Title by which the Plaintiff claimeth in his Bar to the Avowry was utterly destroyed, (for the Plaintiff claimed by the Will of Richard Frances the Father, which Will appeareth was afterwards countermanded by the said Feoffment which the Avowant after pleaded, and which the Plaintiff did confess by his Demurrer) yet the Plaintiff should have Judgement, because that his Count is good, and the Avowant in his Replication to the Bar of his Avowry hath done two things; One, he hath destroyed the Title which he made by Will; the other, he hath given to the Plaintiff another Title, scil. to have the Land for 60. years, &c. by force of the Uses declared upon the Feoffement. So that upon the whole Record it appeareth (upon which the Court ought to judge) that the Plaintiff hath a lawfull terme in the Land; and that the Defendant wrongfully hath taken his Cattel, and therefore Judgement ought to be given against the Avowant, and for the Plaintiff, although that the Title which he made for himself was destroyed. And Judgement was entred accordingly.

Hill. 7 Jacobi.

Foxe's Case.

IN a Writ of Second Deliverance by Eliz. Smalman Widow, and Tho. Powys Defendant, which began in the Common Pleas, 7 Jacobi, Rott. 1546. the Defendant did demurr upon the Bar to the Avowry; and upon the Record the Case was such, Edward Fox seised of four acres of Meadow, 50 acres of Pasture, and 10 acres of Underwood in Snitton in the County of Shrewsbury, An. 31 Eliz. divised them to Gilb. Smalman, and to the said Elizabeth his then Wife, and to Thomas Smalman, Habendum to Gilbert and Elizabeth for terme of their lives, the Remainder to the said Thomas for his life, yielding during their lives, the yearly rent of four marks, at the Feasts of the Annunciation of our Lord, and St. Michael the Archangel, by equal portions, and afterwards the said Gilbert Smalman died; after whose death, scil. 20 Sept. 3 Jacobi, the said Edward Fox by Indenture, for the Consideration of 50 li. præd' by the said Tho. Powys to the said Edward paid, demised, granted, set, and to farm let to the said Tho. Powys the said Tenements aforesaid; To have and to hold to the said Tho. Powys from the day of the date of the said Indenture, for the terme of 99 years, yielding and paying therefore during the said term, to the said Edw. Fox and his heirs, the yearly rent of 40 shillings, at the Feasts of the Annunciation of our Lady, and St. Michael the Archangel, or within 28 days after every of the said Feasts, and that the said Eliz. did never attorn. And the only Point in this case was, If the said Demise and Grant to Tho. Powys shall amount to a Bar- [b]

gain and Sale, ſo that the Reverſion with the Rent ſhall paſs unto Tho. Powys by the Statute of Uſes without any attornement. And it was adjudged, that this Demiſe and Grant upon Conſideration of 50 li. doth amount to a Bargain and Sale for the ſaid years; for in caſe when a Freehold or Inheritance paſſeth by Deed indented and inrolled, it needeth not to have the preciſe words Bargain and Sale, but words equipollent, or which doe tant amount, are ſufficient; as if a man covenanteth in Conſideration of money to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of his Son in Fee; if the Deed be enrolled, it is a good Bargain and Sale, and yet there are not any words of Bargain and Sale, but they do amount to ſo much, as it is holden in Bedel's Caſe, in the Seventh Part of my Reports. So if a man for money alien and grant Land to one and his Heirs, as in tail, or for life, by Deed indented and enrolled, the ſame doth amount to a Bargain and Sale, and the Land ſhall paſs without any Livery and Seiſin. And at the Common Law before the Statute of 27 H. 8. of Uſes, If a man for money had aliened and granted Lands to one and his Heirs, &c. by that the Uſe of the Lands ſhould paſs, for the ſame is a full Bargain, and all the ſame was unanimouſly agreed; but foraſmuch as the intention of the parties is the Creation of Uſes, if by any clauſe in the Deed it appeareth, that the intent of the parties was to paſs it in poſſeſſion by the Common Law, there no Uſe ſhall be raiſed; and therefore if any Letter of Attorney be in the Deed or Covenant to make Livery of the Lands, according to the form and effect of the Deed, or other the like, there it ſhall not paſs by way of Uſe; quia verba intentioni non è contra debent inſervire: & verba debent intelligi ut aliquid operentur. But in the Caſe at Bar, the intent of the Grantor may be well collected, that he did intend that the Grant ſhould take effect preſently, and ſhould not depend upon any ſubſequent Attornment; for the Rent reſerved thereupon was payable preſently; and therefore it ſhall be reaſon that Tho. Powys the Leſſee ſhould have the Rent reſerved upon the firſt Leaſe for lives preſently; and that he cannot have before attornment (which peradventure ſhall never be done) and ſo much the rather, becauſe the ſaid Tho. Powys hath no means to compell the firſt Leſſees to attorn; But it ſhall paſs as a Bargain and Sale preſently executed by the Statute of 27 Hen. 8. (for there needeth no inrollment in this Caſe) becauſe it is but a terme for years which paſſeth, and no eſtate of Freehold, and there needeth no Attornment, becauſe it is executed by the Statute. And by this conſtruction ſhall have ſuch remedy, for that which he ought to have. See Sir Rowland Hayward's Caſe, in the Second Part of my Reports, fol. 35.

Mich. 7 Jacobi. In the Common Pleas.

Matthew Manning's Caſe.

[b] IN Debt for 200 marks by William Clark Plaintiff, and Matthew Manning Adminiſtrator of Edward Manning deceaſed, upon plenè adminiſtravit pleaded, the Jury gave a ſpecial Verdict to the effect following, which Plea began Mich. 4 Jacobi, Rott. 1829. Edward Manning the inteſtate Anno 30 Eliz. was poſſeſſed of the moiety of a Mill in Clifton, in the County of Oxford, for the terme of 50 years, of the cleer yearly value of 40 li. and afterwards the ſaid Ed. Manning, 30 Eliz. made his Will in writing, and thereby deviſeth this Indenture and Leaſe of the Farm and Mill in Clifton, and all the years therein to come to Matthew Manning after the death of Mary Manning my Wife, (which Farm and Mill my Will is, that Mary Manning my Wife ſhall enjoy during her life, conditionally, that the ſaid Matthew ſhall not demiſe, ſell, or give the ſaid Leaſe, but to leave the ſame wholly to John his Son. In the mean time my will and meaning is, That Mary Manning my Wife ſhall have the uſe and occupation both of the Farm and Mill, &c. during her natural life: Yielding and paying therefore yearly to the ſaid Matthew Manning, &c. during her natural life ſeven pounds at the Feaſts of St. Michael the Archangel, and the Annunciation of our Lady, &c. and made Mary his Wife his ſole Executrix, and died; Mary took upon her the charge of the Will, and had not ſufficient to pay the Debts of the ſaid Ed. Manning above the ſaid Terme; but ſhe entred into the ſaid Farm and Mill, and paid to Matthew Manning the ſum of 7 li. according to the ſaid Will; and ſaid, That if ſhe died, the ſaid Matthew Manning ſhould have the ſaid Farm and Mill aforeſaid; and afterwards the ſaid Mary, 16 years after the death of her ſaid Husband died inteſtate, after whoſe death the ſaid Matthew Manning entred into the ſaid Farm and Mill, and was thereof poſſeſſed prout lex poſtulat; And afterwards Adminiſtration of the Goods of the ſaid Edward by the ſaid Mary not adminiſtred was committed to the ſaid Matthew; and that none of the Profits of the ſaid Farm and Mill, which did accrue in the life of the ſaid Mary, came to the hands of the ſaid Matthew, beſides the ſaid 7 li. yearly as aforeſaid; And the doubt of the Jury was, If the reſidue of the terme in the ſaid Farme and Mill ſhould be Aſſets in the hands of the ſaid Matthew. But I conceived upon trial of the Iſſue at Guild-hall in London, That the deviſe to Matthew was good, and that there was ſufficient aſſent to the Legacy, by the ſaid paiment of the Rent of 7 li. But yet upon the motion of the Plaintiffe's Counſel, I was contented, that the whole ſpecial matter ſhould be found as is aforeſaid. And the Caſe was argued at the Bar, and at divers ſeveral days debated at the Bench, and prima facie Walmſley Juſtice conceived, That the Deviſe to Matthew Manning after the death of Mary was void, for the Wife having the ſame deviſed to her during her life, ſhe had the whole term, and the Deviſor cannot deviſe the poſſibility over, no more then a man can doe doe by grant in his life; for that which the Teſtator cannot doe by no advice of Counſel in his life, the Teſtator, who is intended to be inops conſilii, ſhall not do by his will; but by grant in his life he cannot grant the Land unto the wife for her life, the Remainder over unto another, for by the grant the wife hath the whole term at leaſt, if ſhe ſo long live, and a poſſibility cannot be limited by way of Remainder; and although that the later opinions in the Caſe (where a man poſſeſſed of a Leaſe for years, deviſeth the ſame to one for life, the remainder over) have been, that the Remainder was good; yet he ſaid that the old opinion, which hath more reaſon (as he conceived) was, that the Remainder in ſuch caſe was void, 28 H. 8. 7 Dyer, Baldwyn and Shelley, that the Remainder is void. Englefield contrary, 6 E. 6. 74. acc. by Hales and Mountague, 2 E. 6. Deviſe Brook 13. that the Remainder is void, for the deviſe of a Chattel for one hour is good for ever. But Coke chief Juſtice, Warburton, Daniel, and Foſter contrary, that the deviſe was good to Matthew Manning; and five points were reſolved by them.

1. That Matthew Manning took it not by way of Remainder, but by way of an executory deviſe, and one may deviſe an eſtate by his laſt will in ſuch manner, that he cannot doe by any grant or conveyance in his life. As if a Man ſeiſed of Lands in Fee holden in Socage deviſe, that if A. pay ſuch a ſum to his Executors, that he ſhall have the Land to him and his heirs, or in tayl, or for life, &c. and dyeth, and afterwards A. payeth the money, he ſhall have the Land by this executory deviſe, and yet he cannot have it by any grant, or Conveyance executory at the Common Law; but it well ſtandeth with the nature of a deviſe; So in the Caſe at barr when the wife dyeth it ſhall veſt in Matthew Manning as by an executory deviſe, as if he had deviſed that afterwards, that his Son has paid ſuch a ſum to his Executors, that he ſhall have his term; or that after the death of A. that [b] B. ſhall have the term; Or that after his Son ſhall return from beyond the Seas, or that A. dyeth, that he ſhall have it, in all theſe Caſes and other like, upon the Condition or Contingent performed the deviſe is good, and in the mean time the Teſtator may diſpoſe of it, and therefore in judgment of Law, ut res magis valeat, the executory deviſe ſhall precede, and the diſpoſition of the Leaſe, till the contingent happen, ſhall be ſubſequent, as in the caſe at Barr it was, and ſo all ſhall well ſtand together; For when he maketh the executory deviſe he hath lawfull power, and may well do it; and afterwards in the ſame Will he hath lawfull power, and may well deviſe the Leaſe till the Contingent happen; and therefore it is as much, as if the Teſtator had deviſed, that if his wife dyeth within the term, that then Matthew Manning ſhould have the reſidue of the term; and further deviſeth the ſame to his wife for her life.

2. The caſe is the ſtronger, becauſe that this deviſe is but of a Chattel, whereof no Præcipe lieth; and which may veſt, and reveſt at the pleaſure of the deviſor, without prejudice to any. And therefore if a man maketh a Leaſe for years upon Condition, that if he do not ſuch a thing, that the Leaſe ſhall be void, and afterwards he granteth the Reverſion over, the Condition is broken, the Grantee ſhall take benefit of the Condition by the Common Law, for the Leaſe thereby is abſolutely void; but in ſuch caſe, if the Leaſe had been for life, with ſuch Condition, the Grantee ſhall not take benefit of the breach of the Condition; for a Free-hold (of which a Præcipe lieth) cannot ſo eaſily ceaſe; but is voidable by entry, after the Condition broken, which by the Common Law cannot be transferred to a Stranger; and therewith agreeth 11 H. 7. 17. Br. Conditions 245. 2 Mariæ, by Bromley the ſame difference.

3. There is no difference when one deviſeth his term for life, the Remainder over; and when a man deviſeth the Land, or his Leaſe, or Farm, or the uſe or occupation, or profits of his Lands; for in a will the intent and meaning of the deviſor is to be obſerved, and the Law ſhall make conſtruction of the words to ſatisfy his intent, and to put them in ſuch order and courſe, that his will ſhall take effect. And always the intention of the deviſor expreſſed in his will, is the beſt Expoſitor, director, and diſpoſer of his words: And when a man deviſeth his Leaſe to one for life, it is as much as to ſay, he ſhall have ſo many years as he ſhall live, and that if he dyeth within the term, that another ſhall have it for the reſidue of the years; and although at the beginning it be uncertain how [96] many years he ſhall live, yet when he dyeth it is certain how many years he hath lived, and how many years the other ſhall have, and ſo by a ſubſequent act all is made certain.

4. That after that the Executor hath aſſented to the firſt deviſe, that it lyeth not in the power of the firſt deviſee to barr him who hath the future deviſe, for he cannot paſs more to another then he himſelf hath.

5. In many Caſes a man by his will may create an intereſt, which by grant or Conveyance at the Common Law he cannot create in his life; And therefore when Sir William Cordell Maſter of the Rolls did deviſe his Mannor of Melford, &c. in the County of Suffolk to his Executors for the payment of his debts, and untill his debts ſhould be paid, the remainder to Edward his brother, &c. and made George Cary his Executor, and others, and dyed, and after his death the debts were paid; and his wife demanded Dower, and one Queſtion amongſt others was moved, What Intereſts or Eſtates the Executors had? for if they had a Freehold, then the wife ſhould not have Dower, and if they had but a Chattel determinable upon the payment of the debts, then ſhe ſhould be endowed; and this Caſe was referred to Anderſon chief Juſtice of the Common Pleas, and to Francis Gawdie chief Juſtice of the Kings Bench, before whom the Caſe was at ſeveral daies debated, Paſc. 36 Eliz. and I was of Counſel with the Executors; And it was Reſolved by them, that the Executors had but a Chattel, and no Freehold, for if they ſhould have a Freehold for their lives, then their Eſtate ſhould determine by their death, and ſhould not goe to the Executors of the Executors, and ſo the debts ſhould remain unpaid; but the Law doth adjudge the ſame a particular Intereſt in the Land, which ſhall go to the Executors of the Executors, as aſſetts for payment of his debs. But if ſuch eſtate be made by grant, or Conveyance at the Common Law, the Law ſhall adjudge the ſame an eſtate of Freehold, and ſo a more favourable interpretation is made of a Will in point of Intereſt or eſtate to ſatisfy the Will of the dead for the payment of his debts, then of a grant or Conveyance in his life; which he may enlarge, or make other proviſion at his pleaſure. And ſo was it Reſolved in the beginning of the reign of Queen Elizabeth. That where a man had iſſue a daughter, and deviſed his Lands to his Executors for the payment of his debts, and untill his debts were paid, and made his Executors and died, the Executors entred, the daughter married a Husband, and had iſſue and died, and after the debts were paid, It was Reſolved in the caſe of one Guavarra, that he ſhould be Tenant by the Courteſie, Vide 13 H. 7. 13. 27 H. 8. 5. 21 Aſſ. p. 8. 14 H. 8. 13.

Note Reader, it hath been of late oftentimes adjudged according to theſe Reſolutions, ſc. in Weldons caſe, Plow. Com. in the Common Pleas: and Paramours caſe, Plow. Com. in the Kings Bench, Mich. 26. & 27 Eliz. in a writ of Error in the Kings Bench, upon a Judgment given in the Common Pleas, the Caſe was ſuch, Thomas Amner brought an Ejectione firmæ againſt Nicholas Loddington upon a deviſe made by Alice Fulleſhurſt for 7 years of certain houſes in London, and upon Not-guilty pleaded, the Jury gave a ſpecial verdict, ſc. Hugh Weldon was ſeiſed of the ſaid houſes in fee, and 24 H. 8. demiſed them to Thomas Perpoint for 99 years, who by his Will in writing 1544. deviſed his ſaid Leaſe in theſe words, I deviſe my Leaſe to my wife during her life, and after her death I will it go to her Children unpreferred, and made his wife his Executrix, and died, his wife entred and was poſſeſſed by reaſon of the gift and legacy, and married with Sir Thomas Fulleſhurſt, and afterwards 2 and 3 Phil. and Mary, Beſtwick did recover againſt Sir Thomas 140 l. debt in the Common Pleas, and by force of a Fieri facias directed to Altham and Mallorie Sheriffs of London, the ſaid Term was ſold to Nicholas Loddington the Defendant, and afterwards the Judgment againſt Sir Thomas Fulleſhurſt was reverſed by a Writ of Error brought in the Kings Bench, & quod ad omnia quæ amiſit ratione judicii præd. reſtituatur. And afterwards Alice the wife and Executrix died, Alice Fulleſhurſt being then the only daughter who was unpreferred, entred, and made the Leaſe to the Plaintiff Thomas Amner. And this Caſe was often argued at barr by the Serjeans in the Common Pleas, and at laſt by the Judges, and in this caſe 3 points were reſolved by them. [b]

1. That the ſaid Executory deviſe of the Leaſe after the death of the wife to the daughter unpreferred, was good; and there is no difference when the term, or Leaſe, or houſes, and when the uſe, or occupation, &c. is deviſed, and that in all theſe caſes the executory deviſe is good.

2. That the ſale either by Alice the wife, or by the Sheriff upon the Fieri facias, after that the wife was poſſeſſed as Legatory, ſhould not deſtroy the Executory deviſe, although that the perſon to whom the executory deviſe was made, was then uncertain, as long as Alice the wife lived; for the ſaid Alice the daughter might have been preferred in her life, and then ſhe ſhould take nothing, ſo that ſuch Executory deviſe which hath dependance upon the firſt deviſe may be made to a perſon incertain, and this poſſibility cannot be defeated by any ſale made by the firſt deviſee, &c.

3. That the ſale by the Sheriff by force of the Fieri facias ſhould ſtand, although the Judgment was after reverſed, and the Plaintiff in the writ of Error reſtored to the value, for the Sheriff who made the ſale, had lawfull authority to ſell, and by the ſale the Vendee had abſolute property in the term during the life of Alice the wife; and although that the Judgment, which was the warrant of the Fieri facias, be afterwards reverſed, yet the ſale which was a collateral act done by the Sheriff, by force of the Fieri facias, ſhall not be avoided; for the Judgment was, that the Plaintiff ſhould recover his debt, and the Fieri facias is to levy the ſame of the Defendants goods and Chattels, by force of which the Sheriff ſelleth the term which the Defendant hath in the right of his wife, as he well may, and the Vendee payeth monies to the value of it. And if the ſale of the term ſhould be avoided, the firſt Vendee ſhould loſe his term, and his money alſo: And thereupon great inconvenience would follow, that none would buy of the Sheriff goods or Chattels in ſuch caſes, and ſo Execution of Judgment (which is the life of the Law) ſhould not be done. And according to theſe Reſolutions Judgment was given in the Common Pleas for the Plaintiff. And in the Kings Bench upon a writ of Error the Caſe was after argued at the Bar by Sir Chriſtopher Wray, and the Court there, and at length the Judgment was affirmed. And ſo the ſaid 3 points were adjudged in both Courts: And by theſe latter Judgements you will better underſtand the Law in the books, in which there are ſome variance of opinions. 37 H. 6. 30. 33 H. 8. *br. and yet the Common Law doth except Infants, thoſe who are out of the Realm, or which are impriſoned, &c. and therewith agreeth 5 E. 3. 222. 7 E. 3. 335. that the year and day ſhall be accounted after the Execution, for by the tranſmutation of the poſſeſſion, the Country hath notice thereof. Vide 4 E. 3. 46. and 11 R. 2. Eſcheat 13. Plow. Com. 356. And the reaſon why a Recovery in a Writ of Right where the Trial was Battel, or Grand Aſſiſe, was final to all Strangers, is, for the grand notice that men have of Battel, and of the Trial by Grand Aſſiſe, their Proceedings and Performance are with ſo notorious, famous, and publick Solemnities, and if ſuch Recoveries with ſuch Solemnities ſhall not barr him who is out of the Realm, nor Infants, nor Men of non ſanæ memoriæ nor Men in priſon; à fortiori Cuſtom and Proclamations in a private Court of a Manor ſhall not bind them. And the Law in theſe Caſes was grounded upon great reaſon, for he who is out of the Realm, in another Country, cannot by intendment of Law have notice of things done within this Realm; an Infant hath not underſtanding, nor can know his Right either to follow it by Entry, or Action; So of a man of non ſanæ memoriæ, who wanteth reaſon and ſenſe to make claim; ſo of him who is impriſoned, who by Judgement of Law ought to be in ſalva & arcta Cuſtodia, ſc. Salva, as to the party at whoſe Sute he is impriſoned, becauſe he ought to be impriſoned ſo ſtrong that he may not eſcape; and arcta, in reſpect he ought to be cloſe in Ward, without conference with others, or intelligence of things abroad; and he ought not to go out of the Priſon to make his claim. And that is the cauſe that a Recovery by default againſt him in a real Action ſhall not bind him, but he ſhall reverſe the ſame by Error, as it appeareth in 5 Ed. 3. 50. b. 4 Ed. 2. Diſceit, 51. Littl. 102. [b]

Note, Reader, That a Feme Covert is not mentioned in any of the ſaid Acts, but was bound at the Common Law by her Non-claim, becauſe ſhe had a Huband who might make claim, and that was one of the cauſes, that the Statute of 34 Edw. 3. cap. 6. ouſted Non-claim: but the Statute of 4 H. 7. cap. 24. excepteth Feme Coverts who are Strangers to the Fine, ſo that ſhe make her Claim within five years after the death of her Husband. And at the Common Law, Men out of the Realm, Infants, Men of non ſanæ memoriæ, and in Priſon, who were not bound to make Claim within the year and day, were perpetually for them and their Heirs exempted to make Claim. And therefore it was reſolved, That the ſaid Cuſtom in the Caſe at Bar is ſo to be intended, that it ſhall bind him who doth not make his Claim, &c. if he be within the Realm, of full Age, of perfect Memory, and out of Priſon; for no Cuſtom by the Law can extend to bar thoſe, who by Judgement of Law are not bound to make Claim. But it was reſolved, That if William Copley had been within the Realm at the time of the firſt Proclamations, and afterwards gone out of the Realm, that the Proclamations ſhould bind him, although that he be extra quatuor maria, at the time of the other Proclamations, for he ſhall not defeat the Lord of his Fine or Forfeiture by his own act. Vide 9 H. 7. 24. and the reaſon of Littl. lib. 3. fol. 104. was well obſerved, who having put the Caſe of Non-claim of him who is out of the Realm that he ſhall not hurt him in the Caſe of Fine, he ſaith as followeth, by great reaſon, &c. That a Diſſeiſin and a Deſcent, which is matter in fact, ſhall not ſo much grieve him who is ſo diſſeiſed when he was out of the Realm at the time of the Diſſeiſin, and alſo at the time that the Diſſeiſor died ſeiſed, but that he may well enter, notwithſtanding the Deſcent; upon which Two things were collected.

1. That as at the Common Law, If a man was within the Realm at the time of the Fine levied, and within the year goeth out of the Realm, he ſhall be bounden; So if a man be diſſeiſed, and afterwards goeth out of the Realm, a Deſcent caſt afterwards ſhall take away his Entry, as appeareth alſo by Littl. 103. a.

The ſecond thing is, That if he who is out of the Realm ſhall not be bound by Non-claim upon a Fine, which is a matter of Record, à fortiori, he ſhall not be bound by Non-claim upon a Deſcent, which is a matter in Fact. If a man be diſſeiſed, and afterwards is impriſoned, and afterwards a Deſcent is caſt, it ſhall take away his Entry, and therewith agreeth 9 H. 7. 24. a. And ſome ſay that in this caſe, that if a man be ſeiſed of Land, and hath Iſſue two Sons Baſtard eigne, and Mulier puiſne, and the Father dieth ſeiſed, the Mulier being beyond Sea, or within age, or impriſoned, or of non ſanæ memoriæ, and the Baſtard eigne entreth, and continueth in peaceable poſſeſſion of the Lands, and hath Iſſue, and dieth, and the Lands deſcend to his Iſſue, the Right of the Mulier in all the ſaid Caſes is bound for ever; and ſome hold the contrary. [101]

2. It was reſolved, That foraſmuch as William Copley was out of the Realm at the time of the death of his Father, although that he was not in the King's ſervice, yet he ſhall not be barred by the ſaid Cuſtoms and Proclamations, becauſe he could not by intendment of Law have notice; and at the Common Law ſhould not be barred by Non-claim upon a Fine, or Writ of Right, Bracton, lib. 5. tract. de Exceptio. Cap. 29. fol. 436. Excuſatur quis quod clameum non appoſuerit, ut ſi in toto tempore litigii fuit ultra mare quacunque occaſione, Littl. acc. fol. 134. a. Vide 9 H. 4. 3. 26 H. 6. Error, 27. 33 H. 6. 1. 1 Aſſ. p. 2. 21 H. 6. 24. 2 E. 3. Coron. 153. The Preamble of the Statutes of 26 H. 8. cap. 13. & 5 & 6 E. 6. cap. 11. Note, Reader, as to thoſe Caſes which have been put of Baſtard eigne and Mulier puiſne, I conceive that the better opinion is, That in ſuch Caſes the Mulier ſhall be barred for ever; and the reaſon is, becauſe that the continuance in poſſeſſion, and dying ſeiſed in peace, and deſcent to his Iſſue maketh him Heir, and his Iſſue ſhall inherit as Heir, becauſe that he was legitimate by the Law of holy Church; for (as Bracton, lib. 2. fol. 63. ſaith) Matrimonium ſubſequens facit quoad ſacerdotium (becauſe that they are legitimate by the Common Law) non quoad ſucceſſionem, propter conſuetudinem regni quæ ſe habet in contrarium. And by the Law of England by the Continuance in poſſeſſion, and dying ſeiſed in peace and deſcent, &c. he is adjudged Heir to his Father, for although that the Baſtard dieth ſeiſed without Iſſue ſo that the Land doth not deſcend, the Mulier ſhall have it; and therewith agreeth the Abridgement of the Book of Aſſiſes 3.

and the rule in 13 E. 1. Baſtardy 28. is ſo to be intended, Juſtum non eſt aliquem antenatum mortuum facere Baſtardum, qui pro tota vita ſua pro legitimo habebatur. Vide 29 E. 3. 14. & 39 Aſſ. p. 10. And in the Caſe of Legitimation (which is in Law ſo pretious and of ſo great eſtimation) the Law doth not reſpect Infancy, or other Defects of the Mulier, but doth prefer Legitimation of Blood before any benefit of temporal Inheritance. And therefore the Law ſaith, That by the death of the Baſtard eigne in peace, he becometh right Heir, and by conſequence the Mulier is barred. Vide 5 E. 2. Br. Deſcent 49. 31 Aſſ. p. 18. and 22. John Alleyn's Caſe; and 33 E. 3. Verdict 48. the ſame Caſe. 36 Aſſ. p. 2. Plow. Com. Stowel's Caſe. Vide 10 E. 3. 2. the dying ſeiſed of the Baſtard eigne doth bind the Right, and the deſcent ſhall not take away the entry only, but alſo the right; and therefore a deſcent in that caſe may be a barr of the right, when it ſhall not take away the entry in caſe of diſſeiſin, as a deſcent of Services, Rent, Reverſion expectant upon an Eſtate tail, &c. ſhall barr
[b] the Right of the Mulier, as it appeareth in 18 E. 2. Baſtardy 26. but ſuch deſcent ſhall not take away the entry or claim of the Diſſeiſee; and ſo in many other Caſes, as it appeareth by the ſaid Books afterwards cited in this Caſe. And if a man hath two Daughters baſtard eigne, and Mulier puiſne, and they enter and occupie as Heirs, now the Law in favour of Legitimation will not adjudge the whole poſſeſſion in the Mulier, who then had the ſole right, but in both: ſo that if the Baſtard dieth ſeiſed, her Iſſue ſhall inherit; and therewith agreeth 17 E. 3. 59. Baſtardie 32. And if in the ſame Caſe the Daughters, ſcil. the Baſtard eigne and Mulier puiſne enter, and make Partition, this Partition ſhall bind the Mulier for ever, 2 E. 2. Baſtardie 19. 21 E. 3. 34. b. 30 Aſſ. p. 7. but if Partition be made betwixt two Daughters, where one hath no colour, as to a ſpecial Eſtate, there the Partition is void, 11 Aſſ. p. 23. Hugh de Wimondham's Caſe. And an Aſſiſe of Mortdanceſter doth not lie betwixt the Mulier and the Baſtard eigne, no more then between two Brothers, and therewith agreeth Britton, 70. and if the Baſtard eigne entreth, and is ſeiſed of Lands as Heir, he ſhall be vouched as Heir, and if he be within age the Plea ſhall demurr, 20 Edw. 3. Voucher 129. And if a man hath Iſſue Baſtard eigne and Mulier puiſne, and dieth, and the Baſtard within age entreth and is impleaded, he ſhall have his age; and therewith agreeth the Book in 11 E. 3. Age 3. Which Caſes prove, That when the Baſtard eigne entreth into the Lands, until he be interrupted, he is accounted Heir, although that the Mulier be within age, for when the Baſtard eigne is within age, of neceſſity the Mulier puiſne alſo ought to be within age. Vide 5 H. 7. 2. And if a man hath Iſſue Baſtard eigne and Mulier puiſne, and the Baſtard hath Iſſue, and dieth in the life of his Father, and afterwards the Father dieth, the Iſſue of the Baſtard entreth and dieth without interruption; ſome ſay the ſame ſhall barr the Mulier. So if a Baſtard born before marriage entreth, and hath Iſſue, and dieth ſeiſed, it ſhall barr the collateral Heir, and the Lord by Eſcheat, as well as the Mulier puiſne; So if the Baſtard eigne entreth and dieth ſeiſed, his Wife with Child with a Son, and afterwards the Son is born, he ſhall inherit the Land, for in as much as his Father died ſeiſed in poſſeſſion without interruption, the Mulier ſhall not allege againſt the Iſſue baſtardy in his Father who is dead. And if the Baſtard eigne dieth ſeiſed, and his Iſſue endoweth the Wife of the Baſtard; yet the Mulier ſhall not enter upon the Tenant in Dower, for the right of the Mulier was barred by the dying ſeiſed and the deſcent: Otherwiſe it is of a Deſcent which taketh away Entry only, and not the Right. The ſame Law in the caſe aforeſaid, If the Wife of the Father of the Baſtard eigne and Mulier puiſne be endowed, yet the Iſſue of the Baſtard ſhall have the Reverſion of it, Cauſa qua ſupra. Vide 10 E. 3. Waſte 142. 20 H. 3. Baſtardie 29. 2 Aſſ. p. 9. 14 E. 3. Baſtardie 26. 13 E. 1. Baſtardie 28. 32 E. 1. Baſtardie 31. 39 E. 3. The laſt Caſe. 36 Aſſ. p. 2. 6 E. 3. 54. Faux Recovery 2. 10 E. 3. 2. Plow. Com. Talbot's Caſe, 57. and Stowell's Caſe, 373, 374. Note, Reader, the reaſon wherefore the younger Son who is born during the marriage of a lawfull Wife, is called Mulier puiſne, ſeu, Filius mulieratus, is, becauſe this word (Mulier) in Latin hath three ſignifications. 1. Sub nomine Mulieris continetur quelibet Fœmina. 2. Propriè continetur Mulier quæ Virgo non eſt. 3. Appellatione Mulieris in Legibus Angliæ continetur Uxor. So that, Filius natus ex juſta Uxore appellatur in Legibus Angliæ, Filius mulieratus; ſicut Baſtardus dicitur à Græco vocabulo, Baſſaris, i. e. Meretrix, ſeu Concubina, quia procreatur ex Meretrice ſive Concubina. And therewith agreeth Glanvil. l. 7. c. 1. Quod ſi verum eſt, &c. tunc melioris conditionis eſt in hoc baſtardus Filius quam mulieratus, &c. where he maketh an oppoſition of a Son Mulier, and a Baſtard Son, and there Mulier is taken for Legitimate, procreat. de Uxore; and Baſtardus, ex Meretrice ſive Concubina. And therewith agreeth Britton, 70. of Mortdanceſter, fol. 81. where he ſaith, in the ſame manner, of two Brothers of divers Mothers, and between a Brother Mulier and a Brother Baſtard, &c. And the Books in 32 E. 1. Baſtardie 31. 6 E. 2. Baſtardie 24. 39 E. 3. 14. 39 Aſſ. p. 10. 44 E. 3. 12, &c. Littleton ubi ſupra, &c.

Hill. 7 Jacobi.

Baſpole's Caſe.

WIlliam Freeman brought an Action of Debt upon an Obligation of 25 li. bearing date 9 Aprilis, 6 Jacobi, againſt John Baſpole, The Defendant demanded oyer of the Condition, which [b] was, That if the within John Baſpole, &c. ſhall well and truly ſtand to, abide, fulfill, and keep the Award, Arbitrament, Order, Rule, Judgement, and final Determination of Francis Theobald, Gent. indifferently named, elected and choſen, as well on the part and behalf of John Baſpole, as of the ſaid William Freeman, for to order, judge, rule, and final Determination to make of all Matters, Suits, Debts, Duties, Actions and Demands whatſoever had, made, or depending between the ſaid John and William from the beginning of the World until the day of the date hereof, ſo as the ſaid Award, Order, and final End be made and given up under the Hand and Seal of the ſaid Francis Theobald, to either of the ſaid Parties, at or before the Feaſt of Saint James the Apoſtle, next enſuing, that then this preſent Obligation to be void; and pleaded, That the Arbitrator nullum fecit Arbitrium, &c. de & ſupra Præmiſſis in Conditione præd' ſpecificat': The Plaintiff replied, that the Arbitrator 25 Junii, an. 6. of the King that now is, by his writing made an Order and Award between the ſaid William and John, de & ſupra Præmiſſis modo & forma ſequentibus, viz. That where a Sute was depending between the ſaid John Baſpole and William Freeman, for a Debt due by William Paſpole, Father of the ſaid John Baſpole, deceaſed, to Robert Freeman, Father of the ſaid William Freeman, deceaſed, which juſt Debt was 20 li. to be paid by ſeven years then paſt to the ſaid Robert Freeman, and now due to William Freeman, as Adminiſtrator of his Father, which Debt the ſaid, John Baſpole, for good conſideration, did promiſe to pay to the ſaid William, as upon good proof appeareth to the Arbitrator; That the ſaid John Baſpole ſhould pay to the ſaid Will. Freeman in [98] conſideration of the ſaid Debt long due, and for his great coſts in that part ſuſtained, the ſum of 22 li. And that after, he requeſted the ſaid Joh. Baſpole to pay the ſaid ſum of 22 li. which he refuſed to doe, upon which the Defendant did demurr in Law. And two Objections were made againſt this Arbitrament; 1. Becauſe that the Arbitrament was made of the one part, and not of the other, as in 7 H. 6. 40. that one Party ſhould goe quit of all Actions had by the other againſt him; and nothing is ſpoken of the Actions which he hath againſt the other, and therefore void. 2. It doth not appear that this matter, of which he maketh the Arbitrament, was the matter only which was betwixt them, for the ſubmiſſion is general of all Actions and Demands, ſo as the ſaid Award be, &c. So that if he doth not make Award of all Matters in controverſie the Award is void. To which it was anſwered and reſolved, That as to the firſt the Award was ſufficient and good; for here the Award is as well of the one Party as of the other, for the one receiveth money, and the other is diſcharged of the Debt, and his Promiſe to pay it. And it is not like the ſaid Caſe in 7 H. 6. 40. for there one ſhall be diſcharged of Actions, and the other ſhall receive nothing in ſatisfaction thereof. Vide 22 Edw. 4. 25. To the ſecond Objection it was anſwered and reſolved, 1. It appeareth by the Award, that it was made, de Præmiſſis præd' in Conditione præd' ſpecificat', which words implie, that he made an Arbitrament of all that which was referred unto him, and ſo ſhall it be intended till the contrary be ſhewed and alleged by the other Party; For when the ſubmiſſion is general in all Actions, &c. generale nihil certi implicat, and therefore it well ſtandeth with the generality of the words, that there was but one Cauſe depending in controverſie between them. But where the ſubmiſſion is of certain things in ſpecial, and with a Proviſo or Condition, that the Award be made, de Præmiſſis, &c. or words which do amount to ſo much, there it behooveth that the Arbitrator make the Award of all, otherwiſe it is void. But if diverſe things in ſpecial are ſubmitted without ſuch conditional concluſion, the Arbitrator may make the Award of any of them. And as it is of diverſe particular things, ſo it is of diverſe particular perſons: And therefore if two on the one part, and one on the other part, ſubmit themſelves, the Arbitrator may make Arbitrament between one of the two of the one part, and the other of the other part, and it ſhall be good. 2. Although that there were many matters in controverſie; yet if one only be ſignified to the Arbitrator, he may make an Award thereof; for the Arbitrator is in the place of a Judge, and his Office is to determine ſecundum allegata & probata, and the duty of the Parties who are grieved, and know their particular Griefs, is to ſignifie their Cauſes of controverſie to the Arbitrator, for they are privie to them, and the Arbitrator a ſtranger, and each ought to doe that which lieth in his knowledge, and if other conſtruction ſhould be made, many Arbitraments might be avoided; for one might conceal a Treſpaſs done, or other ſecret cauſe of Action [b] given to him, and ſo avoid the Award, Et expedit Reipublicæ ut ſit finis Litium. And the ſame is like to Cullamore's Caſe upon the Statue of Bankrupts, in the Second Part of my Reports, 25 and 26. which provideth, that equal diſtribution ſhall be made of the Bankrupt's Goods between all the Creditors, but that is, (as it is there reſolved) to be intended of thoſe who will come in and ſignifie their Debts. And hereby you will the better underſtand your Books in 39 H. 6. 9. 22 E. 4. 25. 19 H. 6. 6. b. 2 R. 3. 18. 4 Eliz. Dyer 216. 8 Eliz. Dyer 242.

Sir Richard Lechford's Caſe.

[99] IN an Eject. firmæ in the Kings Bench by Thomas Undrel Plaintiff, and Briſtow Elſay Defendant, of a demiſe made by Will. Copley, 2 No. 2 Jac. Reg. of a houſe and 20 acres of Lands, &c. in Lee in the County of Surrey for term of one year, the Defendant pleaded that R. Lechford Knight was ſeiſed of the Tenements, in which, &c. in his Demeſn, as of fee, and leaſed them to the Defendant for his life, and that Will. Copley did diſſeiſe him, and made the leaſe to the Plaintiff, and that the Defendant did re-enter, &c. and that the Plaintiff replyed and ſaid, that the tenements in which, &c. are, and time out of mind were parcel of the Mannor of Sherwood in Lee aforeſaid, whereof Henry Lechford Eſquire was ſeiſed, and that the ſaid Tenements in which, &c. are, and time out of mind were demiſed and demiſable, &c. by Copy of Court Roll, &c. And that the ſaid Henry Lechford at the Court of his Mannor, Anno 2 Eliz. granted the ſaid Tenements to Tho. Copley father of the ſaid William Copley, to have and to hold to him and his heirs by Copy of Court Roll, &c. And afterwards the ſaid Thomas Copley died ſeiſed thereof of ſuch eſtate, which deſcended to the ſaid William Copley his ſon and heir, the Leſſor, &c. The eſtate of the ſaid Henry Lechford in the ſaid Mannor the ſaid Sir R. Lechford Knight hath, who entred upon the poſſeſſion of the ſaid William Copley the ſon, and expulſed him of the Tenements, in which, and demiſed them to Briſtow Elſey, as is aforeſaid, upon whom the ſaid William Copley did re-enter, and demiſed them to the Plaintiff, &c. To which the Defendant did re-joyn and confeſs, that the Tenements aforeſaid were parcel of the Mannor, and de-
[b] miſed and demiſable, &c. And the grant by Copy made to the ſaid Thomas Copley, and the deſcent to William Copley, prout, &c. But further he ſaid, That within the ſaid Mannor, there is, and time out of mind, &c. was ſuch a cuſtom, That if any cuſtomary Tenant of the ſaid Mannor dyeth ſeiſed of any Lands, or Tenements, holden by Copy, &c. in fee-ſimple, that every heir of ſuch Tenant ſo dying ſeiſed, ſhall pay a reaſonable fine for his admittance to be in full Court of the ſaid Mannor by the Lord or his Steward ſet or impoſed. And further within the ſaid Mannor there is another cuſtom time out of mind, That if any Copyhold Tenant, ſeiſed of any Lands or Tenements holden by Copy, &c. of the ſaid Mannor in fee-ſimple dyeth thereof ſeiſed, and his heir doth not come at the next Court of the ſaid Mannor, and claim the ſaid Tenements, and pray to be admitted to them, &c. then open proclamation ſhall be made in full Court that the ſaid heir come at the ſame Court to claim the ſame Lands, and to pray to be admitted, and ſo at two other Courts following of the ſaid Mannor the like proclamation ſhall be made; and if ſuch heir at any time of the ſaid Courts in which Proclamation ſhall be made, cometh not to claim the ſaid Tenements, and pray to be admitted to them, Then the Lord of the Manner hath always uſed and accuſtomed to ſeiſe them into his hands, as forfeit to him, and pleaded that three proclamations were made at three ſeveral Courts, according to the cuſtom; and that the ſaid William Copley, ſon and heir of Thomas Copley, came not to any of them to claim the ſame Lands, and pray to be admitted to them: For which the ſaid Sir Richard Lechford then and yet Lord of the ſaid Mannor, ſeiſed the ſaid Tenements aforeſaid, in which, &c. as forfeit to him, and leaſed them to the Defendant, as aforeſaid. To which the Plaintiff ſaid, That the ſaid Thomas Copley 10 Julii, 27 Eliz. as is aforeſaid, dyed ſeiſed of the ſaid Tenements, after whoſe death the Tenements aforeſaid, in which, &c. deſcended to the ſaid William Copley, as aforeſaid; And that at the time of the death of the ſaid Thomas Copley, and at the time of the ſaid ſeveral proclamations, the ſaid William Copley was reſident at Bruxels, beyond the ſeas, extra quatuor maria, & ibi per totum tempus remanebat, and there for all the ſaid time remained untill the firſt day of Septemb. Anno 1. Jac. Reg. which day he returned from Bruxels aforeſaid into England; And that immediately after his return aforeſaid, then having notice, and not before, of the death of the ſaid Thomas Copley, the ſaid William Copley 30 Sept. 1 Jac. came to the ſaid Sir Richard Lechford, there Lord of the ſaid Mannor, and prayed to be admitted to the Tenements aforeſaid, in which, &c. And offered to the ſaid Lord any reaſonable fine for his admittance to them, which the Lord utterly refuſed, &c. Upon which the Defendant did demur in Law; And it was adjudged that this Cuſtom and Non-claim ſhould not bar him who was beyond Sea (extra maria) at the time of the proclamations made of his Inheritance, becauſe that he
[100] who is out of the Realm could not have knowledge by intendment of Law of the death of his Father, nor of the proclamations made to warn him to come to claim his Inheritance, and pray to be admitted to it. And it appeareth by the Statute of modo levandi fines, made 18 E. 1. That a fine levied of Lands in the Common Pleas, is as high a bar, and of as great force, and of ſo high nature in it ſelf, that it doth barre not onely thoſe who are parties and privies to the fine and their heirs, but alſo all people of the world who are of full age, out of priſon, of good memory, and within the 4 Seas the day of the fine levyed, if they do not make their claim within the year and day, &c. And that appeareth alſo by the Statute of Donis Conditionalibus, made 13 E. 1. upon which it was concluded, That if the ſublimity of a fine, which is ſo high a barr, and of ſo great force, and of ſo puiſſant a nature, and which hath ſuch ſolemnity in ſo high a Court of Record, ſhall not barr him who is out of the Realm, à fortiori Proclamations made in a baſe Court in a private corner, ſhall not barr him. So Judgment final in a Writ of Right in the Common Pleas ſhall bind all ſtrangers, if they make not their claim within the year and day after the Judgement and execution;

Hill. 7 Jacobi. In the Common Pleas.

John Talbot's Case.

John Chapman brought a Writ of Second Deliverance against John Pendleton of two Heifers taken at Albrighton, in a place called Bromley in Albrighton, in the County of Shrewsbury, &c. The Defendant made Conusans as Bailiff to John Talbot Esquire, and said that the place where, &c. did contain three Acres of Pasture, lying in a field called Bromley in Albrighton, and that one John Chapman Father of the said John Chapman, whose Heir he is, was seised of the said three Acres of Pasture in Fee, and held them of the said John Talbot, as of his Manor of Albrighton in the said County by Fealty, and Sute of Court to the Manor from three weeks to three weeks, and by the Service to render after the death of every Tenant of the said three Acres of Pasture in which, &c. dying thereof seised, the best beast which the Tenant had at the time of his death in the name of a Heriot; Of which Services he was seised by the hands of the said John Chapman the Father, as by the hands of his very Tenant, &c. And the said John Chapman the Father so being thereof seised, died seised thereof: And that at the time of his death he was possessed of a beast of the price of 5 li. as of his proper beast; which Ox was this best beast which he had at the time of his death, &c. And because the said Heriot was behind, and not delivered, the Defendant, as Bailiff of the said John Talbot, did acknowledge the taking of the Cattel aforesaid in the place where, &c. as infra feodum & dominium suum, &c. In barr of which the said John Chapman, now Plaintiff, said, That before the said John Chapman his Father had any thing in the said three Acres of Pasture, one John Barny was seised of a House and a half yeard Land, of Land meadow and pasture, containing by estimation 50 Acres, in Albrighton aforesaid, whereof the said three Acres of Pasture in which, &c. were parcel, in his demean as of fee, and the said House and half yeard of Lands, meadow and pasture, held of the said John Talbot, as of his said Manor by Fealty, Sute to his Court, and Heriot service, after the death of every Tenant dying thereof seised; and that the said John Barny being so seised of the said Messuage and Half yard entirely, Anno 32 Eliz. of three Acres of Lands parcel of the said half yard Land, did enfeoffe the said John Talbot, to have and to hold to him and his Heirs: And afterwards, Anno 36 Eliz. of the said three Acres of Pasture in which, &c. did enfeoffe the said John Chapman the Father, to have and to hold to him and his Heirs, who died thereof seised, and the same descended to John Chapman the now Plaintiff, &c. Upon which the Avowant did demurr in Law. And the only Question in this Case was, If the Lord by the purchase of the said three Acres of pasture in which, parcel of the said Tenements holden of him by Heriot service, hath extinct his Heriot or not. And the Counsel of the Avowant did insist strongly upon the words of Littl. lib. 2. cap. ult. fol. 49. where he saith, That notwithstanding the purchase of parcel, &c. by the Lord, the Homage and Fealty remain intire to the Lord; for the Lord shall have the Homage and Fealty of his Tenant for the remnant of the Lands and Tenements holden of him, as he had before, because that such Services are not annual Services, and cannot be apportioned; which reason proveth (as it was urged) that the Heriot service in the case at barr doth continue, for this Service is not annual, (being due only upon the death of the Tenant) and cannot be apportioned because it is entire; scil. optimum animal. So they said, That it appeareth by Littleton, lib. 2. cap. 3. and 7 E. 3. 29. That he who holdeth by Knights service, ought to goe in person, or find another able person for him Covenably arrayed for the Warr, &c. which is an intire Service: and yet Littleton saith, fol. 49. That if the Lord purchase part of the Land so holden, the Escuage shall be apportioned, which proveth that the Tenure by Knights service doth remain for the residue, and the reason is, as it was urged, because that the entire service was not annual, and the service by the body of a man cannot be apportioned. Also they cited the Book in 34 E. 3. Heriot 1. where it is holden, That if my Tenant who holdeth of me by a Heriot alieneth parcel of his Land to another, each of them is chargeable to me of a Heriot, because it is entire; and although the Tenant purchaseth the Land again, &c. I shall have of him for every part a Heriot. So in the Case at Barr, although that the Lord purchaseth parcel of the Land, yet he shall have a Heriot for the residue, for that it is entire, and not annual. But it was answered and adjudged by the whole Court, That in the Case at Barr, the Heriot service was extinct. And first the Resolutions in Bruerton's Case in the Sixth Part of my Reports were affirmed to be good Law by the whole Court. And in this Case these Points were resolved.

1. That some entire Services by alienation of parcel of the Tenancy shall be multiplied, scil. that every several Alienee shall pay a several entire Service; and some entire Services, by alienation of parcel shall not be multiplied, but the Lord shall be content with one amongst all the several Alienees: And as to that, it is to know, that there are four manners of entire Services: 1. When a thing entire, be it a Chattel valuable, or a thing of pleasure, shall be rendred and paid by the Tenant to the Lord, a Chattel valuable, as a Horse, an Ox, a pair of Spurrs, Bow and Arrows, a Launce, a Gauntlet, or the like; things of pleasure, as a Faulcon, or other Bird, a Dog, or other things of pleasure: All such entire Services by alienation of parcel of the Tenancy shall be multiplied, and every Alienee shall render the entire Service: And yet by the purchase of parcel by the Lord the whole is extinct, as it is resolved in Bruerton's Case. The second is a personal Service to be done by the Tenant to the person of the Lord, as Homage, Fealty, Knights service, to be Carver, ver, Sewer, Butler, or other like perſonal Services to the Lord, and ſome of theſe ſhall multiply, and ſome not; And therefore Homage and Fealty by alienation of parcel ſhall multiply, becauſe that when the Tenant doth Homage or Fealty, he doth them from all the Tenements which they hold of the Lord, ſo that theſe Services extend to the entire Tenancy, and every parcel of it, and although that the Lord purchaſeth part, yet the Homage and Fealty do remain for the reſidue: So that although Littl. (as above) holdeth, That the Homage and Fealty by purchaſe of parcel ſhall not be extinct, but ſhall remain for the reſidue, becauſe that ſuch Services are not annual, and cannot be apportioned, the ſame is ratio una, but not unica, as it appeareth before. So Knights ſervice, which is an entire Service to be performed by the body of a man, ſhall be alſo multiplied by the alienation of parcel; And although that the Lord purchaſeth parcel, the Knights ſervice ſhall not be extinct, but ſhall remain for the reſidue, quia pro bono publico, and for the defence of the Kingdom. And Eſcuage ſhall be apportioned. But the perſonal Service to be Sewer, Carver, Butler, &c. or when the Tenant is bound by his Tenure, To feaſt the Lord and his Family once in the year; and to ride with his Lord in the County of N. at his own charges (vide 10 *E.*3. 23. in John de Brampton's Caſe) by alienation of parcel ſhall not be apportioned nor multiplied: For ſuch Services [106] which are for the private benefit of the Lord, and are perſonally to be done by a man, ſhall not be multiplied, becauſe that they are to be perſonally done by one man only, and multiplication of them ſhall be a prejudice, and chargeable to the Lord, and the purchaſe of parcel of the Tenancy by the Lord ſhall extinct all ſuch perſonal private Service. The third is, When the Tenant is to exerciſe a perſonal Office, as to be Steward of the Court of the Manor, or Baily of the Manor, or Collector of the Rents of the Manor, or Woodward of the Manor, or the like Offices, they by alienation of parcel of the Tenancy ſhall not be multiplied, but the Lord may diſtrain each of them in theſe Caſes to doe it, but one only ſhall exerciſe it: And if the Lord purchaſe any party of the Tenancy, the whole Service is extinct. The fourth is, When the Tenant by his Tenure is to doe manual labour, or work touching Houſes, Lands, or Tenements; as to cover or repair the Hall of the Lord's Houſe, to make or repair his Park pale, to plough and ſowe the Lord's Demeans, &c. or to reap his Corn, or to cut his Graſs, or to grind his Corn, or ſuch like; theſe or other Services by alienation of parcel ſhall not be multiplied; for there works are to be done upon a certain thing, which cannot be multiplied.

2. It was reſolved, That there is not any difference between annual Services, be they valuable, or things of pleaſure, and which ſhall be multiplied, as aforeſaid, and between ſuch entire Services, not annual: As if Lord and Tenant be to render a Horſe every three, four or five years, or upon alienation, or death; in theſe and the like Caſes, if the Lord purchaſeth parcel of the Tenaney, ſuch entire Services, not annual, ſhall be aſwell extinct as the like annual Services.

3. It was reſolved, That if John Barny had firſt enfeoffed John Chapman, the Father, of the ſaid three Acres of Paſture, and afterwards had anfeoffed the Lord of the ſaid three Acres of Land, that notwithſtanding the Heriot ſervice had remained for the Land which John Chapman, the Father, held; and the Cauſe is, becauſe that John Chapman by his purchaſe of three Acres holdeth by one ſeveral and diſtinct tenure of Heriot ſervice, and therefore the purchaſe of the Lord of any part of the reſidue which John Barny held ſhall extinct only the Service which he ought to render, and not the Heriot which John Chapman, by reaſon of his diſtinct and ſeparate Service, ought to pay.

4. There is a difference between Heriot Service, and Heriot Cuſtom, as to the extinguiſhment [b] thereof, when the Lord purchaſeth parcel of the Tenancy: For if the Lord purchaſeth parcel of the Tenancy, the Heriot ſervice is extinct: But if the Cuſtom of the Manor be, That upon the death of every Tenant of the Manor, who dieth ſeiſed of any Lands holden of the Manor, the Lord is to have a Heriot; although that the Lord purchaſeth parcel of the Tenancy, yet the Lord ſhall have a Heriot by the Cuſtom of the Manor for the reſidue, for he remaineth Tenant to the Lord, and the Cuſtom doth extend to every Tenant: Look, Reader, the Books cited in Brownton's Caſe, for theſe Differences, where the Reaſon of them appeareth.

Hill. 7 Jacobi. In the Common Pleas.

Doctor Bonhams Case.

THomas Bonham Doctor in Philosophy and Physick brought an action of false imprisonment against Henry Atkins, George Turner, Thomas Mounford, and John Argent, Doctors in Physick, and John Tayler, and William Bowden Yeomen, For that the Defendants the 10 of Novemb. 4. Jacobi. did imprison him, and detain him in prison by the space of 7 days. The Defendants pleaded the Letters Patents of King Henry the 8. bearing date the 23. of Septemb. in the 10 year of his reign, by which he reciteth; Quod cum regii officii sui munus arbitrabatur ditionis suæ hominum fœlicitati omni ratione consulere, id autem vel imprimis fore si improborum conatibus tempestivè occurreret, &c. By the same Letters Patents the King granted to John Chambre, Thomas Linacre, Ferdinando de Victoria, John Halswel, John Frances, and Robert Yaxley, quod ipsi omnesque homines ejusdem facultatis de & in civitate London sint in re & nomine unum corpus & communitas perpetua, per nomen Præsidentis & Collegii, sive communitatis facultatis medicinæ London, &c. And that they might make meetings and Ordinances, &c. But the Case at Bar doth principally consist upon two Clauses in the Charter. The first, Concessimus etiam eisdem Præsidenti & Collegio seu Communitati et successoribus suis, quod nemo in dicta Civitate, aut per septem millaria in circuitu ejusdem exerceat dictam facultatem Medicinæ, nisi ad hoc prædict. Præsident. et Comunit. seu successores suos, qui pro tempore fuerint, admissus sit per ejusdem presidentis et Collegii Literas sigillo suo communi sigillat. sub pœna centum solidorum quo prolibet mense quo non admissus eandem facultatem exercuerit, dimidum inde Domino Regi et hæredibus suis, et dimidium dict. Præsidenti et Collegio applicand. &c. The second clause is, which immediately followeth in these words, Præterea voluit et concessit pro se et successoribus suis (quantum in se fuit) quod per Præsident. et Collegium prædict. Communitat. pro tempore exist. et eorum successores imperpetuum, quatuor singulis annis per ipsos eligerent qui haberent supervisum et scrutinium, correctionem et gubernationem omnium et singulorum dict. Civitatis Medicorum, utentium facultat. medicinæ in eadem Civitate, ac aliorum Medicorum forinsecorum quorumcunque facultatem illam Medicinæ aliquo modo frequentantium et utentium infra eandem Civitatem et suburbia ejusdem, sive infra septem millaria in circuitu ejusdem Civitatis, ac punitionem eorundem, pro dilictis suis in non bene exequend. faciend. et utend. illa: nec non supervisum et scrutinium omnium medicinarum, et earum receptionem per dictos Medicos seu aliquem eorum hujusmodi legis dict. nuper Regis pro eorum infirmitatibus curand. et sanand. dand. imponend. et utend. quoties et quando opus fuerit, pro commodo et utilitat. eorundem ligeorum dicti nuper Regis: Ita quod punitio eorundem Medicorum utentium dict. facultate Medicinæ sic in præmiss. delinquentium per fines, amerciamenta et imprisonament. corporum suorum, et per alias vias rationabiles et congruas exequeretur, as by the said Charter more fully appeareth. And that by force of the said Letters Patents, The said Thomas Chambre, Thomas Linacre, &c. and all the men of the same faculty in the said City were unum Corpus, et communitas perpetua sive Collegium perpetuum. And afterwards by Act of Parliament, An. 14 H. 8. It was enacted, That the said corporation, and every grant, article, and other things in the said Letters Patents contained and specified, should be approved, granted, ratified, and confirmed, in tam amplo et largo modo prout poterit acceptari, cogitari, et constitui per easdem Literas Patentes. And further it was enacted, That the said 6 persons named in the said Letters Patents, as Principal of the said College, and 2 others of the said College, who should be named Electi, and that the said Elects should choose one of them to be President, as by the said Act appeareth: And further they pleaded the Act of 1 Mariæ, by which it is enacted, Quod quædam concessio per Literas Patentes de incorporation. fact. per prædict. nuper Regem Medicis London. et omnes clausulæ et articuli content. in eadem concessione approbarentur, concederentur, ratificarentur et confirm. per prædict. nuper Parl. In consideratione cujus inactitat. fuit authoritate ejusdem Parliamenti. quod præd. statut. et act. Parliament. in omnibus articulis et clausulis in eodem content. extunc imposterum starent et continuerent in pleno robore, &c. And further it was enacted, That whensoever the President of the College or Commonalty of the faculty of Physick of London for the time being, or such as the said President and College shall yearly, according to the tenor and meaning of the said Act, authorize to search, examine, correct and punish all offenders and transgressors in the said faculty, &c. shall send or commit any such offendor or offendors for his or their offence or disobedience, contrary to any article or clause contained in the said grant or act, to any ward, goal, or prison within the same City (tho Tower of London except) that then from time to time the Warden, Goaler or keeper, &c. shall receive, &c. such person so offending &c. and the same shall keep at his proper charge without bail or mainprise, until such time as such offendor or disobedient be discharged of the said imprisonment by the said President and such persons as shall be thereunto authorised, upon pain that all and every such Warden, Goaler, &c. doing the contrary, shall lose and forfeit the double of such fines and amerciaments as such offender and offenders shall be assessed to pay by such, as the said President and College shall authorize as aforesaid, so that the fine and amerciament be not at any one time above the sum of 20 l. the one moity to the King, the other moity to the President and College, &c. And further pleaded, That the said Thomas Bonham the 10th. of April, within London, against the form of the said Letters Patents, and the said Acts, exercebat artem Medicinæ non admissus per Litteras præd. Præsidentis et Collegii sigillo eorum communi sigillat. ubi revera præd. Tho. Bonham fuit minus sufficiens ad artem Medicinæ exercend. By force of which the said Thomas Bonham 30 April 1606. was summoned in London by the Censors or Governours of the College, to appear before the President and Cen-

[b] Carcerem ſi in præmiſſis delinqueret. And that the ſaid Tho. Bonham 30 Octob. 1606. within London did practiſe Phyſick, and the ſame day he was ſummoned by the Cenſors, to appear before the Preſident and them the 22 of Octob. then next following, at which day Bonham made default. Ideo conſideratum fuit per præd. Cenſores, that for his diſ-obedience and contempt he ſhould be amerced to 10 l. and that he ſhould be arreſted and committed to cuſtody, And afterwards 7. Novemb. 1606. the ſaid Tho. Bonham at their aſſembly came before the Preſident and Cenſors, and they asked him if he would ſatisfy the College for his diſ-obedience and contempt, and ſubmit himſelf to be examined, and obey the cenſure of the College, who anſwered, That he had practiſed Phyſick, and would practiſe Phyſick within London, asking no leave of the College, and that he would not ſubmit himſelf to the Preſident and Cenſors, and affirmed that the Preſident and Cenſors had not any authority over thoſe who were Doctors of the Univerſity; For which cauſe, the ſaid 4 Cenſors, ſc. Dr. Turner, Dr. Moundforde, Dr. Argent, and Dr. Dun, then being Cenſors or Governours, pro offenſis et inobedientia præd. adtunc et ibid. ordinaverunt et decreverunt, quod præd. Tho. Bonham in carcerem mandaretur ibid. remanſur. quouſque abinde per Præſident. et cenſores, ſeu gubernatores Collegii præd. pro tempore exiſten. deliberaretur, And there then by their warrant in writing under their Common Seal did commit the Plaintif to the priſon of the Counter in London, &c. without bayl or mainpriſe, at the coſts and charges of the ſaid Thomas Bonham, until the ſaid Tho. Bonham by the warrant of the Preſident and Cenſors of the ſaid College, or their Succeſſors was delivered. And Dr. Atkins then Preſident, and the Cenſors, and Bowden and Taylor as their ſervants, and by the commandment of the ſaid Preſident and Cenſors, did carry the Plaintif with the warrant to the Goal, &c. which is the ſame impriſonment. The Plaintif replied and ſaid, That by the ſaid Act of 14 H. 8. it was further enacted, And where that in the Dioces of England, out of London, it is not like to find always men able ſufficiently to examine (after the Statute) ſuch as ſhall be admitted to exerciſe Phyſick in them, that it may be enacted in this Preſent Parliament, That no Perſon from henceforth be ſuffered to exerciſe or practiſe Phyſick through England, until ſuch time that he be examined at London by the ſaid Preſident and 3 of the ſaid Elects, and to have from them Letters Teſtimonial of their approving and examination, Except he be a graduate of Oxford or Cambridge, which have accompliſhed all things for his form without grace: And that the Plaintif in the year of our Lord 1595. was a Graduate, ſc. a Doctor in the Univerſity of Cambridge, and had accompliſhed all things concerning his degree for his form without grace, by force whereof he had exerciſed and practiſed Phyſick within the City of London, until the Defendants had impriſoned him, &c. upon which the [116] Defendants did demur in Law. And this caſe was often argued by the Serjeants at Bar in diverſe ſeveral Terms; And now this Term the caſe was argued by the Juſtices, and the effect of their arguments who argued againſt the Plaintif (which was divided into three parts) ſhall be firſt reported. The firſt was, Whether a Doctor of Phyſick, of the one Univerſity or the other, be by the Letters Patents, and by the body of the Act of 14 H. 8. reſtrained to practiſe Phyſick within the City of London, &c. The ſecond was, If the Exception in the ſaid Act of 14 H. 8. hath excepted him or not. The third was, That his impriſonment was lawful for his ſaid diſobedience. And as to the firſt, they did relie upon the Letter of the grant, ratified by the ſaid Act of 14 H. 8. which is in the negative, ſc. Nemo in dicta civitate, &c. exerceat dictam facultatem niſi ad hoc per prædict. Præſidentem et communitatem, &c. admiſſus ſit, &c. And this propoſition is a general negative, and Generale dictum eſt generaliter intelligendum; and nemo excludeth all; and therefore a Doctor of the one Univerſity or the other, is prohibited within this negative word Nemo. And many caſes were put where negative Statues ſhall be taken ſtrictè et excluſivè, which I do not think here neceſſary to recite. Alſo they ſaid, that the Statute of 3 H. 8. cap. 11. which in effect is repealed by this act of 14 H. 8. hath a ſpecial proviſo for the Univerſity of Cambridge and Oxford, which being here left out, doth declare the intention of the makers of the Act, that they did intend to include them within this general prohibition. Nemo in dicta Civitate, &c. As to the two points they ſtrongly held, that the ſaid latter clauſe, And where that in the Dioceſes of England out of London, &c. this clauſe according to the words doth extend only to places out of London, and ſo much the rather, becauſe that they purview for London before, Nemo in dicta Civitate, &c. Alſo the makers of the Act, put a diſtinction betwixt thoſe who ſhall be licenſed to practiſe Phyſick within London, &c. for they ought to have the admittance and allowance of the Preſident and College in writing under their Common Seal; but he who ſhall be allowed to practiſe Phyſick throughout England out of London ought to be examined and admitted by the Preſident and 3 of the Elects, and ſo they ſaid, that it was lately adjudged in the Kings Bench, in an Information exhibited againſt the ſaid Doctor Bonham for practiſing of Phyſick within London for divers Months. As to the third point they ſaid, That for his contempt and diſ-obedience before them in their College, they might commit him to priſon, for they have authority by the Letters Patents and Act of Parliament, And therefore for his contempt tempt and misdemeanor before them they may commit him. Also the Act of 1 Mariæ hath given them power to commit them for every offence or dis-obedience contrary to any article or clause conteined in the said grant or Act, But there is an expres Negative Article in the said grant, and (b) ratified by the Act of 14. H. 8. Quod Nemo in dicta Civitate, &c. exerceat, &c. And the Defendants have pleaded, that the Plaintif hath practised Physick within London by the space of one month, &c. And therefore the Act of 1 Mariæ hath authorized them for to imprison him in this case; for which cause, they did conclude for the Defendants against the Plaintif. But it was argued by Coke Chief Justice, Warburton and Daniel Justices of the Common Pleas to the contrary. And Daniel conceived, That a Doctor of Physick of the one University or the other, &c. was not within the body of the Act, and if he was within the body of the Act, that he was excepted by the said latter clause; but Warburton argued against him for both the points: and the Chief Justice did not speak to these 2. points, because that he and Warburton and Daniel did agree, that this action was clearly maintainable for 2. other points. But to the 2. other points he and the said 2. other Justices Warburton and Daniel did speak, sc. 1. Whether the Censors have power for the Causes alleged in their barr to fine and imprison the Plantif. 2. Admitting that they have power to do it, if they have pursued their power. But the Chief Justice before he argued the points in Law, because that much was said in the Commendations of the Doctors of Physick of the said College within London, and somewhat (as he conceived,) in derogation of the Dignity of the Doctors of the Universities, he first attributed much to the Doctors of the said College within London, and did confess that nothing was spoken, which was not due to their merits; but yet that no Comparison was to be made, between that private College, and any [118] of the Universities of Cambridge and Oxford, no more than between the Father and his Children, or between the Fountain and the small Rivers which descend from thence: The University is Alma mater, from whose breasts those of that private College have sucked all their science and knowledge (which I acknowledge to be great and profound) but the Law saith, Erubescit lex filios castigare parentes: the University is the fountain, and that and the like private Colleges, are tanquam rivuli, which flow from the Fountain, & melius est petere fontes quam sectari rivulos. Briefly, Academia Cantabrigiæ & Oxoniæ sunt Athenæ nostræ nobilissimæ, regni soles, occuli & animæ regni, unde Religio, humanitas, et doctrina in omnes regni partes uberrimè diffunduntur. But it is true, Nunquam sufficiet copia laudatoris, quia nunquam deficiet materia laudis; and therefore the Universities exceed and excel all private Colleges, tanquam inter viburna cupressus. And it was observed in the said Letters Patents, and the King, and the Parliament in the Act of 14 H. 8. in making of a Law concerning Physicians, for the more safety and health of men therein followeth the order of a good Physician (Rex enim omnes artes censetur habere in scrinio pectoris sui) for, Medicina est duplex, removens, & promovens; removens morbum, et promovens ad salutem. And therefore 5. manner of persons who more hurt the body of [117] men than the disease it self, are to be removed; 1. improbi. 2. avari, qui medicinam magis avaritiæ suæ causa quam ullius bonæ conscientiæ fiducia profitentur: 3 malitiosi: 4. temerarii: 5. inscii; and of the other part, 5. manner of persons were to be promoted, as appeareth by the said Act, sc. those who were, 1. profound, 2. sad, 3. discreet, 4. groundedly learned, 5, profoundly studied. And it was well ordained, That the professors of Physick should be profound, sad, discreet, &c. and not youths, who have no gravity and experience; for as one saith, In juvene Theologo conscientiæ detrimentum, in juvene legista bursæ decrementum, in juvene Medico cœmiterii incrementum. And it ought to be presumed, every Doctor of any of the Universities to be within the Statues, sc. to be profound, sad, discreet, groundedly learned, and profoundly studied, for none can there be Master of Arts (who is a Doctor of Philosophie) under the study of 7. years, and cannot be Doctor in Physick under 7. years more in the study of Physick: and that is the cause that the Plaintif is named in the Declaration, Doctor of Philosophy, and Doctor of Physick, quia oportet Medicum esse Philosophum, ubi enim Philosophus desinit, incipit Medicus: As to the 2. points upon which the Chief Justice, Warburton, and Daniel gave judgement. 1. It was Resolved by them, That the said Censors have not the power to commit the Plaintif for any of the Causes mentioned in the barr, and the cause and reason thereof shortly was, That the said clause which giveth power to the said Censors to fine and imprison, doth not extend to the said Clause, sc. Quod nemo in dicta Civitate, &c. exerceat dictam facultatem, &c. which prohibiteth every one to practise Physick within London, &c. without licence of the President and College: but extendeth only to punish those who practise Physick within London pro delictis suis in non bene exequendo faciendo et utendo facultate Medicinæ, by fine and imprisonment: So that the Censors have not power by the Letters Patents and the Act to fine and imprison any for practising of Physick within London, but only pro delictis suis in non bene exequendo, &c. for ill and not good use and practise of Physick. And that was made manifest by 5. reasons, called vividiæ rationes, because they had their vigour and life from the Letters Patents, and the Act it self. And the best Expositor of all Letters Patents, and Acts of Parliament, are the Letters Patents and the Acts themselves, by construction, and conferring all the parts together, Optima Statuti interpretatrix est (omnibus particulis ejusdem inspectis) ipsum Statutum; And Injustum [b] est nisi tota lege inspecta una aliqua ejus particula judicare vel respondere. The first reason was, that these two were two absolute, perfect and distinct Clauses, and as parallels, and therefore the one did not extend to the other; for the second beginneth, Præterea voluit & concessit, &c. and the branch concerning fine and imprisonment, is parcel of the second clause. 2. The first clause prohibiting the practise of Physick, &c. doth comprehend 4. certainties; 1. certainty of the thing prohibited, sc. practise of Physick; 2. Certainty of the time, sc. practise for one moneth; 3. Certainty of penalty sc. 5 l. 4. Certainty in distribution, sc. one moyety to the King, and the other moyety to the College; and this penalty he who practiseth Physick in London doth incurr, although he practise and use Physick very well, and profitably for the body of man; and upon this branch the Information was exhibited in the Kings Bench. But the clause to punish delicta in non bene exequendo, &c. upon which branch the case at barr stands, is altogether incertain, for the hurt which may come thereby may be little or great, leve vel grave, excessive or small, &c. And therefore the King and the makers of the Act, cannot for so uncertain offence impose a certainty of time, or time of imprisonment, but leave it to the Censors to punish such offences, secundum quantitatem delicti, which is included in these words, per fines, amerciamenta, imprisonamenta corporum suorum, & per alias vias rationabiles & congruas. 2. the harm which accrueth by non bene exequendo, &c. doth concern the body of man; and therefore it is reasonable that the offender should be punished in his body, sc. by imprisonment; but he who practiseth Physick in London in a good manner, although he doth it without leave, yet it is not any prejudice to the body of man. But the Clause of non bene exequendo, &c. doth not prescribe any time certain, but at what time soever he ministreth Physick non bene, &c. he shall be punished by the said 2. branch: And the Law hath great reason in the making of this distinction, for divers Nobles, Gentlemen, and others come upon divers occasions to London; and when they are here they become subject to diseases, and thereupon they send for their Physicians into the Country, who know their bodies and the causes of their diseases; now it was never the meaning of the Act to barr any one of his own Physician; and when he is here he may practise and minister Physick to another by 2. or 3. weeks, &c. without any forfeiture; for any one who practiseth Physick [[118]] well in London (although he hath not taken any degree in any of the Universities) shall forfeit nothing, if not that he practise it by the space of a month; and that was the Cause, that the time of a month was put in the Act. 4. The Censors, cannot be Judges, Ministers, and parties; Judges, to give sentence or Judgment; Ministers, to make summons; and Parties, to have the moiety of the forfeiture, quia aliquis non debet esse Judex in propria causa, imo iniquum est aliquem sue rei esse judicem; and one cannot be Jude and Attorney for any of the parties: Dyer 3 E. 6. 65. 38 E. 3. 15. 8 H. 6. 19. 20. 21. E. 4. 47. &c. And it appeareth in our Books, that in many Cases, the Common Law doth controll Acts of Parliament, and sometimes shall adjudge them to be void: for when an Act of Parliament is against Common right and reason, or repugnant, or impossible to be performed, the Common Law shall controll it, and adjudge such Act to be void; and therefore in 8 E. 3. 30. Thomas Tregors Case upon the Statue of West. 2. Cap. 38. and Articuli super Chartas, cap. 9. Herle saith, Some Statutes are made against Common Law and right, which those who made them would not put in execution: The Statute of West. 2. Cap. 21. giveth a Writ of Cessavit haredi petenti super haredem tenent. & super eos quibus alienatum fuerit hujusmodi tenementum: and yet it is adjudged in 33 E. 3. Cessavit 42. where the Case was, Two Coparceners Lords and Tenant by Fealty and certain Rent, one Coparcener had issue and dyeth; the Aunt and the Neece shall not joyn in a Cessavit, because that the heir shall not have a Cessavit for the cesser in the time of his ancestor. F. N. B. 209. F. and therewith agreeth Plow. Com. 110. and the reason is, because in a Cessavit the Tenant before Judgment may render the arrerages and dammages, and hold his Land again, and that he cannot do when the heir bringeth a Cessavit for the cesser in the time of his ancestor, for the arrerages incurred in the life of the ancestor do not belong to the heir: and because that it shall be against right and reason, the Common Law shall adjudge the said Act of Parliament as to that point void. The Statute of Carliste made 35 E. 1. enacteth, That the Order of the Cistertians, and Augustines who have a Covent and Common Seal, that the Common Seal shall be in the keeping of the Prior, who is under the Abbot, and 4 others of the most grave of the house; and that any deed sealed with the Common Seal, which is not so in keeping shall be void: and the opinion of the Court, (Anno 27 H. 6. Annuity 41.) was, that this Statute was void, for it is impertinent to be observed, for the Seal being in their keeping, the Abbot cannot seal any thing with it, and when it is in the Abbots hands, it is out of their keeping ipso facto; and if the Statute should be observed, every Common Seal shall be defeated upon a simple surmise, which cannot be tryed. Note Reader the words of the said Statute of Carliste

(b) which was made 35 E. 1. which is called Statutum Religiosorum are, Et insuper ordinavit Dominus Rex & statuit, quod Abbates Cicester. & præmonstraten. ordin. religiosorum, &c. de cætero habeant sigillum Commune, & illud in Custodia Prioris Monasterii suæ domus, & quatuor de dignioribus & discretioribus ejusdem loci conventus sub privato sigillo Abbatis ipsius loci custod. depon. &c. Et si forsan aliqua scripta obligationum, donationum, emptionum, venditionum, alienationum, seu aliorum quorumcunque contractuum alio sigillo quam tali sigillo communi, sicut præmitt. custodit. inveniantà modo sigillata, pro nullo penitus habeantur omnique careant firmitate. So the Statute of 1. E. 6. cap. 14. giveth Chauntries, &c. to the King, saving to the Donor, &c. all such rents, services, &c. and the Common Law doth controll it, and adjudge the same void as to services, and the Donor shall have the Rent, as a Rentseek distr. of Common right for it should be against common right and reason that the King should hold of any, or do service to any of his subjects, 14 Eliz. Dyer 313. and so was it adjudged Mich. 16 & 17 Eliz. in the Common Pleas in Strowds case. So if any Act of Parliament giveth to any to hold, or to have Conusans of Pleas of all manner of pleas arising before him within his Manner of D. yet he shall hold no plea, to which himself is party; for, as hath been said, iniquum est aliquem sue rei esse judicem. 5. If he shall forfeit 5*l.* for one month by the first clause, and shall be punished for practising at any time by the second clause, two absurdities would follow, 1. that one should be punished not only twice, but many times for one and the same offence, And the Divine saith, Quod Deus non agit bis in idipsum; and the Law saith, Nemo debet bis puniri pro uno delicto. 2. It should be asurd, by the first clause to punish practising for one moneth, and not for lesser time, nd by the 2. to punish practising not only for a day, but at any time, so he shall be punished by the first branch for one moneth by the forfeiture of 5 l. and by the 2. by fine and imprisonment, without any limitation for every time of the moneth in which any one doth practise Physick. And all these reasons were proved by two grounds, or Maxims of Law; 1. Generalis Clausula non porrigitur ad ea quæ specialiter sunt comprehensa. And the Case between Carter and Ringstead, Hill. 34. Eliz. rott. 120. in the Common Pleas, was cited to this purpose, where the case in effect was, That A. seised of the Mannor of Staple in Odiham in the County of Southampton in Fee, and also of other Lands in Odiham aforesaid in Fee, suffered a Common Recovery of all, and declared the use by Indenture, That the Recoverer should stand seised of all the Lands and Tenements in Odiham to the use of A. and his wife, and to the heirs of his body begotten; and further, that the Recoverer should stand seised to the use of him, and to the heirs of his body, and died, and the wife survived, and entred into the said Mannor by force of the said general words. But it was adjudged, That they did not extend to the said Mannor which was specially named: and if it be so indeed, a fortiori, it shall be so in an Act of Parl. which (as a Will) is to be expounded according to the intention of the makers. 2. Verba posterior a propter certitudinem addita ad propria quæ certitudine indigent sunt referenda. 6 E. 3. 12. Sir Adam de Clydrow Knight brought a Præcipe quod reddat against J. de Clydrow, and the Writ was, Quod justè, &c. reddat Manerium de Wicombe & duas carucatas terræ cum pert. in Clydrow, in that case the Town of Clydrow did not relate to the Mannor, quia non indiget, for a Mannor may be demanded withou mentioning that it lyeth in any Town, but cum pertinentiis, although that it cometh after the Town, shall relate to the Mannor, quia indiget. Vide 3 E. 4. 10. the like case. But it was objected, That where by the second Clause it was granted, that the Censors should have supervisum & scrutinium, correctionem & gubernationem omnium & singulorum Medicorum, &c. they had power to fine and imprison. To that it war answered, 1. That the same is but part of the sentence, for by the entire sentence it appeareth in what manner they shall have power to punish, for the words are, ac punitionem eorum pro delictis suis in non bene exequendo, faciendo, seu utendo illa facultate: so that without Question all their power to correct and punish the Physitians by this clause is only limited to 3. cases, sc. in non bene exequendo, faciendo, vel utendo, &c. Also this word punitionem, is limited and restrained by these words, Ita quod punitio eorundem Medicorem, &c. sic in præmissis delinquentium, &c. which words, sic in præmissis delinquentium, limit the first words in the first part of this sentence, ac punitionem eorum pro delictis in non bene exequendo. 2. It shall be absurd, That in one and the same sentence the makers of the Act shall give them a general power to punish, without limitation; and a special mannor how they shall punish in one and the same sentence. 3. Hill. 38 Eliz. in a Quo warranto against the Mayor and Commonalty of London, it was holden, That where a grant is made to the Mayor and Commonalty, that the Mayor for the time being should have plenum et integrum scrutinium, gubernationem, et correctionem omnium et singulorum Mysteriorum, &c. without granting to them any Court, in which should be legal proceedings, that the same is good for search, by which discovery may be made of offences and defects, which may be punished by the Law in any Court, but it doth not give, nor can give them any irreguler or absolute power to correct or punish any of the Subjects of the kingdom at their pleasures. 2. It was Objected, That it is incident to every Court created by Letters Patents, or Act of Parliament, or other Courts of Record, to punish any misdemeanors done in Court, in disturbance or contempt of the Court, by Imprisonment. To which it was answered, That neither the Letters Patents nor the Act of Parliament hath granted to them any Court, but only an authority, which they ought to pursue, as it shall be afterwards said. 2. If any Court had been granted to them, they could not by any incident authority implicitè granted unto them for any misdemeanor done in Court, commit him to prison without bayl or mainprise, until he shall be by the Commandment of the President and Censors, or their Successors, delivered, as the Censors have done in this Case. 3. There was not any such misdemeanor for which the Court might imprison him, for he only shewed his case to them, to which he was advised by his Counsel, he may justify, which is not any offence worthy of Imprisonment. [119] (b)

The Second point. Admitting that the Censors had power by the Act, if they have pursued their Authority, or not? And it was Resolved by the Chief Justice, Warburton, and Daniel, that they have not pursued it for 6. causes, 1. By the Act the Censors only have power to impose a fine, or amercement; and the President and Censors do impose the amercement of 5 l. upon the Plaintif. 2. The Plaintif was summoned to appear before the President and Censors, &c. and did not appear; and therefore he was fined 10 l. whereas the President hath not any authority in that case. 3. The fines and amercement to be imposed by them by force of the Act, do not belong to them, but to the King, for the King hath not granted the fines and amercements to them, and yet the fine is appointed to be paid to them in proximis Comitiis, and they have imprisoned the Plaintif for non-payment thereof. 4. They ought to have committed the Plaintif presently by construction of Law, although that no time be limited in the Act, as in the Stat. of West. cap. 12. De Servientibus, Ballivis, &c. qui ad compotum reddend. tenentur, &c. cum Dom. hujusmodi servientium dederit eis auditores compoti, et contingat ipsum in arreragiis super compotum suum omnibus allocatis, et allocandis, arrestentur corpora eorum, et per testimonium auditorum ejusdem compoti mittantur et liberentur proximæ gaolæ Domini Regis in partibus illis, &c. in that case, although that no time be limited when the Accomptant shall be imprisoned, yet it ought to be presently, as it is holden in 27 H. 6. 8. and the reason thereof is given in Fogassaes case, Plow. Com. 17. that the generality of time shall be restrained to the present time, for the benefit of him upon whom the pain shall be inflicted, and therewith agreeth Plow. Com. 206. b. in Stradlings case. And a Justice of Peace upon view of the force, ought to commit the offender presently.

[120] 5. For as much as the Censors had their authority by the Letters Patents and Act of Parliament, which are high matters of Record, their proceedings ought not to be by word, and so much the rather, because they claimed authority to fine and imprison. And therefore if Judgment be given against one in the Common Pleas in a Writ of Recaption, he shall be fined and imprisoned; but if the Writ be Vicontiel in the County, there he shall not be fined or imprisoned, because that the Court is not of Record, F. N. B. in bre. de Recaptione so in 47 F. N. B. A plea of Trespasse vi et armis doth not lie in the County Court, Hundred Court, &c. for they cannot make Record of fine and imprisonment; and regularly those who cannot make a Record cannot fine and imprison. And therewith agreeth 27 H. 8. Book of Entries: The auditors make a Record when they commit the Defendant to prison; A Justice of peace upon view of the force may commit, but he ought to make a record of it. 6. Because the Act of 14 H. 8. hath given power to imprison until he shall be delivered by the President and the Censors, and their Successors, reason requireth that the same be taken strictly for the liberty of the Subject (as they pretend) is at their pleasure: And the same is proved by a Judgment in Parliament in this Case; For when this Act of 14 H. 8. had given power to the Censors to imprison, yet it was taken so literally, That the Gaoler was not bound to receive them which they committed to him, and the reason thereof was because they had authority to do it without any Court: And thereupon the Statute of 1 Ma. cap. 9. was made, that the Gaoler should receive them upon a pain, and none can be committed to any prison, if the Gaoler cannot receive him: but the first Act for the cause aforesaid was taken so literally that no necessary incident was implyed. And where it was objected, that this very Act of 1 Mariæ hath enlarged the power of the Censors, and that upon the word of the Act; It was clearly resolved, that the said Act of 1 Mariæ did not enlarge the power of the Censors to fine or imprison any person for any cause for which he ought not to be fined and imprisoned by the said Act of 14 H. 8. For the words of the Act of Queen Marie are according to the tenor and meaning of the said Act: Also shall send or commit any offender or offendors for his or their offence or dis-obedience, contrary to any article or clause contained in the said grant or Act to any Ward, Gaol, &c. But in this case Bonham hath not done any thing which appeareth within this Record, contrary to any article or clause contained within the Grant or Act of 14 H. 8. Also the Gaoler who refuseth shall forfeit the double value of
(b) the fines and amerciaments that any offender or dis-obedient shall be assessed to pay; which proveth that none shall be received by any Gaoler by force of the Act of 14 H. 8. but he who may be lawfully fined or amerced by the Act of 14 H. 8. and for that was not Bonham, as by the reasons and causes aforesaid it appeareth. And admit that the Replication be not material, and the Defendants have demurred upon it; yet forasmuch as the Defendants have confessed in the Barr, that they have imprisoned the Plaintif without cause, the Plaintif shall have Judgement: And the Difference is, when the Plaintif doth reply, and by his replication it appeareth that he hath no cause of action, there he shall never have Judgment. But when the Barr is insufficient in matter, or amounteth (as this case is) to a confession of the point of the action, and the Plaintif replieth, and sheweth the truth of the matter to enforce his case, and in judgment of Law it is not material; yet the Plaintif shall have Judgement; for it is true that sometimes the Count shall be made good by the Barr, and sometimes the Barr by the Replication, and sometimes the Replication by the Rejoynder, &c. But the difference is when the Count wanteth time, place, or other circumstance, it may be made good by the Barr, so of the Barr, Replication, &c. as appeareth in 18 F. 4. 16 b. But when the Count wanteth substance, no Barr can make it good, so of the Bar, Replication, &c. and therewith agree 6 E. 4. 2. a good case, and mark there the words of Choke, vid. 18 E. 3. 34. b. 44 E. 3. 7. a. 12 E. 4. 6. 6 H. 7. 10. 7 H. 7. 3. 11 H. 4. 24 &c. But when Plaintif makes Replication, sur-rejoynder, &c. and thereby it appeareth, that upon the whole matter and Record the Plaintif hath no cause of action, he shall never have judgement, although that the Bar or Remainder be insufficient in matter, for the Court ought to judge upon the whole Record, and every one shall be intended to make the best of his own case. Vid. Rigways case in the 3 part of my Reports 52. And so these differences were resolved and adjudged between Kendal and Heyer, Mich. 25 & 26 Eliz. in the Kings Bench. And Mich. 29, & 30 Eliz. in the same Court between Gallys and Burbry. And Coke chief Justice, in the conclusion of his argument did observe 7 things for the better direction of the President and Commonalty of the said College in time to come. 1. That none can be punished for practising of Physick in London, but by forfeiture of 5 l. by the moneth, which is to be recovered by the Law. 2. If any practise Physick there for a less time than a month, that he shall forfeit nothing. 3. If any person prohibited by the Statute offend in non bene exequendo, &c. they may punish him according to the Statute within the month. 4 Those who may commit to prison by the Statute, ought to commit presently. 5. The [121] fines which they set, according to the Statute, do belong to the King. 6. They cannot impose a fine, or imprison, without a Record of it. 7. The cause for which they impose fine and imprisonment ought to be certain, for the same is traversable; For although they have the Letters Patents, and an Act of Parliament; yet because the party grieved hath not other remedy, neither by Writ of Error, or otherwise, and they are not made Judges, nor a Court given to them, but have an authority only so to doe, the cause of their commitment is traversable in an action of false imprisonment brought against them; as upon the Statute of Bankrupts, their warrant is under the Great Seal, and by Act of Parliament; yet because the party grieved hath no other remedy if the Commissioners doe not pursue the Act and their Commission, he shall traverse, That he was not a Bankrupt, although the Commissioners affirm him to be one; as this Term it was resolved, in this Court in Trespasse between Cutt and Delabarre, where the Issue was, whether William Piercy was Bankrupt or not, who was found by the Commissioners to be a Bank-

Bankrupt: à fortiori in the Case at Bar, the Cause of the Imprisonment is traversable; for otherwise the party grieved may be perpetullay, without just cause, imprisoned by them: But the Record of a force made by one Justice of Peace is not traversable, because he doth the same as Judge, by the Statutes of 15 R. 2. and 8 H. 6. and so there is a difference when one maketh a Record as a Judge, and when he doth a thing by a special Authority, as they did in the Case at Barr, and not as a Judge. And afterwards, for the said two last Points, Judgement was given for the Plaintiff, nullo contradicente. And I acquainted Sir Thomas Fleming, Chief Justice of the King's Bench, with this Judgement, and with the Reasons and Causes thereof; who approved of the Judgement which we had given: And the same is the first Judgement upon the said Branch concerning Fine and Imprisonment which hath been given since the making of the said Charter and Acts of Parliaments, and therefore I thought it worthy to be reported and published.

Hill. 7 Jacobi. In the Common Pleas.

The Case of the City of London.

A Habeas Corpus was directed Mich. 7 Jacobi, out of this Court, to the Maior, Aldermen, and Sheriffs of London, to have the body of James Waggoner, who was arrested in London, and remained in the custody of them, or some of them: Sir Thomas Camball Knight, Maior of London, and the Aldermen, and Sebastian Harvie and Will. Et nos præfat' Major & Aldermanni ac Vic' Com' Civitat' Lond' præd' ulterius certificamus, quod in Communi Concilio tent' secundum consuetud' Civit' Lond', in Camera Guild-hald' ejusdem Civitat. decimo quinto die April. anno regni Domini nostri Jacobi nunc Regis Angliæ, &c. quarto, per Leonardum Halliday, Militem, nuper Majorem Civitatis Lond' præd', & ejusdem Civitatis Aldermannos, de assensu Communitatis ejusdem Civitatis in eodem communi Concilio assemblat' exist' secundum præd' consuetudinem Civitatis præd' ordinat', inaditat' & stabilit' fuit, modo & forma, prout in Angl' verbis sequn', viz. Where by the ancient Charters, Customs, Franchises, and Liberties of the City of London, confirmed by sundry Acts of Parliament, no person, not being free of the City of London, may or ought to sell or put to sale any Wares or Merchandizes within the said City, or the Liberties of the same, by retail, or keep any open or inward Shop, or other inward Place or Room, for shew, sale, or putting to sale of any Wares or Merchandizes, or for the use of any Art, Occupation, Mystery, or Handicraft within the same. And whereas also Edward, sometime King of England, of famous memory, the Third of that name, by his Charter made and granted to the said City in the 15 year of his reign, confirmed also by Parliament, amongst other things granted, That if any Customs in the said City before that time obtained and used, were in any part hard or defective, or any things in the same City newly arising, where remedy before that time was not ordained, should need amendment, the Maior and Aldermen of the said City, and their Successors, with the assent of the Commonalty of the same City, might put and ordain thereunto fit Remedy, as often as it should seeme expedient to them, so that such Ordinance should be profitable to the King, for the profit of the Citizens, and other his People repairing to the same City, and agreeable to reason. And whereas by force of the said Customs, Franchises, and Liberties, and of the Charter last before mentioned, confirmed as is aforesaid by Parliament, The Lord Maior, Aldermen and Commons of the said City did the 12 day of October, in the third year of the reign of Edward, sometime King of England the Fourth, as a thing thought fit and convenient for that time (amongst other things) agree and ordain, That the Basket-makers, Gold-wier-drawers, or other Foreiners, contrary to the Liberty of the said City, holding open Shops in diverse places of the City, and using Mysteries within the [b] said City, should not from thenceforth hold Shops within the Liberty of the City aforesaid; but if they should hold any Shop, or dwell in the same Liberty, they should dwell at Blanch Appleton, and there hold Shops, so as they might have sufficient dwelling there; And where also the Lord Maior, Aldermen, and Commons of the same City did afterwards, the 16 day of May, in the 17 year of the reign of our late Sovereign Lord of famous memory, King Hen. 8th. as a matter thought fit and agreeable for that time, ordain, establish, or enact, That no manner of person or persons being being eſtrange from the Liberties of the ſaid City, from thenceforth ſhould hold and keep any open Shop within the ſaid City or Liberties of the ſame, neither with any Latteſſes before, nor yet without Latteſſes (certain numbers of poor men occupying the feat of Botchers, Taylors, and Coblers only excepted) upon pain of Impriſonment, and alſo to forfeit and pay 40 s. to the uſe of the Commonalty of this City, as often as he or they ſhould doe the contrary. And where alſo the Lord Maior, Aldermen and Commons of the ſame City did afterwards the 20 day of January, in the ſaid 17 year of King Hen. 8. (reciting that where at a Common Councel holden the 16 day of May, in the 17 year of the reign of King H. 8. it was ordained and enacted, That no manner of perſon or perſons, being eſtrange from the Liberties of this City, from thenceforth ſhould hold or keep any Shop or Shops within this City or the Liberties of the ſame, neither with any Lateſſes before, or without any Lateſſes, upon pain of Impriſonment,) farther ordain and eſtabliſh, That if any perſon or perſons, being Foreiners, ſhould hold and keep any open Shop or Shops, as is aforeſaid, he ſhould forfeit for every time ſo doing 40 s. to be levied by Diſtreſs, to the uſe of the Comminalty of the ſaid City, by the Chamberlein for the time being, or other Officer of this City, and have alſo Impriſonment by the diſcretion of the Maior and Aldermen for the time being. Now foraſmuch as diverſe and ſundry Strangers and Foreiners from the Liberties of the ſaid City (nothing regarding the ſaid ancient Charters, Franchiſes, Cuſtoms or Liberties of the ſaid City, and Acts and Ordinances heretofore made according to the ſame, but wholly intending their private Profit) have of late years deviſed and practiſed by all ſiniſter and ſubtle means how to defraud the ſaid Charters, Liberties, Cuſtoms, good Orders and Ordinances; and to that end do inwardly, in private and ſecret places, uſually and ordinarily ſhew, ſell, and put to ſale their Wares and Merchandizes, and uſe Arts, Trades, Occupations, Myſteries, and Handicrafts within the ſaid City and the Liberties of the ſame, to the great detriment and hurt of the ſaid City, who pay Scot and [123] Lot, bear Offices, and undergoe other Charges which Strangers and others not free are not chargeable withall, nor will perform. For Reformation of which Diſorders, and for avoiding of ſuch prejudice and damage as thereby groweth to the Freemen of the ſaid City, and is now more of late than was in any time heretofore ſuffered, and to provide for the common profit and good of the Freemen and Citizens of this City; It is therefore by the Lord Maior, Aldermen, and Commons in this Common Councel aſſembled, ordained and eſtabliſhed, That no perſon whatſoever (not being free of the City of London) ſhall at any time after the Feaſt of St. Michael now next enſuing, by any colour, way, or mean whatſoever, either directly, or indirectly, by himſelf, or by any other, ſhew, ſell, or put to ſale, any Wares or Merchandizes whatſoever, by retail, within the City of London, or the Liberties or Suburbs of the ſame, upon pein to forfeit to the Chamberlain of the City of London for the time being, to the uſe of the Maior and Commonalty, and Citizens of the ſaid City, the ſum of 5 li. of lawfull money of England, for every time wherein ſuch perſon ſhall ſhew, ſell or put to ſale any Wares or Merchandizes by retail, within the ſaid City, Liberties, or Suburbs thereof, contrary to the true intent and meaning thereof; and it is farther ordained and eſtabliſhed, That no perſon whatſoever, not being free of the City of London, ſhall at any time after the ſaid Feaſt of St. Michael now next enſuing, by any colour, way or mean whatſoever, directly or indirectly, by himſelf or other, keep any Shop or other place whatſoever, inward or outward, for ſhew or putting to ſale of any Wares or Merchandizes whatſoever by way of retail, or uſe any Art, Trade, Occupation, Myſtery, or Handicraft whatſoever, within the ſaid City, or the Liberties or Suburbs of the ſame, upon pein to forfeit the ſum of 5 li. of lawfull money of England, for every time wherein ſuch perſon ſhall keep any Shop or other place whatſoever, inward or outward, for ſhew, ſale or putting to ſale of any Ware or Merchandizes whatſoever by way of retail, or uſe any Art, Trade or Occupation, Myſtery or Handicraft whatſoever within the ſaid City, or Liberties or Suburbs of the ſame, contrary to the true intent and meaning thereof: All which Peins, Penalties, Forfeitures and Sums of money to be forfeited by virtue of this Act and Ordinance, ſhall be recovered by Action of Debt, Bill, or Plaint, to be commenced and proſecuted in the name of the Chamlain of the City of London for the time being, in the King's Majeſtie's Court to be holden in the Chamber of the Guild-hall of the City of London, before the Lord Maior and Aldermen of the ſame City, wherein no Eſſoin or Wager of Law ſhall be admitted or allowed for the Defendant. And that the Chamberlain of the ſaid City for the time being ſhall in all Sutes to be proſecuted by virtue of this Act or Ordinance againſt any Offender, recover the ordinary Coſts of Sute to be expended in and about the proſecution thereof: And farther, that one equal third part of all Forfeitures to be recovered by virtue hereof, (the Coſts of the Sute for the recovery of the ſame being deducted and allowed) ſhall be after the recovery and receipt thereof paid and delivered to the Treaſurer of Chriſt's Hoſpital, to be imploied towards the relief of the poor Children to be brought up and maintained in the ſaid Hoſpital. And one other equal part, to him or them which ſhall give information of the Offences for which ſuch Forfeitures ſhall grow, and proſecute Sute in the name of the Chamberlain of the ſaid City for the recovery of the ſame (any thing in this Act to the contrary notwithſtanding.) Provided alwaies, That this Act or Ordinance, or any thing therein contained, ſhall not extend to any perſon or perſons for bringing or cauſing to be brought any victuals to be ſold within this City and the Liberties thereof, but that they and every of them may ſell victuals within the ſaid City and the Liberties thereof; any thing herein contained to the contrary thereof in any wiſe notwithſtanding. *Ulteriuſque nos præfat. nunc Major & Aldermann ac Vicecom. In this Case it was resolved, that the said Custom of London, That no person whatsoever, not being free of the City London, shall by any colour, way, or mean whatsoever, directly or indirectly, by himself or any other, keep any shop or any other place whatsoever, inward or outward, for shew or putting to sale of any wares or merchandises whatsoever by way of retail, or use any trade, occupation, mystery or handicraft, for hire, gain or sale, within the said City of London, is, upon the whole matter [125] in the Return, a good Custom. And that such Constitution made according to the Custom alleged in the Return, upon pain of Forfeiture of 5 li. was also good. And as to that, 1. It was resolved, That there is a difference between such a Custom within a City, &c. and a Charter granted to the City, &c. to such effect; for it is good by way of Custom, but not by Grant. And therefore no Corporations made within time of memory can have such privilege, if it be not by Act of Parliament. So a Custom that Goods forein bought and forein sold within a City shall be forfeited, is good, as ap-peareth Dyer, Mich. 10 & 11 Eliz. 279. But ſuch Privilege cannot begin by Charter. And therefore in the Fifth Part of my Reports, Trin. 41 Eliz. Between Waltham and Auſtin in the Common Pleas the Caſe was, That King Henry the Sixth granted to the Corporation of Dyers within London, power to ſearch, and if they found any Cloth died with Logwood, that the Cloth ſhould be forfeited; and it was adjudged, That by the Patent no forfeiture can be impoſed upon the Goods of a Subject; and therefore in the like caſes, fortior & potentior eſt vulgaris Conſuetudo, quam regalis Conceſſio. So it appeareth by the Reg. 105. b. The cuſtom of Rippon is, That the Archbiſhop of York, by reaſon of his Lordſhip of Rippon, ſhould have the like liberty in the ſaid Town time out of minde; that none in the ſame Town uti debeat ſeu conſuevit officio ſive myſterio Tinctoris ſine licentia ipſius Archiepiſcopi. But Trin. 44 Eliz. in an Action upon the Caſe between Edw. Darcy, Eſquire, Plaintiff, and Thomas Allen, the Caſe was, That Queen Elizabeth granted to the Plaintiff, that he ſhould have the ſole traffick with Playing-cards, and ſhould only bring them from beyond the Sea into this Kingdom; alſo that he ſhould have the only making of Playing-cards within this Realm, in ſuch ample manner as Raſe Bows had them before; and it was adjudged, that that Grant to make Playing-cards only, and to reſtrain trade and traffick was void, becauſe that trade and traffick is the life of every Commonwealth, and eſpecially of an Iſland. And it is true, traffick and trade cannot be maintained without order and government; and therefore the King may erect Guildam mercatoriam, that is, a Fraternity or Society, or Corporation of Merchants, to the end that good order be obſerved by them for the encreaſe and advancement of trade and merchandiſing, and not for the hindrance or diminution of it. And it is to know, That Guildan is a Saxon word, and doth ſignifie ſolvere, that is, That all this Fraternity ſhall be ſubject to pay Scot and Lot: and therefore at this day ſuch part of the County which is contributary amongſt themſelves to pay common charges is called the Guildable; and if there be any ſpecial Liberty, the ſame is called the Franchiſe. 8 E. 3. 37. Jeffery at Hay brought an Action of Treſpas againſt William at Ford and Robert Gray, that they wrongfully with force had broken his Fold at Haſtings: The Defendant pleaded, That Johan de Frichborne was and yet is ſeiſed of the ſaid Manor of Haſtings in Fee, and that the ſaid Johan and her Anceſtors, and all the Lords of the ſaid Manor whoſe Eſtate ſhe hath time out of minde, had this Franchiſe, to have a free Fold, liberam Faldam, through the whole Town of Haſtings; ſo that none of the Town of Haſtings ſhould have free Fold without agreement made with her; and if any did erect a Fold without agreement with her, &c. that the Lords for the time being had uſed to abate the ſame: And that Jeffery at Hay, the Plaintiff, ſet up a new Fold without leave or agreement; and that the Defendants, as Servants to the ſaid Johan, did abate the ſame, and came and disjoined and ſevered the hurdles. And there Parning Serjeant took two Exceptions to this Preſcription, 1. That it is in the Negative, ſcil. That none ought to have a Fold. 2. Becauſe that every one of common right ought to have a Fold in his own Land, and therefore it ſhall be againſt reaſon to put him from that which the Common Law giveth to him; and although he ſaid that the Lords have uſed to have a free Fold, the ſame is of common right alſo, and none can take that away which of common right is given to him: And the Exception was not allowed, becauſe the Preſcription doth contain an Affirmative with the Negative, and every Preſcription is againſt common right: Then the Plaintiff replied, that the Defendants have juſtified the abating of the Fold, by reaſon of the Seigniory of Johan. To which we ſay, That the place where the Fold is ſet, is out of the Lordſhip of Johan, &c. And it was holden no Plea, becauſe that Johan did claim the ſaid Franchiſe through the whole Town of Haſtings, as well out of her Lordſhip as within; whereupon the Plaintiff made another Reply, By which caſe it appeareth that although folding of Sheep is for the maintenance of Tillage (which is ſo much eſteemed and favoured in Law) yet by cuſtom and uſage a man may be barred thereof upon his own Land, and another man than he, of whom the Land is holden, may have it; And therewith agreeth 3 E. 3. 3. John de Sedgeford's Caſe, where the Prior of Trinity of Norwich maketh the like Preſcription. Mich. 32 & 33 Eliz. in the King's Bench, Sir George Farmor brought an Action upon the Caſe againſt Brook, and ſhewed that he was ſeiſed of the Manor of Torceſter in the County of Northampton in Fee, and that all the Tenements of the ſaid Town are holden of the ſaid Manor, and ſhewed that time out of mind, &c. he, and all thoſe whoſe Eſtate he hath, had had a Bake-houſe parcel of the ſaid Manor maintained at their charge, and that this Bake-houſe was ſufficient to bake Bread for all the Inhabitants, and for all Paſſengers through the ſame Town; and the Bread ſo baked had uſed, &c. to be ſold at reaſonable Prices, and that no other perſon within the Town had uſed to bake any Bread to ſell to any perſon; And it was adjudged by the Lord Chief Juſtice, Sir Chr. Wray, and the whole Court, a good and reaſonable cuſtom; And yet this cuſtom doth reſtrain a man to exerciſe his Trade within a certain place. Vide Regiſt. 105, 127. 11 H. 6. 19. 9 E. 3. 4. There are divers cuſtoms in London which are againſt common right, and the rule of the Common Law, and yet they are allowed in our Books. And the rather, becauſe they have not only the force of a cuſtom, but are alſo ſupported and fortified by authority of Parliament. 1. They have a cuſtom concerning the Arreſt and Impriſonment of the body of a man; as the Creditor may arreſt the body of the Debitor before the day of paiment, to drive him to find Sureties, Littl. 5 E. 4. 30. 11 H. 6. 3. and 2 Hen. 7. 13. 2 Hen. 4. 12. 2. They have a cuſtom to enter the houſe of another, which is his Caſtle; and therefore the cuſtom of London is, That when a Chaplain or a Prieſt hath a Woman in his Houſe or Chamber, and one hath an ill ſuſpicion thereof, he who hath ſuch ſuſpicion may come to the Conſtable of the Ward or Beadle, and with him may enter into the Houſe or Chamber of the Chaplain or Prieſt, and commit the Offender to priſon, 2 H. 4. 12. 2 H. 7. 15. 3. By their cuſtom the Goods of a man in which he hath an abſolute property may be forfeited, as in the Caſe before of Forein bought and Forein ſold. 4. They have a cuſtom which doth alter alter the course of Justice, scil. where an Action is brought before one Judge, to remove the Plea before another, as 10 H. 6. 15. In an Action of Debt upon an Escape of a man taken by Capias upon a Statute Merchant at the Plaintiffe's Sute, The Defendant said, that the Custom of London is, that where a Plaint is entred before the Sherifs of London, that the Maior at the suggestion of the Plaintiff or Defendant may send for the Parties, and if it be found upon examination before the Maior; that the Plaintiff is satisfied, he may award that the Plaintiff shall be barred; and that the Plaintiff did enter a Plaint of the matter, and was examined before the Maior, and upon Examination it was found that the Party was paid, and that the Plaintiff took a Bond for the residue, therefore the Maior awarded that he should be barred; Ane it was adjudged, that the Custom was good, for that the Examination was pendant the Action; but contrary, if they prescribe to examin it after a Judgement. Vide 1 E. 4. 6. Executor charged in London upon a simple Contract, 15 Eliz. Dyer, in London, the Maior who is the Coroner shall not give the Judgement upon Utlagery, but the Record. And many Exceptions were taken to the Return, because that the Custom alleged in the beginning of the Return was not persued. For the Custom there alleged doth consist upon two general parts, scil. the Mischiefs and Remedies; the Mischiefs were three. 1. If any were difficult; 2. If defective; 3. If a new Case arise, which emendatione indigeat; the Remedy is, That the Maior and Aldermen, with the consent of the Commonalty, have power by the Custom apponere remedium, which Remedy ought to have five Qualities. 1. It ought to have fit proportion and congruity. 2. It ought to be bonæ fidei consonum. 3. It ought to be rationi consonum. 4. Pro communi utilitate Civium & aliorum fidelium ad eandem Civitatem confluentium. 5. Quod sit utile Regi & populo. And it was objected, that the said Constitution doth appoint a Remedy which hath but one of the said five Qualities; for it provideth only, (as appeareth by the expres words of the Constitution) for the benefit of the Freemen of the said City, scil. for avoiding of such Prejudice and Damages as groweth to the Freemen of the said City, &c. and to provide for the common profit and good of the Freemen and Citizens of this City, It is therefore, &c. by which it appeareth that this Remedy was only made for the Freemen of the City, and so not according to the Custom; and the Exception was not allowed, because it appeared to the Court, that this Remedy had all the five Qualties, and therefore it was resolved, that the same needed not to be added by the Party. Vide 46 E. 3. 16. no price of money shall be expressed in the Writ, because it appeareth of it self, 12 H. 4. 17. the Son within age bringeth an Assise of Mortdancester, he needeth not adde, that it is within the time of limitation, because it appeareth. Vide Plow. Com. Partridge's Case, 87. for the same ground, and Vide 26 H. 6. Gard 58, &c. But for the better understanding of the true reason of the resolution in this Case; First, It was observed, That one may be Liber homo, that is, a Freeman of London by three waies, scil. 1. By Service, as he who serveth his Apprentiship; 2. By Birthright, as he who is the Son of a Freeman of London; 3. By Redemption, that is, by allowance of the Court of the Maior and Aldermen, and all these three waies are allowed by the Custom of London, and by no other means can a man become a Freeman of London: for none can be made free of the City of London by Charter: And therefore it appeareth in Rot. Pat. 32 E. 3. in the Tower of London; That King Ed. 3. granted to John Falcount de Luca Apothecary of the City of London, Quod ipse omnibus libertatibus quas Cives Civitatis præd. habent in eadem Civitate & alibi infra regnum Angliæ nostrum, habeat, gaudeat, & utatur; & quod de tribus denariis de libra, & omnibus aliis præstationibus & custumis quas aliegenæ de bonis & merchandisis suis infra reg. Angliæ solvere tenentur, de propriis bonis & merchandisis ipsius Johannis infra idem regnum ad totam vitam suam sit quietus, & quod plus quam alii Cives nostri London indigenæ pro custumis merchandisarum & aliorum bonorum suorum nobis solvunt solvere non teneatur, nec ad hoc aliqualiter compellatur. But all these words do not make him a Freeman of London; For he ought to attain unto it by one of the said three waies, according to the said custom; And it was said, That he was the first Apothecary that ever was within this Kingdom. And it was resolved, That it appeareth that the Remedy appointed by the said Constitution hath all the said five Qualities. 1. Quod Remedium præd. fuit congru. that is, apt and proportionable to the Offence. For it appeareth by Act of Common Councel in 3 E. 4. which inflicteth the Penalty of 40 s. upon a Foreiner who holdeth open Shop, &c. that he who keepeth an inward Shop is a greater Offender then he who keepeth an open Shop; for London is a Market every day, except only the Sabbath-day, but secret places in corners, as the Case of the said James Wagoner is, is more dangerous and offensive then outward Shops, for there he may use deceit, and is not subject to any Search; Qui malè agit odit lucem, and, omnia delicta in aperto leviora sunt. In 11 H. 7. 19. The Prior of Dunstable brought an Action upon the Case against J. B. Butcher, and declared, that he was Lord of the Town of D. and that he, &c. had a Market twice in the week, and the Correction of the Market; and that all Butchers or others who sell Meat or other Commodities which came to the said Market, that they ought to sell the same in the High-street of the said Town, upon the Prior's stalls there, paying a penny to the Prior; And that the Defendant is a Butcher, and sold his Meat such a Market-day secretly within his own house, and had procured others so to doe, by which, &c. the Defendant pleaded that he was a Housholder in the said Town of D. and all those who are Housholders in the said Town have time out of mind, &c. used to sell their Wares every Market-day in their own Houses, or where ever else they pleased; And there Cotesmore who gave the Rule in the said Case, and the Reason of it, said, This Prescription is not to the purpose; For if the Prior had a Market within the Town, and is Lord of the Town, you cannot prescribe to sell Meat in your own Houses upon the Market-day; For the Market cannot be but in an open place; and the Prior then should lose the benefit of his Market, if they might sell their Wares in their Houses; And also where he hath the Correction of the Market, and to see that the things sold be lawfull and vendible, it cannot be tried by his Officers if it be not in open Market; and alſo he ſhould loſe his Toll of the things which are ſold; ſo that when the Market doth belon to the Prior, which ought to be holden in the Maket-place appointed for that purpoſe, he cann hold a Market in his own houſe, but in the common place, upon the Market day; for whi cauſe, &c. And as it hath been ſaid, London hath a Market every day in the week, except the Sa bath. Vide Mich. 32 & 33 Eliz. in the Fifth Part of my Reports, 65. A Conſtitution in London That all Broad-cloth by Citizen or Foreiner ſhall be ſold at Blackwell-hall, ſo that it may appear t be ſaleable: And note there a penalty inflicted for the reſtraint of a lawfull Act, but here, of a [b] unlawfull. And therefore if a Foreiner who keepeth open Shop ſhall forfeit 40 s. he who is a Fo reiner and doth offend in ſecret Corners is worthy to forfeit 5 li. And it was alſo obſerved, Tha the value of an ounce of Silver after 3 E. 4. hath been raiſed. Alſo it was remedium congruum i reſpect of the manner of Puniſhment, ſcil. by impoſing of a pecuniary pain, and not of a corpora pain: And therewith agreeth the ſaid Caſe of Blackwell-hall, Mich. 32 & 33 Eliz. and Trin. 38 Eliz in the Fifth part of my Reports, Clerk's Caſe, A Conſtitution cannot be made upon a pain of Im priſonment; and the Caſe cited before of Trinit. 41 Eliz. between William and Auſten, a Conſtitu tion cannot be made upon pain of Forfeitur of Goods: therefore it ought to be upon a reaſonable pecuniary pain, or not at all. 2. Remedium fuit bonæ fidei conſonum; for the remedy is to ſup preſs that which is mala fide in deceipt to defraud the ſaid Cuſtom. 3. The remedy fuit rationi con ſonum; for the rule of Law and Reaſon is, quod clam delinquens magis punitur quam palam. 4. The remedy was pro utilitate Civium & Aliorum. 1. Civium, for Foreiners are not ſubject to Scot and Lot, &c. 2. Aliorum, for the Confluence of People from all parts of the Realm to London doth in troduce three great inconveniencies; 1. Depauperationem, ſcil. impoveriſhing of all the good Towns of England. 2. Depopulationem, Depopulation of Towns in every Country. 3. Deſtructionem, Deſtruction in the end of all Trades and Tradeſmen in every part of the Realm. 4. Civium & aliorum, by the Peſtilence, by reaſon of the multitude of People, and peſtring of the Air, which is dangerous, not only to the Subjects, but to the King himſelf, and the great Lords who attend up on his royal perſon. 5. The remedy was, utile Regi & populo; not only for avoiding the Peſti lence, as before is ſaid; but alſo, if London ſhould daily increaſe, it would be in time ſo populous, that it would not become governable by the Magiſtracy of the City: And as, when the City of Lon don (which as it were the Epitome of the whole Kingdom) is not well governed, all the parts of the Kingdom find the inconvenience thereof; ſo when this City is well governed, all parts of the Kingdom are kept in better order, which is profitable both to the King and People: Alſo the City would become ſo populous, that it would not be ſubject to ſearch, by which means fraud and deceit would increaſe in all Wares and vendible Commodities, not only to the prejudice of the City it ſelf, but to the King and the whole Realm. Secondly, It was objected, That the ſaid Return doth con ſiſt much in recital, which ought to be directly and certainly alleged. To which it was anſwered and reſolved, That this is not upon a Demurrer in Law, but a Return upon a Writ of Privilege,

[128] upon which no Iſſue can be taken, or Demurrer joined, neither upon our Award doth any Writ of Error lie, and therefore the Return is no other, but to enform the Court of the truth of the matter, in which ſuch a preciſe certainty is not required as in pleading. Thirdly, It was objected, That by the Statutes of 9 E. 3. c. 1. & 2. 25 E. 3. c. 2. 27 E. 3. c. 11. &c. it was enacted, That every one might ſell any Commodities, or things ſaleable in any City, &c. in groſs, or by retail: And that every Statute, Charter, Letters Patents, Proclamations, Uſage, Allowance, or Judgement to the contrary are void. To which it was anſwered and reſolved; 1. That the Statutes extend only to Merchants Aliens, and Denizens, which import and export vendible things, and do not extend to take away the Cuſtom of a City of forein bought and ſerein ſold, as it was reſolved, as above, Mich. 10 & 11 Eliz. in the Caſe of the City of York; And ſee the Statute of 2 Rich. 2. cap. 1. which reſtraineth the Sale of Wares by retail, &c. by Merchants Aliens, &c. 2. Theſe Statutes do not extend to Tallow-Chandlers, or other ſuch like Artificers, nor to any Manufactures made by them within the Realm. 3. It appeareth by the Judgement of the whole Parliament, Anno 7 Hen. 4. cap. 9. That notwithſtanding all the ſaid Statutes, it was not lawfull within the City of London (which Charters are eſtabliſhed and confirmed by many Acts of Parliament) for any, be he Merchant Alien, Denizen, or other Leige man whatſoever, who was a Stranger or Foreiner to the Liberty of the City of London, ſcil. who was not a Freeman of the ſaid City, to ſell any Mer chandizes by retail, &c. within the ſaid City. And by the ſame Act it was ordained and eſta bliſhed, That as well the Drapers and Sellers of Cloths, as other Merchants, with other Mer chandizes, Wine, Iron, Oyle, Wax, and other things appertaining to Merchandize, be free, to ſell ingroſs their Wares, ſcil. Cloaths, Wool, Iron, Oyle, Wax, and other their Merchandizes, as well to any of the King's Subjects as to the Citizens of London, notwithſtanding any Liberty or Franchiſe granted to the contrary, which Act had been made in vain, if the City of London had been reſtrained by the ſaid former Acts. But becauſe the ſaid Act did tend to the great hin drance of the Maior and Citizens aforeſaid, and very like to be the deſtruction of the Citizens, and againſt their Grants and Confirmations. At the next Parliament, ſcil. Anno 9 H. 4. an Act of Parliament not printed was made, which followeth in theſe words. Item, The Commons pray, That as diverſe Kings of England, your Progenitors and Predeceſſors, our Sovereign Lords, by their Charters confirmed by you by authority of Parliament amongſt other Franchiſes and Liberties to the Mayor and Citizens of London, and their Succeſſors, it was granted, That no Merchant E
[b] ſtranger to the Liberty of the City ſhould ſell any Merchandizes within the Liberties of the ſaid City to other Merchant Stranger, nor ſuch Merchant Stranger ſhould buy of other Merchant Stran ger any Merchandizes, under forfeit of the ſaid Merchandizes: The which Liberties and Franchiſes the Maior and Citizens of London which now are, and their Predeceſſors, by Authority of the ſaid

Grants

Grants and Confirmations have had and enjoied till your last Parliament holden at Westminster, In the which, by authority of the same Parliament the said Article of their said Liberty was revoked, and made void by Statute; Provided, That as well Drapers and Sellers of cloth, as other Merchants, with their divers Merchandizes, as Wine, Iron, Oil and Wax, and other things belonging to Mercandizes, as free to sell, ingross their Cloths and other Merchandizes aforesaid, as well to any the King's Liege people, as to the Citizens of London, notwithstanding any Franchise or Liberty to the contrary, to the great prejudice of the Maior and Citizens aforesaid, and the likely destruction of the said Citizens, contrary to the Grants and Confirmations aforesaid: That it would please you our Sovereign Lord, with the assent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in this Parliament, to repeal and make void the said Statute in your last Parliament touching that Article: So that the said Maior and Citizens; and their Successors, be entirely restored to the said Liberties and Franchises by Statute: So that from henceforward no Merchant being a Stranger to the Liberty of the said City sell any Merchandizes within the Liberty of the said City to other Merchant Stranger; nor that such Merchant Stranger buy of any other Merchant Stranger such Merchandizes within the Liberty of the said City without Forfeiture thereof. Saving and reserving to all Lords, Knights, Esquires, and all other Liege Denizens of our Sovereign Lord the King, power at their will to buy within the Liberty of the said City of any Merchant Stranger, Merchandizes in gross to their own use, so that they do not sell them again to any other. The King will, That the Citizens of London have their Liberties and Franchises touching this Article, as entirely as they had before the last Parliament holden at Westminster: the Statute made at the said Parliament nowithstanding.

Note, Reader, this Act is not only a good exposition and explanation of the former Statutes touching this matter; but also a good demonstration of the custom of the Liberties of the City of London in these Points. In London a Citizen and Freeman may by their custom devise in Mortmain, notwithstanding the Statute of Mortmain be to the contrary: And so in the like cases. Vide 8 H. 7. 46. 9 H. 6. 58. 7 H. 6. 1. 45 E. 3. 26. 28 Ass. 25. 5 H. 7. 10. 11 H. 7. 21. 23 Eliz. Dyer, 373. for all the customs of London are established and confirmed by Act of Parliament, as it appeareth by this Retorn. And it was observed that in the Case at Barr, within the said Retorn there are Five general Parts; 1. The Custom; 2. The general Act to enable and preserve this Custom, which was before all the said Statutes. 3. A particular Charter, Anno 15 Edwardi 3. which of it self was not sufficient, and therefore it was established and confirmed by Act of Parliament. 4. Former Precedents of constitutions in the like cases, viz. in 3 E. 4. & 17 H. 8. 5. The Constitution upon which the Action was brought in London. But the Court took advisement upon one part of the Retorn, by which it is added, Quod Jacobus Wagoner usus est manuali occupatione de Tallow Chandler, and doth not shew that he did sell any Candles, &c. for if he maketh them for his own use, without selling any for lucre or gain, he may well so doe: as every one may bake or brew for his own use, without selling Bread or Bear: But it seemeth it is implied by the said Averment, that the same is his Trade by which he liveth by sale of his Commodities of his Trade, and not only to make them for his own use; for it is not properly said that one useth a manual Occupation, when he maketh no more than for himself; as he who baketh or breweth for his own use, it is not properly said that he useth the manual Occupation of a Brewer or Baker, and that appeareth by the Statute of 5 Eliz. Cap. 4. for there it is enacted, That every person being an Housholder and four and twenty years old, &c. and using and exercising any art, mystery, or manual occupation, shall, &c. have and retain, &c. an Apprentice, &c. But without question he who useth the making of any Manufacture for his own use, as making of Candles, &c. cannot retain an Apprentice within the Statute of 5 Eliz. So in another part of the Act It is enacted, That it shall not be lawfull to any person or persons, &c. to set up, occupy, use or exercise any craft, mystery or manual occupation, except he shall have been brought up therein seven years at the least as an Apprentice, &c. And yet he who baketh, breweth, maketh Candles, &c. for his own use, is not said in Law to use any manual Occupation: and upon this branch, and much to this purpose, a Judgement was given in the Court of Exchequer, and afterwards affirmed in a Writ of Error in the Exchequer-chamber, Mich. 6 Jacobi, and the Case worthy to be known was such. Taylor did inform in the Exchequer upon the Statute of 5 Eliz. cap. 4. tam pro Domino Rege, quam pro seipso, against Shoile, that he had used the Art and Mystery of a Brewer, &c. for divers months, contrary to the said Act, and averred that the Defendant did not use or exercise the said Art or Mystery at the time of the making of the said Act, nor had been an Apprentice for seven years at the least in the Art and Mystery of a Brewer, according to the said Act, &c. The Defendant did demurr in Law upon the Information, and Judgement was given against him by the Barons of the Exchequer. Upon which Judgement a Writ of Error was brought in the Exchequer-chamber, and Mich. 6 Jacobi, the matter was argued by Counsel on both sides; and two Errors were assigned, one, that a Brewer is not within the said Branch of the said Act, upon which the Information is conceived, for the words are, That it shall not be lawfull to any person or persons other than such as now do lawfully use or exercise any art, mystery or manual occupation, to set up, use or exercise any art, mystery or occupation, except he shall have been brought up therein seven years at the least as an Apprentice: And it was said, that the Trade of a Brewer is not any Art, Mystery, or manual Occupation within the said Branch, because it is easily and presently learned, and needeth not seven years Apprentiship to be instructed in it, for every Huswife in the Country can brew; and the Statute of 22 Hen. 8. cap. 13. doth declare, that a Brewer is not an Handicraft Artificer. The other Error was, That the said averrement was not sufficient, for the averrement ought to be as general as the exception in the Statute is, sc. That the Defendant did not use any Art, Mystery or Occupation, at the time of the making of the said Act; for by their pretence, if he exercise any Art, Mystery, or manual Occupation, then, as a Taylor, Carpenter, &c. he may now use any Art, Mystery, or manual Occupation whatsoever. As to the first, It was resolved, That the Art of a Brewer, scil. to keep a common Brew-house to sell Beer to any other, is an Art, Mystery, and manul Occupation within the said Branch of the Act; for in the beginning of the Act it is enacted, That no person shall retain for less time than a whole year in any of the Sciences, Crafts, Mysteries, or Arts of Clothing, &c. Bakers, Brewers, &c. Cooks, &c. So that by the Judgment of the same Parliament the Trade of a Brewer is an Art and Mystery: which words are in the said Branch upon which the Information was grounded. And it was resolved, that he who breweth or baketh, &c. for his own use, doth not use or exercise the Art, Mystery, or manual Occupation against the said Act, for the said words implie, that he so use or exercise the Art, Mystery, or manul Occupation, that by sale of the Commodities of his Occupation he get his living, but to say that it is not any Art, Mystery, or manual Occupation, because that every Housewife breweth for her private use, and also she baketh and dresseth meat, &c. and yet none can keep a common Bake-house, or Cook's shop to sell to others, if he hath not been an Apprentice, &c. according to the said Act, for they are expresly named also in the Act, as Arts and Mysteries: and the Act of 22 H. 8. explaineth, That Brewer, Baker, Chirurgian, or Scrivenor alien, are no Handicrafts men within the purview and intention of certain penal Laws, but the same doth not prove that they are not Arts or Mysteries; for Art or Mystery is more general then Handicraft, for that is restrained to Manufactures, but not within the penalty of the said Statute, and it is no Question, that in truth they are Arts, Mysteries, or manual Occupations. As to the second, It was resolved, That the intent of the Act was, That none should take upon him any Art, Mystery, or manual Occupation, but such in which he had knowledge: And therefore the Statute intendeth, That he who useth any Art, Mystery, or manual Occupation at the time of the Act, might use the same Art or Mystery; for, quod quisque norit in hoc se exerceat; and the words of the said Branch are, as now do lawfully use, &c. And it was said, that it was very necessary that Brewers should have skill and knowledge in brewing good and wholesom Beer, for that the same doth much conduce to mens health. And so the first Judgement was affirmed. And in this Case at the Barr, as well by the Serjeants, as by the Justices in their Arguments, much was said of the Antiquity of the City of London. Ammianus Marcellinus, who wrote about 1200 years past, saith, that then it was Oppidum vetustum. Cornelius Tacitus (which married the Daughter of Cornel. Lucius Agricola, and who was in this Kingdome with Agricola seven years,) saith, Quod Londinum tempore Neronis (which is above 1500 years ago) was Copia negotiatorum & commeatu maxime celebre. And omitting all that Stephanides (who wrote in the reign of Hen. 2.) hath said of the Honour and Antiquity of this City, I say, Quod haec est Camera Regis, Cor Reipublicæ, & tanquam Epitome totius regni.

The Case of Thetford School.

[b] UPon a private Bill exhibited into the Parliament for erection of a Free-School, maintenance of a Preacher, and of four poor people, sc. two poor men, and two poor women, according to the Will of Sir Tho. Fulmerston Knight, a Question was moved by the Lords, and was such; Land of the value of 35 li. An. 9 Eliz. was devised by Will in writing to certain persons and their heirs, for the maintenance of a Preacher four daies in the year; of a Master and Usher of a Free Grammar-School, and of certain Poor people, and special distribution was made by the Testator himself in the same Will amongst them of the Revenues, scil. To the Preacher a certain sum, and certain sums to the School-master and Usher, and to the Poor people, amounting in the whole to 35 li. per annum, which was the yearly profit of the Land at that time, and afterwards the Lands became of greater value; viz. to the value of 100 li. per annum. Now two Questions were moved.

1. If the Preacher, School-master, Usher, and Poor, should have only the certain sums appointed to them by the Founder, or that the Revenue and Profit of the Land should be imploied to the increase of the Stipend of the Preacher, School-master, Usher, and Poor?

[131] 2. If any Surplusage doth remain, How it should be imploied?

And it was resolved upon hearing of Councel Learned on both parts several daies at Serjeants Inn, by two Chief Justices, and Justice Walmsley, (to whom the Lords referred the consideration of the Case) That the Revenue and Profit of the said Lands should be imploied to the encrease of the Stipend of the Preacher, School-master, &c. and Poor, and if any Surplusage doth remain, it should be expended for the maintenance of a greater number of Poor, and nothing should be converted by the Devisees to their own Uses. So in the Case in Question, where Lands in Cranston in the County of Norfolk were devised by Sir Richard Fulmerstone to his Executors to find the said Works of Piety and Charity, with such certain distribution as is aforesaid: and now the value of the Manor was greatly encreased, that it shall be imployed in performance and increase of the said Works of Piety and Charity, instituted and erected by the Founder. For it appeareth by his distribution of the Profits, that he did intend that all should be imploied in the Works of Piety and Charity, and nothing should be converted to the private use of the Executors, or their Heirs. And this this Reſolution is grounded upon evident and apparent reaſon; for as if the Lands had fallen in the value, the Preacher, School-maſter, &c. and poor People ſhould loſe, ſo when the Lands do increaſe in value by the ſame reaſon they ſhall gain. And they ſaid, That this Caſe did concern the Colleges in the Univerſities of Cambridge and Oxford, and other Colleges, &c. For in old time, when Lands were of ſmall value (Victuals then being cheap,) and were given for the maintenance of poor Scholers, &c. every one 1 d. or 1 d. ob. a day, that then ſuch ſmall allowance was competent in reſpect of the price of Victuals, and the yearly value of the Land; and now the Price of Victuals being encreaſed, it ſhall be injurious to allow a poor Scholar a 1 d. or 1 d. ob. a day, which cannot keep him, and to convert the reſidue to private uſes, where in right it ought to be imploied to the maintenance and increaſe (if it may be) of ſuch Works of Piety and Charity which the Founder hath expreſſed, and nothing to any private uſe; for every College is ſeiſed in jure Collegii, ſcil. to the intent that the Members of the College, according to the intent of the Founder, ſhould take the benefit thereof, and that nothing ſhould be converted to private uſes. Panis egenium vita pauperum, & qui defraudat eos homo ſanguinis eſt. And afterwards, upon Conference had with the other Juſtices, they were of the ſame opinion: and according to their opinions the Bill paſſed in both Houſes of Parliament, and afterwards was confirmed by the King's aſſent. Note, Reader, there is a good Rule in the Act of Parliament called, Statutum Templariorum. Ita ſemper quod pia & celeberrima voluntas Donatoris in omnibus teneatur & expleatur, & perpetuo ſanctiſſime perſeveret. [b]

Paſch. 8 Jacobi. In the Common Pleas.

Turnor's Caſe.

IN Mich. Term 6 Jacobi, Rott. 1811. Edward Turnor, Gent. Executor of E. Turnor, brought an Action of Debt againſt Ed. Lawrence and others, Adminiſtrators of Richard Booker, upon an Obligation of 100 li. made by the ſaid Rich. Booker to E. Turnor the Teſtator: the Defendants pleaded in bar a former Judgement in the King's Bench upon two ſeveral Bills, which amounted to 60 li. &c. And farther ſay, That at another time, ſcil. at the Court of our Sovereign Lord the King holden at the City of Ciceſter in the Guildhall of the ſaid City, before Robert Adams then Maior of the ſaid City, on Monday, viz. the 23^d^. day of Febr. in the Fourth year of the ſaid King, Thomas Billet did complain againſt the ſaid Ed. and the other Defendants, Adminiſtrators of the ſaid Rich. Booker, of a Plea, That the ſaid Edward, &c. ſhould pay to him 100 li. which he then unjuſtly detained from him; whereupon at the ſame Court the ſaid Ed. Lawrence, &c. were demanded, and appeared by Robert Smith their Atturney, and then ſaid, That they could not deny the Action of the ſaid Tho. Billet, nor but that the ſaid Writing Obligatory by which the ſaid Tho. Billet did require the ſaid Debt, was the Deed of the ſaid Richard Booker, nor but that the ſaid Richard Booker in his life time did owe the ſaid Tho. Billet the ſaid Debt of 100 li. in manner and form as he had declared againſt them: whereupon in the ſame Court Judgement was given for the ſaid Tho. Billet: and pleaded another Judgement for 60 li. in the ſame Court at the Sute of John Githens: and pleaded divers other former Recoveries in Actions of Debt in the ſame Court againſt the ſame Adminiſtrators, amounting in the whole to 514 li. and 8 d. and that they have not Goods and Chattels of the Inteſtate in their hands, præterquam Bona & Catalla quæ non attingunt ad valentiam 514 li. verſus ipſos in forma præd. recuperat. which are chargeable and liable to the ſaid ſeveral Executions. The Plaintiff replieth and ſaith, That the Recovery of the ſaid John Githens was by fraud and covin, &c. to defraud and deceive the ſaid Ed. Turnor of the ſaid Debt: upon which they were at iſſue to be tried by the Country: And as to the ſaid Recovery of the ſaid 100 li. againſt the Defendants, that the Defendants after the death of the ſaid Richard Booker, and after the ſaid Recovery, and before the original Writ brought, 24 Febr. in the Fourth year of the King that now is, have paid to the ſaid Tho. Billet 60 li. parcel of the ſaid 100 li. recovered by him as is aforeſaid, in full ſatisfaction and diſcharge of the ſaid Judgement, with which paiment the ſaid Thomas Billet held, and yet holdeth himſelf contented and ſatisfied; and then and there offered, and yet offereth to releaſe the ſaid Ed. Lawrence, &c. the ſaid 100 li. or to acknowledge ſatisfaction thereof in the ſaid Court of our Lord the King at Ciceſter, at the charges of the ſaid Adminiſtrators: But the ſaid Edward, &c. deceitfully, and to the intent to defraud and deceive the ſaid Ed. Turnor Executor of his juſt Debt, do deferr to acknowledge ſatisfaction of the ſaid 100 li. &c. or of the ſaid Judgement to be releaſed; and ſuffer the ſaid Judgement to remain in force and ſtrength to the intent aforeſaid; and pleads the like Plea to the other Recoveries; whereupon the Defendant doth demurr in Law; And the Point in Law was, When a Judgement is given againſt an Adminiſtrator or Executor, for a juſt Debt due by the Inteſtate or Teſtator, if the ſaid ſubſequent agreement ſhall avail the Plaintiff or not? And it was objected, That foraſmuch as the Judgement was obtained bona fide for a juſt and true Debt, the ſubſequent agreement cannot make the Recovery covenous, and ſo long as the ſame remaineth in force, if the Executors have not other Goods and Chattels in their hands above that Judgement, they are not bound by Law to pay any other Debt, and Covin cannot be alleged in doing of a lawfull act; As in a Writ of Dower againſt a Diſſeiſor, if the Tenant plead in abatement of the Writ an Entry by the Diſſeiſee, the Demandant ſhall not be admitted to averr the Entry [132] [b]

to be by Covin to abate his Writ, becauſe the Entry is congeable and lawfull, and mixt with no wrong, as it is holden in 15 E. 4. 4. but if a woman have lawfull title of Dower, and cauſeth another to diſſeiſe the Tenant, againſt whom ſhe recovereth upon good title, it ſhall not bind the Diſ-
[133] ſeiſee, as it is holden 44 E. 3. 45. The ſame Law of him who is put to his Formedon, or other real Action; and the reaſon is, becauſe the Demandant's Right is mixt with Covin or Wrong, which is an ill herb, and maketh the whole act tortious. Vide 25 Aſſ. p. 1. 22 Aſſ. p. 92. 27 Aſſ. p. 74. 41 Aſſ. p. 28. 44 Aſſ. p. 29. 11 H. 4. 60, 61. 15 E. 4. 4. 11 E. 4. 2. 7 H. 7. 11. 1 H. 8. 5, 19 H. 8. 13. But it was anſwered and reſolved, and ſo adjudged, That the Plaintiff ſhould recover; For an Executor or Adminiſtrator ought to execute his Office, and adminiſter the Goods of the deceaſed, lawfully, truly, and diligently: Lawfully, in paying of all his Duties, Debts, Legacies, in ſuch precedency and order as they ought to be paid by the Law: Truly, to convert nothing to his own uſe; for an Executor or Adminiſtrator hath not the Deceaſed's Goods to his own uſe, but in another Right, and to another Uſe, and ought not, by any Practice or Device, barr or hinder any Creditor of his Debt, but ought truly to execute his Office according to the truſt which is repoſed in him: Diligently, quia negligentia ſemper habet Comitem infortunium. Then in the Caſe at Barr, when the Adminiſtrators compound with one who hath a Judgement of 100 li. for 80 li. and the Plaintiff offereth to releaſe and acknowledge ſatisfaction, and he deferreth it to the intent that the Judgement ſtand in force, by which the Plaintiff ſhall be defrauded of his true Debt, and the Adminiſtrators convert the Deceaſed's Goods to their own uſe, which is altogether againſt their Office, and the truſt repoſed in them; And therefore be the Agreement precedent before the Recovery, or ſubſequent after the Recovery, all is one as to the Creditor, who is a third perſon, for he is defrauded as well by the ſubſequent Agreement, as by the Agreement precedent, and thereby the Adminiſtrators, againſt their office and truſt repoſed in them, ſhould make a private gain, where they ought not, and the Creditor, who is a Stranger, ſhould loſe his Debt, which by the Law is due to him: and an Agreement made betwixt two ſhall not hurt or prejudice a third perſon. And Goodale's Caſe, in the Fifth part of my Reports, was cited, and applied to this Caſe. And if any prejudice doth accrue to the Adminiſtrators in this Caſe, it is their own fault, for Billet the Plaintiff would have releaſed to them, and acknowledged ſatisfaction, but they deferred the ſame, to the end by this means to barr the Plaintiff of his juſt and true Debt.

2. It was reſolved, That the Barr as to all the Recoveries pleaded in the Court of Ciceſter was inſufficient, for the validity of the ſaid Recoveries was all the life and force of the Barr: and, 1. It doth not appear, that the Maior hath Juriſdiction or Power to hold a Court, either by Preſcription or Patent. 2. It appeareth by the Declaration in the ſaid Court, that the Action of Debt was brought for 100 li. without making mention of any Obligation, and therefore it ought not to be intended,
[b] that there was any Obligation, and then the ſaid Adminiſtrators were not chargeable in an Action of Debt upon a ſimple Contract; And although the Defendant in his Barr doth confeſs that the Debt was by Obligation, yet it ſhall not make the Declaration good: For when the Declaration wanteth circumſtance of time, or place, &c. it may be made good by the Barr: But when a Declaration, Barr or Replication, &c. wanteth ſubſtance, it cannot be made good by the others Plea. And ſo you will better underſtand your Books in 18 E. 4. 16. b. 22 E. 4. 4. b. 6 E. 4. 2. 11 H. 7. 24. 6 H. 7. 10. 5 H. 7. 12. 38 H. 6. 17, 18, 19. 18 E. 3. 30. 38 E. 3. 34. *b. Plow. 3. It was reſolved, That in the Caſe at Barr, if the Replication had been inſufficient, ſc. that the ſaid Agreement ſubſequent ſhould not avail the Plaintiff; yet upon the whole Record the Plaintiff ſhall have Judgement, becauſe the Barr was inſufficient in matter. And a difference was taken, when by the Replication it appeareth that the Plaintiff hath no cauſe of Action, there the Plaintiff ſhall never have Judgement, although the Barr be inſufficient; As in Debt upon a Bond to perform Covenants in an Indenture, the Defendant pleads performance of all the Covenants generally, where it appeareth that divers of them are in the Negative or Disjunctive, and ſo the Plea in the general Affirmative is inſufficient; yet if the Plaintiff reply, and ſhew a Breach of one of the Covenants, which upon his own knowing is no Breach, upon which the Defendant doth demurr, Judgement ſhall be given againſt the Plaintiff, becauſe upon the whole Record it appeareth that the Plaintiff hath no cauſe of Action; for the Bond is endorſed with Condition to perform the Covenants, ſo that the Plaintiff hath no cauſe of Action till there be a Breach of Covenant, and upon the Plaintiffe's own ſhewing there is not any Breach which is ſufficient in Law to give the Plaintiff cauſe of Action; and it ſhall be alwaies intended, that a man will ſhew that which is beſt for himſelf: But when the Defendants Barr is inſufficient in ſubſtance, and the Plaintiff replieth, and ſheweth the truth of his Caſe, whereby he ſheweth no matter againſt himſelf, but matter explanatory, or perhaps not material, there the Court ſhall adjudge upon the whole Record, and (the Declaration being good) for the inſufficiency of the Barr, without any regard had to the Replication, Judgement ſhall be given for the Plaintiff: As if a man plead a Grant by Letters Patents in barr which are not ſufficient: The Plaintiff by Replication ſheweth another clauſe in the ſaid Letters Patents, which clauſe is not material, and the Defendant doth demurr in Law, in this Caſe Judgement ſhall be given againſt the Defendant: and ſo of the like. Mary Shipley's Case.

TRinit. 4 Jacobi rot. 28. in the Kings Bench, Mary Shipley brought an Action of Debt upon a Bond of 200 l. against Christopher Beane and Anne his wife, Executrix of Francis Hasilwood the Obligor; the Defendants pleaded Fully administred, and so nothing in their hands. The Plaintif replyed, that they had Assets. The Jurors found that there were Assets to the value of 172 l. and Judgment was given to recover the whole debt of 200 l. and costs and damages of the goods of the Testator, if, &c. and if not, then the damages of their own proper goods. Upon a Writ of Error brought upon the same Judgment in the Exchequer Chamber, the said Judgment was affirmed Hill. 7 Jac. For upon the barr, the effect of which, is nothing in their hands, the Plaintif might have prayed her judgment presently; for thereby he confesseth the debt, but he cannot have execution till the Defendants have goods of the deceased: as in a Writ of Mesne, if the Defendant pleadeth, not distreined in his default, he may pray Judgment presently, for this plea shall serve him to no purpose, but to save him from damages. Vid. 11 H. 4. 52. So in a Warrantia Chartæ against the heir, the Defendant pleadeth that he hath nothing by descent, &c. the Plaintif shall thereupon recover pro loco et tempore. So in debt against the heir, if he pleadeth nothing by descent, &c. the Plaintif may have judgement presently, and a scire facias when Assets do descend. Vid. Old N. Brev. in Warrantia Chartæ, and 21 E. 3. Br. tit. Warrantia Chartæ 30. But the tryal in the case at barr is a good direction to the Sherif what he is to do; but yet the same shall not alter the judgment of the Law; and it is the better form, and more agreeable to Law to have judgment for the whole, than of parcel of the debt, according to the Assets found. See Syms case before for this matter. [134] [b]

Pasch. 8 Jacobi, in the Common Pleas.

Sir John Nedham's Case.

ARthur Post, and Kather. his wife Administr. of Eliz. Weldishe, brought an action of debt against Sir John Nedham (which began Mich. 7. Jacobi, rot. 332) upon an Obligation of 200*l.* made to the said Eliz. To which Katherine administration of all and singular the goods which were the said Eliz. at the time of her death, were at Rochester, by William Bishop of Rochester after the death of the said Elizabeth committed the 5 of Feb. 1605. The Defendant pleaded, That after the death of the said Eliz. and before the committing of the said Administration, sc. 13 Maii 1604. The Dean and Chapter of Canterbury being Gardians of the spiritualties sede vacante of the Archbishop of Canterbury, committed administration of the goods, &c. of the said Eliz. because the said Eliz. the time of her death had bona notabilia in several Dioceses of the Province of Canterbury, which administration committed by the said Dean, &c. doth yet remain in force, and demanded Judgment of the action. The Plaintif replieth, That after the said administration granted by the said Dean, &c, to the Defendant, and before the purchase of this original writ, sc. 4 No. 1607. before D. Bennet Commissary of the Prærogative Court of Canterbury, at the sute of the said Katherine against the said Defendant, the administration granted to the Defendant was pronounced and declared pro nulla & invalida ad omnem juris effectum: upon which the Deft. did demur in Law. And in this case 3 points were resolved. 1. For as much as the Defendant hath not shewed in his barr, that the Intestate hath bona notabilia in certain, for this cause it shall be taken that the administration was granted, where the Intestate had not bona notabilia in several dioceses: But yet it was agreed, That such administration was not void, but voidable, as it was adjudged in Hugh Veres case, in the 5 part of my reports. 2. It was objected, That forasmuch as the administr. granted to the Defendant was not void, but voidable, so long as they were in force the inferiour Ordinary ought not to have committed administration, for the prerogative administration granted by the Archbishop, and the administration granted by the inferiour Ordinary cannot stand together; for thereupon confusion will ensue; and therefore the administration granted by the inferiour Ordinary was void; And although that afterwards the said prerogative administration was revoked, it shall not make the other administration of better effect than it was at the time it was granted, quia quod ab initio non valet tractu temporis non convalescit. But it was answered and resolved, That now in as much as the Eccleasiastical Judge hath pronounced, and declared the Letters of administation granted to the Defendant pro nulla & invalida ad omnem juris effectum, we must give credit to them, that the same was for causes not appearing to us void ab initio Vid. 17 Eliz. Dyer 339. the like cause upon the same reason. Also the Administration is but an Authority, because he hath nothing to his own use, but all to the use of another, and an authority may ex- [135] [b]

pect and commence in futuro, and therefore it shall be suspended until the other be repealed or declared void. And it was said, that there are 3 kinds of Executors, The first appointed by the Law, and therefore it is called Lawful, as the Bishop: the second appointed by the Testator, and therefore it is called Testamentary, as an Executor. The third appointed by the Bishop, and therefore he is said Datif, as an Administrator. And it is to be observed, That the Bishop who is Executor appointed by the Law, is not permitted by Law to make a release of any debt, or gift of any goods; for he hath a special property in the deceaseds goods for the benefit of the dead, and nothing to his own use: And that appeareth in 9 Eliz. Dyer 255. That the Ordinary hath not power to give authority to another to sell the desceaseds goods, because he himself hath but an authority; And the Statute of West. 2. cap. 19. Bona deveniunt ad manus Ordinarii disponenda, that is, for the good of the deceased, and as to this purpose he is like to an administrator, durante minore ætate, who hath a special power committed to him to dispose of the deceaseds goods for his benefit, and nothing in prejudice of the Executor, as it is holden in Princes case in the 5 part of my Reports. So the Lord who taketh a surrender of Lands holden by Copy of Court Roll, to the use of another, hath a power to grant the same only according to the use of the surrender, and not to a stranger, as it is holden in the 4th part of my Reports in Westwicks case Vid. 7 H. 4. 18. the Ordinary shall not have an action of Trespasse for carrying away the goods before an actual possession of them (as Executors or Administrators may have) but before possession the Ordinary may sue for them in the spiritual Court. And Fitzherbert in abridging of the case, tit.
[136] Trespasse 79. ex hoc sequitur, That the Ordinary shall not have an action of debt, as Ordinary. 3. It was resolved, That the committing of administration by the Archbishop of Canterbury to the Obligor, it shall not extinguish the debt, but the debt doth remain. But if the Obligee maketh the Obligor his Executor, it is a Release in Law of the debt, because it is the Act of the Obligee himself, and therewith agreeth 8 E. 4. 3. 21 E. 4. 2. b. &c. in the same manner as if a woman Obligee taketh the Obligor, or one of the Obligors, for her Husband, it is a Release in the Law of the debt, because it is the Act of the Obligee her self, and therewith agreeth 11 H. 7. 4. & 21 H. 7. 29. But if a woman Executrix taketh the debtor to Husband, it is no release in Law, because she hath the debt, in an other right, and if it shall amount to a release in Law, it shall be a devastavit, which is a wrong, which the Law will not suffer. And so it was adjudged in the Kings Bench, Mich. 30. & 31. Eliz. where in debt against a woman Executrix, she pleaded fully administred, and it was found that the Defendant had taken the Obligor to Husband, and that the Husband was dead, and it was adjudged to be no release in Law, nor the debt extinct, but only suspended during the Coverture: Note, Fleta lib. 2. cap. de Testamentis. De bonis defuncti trina debet esse dispositio; 1. Necessitatis, ut funeralii. 2. Utilitatis, that every one shall be paid in such precedency as it ought to be. 3. Voluntatis, as Legacies.

Pasch. 8 Jacobi. In the Common Pleas.

Sir Francis Barrington's Case.

[b] BEtween Richard Chalke Plaintif in a Replevin, and William Peter and Nicholas White Defendants, which began Hill. 6. Jacobi, rot. 157. upon a very long and impertinent pleading, the case was such. Sir Robert Rich Lord Rich was seised of the Forrest or Chase of Hatfield (whereof the place where, &c. was parcel) in fee, and by his deed indented, bearing date 30 Janu. 19 Eliz. for good consideration granted to Sir Thomas Barrington Knight, and his heirs, omnes bosci arbores tam marem. subboscos & spinas quam alia genera quorumcunque, adtunc crescent. stant. et existent. simul cum omnibus arboribus, called Timber Trees, boscis, subboscis, et spinis quibuscunque, quæ ad aliquod tempus extunc imposterum forent, crescent. stant. removant. sive existent. in et super illis partibus foreste præd. communiter vocat. Bushend Quarter, and the Quarter called Takeley Quarter (except the land and soil of the same wood) with liberty to enclose them, and to hold them inclosed for the preservation of the Spring of wood which should be for such time, as by the Laws and Statutes of the Realm is appointed and enacted, and not otherwise, without molestation or interruption of the said Lord Rich his heirs or assigns, and to exclude the Deer and all other Cattel out of the wood so inclosed, and to have the herbage and feeding thereof as any owner of [137] the wood ought to do by the Laws and Statutes of the Realm, without interruption of the said Lord Rich, his heirs or assigns. And that the Plaintif is seised of a house and six acres of Land in Hatfield, in fee, and that he hath Common appurtenant for all Cattel levant and couchant, &c. in and through the whole Forrest or Chase of Hatfield; which grant made by the Lord Rich, was in performance of an award made between the said Lord Rich, and Sir Tho. Barrington, by the Lord Burgley Lord Treasurer of England, Thomas Earl of Sussex, Sir William Cordel Master of the Rolls, and Sir Guilbert Gerrard Attorney General, which Arbitrament and grant was confirmed and established by Act of Parliament, Anno 27 Eliz. with a saving to all strangers, &c. And that the said Sir Tho. Barrington died, after whose decease the said wood descended to Sir Francis Barrington, as to his son and heir, who 1 Feb. 1 Jacob. cut down the trees in the place in which, and carried them away to his own use, and 10 Martii following inclosed the same for the preservation ſervation of the Spring, and ſo hath kept it for the preſervation of the Spring, according to the Laws and Statutes of the Realm. And the Defendants did demurr in Law: And if the Plaintif was barred of his Common or not was the Queſtion. And in this caſe the Defendant pleaded the ſaid Arbitrament, and the ſaid Act of Parliament at large; but to no purpoſe, for without Queſtion, neither the Arbitrament nor the Act (in reſpect of the ſaving) can bar the Plaintif of his Common: But all the doubt of the caſe doth ariſe upon 2 Acts of Parliament not pleaded, ſc. the Act of 22 E. 4. Cap. 7. and the Act of 35 H. 8. cap. 17. And 1. it was objected, That the Act of 22 E. 4. hath barred the Plaintif of his Common; for by the ſame Act it is enacted, That if any of the Kings Subjects having woods of his own, growing in his own ground, within any Forreſt, Chaſe, or purlieu, &c. cauſe to be cut the ſame wood, or any part thereof, by licenſe of the King, or his heirs, in his Foreſts, Chaſes, or purlieus, or without licenſe, in the Forreſt, Chaſe or purlieu of any other perſon, or make ſale of the ſame wood; Be it lawful for the ſaid Subjects poſſeſſors of the ſame ground whereupon the wood ſo cut did grow, and to other perſons to whom ſuch wood ſhall happen to be ſold, immediately after the wood ſo cut to coppice and encloſe the ſame ground with ſufficient hedges, able to keep out all manner of Beaſts and Cattel out of the ſame ground, for the preſerving of their young Spring: And the ſame hedges ſo made the ſaid Subjects may keep them continually by the ſpace of 7 years next after the ſame incloſing; and there is no Saving in the Act for the Commoners; and therefore (as it was urged) they ſhall be excluded of their Common for 7 years; for that every one is party and privy to the Act of Parliament; And the Rights and Intereſts of thoſe which are not ſaved by the Act of Parliament are bound; And the makers of the Act have greater regard to the preſervation of the Spring of the woods for the Commonwealth in maintenance of Timber and woods, than to the Common in the [b] woods of Subjects within Forreſts or Chaſes after a reaſonable time, till the Spring be of ſuch growth that beaſts or Cattel cannot hurt or hinder it. And theſe words, To incloſe the ſame land with ſufficient hedges able to exclude all manner of Beaſts or Cattel out of the ſame ground, were very ſtrongly urged to prove the intent of the makers of the Act, to exclude not only the Beaſts of the Forreſt, or Chaſe, but alſo Cattel of Commoners; for Beaſts of the Forreſt are not called Cattel; and the words are, able to exclude all manner of Beaſts and Cattel out of the ſame ground; which general words extend to Beaſts and Cattel of the Commoner. To which it was anſwered by the Plaintifs Councel, 1. That the ſaid Act of 22 E. 4. doth not extend to this caſe, becauſe the Statute extendeth only to thoſe who are Owners of the ground; for the words of the Act in divers parts thereof are, growing upon their proper ground. And in this caſe Sir Francis Barrington hath but a profit apprender in anothers ground, for the ground remaineth to the Lord Rich. 2. It was anſwered, That the Statute of 35 H. 8. cap. 7. which is in the Negative, That it ſhall not be lawfull to any perſons which have or ſhall have any woods wherein any ought to have any Common, &c. to ſell and cut down the ſame woods (except it be to his own uſe and occupation) until ſuch time as the 4 part of the ſaid ground or ſoil, &c. be divided, &c. fenced and incloſed, &c. Et leges poſteriores, priores contrarias abrogant. To which it was anſwered by the Defendants Councel, That Sir Francis Barrington was out of this prohibition, and within the execution of this branch; for he hath taken the ſaid wood to his own uſe; And he who taketh a wood wherein others have Common is out of the prohibition of this Act. And now this term the caſe was argued at the Bench by the Judges, and in this caſe theſe points were reſolved. 1. That Sir Francis Barrington hath an inheritance as profit apprender in alieno ſolo, and that the ſoil doth remain to the Lord Rich. 2. That the Statute of 22 E. 4. ſhall extend to Sir Francis Barrington, notwithſtanding that he hath not the ſoil; for the words are, that it be lawful for the ſaid Subjects poſſeſſors of the ſame ſoil, or to other perſons to whom ſuch wood ſhall be ſold; And the ſaid grant for the conſiderations in the ſaid award, mentioned to Sir Tho. Barrington and his heirs, was a perpetual ſale to him within the words and intent of the Act. 3. The ſaid Act doth not extend to the wood of a Subject, in which another hath Common, but only to ſeveral woods: For by the Common Law, he who hath a wood in which another hath Common cannot [138] encloſe it, to exclude the Commoner of his Common, be it in Forreſt or Chaſe, or out of Forreſt and Chaſe. But he who hath a ſeveral wood in a Forreſt may after the cutting incloſe it for three years parvo foſſato & baſſa haia ſecundum aſſiſam foreſtæ, as it appeareth by the Ad quod damnum in the Regiſter 257. Then it appeareth by the ſaid Act, that it extends only to ſeveral woods; for the ſame reciteth, That where Subjects have cut their woods, &c. could not before encloſe their ground to preſerve the germens longer than 3 years, which proveth what the Common Law was before in ſuch caſe; but without queſtion the ſame extendeth only to ſeveral woods; for none could incloſe a wood wherein another had Common for a day, &c. But now this Statute hath enlarged the time until 7 years, and hath hightned the hedges; for whereas before he could not encloſe the ſame parvo foſſato & baſſa haia, he may now make magnam & altam haiam, ſufficient to exclude all manner of Beaſts and Cattel. 4. It appearth by the preamble, between what perſons, and for and againſt what perſons this Act was made; And the parties to this great Contract by Act of Parliament are the Subjects having woods, &c. within Foreſts, Chaſes, or purlieus of one part, and the King and other Owners of Forreſts, Chaſes. and purlieus of the other part, ſo that the Commoners are not any of the parties betwixt whom this Act was made: And therefore the Caſe well argued in 21 H. 7. 1. Between the Prior of Caſtleacre and the Dean of St. Stephens, and left at large in the printed Reports, was afterwards adjudged, as appeareth by the Record thereof, which began Paſch. 18 H. 7. Rot. 416. That the Act of 2 H. 5. being made between the Kings and Priors Aliens, by which the Priors Aliens were given to the King, did not extinct the annuity of the Prior of Caſtleacre which he had out of a Rectory parcel of a Priory Alien, although that there was not any ſaving in the Act. And Mich. 25 & 26 Eliz. Boſwells caſe in the Court of Wards, where it was reſolved, That when an act of Parliament maketh any conveyance good againſt the King, or other perſon certain, it ſhall not take away the right of any other although there be not any Saving in the Act. 5. If the Act had extended to wood in which others had Common; yet the concluſion doth reſtrain the generalty of the precedent words; for the Statute doth not give an abſolute and indefinite power to the owners of the wood to encloſe, &c. but to encloſe the ground, to keep it encloſed, and to repair it, without ſuing the Kings License, or other perſons, or their Officers of the ſame Foreſts, Chaſes, or purlieus, ſo that the ſame concluſion doth limit the precedent words only againſt the King, and other owners of Foreſts, Chaſes, and purlieus; but no word in the whole Act doth give authority to them to encloſe againſt any Com[b] mon. And where it was ſaid, that this word Cattel cannot be applied to Beaſts of the Foreſt; It was anſwered, that they be fitly and properly ſaid Beaſts and Cattel of the Forreſt. And ſo is it ſaid in the preamble of this very Act, Beaſts and Cattle of the Forreſt. And it is to know, That there are five manner of Beaſts of Foreſt, ſc. Hart, Hind, Hare, Wild Bore, and Wolf; and 5 manner of Beaſts of Chaſe, ſc. the Buck, Doe, Fox, Martin, and Roe; and Beaſts and Fowls of Warren are, Hare, Coney, Feaſant, Patridge. See Regiſter 96. 43 E. 3. 13. 38 E. 3. 10. 3 H. 6. 12, 15. Liber Dentries Treſpaſſe in Hunting, 585. 12 H. 8. 9. Holinſheds Chronicle 306. num. 30. 6. It was reſolved, That the ſaid clauſe of the Act of 35 H. 8. in the Negative doth reſtrain only the Owner of the wood to cut his own wood upon a penalty, and without queſtion doth not exclude the Commoner of his Common: And the ſaid words (except it be to his own uſe or occupation) ſerve to exclude the Owner out of this penalty, are to be intended of his own proper neceſſary uſe; as for to repair his houſe, or to burn in his houſe, &c. Then there is another clauſe which prohibiteth the Commoner that after the ſaid felling (that is to ſay, after the diviſion and felling, for the diviſion of the 4th. part ought to preceed the felling) in any ſuch part, that is in the fourth part, ſo divided, no Beaſts or Cattel during ſeven years ſhall be ſuffered to feed there, upon penalty, &c. And the Lord is excluded to feed with his Cattel during the 7 years: And after the 7 years, (until a new felling, according to the Act) the Commoner ſhall have his Common again. And it is to be marked, That by the Statute of 22 E. 4. the owner of the wood ought firſt to cut the wood, and after encloſe: And by the Statute of 35 H. 8. he ought firſt to encloſe, and within 4 moneths cut the wood. 7. It was reſolved, That the Statute of Weſt. 2 de malefactoribus in parcis, Charta de Foreſta, and thoſe Acts of 22 E. 4. and 35 H. 8. are generally Laws concerning all perſons, whereof the Court ex Officio ought to take notice, and ſo much the rather, becauſe that this Act of 22 E. 4. doth concern the King.

Paſch. 8 Jacobi Regis. In the Common Pleas.

Doctor Drurie's Caſe.

Owen Bray brought a Writ of Audita Querela againſt John Drury Doctor of the Civil Law, ſetting forth, That where the ſaid Doctor Drury Mich. 5 Jac. in this Court had recovered againſt the ſaid Owyn a debt of 200 l. and 33 s. 4 d. for damages and coſts: And where the ſaid
[b] Owyn, becauſe he came not into Court to ſatisfie the ſaid debt and damages, was put in Exigent, and thereupon 19 May Anno 6. was outlawed: And that the ſaid Owyn by force of a Writ of Capias Vtlagatum, at the ſute of the ſaid John Drury was taken and impriſoned, and in execution for the ſaid debt and damages, and ſo being in execution was delivered out of priſon by the Sherif from the ſaid execution, and ſuffered to go at large, &c. The Defendant pleaded, That after the ſaid eſcape, and before the bringing of the ſaid Writ of Audita querela, ſc. Mich. 6 Jac. The ſaid Writ of Capias Utlagat. was awarded out of the Court retornable Craſtin. animarum: At which day the Sherif did retorn Non eſt inventus; and thereupon the ſame day the ſaid Owyn appeared, and demanded Oyer of the Exigent, which was read to him; and thereupon it appeared that the Retorn of the ſaid Writ of Exigent was incertain; and thereupon he prayed, quod utlagaria prædicta in forma præd. promulgata et habita adnullaretur, evacueretur, et pro nullo penitus teneretur: ſuper quo viſo brevi præd. et per Juſticiar. hic tunc plene intellecto, eiſdem Juſticiariis hic tunc conſtabat, quod allegatio prædicti Owyni in exonerationem ſuam de utlagaria prædicta vera extitiſſet; Ideo tunc conſideratum fuit in eadem Curia hic quod idem Owynus occaſione utlagariæ præd. in aliquo non moleſtaretur nec gravaretur, ſed iret inde quietus prout per record. inde in eadem Curia hic reſiden. plenius liquet. Et ſic idem Johannes Drury dicit quod non habetur aliquod tale recordum
[142] utlagariæ prædicti. quale præd. Owynus per breve et narrationem ſuam præd. ſuperius ſupponit: et hoc paratus eſt verificare: unde petit judicium ſi ipſe ab executione ſua præd. de debito et damnis præd. verſus Owynum habend. præcludi debeat, &c. And upon that the Plaintif did demur in Law. And it was objected that the ſaid Outlawry was not void, but voidable, and that at the time of the eſcape (by which the ſaid Dr. Drury was entituled to an action of debt upon the eſcape againſt the Sherif) the Outlawry was in force, and the Sherif ſhall never take advantage of an Error in the proceeding againſt the Defendant, but ſhall be charged for the eſcape, notwithſtanding the Record be erronious. And ſo was it adjudged in the Exchequer, Trinit. 31 Eliz. by Sir Roger Manwood, and William Gervys, 18 Aug. 28 Eliz. acknowledged a Recogniſance of 200 l. in the Chancery to George Ognell, Upon which Recogniſance George Ognel, 16 Jan. 29 Eliz. ſued a Scire facias out of the Chancery againſt the ſaid Recognizors, upon which Nihil was returned; and ſo upon another ther Scire facias, whereupon Mense Pasch. 29 Eliz. Judgment was given, sc. Ideo consideratum fuit per Curiam, quod pred. Georgius recuperaret versus prædictos Ed. Fr. & Will. 200 l. &c. And that the said George have execution against them, whereupon he sued forth a levari facias, upon which it was returned, that they had nothing, For which the Court did award a Capias ad satisfaciend. retornable Octab. Hill. directed to the Sherif of Norfolk, Clement. Paston Esq; the Sherif of the same County; by force whereof the said Sherif did arrest the said Francis Woodhouse, and William Gervys, 16 Jan. 30. Eliz. And that the said Francis Woodhouse, at the time of the said arrest was in prison under the custody of the said Sherif being attainted of felony; and afterwards the said Francis and William did escape out of the custody of the said Sherif; upon which escape George Ognell brought an action of debt against the said Clement Paston, being an accomptant in the Exchequer. And in this case it was resolved, that the awarding of the Capias ad satisfaciend. was erronious; for by the Law the bodies of the Recognizors were not lyable to the execution; And yet, because the Sherif cannot take advantage of the Error, it was adjudged that he should answer for the escape; And therewith agreeth 21 E. 4. 23 b. But it was adjudged that in the case at Bar, the Audita querela doth not lie; And in this Case two points were resolved. 1. A difference was taken and agreed between a Collateral thing executory, and executed; For when an erronious judgment is given, and afterwards the judgment is reversed by a writ of Error, collateral Acts executory are barred thereby. As if a man have judgement in a Quare impedit, and hath a Writ to the Bishop, and the Bishop refuseth to admit the Plaintifs Clerk, the Plaintif upon this collateral refusal may have a Writ of Quare non admisit; but if the Defendant doth reverse the Judgment in a Writ of Error, And afterwards the Plaintif in the Quare impedit bringeth a Writ of Quare non admisit, the Defendant may plead nul tiel Record. Vid. 26 E. 3. 25. by Wilby and Hill. So it was resolved, That if A. be in execution at the sute of B. upon an Erronious Judgment, and afterwards escape, and afterwards the Judgment be reversed by a Writ of Error, the Action upon the escape is gone; for he may plead Nul tiel Record, because that without a Record the Action is not maintainable; but yet it is true, that till the Erronious Judgement or Execution be reversed by a Writ of Error, the Sheriff or Gaoler shall not take benefit thereof; for there he cannot plead Nul tiel record, because that till it be reversed, it remaineth of force, although there be apparent Error, as it is holden in 34 H. 6. 2 b. and 22 E. 4. 23. b. But in the same case, If the Plaintif bring an Action of Debt against the Sherif or Gaoler upon the escape, and hath Judgement and execution, and afterwards the first Judgement is reversed; yet for as much as this Judgement upon this collateral thing is executed, notwithstanding the Reversal of the first, it remaineth in force, as it appeareth in the like case 7 H. 6. 42 a. where the Case in effect is, That the Conusee of a Statute Staple in a Detinue of the said Statute upon Garnishment, doth recover by erronious Judgment against the Garnishee, and hath the Statute delivered to him; The Garnishee bringeth a Writ of Error, and the Conusee sueth execution upon the Statute and hath it: there it is holden, that although that the Garnishee doth reverse the Judgment, yet for as much as the Statute is now executed, this execution shall not be avoided by the reversal of the Judgement; for the Judgment was only to have the Statute delivered, and the execution of the Statute is a thing executed, not depending upon the Judgement. So if a man recovereth by erronious Judgement, and presenteth to a Benefice, or entreth into the perquisite of a Villein, and afterwards the Judgement is reversed by Writ of Error, because that these collateral things are executed, they shall not be devested, as it is holden in 4 H. 7. 11. and there fol. 12. a. Brian saith, That it was adjudged, That if the Defendant pleaded that the Plaintif is Outlawed, and the Plaintif pleadeth, quod non habetur aliquod recordum, &c. and the Defendant hath day to bring in the Record, and before the day the Record is reversed, the Justices certifie nul tiel record; and therewith agreeth 6 Eliz. Dyer 228. So in the Case at Bar, for as much as the Record is defeated and voided before that the Defendant be driven to plead, he may well plead Nul tiel record, Vide 13 E. 3. Barr. 253. But if 2. Judgements be given, and the last doth meerly depend upon the first as upon a foundation, there if the first fundamental [143] Judgement be reversed by writ of Error or Attaint, the latter (which appeareth in the Record to be dependent upon it) shall be reversed also, as in Assise & Redisseisin: So of a Judgement upon the Original, and another Judgement in a Scire facias, The same Law of one Judgement given against the Tenant, and another against the Vouchee and the like, 43 E. 3. 3. 13 E. 4. 4. 8 H. 4. 4. 4 E. 3. 36. 8 H. 7. 10. 11 H. 4. 4. 11 H. 4. 6. 4 E. 4. 29. 6 E. 4. 9. 9 H. 6. 38. b. 10 H. 6. 6. And vide 26 E. 3. 35. that by the Reversal of the Judgement given in a Quare Impedit, the Judgement given in a Quare non admisit is also reversed.

2. There is a difference between mean acts done in the execution of Justice, which are Compulsive, and acts which are Voluntary: And therefore, if erronious judgement be given in Debt, and the Sherif by force of a Fieri fac. sell a term of the Defendants, and afterwards the Judgement is reversed by a Writ of Error, yet the term shall not be restored, but only the sum, &c. because the Sheriff was commanded and compelled by the Kings writ to sell it, &c. But if a Capias Utlagatum be awarded, whereby the Sheriff is commanded to take the body, &c. & bona & catalla, que per inquisitionem invenerit in manus nostras capias ut de vero valore, &c. And by force of the Writ the Sheriff taketh the goods and Chattels of a man Outlawed and selleth them, and afterwards the Outlawry is reversed, the party shall be restored to his goods and chattels, because the Sheriff was not commaded nor compelled by the Kings writ to sell them; and therewith agreeth 5 Eliz. Dyer 223. Proctors Case. And according to this Resolution it was adjudged in the Common Pleas, between Amner and Loddington, and afterwards Mich. 26 & 27 Eliz. in a Writ of Error affirmed in the Kings Bench.

3. There is a difference between a Recovery upon eigne title, and reverſal of a Record by a Writ of Error: And therefore if A. a woman doth recover Dower in antient demeſn againſt H. and hath execution, the Tenant doth reverſe the Judgment in a Writ of Falſe Judgment, and becauſe the woman hath holden the Lands for 2 years between the firſt Judgement and the Reverſal, it was inquired of the yearly value of the Land, and taxed the 2. years to 20 marks, and thereupon the Tenant ſued a Scire facias againſt the woman to have execution of the 20 marks: In barr of which the Wife pleaded, That ſhe had brought her Writ of Right Cloſe in the nature of a Cui in vita, againſt H. the now Plaintif, and proceſs continued till ſhe recovered the Land by eigne title, and demanded Judgement, if of the iſſues and profits of the Lands by any Judgement after had, H. ſhould have execution. But it was adjudged, That for as much as the Judgement given for H. doth remain in force, by force of which he ſhall have the ſaid 20 marks as da-
[b] mages ſevered from the Land, and the Recovery in the Cui in vita doth not referr to them, for this Cauſe although A. had recovered by eigne title, H. ſhould have execution of the damages, 20 E. 3. Scire facias 123. in Harberts Caſe.

4. The Caſe at barr is ſtronger, becauſe that the Judgement to avoid the ſaid Outlawry is declaratory, which declareth the Outlawry to be void, and the proceeding therein to be without warrant, and all that without a Writ of Error, becauſe that there is a nullity in the Outlawry, for as much as the Writ of Exigent which is the warrant to proceed to Outlawry wanteth ſubſtance, and by Conſequence it was no warrant in Law, and therefore when the ſame is ſo declared by the Judgment of the Court, it is void ab initio. Vide Proctors Caſe, 5 Eliz. Dyer 223. In 38 H. 6. 4. & 12. One who had Privilege in the Common Pleas was arreſted in London, and before Judgement the Defendant delivered a Writ of Superſedeas in the inferiour Court, and notwithſtanding the Recorder proceeded to Judgement, and thereupon his body was taken in execution: And afterwards his body was brought into the Common Pleas by a Writ of Habeas Corpus cum cauſa; and becauſe that after the Superſedeas there was a nullity in the proceeding as well to Judgment as to execution, the Court awarded, that the party ſhould be diſcharded of the Execution, and ſo he was diſmiſſed without ſuing forth of any Writ of Error; for by this declaratory Award, the Judgement and execution are utterly void. And ſee 17 Eliz. Dyer 339. Adminiſtration is Committed to the Wife of the goods, &c. of the Husband, who recovereth Debt as Adminiſtratrix, depending which ſute, the Son of the Inteſtate by Covin betwixt him and the Defendant, doth procure a new Adminiſtration to him and his Mother, no cauſe of Revocation of the firſt being expreſſed in the ſecond, and after Judgement doth Releaſe to the Defendant; the Wife ſueth execution, and the Defendant upon this Releaſe bringeth an Audita querela, and the Defendant pleaded the matter above and ſentence declaratory, that the 2. Adminiſtration was void, and it was adjudged for the Defendant. But if the Letters of Adminiſtration had been good, and the Adminiſtrator maketh a Releaſe, and afterwards the Letters of Adminiſtration are repealed, there the Releaſe is good: So there is a difference between a Sentence declaratory, by which the Letters of Adminiſtration are declared to be void; and a Sentence of Repeal, which allow them good till they are repealed.

Note Reader, where it ſaid in the firſt difference; That collateral things executed by execution upon eſcape, or upon the Statute recovered in the Writ of Detinue in 7 H. 6. 42. a. ſhall not be avoided by the Reverſal of the firſt Judgement, the ſame is true; And yet I conceive, That he ſhall
[144] have remedy upon the Reverſal of the Judgement by Audita querela, becauſe that the cauſe and ground of the Collateral Action is diſproved and avoided, by the Reverſal of the firſt Judgement: and the firſt Plaintif reſtored to his former Action, upon which he may have his juſt and due remedy. And it is like to the caſe in Dyer 3 Eliz. 203. Executors have Judgement in an Accompt, and have the Defendant in execution for Arrerages; now the Teſtament is annulled becauſe the Teſtator is an Ideot, and the Record Spiritual was removed into the Chancery by Writ, and ſent into the Kings Bench, where the Action was brought, and thereupon the Defendant brought an Audita querela, becauſe the Will was diſapproved: And it was reſolved in the Exchequer Chamber, Anno 35 H. 8. (as I have heard it appear by the Record) that the Audita querela did well lye.

Davenport's Caſe.

[b] Robert Bradſhaw brought a Quare Impedit againſt John Davenport, George Wood Clerk, and the Biſhop of Lincoln, of the Vicarage of the Church of Orton upon Hill, in the County of Leiceſter (which began Trinit. 7. Jacobi, rot. 108.) And the Caſe was ſuch, George Haſting Earl of Huntington was poſſeſſed of the Church of Orton, to which the Advowſon of the ſaid Vicarage was appendant, for 25 years, and by his Deed Maii 19 Eliz. granted to Robert Bradſhaw now Plaintif, as he alleged in his Count, primam et proximam advocation. et donationem præd. vicariæ de Orton cum eadem prim. & proxim. extunc vacare contigeret per aliquas vias ſeu media quæcunque, ſi eadem contigeret fore vacua durante termino annorum ad tunc in eſſe. de rectoria de Orton conceſſ. præfato Comiti per præfatum nuper Epiſcopum Oxonien. The Defendants pleaded, That after the ſaid grant of the next voydance, the ſaid Earl ſo being of the ſaid Rectory to which, &c. poſſeſſed, dyed dyed thereof poſſeſſed inteſtate, after whoſe death, ſc. 1 Maii 1605. Adminiſtration of his goods were Committed to Henry now Earl of Huntingdon; and afterwards the ſaid now Earl, 9 Feb. 3 Jacobi, did ſurrender his term in the ſaid Rectory, to which, &c. to the Biſhop of Oxford then in Reverſion, which he accepted, per quod præd. terminus annorum de & in rectoria præd. cum pertin. ad quam &c. determinavit, and the Biſhop demiſed the ſaid Rectory, with the appurtenances, to Davenport one of the Defendants, for his life, and afterwards the ſaid Vicarage became void, &c. upon which the Plaintif did demur in Law. And the ſole Queſtion of this Caſe was, If by the ſaid ſurrender the ſaid grant of the next avoidance was void or not. And it was Objected, That the ſaid grant [145] of the next avoidance was upon expreſs limitation, If the Vicarage became void during the term then in being, and by the Surrender the term was drowned and extinct: ſo that the Vicarage became not void during the term, becauſe it fell after the ſurrender; But if the limitation had been during the years, there it had been otherwiſe, for the years cannot determine but by effluxion of time. But it was anſwered and Reſolved, That notwithſtanding the Surrender, yet the Plaintif ſhould have the next avoidance, and that for 3. cauſes. 1. The ſaid limitation doth imply no more, than the Law would have ſaid; for if Tenant for years granteth the next avoidance, the Law doth imply this limitation, If the Church do become void during the term. And therefore Expreſſio eorum quæ tacitè inſunt nihil operatur. 2. The grantor himſelf ſhould derogate from his own grant, and ſhould make it void at his pleaſure, and that is againſt the Rule of Law, ſc. That the grant of every one ſhall be taken ſtronger againſt himſelf, and moſt beneficially for the grantee. And as to that the notable caſe of Thurſtan of Holland, Parſon of Preſton, in 6 E. 3. 54, & 55. was cited, where the Caſe was; That in the time of R. 1. debate was betwixt the Abbot of S. and Theobald C. upon the Advowſon of the Church of Preſton, and thereupon they agreed; and betwixt them a fine was levied 15 Mich. 6 R. 1. before the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and the Biſhop of Rocheſter, then Juſtices of the Common Pleas, betwixt the aforeſaid Abbot and the ſaid Theobald; By which fine the Abbot did grant the Advowſon to Theobald, and to his heirs for ever, ſo that at every preſentation by Theobald or his heirs, the Clerks ſo preſented, &c. ſhould pay to the Abbot and his Succeſſors for ever 10 marks per annum, which accord was made in the preſence of the Ordinary of the place, who aſſented to it, at which time the Church of Preſton was void; and upon that fine the Succeſſors of the Abbot of S. brought a Writ of Annuity againſt the ſaid Thurſtan de Holland Parſon of Preſton; And there Serjeant Parning took exception to the Count, that for as much as the grant of the Annuity is in a ſpecial manner to be paid by the Clerks which ſhould be preſented by Theobald or his heirs, that the Plaintif ought to have ſhewed in his Count, that the Defendant was preſented by the ſaid Theobald or his heirs. To which Sadler ſaid, We intend that the perſon ſhall be charged by which he is preſented. And Herle chief Juſtice which gave the Rule, ſaid, That had Theobald aliened the Advowſon, the Annuity ſhall not be thereby extinct. By which caſe it appeareth, That although that Theobald had aliened the Advowſon, and although that the Annuity in the body of the grant is limited to be paid by the preſentees of Theobald or his heirs, yet the preſentee of his alienee, ſhall pay the ſame, for otherwiſe by his own grant he ſhall defeat the Annuity which himſelf hath granted.

Note Reader, in this Caſe of 6 E. 3. there are divers things worthy of obſervation, and amongſt them the Antiquity of the Common Pleas; for it appeareth thereby that the ſame was a Court long time before the Statute of Magna Charta, made in 9 H. 3. as it appeareth alſo in 26 Aſſ. p. 24. where it appeareth that King Hen. 1. made Letters Patents of Confirmation to the Abbot of B. of all uſages; and that they ſhould have Conuſans of all manner of Pleas, ſo that the Juſtices of one Bench, nor the other, nor Juſtices of Aſſiſe, ſhould nothing intermeddle, &c. which is a direct proof, that in the time of Hen. 1. there were Courts of the one Bench and the other, and alſo Juſtices of Aſſiſe, &c. 3. The term for the benefit of the grantee hath to ſome reſpect continuance, and therefore if Leſſee for years granteth a Rentcharge, and afterwards ſurrendereth, yet for the benefit of the grantee the Term hath continuance; although in truth it be determined: and therewith agreeth 5 H. 5. 10. But it is true, that the Leſſee himſelf by his Surrender may prejudice himſelf of an encreaſe of an eſtate to be made to himſelf, as it is reſolved in 35 H. 8. Expoſition de parols, 44. Vide the Rector of Cheddingtons Caſe, M. 38. Eliz. in the Firſt part of my Reports, 184.

The 6. Carpenters Caſe.

IN an Action of Treſpaſs by John Vaux againſt Tho. Newman, Carpenter and 5 other Carpenters, of breaking his houſe, and for an aſſault and battery, 1 Sept. 7. Jac. in London in the Pariſh of St. Giles Criplegate, in the Ward of Criplegate, &c. and upon the new aſſignment, the Plaintif did aſſign the Treſpaſs in a houſe called the Queens head. The Defendants to all the Treſpaſs but the breaking of the houſe pleaded Not guilty; and as to the breaking of the houſe, he ſaid, That the ſaid houſe præd. tempore quo, &c. & diu antea & poſtea was a Common Wine Tavern of the ſaid John Vaux, with a Common ſign at the door of the houſe, &c. by force whereof the Defen-

Defendants, præd. tempore quo, viz. at 4. of the Clock afternoon, the door thereof being open did enter, and did there buy and drink a quart of Wine, and there paid for the ſame, &c. The Plaintif by way of Replication did confeſs, that the ſaid houſe was a Common Tavern, and that they did enter, and bought and drank a quart of wine; but further he ſaid, that one John Ridding, ſervant of the ſaid John Vaux, at the requeſt of the ſaid Defendants, did there then deliver them another quart of wine, and a penny worth of bread, amounting to 8*d.* and there they did drink the ſaid wine, and eat the ſame bread, and upon requeſt did refuſe to pay for the ſame. Upon which the Defendants did demurr in Law: And the only point in this caſe was, If the denying of payment for the wine, or the non-payment, which is all one, (for every non-payment upon requeſt, is a denying in Law) doth make the entry into the Tavern tortious. And firſt, It was reſolved, When entry, authority, or Licence is given to any one, by the Law, and he doth abuſe it, he ſhall be a treſpaſſer ab initio: But where an entry, authority, or licence is given by the party, and he abuſeth it, there he ſhall be puniſhed for his abuſe, but ſhall not be a Treſpaſſor ab initio. And the reaſon of this difference is, That in the caſe of a general authority, or licence of Law, the Law will adjudge by the ſubſequent act, quo animo, or to what intent he doth enter, for acta exteriora indicant interiora ſecreta. Vide 11. H. 4. 75. b. But when the party giveth an authority, or licence himſelf to do a thing, he cannot for any ſubſequent cauſe puniſh that which is done by his own licence or authority; and therefore, the Law giveth authority to enter into a Common Inn, into a Tavern, to the Lord to diſtrein; to the owner of the ground to deſtrein for damage feaſance; to him in the Reverſion to ſee if waſte be done; to the Commonner to enter upon the Land to ſee his Cattel, and other the like: Vide 12 E. 4. 8. b. 21 E. 4. 19. b. 5 H. 7. 11. 9 H. 6. 29 b. 11 H. 4. 57. b. 3 H. 7. 15. 28. H. 6. 5. But if he who entreth into the Inn or Tavern doth a Treſpaſs, as, if he carrieth away any thing; or if the Lord who diſtreineth for Rent, or the owner for damage feaſance, doe work or kill the diſtreſſe; or if he who entreth to ſee waſt breaketh the houſe, or continueth there all night; or if the Commoner cutteth down a tree, in theſe and the like caſes the Law will adjudge that he entreth for this purpoſe, and becauſe that the act which doth demonſtrate the ſame is a treſpaſs, he ſhall be a treſpaſſer ab initio, as it appeareth in all the ſaid books. So if a Purveyor taketh my cattel by force of a Commiſſion, for the Kings Houſe, it is lawful; but if he ſelleth them in the market, then the firſt taking is wrongful; and therewith agreeth, 18 H. 6. 19 b. et ſic de ſimilibus.

2. It was Reſolved by the whole Court, That the Not doing cannot make the party who hath authority, or licence by the Law, to be a treſpaſſer ab initio, becauſe that Not doing is no treſpaſs; and therefore if the Leſſor deſtreineth for his Rent, and thereupon the Leſſee doth tender him the Rent and Arrerages, &c. and requireth his beaſts again, and he will not deliver them, this not doing cannot make him a Treſpaſſor ab initio; and therewith agreeth 33 H. 6. 47. a. So if a man taketh Cattel damage feaſant, and the other doth offer him ſufficient amends, and he refuſeth to deliver them back, if he ſueth a Replevin, he ſhall recover damages only for the deteining of them, and not for the taking, for that was lawful; and therewith agreeth F. N. B. 69. grant. E. 1. Replevin 27. 27 E. 3. 88. 45 E. 3. 9. So in the caſe at barr, for not paying for the wine the Defendants ſhall not be Treſpaſſors, for the denying to pay for the ſame is no treſpaſs; and therefore they cannot be Treſpaſſors ab initio; and therewith agreeth directly in the point, 12 Edw. 4. 9. b. For there Pigot Serjeant putteth this very caſe, If one commeth into a Tavern to drink, and when he hath drunk he goeth away, and will not pay the Taverner, the Taverner ſhall have an Action of Treſpaſs againſt him for his entry. To which Brian Chief Juſtice ſaid, That the ſaid caſe which Pigot hath put, is not Law, for it is no treſpaſs, but the Taverner ſhall have an Action of Debt. And there before Brown held, That if I bring cloaths to a Taylor to have a gown made, if the price be not agreed before how much he ſhall have for the making, he ſhall not have an Action of Debt againſt me; which is meant of a general Action of Debt, but the Taylor in ſuch a caſe ſhall have a ſpecial Action of Debt; ſc. that A. did put Cloath to him to make a gown thereof for the ſaid A. and that A. ſhould pay him as much for the making, and all neceſſaries, as he ſhould deſerve, and that for the making thereof and the neceſſaries, he deſerveth ſo much for which he bringeth the Action of Debt: and in this caſe the putting of the Cloath to the Taylor to be made a gown is ſufficient evidence to prove the ſaid ſpecial Contract, for the Law doth imply it: and if the Taylor doth overvalue the making, or the neceſſaries, the Jury may mitigate the ſame, and the Plaintif ſhall recover ſo much as they find, and ſhall be barred for the reſidue. But if the Taylor (as they uſe) maketh a Bill, and he himſelf doth value the making and the neceſſaries thereof, he ſhall not have an Action of Debt for his own values, and declare of a Reteiner of him to make a gown, &c. for ſo much, if it be not ſpecially agreed. But in ſuch caſe he may detain the garment until he be ſatisfied; as the Hoſtler may the Horſe. Vide Br. Diſtreſs. 70. and all that was reſolved by the Court. See the book in 30 Aſſ. p. 38. John Matrevers Caſe. It is holden by the Court, that if the Lord, or Bailif come to diſtrein, and before the diſtreſs the Tenant tendreth the arrerages upon the Land, there the diſtreſs taketh for the ſame is tortious. The ſame Law for damage feaſance, if before the diſtreſs he tender ſufficient amends; and therewith agreeth 7 E. 3. 8. b. in the Mr. of St. Marks Caſe: and ſo is the opinion of Hall. to be underſtood in 13 H. 4. 17. b. which opinion is not well abridged in title Treſpaſs, 180. Note Reader this difference, That tender upon the Land before a diſtreſs, maketh the diſtreſs tortious; tender after the diſtreſs and before the impounding, maketh the deteiner, and not the taking wrongful; tender after the impounding maketh neither the one nor the other wrongful; for then it comes too late, becauſe that then the cauſe is put to the tryal of the Law, to be there determined. But after that the Law hath determined it, and the Avowant hath return irrepleviſable, yet if the Plaintif maketh him a tender, he may have an Action of Detinue for the the Detcinor after: or he may upon ſatisfaction acknowledged in Court have a Writ for the Delivery of his Goods: and therewith agreeth the ſaid Book of 13 H. 4. 17. 14 H. 4. 4. Regiſter Judic. 37. 45 E. 3. 9. and all the Books before. Vide 14 E. 4. 4. b. 2 H. 6. 12. 22 H. 6. 57. Dr. and Student, lib. 2. cap. 27. Br. Diſtreſs 72. and Pilkinton's Caſe, in the Fifth Part of my Reports: and ſo all the Books which prima facie ſeem to diſagree, are upon full and pregnant reaſon well reconciled and agreed.

Mich. 8 Jacobi. In the Common Pleas.

Edward Altham's Caſe.

Thomas Lawrence, and Mercy his Wife, brought a Writ of Dower againſt Edward Altham, and Margaret his Wife, and make Demand to be endowed of the third part of 100 acres of Land, 10 acres of Meadow, and 60 acres of Paſture, with their appurtenances, in Goldsfield, in the County of Eſſex, as the Dower of the ſaid Mary, of the endowment of Thomas Naſh the elder, her late Huſband: The Tenant pleaded in barr, That the ſaid Thomas Naſh was ſeiſed of the Tenements aforeſaid in Fee, and held the ſame in Socage. And afterwards, 10 Aprilis 1592. by his Will in writing deviſed the ſaid Tenements whereof, &c. to Zachary Naſh his younger Son for the term of his life, and afterwards died thereof ſeiſed, after whoſe death the ſaid Zachary did enter, and was thereof ſeiſed for the term of his life, and the Reverſion of the ſame Tenements did deſcend to Tho. Naſh Son and Heir of the ſaid Thomas the Husband, and afterwards the ſaid Mercy one of the Demandants in her Widowhood when ſhe was ſole, ſcil. 27 Aprilis, 35 Eliz. by her Deed did remiſe, releaſe, and for her, her Heirs, Executors and Adminiſtrators, for ever quite claime to the ſaid Thomas Naſh the Son, all and all manner of Actions, as well real as perſonal, Sutes, Quarrels and Demands whatſoever, which the ſaid Mercy or her Executors ever had or have, then had or have, or at any time after could have againſt the ſaid Thomas Naſh the Son, by reaſon of any Thing, Cauſe, or Deed whatſoever from the beginning of the World unto the day of the date of the ſaid Deed of Releaſe: And afterwards the ſaid Thomas the Son died ſeiſed of the ſaid Reverſion; after whoſe death the ſame deſcended to the ſaid Margaret, the Wife of the ſaid Edw. Altham, the other of the Tenants; and afterwards the ſaid Zachary died, and the ſaid Margaret entred, &c. And the Demandants did demand Oyer of the Deed, which was read to them in theſe words, Omnibus Chriſti fidelibus ad quos, &c. as appeareth before at large. And the Demandants did reply and ſay, That the ſaid Thomas Naſh the Father was ſeiſed in his demeſn as of Fee, as well of the Tenements whereof, &c. in Gosfield aforeſaid, as of two Meſſuages, and 200 acres of Lands in Wethersfield aforeſaid, and by his Will in writing deviſed the ſaid Tenements whereof, &c. in Gosfield to the ſaid Zachary Naſh as is aforeſaid, and afterwards died; after whoſe death the ſaid Tho. Naſh the Son entred into the ſaid Tenements in Wethersfield as Son and Heir, and was ſeiſed thereof in Fee: and the ſaid Zachary did enter into the ſaid Lands in Gosfield, &c. and that the ſaid Zachary was at the time of the death of the ſaid Thomas the Father, of the age of three years; for which the ſaid Mercy, as Gardian by Nurture, did enter into the ſaid Tenements in Gosfield, and that afterwards, and before the ſaid Releaſe, it was concluded and agreed by the ſaid Mercy when ſhe was ſole, and the ſaid Thomas Naſh the Son, That the ſaid Mercy ſhould releaſe to the ſaid Thomas Naſh the Son all her Dower of the Tenements in Wethersfield aforeſaid, &c. And that the ſaid Thomas the Son ſo ſeiſed of the ſaid Tenements in Wethersfield, and the ſaid Mercy ſo poſſeſſed of the Tenements in Gosfield, ſhe made the ſaid Releaſe, &c. And afterwards the ſaid Zachary died, &c. (upon which the Tenants did demurr in Law.) And in this caſe two Queſtions were moved and argued at the Bar and Bench. The firſt was, If the ſaid Releaſe made by the Wife to him in the Reverſion expectant upon an Eſtate for life, ſhall extinguiſh her Dower. The ſecond was, If the ſaid forein Concord and Agreement of the Parties ſhall qualifie the force of any of the words of the Releaſe. As to the firſt, The ſaid Deed of Releaſe was divided into three parts; in the firſt was conſidered the words of the Releaſe; in the ſecond, the words of Qualification; and in the third, the words of Relation. As to the words of the Releaſe they appear to be of two ſorts, the one general, the other ſpecial: The general do contain four words, Actions, Sutes, Quarrels, and Demands. The ſpecial do contain three, Dower, Title, and Action of Dower. The words of Qulification are, Mihi contingent per mortem dicti Thomæ nuper viri mei, de aliquibus terris & tenementis ſuis in Wethersfield præd. The words of Relation or Relative words are, quæ vel quas ego præfat. Marcia, vel executores mei verſus ipſum Thomam, &c. unquam habui, habeo, ſeu quovis modo in futurum habere potero ratione alicujus rei, &c. As to the firſt word (Actiones,) It was reſolved, That in this caſe the Releaſe of all Actions real to Thomas the Son, having but a Reverſion expectant upon a Freehold, did not extinguiſh the Dower, becauſe that Actio eſt jus proſequendi in judicio quod alicui debetur, as it is deſcribed in Dyer 4 & 5 Ph. & Mar. 217. out of Bracton, lib. 3. cap. 1. And the Wife cannot follow againſt Tho. [b] the Son, to recover her Dower by Judgement, becauſe he is not Tenant to the Præcipe, nor can render Dower to her, for at the time of the Releaſe Zachary was Tenant of the Freehold, and Littl. chap. Releaſe, 115. holdeth, That in Actions real, which ought to be ſued againſt the Tenant of the Freehold, if the Tenant hath a Releaſe of actions reals of the Demandant, made to him before the Writ brought, and he pleadeth the ſame, It is a good Plea for the Demandant to ſay, that he who pleadeth the Plea had nothing in the Freehold at that time of the releaſe made, for then he had not cauſe to have any Action real againſt him. And therefore Coke Chief Juſtice ſaid, That the opinion in 14 Hen. 6. 11. was of great doubt, ſcil. That if one releaſeth to him in the Reverſion expectant upon an Eſtate for life all Actions real, and afterwards the Tenant for life is impleaded, and prayeth in aid of him in the Reverſion, or voucheth him, or is received, in theſe caſes (as it is there ſaid) although that the Præcipe be not begun againſt him; yet foraſmuch as by the Receipt or Voucher, he is become Tenant to the Præcipe of him who made the Releaſe, and ſhall be bound by the Judgement, he ſhall have the advantage to plead the Releaſe of all Actions real: But the Doubt is, becauſe that at the time of the Releaſe made he had not cauſe (as Littleton ſaith) to have any action againſt him: But without queſtion after Receipt or Entry into the Warranty by the Vouchee, a Releaſe by the Demandant to the Tenant by receipt, or the Vouchee, is good, becauſe the one and the other at the time of the Releaſe made was Tenant in Law to the Demandant: but a Releaſe to them by a Stranger is not good: Vide 7 E. 3. 46. 18 E. 3. 12. 8 H. 4. 5. 7 E. 4. 13. 20 H. 6. 29. 22 H. 6. 12. 5 H. 7. 41. Litt. 114. b. Vide the Firſt Part of my Reports 87. & lib. 3. fol. 29. But if the Wife had releaſed totum jus, all her Right to him in the Reverſion, her Dower had been extinct, becauſe that her Dower doth accrue to the Demandant, not only out of the Eſtate for life, but alſo out of the Reverſion. And that was affirmed for good Law, as well at the Barr by both Parties, as at the Bench, according to the book of 16 Edw. 3. cited in Hoe's Caſe, in the Fifth Part of my Reports: For when the Right which is the Foundation and the Principal is releaſed, by conſequence the Action, which is but a mean to recover it, ſcil. that is, the Right of proſecuting is alſo releaſed. And the ſame appeareth in 9 H. 6. 47. 10 H. 4. 6. 21 H. 7. 23. 19 H. 6. 4. and therefore (Right) is well divided in Plow. Com. in Nichols Caſe, 487. where it appeareth, that a Right is ſix fold, ſcil. 1. A Right of recovering, that is, of proſecuting. 2. Right of entring. 3. Right of having. 4. Right of retaining. 5. Right of perceiving. 6. Right of poſſeſſing. And therefore when a man releaſeth all his Right generally, all his Rights are thereby releaſed; But if the Diſſeiſee releaſeth to the Diſſeiſor all Actions, that is, Right of recovering or proſecuting in Judgement, his Right of Entry is not thereby releaſed: For when a man hath divers means to come to his Right, he may releaſe one of them ſpecially, and yet take benefit of the other. And therewith Littl. agreeth 115. b. and 19 Aſſ. p. 3. 19 H. 6. 4. 21 H. 6. 23. 21 H. 7. 23. But when a man hath not any means to come to the Land but by way of Action, there if he releaſeth all Actions, his Right incluſively by Judgment of Law is gone, becauſe by his own Act he hath barred himſelf of all means and remedy to recover or attain thereunto: For a Releaſe of all advantages upon accompt is a good Barr in an Action of Debt upon the accompt. 9 E. 4. 49. And therefore if the Diſſeiſee doth releaſe all Actions to the Heir of the Diſſeiſor, thereby his Right in Judgment of Law is gone. But if the Heir of the Diſſeiſor maketh a Leaſe for life, the Remainder in fee, and the Diſſeiſee doth releaſe to the Tenant for life all Actions which he hath againſt him, and afterwards the Tenant for life dieth, the Diſſeiſee notwithſtanding this Releaſe ſhall have an Action againſt him in the Remainder, for he doth releaſe but the Action, and the Act in Law will never extend the Act of the Party farther than his expreſs words. As if the Lord diſſeiſeth his Tenant, and maketh a Leaſe for life, this Releaſe in Law ſhall be but for the life of the Leſſee; and ſo it is true, that Fortior & potentior eſt diſpoſitio Legis quam hom'. Ipſe etiam Leges cupiunt ut jure regantur. But if the Diſſeiſee releaſeth all Actions to the Diſſeiſor, and afterwards the Diſſeiſor dieth ſeiſed, and afterward the Diſſeiſee dieth, there a Writ deſcendeth to the Heir of the Diſſeiſee, becauſe that, notwithſtanding the Releaſe, a Right remaineth. Vide 21 H. 6. 1. the opinion of Newton: And it was obſerved, That an Action is a Right of proſecuting in Judgment, and therefore by the Judgment the Action is determined; for the Judgment is the end of the Action (jus proſequendi in judicio) and therefore a Releaſe of all Actions is no Bar of Executions; and therewith agreeth 26 H. 6. Execution 7. and Br. Releaſes 87. and 19 H. 6. 4. and Littl. 116. b. But in a Scire facias grounded upon a Judgment, a Releaſe of all Actions is a good Plea, becauſe he ſhall have a new Judgement; and therefore there it may be well ſaid, jus proſequendi in judicio; And therewith agreeth 18 E. 4. 7. Then the words farther are, quod alicui debetur, that is, which is due to any, ſo that by releaſe of all Actions real and perſonal, all Actions are only releaſed in which the Plaintiff ſhould recover any thing in the realty or the perſonalty which is due to him, which is included in theſe words, quod ſibi debetur. And therefore if a man be outlawed in a perſonal Action by Proceſs upon the Original, and bringeth a Writ of Error, and he pleadeth againſt him a Releaſe of all Actions perſonal, the ſame is no Plea; for by the ſaid Action he ſhall recover nothing which is due to him, but he ſhall only reverſe the Outlawrie or diſcharge himſelf of his diſability. So that the ſaid Writ of Error doth not agree with the ſaid deſcription of an Action; for it is not jus proſequendi in judicium quod ſibi debetur: But in ſuch caſe a Releaſe of Writ of Error is a good Plea: And therewith Littleton agreeth, 106. b. and the Book in 11 Hen. 4. 6. where the Caſe was, Treſcullard brought a Writ of Error againſt F. Son and Heir of John Penros, upon a Judgement had againſt him in a Writ of Rediſſeiſin, at the Suit of the ſaid John Penros, and alſo of an Outlawry thereupon had againſt him for that cauſe, and aſſigned two Errors; one becauſe the Sheriff took the enqueſt in the Town, and not upon the Land, according to the Statute. 2. Becauſe the Sheriff made a Precept to one Bayly to ſumtnon the Jury, who returned a pannel, which was removed as parcel of the Record; and the Sheriff took the Enqueſt by ſome who were not returned by the Baily. And there Hull, as to the firſt Error ſaid, That if the Sheriff cauſe the Jury to view the Waſte, he may take the Enqueſt at another place, ſo here. And as to the ſecond Error he ſaid, That the Sheriff may vary from the return of the Baily; for the Sheriff himſelf is the perſon who maketh the

Array,

Array, who is also a Judge in this case. Gascoign, If the Sheriff had not made the Precept, and the Return by the Baily had not been made parcel of the Record, it should be as you say; but he hath sent this Return as parcel of the Record, whereby he affirmeth the Return of the Baily; and if he had made Process against the Jury by Habeas corpora, and had taken the Enquest by others, the same is Error, which Huls granted; and Rolf of Councel with the Defendant in the Writ of Error pleaded, that after the Judgement the Plaintiff in the Writ of Error should not be received to assign Error, for after the Judgement the Plaintiff in the Writ of Error, by his Deed which is here, did release to the said John Penros who recovered in the Writ of Redisseisin all his right in the Land, and all Actions and Demands; and although that both the Errors were assigned in the principal Record, and thereof by the Release he is stopped to assign Error; and although the Outlawry was good in Process, yet because the Record and the Judgement are the original of the Process of the Outlawry; therefore if there be Defect in the Original Judgement, the Outlawry which is also depending upon it, is also reversible by Gascoign, (which Hulls affirmed) for which cause he did reverse the Utlagarie, notwithstanding the Release. Which Judgement agreeth with Littleton, and is worthy observation in the principal point of Judgement. So if the body of a man condemned in Debt be in Execution, and the Plaintiff releaseth to him the Debt, and all Executions, and the Defendant releaseth to the Plaintiff all Actions, yet upon the Release of the Plaintiff, he shall have an Audita querela; for thereby he shall recover nothing, but shall discharge his body of Imprisonment. But if the Plaintiff after Judgement release to the Defendant all Actions, and afterwards his body is taken in Execution, he shall not have an Audita querela thereupon, for an Execution is no Action, as hath before been said; and therewith agreeth 11 H. 4. Release 53. Also it was observed, That upon these words, (quod alicui debetur,) That in some case a Debt or Duty shall be barred by a Release of all Actions, although that no Action at that time lieth for the Debt: As if a man be bounden to another in a certain sum to be paid at the Feast of Saint Michael next following, if the Obligee before the Feast releaseth to the Obligor all Actions, he shall be barred for ever of the Duty, for it is debitum presently, although it be not presently payable. And therefore, if one be bounden to another in 40 li. to be paid at the Four usual Feasts of the year, and three of the Feasts are past, in this Case for 30 li. there is debitum & solvend' also, and yet the Obligee shall not have an Action of Debt till the last Feast be past, and notwithstanding that a Release of all Actions before the last Feast shall discharge the whole; But if a man leaseth his Land unto another for term of years, rendring 40 li. rent, to be paid at the Four usual Feasts by equal portions, in this case if one Feast be past, he shall have an Action of Debt presently, and shall not tarry till all the days be past, for there the Duty doth accrue upon the receiving of the Profits of the Land, and till the Feast incurred in which it is to be paid, there is neither debitum nor paiment, and therefore there a Release of all Actions before the Feast is no Bar, but in respect of the several perception of the Profits of the Land, the Rent after every Feast is demandable by Action of Debt: And there study the cause of difference made in Littl. 117. (which was never added by Littleton himself) is well explained. And therewith agreeth 7 H. 6. 26. 45 E. 3. 8. Lit. 5 E. 4. 41. 13 H. 4. Avowrie 240. Vide 3 Ma. Dyer 113. 5 Ma. Dyer 108. upon Assumpsit or Covenant in which Damages are to be recovered, an Action lieth after the first day, and F. N. B. 267. and 16 E. 3. Fieri fac. 4. That upon a Recognizance, which is a Judgement in Law, Execution lieth after the first day, and so all the Books are well reconciled and agreed; for which Cause it was concluded in the Case at Bar, That by the Release of all Actions made to him in the Reversion, the Dower of the Wife was not barred, because that at the time of the Release she had no cause of Action against him. As to this word (Querelas) it is to know, that (Querels) do extend not only to Actions as well real as personal, as it is holden in 9 E. 4. 44. but also to the Causes of Actions and Sutes, as it is holden in 39 H. 6. 9. So that by release of all Querels not only Actions depending in Sute, but Causes of Action and Sute also are released. And so it is where one doth release to another all Actions, not only Actions depending, but also Causes of actions are released. Vide 35 H. 6. 57. 4 & 5 Phil. & Mar. 117. b. Trinit. 4 Eliz. Rott. 1027. And this word Querela is derived à querendo, unde etiam Querens who is the Plaintiff, and Querels, Controversies and Debates are Synonima, and of one signification. And for this word (Sectas) it is to know that by Release of all Sutes Executions are barred, for none shall have an Execution without Sute and Prayer; and therewith agreeth 9 H. 6. 4. 26 H. 6. Execution 7. and Br. Releases 87. So by Release of all Duties, as well Executions as Actions are released. But a Release of Sute or Querel is not in this Case any Barr of Dower, no more then by a Release of them, a Covenant before the Breach thereof is released, because that the Covenantee hath not Cause of action or sute before the Covenant broken. As to this word (titulum) (which is mentioned in the particular Case) it hath two significations, one properly and strictly, as for a Title for which no Action lieth, as for a Condition broken, or upon Alienation in Mortmain, &c. and so it is taken in Plow. Com. in Nichols Case, 484. In another signification it is taken largely, and in this sense, Titulus est justa causa possidendi quod nostrum est, and signifieth the Title which one hath to Land, as by Fine, Feoffement, or by Descent, &c. And therefore when the Plaintiff maketh a Title in an Assize, the Tenant may say, that the Assize came upon the Title, which is as much as to say upon the particular Conveyance, &c. which he maketh to the Land, &c. and it is called Titulus à tuendo, because by the same he defendeth his Land, & plerumque constat ex munimentis quæ muniant & tuentur causam. By Release of all Title to Land, &c. all his Right is extinct, for it shall be taken strongest against him, and in the largest sense. So when a man hath Title in the proper Lease, either by a Condition, or by an Alienation in Mortmain, the Release of all his Right doth extinct this Title, for he hath a Right of possessing; and therewith agreeth 6 H. 7. 8. a. And the English Poet saith,

For true it is, that neither fraud nor might
Can make a title where there wanteth right.

The laſt of the four general words in the Deed is (demanda) quod eſt vocabulum artis: And if one doth releaſe to another all Demands, the ſame is (as Littleton ſaith, 117. a.) the beſt Releaſe to him to whom the Releaſe is made, that he can have, and ſhall enure moſt to his advantage; for thereby not only all Demands, but alſo all Cauſes of demand are releaſed. And there are two manner of Demands, ſcil. in Deed, and in Law; in Deed, as in every Præcipe there is an expreſs Demand, and thereupon in real Actions he is called Demandant; in Law, as every Entry into Land, diſtreſs for Rent, taking or ſeiſure of Goods, and the like acts in Pais, which may be done without any words, are Demands in Law. And as a Releaſe of Sutes is larger and more beneficial than a Releaſe of Querels, or of Actions; ſo a Releaſe of all Demands is more large and beneficial than any of them, for thereby is releaſed all that by the other is releaſed, and more. By Releaſe of all Demands, all Frank-tenements and Inheritances executory are releaſed, as Rents, and the like, &c. 20 Aſſ. p. 5. 14 H. 8. 9, 10. By Releaſe of all Demands all Executions are releaſed, 26 H. 6. Execution 7. 19 H. 6. 4. Litt. 117. 40 Ed. 3. 51. by Releaſe of all Demands to the Diſſeiſor, the Right of Entry to the Land, and all that is contained in it is releaſed, 6 H. 7. 15. So it is reſolved by all the Judges in Chauncy's Caſe, 34 H. 8. br. Releaſe 90. that he who releaſeth all Demands excludeth himſelf from all Actions, Entries and Seiſures. Litt. cap. Warranty 170. holdeth, That if Tenant in tail doth enfeoff his Uncle, who enfeoffeth another in Fee with Warranty, if afterwards the Feoffee by his Deed releaſeth to his Uncle all manner of Warranties, or all manner of real Covenants, or all manner of Demands, by ſuch Releaſe the Warranty (which is a Covenant real and executory) is extinct, and the reaſon of all the ſame was, becauſe that by Releaſe of all Demands all the means and remedies, and the cauſes of them which any one hath to Lands, Tenements, Goods and Chattels are extinct; and by conſequence the right and intereſt to the thing it ſelf. For which cauſe in the Caſe at Barr it was reſolved, That by the Releaſe of all Demands to him in the reverſion, if the Deed of Releaſe had not gone farther, the Dower of the ſaid Marcy had been barred. Note, Reader, although that a Releaſe of all Demands be of ſo great extent, yet it doth not extend to ſuch Writs, by which nothing is demanded neither in Fact, nor in Law, but lie only to retain the Plaintiff by way of diſcharge, and not by way of demand, as appeareth before by the Judgement in Treſcullard's Caſe, 11 H. 4. 6. where a Releaſe of all Demands is no Barr in a Writ of Error to reverſe an Outlawrie, and ſo of the like. Vide 40 E. 3. 22. 13 R. 2. Avowrie 89. 18 E. 3. 59. 14 H. 4. 4. &c. where by Releaſe of all Demands future incidents are releaſed, and where not. And ſee Com. 484. in Nichols Caſe for this word (intereſt.) Now as to the ſecond part of the Deed, ſcil. to the words of qualification, it was reſolved, That as well the firſt words, as the ſubſequent words ſpecial, extend only to releaſe all Actions, Sutes, Quarels, Demands, Title and Dower, &c. de aliquibus terris & tenementis ſuis in Wethersfield, and not to any Lands or Tenements in Goſfield, for the ſaid latter words,
[b] mihi contingent per mortem dicti Thomæ, &c. do qualifie the ſaid general words and do reſtrain all the firſt words to the Lands or Tenements in Wethersfield, and that for three Reaſons: 1. Becauſe that all the ſaid three parts of the Deed, ſcil. the words of Releaſe, the words of Qualification, and the words of Relation are but one point and one ſentence; for this conjunction (necnon) doth conjoin the general words to the words of qualification, and the relative words refer to all the words, as well general as ſpecial, and alſo to the words of qualification. 2. If the general words ſhall ſtand without any qualification, then the ſpecial words ſhall be altogether vain and of no effect, & mala expoſitio eſt quæ corrumpit textum. The third and the principal reaſon is upon a Maxim and Principle in Law, ſc. Quando carta continet generalem clauſulam, poſteaque deſcendit ad verba ſpecialia, quæ clauſulæ generali ſunt conſentaneæ, interpretanda eſt carta ſecundum verba ſpecialia. The ſame rule almoſt word for word is put and argued on both ſides. Vide 7 E. 3. 10. a. Margery Mortimer's Caſe, ſc. where a Deed ſpeaketh by general words, and afterwards deſcendeth to ſpecial words, if the ſpecial words agree to the general words, the Deed ſhall be intended according to the ſpecial words: As if a man grant a Rent in manerio de D. percipiend. in 100 Acres of Land, parcel of the ſame Manor, with clauſe of Diſtreſs in the 100 acres, the rent ſhall iſſue out of the 100 acres only, and the general words ſhall be conſtrued according to the ſpecial words: ſo it is there alſo ſaid, If a man granteth a Rent, (and goeth no farther) theſe general words ſhall create an Eſtate for life, but if the Habendum be for years, the ſame doth qualifie the general words; and all this appeareth in the ſaid Book of 7 E. 3. So if a man giveth Lands to one and his Heirs, Habendum to him and the Heirs of his body, he ſhall have but an Eſtate in tail, and no Fee expectant; for the Habendum doth qualifie the general words precedent; and therewith agreeth 35 Aſſ. p. 14. 37 Aſſ. p. 5. Perkins 35. b. againſt the opinion obiter in 21 H. 6. 24. But if a man giveth Lands in the Premiſes to one and the Heirs of his body, Habendum to him and his Heirs, he hath an Eſtate tail, and a Fee-ſimple expectant; for that ſtandeth upon another Rule and Principle of Law, ſcil. generalis clauſula non porrigitur ad ea quæ antea ſpecialiter ſunt comprehenſa: And therefore when the Deed at the firſt doth contain ſpecial words, and afterwards concludes in general words, both words as well general as ſpecial ſhall ſtand: And it is well ſaid in 35 H. 8. Dyer 56. ſubſequent words may qualifie and abridge, but not de-[*155] ſtroy the general words precedent. Vide 33 H. 8. fol. 50. 21 Aſſ. p. 10. & 2 E. 3. 33. b. To the laſt part of the Deed, ſcil. the relative words, (quæ vel quas,) &c. It was reſolved, that they refer as well to Actions, &c. and Demands, as to the ſpecial words, for it ſhould be againſt reaſon that they ſhould refer to general words, which are more remote, and not to the words of qualification which are immediate, and next to them: And the ſame is ſo clear and perſpicuous of it ſelf,

that it is not worthy any argument, or proof, to confirm it. For the ſecond Point of the caſe it was reſolved, That the ſaid forein and collateral Averrement out of the ſaid Deed was not of any force or effect in Law; for every Deed doth conſiſt upon two parts, ſcil. matter in Fact, and upon the Conſtruction of the Law. Matter of Fact is to be added by the Party, and triable by the Jurors: The other, being matter in Law, is to be diſcuſſed by the Judges of the Law, and quemadmodum ad quæſtionem facti non reſpondent Judices; ita ad quæſtionem juris non reſpondent Juratores. And therefore if A. levieth a Fine to William his Son, to have and to hold to him and his Heirs, upon this Fine the Judge cannot make queſtion for any matter of Law; but now the Party cometh and addeth matter in Fact; and ſaith, That A. hath two Sons named William, an elder, and a younger, and his intent was to levy the Fine to William the younger, this Averrement out of the Fine is good of this matter of fact, which well ſtands with the words of the Fine, and ſhall be tried by the Country; and therewith agreeth 47 E. 3. 16. But if a man by Deed giveth Goods to one of the Sons of I. S. who hath diverſe Sons, here he ſhall not averr which Son he intended; for by Judgement of Law upon this Deed, the Deed is void for the incertainty, which cannot be helped by Averment. Vide 11 E. 4. 3. So if a man levy a Fine of the Manor of S. or of the manor of D. to two and their Heirs, and in truth there is the Manor of North S. and South S. or great D. and little D. in this caſe iſſue may be taken out of which Manor the Conuſor intended to paſs, for the ſame is matter of fact not apparent in the Fine, whereof the Judge cannot take Conuſans; but it ſtands well with the Fine, and ſhall be tryed by the Jury, and therewith agreeth 12 H. 7. 7. 26 H. 8. 6. a. 19 E. 2. Grants 93. but where the words are in the limitation of the Eſtate to two & hæredibus, the ſame is apparent in the Fine, and by Judgement of Law theſe words hæredibus are uncertain and void, as it is adjudged in 22 H. 15. Vide 19 H. 73. 20 H. 6. 35. 22 E. 4. 6. b. and no Averment debors can make that good, which upon conſideration of the Deed is apparent to be void. So if a man maketh a Feoffement to one and his Heirs, no Averment can be that the intent of the Party was, that the Feoffee ſhould have but an Eſtate to him and the Heirs of his body, for ſuch Averment is againſt the Judgement of the Law, which appeareth to the Judges upon the view of the Deed; ſo in the Caſe at Barr, if the general word (demanda) had in Law by the Judgement of the Judges upon the conſideration of the whole Deed of Releaſe barred her of her Dower, no forein or collateral Averment out of the Deed could qualifie or abridge the force and operation of the ſaid word, but ought to be qualified by apt words contained in the Deed, as in this caſe it was. And afterwards Judgement was given for the Demandant. [b]

Mich. 8 Jacobi Regis.

Arthur Blackamor's Caſe.

AN original Writ was brought in London: Jacobus Dei gratia Angliæ, &c. Præcipe Leventhorp Frank nuper de Hatfield Brodock in Comitatu Eſſex generoſo, alias dict. Leventhorp Frank de Hatfield Brodock in Comitatu Eſſex generoſo quod reddat Arthuro Blackamore, John Whittingham, 100 li. quas ei debet, & injuſte detinet, returnable menſe Michaelis; the Entry of the Capias, Alias, & Pluries, was according to the ſaid original; but in the Exigent and Proclamation, and the Entry thereof, the Defendant (as the truth was) was named Knight, and in Eaſter Term 8 Jac. he put in a Superſedeas by the name of Knight, and ſo the Plaintiff did declare againſt him: And the Defendant did imparl til Trinity Term following, in which Term Judgement was given againſt him by default by the name of Knight. And this Mich. Term, a Writ of Error was brought, and it was moved by Houghton Serjeant, that the ſaid original might be amended, becauſe that John Bunbury the Plaintiffe's Atturney drew a note or title of the Writ in this form; London. Leventhorp Frank, nuper de Hatfield in Comitatu Eſſex, militi, alias dict. Leventhorp Frank de Hatfield Brodock in Comitatu Eſſex generoſo, &c. as above, and delivered this note or title to the Curſitor of London, and he miſtook it in this, that where in the firſt name he ought to be named Knight, in the firſt name the Curſitor named him Gent. as he was named in the Obligation, and the ſame was the true caſe, as appeareth by Examination of the Curſitor, and of the ſaid Atturny upon their Oaths, and upon view of the roll or title in full Court. And whether the ſame was amendable or not by this Court, the original being out of another Court, ſcilicet, the Chancery, was the queſtion. And the Caſe was well argued at the Barr by Councel of the part of the Plaintiff, and on the Defendant's part. And at length it was reſolved by the whole Court, That the Record ſhould be amended by the Curſitor, and made according to the note or title delivered by the Atturney to him. And for the better underſtanding of the Law, and of the true reaſon of the rule of our Books in this and other caſes of amendments. 1. It is to ſee if in this caſe the ſaid original Writ were amendable by the Common Law, or by any Statute, and by what Statute. And it was reſolved, That an original Writ was not amendable by the Common Law in the caſe of a common perſon. Vide 13 E. 3. Amendment 63. which was before any Statute made concerning Amendments, &c. and 16 E. 3. Vouchet 49. 29 E. 3. Amendment 68. But in the King's Caſe, in a Quare Impedit, where the Writ of Quare Impedit was præſantere, for præſentare after exception taken to it, and before anſwer, by the advice of the Chancellor (out of which Court this Writ iſſued) and of the [156] [b]

Judges of the Kings Bench, the writ was amended in the Chancery, and the Defendant was put to anſwer to it by the award of the Court. Vide 4 H. 6. 16. & 40 Aſſ. p. 26. And where there appeareth in 20 E. 4. 7. 10 H. 7. 25. diverſity of opinions, whether there were any amendment at the Common Law or not, It is without queſtion, That at the Common Law, a fault of entry of a Continuance, or of an Eſſoign, which was the miſpriſion of the Court it ſelf, in the form of entry was amendable by the Court; as it appeareth by 5 Edw. 3. 25. where W. brought a Præcipe againſt B. who vouched to warranty C. who entred into the warranty and pleaded to iſſue: and a Venire facias iſſued, and the Jury was reſpited; and in the Roll it was entred, Jur. inter B. & C. (which was between the Tenant and the Vouchee) in ſuch a plea, ponitur in reſpect. where the entry ought to be, Jur. inter W. & C. quem B. vocavit ad warrant. and becauſe this miſpriſion of entry in the Roll was taken to be the default of the Court, it was (as in the caſe of an Eſſoign) amended by the Court. So in 10 E. 3. 20. a. The miſpriſion of the Court in the entry of an Eſſoign was amended by the Court. And 12 E. 3. Amendment. 62. acc. which books were before any Statute of Amendment. Vide 2 H. 4. 4. 18 E. 3. Amendment 56. 19 E. 3. tit. Amendment. And at the Common Law, variance in any part of the Record of the Original was amendable by the Common Law, as [157] it is ſaid in 7 H. 4. 45. So by the Common Law, the Judges might amend as well their Judgment, as any other part of the Record, and in the ſame Term, for during the Term the Record is in the breſt of the Judges, and not in the Roll, Vide 7 H. 6. 29. 9 E. 4. 3. 2 H. 3. 11. But at the Common Law, the miſpriſion of Clerks in another Term in the proceſs was not amendable by the Court, for in another Term the Roll is the Record; and therefore by the Statute of 14 E. 3. cap. 6. (which was the firſt Act of Amendment) it is enacted, by the miſpriſion of Clerks in every place whereſoever it be, no proceſs ſhall be annulled or diſcontinued by miſtaking in writing one letter, or one ſyllable too much, or too little, but as ſoon as the thing is perceived by challenge of the party, it ſhall be haſtily amended in due form, &c. But this Statute doth not extend but to amendment of the miſtaking of the Clerk in proceſs to be amended in due form: For 15 E. 3. Amendment 58. which was the next year after the Statute made, in Detinue of 3 writings, by omiſſion of one writing in the Continuance, all the proceeding was diſcontinued, notwithſtanding the new Statute, ſc. 14 E. 3. which gave that the proceſs ſhould be amended, Vide 45 E. 3. 19. And this Statute doth extend to a Judicial writ, or proceſs, as in Treſpaſs the Niſi prius was to the damages of C. l. where the Record was C. l. and the Jury at the Niſi prius found 20 l. and the writ of Niſi prius was amended by force of this Statute, and made C. l. according to the Record, 2 H. 4. Vide 40 E. 3. 15. 36. 19 H. 6. 15. 3 H. 4. 8. & 11. 47 E. 3. 14. 7 E. 4. 15. 9 H. 7. 8. 4 H. 6. 6. But this Statute doth not extend to an Original writ, nor to the writ which is in the nature of an Original, for the ſame is not included within this word (proceſs.) And therefore Finchden ſaith in 41 E. 3. 14. a. if an Original writ want form it is abateable, becauſe the Original is made in one place and pleadable in another; and by conſequence cannot be amended; otherwiſe it is of a Judicial writ. Vide 11 H. 4. 70. A Protection ſhall not be amended in the Common Pleas, becauſe it is made in another Court. So it is holden in 4 H. 6. 4. a. Every Original writ ſhall abate for want of form (as if the Wife be named before the Husband) as well as if it want matter, without any amendment: But a Judicial writ ſhall not abate for want of form, if it have ſufficient matter, 3 H. 4. 4. An Original, or that which is in the nature of an Original ſhall not be amended; and therewith agreeth 29 E. 3. Amendment 68. in Wagams Caſe. 22 E. 4. 47. Vide 8 H. 6. 37. So in 46 E. 3. Amendment 53. in a writ of Entre ſine aſſenſu Capituli brought by an Abbot againſt R. who pleads Non dimiſit, &c. & de hoc ponit ſe ſuper patriam, & prædictus R. ſimiliter; where it ſhould be,
[b] & præd. Abbas ſimiliter, and the Jury was diſcharged, and it was not amended, for it was not within the Statute which gave that the proceſs ſhould be amended in due form; and therefore the parties repleaded. And it is to know, That this word (proceſs,) which is the only word in this Statute which is to be amended, is taken in Law in 2 ſignifications, in one largely, and in another ſtrictly; and in the large ſenſe it is taken for all the proceedings in all real and perſonal actions, and in all Criminal and Common Pleas: & proceſſus derivatur à procedendo ab originali uſque ad finem. Vide Britton 138. And in this ſenſe it is taken in the Regiſter Original 128. a. in the writ De continuando proceſſum poſt mortem Capitalis Juſtic. in a writ of Oyer and Terminer, within which words (proceſſus) as it there appeareth, is included not only the Judicial proceſs, but alſo the Commiſſions, Indictments, Rolls, & alia memoranda: And in another ſenſe this word (proceſſus) is taken more ſtrictly, ſc. for the proceeding after the Original out of the plea Roll before Judgement, and that appeareth in the writ of Error in the Regiſter 216. and F. N. B. the words of which are, Quia in recordo & proceſſu, ac etiam in redditione Judicii, &c. where recordum doth contain the Plea Roll, proceſſus all the proceeding out of it untill the Judgement. See the writ of Certiorari in the Regiſter 167. a. And in this ſenſe all actions real, perſonal, and mixt, and not in Pleas of the Crown, is the ſaid Act of 14 E. 3. to be intended. And the ſame appeareth by the ſaid book in 46 E. 3. Amendment 53. for the miſpriſion was in the Plea Roll, and therefore it was not amended; and 46 E. 3. 19. in Treſpas. diſtreſs iſſued Quindena Trin. retornable Quind. Mich. and the Roll was, de Quinden. Trin. ad Quinden. Hillar. and at Quindena Mich. it was pleaded to iſſue, and found for the Plaintiff, and the Defendant ſhewed this matter in arreſt of Judgment; and the Juſtices would not amend the Roll (which there is called the original) but awarded the parties to plead again. But in 18 E. 3. Amendment 56. the miſtaking was in the entry of the Eſſoign, which was out of the Record or Plea Roll, and the ſame was part of the proceſs, that is, proceeding amendable by the ſaid Act; and that appeareth more fully after. But upon this Statute there were divers opinions in divers points, ſc. If the Juſtices before whom the plea ſhall be depending by adjournment, Error, or otherwiſe (Vide 17 E. 3. Aſſ. p. 2.) ſhall have power to amend amend the miſtaking of the Clerk in proceſs in writing one letter or ſyllable: and alſo, if they might amend it as well after Judgement, as before; and theſe doubts were declared and explained by the Statute of 9 H. 5. cap. 4. & 4 H. 6. cap. 3. to extend to all the Juſtices, and as well after, as before Judgement: And alſo great doubt was conceived upon theſe words, (writing one letter or ſyllable too much or too little,) if a word may be amended: and 40 E. 3. 34. b. Belknap ſaith, That the Statute of 14 E. 3. cap. 6. that a letter or ſyllable too much or too little in a word may be amended, but where there wanteth a word, the Statute ſpeaketh nothing. Thorp, It was heretofore debated here before us, If a word fail in the Record, if it might be amended, as if it had failed but in a ſyllable or letter; and Sir Hugh Green and I went together to the Council, and they were 24 of the Biſhops and Earls, and we demanded of them who made the Statute, if the Record might be amended; and the Archbiſhop, or Metropolitan ſaid, That it was a nice demand, and a vain queſtion of them, if it might be amended or not: For he ſaid, that it might be as well amended in this caſe as if it were but one Letter: for if a letter or ſyllable fail in a word, it is no word; wherefore if all the word fail it may be amended as well as if it failed but of a letter, or of a ſyllable; for there is no more difference in the one caſe then in the other. And 39 E. 3. 21. the Queſtion alſo was, if a word might be amended by the Statute of 14 E. 3. And there Thorp ſaid, That it ſhall be amended by the Statute, for heretofore we were in doubt of it; and becauſe there was diverſity of ſumoſme in a writ, it was brought for the ſame cauſe into a Parliament; and the Lords who made the Statute ſaid, Their meaning was that in all theſe caſes the proceſs ſhould be amended. Note, when it is ſaid in 40 E. 3. That the Juſtices went to Council; it appeareth by 39 E. 3. that they went to the Parliament to know the opinion of thoſe who made the Law, 11 H. 4. 70. In a Præcipe the original was, Mich. de T. and the mean proceſs was, Mich. T. and (de) omitted, and a Protection was caſt by the name of Mich. G. and the main proceſs was amended by the Statute of 14 E. 3. and that a word ſhall be amended, within theſe words letter, or ſyllable, and ſo much the rather, becauſe that (de) is a word and ſyllable alſo; but the Protection was not amended, becauſe it was made in another Court. 7 H. 6. 45. conceiveth, that a tittle ſhall be amended within theſe words, letter or ſyllable. To put out all which doubts, and to enlarge the power of the Juſtices in Amendments, the Statute of 8 H. 6. cap. 12. was made, and the ſame ſtandeth upon 2 general parts, ſc. 1. againſt Corrupting and falſifying of Records, by raſing, enterlining, &c. which Clauſe doth not concern the caſe in Queſtion. 2. againſt the miſtaking of Clerks (by force of which the Amendment was in the caſe at barr) the words of which branch are, And that the Kings Judges of the Courts, and places in which any Record, proceſs, word, plea, warrant of Attorney, writ, (Original, or Judicial, [b] for ſo the Statute ſpeaketh in the firſt clauſe) pannel, or return, which for the time ſhall be, ſhall have power to examine ſuch Record, proceſs, word, plea, warrant of Attorney, writ, pannel, and return by them and by their Clerks, and to reform and amend in affirmance of the Judgment of ſuch Records and proceſſes, all that to them, in their diſcretion, ſeemeth to be the miſpriſion of the Clerks in ſuch Records, proceſs, word, plea, warrant of Attorney, writ, pannel, and return, &c. So that by ſuch miſpriſion of the Clerk, no Judgment ſhall be reverſed, or annulled. Note Reader, where the Act of 14 E. 3. ſpeaketh only of proceſs, this Act of 8 H. 6. is of far greater extent, for it extendeth to proceſs, and to 7 other things, ſc. 1. to any Record, 2. word, 3. plea, 4. warrant of Attorney, 5. to a Writ Original and Judicial, (as appeareth by the firſt branch) 6. pannel, 7. return: ſo that the power of the Juſtices as to amendments is by this Statute greatly enlarged. Alſo, 1. this Statute giveth them power of Examination; 2. of Reformation and Amendment; 3. the Statute expreſſeth the matter they reform and amend; ſc. all that which to them in their diſcretion ſeemeth to be the miſpriſion of Clerks in ſuch Records, proceſs, word, plea, warrant of Attorney, writ, pannel, and return. As to the firſt, they have power to examine ſuch Records, proceſs, &c. in 2 manners: 1. by themſelves; 2. by their Clerks; As to the power of Reformation and Amendment, they have power onely to doe it in affirmance of the Judgments of ſuch Records, and proceſſes; but although that their power be thus enlarged, yet the miſpriſion of the Clerk (as it was in the Act of 14 E. 3.) is onely to be amended. And becauſe that there appeareth prima facie, great incertainty in our books concerning Amendments, (whereas in truth there are not any more certain Rules in the Law, if they are well obſerved and underſtood, then in caſe of Amendment) it ſhall be neceſſary briefly to collect them out of the books at large touching the Conſtruction of this Statute. And becauſe the principal Caſe was of the amendment of an Original; 1. It ſhall be ſhewed in what caſes the miſpriſion of the Clerk in Original writs ſhall be amended within this Statute, and in what not. Every Original writ ſtandeth upon 2 parts; one upon an Artificial form, according to the Regiſter, and that the Clerk ought to doe by his knowledge and skill, without any inſtruction of the party: the other upon the true inſtruction of the party, of the truth and particularity of his caſe, requiſite to the compoſing of the writ, and that the Clerk cannot doe without the party: ſo that an Original writ may be vitious, by miſpriſion either of the Clerk, [159] or of the party: By miſpriſion of the Clerk in 5 manners: 1. by miſtaking of the legal form; 2. by miſtaking of one word which is not any Latine for another; 3. by omiſſion or addition of words; 4. by miſtaking of the Record, ſpecialty, writing, copy, inſtruction, note or titling of the writ delivered to the Clerk, or taken by the Clerk for framing of the Writ; 5. by miſtaking of the Clerk or Officer, in negligent keeping, or voluntary defacing, &c. of a Record, &c. And becauſe that the Caſe of Amendment in the caſe at barr was not for any miſtaking of the Obligation upon which the writ was grounded (for he hath purſued the ſame in all) in which Obligation the Defendant was named Gentleman, as he was in the writ; But the miſpriſion of the Clerk of the Chancery was, in that he did not follow the note or inſtruction in writing delivered to him, ſc. to name the Defendant Knight in primo nomine, becauſe that after the making of the Obligation, he was made Knight: This difference is firſt to be obſerved: That if the Original writ wanteth legal form, the the ſame is ſuch a miſpriſion which is not amendable by this Act. For the Officers and Clerks of the Chancery are bounden by the duty of their offices to have skill and knowledge in the true form of Original writs (which are the foundations upon which the whole Law doth depend) and therefore, if defect of form of Original writs ſhall be neglected, Ignorance, the Mother of Error and Barbarouſneſs, will follow, and in the end all will be involved in Confuſion, in ſecluſion of the antient Law of the Land; for in this Caſe it is true, forma dat eſſe; and therefore it was never the meaning of the makers of the Act within theſe general words, (miſpriſion of the Clerk in Original writ) to extend the ſame to miſpriſion of the form of the Original writ, which would introduce ſo great inconvenience; and therewith agreeth a Notable Judgment, in 22 E. 4. 21 & 22. in Eliz. Hatleys Caſe, where a writ of Debt was brought againſt Executors for a debt due by the Teſtator in the Debet & Detinet, where by the form of the Regiſter it ought to be in the Detinet only, and there it is reſolved by the whole Court, that it ſhall not be amended; for the difference is taken and reſolved, between Negligence, and want of knowledge of the Clerk, or negligence, that is, the overſight of the Clerk in miſtaking, as if he hath an Obligation or Copy of an Obligation, and doth not follow it, the miſtaking, that is, overſight and negligence in this caſe, and in all like caſes, ſhall be amended by the Statute of 8 H. 6. But ignorance, or not knowing, (for ſcientia ſciolorum eſt mixta ignorantia) of the Clerk in the legal form, and courſe of the Original, is not a miſpriſion amendable

[b] by the ſaid Statute. So if a writ be Præcipe quod ſolvat, for Præcipe quod reddat, or Warr. Chart. unde pactum habet, for unde Chartam habet, theſe are faults of form, and therefore are not amendable by this Act. And for the firſt part of this difference, as to the Copy of the Obligation, it is holden in 38 H. 6. 4. That where the Clerks of the Chancery uſe to take titling of the matter which the party ſhews them, If the party to have a Formedon in the deſcender ſhew to the Clerk how that the Land deſcended to one as ſon and heir of the donors, and the Clerk draweth the writ, that the Land deſcended to him as ſon, (and omitteth heir) if the Clerk ſheweth his titling and will teſtify the ſame, it ſhall be amended in the Common Pleas, and that is, by the ſaid Statute of 8 H. 6. Vide 22 E. 4. 48. 38 H. 6. 39. & 11 H. 7. 41. b. do agree to the Caſe of Copy. But if the writ wanteth legal form, it is not amendable, Vide 14 H. 4. 10, 11. 27 H. 6. 6. 11 H. 6. 14. 34 H. 6. 26. 28 H. 6. 11. and upon this reaſon it hath been often adjudged after this Statute of 8 H. 6. that falſe Latine in an Original writ ſhall not be amended, becauſe it wanteth legal form, and is to be imputed to the ignorance of the Clerk, 9 H. 7. 16. as bos breve, for boc breve: And the Common Law is Curious in keeping the form of the Regiſter; and therefore it is adjudged in 6 E. 3. 37. That where a treſpaſs done by divers is joynt or ſeveral, at the will of the Plaintiff; yet in an action againſt John Gardien of the Hoſpital of B. and Frere Rob. L. and Frere Rich. F. becauſe that this is the default of the Clerk for fault of form, that theſe Freres are not named Confreres, as it ought to be by the form of the Regiſter, the writ ſhall abate againſt them all, although the Gardien be well named. But in Treſpaſs againſt 2. Miſnoſmer of one of the Defendants ſhall not abate the whole writ, but it ſhall ſtand againſt the other who is well named; For there Herle took the difference, when the Writ doth abate by the plea of the one for want of form, although the others have pleaded to iſſue, the Writ ſhall abate againſt them all; but although that one may abate the Writ for matter in fact, as by reaſon of miſtaking of his name, the Writ ſhall ſtand againſt the others. Vide 2 H. 7. 16. 11 H. 7. 5, 6. 21 H. 7. 31. 7 E. 4. 10. 5 E. 4. 2. 11 Aſſ. 15. 12 Aſſ. p. 14. 27 Aſſ. p. 45. 9 H. 6. 36. 12 E. 3. brev. 670. 12 E. 3. brev. 481. 27 H. 8. 26. b. Plow. Com. in the Aſſiſe of Freſh force.

As to the ſecond manner of miſpriſion in negligent writing of a word which is not any Latine, the ſame is amendable, as imaginavit, for imaginatus eſt, it ſhall be amended, as it is adjudged in 11 H. 6. 3. 17. So was it adjudged in 3 E. 6. as Serjeant Bendloes reporteth, That where in a writ of Aiel the writ was avæ, for aviæ, it was amended.

[160] And as to the third manner of miſpriſion in negligent omiſſion or addition of a thing which it appeareth he himſelf ought to have added, or omitted of Courſe; as for leaving out Dei gratia in the King's Stile, it ſhall be amended, 22 H. 6. 8. So 3 E. 6. as Serjeant Bendloes reporteth, theſe words in a Partitione faciend. (oſtenſur. quare non fecerit) were left out, and was amended. Vide 35 H. 6. 6. 10. 2 H. 7. 11. 9 H. 7. 19. for addition of that which is apparent ought to be left out. But omiſſion, or addition of any thing which altereth the form of the writ, is not amendable, as addition, or omiſſion of Detinet, as it appeareth in 11 H. 6. 14. or addition of debet, as appeareth in 22 E. 4. 21, 22.

As to the fourth manner of miſpriſion, ſc. of the Record or Specialty, &c. See 21 H. 6. 8. 22 H. 6. 43. 37 H. 6. 6. 34. 19 H. 6. Amendment 47. 8 E. 4. 4.

As to the fifth manner of miſpriſion, in negligence of a Clerk or Officer, not in writing, &c. but in negligent keeping of the Records, or in voluntary defacing of them, whereby the Record becomes imperfect, or erronious: in Trinit. 24 Eliz. the Caſe was, That Henry Fitz-allein late Earl of Arundel, in the reign of Queen Mary ſuffered a Common Recovery of divers Mannors, and of Lands and Tenements in the County of Suſſex, and the Original writ upon which the Recovery was had, being greater and broader then the other writs of the ſame file, by the negligence of the Officer through often handling of it, a great part of this writ, which was more ſpacious then the reſt was obliterate, and worn out, ſo that but one Letter of many of the names of divers of the Mannors could be perceived, but the names of the Mannors were truly recited as well in the Count (which always doth briefly recite the writ), as in the Habere facias ſeiſinam? and whether this Original was amendable, or not, was a great Queſtion between Philip Howard Earl of Arundel, cozin and heir of the ſaid Henry Earl of Arundel, and the Lord Lumley, to whom the ſaid Henry Earl of Arundel had conveyed divers of the ſaid Mannors, &c. And to reſolve this Queſtion, Sir Chriſtophe Wray, Wray, Chief Justice of England, Sir Ed. Anderson, Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, Sir Roger Manwood, Chief Baron of the Exchequer, and all the other Justices of England, assembled themselves together. And it was resolved by them all una voce, That the original Writ should be amended according to the other parts of the Record, scil. the Count, and the Habere facias seisinam; and that this misprision and negligence of the Clerk in keeping of the original Writ should be amended by the said Statute of 8 H. 6. for here doth not appear any want of Knowledge in the the Clerk, but misprision and negligence in keeping of the Writ, which is a misprision within the letter and meaning of the Act; and the rather in this Case, because it was in a Common Recovery suffered by assent of the Parties for assurance of Lands. And although it is enacted, That if any [b] Record, or parcel thereof, Writ, Return, Pannel, Process, or Warrant of Atturney in the King's Courts, &c. are voluntarily stoln, carried away, withdrawn, or avoided by any Clerk, that it shall be felony, the same doth not prove, That if the original Writ, or other part of the Record be voluntarily stolen, &c. that the same cannot be supplied and amended by the other parts of the Record: For it was resolved that in both Cases, as well where the Record becometh imperfect and erroneous by voluntary offence of the Clerk, as by his careless negligence, for all is in the general word, Misprision of the Clerk. But if such part of the Record which is so stolen, &c. or which appeareth not, cannot be supplied by the other parts of the Record, nor by any Exemplification made of the Record, then it cannot be amended: And see the first Clause of this Act of 8 H. 6. giveth remedy amongst others, where any subtraction or diminution is of any Record, Process, Warrant of Atturney, Original Writ, &c. And according to this Resolution a Fine was amended of Mich. 8 Jac. as appeareth by the Order and Rule of the Court following.

Crompton. Mich. 8 Jacobi Regis.

Et præd' pes Finis sic de novo rescript. in loco ejusdem affiletur.*

And this briefly shall suffice for amendment of Misprision of the Clerk in an Original Writ. And as to the Case at Bar, the Rule of the Court was in these words: Crompton. Ordinatum est per Cur. hic super auditu Concilii utriusque partis & examinationem Clerici Curfistar. London & Attornat. Quer. [161] super Sacrament. sua in Cur. hic, quod hæc additio (Generoso) nomini Defend. in priori parte Brevis original. de debito 100 li. inde retorn. & affilat. in Banco hic mense Michaelis anno regni Regis nunc septimo, & omnes misprisiones in Recordo & process. ejusd. placiti proinde subsequen. emendentur, & fiant (Militi) secundum instructiones in script. prius deliberat. præfat. Curfistar. viz. præd. Breve original. per præfat. Curfistar. & Recordum, & process. præd. per Philizar. hujus Curiæ.

The next word in the Act of 8 H. 6. is (Record,) and the first part of the Record is the Count; and briefly, a Count which wanteth substance shall not be amended in another Term, as appeareth 7 H. 6. 26. 35 H. 6. 37. 38 H. 6. 1. 7 Ed. 4. 26. 9 Ed. 4. 5. 33 H. 6. 2. Vide 38 H. 6. 33. and 30 H. 8. Br. Amendment 80. for the King's Case.

But it is enacted by the Statute of 36 E. 3. cap. 15. That for the ancient forms and terms of Declarations no man be prejudiced, so that the matter of the Action be fully shewed in the Declaration and the Writ. Vide Eveleighe's Case, 13 Eliz. Dyer 299. by the Statute of 36 E. 3. c. 15. the Declaration having substance shall not abate for form. Vide 28 H. 6. 8. In a Writ brought by John Gargrave against Tho. Beamond, upon an Obligation, and the Obligation was, Noverint, &c. me Thomam Beamond, teneri, &c. Jo. Gargrave (without addition) And the Writ was, Præcipe, &c. quod reddat Johanni Gargrave Armigero, with addition, and it was moved, that it might be amended by the Statute, for it is the misprision of the Clerk: But it was adjudged, That the Writ should abate for this Variance, and shall not be amended as it should if it were on the Defendant's part; For where the surplusage is on the Plaintiffe's part, as well in the Writ as in the Count, a man cannot amend his own Count. And this Judgment was after the said Statute of 8 H. 6. which proveth that the said first Clause of this very Act, which speaketh of addition or diminution, &c. extendeth only to corruption and misdemeanor in addition or diminution, and in vitiating of a Record, and not where it is done in rei veritate, although it be by misprision. Vide 4 E. 4. 14. A space in the Declaration for the place where the Obligation was made, was not amendable in another Term. And this which hath been said of a Count shall suffice.

Other parts of the Record are, Plea in Bar, Replication, &c. And regularly matter of substance in them, and especially matters of Fact shall not be amended in another Term, as omission of Averment, Et hoc paratus est verificare, &c. For in some Cases, as in Avowry, it is not of necessity. But colour, which is of course, and in which there is Misprision of the Clerk, shall [b] be amended. And the Record in another Term may be amended by the paper Book of the Office, for it was the Misprision of the Clerk in the entring of it, and no fault in the Party or his Counsel.

27 H. 6. 6. 10 H. 7. 23, 25. 11 H. 7. 2. 20 H. 6. 18. 27 H. 8. 1. Miſpriſion of a Certificate of a Record upon a Writ of Error ſhall be amended according to the Record, 22 E. 4. 46. & 21 H. 7. 41. But the ſame is by expreſs proviſion by the ſaid Statute of 8 H. 6. for it was the Act of the Judge, which was not amendable by the ſaid Branch of the Act, as ſhall be after ſaid. A thing apparent to be a Miſpriſion, which the Clerk of courſe ought to have added, without any inſtruction of the Party, althought it be in a material Point, ſhall be amended in another Term. As if in Debt brought, the Defendant ſaith, That he oweth him nothing; & de hoc ponit ſe ſuper Patriam, & præd. Defendens ſimiliter; where it ought to be, & præd. Querens ſimiliter, it ſhall be amended by this Act of 8 H. 6. 11 H. 7. 2. acc. which Caſe was not amendable by the Act of 14 E. 3. as it appeareth by the Book in 46 E. 3. before, for the firſt Act ſpeaketh only of Proceſs, and this Act ſpeaketh of Record and Plea. So in an Action brought againſt Sir Roger Townſend, he pleaded in Bar, and concluded, the which matter præd. Johan. is ready to averr, where it ſhould be Rogerus, and it was amended by the advice of all the Juſtices; as it is reported in 11 H. 7. 25. And as to the Writ of Niſi prius, it is to know, That the Miſpriſion of the Clerk of the Treaſury, who writeth it, is alſo amendable by this Statute, and to be made according to the Record, but with this Caution, ſcil. That the Record of Niſi prius have ſufficient matter in it ſelf either expreſſed or implied to give authority to the Juſtices of Niſi prius to try the Iſſue; for they cannot try any Iſſue by force of the Statutes made thereof, without authority given to them by Writ of Niſi prius, and ſo it is adjudged in 11 H. 6. 11. in Debt againſt J. S. Husbandman iſſue was taken, if he were Husbandman die impetrationis Brevis; and the Writ of Niſi prius was, whether he were Husbandman (omitting theſe words, die impetrationis Brevis,) which was the material point of the Iſſue; but the Roll was well, and the Jury paſſed for the Plaintiff, and found that the Defendant was Husbandman à die impetrationis Brevis, and the Writ of Niſi prius could not be amended by the Statute of 8 H. 6. becauſe the Juſtices of Niſi prius have no power to try the Iſſue contained in the Record, becauſe that die impetrationis Brevis was left out in the Niſi prius; and if the Juſtices of Niſi prius had taken the Verdict according to the Iſſue in the Writ of Niſi prius that he was Husbandman generally, without ſaying die impetrationis Brevis, it had been contrary to the Roll; for which cauſe it was awarded, That the Plaintiff ſhould ſue a new Venire facias. But 9 Eliz. Dyer 260, 261. In a Partition by Wotton againſt Anthony Cook and Temple, who appeared, and Temple confeſſed the [162] Partition, and Judgment given accordingly, ſed ceſſet executio. Cook conveyed Title in ſeveraly, and traverſed the ſuppoſal of the Writ and Count, abſque hoc the Plaintiff maintained the Writ and Count, & hoc petit quod inquiratur per Patriam, & præd. Anthonius ſimiliter, ideo 12. &c. And in the Record of Niſi prius the Iſſue was well recited, and no part thereof left out. But where the Plaintiff concluded, & hoc petit, quod inquiratur per Patriam, by the negligence of the Clerk of the Treaſury, the Writ of Niſi prius was, & præd. ſimiliter, leaving out this word Anthonius in the cloſe, and joining of the Iſſue. And farther, the Iſſue entred in the Record of Niſi prius was, Inter Wotton Plaintiff, and Cook and Temple Defendants; where Temple had made a Confeſſion of the Partition before, and ſo a Stranger to the Iſſue: But the Record which warranted the ſame was well enough; And notwithſtanding theſe Faults and Miſpriſions, the Iſſue was tried at the Niſi prius, and afterwards, by the Rule of the Court of Common Pleas, the Verdict was taken, and the ſaid Miſpriſions were amended; for ſufficient authority was given by the Writ of Niſi prius (which is but the tranſcript of the Record) to try the Iſſue, and to take the Verdict. If a man declare of damages of 100 li. and the Record of Niſi prius is 100 r. and the Jury give damages 20 li. the Niſi prius ſhall be amended and made 100 li. according to the Roll; for it is the Miſpriſion of the Clerk, which doth not change the Iſſue. Vide 11 Hen. 7. 1. b. 10 Hen. 7. 25. b. and ſo was it adjuged in 2 H. 4. 6. See 39 E. 3. Br. 105. 7 E. 4. 15. See after when Miſpriſion of the Clerk in the Entry of the Verdict or Judgment, which are other parts of the Record, ſhall be amended. As to the word (Word) the ſame hath been explained before.

As to this word (Plea) it hath been explained before in the word (Record) which includeth it.

As to (Warrant of Atturney) See 23 Hen. 8. Amendment 85. 24 Hen. 8. Amendment 47. 2 Ma. Dyer 105. 2 Eliz. Dyer 180. 5 Eliz. Dyer 225. 6 Eliz. Dyer 231. But when no Warrant of Atturney is put in, it is not remedied by this Act. As to the words Pannel and Return, in what caſes Miſpriſions of them ſhall be amended within this Statute. Vide 2 E. 4. 7. 9 E. 4. 14. 33 H. 6. 42. after the Sheriff is removed, or dead, &c. 37 H. 6. 12. 3 H. 7. 14. 12 H. 7. 19. But no Return is helped by this Statute.

And it is to be noted, That thoſe things which are amendable before the Writ of Error brought, are amendable after the Writ brought; and if the inferior Court doth not amend them, the ſuperior Court may amend them.

It is neceſſary now to ſhew two things, 1. What things are not amendable by this Act of 8 H. 6. 2. How many of them, not remedied by this Act, are remedied by other Statutes. As to the firſt, This Act of 8 Hen. 6. cap. 12. nor the Act of 8 Hen. 6. cap. 15. do not extend to 14 Miſpriſions. 1. They do not extend to Want of an Original, but to Miſpriſion of Clerks, as is aforeſaid.
[b] 2. They do not extend to Miſpriſion of Form in the Original, either Falſe Latin, or Variance from the Regiſter. 3. They do not extend to material Variance betwixt the Original and the Count. 4. They do not extend to Inſufficient Trial, ſcil. when the Viſn is miſtaken; but Miſpriſion of the Clerk in the Entry of the Verdict ſhall be amended in another Term, according to the Note found by the Jurors: ſo was it adjudged in Rawlye's Caſe, in the Fifth Part of my Reports. 29 & 30 Eliz. 2. b. 5. They do not extend to a Jury returned by the Coroners, where the Sheriff ought to return it, & è contra. Vide Bainham's Caſe, in the Fifth Part of my Reports, fol. 36. b. Vide 21 & 23 Eliz. Dyer 367. 6. They do not extend to a Trial where no Return is endorſed upon the Venire facias, facias, Rowland's Caſe, in the Fifth Part of my Reports. Mich. 35 & 36 Eliz. fol. 41. b. 7. They do not extend to a Trial, where one appeareth who was not returned upon the Venire facias. The Counteſs of Rutland's Caſe, in the Fifth Part of my Reports, fol. 42. 8. They do not extend to a Return of the Venire facias without the name of the Sheriff. 9. They do not extend to a Jeofail, Want of colour, Inſufficient pleading, or to any other Default of the Party, or of his Councel. 27 H. 6. 10. 18 E. 4. 3. 20 E. 4. 6. 21 H. 6. 28. for the Statute extendeth only to Miſpriſion of Clerks. 10. For the ſame reaſon they do not extend to any Error or Miſpriſion of the Judges in any Term paſt. 2 R. 3. 11. 9 E. 4. 3. Vide 30 H. 6. 1. But Miſpriſion of the Clerk in the Entry of the Judgment of a thing which is apparent, and not of neceſſity, is amendable, as the miſtaking of the ſumming of the Arrerages before or pendent the Writ of Annuity ſhall be amended. 35 H. 8. Dyer 55. 11. They do not extend to that, where the Juſtice of Niſi prius taketh the Verdict poſt ipſum diem in Banco, 1 Ma. Dyer 97. & 33 H. 6. 25. 12. They do not extend to Want of Warrant of Atturney. 13. This Statute nor the Statute of 32 H. 8. cap. 30. do not extend to help any of the Imperfections, where a Verdict is given upon an Iſſue joined betwixt the Demandant and the Vouchee; or the Tenant and the Vouchee, as it was reſolved Mich. 1 & 2 Phil. & Mar. Bendloe's Caſe. But if an Error in Law be in the Judgment, as ideo in miſericordia, for pro capiatur, or è contra, or the like; it is not amendable in another Term, as it hath been oftentimes adjuged. 14. Nor do they extend to an Appeal, nor to Pleas of the Crown, nor to any Proceeding upon them, for they are excepted, nor to the amendment of any Exigent, to make any one to be outlawed, &c. 20 H. 6. 18. 7 E. 4. 16. 22 E. 4. 7. 38 H. 6. 3. 21 H. 7. 34. 7 H. 4. 27. Now Miſpriſions not remedied, neither by the Statute of 32 H. 8. cap. 30. nor by the Statute of 18 Eliz. cap. 14. 1. All the ſaid Miſpriſions not remedied by the ſaid Statute of 8 H. 6. remain yet not remedied by any Law or Statute; or where no Verdict is given upon iſſue joined: As if Judgment be given upon Confeſſion, Demurrer, Nihil dicit, non ſum informatus, or otherwiſe than by Verdict of 12 men upon Iſſue joined. 2. When a Verdict upon Iſſue tried is given; 10. Miſpriſions are not remedied by the Statutes of 32 H. 8. 18 Eliz. or any other Statute; but yet remain not amendable. 1. Material Variance betwixt the Original and the Count, as it is reſolved in Biſhop's Caſe, in the Fifth Part of my Reports. 2. When the Original or Count wanteth Subſtance. Vide Freeman's Caſe, 41 Eliz. in the Fifth Part of my Reports. 3. Inſufficient Trial, ſcil. when the Viſn is miſtaken, and Verdict paſſeth. 4. When the Return of the Jury is by the Coroner, where it ought to be by the Sheriff, and è contra. 5. When the Sheriff doth not put his name to the Return of the Jury. 6. Where upon the the Venire facias, &c. no Return is endorſed, although that Verdict paſſeth. 7. When one appeareth, and is ſworn and entred, others give Verdict who are not returned upon the Venire facias. 8. In an Appeal, or Plea of the Crown, as Indictments, &c. or any Proceeding upon them; for they are excepted in the ſaid Act of 8 H. 6. and 18 Eliz. and the Statute of 32 H. 8. doth not extend to them. 9. Although that Verdict upon Iſſue tried be given for the Plaintiff, yet if upon the whole Record it appeareth to the Court, that the Plaintiff hath no Cauſe of Action, he ſhall never have Judgment, and the ſame is not remedied by any Statute, as it hath been oftentimes adjudged. 10. An Error in Law by Miſpriſion of the Judges in the Judgment entred in another Term is not amendable by any Statute. If the Plaintiff in an Aſſize recovereth, and hath not put in any Warrant of Atturney, this Error was not remedied by the Statute of 32 H. 8. as it appeareth 20 Eliz. Dyer 363. for the words of the Act are, for lack of any Warrant of Atturney of the Party againſt whom the Iſſue ſhall be tried: So that when the Verdict paſſeth for the Plaintiff, the lack of Warrant of Atturny for the Plaintiff is not aided by that Statute, nor è contra, but the ſame is helped by the Statute of 18 Eliz. for there the words are general (for want of any Warrant of Atturney) ſo that theſe words extend as well to lack of Warrant of Atturney of the Party for whom, as againſt whom the Verdict paſſeth.

Caſes in the Court of Wards.

Trin. 7 Jacobi Regis.

Myght's Caſe.

[b] IN the Court of Wards this Term, It was reſolved by the two Chief Juſtices, and the Chief Baron, and by the Court of Wards, That where Jeffery Myght with his own money purchaſed 12 acres of Lands, late Lumners to him and to Simon Mond, an Enfant, to them and their Heirs, holden of Queen Eliz. by Knights-ſervice; That this original purchaſe could not be averred to be by colluſion, to take away the wardſhip which might accrue after the death of Jeffery Myght; becauſe that the ſaid Jeffery was never ſole Tenant to the King, nor by the death of Jeffery in reſpect of the ſurvivor, by force of Jointenancy, any wardſhip or primer ſeiſin could accrue to the King. 2. It was reſolved, That no Feoffement which Jeffery could make of his moiety could be averred to be by colluſion, to take away the wardſhip or primer ſeiſin due by his death; for if no Feoffement was made, no benefit could accrue to the Queen by his death. Alſo he is out of the Statute of 32 and 34 H. 8. for the Statute of 34 H. 8. which is a Statute of explanation, ſpeaketh only of a ſole ſeiſin in fee; for the words are, having a ſole eſtate or intereſt in fee-ſimple, &c. 3. It was [164] reſolved, That when the Father maketh a Feoffement for the advancement of his Wife, preferment of his Children, or paiment of his Debts, that the ſame cannot be averred upon covin or colluſion, to give cauſe to the Queen to ſeiſe all the Land; for the Statute of 32 giveth power to the Tenant to diſpoſe two parts to ſuch uſes; and the Statute of 34 H. 8. doth explain, That if all be diſpoſed, it ſhall be good for two parts, and ſo upon the Conſideration of both the Statutes, no Averment can be of any Covin in ſuch caſes, for the Clauſe of 34 H. 8. concerning Covin is: If any perſon, &c. having Eſtate of Inheritance, of or in any Lands, &c. holden of the King by Knights-ſervice in chief, or otherwiſe of the King by Knight-ſervice, hereafter ſhall give, will, deviſe, or aſſign, by will, or other act executed in his life, his manors, &c. by fraud or covin to any perſon for years, life, or lives, with one remainder over in fee, or with divers remainders over for term of years, life, or in tail, with a remainder over in fee-ſimple, &c. or ſhall convey or make by fraud or covin, contrary to the true meaning of this act, any Eſtates, Conditions, Meſnalties, Tenures, or Conveyances, to the intent to defraud or deceive the King of his Prerogative, Primer ſeiſin, &c. which ſhould or ought to accrue or grow, &c. by or after the deceaſe of his or their tenant by force, and according to the former Statute, and of this preſent Act and Declaration, and the ſame Eſtates, and other Conveyances, being found by office to be ſo made and contrived by covin, fraud and deceit, as is aboveſaid, contrary to the true meaning of the ſaid former Act, and of this Act, that then the King ſhall have aſwell the wardſhip of the body, and cuſtody of the Lands, &c. as livery, primer ſeiſin, &c. which ſhould or ought to appertain to the King, according to the true intent and meaning of the ſaid former Act, and of this preſent Act, as though no ſuch Eſtates or Coveyances by covin had never been had nor made. So that this Branch oftentimes doth refer this clauſe of Covin to be contrary to the true intent and meaning of the former Act, and of this Act: And therefore it is firſt to be known, what is the true intent and meaning of the Act of 32 H. 8. And the ſame appeareth by the words thereof, ſcil. That all and ſingular perſon and perſons having, &c. ſhall have full power and authority, to give, diſpoſe, will, or aſſign, by his laſt Will in writing, or otherwiſe, by any Act or Acts lawfully executed, two parts, &c. to or for the advancement of his Wife, preferment of his Children, and paiment of his Debts, or otherwiſe, at his will and pleaſure. And the words of the Statute of 34 Hen. 8. ſhall have full and free liberty, power and authority, to

[b] give, diſpoſe, will, or aſſign to any perſon or perſons, &c. two parts, &c. Upon which Acts being conſidered together, it was reſolved by the two Chief Juſtices, and the Chief Baron, and the Court of Wards, That in all Caſes when the King's Tenant conveyeth his Land for life, years, or in tail to his Children, or when a Stranger was joined with the Heir in Eſtate, or when a Remainder in fee was limited in fee, or when an Eſtate was declared by Will (all which Caſes were out of the Statute of Marlbridge, and in which Caſes no Colluſion could have been averred, as appeareth by Sir George Curſon's Caſe, in the Sixth Part of my Reports, and by our Books there cited) that in all ſuch Caſes, by the expreſs words of the Clauſe of 34 Hen. 8. concerning Covin and Colluſion, Covin may be averred for the King but only for a third part, and not for the two parts, for both the Acts have enabled the King's Tenants to diſpoſe of two parts at their wills and pleaſures, as appeareth by the expreſs words of both the Acts; and therefore where no Covin could have been alleged for the King in the Caſes aforeſaid before this Act, now Covin may be alleged for the third part only, and thereof the Act of 32 H. 8. doth put Examples, ſcil. That he may convey two parts for the advancement of his Wife, preferment of his Children, and paiment of his Debts, (againſt which no Colluſion could be averred by the Common Law) and concludeth with general words, or otherwiſe at his will and pleaſure: And it was objected, That in caſe where the King may take advange of Colluſion apparent, or averrable within the Statute of Marlbridge, cap. 6. de his qui primogenitos & heredes infra ætatem exiſtentes feoffare ſolent, &c. ſcil. to advance only his Son and Heir of an Eſtate in Fee-ſimple, if ſuch Covin be found by office, the King ſhall take benefit thereof. To which it was anſwered and reſolved, That the expreſs words of 23 H. 8. which enableth the Tenant to convey two parts for the preferment of his Children, the Queen ſhall have but the third part in ſuch caſe, for the ſaid Branch of 32 H. 8. doth conclude, any Law, Statute, Cuſtom, or other thing to the contrary notwihſtanding. And ſo the Statute giveth in many Caſes remedy to the King, where he had not any before; and in ſome Caſe, more benefit to the Subject than he had before. And the Caſe of Mygh as to this Point was ſuch, That Jeffery Mygh being ſeiſed of dives Lands and Tenements in the County of Norfolk in fee, ſome of them holden of the Queen in Capite, made Feoffements of divers parts of them to divers particulars Uſes, to his Brother and others of his bloud, to ſome of them for life, and to ſome for years, the Remainder to Tho. Mygh his Son and Heir apparent in tail, the Remander to Jeffery his younger Son in tail, the Remainder to Anne his Daughter in tail, the Remainder to Ed. Mond. in tail, the Remainder to Jeffery his Son in tail, with ſeveral Remainders over in tail, the Remainder in fee to Thomas Mygh in fee. And it was found by office after the death of Jeffery, that all the ſaid Eſtates and Feoffements were by [165] fraud and covin to deceive the late Queen of her Prerogative, Ward and Marriage, and that Thomas was within the age of 21 years, and afterwards accompliſhed his age of 21 years, and before Livery Thomas the Son died without iſſue; after whoſe death another office was found 3 Jac. with all the ſpecial matter, and Queen Eliz. granted the Ward and Marriage of Thomas the Son of Richard Chamberlain, &c. and that Thomas the Son after his full age died without iſſue of his body before any Livery proſecuted, and that Jeffery the Son is his Brother and Heir, and within age, and alſo next Heir to the ſaid Jeffery the Father. And it was reſolved by the Court of Wards in the time of Queen Eliz. That although the Covin was found by office, that yet the Queen ſhould have but a third part of the Profits, and not the whole, for the Cauſes and Reaſons aforeſaid, and accordingly the Queen had but the third part of the Profits, which concurreth with the Reſolution before.

It was

It was alſo reſolved by the Juſtices, That after the death of Thomas without iſſue, Jeffery ſhould not be in Ward, for the Covin could not extend to Jeffery as Heir of Jeffery the Father, for at the time of the Feoffement he was the youngeſt Son, and the Remainder was limited to him to take effect after the death of Thomas the eldeſt Son without Iſſue, and the Queen had once taken advantage of the Statute after the death of Jeffery, and after the death of Thomas the Son he could not be in Ward; For Jeffery the Son claimed by force of a Remainder, and Thomas had nothing but in tail, and he is dead without Iſſue. And it was alſo reſolved by the ſaid Juſtices, That if the King's Tenant leave a third part to the King, that no Covin or Colluſion can be averred for the two parts, for the words and intent of both the Acts was, that the King ſhould be ſatisfied with the third part. And therewith agreeth Dyer 10 Eliz. in the Lord Dacres Caſe, where it is ſaid, That the ſame is the true meaning of both the ſaid Statutes being joined together.

Mich. 7 Jacobi Regis.

Digby's Caſe.

SIR Everard Digby ſeiſed in Fee of the Manor of Stoke in the County of Rutland, and of the Manor of Tilton in the County of Leiceſter, holden (by way of admittance) of the King by Knights-ſervice in Capite, by act executed in his life-time, and before any Treaſon committed by him, did convey the ſaid Manors to the uſe of himſelf for life, and afterwards to the uſe of his eldeſt Son and Heir apparent in tail, with divers Remainders over to his other Iſſues; and afterwards the ſaid Sir Ev. Digby was attainted and executed for the heinous and horrible Powder Treaſon committed after the ſaid Conveyance, his eldeſt Son being then within age. The Queſtion was, Whether the Wardſhip of the body, or of the third part of the ſaid Manors ſhould be to the King by force of the Statutes of 32 & 34 H. 8. And it was reſolved by the two Chief Juſtices, the Chief Baron, and the whole Court of Wards, That the King ſhall never have Wardſhip or Primer-ſeiſin, but where there is an Heir general or ſpecial. For the Statutes of 32 & 34 H. 8. give Wardſhip or Primer-ſeiſin to the King in divers caſes where there is no Deſcent: as if the King's Tenant convey his Lands for the advancement of his Wife, pereferment of his Children, or paiment of his Debts; but doth not give Wardſhip or Primer-ſeiſin in any caſe where there is not any Heir general or ſpecial; becauſe that Wardſhip or Primer-ſeiſin ought to be of the Land of ſome Anceſtor who hath an Heir. And the words of the Writ of Diem clauſit extremum, or Mandamus, as well after as before the ſaid Statutes are, Et quis propinquior Hæres ejus ſit. Alſo Livery ought to be ſued in the name of the Heir: But it was agreed, that in ſome caſe the King ſhall have Wardſhip or Primer-ſeiſin of the Son, although the Father be attainted of Treaſon; and the bloud be corrupt. And [b] [166] therefore if Tenant in tail of the King's Gift to hold by Knight-ſervice in Capite had been attainted of Treaſon before the Statute of 26 H. 8. and died his Son within age, in this caſe, although that the bloud is corrupt, yet, becauſe that by force of the Statute of Donis conditionalibus, the Land notwithſtanding ſuch attainder doth deſcend to the Son, he ſhall be in Ward to the King, becauſe he is a ſpecial Heir in ſuch Caſe. And the ſame is proved by the Book of 7 H. 4. 32. where the Caſe was, King R. 2. by his Letters Patents did grant divers Manors, &c. to Thomas Holland Earl of Kent, to have and to hold to him and the Heirs of his body, and afterwards the Earl, 1 H. 4. made Inſurrection, and levied Warr againſt the King, and, committing that Treaſon, was killed without Judgement, his Son Ed. within age; after whoſe death the ſaid Thomas Earl of Kent was attainted by Parliament of High Treaſon: And farther it was ordained, That all his Lands in Fee-ſimple, and no other ſhould be forfeited; By reaſon of which Act of Parliament the King ſeiſed the ſaid Manors, and they were in the Kings hands during the Nonage of Ed. the Son, and afterwards the ſaid Ed. at his full age ſued out of the Chancery a Writ of Mandamus, by which the ſaid Gift and Tenure, and that the ſaid Ed. was Heir per formam doni was found; and thereupon the ſaid Ed. came into the Chancery, and prayed to have Livery: And there it was reſolved by Norton, Tremain, Hulls, Hankford and Thirning, That in ſuch caſe the Son ſhall be in Ward, and although that the King ſeiſeth as for forfeiture for Treaſon, yet when the King is in poſſeſſion, the Law will adjudge him in by reaſon of Wardſhip, becauſe the ſame is his beſt Right; For the Law doth more reſpect a ſmall Eſtate during the minority of the Iſſue by right, than a great Eſtate in Fee-ſimple by wrong. But there Markham held, That when the King ſeiſeth any Land by forfeiture of Treaſon or other Cauſe claiming Fee, although that one who claimeth a Right in the Land cometh into the Chancery, and prayeth a Mandamus, thoſe of the Chancery ſhall not grant it: and Gaſcoign ſaid, That all the matter in this Caſe is, If the Writ of Mandamus iſſued well out of the Chancery, or not; and all this appeareth by the ſaid Book. And it was agreeed, That if there be Grand father, Father and Son, and the Grand-father is Tenant in tail, and the Father is attainted of Treaſon, and dieth ſeiſed, although that the bloud be corrupt, yet the Land ſhall deſcend to the Son per formam doni, and this Deſcent ſhall take away an Entry, for the Son is in by Deſcent.

The Earl of Cumberland's Case.

[b] IN the great Case of the Earl of Cumberland heard in the Court of Wards this Term, before the Earl of Salisbury Master of the Wards and Liveries, with the assistance of the two Chief Justices and Chief Baron, for the Castle and Manor of Skipton in Craven, &c. in the County of York; It was holden by the two Chief Justices and Chief Baron, That where King E. 2. by his Letters Patents had granted the said Castle and Manor of Skipton in Craven, &c. to Robert de Clifford in tail, King H. 6. granted (as it was often found by Office) Tho. Domino Clifford (Cosin and Heir of the body of the said Robert de Clifford) reversion. præd. Castri & Manerii de Skipton in Craven, &c. cum suis pertin. necnon Castrum & Manerium præd. which, admitting that the said Grant in tail to the said Robert de Clifford was void, (which was only put by way of admittance, without prejudice to any of the Parties) that yet the said Castle and Manor did pass by the later Grant to Thomas Lord Clifford in Fee-simple in possession. For the intent of King H. 6. was, that be it in possession or reversion, it shall pass, and the words agree with his intent; for first, he granteth the Reversion, if the Estate tail was good; and if the Estate tail was not good, then he farther granteth the said Manor in possession, and so his words in his Letters Patents do agree with his meaning, and both of them with the Law. As many Leases made by the King, and other his Progenitors before him, to one to begin after the determination of such a Lease, if the Lease be good, and if the Lease be not good, from such a Feast, and such Leases are good. Note, Reader, As to the recital
[167] of an Estate tail, or Lease for life or years, by these words, mentionatur fore concedi, or dimitti, &c. was but of late, (and yet a good invention,) but the ancient form was to recite the first Grant, and to grant the Reversion, and farther, to grant the Lands in possession, and these several Grants in a Patent are as good and as strong in Law as if the King by a Patent had recited the Estate tail, and granted the Reversion, and by another Patent had granted the Land in possession; without question the one and the other shall be good; so is it when the several Grants are contained in one and the same Patent; for frustra fit per plura, quod fieri potest per pauciora. And the opinion of Hussey, in 9 H. 7. 2. is good Law, if it be well understood, for non in legendo, sed in intelligendo leges consistunt. For where he saith, It is clear, if the King intending to ratifie and confirm a Grant made by his Predecessor of a Franchise by his Letters Patents, and he ratifieth and confirmeth the Estate, and farther addeth this Clause, Damus & concedimus; the same is but a void Grant, which ought to be intended, that for fear of forfeiture of the Franchise the Patentee took a Confirmation of the Successor King, which is sufficient (before Office found of the forfeiture) to discharge the Patentee of any forfeiture; and there he well said, that the subsequent words, Damus & concedimus, are but void; for the King in such case hath not any Estate grantable in Law before Office found, and therefore of necessity it ought to take effect by way of Confirmation, and cannot enure by way of Grant; and all this appeareth by Hussey's reason expressed in the said Book, why Damus & concedimus in such Case are void: for (as he saith) it shall not pass by this Confirmation, and by Grant the same shall enure by way of Confirmation, and not by way of Grant. Vide 11 E. 4. 1. b. 7 H. 7. 14. Plow. Com. 397. But in the Case at Bar there is not any Confirmation which presupposeth that the King hath not but a title or right not grantable, but both Estates as well of the Reversion as of the Possession are grantable Estates, and so not like to the Case which is put by Hussey. And when the King's Charter may be taken to two intents, and both intents are effectual and good, in many cases it shall be taken to such intent which is most beneficial for the King, but if it may be taken to one intent good, and to another intent void and of none effect, it shall be taken and construed to such intent, that the King's Grant shall take effect; and the same in Judgment of Law standeth with the King's intent, for it was not the King's intent to make a void Grant. And therewith agreeth the Book in 21 E. 4. 44. the Abbot of Waltham's Case: the Reason and Rule of which Book doth over-rule the Case now in question: Scil. either to make the Grant good, either of the Reversion, if the former Grant in tail was good, or of the Possession, if the former Grant was void, or if no Grant was at all, but not to make the King's Grant utterly void, as well of the Reversion as of the Possession, when the King hath either the Reversion or the Possession in him. So it was holden, If the King grant totum illud Manerium suum de D. or totam illam Rectoriam sive Advocationem de B. that if the King hath a Manor or Farm, and non Manor, or a Rectory impropriate, or Advowson, and no Rectory, that which the King hath shall pass; for the effect of the Grant is, be it Manor or Farm, Rectory impropriate or Advowson, that which the King hath in truth shall pass.

Paris Stoughter's Case.

Paris Stoughter was ſeiſed of the Manor of Over-ſtoughter in the County of Glouceſter, to him and the Heirs males of his body, and had Iſſue Chambers Stoughter, and died; By Writ of Mandamus, 2 Jac. it was found, that the ſaid Paris was ſeiſed of the ſaid Manor, as is aforeſaid, and died ſeiſed the 22 Febr. 40 Eliz. and that Chambers was his Son and Heir; and that the ſaid Manor was holden at the time of the death of Queen Eliz. as of her Manor of Nether-hall in the ſaid County, by Fealty and Rent, in free and common Socage, &c. Trin. 7 Jacobi a Melius inquirendum was awarded, reciting the former Office to enquire according to this Point, whether the ſaid Manor of Overſtoughter at the time of the death of the ſaid Paris were holden of the King in Capite by Knights-ſervice, or otherwiſe by Knights-ſervice. By virtue of which Writ it was found, that the ſaid Manor was holden at the time of the death of the ſaid Paris of the late Queen Elizabeth by Knights-ſervice, as of her Manor of Nether-ſtoughter, and that at the time of the taking of the ſame Inquiſition, the ſaid Manor of Over-ſtoughter was holden of the King which now is, by Knights-ſervice, as of his Manor of Nether-hall. And it was clearly reſolved by the two Chief Juſtices and the Chief Baron, That the ſaid Writ of Melius inquirendum was repugnant and void in it ſelf, and gave not authority to find ſuch Office as was found. For the ſaid Paris died 40 Eliz. And [b] the Writ of Melius inquirendum was to enquire, whether at the time of the death of the ſaid Paris the ſaid Manor of Over-ſtoughter was holden of our Lord the King which now is, which was impoſſible and repugnant, That in Anno 40 Eliz. the ſaid Manor of Over-ſtoughter ſhould be holden of our Lord the King, who then was King only of Scotland, and not of England. And although that the finding were well, yet foraſmuch as it was without the Warrant of the Writ, all was inſufficient and void, and a new Writ of Melius inquirendum ought to be awarded. Vide F. N. B. 255. b. that Melius inquirendum ſhall be awarded upon a ſurmiſe in Court that the Lands are of greater yearly value then is declared in the Office: and by the like reaſon upon ſurmiſe that they are holden by other Services; or that he is ſeiſed of another Eſtate than is recited in the Office. But it was reſolved, That if upon the Melius inquirendum in theſe caſes it be again found againſt the King, the King ſhall not have a new Writ of Melius inquirendum, and that for three Cauſes. 1. Becauſe that then there ſhall be no end thereof; but ſuch Writ ſhall be infinite, & infinitum in jure reprobatur. 2. As if, if a Writ of Diem clauſit extremum, or Mandamus, &c. are found againſt the King, there ſhall not be a new Writ of Diem clauſit extremum, or Mandamus, awarded: So if upon the Melius it be found againſt the King, no Melius ſhall be farther awarded. Vide 12 Eliz. Dyer 292. The Melius is in the nature of the firſt Writ of Diem clauſit extremum. 3. If Office be found for the King, the Party may traverſe it, and if the Traverſe be found againſt him, it maketh an end of the buſineſs. So if it be found for him who tendreth the Traverſe, it ſhall bind the King as to this matter. And when the firſt Office is found againſt the King, and the Melius inquirendum alſo, the King thereby is found to have another Melius inquirendum for the ſame matter, for the Comparative degree is above the Poſitive, and the Superlative above the Comparative, and no Comparative upon Comparative, no more then Superlative upon Superlative. But if upon the Melius inquirendum it be found for the King; yet the party grieved may traverſe it: And it ſtands with reaſon, That when Office is found for the King, that foraſmuch as the Party grieved is not concluded by it, but may traverſe it: ſo when it is found againſt the King, foraſmuch as the King cannot traverſe it, that he ſhall have a Writ of Melius inquirendum, and yet the Regiſter hath not any Writ in ſuch caſe. Note, Reader, It appeareth by the Statute of Lincoln, made 29 E. 1. that at the Common Law, the Eſcheators uſed to ſeiſe the Lands of the King's Tenant before Office; and therefore it is enacted by [169] the Statute, That when Inquiſitions are found by Writ before Eſcheators, quod nihil tenetur de ipſo Dom. Rege, &c. quod ſtatim abſque dilatione mandetur per breve Dom. Reg. de Cancell. percipiend. quod Eſcheatores de terris & tenementis ſic in manus Dom. Regis per ipſos capt. manus ſuas amoveant omnino, &c. ſalvo ſemper Domino Regi quod ſi poſtea Eſcheatores ſuas manus amoverint per breve ipſius Domini Regis, ut præd. eſt, aliquid contigerit inveniri in Cancellaria vel ad Scaccarium, vel alibi in Cur. ipſius Dom. Regis per quod cuſtodia terrarum aut tenementorum eorundem, de quibus Eſcheatores manus ſuas amoverint in forma præd. Dom. Regi pertineant, quod ſtatim præmuniatur ille per breve de Cancellaria, &c. And this Act doth not make againſt this Reſolution, for two Cauſes. 1. It is a Rule in Law, and affirmed by this Act, That where the King's hands are once removed by matter of Record, there for any ancienter title than the amover, the King ſhall not reſeiſe upon any new Office found without a Scire facias; and that appeareth in 28 H. 6. 9. b. 9 E. 4. 51. Vide 5 H. 5. 2. a. But in the Caſe at Bar there was never any Seiſure into the King's hands, and by conſequence there could be no amoving, and therefore this Caſe is clearly out of this Statute. 2. At this day the Eſcheator before Office found cannot ſeiſe any Lands into the King's hands, but the Seiſure ought to be after the Offence found, and that appeareth by the Statute of Weſtm. 1. cap. 24. Vide 5 E. 6. Br. Office 55. and many other Books, and ſo is the common experience at this day; and therefore the Caſe at Bar is out of the ſaid Statute. And true it is, That after Diem clauſit extremum, or Mandamus, &c. awarded and found againſt the King, no new Writ of Diem clauſit extremum, or Mandamus, &c. ſhall iſſue forth, as it is holden in 4 Hen. 7. 15, & 16. 14 Ed. 4. 5. 15 Ed. 4. 11.

8 Eliz.

8 Eliz. Dyer 248, & 249. But in ſuch Caſe a Writ of Melius inquirendum ſhall iſſue forth, as is aforeſaid, and as the common courſe in the Court of Wards is, and alwaies hath been: and with this difference the Books are reconciled, and agree, & ſic interpretare & concordare Leges Legibus eſt optimus interpretandi modus. But in good diſcretion no melius inquirendum ſhall be awarded after Office found againſt the King, without ſight of ſome Record, or other pregnant matter for the King, for avoiding of vexation of the Subject. Vide 12 Eliz. Dyer 292. It is found by Office, upon a Diem clauſit extremum, that the Land was holden de Domina Regina, ſed per quæ ſervitia Juratores ignorant, whereupon a Melius inquirendum was awarded, by which the Tenure was found of a Subject, and all Points certainly found, by that the firſt Office is void in all, by the ſenſe of the Statute of [b] 2 E. 6. cap. 8. And all theſe Reſolutions were affirmed for good Law, Mich. 8 Jac. by the ſaid Chief Juſtices and Chief Baron in Stephen Garner's Caſe in the Court of Wards, for Lands in Furſeby and Steeping in the County of Lincoln, as to the ſaid Writ of Melius inquirendum where it was found by the firſt Office, that the Lands were holden of Euſtace Hart Eſquire and his Wife, as in the right of his Wife of their Manor of Steeping: and upon the Melius it was found that the Lands were holden of Sir Ed. Carr Knight, as of his Manor of Monkthorp, and notwithſtanding this Variance of the Offices, yet it was reſolved as above, That no new Writ of Melius ſhould iſſue forth, for the reaſons and cauſes before alleged.

Tourſon's Caſe.

[170] WIlliam Tourſon, an Idiot from his birth, by force of a Remainder after the death of his Father, was jointly ſeiſed with his elder Brother for Term of their lives, the Leſſor did purchaſe the Eſtate of the elder Brother, and took the body of the Idiot, and all the Profits of the Lands, and afterwards William Tourſon was found Idiot from his birth by Inquiſition; The Queſtion was, Whether the King ſhall have the mean Profits of the moiety from the time of the firſt ſeiſin of the Idiot, or from the time of the Office: and it was reſolved, that the King ſhould not have the Profits, but after the Office: and yet to ſome intent the Office ſhall have relation from the time of the birth, ſcil. to avoid all mean acts done by the Idiot; and therewith agreeth F. N. B. 202. c. and 18 E. 3. Scire fac. 10 32 E. 3. Scire fac. 106. 50 Aſſ. p. 2. Vide Beverley's Caſe, in the Fourth Part of my Reports. But for the mean Profits, it ſhall not have relation, but from the time of the Office found; for the ſame appeareth of Record, that the King hath right to ſeiſe the Lands: As if the King's Tenant commit Felony, Anno 1 Jac. and afterwards Anno 3. he is attainted for the ſame Felony, and afterwards Anno 4. all is found by Office; Now this Office ſhall have relation to the time of the Felony to avoid all mean Alienations and Incumbrances; but for the mean Profits, it ſhall have relation to the time of the Attainder, for then the King's Title appeareth of Record; and therewith agreeth Plow. Com. 488. & 38 E. 3. 31, 32. by Kirton. Vide 29 H. 8. Br. Charter of pardon 52. and there is a difference where the King ſhall have the Cuſtody, by reaſon of a Seigniory, as in caſe of Wardſhip, there, the King after Office found ſhall have the mean Profits from the time of the death of the Anceſtor, for the King hath Wardſhip by reaſon of his Seignorie, and he loſeth his
[b] rent and ſervices in the mean time. But the King hath the Cuſtody of an Idiot not in reſpect of any Seignorie, but in the right of his royal protection, becauſe that his Subject is not able to govern himſelf, nor his Lands or Tenements which he hath; and this protection doth begin by the Office found. And the Statute of Prærogativa Regis, cap. 9. ſaith, The King ſhall have ward of the Lands of natural Fools, taking the Profits, &c. to find them neceſſaries, &c. by which it appeareth that the King ſhall take the Profits from the time that he is charged with the finding of the Idiot, and his Family neceſſaries, &c. and that is after the Office found; ſo that when the King ſeiſeth in the right of his regal protection, as in the Caſe at Bar, or nomine diſtrictionis, as in Caſe of Alienation of Land in Capite without licenſe, or of Marriage of his Widow without licenſe, there, after Office found, the King ſhall not have any of the mean Profits before the Office, as it is holden in 8 E. 4. 4. 40 Aſſ. p. 36. But when the King ſeiſeth by reaſon of a former right or title, there the King ſhall have the mean Profits from the time of his right or title firſt accrued, as 18 Aſſ. p. 18. from the time of the Condition broken, 41 E. 3. 21. from the time of the Alienation of his Tenant in Mortmain; and if the Lands are holden of others, from the time the title came to him, 46 E. 3. Forfeiture 18. upon the Statute of Weſt. 2. cap. 45. which giveth the Contra formam Collationis from the time of the Alienation; for by theſe Acts the King's title and right doth accrue. Vide 35 E. 3. Vill. 22. 40 Aſſ. p. 36. 9 E. 4. 5. And in the principal Caſe no Precedent can be found, that the King was anſwered the mean Profits before the Office found, but only after the Office, and ſo the Quære in Stamford's Prærogativa Regis, 34. is well reſolved.

Sir Gerrard Fleetwood's Case.

SIr William Fleetwood Anno 35 Eliz. was possessed of a house and certain Lands in Pynner in the [171] parish of Harrow in the County of Midd. for certain years yet enduring, and Anno 36 Eliz. he became general Receiver of the Revenue of the Court of Wards, &c. and entred into 20 Obligations, each of them of 200*l.* with Condition to make a yearly perfect accompt before the 20 of June, &c. And afterwards upon several accompts in the years 36, 37, 38, & 39 Eliz. he became indebted to the Queen in great sums of money: and he being so indebted, by his Indenture, 10 Feb. 14. Eliz. in Consideration of 1100*l.* did bargain and sell the said Lease to James Pemberton, by force whereof he entred, and was possessed thereof: which mean Conveyance, and in consideration of 1300*l.* was sold to Sir Gerrard Fleetwood. The Question was, whether the said Lands be now extendable, or lyable to the Kings debt. And although it is at the choice of the Sheriff, either to extend or to sell a Lease so long as it remaineth in the Kings debtors hands, as appeareth in the books of 31 Ass. p. 6. 38 Ass. p. 4. 14. E. 3. 16. 7 H. 6. 2. &c. Yet it was Resolved, That the said sale of the term should bind the King, because the term was but a Chattel: and there was no covin in the Case, and a sale bona fide of Chattels is good after Judgement, but not after execution awarded, as appeareth in 2 H. 4. 14. per Curiam, 9 H. 6. 58. 11 H. 4. 7. and of the Free-hold or Inheritance which he hath at the time of the Judgement in case of a Common person, and from the time one becomes the Kings debtor, 5 Eliz. Dyer 224, 225. Sir Will. Cavendishes Case. And the case in 50 Ass. p. 4. was urged to the Contrary, where the Kings debtor took a Lease to him and his wife for years, and before execution the Husband died, execution was sued against the wife, for that was the act of the Husband, and he had power of the term at the time of his death, and the wife came to the same without valuable Consideration, and in a manner continued the Interest of her Husband. And Coke chief Justice said, That a Receiver or other Accomptant shall not be in worse case than a felon or traytor, who may after the Felony or Treason, and before conviction, sell his goods bona fide, be they chattels real or personal, for his maintainance. Hale's Case.

BY Office after the death of Sir James Hales, it is found that he died seised of divers Lands in [172] the County of Kent in Fee-simple, whereof part was holden of the Queen by Knights service in capite, and that Chenie Hales was his son and heir, and within the age of 21 years, and in Ward to the Queen, and afterwards Chenie Hales did accomplish his full age, as appeareth by the computation of the first Office, and so he was in truth, and he tendred his livery, and was admitted to it, and within the usual time given him for the prosecution of the Livery, by deed indented, he bargained and sold part of the said lands to another in fee, and died also within the said time. And 2 Questions were moved; 1. If the Livery of the said Chenie Hales be lost by his death. 2. Whether the issues and profits of the Lands so aliened, after the tender of the Livery and death are to be answered to the King for the want of the Livery, and for what time. And it was agreed, That at the Common Law, the King shall have Primer seisin when the Ancestor dieth his heir within age, and was in Ward, and that the Statute of Prærogativa Regis, is but an affirmance of the Common Law; Sc. The King shall have Primer seisin after the death of such as hold of him in Chief of all Lands and Tenements, whereof, &c. of what age soever their heirs be, taking the issues, &c. until he hath taken homage of such heirs. For when he hath been in Ward, he upon his Livery shall pay but half a years profit; and when he is of full age a whole years profit: and that was the Common Law, for no such distinction is made by the said Act. And it appeareth by the Act, That Primer seisin is, that the King shall take the profits of the Lands until he hath taken homage; the same is as much as to say, until he hath sued Livery, for upon his Livery he doth his homage; so that the Kings Interest is subject to this (until) which is a limitation in Law; then when the heir at his full age tendreth his Livery, which includeth tendring of his homage, the same is all that the heir can doe, and therefore if no Laches be afterwards in the heir in the prosecution of his Livery, he shall have as much advantage by his tender, as if he had done his homage, and had had his Livery when he made his tender, and the convenient time which the Law giveth to the heir for to prosecute his Livery out of the Kings hands after tender, is 3. moneths, because many things are requisite and necessary with great care and diligence to be well and duly followed in the prosecution thereof, then when the heir dieth within the said time: so that the doing of his homage, and [k]

ſuing out of his Livery without any fault in him, is become impoſſible by the act of God, impotentia in hoc caſu excuſat legem, and in Judgement of Law, the Kings Intereſt by the ſaid Limitation is determined, as if the King had taken the homage of the heir when he made his Tender. And with this Reſolution agree all the preſidents of the Court, and therefore when the heir doth render his Livery, the Court of Wards for fear of death hath uſed to take collateral aſſurance for that which is due to the King. But if the heir after he cometh of full age, or if he be of full age at the time of the death of his Anceſtor, dyeth without any tender, the Livery is gone, as is aforeſaid. But the King ſhall have all the mean profits till the death, for default of tender; but if the tender be purſued, or if within the time it becometh impoſſible by the act of God, ſc. the death of the heir, there the King by Law is barred to have the mean profits, as is aforeſaid. Vide Stamford prerog. 12, 13, &c. And it was Reſolved that in this caſe the Kings intereſt was determined by the death of the heir, ſo that the bargainee might enter and occupy the land without any Monſtrans de droit, or Amoveas manum.

[173] SIr Henry Conſtable Knight 15 December 5. Jac. died ſeiſed of an eſtate in Fee-ſimple of Lands holden of the King by knights ſervice in capite, Henry Conſtable his ſon and heir being within age, and made a knight in the life of his Father, 1 July 7. Jac. Henry the Son did accompliſh his age of 21 years. Henry the ſon did tender his Livery after the death of his Father before his age of 21 years, and continued the ſame; And the Queſtions were, 1. Whether the profits of the ſaid Lands ſhall be ſaved to the King by the ſaid tender and continuance. 2. Whether the King ſhall have the rates within the age of 21 years. And both Queſtions were clearly reſolved againſt the King, and that the King ſhall have Primer ſeiſin, as if he had been of 21 years at the time of the death of his Father, becauſe that the King being the Soveraign of knighthood, hath adjudged him of full age to do knights ſervice in the life of his Father, for the reaſons reported at large in Sir Drue Druries Caſe in the 6. part of my Reports. Virgil Parker's Caſe.

[b] Virgil Parker ſeiſed of the Mannor of Fuſhil in fee holden of the King by knights ſervice, as of his Dutchy of Lancaſter, Anno 27 Eliz. made a Feoffment of one half of the ſaid Mannor to John Coxwell and others before marriage, to the uſe of himſelf for life, and afterwards to the uſe of Mary Coney, whom he then intended to marry, for life, for her Joynture, and afterwards to the uſe of himſelf in tayl, with divers Remainders over, and afterwards he married the ſaid Mary; after which marriage, ſc. 39 Eliz. the ſaid Virgil did leaſe the other half of the ſaid Mannor to the ſaid John Coxwell and Edw. Long for divers years for payment of his debts and legacies, and afterwards made his will, and by the ſame deviſed 1000 l. in portions to his younger children, and dyed his ſon and heir within age. And the Queſtion was, If the King ſhould have the 3. part out of the half of the Mannor in leaſe only, or out of the wives half and this half alſo. And it was Reſolved, That for as much as the advancement of his wife is as well within the Statute, as payment of his debts, and preferment of his Children, and for as much as the operation of the Statute principally taketh its effect by the death of the Kings Tenant; For this cauſe, although the eſtate of the wife hath the precedency, It was Reſolved, That the kings 3. part ſhould be taken equally, out of both halves, and not out of the half ſo leaſed only. And ſo was it Reſolved in Mich. 41, & 42 Eliz. betwixt Remington and Savage, and 23 Eliz. in Thynns caſe; and therewith agreeeth the Common Experience of the Court of Wards.

Vavaſor*, and alleged the execution of the uſes by force of the Statute of 27 H. 8. and the death of the ſaid Peter Vavaſor without iſſue: after whoſe death he entred in his remainder, and gave colour to the Plaintif. To which the Plantif did reply and confeſs the recovery, as the ſaid Ed. hath alleged; but further ſaid, That the ſaid Recovery was to the uſe of the ſaid Peter and his heirs, and that after the death of Peter the tenements did deſcend to the ſaid Elizabeth wife of the ſaid *Tho. And further the Recognitors of the ſaid Aſſiſe ſaid, That a certain Indenture was made between the ſaid Peter Vavaſor, and the aforeſaid Andrew Windſor, and others the recoverers of the other part, the tenor whereof doth follow in hæc verba, which Indenture beareth date the firſt day of Feb. in the 15th. year of Queen Eliz. and witneſſeth, That it is co- [b] [8]

venanted, concluded, condeſcended, decreed and agreed between the ſaid parties, and either of the ſaid parties for him and his and their heirs doth conclude, condeſcend, declare and agree by theſe parties, to and with the other. That is to ſay, Whereas the ſaid Andrew, &c. have this preſent Term of St. Hill. recovered to them and their heirs by writ of Entrie ſur diſſeiſin in le poſt. againſt the ſaid Peter Vavaſor, according to the uſual order and form of Common Recoveries heretofore uſed, The Manner of Spaldington, &c. That the intent and true meaning of all the ſaid parties now is, and at the time of the ſaid recovery had and ſuffered was, That the ſaid Recoverers and their heirs immediately from and after the recovery had and executed ſhould and ſhall ſtand and be ſeiſed of the ſaid Mannor, &c. to the only uſes and intents hereafter by theſe preſents ſet forth and declared, and to no other uſes, intents or purpoſes, That is to ſay; and declared and expreſſed the ſame uſes mentioned and alleged in the bar of the ſaid Edward Vavaſor, without any vari ance. And further the ſaid Recognitors of Aſſize found, That the tenements now put in view were parcel of the ſaid Mannor of Spaldington. But whether the Indenture aforeſaid, after the recovery aforeſaid by the [b] ſaid Peter Vavaſor, in form aforeſaid made and had, bearing date the firſt day of Feb. and firſt delivered the 15th. day of Feb. in the 15 year aforeſaid, after the recovery aforeſaid exiſten. to the uſes therein ſpecified, be good and ſufficient in Law to lead and declare the uſes of the ſaid Recovery of the ſaid Tenements put in view of the Recognitors, and ſpecified in the plaint or not, the Jurors know not, and therefore pray the advice of the Court; And if it ſhall ſeem to the Court, That the ſaid Indenture was good and ſufficient, Then they found that the ſaid recovery of the Tenements aforeſaid was to the uſes in the barr of the ſaid Ed. Vavaſor, as the ſaid Ed. hath alleged; and that the other Defendants have done no wrong nor diſſeiſin; and if the ſaid Indenture be not ſufficient and good in Law, then they found againſt all the Defendants. And for difficulty the ſaid Juſtices of Aſſize did adjorn the parties and record before the Juſtices of the Common Pleas, de audiendo & recepiend. quod eiſdem Juſticiar. Dominæ Reginæ de prad. Banco adtunc & ibid. conſiderand. videbitur in hac parte. And in this Caſe 2. Queſtions were moved and argued by the Serjeants, at the Barr.

1. If the ſaid Indenture made after the ſaid Recovery, was ſufficient in Law to direct and declare the uſes of the ſaid precedent Recovery?

2. If upon a ſpecial point in iſſue upon an abſque hoc, the Recognitors of the Aſſiſe may give a ſpecial verdict.

And as to the firſt it was argued, That the ſaid Indenture was not ſufficient to declare and direct the uſes of the ſaid precedent Recovery, for 5. reaſons and cauſes. 1. When a recovery is ſuffered (the ſame being without Conſideration) preſently after the Recovery the Law doth adjudge the ſame to be to the uſe of him who ſuffereth the Recovery and his heirs. Then when the uſe in the caſe at barr was veſted in Peter Vavaſor preſently after the Recovery executed, before the ſaid Indentures made, this uſe ſo veſted cannot be deveſted by any Declaration or agreement ſubſequent, and the ſaid Indenture ſhall not conclude the heir in this caſe, becauſe the ſame being ſubſequent, cannot by the Law deveſt that which was preſently veſted after the recovery had. And to this purpoſe they cited the books in 39 Aſſ. p. 3. & 46 E. 5. Aſſiſe 357. Where an Infant brought an Aſſiſe againſt F. of certain land, the Defendant ſaid that I. Unckle of the Infant, whoſe heir he is, held the ſaid land of him by homage Eſcuage, and 4 weeks rent, and died ſeiſed: And becauſe the Plaintif was within age, he ſeiſed the Tenements for wardſhip. To which the Plaintif pleaded, that the ſaid I. held in ſocage, &c. To which the ſaid Defendant ſaid, you ſhall not be admitted to that plea; for the ſaid I. your Unckle in a ſute betwixt us, did acknowledge to hold the ſame Land of us by the [9] like ſervices by deed indented; and demanded Judgement, if he ſhall be received to ſay the contrary, and ſhewed forth the deed. And the caſe for difficulty was adjorned into this Court, and there it was adjudged that the ſaid acknowledgement or declaration by deed indented ſhould not conclude the heir of I. and the reaſon of Thorp chief Juſtice, who gave the Judgement was, becauſe that by Deed Indenture, other ſervices, could not be granted, which were not due before: So in this caſe at Bar the Deed indented ſubſequent ſhall not conclude the heir of Peter Vavaſor, becauſe it cannot deveſt the uſe, which was by operation of Law preſently veſted after the Recovery: And they alſo cited 35 H. 6. 33. John Crooks caſe, where the like acknowledgement by deed indented was made, &c. and eſtoppel pleaded, and it was adjudged, that the Declaration by Deed indented, for the certainty of the ſervices ſhould not bind the heir of the tenant, who was party to the ſaid deed indented.

Secondly, It was objected, That every Declaration of uſes upon recoveries, fine, &c. of Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments ought to be certain (otherwiſe there ſhall be no certainty of inheritances) and this certainty ought to be chiefly in three things, ſc. in perſons to whom; in Lands of which, and in eſtates by which uſes ſhall be limited and declared; and if there wanteth certainty in any of them, the Declaration is not ſufficient. But here in the caſe at the Bar, there was not any of theſe certainties, when the recovery was ſuffered; and therefore the Declaration ſubſequent is inſufficient, Oportet quod certæ perſonæ certæ terræ, &c. Et certi ſtatus comprehendantur in declaratione uſuum.

The third objection was, That the limitation and declaration of the uſes ought to be compleat of it ſelf, without any reference to Indentures or writings to be after made; for then it is but an imperfect communication, and no compleat declaration: And that it was but a communication they alleged 3 reaſons. 1. The uſes were many, and of much variety of eſtates. 2. That the ſame did concern the eſtabliſhment of his inheritance, of a great yearly value in his name of family, and therefore the intent of the parties was not to leave it to the ſliding and ſlipery memory of men, which ſhould be loſt in a ſhort time, and namely when Elizabeth (one of the Plaintifs) was his Siſter and heir, before whom he ſhould prefer others of his name and blood

3. Diverſe of the ſaid uſes and eſtates could not be limited with ſuch qualities and privileges by word without deed: as the uſe limited to the ſaid Peter Vavaſor (and to diverſe others) for life, without impeachment of waſte, which privilege to be diſpuniſhable of waſte none can have by word without deed; And for this cauſe all the words which paſſed betwixt the parties before, or at the time of the Recovery, were referred to Indentures to be made thereof; and ſo but a communication, and no compleat agreement: Quia id perfectum eſt quod ex omnibus ſuis partibus conſtat, & nihil perfectum eſt dum aliquid reſtat agendum.

The fourth Objection was, That the ſaid Indenture was but directory, and declaratory of the uſes of the Recovery, and was not of any force to raiſe or create any uſe: Then when the iſſue was, whether the ſaid recovery was ſuffered to the ſaid uſes mentioned in the Bar, The Indenture ſubſequent might peradventure be a good evidence to perſwade the Recognitors of the Aſſiſe, that the ſaid Recovery was ſuffered to the ſaid uſes; but of it ſelf being ſubſequent to the Recovery, it is not ſufficient in Law to direct the uſes of the precedent recovery, if not that by the agreement of the parties the uſes were ſo declared before, or at the time of the Recovery, and then the Declaration precedent, and not that which was ſubſequent, is the Declaration which bindeth in Law, and the ſubſequent is but evidence to prove the precedent: And therefore if the ſaid Peter Vavaſor had pleaded the ſaid Recovery, and pleaded alſo the Indenture ſubſequent to the effect as the Recognitors have found it, it ſhould be altogether inſufficient, for the Indenture ſubſequent is but the report and evidence of a former thing, ſc. that the true meaning of all the ſaid parties, &c. at the time of the ſaid recovery, &c. was, that the ſaid Recoverers, &c. and evidence ſhall never be pleaded, becauſe it intendeth to prove matter in fact; and therefore the matter in fact ſhall be pleaded; and if the ſame be denied, the evidence is to be given to the Jury, and not to the Court. And therefore in 9 E. 3. 5. and 6. John Darcy brought a Quare Impedit againſt the Biſhop of Durham, of a diſturbance to preſent to the Church of Simondisbury, and counted that King E. 2. was ſeiſed of the Mannor of Wrecks in Tindale to which the advowſon is appendant, and preſented, &c. and made the deſcent of the Mannor to the King, that now is, who gave the Mannor, with the fees and advowſon to the Plaintif and his heirs, &c. To which the Demandant ſaid, That the Advowſon is not appendant to the Mannor, &c. To which the Plaintif replyed, that the Deſendant ſhould not have this averment. For we ſay, That one Edward, late King of Scotland was ſeiſed of the Mannor of Wrecks, and of the advowſon, and preſented to the Church as appendant, and ſhewed how afterwards the Mannor came to the hands of King Edw. the Grandfather by forfeiture of John Baliol, and ſhewed how afterwards the Kings preſented as appendant to the Mannor, for which the Plaintif did not conceive that againſt ſo many preſentments, as appendants that the Defendants ſhould be received to plead, that the Advowſon is not appendant. And Sir William Herle who gave the Rule, ſaid, That the preſentments of which you have ſpoken, are but evidence to the Jury that the Advowſon is appendent, and evidence ſhall not ouſte the Plaintif of his Plea.

The 5 and laſt Objection was, That if theſe Declarations ſubſequent ſhall be ſufficient in Law to declare the uſes of a precedent recovery, for as much as it ſhall be reſtrained to no certain time, and therefore may be made many years after; by that means, eſtates, leaſes and intereſts in and out of lands veſted in the mean time ſhall be defeated, which ſhall be miſchievous and inconvenient. And the Caſe of Arthur Baſſet, which you may ſee reported by the Lord Dyer, 3 & 4 Phil. & Mar. 136. That Indentures made 4 years after a Recovery, were holden ſufficient to declare the uſes of a precedent recovery, was agreed to be good Law; For in the ſaid Caſe of Baſſet the Recovery was ſuffered in 16 H. 7. and the Indentures made 20 H. 7. (which was long before the Statute of transferring of uſes in poſſeſſion) at which time an uſe being but a thing in confidence might be directed and altered, according to the intent of the parties. And after the caſe had been often argued by the Serjants at the Barr; the caſe was argued by the Juſtices at the Bench. And it was unanimouſly reſolved by all the Juſtices of the Bench, That the ſaid Indenture ſubſequent was ſufficient to direct and declare the uſes of the precedent recovery againſt the ſaid Peter Vavaſor and his heirs, for ſo it is contained and declared by deed indented, that the true intent and meaning of all the parties now is, and at the time of the ſaid Recovery was, That the ſaid recoverers, &c. ſhould ſtand ſeiſed, &c. to the only uſes and intents by theſe preſents ſet forth and declared, and to no other uſe, intent, or purpoſe. Againſt which expreſs affirmation and declaration by deed indented, the ſaid Peter or his heirs ſhall never be admitted or received to ſay, that no ſuch uſes were declared at the time of the ſaid recovery, but that the ſaid recovery, notwithſtanding the ſaid ſubſequent declaration ſhall be conſtrued and adjudged by force of an uſe implyed by operation of Law, to be to the uſe of the ſaid Peter and his heirs. But this declaration by deed indented hath this operation in Law againſt the ſaid Peter and his heirs, that there was a preſent, certain, and compleat agreement and declaration of the ſaid uſes at the time of the ſaid recovery, for ſo much the Indenture doth expreſly purport. And therefore all that which hath been objected, That the Declaration ought to be precedent, or preſent and certain and compleat, and not as a communication with reference to matter to be after put in writing was agreed. But now this deed indented in Judgment of Law, doth import and witneſs againſt the ſaid Peter Vavaſor and his heirs, foraſmuch as nothing appeareth to the contrary, that there was certain and compleat declaration of uſes at the time of the ſaid Recovery, and the ſame ſtands upon pregnant and apparent reaſon, for in as much as Peter and his heirs are only to take advantage for want of declaration of uſes reaſon, wills, that this declaration of the ſaid Peter by his deed indented ſtand againſt him and his heirs: And this caſe is not like to the ſaid caſes in 39 Aſſ. and 46 E. 3. cited before; for in ſuch caſe if the lands were holden before in ſocage, the tenant could not grant or create Knights ſervice, which was not due before; and in the Record the Infant was not made heir to I. But here wi out queſtion Peter Vavaſor might, at the time of the recovery limit what uſes he would, and E is heir to Peter, And the reaſons of the book in 35 H. 6, are, 1. The heir in ſuch caſe was bounden, becauſe the words of the Charter were but by way of recital. 2. The words of the De indented were all the words of the Lord, and not of the Tenant, the heir of whom ſhould be boun and that the brother of the half blood was not heir to the Tenant, who was party to the deed. B in our caſe, 1. It is not by way of recital. 2. It is the acknowledgement and Declaration of the T nant of the Land it ſelf: and the ſaid Elizabeth one of the Plaintifs, as heir to Peter Vavaſor, Vi

10. E. 3. 24. Robert de Vales Caſe. And as to the objection which was made, That the ſaid priv lege to be without impeachment of waſte cannot be without deed, &c. It was anſwered and reſo ved, That if it were admitted that a deed in this caſe ſhould be requiſite; yet without Queſtion a the eſtates limited ſhall be good; although it were admitted, that the clauſe concerning the ſai privilege ſhould be void. And therefore if a man infeof one by words, to the uſe of A. for lif without impeachment of waſte, with divers remainders over, admit that the clauſe without im peachment of waſte in ſuch caſe ſhall be void; yet the eſtate for life, with the remainder over is we executed. And a difference was taken between Indentures precedent, which ſhall direct the uſe of a ſubſequent Recovery, and Indentures ſubſequent. For when precedent Indentures are made and afterwards a recovery followeth accordingly, there no averment can be taken by word, that th recovery was to other uſes than are declared in the Indenture; for nothing veſts in any till the Recovery had, and in ſuch caſe a declaration by word ſhall not controul the declaration by deed. But [11] againſt Indentures ſubſequent, declaring the uſes of a recovery precedent, there averment may be, that other uſes than in ſuch Indentures are declared, were expreſſed and limited before and at the time of the Recovery, becauſe that by ſuch limitation, the uſe and eſtate was veſted according to ſuch limitation, which could not be deveſted by any declaration by Indenture ſubſequent. It was alſo reſolved (as it appeareth before) that the ſaid Declaration ſubſequent by Indenture ſtood good againſt the ſaid Peter and his heirs; for as much as appeareth, there was no other declaration of any other uſe. But if after the recovery had, Peter had ſold, or given, or charged the lands to others, which ſhould be defeated or annulled by the declaration ſubſequent, there ſuch ſubſequent declaration of it ſelf ſhall not overthrow the mean eſtates, charges, or intereſts, if not that it is otherwiſe proved, that by the certain compleat agreement of the parties, the Recovery was had to ſuch uſes; for by judgement of Law ſuch declaration ſubſequent ſhall be ſufficient, when no other certain or compleat Declaration, or limitation of any other uſe, either at the time, or before the recovery be made, or any eſtate or intereſt mean be veſted. And as when a Common recovery is ſuffered without conſideration, the ſame in Judgement of Law, without any proof, is to the uſe of him who ſuffereth the Recovery, ſo when ſuch ſubſequent declaration (as in the caſe at Bar) is made, it ſhall be ſufficient of it ſelf, without other proof of declaration of the ſame uſes, either before, or at the time of the recovery, if no other limitation of uſe were made, nor any mean eſtate or intereſt of any other thereby defeated. And becauſe the intention of the parties is the direction of uſes; In the argument of this caſe many caſes were put; where a ſub-ſequent Act ſhall declare the intent of a general Act precedent: As if tenant in tayl hath iſſue 2 ſons, and dieth, and the eldeſt entreth into the whole, and afterwards maketh a feofment thereof with warranty, the ſame is a lineal warranty for one moity, and a collateral warranty for the other; for the ſubſequent feofment doth declare the intention of the general entry, that it was only for himſelf, or otherwiſe it ſhould be a warranty which commenceth by diſſeiſin for one moyty, and therewith agreeth Lit. Cap. Gar. 160. So if the Lord cometh upon the Tenancy, and taketh and driveth away an Oxe, and impoundeth it, the taking ſhall be adjudged for a diſtreſs;
but if he killeth the Oxe, this ſubſequent Act ſhall declare his intent ab initio, and ſhall make him a Treſpaſſer; and therewith agreeth 12 E. 4. 8. b. 28 H. 6. 5. &c. And as to the 4th. reaſon or Objection, which was made, that the ſame was but matter of evidence tending to prove to which uſes the recovery was had, To the ſame it hath been anſwered before, that in Judgement of Law it is ſufficient to declare the uſe when nothing appears to the contrary, as in the caſe of Indentures precedent, or when a recovery is ſuffered without any conſideration, and without limitation of any uſe. But as to the point of pleading, it was reſolved, that as well in the caſe at Bar, as in the caſe of an Indenture precedent, and recovery ſuffered without conſideration, the uſual form of pleading ought not to be altered, ſc. to averr that the Recovery was ſuffered to ſuch uſes; and upon the evidence the Court ought to direct the Jury according to the Law, or that they find the truth of the caſe, as in the caſe at barr they do. And the Juſtices in this caſe cited a former reſolution in the point in the Court of Wards, between the ſame parties: Hill. 21 Eliz. the whole ſpe-cial matter before being found by office, and tranſcribed into the ſame Court, where by Sir Chri-ſtopher Wray, and Sir James Dyer Aſſiſtants to the ſaid Court, and by the advice alſo of the other Juſtices, it was reſolved, That the ſaid Indentures ſubſequent were ſufficient to declare the uſes of the recovery precedent, becauſe that nothing appeareth to the contrary. And as to the 5th. or laſt reaſon or Objection which was made, it was anſwered and reſolved, That there cannot any miſchief or inconveniency follow upon this conſtruction, as was pretended at the Barr, but great inconveniency would follow on the other ſide; for the Inheritances of many Subjects in England do depend upon ſuch ſubſequent declarations, or at leaſt upon Indentures which in truth were delivered after the recoveries ſuffered, or fines levied. And theſe Reſolutions ſtand with the Commo opinion of learned men in the Laws, and common experience, and the alteration of ſuch opinion which concern aſſurances and inheritances ſhall be very dangerous.

As to the ſecond point, it was Objected, That the Jurors cannot give their verdict at large, but in a writ of Aſſiſe, Treſpaſſe, or the like, where the general iſſue is pleaded, and not when iſſue is joyned upon a matter collateral to the point of the general iſſue; for there the Jury ought to find the iſſue preciſely, without giving their verdict at large. And they ſtrove to prove the ſame by reaſon and authorities: For they ſay that at the Common Law, before the Statute of Weſt. 2. cap. 30. The Jurors in every Action ought to have given their verdict directly and preciſely, either in the affirmative, or the negative, according to the iſſue joyned, and not at large, and the ſame is proved by the ſaid Statute, Item, It is ordained, That the Juſtices aſſigned to take Aſſizes ſhall not compell the Jurors to ſay preciſely, whether it be diſſeiſin or not, ſo that they do ſhew the truth of the deed, and require aid of the Juſtices. Which Acts as to actions is taken by equity, but only to ſuch actions which are general, and have general iſſues, as Aſſize, Treſpaſs, and the like, and not [12] to actions which comprehend certainty, although the general iſſue be pleaded. Alſo the ſame extendeth to general actions, where the general iſſue is pleaded, and not when iſſue is joyned upon a ſole and certain point out of the general iſſue; and therefore the Statute ſaith, Do not compell the Jurors to ſay preciſely If it be diſſeiſin or not. And that is when Nul tort nul diſſeiſin is pleaded, which is the general iſſue in an Aſſiſe. And the reaſon thereof was, becauſe upon the general iſſues in writs, which comprehend no certainty, many and doubtful matters may be given in evidence; So that as the Plaintif and Defendant in ſuch caſe are at liberty upon the general iſſue, to give what evidence they will; ſo are the Jurors at large, when the matter is intricate and doubtful in Law, to find the ſpecial matters, & petere auxilium Juſticiariorum. But when either the writ is certain, or when the iſſue is joyned only upon a point in certain, there they cannot be ſo inveigled and perplexed, as upon a general writ and general iſſue. And that is the reaſon that the Statute ſhall be taken by Equity, as to actions which are in equal miſchief, but not as to iſſues which differ in cauſe and reaſon: And therefore in 7 H. 4. 11. I. B. brought an action of Treſpaſs againſt I. de R. of breaking his cloſe, and digging his Land, ſc. 3. acres of meadow, and of carrying away his graſs: the Defendant pleaded that it was his freehold, upon which iſſue was joyned, and the Jury found a ſpecial verdict, ſc. That the Plaintifs Anceſtors was ſeiſed of 5 acres of lands in another County in fee, and the Anceſtor of the Defendant of the ſaid 3 acres in fee; and an exchange was by word betwixt them, without deed, ſc. That the Plaintifs Anceſtor ſhould have the 3 acres of Meadow in fee, and the Defendants Anceſtor the ſaid 5 acres of lands, by force whereof each of them did enter, and continued it all their life times, and died ſeiſed, after whoſe death the Plaintif entred into both, upon whom the Defendant entred in the Meadow, and was ſeiſed 4 weeks before the Treſpaſſe, and digged, &c. And prayed the opinion of the Juſtices by the Statute of Weſt. 2. cap. 30. Hankford, you are not now in an Aſſize, for your charge is but to ſay, who was Tenant of the Freehold the time of the treſpaſſe ſuppoſed, ſo that you have nothing to do whether the entry be congeable or not; for which cauſe the Jury found for the Deſendant, and upon that Judgment was given. By which it appeareth, that upon the ſaid collateral iſſue of his Freehold a ſpecial verdict could not be given: And that this caſe was out of the Act of Weſt. 2. cap. 30. which Act was cited in the ſame book. And in an Attaint in 8 E. 4. 29. [b] The Jurors asked if they might give their verdict at large, as in an Aſſiſe, and the Juſtices ſaid that they could not, 9 H. 7. 5. Brian chief Juſtice held, That in Reſcous, which is a writ conceived upon a ſpecial matter, ſc. the tenure, diſtreſs, and reſcous, the verdict ſhall not be given at large, although the general iſſue be pleaded. So in debt, which always doth comprehend certainty, although that rien luy doit be pleaded, the verdict ſhall not be given at large, becauſe that theſe and the like writs, which comprehend certainty, are out of the miſchief of the ſaid Statute. But the Statute doth extend to Treſpaſſe, becauſe the writ is as general as the Aſſiſe, becauſe the plaint and Count in them are general; for which cauſe the verdict ſhall be given at large, and that is by the Statute, but in no ſpecial caſe where the matter is ſpecially counted, no verdict at large. And 9 H. 7 19. Fairfax holdeth, That in no caſe where the iſſue is joyned upon a certain point, the verdict ſhall be at large, but in Treſpaſſe, which is a general Writ, if the Defendant pleadeth, Not guilty, the Jurors may give their verdict at large; And ſo in an Aſſize upon Nul tort nul diſſeiſin, the Jury may give their verdict at large. So in 23 H. 8. br. verdict 85. The Court of Common Pleas cannot ſuffer verdicts at large in a writ of Entrie in the nature of an Aſſize, becauſe it is a Precipe, and comprehendeth certainty. And in the Reports of the Lord Dyer, now newly printed, Paſc. 11. Eliz. 283, 284. In an Aſſize betwixt Butler and Crouche for lands in the County of Somerſet, upon an abſque hoc, iſſue was taken upon a preſcription, upon which the Jury gave a ſpecial verdict, and it was reſolved by all the Judges of the Common Pleas in my Chamber, as the Lord Dyer reporteth, that upon this ſpecial iſſue by an Abſque hoc, and not a general iſſue, a preciſe verdict ought to be given of the one part or the other; which was a reſolution in the point, as it was ſtrongly urged, and doth over-rule the point now in queſtion. But it was reſolved by Sir Ed. Anderſon chief Juſtice, and all the Judges of the Bench, That the ſpecial verdict in the caſe at Barr was well found; They held, That in all Pleas, as well of the Crown as of common pleas, ſc. Actions real, perſonal and mixt, and upon all iſſues joyned, either between the King and the party, or between party and party, The Jury may find the ſpecial matter, which is pertinent, and tendeth only to the iſſue joyned, upon which being doubtful to them in Law, they may pray the opinion of the Court. And that they may do by the Common Law, which hath ordained, That matters of fact ſhall be tryed by Jurors, and matters in Law by the Judges: and as ad queſtionem facti non reſpondenet Judices, ita ad quæſtionem Juris non reſpondent Juratores; but their duty is [13] to find the truth of the fact, and to referr the diſcuſſion of the Law to the Juſtices, and therefore their finding is called Veredictum, quaſi dictum veritatis, the telling of truth, and the cenſure of the Judges

Judges is called Judicium, quaſi Juris dictum. 1. Ipſa viva vox Juris, The ſaying of the Law, and the wiſdom of the Law was to referr things to perſons in which they had knowledge, and experience, and were expert, according to the ancient rule, Quod quiſque norit in hoc ſe exerceat. And therefore the Law will not compel neither the Jurors, who have not knowledge in the Law, to take upon them the knowledge of the points of the Law, either in caſes which concern life or member, or inheritance, freehold, goods, or chattels, but to leave them to the conſideration of the Judges; nor the Juſtices of Aſſiſe, nor any other Judges, be it in Pleas of the Crown, or Common Pleas, to give their opinions of queſtions and doubts in Law upon the ſudden; but in ſuch caſe to have the truth of the caſe found, and upon conference and conſideration to adjudge according to the Law in ſuch caſes. And therefore it was reſolved, That the ſaid Act of Weſt. 2. cap. 30. was but an affirmance of the Common Law; and the ſame appeareth by the Statute it ſelf, and by authorities in Law in all ſucceſſions of ages. And as to the Statute, the precedent and ſubſequent clauſes were conſidered. The precedent is, All Juſtices of the Benches from henceforth ſhall have in their Circuits Clarks to enroll all pleas pleaded before them, like as they have uſed to have in times paſt; which clauſe appeareth to be in affirmance of the Common Law. The ſubſequent is, And from henceforth the Juſtices ſhall not put in Aſſiſes or Juries, any other then were ſummoned to the ſame at firſt; for at the common Law they ought to come in by return of the Sheriff. And ſo the middle clauſe touching the point in queſtion, That the Juſtices ſhall not compel Jurors to ſay preciſely, &c. was but a Declaration of the Common Law, as well for the Relief of the Jurors, which upon their oath ſhall not be compelled to find at their peril things doubtful to them in Law, but alſo for a good Caveat to Juſtices of Aſſiſe and othes Judges, that they do not upon the ſudden overrule Queſtions in Law, for every Judge ought in giving of his Judgement in doubtful caſes avoid 2. things, ſcil. Præcipitationem quia ad pœnitentiam properat citò qui judicat: & moroſam cunctationem, ſc. when the Law is determined, either to make a Queſtion in Law where none is, or to delay the party, which is in effect a denying of Juſtice. And for the better direction of Judges in ſuch caſes, and for the advancement of Common right it is enacted by the next chapter following, ſc. 31. When any one ſhall plead before any Juſtices; and doth put in an Exception, ſc. a matter which he ſuppoſeth will ſerve him in Law, and requireth that the Juſtices doe allow it, which if they will not allow, and he who ſhall put in the Exception doth write the Exception and requireth the Juſtices to put their ſeal in witneſs thereof, the Juſtices ſhall put their ſeals thereunto, &c. And that was to prevent precipitation of Judges in over-ruling (ex improviſo) Queſtions in Law: For it is a good Rule in the 9. Chapter of Judges, Conſider, conſult, and then give Judgement. See for the Bill of Exception, 9 Aſſ. p. 8. 11 H. 4. 52. 65. 92. 21 E. 4. 11. Regiſter 182. Book Entries, tit. Error in the diviſion of Exception.

For authorities in Law touching the 2. point of the caſe now in Queſtion, and 1. of ſpecial Verdicts given in Criminal Cauſes, or in Caſe of Indictment at the Kings ſute; or an Appeal at the ſute of the party, 3 E. 3. Itinere North. Coron. 284. S. was indicted of the death of N. and arreigned upon it, and pleaded Not guilty, and the Jury gave a ſpecial Verdict to this effect, That a Contention was betwixt them, whereupon N. now dead ſtroke S. with a ſtaff on the head, ſo that he fell to the ground, and the ſaid S. preſently when he aroſe fled as far as he could, and the ſaid N. followed him with the ſaid Staff to kill him if he could, and drave him to a wall betwixt 2. houſes, beyond which he could not by any means go; and when he perceived the ſaid N. would have killed him with the ſaid ſtaff, and that he could not avoid his own death, unleſs he defended himſelf, he took a poll-axe, and ſtruck the ſaid N. upon the head, ſo that he preſently died thereof, &c. Whereupon the Jury ſaid, that the ſaid S. did kill the ſaid N. in his own defence, and not by any felony or before-thought malice, &c. And this verdict finding the ſpecial matter, was received, and he had his pardon of courſe; and therewith agreeth 3 E. 3. Coron. 286. 43 Aſſ. p. 31. 26 H. 8. 5. 44 E. 3. 44. In an Appeal of death againſt William Halbener, he pleaded Not guilty; and the Jury found a ſpecial Verdict at large, ſc. That the dead ſtroke the Defendant on the neck, ſo that he fell to the ground, and when the Defendant was upon the ground, the the dead drew forth his knife to have killed the Defendant; and the Defendant lying upon the ground drew forth his knife, and the dead was ſo haſty to have killed the Defendant, that he fell upon the Defendants knife, and ſo killed himſelf. And it was adjudged, That for as much as the dead killed himſelf in this manner, it was adjudged upon this ſpecial verdict, that the Defendant was [14] not guilty, and his goods not forfeited. Vide Fitz. Coron. 94. and therewith agreeth 44 Aſſ. p. 17. 45 E. 3. 20. In a Formedon the Demandant counted of a gift made to I. de C. in Frankmariage with Johan Siſter of the Donor, the Defendant pleaded, That the Tenements were given in Feeſimple, and traverſed, that he gave them not as the Writ did ſuppoſe. And afterwards by Niſi prius before Wichingham and Chl're a Deed was ſhewed in Evidence that the Donor gave to I. de C. in liberum maritagium tenementa præd. cum Johanne ſorore ſua, To have and to hold tenementa præd. præd. Johanni & Johannæ, & hæredibus ſuis imperpetuum; and becauſe that ſome words contained in the ſaid Deed are in liberum maritagium, and ſome are in feodo ſimplici the Jurors cannot judge the truth, and pray the opinion of the Juſtices thereupon. And upon this ſpecial Verdict found at length, Judgement was given againſt the Demandant, becauſe a Feeſimple, and not an eſtate in Franckmariage doth paſs by the Deed. By which Judgement it appeareth, That in a Writ which comprehendeth certainty (as in a Formedon) a ſpecial Verdict may be given. Vide 16 E. 3. Verdict 21. 42 E. 3. in Dower, 47 E. 3. 19. in Præcipe quod reddat, upon an iſſue collateral to the point of the writ. 30 E. 3. & 9 H. 7. 3. in Reſcous, 41 E. 3. 10. in Accompt. 40 E. 3. 2. in Debt. 28 H. 8. Dyer 32. *in Debt. Note, Reader, In all Cases when Jurors find the special matter doubtfull in Law pertinent and tending to the Issue which they are to try, there the Court ought to accept of it, but when they find matter at large which is not pertinent, and tending to the Point in Issue, upon which they are to give their Verdict, there the Court ought to disallow of it, as impertinent to the Issue, and to their charge. And upon this Difference the Books which have some shew of contrariety are reconciled. For example, in the Case of 7 Hen. 4. 11. the Issue in Trespas, being joined upon the Freehold at the time of the Trespas, forasmuch as it is found that the Plaintiff did enter in the said three acres of meadow, upon whom the Defendant entred, and was seised by four weeks before the Trespas, although they found an exchange by word of Lands in several Counties which was void in Law, so as the Entry of the Plaintiff was lawfull; yet the issue being joined upon the Freehold at the time of the Trespas; Hankford said to the Jury, in such case, according to Law, scil. Your Charge was but to say, who was Tenant of the Freehold the day of the Trespas; so whether the Entry [b] of the Plaintiff be lawfull or not, you have nothing to doe; for which cause the Jury found for the Defendant. Which Book proveth, That the Jurors cannot find special matter which is not within their charge, and with which, having regard to the Issue joined, they have nothing to doe: by which it is strongly implied, That if the special matter had been within their charge, and tending to the Issue, with which they have to doe, that it shall be allowed. And in the said Book of 7 E. 4. 29. it doth not appear what was the Issue, nor what special matter they would have found, and therefore is to be intended according to the said difference. And as to the opinions in 9 H. 7. in the same Case there is difference of opinions, and therefore are to be reconciled as aforesaid. And as to the opinion of 11 Eliz. in the same Case there was other clear matter to stay the Judgment, and the opinion which was conceived in this Point, was in cubiculo meo, without any open argument, and therefore if it shall not be intended according to this difference, it had not any warrant of any Book ruled in the Point, but against all the said Judgments and Authorities in Law in all successions of ages; and afterwards Judgment was given in the principal Case as followeth, Scilicet, At which day came as well the said Tho. Dowman and Eliz. as the said Ed. Vavasor and George Vavasor, &c. by their said Attorneys; and thereupon the Premises being seen and well understood, it seemed to the said Justices, that the said Indentures after the said Recovery in form aforesaid had and made by the said Peter Vavasor was good and sufficient in Law to lead and declare the uses of the said Recovery of the Tenements aforesaid put in view, &c. And that the Recovery aforesaid by the said Andrew Windsor, &c. against the said Peter Vavasor, Esquire, in form aforesaid had, was to the uses in the said Bar of the said Ed. Vavasor above specified in manner and form as the said Ed. in his Bar aforesaid alleged. And therefore it was adjudged, That the said Thomas Dowman and Eliz. his Wife should take nothing by their Writ, sed sint in misericordia pro falso clamore suo. Et prædicti Defendentes eant inde sine die. After the said Resolution in the Court of Wards, Dowman, not satisfied with it, brought the said Writ of Assise after the death of the said Sir James Dyer, Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, who was a Judge of deep knowledge and judgment in the Laws of the Land, and chiefly in the form of good Pleading, and of the true Entry of Judgments, &c. and of a great Piety and Sincerity, who from his Heart abhorred all manner of Corruption and Deceit, of a bountifull and generous disposition, and a Patron and Preserver of men learned in the Laws and expert Clerks; of singular Sedulity and Conversation, [19] as appeareth by his Book of Reports, all written with his own hands, and of a fair, reverend, and venerable Countenance and Personage. And according to the said differences it was resolved Mich. 44 & 45 Eliz. by the two Chief Justices Popham and Anderson, and Periam Chief Baron, and Justice Gawdie, in the Case of John Littleton, Esquire, which was referred to them by the Commandment of Queen Elizabeth. And so was it resolved by all the Judges of the Common Pleas, Mich. 9 Jacobi, upon an Evidence to a Jury at Bar on the Case of Sir Richard Champernon, who claimed the whole Inheritance of Charles late Earl of Devonshire, That Indentures subsequent were sufficient to direct the Uses of a Fine precedent against the Earl and his Heirs; for the Reasons and Causes, and with the Cautions aforesaid.

Anna Bedingfield's Case.

ANne Bedingfield, late Wife of Ed. Bedingfield, Esquire, (Son and Heir of Henry Bedingfield, of [b] Oxborough in the County of Norfolk, Knight,) brought a Writ of Dower against Tho. Bedingfield, Son and Heir of the said Edmond, to be endowed of the Manors of Oxborough, Nelton, and many other Manors, Lands, and Tenements in the County of Norfolk of a great yearly value, &c. And in this Case divers Points were resolved by the Court of Common Pleas. 1. That where in the said Writ the said Tho. cast an Essoin, it was challenged, because that by the Statute de essoniis calumniandis, it is enacted, That Essoin doth not lie in a Writ of Dower: But, because that the Common Essoin hath been alwaies allowed in a Writ of Dower, for this cause the Justices did construe the Statute to extend to an Essoin of the King's service, and not to a Common Essoin; and so much the rather, because the said Act doth add a Reason of the Purview, scil. Because it seemeth to be but a Deceit and a delay of right; and that is properly to be intended of an Essoin of the King's service, which is a delay and prorogation of right by a year. Vide 4 Ed. 3. 36. 4 Ass. pl. 2.

[16] Litt. 5 E. 4. 70. Then the said Tho. purchased a Writ out of the Chancery called a Writ of Circumspectè agatis, setting forth, That where the said Edmund was seised of the Manor of Nection in the County of Norfolk in fee, and held the same of the King in Chief by Knights-service, and died thereof seised, the said Tho. of full age, as by a certain Inquisition it is found, &c. by reason whereof the King hath seised as well the said Manor, as the Manors of Oxborough, Ashil, &c. and because the Queen was bound to restore the Tenements, tam integrè, &c. as they came to her hands, for this cause it was Commanded to the Judges to surcease Domina Regina inconsulta: It was resolved, That this Writ, which is in the nature of an Aid prayer of the King, cannot extend to any Manors not found in the Office, because the Queen by the Law cannot seise more Manors then are comprised within the Office. And as to the Manor of Nection, which appeareth by the Writ to be only found in the Office, the Case was well debated at the Bar and Bench. And the Counsel of the Tenant cited the Books of 8 E. 3. 15. 18 E. 3. 38. 19 E. 3. Aid de le Roy 64. 39 E. 3. 8. 46 E. 3. 19. 11 H. 4. 39. 5 H. 5. 1. & 12 R. 2. br. 646. 9 H. 6. 40. F. N. B. 163. f. 154. d. by which it appeareth, that where the Heir is within age, and in Ward to the King, and committed over, and is impleaded, or cometh in as Vouchee in a Writ of Dower, that Aid of the King shall be granted; And although that in the Case at Bar, it appeareth by the Office mentioned in the Writ, that the Heir was of full age at the time of the death of his Ancestor, yet the same will not make any difference; For the King, when he hath the primer seisin, may as well endow the Wife in the Chancery, as where the Heir is within age, and in his Ward. And the same appeareth by the Statute of Prærogativa Regis, cap. 4. The King shall assign to Widows after the death of their Husbands, that held of him in chief, the Dower that to them belongeth, &c. though the Heir be of full age, &c. And upon these authorities and reasons the Court gave day the same Term to the Demandant, to shew cause wherefore the Writ should not be allowed. At which day the Serjeants of the Demandant's Councel (a Pleader of the Inner-temple being present and also of Councel in the cause) shewed cause to the Court wherefore the said Writ should not be allowed. They agreed, That in all the said Books Aid was granted of the King in a Writ of Dower brought against the Heir, or when the Heir was vouched within age, being in Ward to the King; and it ought also to be confessed, that the granting of it, if it were not grantable in Law, is no Error. But it is enacted by the Statute de Bigamis,

[b] cap. 3. concerning the Dower of Women, where any Gardians of the Inheritance of their Husbands have the custody, by the Gift or Grant of the King; whether such Gardians be Tenants of the thing in demand, or the Heirs of such Lands be vouched to Warranty; if they except that they cannot answer without the King, the Justices shall not surcease, but shall proceed therein according to right; which Statute is not vouched or remembred in any of the said Books, and is express in the Point, that in such Cases be the Heir Tenant or Vouchee, they shall not surcease but proceed in the Cause; which is so well penned, that it extendeth as well to the said Writ of Circumspectè agatis, as to Aid prayer. And in 4 H. 7. 1. Aid le Roy, 33. in Dower against the Committee of the King, during the nonage of the Heir, the Defendant shewed, how it was found by Office, that the Father of the Husband of the Demandant was seised in fee of certain Lands, and held them of the King, and had Issue the Husband, and died; and the Husband entred, and died, his Heir within age, without any Livery, and all this matter was found by Office, for which the King seised and committed it to the Defendant. Judgment if Action? and thereupon was a Demurrer. And it was adjudged that she should be endowed: and there Sir Tho. Brian Chief Justice Justice of the Common Pleas, which gave the Rule in the said Case, said, it appeareth that Right is in the King, wherefore we will proceed no farther without Aid of the King, wherefore sue to the King. But when Townsend Justice cited the said Statute de Bigamis, which ousted the Party of Aid in that Case; Brian, having consideration of the said Act, did alter his opinion, and discharged him of suing to the King, and awarded, that the Demandant should recover her Dower. Omnia habere in memoria & in nullo penitus errare, potius est deitatis, quam humanitatis. And if the said Statute had not been remembred, the Aid also had been granted in 4 H. 7. as it had been in the said Books. But to make a full answer to the Case in question, Distinguenda sunt tempora; & concordabis leges. The said Statute de Bigamis was enacted at a Parliament holden 4 Ed. 1. And the Statute of Prærogativa Regis was made 17 Ed. 2. And before the Statute of Prærogativa Regis, the King, when the Heir was of full age, had but primer seisin capiendo exitus, &c. as it is said in the said Chapter next before; and in such Case the King is not Gardian, and therefore cannot endow the Wife at the Common Law. For as a Writ of Dower lay against Gardian in Chivalry, during the minority of the Heir, or the Gardian might endow her without any Sute, during the minority of the Heir, if he would; but after full age, although that he held over the Land for the value of the Marriage, no Writ of Dower lay against him, nor could he endow the Wife, because that after full age of the Heir he was not Gardian, and none

[17] who hath but a Chattel (except the Gardian only) can endow the Wife of a Freehold, neither did a Writ of Dower, which is a real Action, lie against him, as appeareth in 6 E. 3. 16. he ought to be Gardian, and named Gardian, and a Writ of Dower brought in such Case against the heir within age, shall abate, for it ought to be brought against the Gardian, and therewith agreeth 17 E. 3. 79. 9 H. 6. 6. b. Vide E. 1. Dower 861. 8 E. 3. 63. Dower lieth against Gardian within age, and against the Heir at full age, 46 E. 3. 19. 7 E. 3. 10. 9 E. 4. 31. and in 8 E. 3. 15. a Woman brought a Writ of Dower against Henry Bolton as Gardian in Knights-service, who pleaded, that he had

The Case of Avowry.

IN the Case of in the King's Bench, this Point was principally moved and debated, [20] that is to say; If there be Lord and Tenant by fealty and rent, and the Tenant maketh a Lease for years, and the Lessor hath done fealty, and paid the rent continually, and yet the Lord distraineth the Cattel of the Lessee for the rent, when in truth none is behind, and avoweth upon a meer stranger which never had any thing, as his very Tenant for the arrerages of the rent, if the Lessee shall be without remedy in this Case. And the opinion of Priscot, 34 H. 6. 46. was objected, where he holdeth, That if there be Lord, Mesne, and Tenant, and the Lord avoweth upon a stranger, and not upon the Mesne, the Tenant is without remedy: And so if a Termor bringeth a Replevin, and he avoweth upon another than the Lessor, the Termor is without remedy: And that the common opinion of our Books is, That a stranger unto an avowry shall not plead that nothing is behind; or a tenure by lesser services, or any other Plea, but only out of his fee, or a thing which doth amount to asmuch. 17 E. 3. 14, 15. 34 E. 3. Avowry 257. 38 E. 3. Avowry 61. 39 E. 3. 34. 43 E. 3. 13. 2 H. 6. 1, & 54. 34 H. 6. 21. 35 H. 6. 51. 37 H. 6. 23. 38 H. 6. 23. 7 E. 4. 10. 13 E. 4. 6. 14 H. 8. 4. 26 H. 8. 6. & 22 H. 6. 2. b. it is said, That it is a Position in Law, That a stranger to an avowry shall not plead, but out of his fee, &c. It was also objected, That Lessee for years could not pray in aid of his Lessor, and so make himself party to plead, because that the Lessor is a stranger to the avowry, and the Lessee might plead as much as the Lessor himself might, and that is, ought of his fee. And so are the Books in 18 E. 3. 7. 17 E. 3. 9. 34 E. 3. Avowry 258. 3 E. 2. Aid 151. 6 E. 4. 3, 12 E. 4. 5. 5 H. 5. 5. 2 H. 7. 10. 8 H. 7. 8. &c. If not [b] that the Lessee maketh his Lessor privie in Estate to him, upon whom the avowry was made. Vide 3 E. 2. Avowry 186.

Yet it was resolved, That the Lessee for years shall be by Law relieved in this Case; And for the better understanding of the Law in this Case, two differences in Law were observed. First, (as hath been said) a stranger to an avowry shall plead nothing, but out of his fee, or some thing which doth amount to as much. And the same is true as to the pleading of any matter in bar of the avowry; but the right Tenant, although he be a stranger to the avowry, yet being made party he shall plead matter in abatement of the avowry, as it shall appear. Another difference is, when the Lessee for years, or for life, shall have aid of one who is a stranger to the avowry, and when not; For upon a general allegation, that such a one a stranger was seised in fee and leased to him for life or years, he shall not have aid, as the Books before cited prove, because it shall be in vain in such case to grant aid, when the Lessee may plead out of his fee: But upon special matter disclosed, he shall have aid of his Lessor, who is very Tenant. And there if the Lessee in such case allege, that his Lessor was, and yet is seised of the Tenancy in his demesne, as of fee, and held the same of the Lord by the services, &c. of which services the Lord hath been, and yet is seised by the hands of the Lessor, as by the hands of his very Tenant, and that the Tenant hath leased the Land to him, and that the Lord, to charge the Plaintiff unjustly, hath avowed upon one, who hath nothing in the Tenancy; and thereupon he prayeth in aid of his Lessor; in this Case, upon this special matter, he shall have aid, because without his Lessor he cannot plead this matter in abatement of the avowry, nor the Lord shall be compelled to avow upon the Lessor: and by this special matter there appeareth true privity in estate and seignorie betwixt the right Tenant and the Lord, so that there wanteth no privity in this case, nor the Law will not esteem him who is true Tenant in Law to be a stranger to the Lord; and the false avowry of the Lord upon the stranger who is not Tenant shall not hurt the Lessee against the truth of the Case, quia veritas nihil veretur nisi abscondi. And the Law shall never suffer a falsity to suppress the truth. And the same is well proved by the Books cited before; as, taking one for Example, in the Book of 18 E. 3. 7. [21]
the Case was such, A. brought a Replevin against William Weylond, who avowed for a Rent-service upon the issue in tail; the Plaintiff shewed, That a stranger to the avowry leased to him for life, and prayed in aid of him, and was ousted of the aid because the Lessor could not plead more than the Lessee, because they are both strangers; but there upon special matter pleaded he shall have aid of him, to the end that both may join in a Plea of abatement of the avowry, which the Lessee himself alone shall not plead: For the Lessee to have aid may say, That the Donor before the Statute infeoffed the Donee in fee to hold of him, and that the Lessor is Assignee to the Feoffee and hath tendred the services, and compel the Lord to avow upon him. To which Sir Richard Wilby Chief Justice, who giveth the Rule, saith, Plead you this matter if you will have aid. Which Case proveth both the differences, scil. That a stranger to any avowry shall compell the Avowant to avow upon him: which is as much as to say, That he shall abate the avowry made upon him who hath nothing, and compell the Lord to avow upon him who is his right and true Tenant. 2. That upon such special matter which tendeth to drive the Lord to avow upon his very Tenant, it shall have aid of a stranger to the avowry: And the Law requireth, That the Lord alwaies avow upon him who is his Tenant in right and in Law, and to doe it the Lord shall be compelled by special pleading, and therewith agreeth Littleton 106. in the Chapter of Releases, That if the Tenant be disseised, and the Lord taketh Cattel of the Disseisee, and he sueth a Replevin, and the Lord avoweth upon the Disseisor who is Tenant in possession, the Disseisee by pleading of the special matter shall abate the Lord's avowry upon the Disseisor, and compell him to avow upon him, because that the Disseisee is Tenant to him in Right and in Law. Vide 20 H. 6. 9. b. by Newton, 48 E. 3. 8. by Fitz. à fortiori, in the principal Case, when the Lord avoweth upon one who hath nothing, upon the special matter shewed the Lessor shall join in Aid to the Lessee, and shall abate the Avowry made upon him who hath nothing, and drive the Lord to avow upon his Tenant in Right and in Law; and therewith agreeth 4 E. 3. 50, 51. Hugh de Luche brought a Replevin of his Cattel against Will. de Stringland, who avowed upon three Sisters, as Daughters and Heirs of Alice Sager, by reason that they held of him certain Tenements by Homage, Fealty, and Escuage, and by the Services of 10 s. by the year, &c. and for Homage behind he avowed. To which the Plaintiff said, True it is, that Alice Sager held of him the said Tenements by Fealty, and 6 d. by the year for all Services; [b] and that Alice did enfeoff us of the same Tenements, and we have oftentimes tendred to you our Fealty. Judgment, if you can avow upon another than upon us, or for more Services than, &c. To which Plea in Abatement of the Avowry exception was taken, because the Plaintiff was a Stranger to the Avowry. To which it was answered and resolved, That the Plaintiff was privy enough, because he was Tenant to the Land and hath rendred the Services: and there it is expresly said, That the Issue de cest avowry ne se puit prender sur le droit des services, but to abate the Avowry, and to drive the Lord to avow upon the Plaintiff, and then might they plead to the Right of the Services. 48 E. 3. 8. by Finchden, & 16 E. 3. Avowry 90. acc. Vide 39 E. 3. 34. & 10 H. 6. 26. 31 E. 3. Avowry 111. à fortiori, when the Lord shall avow upon one who hath nothing in the Land, he who is the very Tenant, and by whom the Lord hath received the Services, shall compell him (as Linl. saith) to avow upon him. Vide 9 H. 5. 15. and in 34 E. 3. Avowry 258. the Plaintiff was ousted of Aid, because he did not shew the special matter to give him cause of Aid. And in this Point the Law is curious; for although the Lord doth avow upon the right person, yet if he doth not convey to him his true Title to the Land, his Avowry shall abate; and therefore if a man avoweth upon one as Heir to his Mother, where he is Heir to his Father, his Avowry shall abate. 13 E. 3. Avowry 102. & 11 H. 4. 24. 10 E. 4. Avowry 193. 3 E. 3. 69. Vide 27 E. 3. 88. So if in a Replevin the Defendant avoweth upon the Plaintiff as his very Tenant, the Plaintiff in Abatement of the Avowry may say, That he hath nothing but for terme of life of the Lease of W. the Reversion now to his Son and Heir, and pray in aid of him, to the intent that he drive the Lord to avow upon him who is his Tenant in Law; and therewith agreeth 3 Hen. 6. 12, 13. and Fitz. in abridging of the Case, Aid 57. saith, that this Plea doth goe in Abatement of the Avowry; and for this Cause by the Rule of the Book he had Aid of a Stranger to the Avowry. Vide 15 Edw. 3. Aid 33. Tenant in Dower had Aid of the Heir in Reversion, who was a Stranger to the Avowry. And the great wisedom and policy of the Law was observed, which hath provided for remedy in this Case. For in Avowry for Rent-service, &c. the Plaintiff being Tenant for years, or for life, shall have Aid of his Lessor before Issue joined, because without him the Lessee cannot plead, as appeareth in 2 H. 5. 1. 7 E. 4. 23. 6 E. 4. 3. 21 E. 3. 12. 13 Eliz. Dyer 229. to the end the rightfull and very Tenant joyning with him, may abate the feigned Avowry made upon him who hath nothing, or upon one who is not rightfull Tenant, and drive the Lord to avow upon him who is Tenant in Law: And it should be great absurdity, and defect in the Common Law, if the false and feigned Avowry upon him who hath nothing should charge the Termor with Arrerages of Rent where none was due; [22] and the Law of England, non patitur absurdum: And if any defect hath been in the Law, as it was objected, the Makers of the Act of 21 H. 8. cap. 19. would have provided Remedy as well for the Tenant, and all Lessees and other Strangers to the Avowry against the Lords, as they made for the Lords against the Tenants and their Lessees, as appeareth by the Preamble, and not to have bound the Tenants, Lessees, &c. and left the Lords at liberty. And it was said at the Bar, that in some case the Lord was left to the Common Law, and could not avow within the Act of 21 H. 8. and that is, when the Lord cometh to distrein, and seeth the Cattel upon the Tenancy, and the Tenant driveth them off into other Land not holden, and the Lord freshly followeth them and distreineth there, as he well may, as it is holden in 44 E. 3. 20. 6 R. 2. Rescous 11. 11 H. 7. 4. 21 H. 7. 40. 34 H. 6. 18. 16 E. 4. 10. that this Case is out of the said Statute, because that the Purview is, If the Lord distrein upon the same Manors, Lands, or Tenements, &c. that the Lord of whom the same Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments have been so holden, may avow as within his fee and seigniory, and the Distress is taken in Lands not holden of him, nor in his Fee and Seigniory, and therefore this Case is out of the said Act. But it was resolved, that this Case is within the Purview of the said Act; for, 1. it is cleerly within the mischief within the Preamble, and the Act is made to suppress Fraud: 2. upon the matter the Distress is taken upon the Land holden, for the Lord cannot distrein out of his Fee, but the View of the Lord and his fresh Sute maketh the Distress to be in Judgment of Law taken within his Fee, or a thing which amounteth to as much; and as Thorp saith in 44 E. 3. 20. the taking shall alwaies refer to the first place, and it shall be inconvenient that the Act of the Tenant himself, (against which the Act was made) shall make the good Act to little or no effect. But Note, Reader, If one cometh to distrein for Damage feasant, and seeth the Cattel, and the Owner driveth them off, he cannot distrein them Damage feasant, but is put to his Action of Trespass. 16 E. 4. 10. and 2 E. 2. Avowry 182. For there the Cattel ought to be Damage feasant at the time of the Distress, and so a Difference.

And as to the other Case which Prisot putteth, scil. If there be Lord, Mesne, and Tenant, and the Lord avoweth upon a Stranger, and not upon the Mesne, the Tenant is without remedy; It was strongly urged, that that was good Law for the Tenant upon some special Pleading, as in the [b] Case of the Lessee, cannot have aid of the Mesne, because he is Tenant in Fee-simple, and the Mesne cannot join with him, because he is a Stranger to the Avowry, for the Mesne shall never join with the Tenant, but when the Avowry is made upon the Mesne: And both these Points are resolved in nothing but a Leaſe for ſix years, of the Leaſe of John Mowbray Gardian of the Lands. Judgment of the Writ. And there it is holden, that the Writ of Dower doth not lie againſt him in reſpect of the Poſſeſſion, if he be not Gardian; for which cauſe the Demandant did maintain that he was Gardian, 2 E. 3. 15. A Writ of Dower brought againſt Tenant by Elegit ſhall abate, 8 Ed. 2. bre. 809. Dower was brought againſt Tenant for years, and abated by award, but there Beresford ſaith, it is good againſt a Gardian, becauſe he anſwereth in the name of the Heir. So the King when the Heir is of full age, could not have endowed the Wife, becauſe he is not Gardian, but hath in effect the Profits of the Land but for one year, and therefore the makers of the Statute of Bigamis, 4 E. 1. If the King could have endowed the Wife when the Heir was of full age, they would have outted delays in ſuch caſe as they did, and à fortiori, that when the Heir was within age. But at this time, ſcil. 4 E. 4. the King, when the Heir was of full age, could not endow the Wife; but ſuch Power as he hath was given to him by the Statute of Prærogativa Regis, made in 17 Edw. 2. long time after; which Act of Prærogativa Regis, although it gave Power to the King to endow the Wives, &c. licet hæredes fuere plenæ ætatis, yet the Statute addeth, ſi viduæ illæ voluerint; ſo as the Statute leaveth it to the election of the Wife, either to be endowed in the Chancery, or at the Common Law, and by conſequence the Writ of Dower (which is favoured in Law, and is to be likened to no other Præcipe) is not to be ſtayed by Aid prayer in that Caſe. Upon which the Court took adviſement and conſideration: And afterwards the Court, for the reaſons and cauſes aforeſaid, diſcharged the Tenant from ſuing to the Queen, and gave day, in the beginning of Eaſter Terme then next following, to plead an iſſuable Plea peremptorily. In which Terme the Defendant's Councel offered to plead Detainment of Charters by the Demandant, &c. which was in Eaſter Terme, and Trinity Terme following well argued at the Bar and Bench: And upon good advice and conſideration, theſe Points were reſolved by the Court.

1. The Charters ought to concern the Land whereof the Dower is demanded, and not other Lands deſcended to the Heir, vide 33 H. 6. 51. reſolved in the Point 22 H. 6. 42. And the Law in this Caſe well allowed. That this Rebutter of the Action is a good Plea in a Writ of Dower for two Cauſes. 1. The Charters are the Sinews of the Inheritance of the Heir of the Husband, and ſhe is not worthy to have Dower of the Inheritance of her Husband, who would wrongfully detain from his Heir (by whom ſhe is to be endowed) the muniments which might defend the ſaid Inheritance; For Charters are called Muniments, à muniendo, quia muniunt & defendunt Hereditatem. 2. There is a greater privity when a Wife is endowed of the immediate Eſtate, which the Heir of her Husband hath by deſcent, then when ſhe is endowed by a Stranger, or of another Eſtate; For if the Wife be endowed of the immediate Eſtate deſcended to the Heir of the Husband; if ſhe be after impleaded, ſhe ſhall vouch the Heir, and ſhall be new endowed of other Lands which the Heir hath; but if the Wife be endowed by the Alienee of the Husband, or of the Heir, if ſhe be impleaded, ſhe ſhall not vouch the Alienee to be newly endowed: And that is the cauſe that when a Woman bringeth a Writ of Dower againſt the Alienee of the Husband, &c. and he voucheth the Heir, the Demandant may witneſs that the Heir hath Lands deſcended to him in the ſame County (for the Original doth not extend to another County) and pray that ſhe may be endowed of his Eſtate, and that is for the benefit of her Voucher to be newly endowed, vide in 4 E. 3. 36. and in 6 E. 3. 11. the Tenant in a Writ of Dower vouched the Heir of the Husband; and the Demandant did teſtifie that he had by Deſcent, &c. in the ſame County; and Judgment was given againſt the Heir if he had, &c. and not againſt the Tenant. In 6 E. 3. 20. There the Wife of a Stranger brought a Writ of Dower, and the Tenant vouched the Heir, &c. The Demandant ſhall not recover againſt the Heir, becauſe there wanteth privity. In 18 E. 3. 36. in Dower the Tenant voucheth, and the Vouchee voucheth the Heir of the Husband of the Demandant; the Demandant doth teſtifie that the Heir hath Aſſets by deſcent in the ſame County, the Demandant ſhall not recover againſt the Heir, but againſt the Tenant only, for there is not immediate privity betwixt the Heir and the Demandant, for the Demandant ſhall recover againſt the Heir only, when the Tenant in Demeſn voucheth him. Vide Regiſt. Judic. 15. 16 E. 3. Dower 56. 3 Eliz. Dyer 202. And that is the reaſon that the Heir only ſhall plead Detainment of Charters, and not a Stranger, as ſhall be after ſaid. Vide Fitz. Na. Br. 8 E. 50 E. 3. 7. And the reaſon which Newton giveth in 22 H. 6. 42. that the Heir ſhall have this Plea of Detainment of Charters, &c. ſcil. that if the Heir had the Charters of his Lands, he might peradventure plead in Bar of her Dower, cannot be the reaſon thereof; For when the Heir hath pleaded that he hath been alwaies ready, and yet is to render Dower, &c. if the Demandant would render to him the Charters, it is a full confeſſion of the Action, if the Demandant delivereth the Charters, and therefore after the Charters delivered, the Heir ſhall plead no farther, but the Demandant ſhall preſently have Judgment, as more fully afterwards appeareth. [b] [18]

2. He who pleadeth this Plea ought to have the certainty of the Charters; whereupon a certain Iſſue may be joined, or that they are in a Cheſt or Box ſealed or unſealed; and in both Caſes an Action of Detinue may be grounded and brought by the Heir, 22 H. 6. 16. 2 H. 7. 6. 14 H. 6. 4. 21 E. 3. 8. 18 H. 8. 1.

No Stranger, although that he be Tenant of the Land, and hath the evidences conveyed to him, can in a Writ of Dower pretend Detainment of Charters, but this Plea lieth only in privity, ſcil. for the Heir of the Husband, as hath been ſaid. Alſo in divers Caſes the Heir ſhall be in degree of a Stranger, and therefore ſhall not plead Detainment of Evidences, and that he ſhall not doe it in five Caſes. 1. If the Heir hath the Land by Purchaſe. 2. If the Heir hath delivered the Charters to the Wife, he ſhall not plead Detainment of them, for that the Wife hath them by his own Act, as it is reſolved in 7 E. 3. Dower 101. 3. If the Heir be not immediately vouched by the Tenant in the Writ of Dower, but by his Vouchee, as hath been ſaid 18 E. 3. 36. 4. If the Heir cometh in as Vouchee, having no Lands in the County where the Dower is demanded. 5. If he cometh in as Tenant by receit, he ſhall not plead detainment of Charters, as appeareth in 16 E. 3. Dower 57. and in many other Books; and the reaſon thereof is manifeſt; if the true form of pleading in that caſe be well obſerved; For he who pleadeth detainment of Charters in bar of Dower, ought to plead, that he hath been alwaies ready, and yet is to render Dower, if the Demandant would deliver to him the Charters; and Tenant by receit, or ſuch Vouchee as is aforeſaid, cannot ſo plead, becauſe he cannot plead that he hath been alwaies ready to render Dower; when the Demandant cannot recover againſt the Heir in ſuch caſes either being Vouchee or reſerved, nor he cannot render to the Damandant the Dower which to her by the Law doth belong. But if a [b] man be ſeiſed of three acres in three Towns, ſcil. A. B. and C. in one County, and enfeoffeth a ſtranger of one acre with warranty, and dieth, now the Heir may aſſign to the Wife one acre in ſatisfaction of her Dower, as well in the acre whereof the ſtranger is enfeoffed, as of the other acre deſcended to the Heir, for by courſe of Law ſhe ſhall have Dower againſt the Heir, in diſcharge of all the Tenancy, as well that which he ought to warrant, as that which is deſcended to him in the ſame County, in which Caſe the Heir may agree with the Wife, as well out of Court as in Court, for that which by the Law he is bound to doe, and being vouched by the Feoffee in a Writ of Dower, he ſhall plead the ſame in bar, as it is adjudged in 33 E. 3. Judgment 154. and 8 E. 3. 69. Michael Treweneye's Caſe; and by the ſame reaſon in ſuch Caſe, the Heir being vouched ſhall plead detainment of Charters, &c. for he may well ſay, that he hath been alwaies ready, and yet is to render Dower to the Demandant, in diſcharge of the whole Tenancy in the ſame County; for by the Law, the Demandant ought to be entirely endowed againſt the Heir. And therewith alſo agreeth 17 E. 3. 58. where in Dower the Tenant vouched the Heir in Ward, the Guardian by the Warrant ſaid, That the Demandant did detain from him the Heir, whereas the Land is holden in Knights-ſervice, and if ſhe would render the Heir, he hath been alwaies ready, (note this) and yet is to render Dower: and the exception is taken to it, becauſe this Plea lieth not for him, but for him who alwaies after we were dowable, might have rendred Dower, and you could not before render: To which it was anſwered, That we are he againſt whom ſhe ſhall recover, and the Tenements hold in peace, and alwaies might have made agreement for that which we held, becauſe by the Law ſhe ſhall be ſerved of Dower of that which we held, ſo that ſuch Plea is given to us in lieu of Withernam. And it ſeemed to the Court, That the Gardian Tenant by the Warranty ſhould have ſuch Plea; whereupon the Demandant did traverſe the Eſſoinment of the Infant: In 8 E. 3. 55. In a Writ of Dower the Tenant made default after default; whereupon came one John, and ſaith, That the Tenant held for the term of his life of his leaſe, the reverſion being to him, and prayed to be received, and was received, and ſaid that he was Heir to the Husband of the Demandant, of [19] whom ſhe demanded Dower, and ſaid that ſhe detained two Charters touching his Inheritance, and ſhewed which, &c. and ſaid that if ſhe would render to him the Charters, he ſhall be ready to render her Dower, &c. And becauſe that Tenant by receit cannot render Dower, and he is a ſtranger, this Plea did not lie in his mouth. And thereupon ſeiſin of the Land was awarded to the Wife.

And ſo note two good Differences. 1. Between the Heir being immediate Vouchee, having Aſſets in the ſame County, and when he is vouched by a Vouchee, or when the Heir hath nothing but in a forein County; for in the firſt Caſe he may plead, That he was alwaies ready to render Dower, and in the other two not. 2. Between the Heir having Land in the ſame County, when he is immediately vouched, and when he is Tenant by receit; for in caſe of receit the Judgment ſhall be given againſt the Tenant, and not againſt the Heir, ſo that the Plea lieth not for him, ſcil. that he is yet ready to render Dower, for he cannot render to the Demandant her demand. See 7 Edw. 3. Dower 101. 6 Eliz. Dyer 230. 7 E. 2. Dower 130. 11 H. 3. ibid. 187. 45 H. 3. ib. 174. 14 H. 4. 30. 36 H. 6. 7. 41 E. 3. 11. 6 E. 3. 45.

4. In a Writ of Dower againſt Gardian in Knights-ſervice, he ſhall not plead detainment of Charters, for he cannot conclude his Plea, and if the Demandant will deliver him the Charters, &c. for the Charters which do concern the Inheritance of the Heir ſhall not be delivered to the Gardian, as it is adjudged in 10 E. 3. 49. But the Gardian in a Writ of Dower may plead detainment of the Heir by the Demandant, and that he hath been alwaies ready, &c. For the Ward doth belong to him; and if the Demandant doth detain the Ward, and doth not render him to the Gardian unmarried; or if ſhe rendreth him to him married, ſhe ſhall loſe her Dower, and therewith agreeth 8 E. 3. 70. 7 E. 3. 17. 22 H. 6. 16. 2 H. 7. 6. 17 E. 3. 56. 16 E. 2. Dower 144. vide what manner of Charters or Evidences the Demandant in Dower ought to detain, that the Heir may plead, &c. 41 E. 3. 11. 6 E. 3. 45. &c. And ſo all the Books in all theſe Points are well agreed. And when (in the Caſe at Bar) the Tenant perceived that if he ſhould plead ſuch Plea, that the Demandant might deliver the Charters in Court, and preſently pray Judgment upon his confeſſion, as appeareth in 10 E. 3. 49. 21 E. 3. 8. 9 E. 4. 47. &c. He waived the Pleas touching theſe matters. And in [b] Trinity Term, when the Demandant did expect that he would have confeſſed the Action; he pleaded, Ne unques accouple in loyal matrimony: Whereupon it was written to the Biſhop of Norwich, who certified, Quod infranominati Edmund. & Anna legitimo matrimonio copulati fuerunt. To which Certificate, being ſhort and direct to the Point, no exception was taken: whereupon the Demandant had Judgment, and divers parcels in demand aſſigned her in Dower, which the Demandant leaſed to divers perſons named by the Tenant, in conſideration of 1000 li. Fine, and 500 li. Rent per annum.

The

13 E. 4. 6. and in other Books, 31 E. 3. §Joinder in Aid, 14. 17 E. 3. 15. the Abbot of Furney's Case, and there is a defect observed in the Common Law in such Case, which is prayed to be amended and reformed by the Justices, as in other Cases to avoid mischief they have done. Vide 39 E. 3. 34. And it was resolved and agreed, That the opinion of Prisot in this Case is good in Law to the end that Prisot intended. For it is true that Prisot did intend that the Tenant is without remedy either to plead any Plea, or to plead Rien arere, &c. because he is a stranger to the Avowry; or by special Pleading to pray in aid of the Mesne, for as hath been said, he is Tenant in fee-simple, and cannot pray in aid of the Mesne, and the Mesne cannot join with him, because the Lord hath not avowed upon the Mesne; and therefore as to these three waies, the Tenant, as Prisot meaneth, is without remedy, and his opinion as to these is warranted by the said Books, but that the Common Law hath left the Tenant without remedy in such Case, it appeareth fully and commonly to the contrary in our Books. And therefore, when there is Lord, Mesne, and Tenant, and the Mesne payeth the Rent and doth the Services to the Lord, and yet the Lord distraineth the Tenant peravail for them, and impoundeth his Cattel, in this Case the Tenant may presently repair to his Mesne, and relate the Case to him, and pray him to acquit him: Now the Law hath given power to the Mesne to go to the Pound, and to take the Cattel of the Tenant peravail out of the Pound, and to put his own Cattel in the Pound in the stead of them, and to sue a Replevin, and so to make himself Party, and then if the Lord will avow upon the stranger, he may shew the truth of the matter, and abate his feigned avowry made upon the stranger, and compell the Lord for to avow upon him, as upon his very Tenant in Law. And although Not distreined in his default is a good Plea in a Writ of Mesne, yet if the Mesne will not doe it upon request, the Tenant upon the matter is distreined upon his default, as it is holden in 7 H. 4. 18. 4 Ed. 3. 35. 15 Ed. 3. Joinder in Aid 15. 17 E. 3. 44. 34 H. 6. 47. 13 E. 4. 6. and F. N. B. 136. b. And if the Lord will not suffer the Mesne in such Case to take the Cattel of the Tenant out of the Pound, he is a Trespassor ab initio; for he doth not use them according to the nature of a Distress, and therewith agreeth 13 E. 4. 6. But let the Tenant look to it, that in such Case he sue not forth a Replevin of his goods, and have deliverance of them, for that it shall be accounted his own folly that he doth not make request to the Mesne, as above. For then if the Lord shall avow upon a stranger, the Tenant is without remedy through his own default, but in such Case after the Tenant hath deliverance of his Cattel by a Replevin, if the Lord avoweth upon the Mesne, there the Tenant may request the Mesne to join with him to plead in his discharge, and if the Mesne will not, the Tenant may have a Writ of Mesne against him, and recover his damages: for now by matter ex post facto, he is distreined in his own default, as it is holden in 39 E. 3. 34. where the Case was, That Henry Percy was Lord paramount, Gilbert Umfrevill Earl of Angus, Mesne, and a Tenant peravail, of divers Manors, scil. 10 Towns, &c. the said Lord paramount did distrein the Tenant peravail, the Tenant pleaded a Release by Deed of the said Lord paramount to the Mesne, to hold by lesser services; & non potuit, because he was a stranger to the Avowry. And there it is holden, that the Tenant in such Case is at no mischief, for he might have required the Mesne upon the Avowry made to have joined with him in answer, and if he had come, they two might have joined in the Plea which the Tenant now pleads, and if the Mesne would not have joined with the Tenant, he might have against him a Writ of Mesne, and therein recovered damages against him; and if the Tenant doth not request the Mesne, it shall be accounted his own folly. And therewith agreeth 17 E. 3. 15. and 12 E. 4. 2. 7 E. 4. 19. And it is observed, that in such Case, the Mesne ought to join gratis, for there is no Process in Law to compell him to appear, as in the Case of Aid prayer, but only upon the Tenant's request he ought to appear gratis. And so may the Lessor upon whom a Avowry is made, join gratis with the Lessee, the Plaintiff in the Replevin, and therewith agreeth 45 E. 3. 7. & 39 H. 6. 7. [23]

Lastly, in the principal Case, If the Lessee (or the Tenant peravail in the Case of the Mesnalty) be present when the Lord or his Bailiff cometh to distrein, if nothing be behind, he may well make Rescous, and so relieve himself, as it was resolved in Bevil's Case, in the Fourth Part of my Reports. Vide 2 H. 4. 22. b. 8 H. 4. 1. 4 E. 6. br. Distress 75. By the Justices, 31 E. 3. Rescous 17. 39 E. 3. 45. 39 H. 6. 7. F. N. B. 102. 27 Ass. p. 51. and 28 Ass. p. 50. So that the Lessee, or Tenant peravail, hath a certain provision by the Law to relieve himself in the Cases aforesaid, if by his Laches or misdoing he do not prejudice himself. And forasmuch as notwithstanding the Statute of 21 H. 8. cap. 19. the Lord may at this day avow upon one person, as upon his very Tenant, according to the Common Law, (for the said Statute doth enact, That the Lord, &c. may avow, &c. as in lands within his fee and seigniory, which doth not take away the Common Law, but giveth a Liberty to the Lord to pursue the one or the other) I have thought necessary to report this Case, whereby all the said Books are reconciled, the Doubts well resolved, and no absurdity or mischief suffered, or not remedied, by the Common Law. The Case of the Abbot of Strata Marcella.

[23] IN a Quo warranto against Owen Vaughan for using these Liberties and Franchises amongst others, that is to say, To have Waifs, Straies, and Felons goods, &c. in Llanihangel in the County of Mountgomery; as to the Waifs and Straies, the Defendant claimed them by Prescription, and as to the Felons goods he pleaded, Quod Johan. nuper Abbas de Strata Marcella licite habuit & gavisus fuit infra Llanihangel præd. bona & catalla felonum, & ad usum suum proprium disposuit, usque 4 diem Febr. 27 H. 8. And pleaded the Statute of 27 H. 8. That all Monasteries under the yearly value of 200 li. were given to the King, in as large and ample manner as the Abbots, &c. then had, or ought to have them; and that the said Abby of Strata Marcella, and the Possessions thereof, were under the yearly value of 200 li. and pleaded also the Statute of 32 H. 8. cap. 20. by which it is enacted, That all liberties, privileges, and franchises, and temporal Jurisdictions which the late Owners of the said Abbyes, &c. have used or exercised lawfully, &c. within three months before the said Act of 27 H. 8. shall by the said Act of 32 H. 8. be revived, and shall be really and actually in the King, his heirs and successors; By force whereof King H. 8. was seised of the said Franchises, scil. To have Felons goods within Llanihangel aforesaid in his demesne as of fee in the right of his Crown, and so seised, and being also seised of the Manor of Tallerthege in Llanihangel, &c. in the said County, [b] (late parcel of the Possessions of the said Abby of Strata Marcella) granted by his Lett. Patents 37 H. 8. the said Manor to Sir Arthur Darcie, Knight, in fee, with general words, that is to say, tot, talia, tanta, hujusmodi, eadem & consimilia, libertates, franchesias, privilegia, jurisdictiones, &c. quot, qualia, quanta, & quæ dictus Abbas, &c. habuit, tenuit, sive gavisus fuit infra, &c. By force whereof the said Arthur was seised as well of the said Manor aforesaid, as of the Liberties, &c. aforesaid in fee; and so seised of the said Manor, did enfeoffe the Defendant in fee, (for although there were divers mean Conveyances, the same was the substance of the Case) and then he made a Conclusion for all his Plea, Et eo warranto clamat libertates, franchesias, & privilegia præd. tanquam Manerium præd. speciat. & pertinent. And upon this Plea, as to the Goods and Chattels of Felons, the Queen's Councel did demurr in Law. And it was argued on the part of the Queen, That the Defendants Claim to have the Goods and Chattels of Felons was insufficient for two Causes; 1. Because he doth not shew, That the Abbot had the Goods of Felons by Charter within Llanihangel; for by Prescription, or any usage, he could not have them. For although he shall not be driven to shew the Charter in Court, or to plead an Exemplification of it, because the Charter was made to a Stranger, yet he ought to have pleaded, That the Abbot had the said Franchise by Charter. 2. That the Substance of the Plea wanteth Trial; for the Effect of the Plea is, Quod præd. nuper Abbas licite habuit & gavisus fuit infra, &c. bona & catalla felonum, &c. And these two Points were often argued at the Bar in divers several Terms; and the Effect of the Arguments on the Queen's part, as to the first, was, That the Abbot could not have Felons goods by Prescription or Usage, but by Charter, quod fuit concessum per Curiam. See the Authorities, and the Reasons and Causes thereof in Foxley's Case, in the Fifth Part of my Reports; and thereupon it was inferred, that the Defendant ought to have pleaded in certain, That such King granted to some of the Predecessors of the Abbot, &c. or to the Abbot himself, to have Felons goods within the Town of Llanihangel, &c. and not that præd. Abbas habuit & gavisus fuit, &c. and chiefly in a Quo warranto, in which the Defendant ough to shew a full, perfect Title to himself. As to the second, it was objected, That the Plea was insufficient, because that every Plea ought to be triable, either by the Country, if it contain matter of Fact, or by the Justices if it contain matter in Law, or by the Record it self, if it consist in matter of Record, Plow. Com. 22. But this Plea is not tri-
[24] able by the Country for two Causes. 1. Because the Substance of the Issue doth consist upon matter of Record; for without matter of Record the Abbot could not have them, which cannot be tried by the Country, but the Law doth attribute so much honour and credit to them, that they shall be tried only by themselves, and not by the Country. Vide 37 Hen. 6. 21. Plow. Com. 7. & 23. 8 Eliz. Dyer 242. and Hind's Case in the Fourth Part of my Reports. 2. Matters in Law are not triable by the Country, no more then matters in Fact by the Justices, quia sicut ad quæstionem Facti non respondent Judices, ita ad quæstionem Juris non respondent Juratores. But in this Case the Defendant hath comprehended in his Plea, quod præd. nuper Abbas licitè gavisus fuit, &c. which tendeth to a matter in Law which is not enquirable by the Country, and yet the Defendant hath not shewed his Case in so certain and special manner, that the Court may judge whether the Abbot by the Law had Felons goods or not; and therefore it is agreed in 22 Edw. 4. 40. the Lord Lisley's Case. A man was bounden in an Obligation, and the Condition was, That if he came to B. on such a day, and there shewed to the Obligee or his Councel a sufficient discharge of the Annuity of 40 s. which he claimed out of two houses, &c. that then, &c. And in Debt upon this Obligation the Defendant pleaded, That he came to B. at the day aforesaid, and there offered to shew to the Plaintiffe's Councel a sufficient discharge to them, and they refused, upon which the Plaintiff did demurr in Law. And, after long Argument, it was adjudged, That the Plea was sufficient, for his Plea ought to have alleged what manner of Discharge he offered to shew, that is to say, a Release, or Unity of possession, or other matter of Discharge, upon which the Court might judge if it were were ſufficient or not. For the Country ſhall not enquire of it, but it ought to be adjudged by the Court, which the Judges cannot do, if the ſpecial matter be not ſhewed to them: but if the iſſue be taken, that the Obligor came not there, the ſame ſhall be tried by the Country, for the ſame is matter in fact, of which the Court hath not Conuſance, and all that appeareth in the ſaid book. Vide Plow. Com. 112. Amy Townſends caſe, and 159. b. in the Lady Hales caſe, &c.

And as to the Objection which may be made, that it ſhall be miſchievous to the Subject to drive him to ſhew, or to plead the Charters made to Abbots, Priors, &c. as well for the infinite ſearch of them, as for the impoſſibility to come to them, many of them being loſt, or defaced, or poſſeſſed by one only; To that it was Anſwered, that there is not any ſuch miſchief, either for the incertainty, or for the impoſſibility, for although that the Charters are loſt, yet they are enrolled of Record, of which every one may have an Exemplification; or if ſuch inrollments cannot be found, yet allowances in Eyre (as by the Law ought to be) are of Record of all ſuch Franchiſes, by which it appeareth by force of theſe Charters ſuch Franchiſes were allowed. Againſt which it [b] was argued on the Defendants part, That the plea was ſufficient, upon which Judgment ought to be given for the Defendant: and that all the Conſideration of this caſe doth chiefly conſiſt upon the true Conſtruction of the Statute of 32 H. 8. and therefore the final intention of the Act, and the purview of the Act are to be conſidered: The intention of the Act was to advance theſe poſſeſſions as well in valuation as eſtimation, to revive actually and really ſuch privileges, liberties, franchiſes, and Temporal juriſdictions which the late owners of the Abbyes had, &c. Then it is to ſee, What privileges, liberties, franchiſes, and juriſdictions were extinct in the Crown by the coming of the ſaid poſſeſſions to it. And as to that, It is to know, That when the King granteth any privileges, liberties, franchiſes, &c. which were privileges, franchiſes, liberties in his own hands, as parcel of the flowers of his Crown, as goods and chattels of Felons, Fugitives, Outlaws, &c. goods and chattels waiſed, eſtrayes, deodands, wreck of the Sea, &c. within ſuch poſſeſſions, there if they come again to the King they are drowned in the Crown, and he hath them again in the Right of the Crown: and if the wreck, or goods waiſed, eſtrayes, &c. were appendant before to poſſeſſions, now the appendancy is extinct, and the King is ſeiſed of them in the right of his Crown. But when a privilege, liberty, franchiſe, or juriſdiction was at the beginning erected and created by the King, and was not any ſuch flower before in the garland of the Crown, there, by the comming again of them to the Crown they are not extinct, nor the appendancy of them ſevered from the poſſeſſions; As if a Fair, Market, Hundred, Leet, Park, Warren, and the like are appendants to Mannors, or in groſs, and afterwards they come back to the King, they remain as they were before in eſſe not drowned in the Crown, for at the firſt they were erected and created newly by the King, and were not in eſſe before, and time and uſage hath made them appendant. Which difference was agreed by the whole Court; and this appeareth in our books, for the firſt part of the difference, 6 E. 3. 32. John Darcies caſe, the Caſe of forfeiture of Warr, and 30 H. 8. Dyer 44. 43 E. 3. 32. 43 Aſſ. p. 10. 1 & 2 Phil. & Mar. Dyer 108. And for the ſecond part of the difference, 11 H. 4. 5. and 15 E. 4. 7. the caſe of the Market, 4 E. 3. 42. the caſe of the Hundred, 10 H. 7. 21. [26] the caſe of the Earldom. All which Privileges, liberties, franchiſes, and Spiritual Juriſdictions of the firſt quality (which were the ancient Revenues and flowers of the Crown) being drowned in the Crown, are now by this Act revived again actually and really in the King, his heirs and ſucceſſors. And as to thoſe of the later part of the difference, there needeth not any Act of Parliament to revive them, for they were not extinct. So that the Patentee in ſuch caſe of Felons goods, ſhall have them as the ſame franchiſe which is in eſſe in the Crown. And therefore it was obſerved, that the ſaid general words in Patents, tot, talia, &c. eadem & conſimilia, quot, qualia, quanta, & quæ, &c. dictus nuper Abbas habuit, &c have ſeveral and diſtinct ſignifications; for by force of this word eadem, the franchiſes themſelves as hereditaments in eſſe in the Crown ſhall paſs, and by force of talia & conſimilia, &c. the Patentee ſhall have the like to them the Abbot had, for thoſe themſelves the King cannot grant, becauſe they were drowned in the Crown. And it was agreed, That if the King by his Letters Patents grant to I. S. and his heirs, Catalla felonum within his Mannor of D. and afterwards I. S. granteth to the King his heirs and ſucceſſors, the Mannor with the ſaid Franchiſe, and afterwards the King by his Letters Patents granteth to I. N. and his heirs, the ſaid Mannor, and further granteth to him and his heirs within the Mannor, tot, talia, tanta, eadem & conſimilia privilegia, libertates, & franchefias, quot, qualia, quanta, & quæ, the ſaid I. S. had; In this caſe in a Quo Warranto I. N. ought to plead in ſuch general manner as the Defendant now hath done; but ought to plead in ſpecial the firſt Charter made of the ſaid Felons goods, and the regrant of them, &c. All which was agreed by the whole Court. But it was ſtrongly urged by the Defendants Councel, that by force of the Act of 32 H. 8. the Defendant might averr, That the ſaid John late Abbot of Strata Marcella had and enjoyed within Flanthangel goods and chattels of Felons, for therein the Defendant in his plea hath followed the words of the ſaid Act, which are, That all privileges, &c. which the ſaid Owners of the ſaid Abbyes, &c. have uſed and exerciſed lawfully within 3. moneths before the ſaid Act of 27 H. 8. ſhall be by force of the ſaid Act of 32 H. 8. revived, &c. For the Defendant hath pleaded, That the late Abbot, &c. lawfully hath uſed and exerciſed to have the goods and chattels of Felons, till the 4. day of Feb. Anno 27 H. 8. and the ſame was compared to divers other Statutes; as in Vernons caſe in the 4th part of my Reports, where the Statute of 27 H. 8. cap. 10. which ſpeaketh for the Jointure of the wife, giveth averment, that an eſtate upon an other expreſs [b] condition, may be averred for the Jointure of the wife. And ſo upon the Statute of 13 Eliz. of uſury, and upon the Statute of 23 H. 8. upon Obligations taken by Sheriffs and the like. And where it is Objected, that this uſury is not triable, it was Anſwered, that it ſhall be tried by the Country, for (licitè) is concluded within the other words, sc. gavisus fuit, for (if licitè had been left out) in the sense of the Statute it had been implyed, as the Statute of Glouceſter, cap. 3. which saith, whereof no fine is levied in the Kings Court, is as much as to say, whereof no fine is lawfully levied in the Kings Court. So 11 H. 4. 80. upon the the Statute of West. 2. cap. 5. Si Epiſcopus Eccleſiam conferat, is as much as to say, Si Epiſcopus Eccleſiam legitimo modo conferat. And in the Statute of West. 2. de Donis conditionalibus, the words ad dona prius facti. non extenditur, are to be intended of gifts lawfully, and in due manner made by the Donees, before the Statute, Plow. Com. in the Lord Barkley's case; and therewith agreeth 12 H. 4. Formedon 15. And the Statute of 1 H. 4. cap. 2. which enacteth, that all manner of Indictments taken in Torns or Leets shall be delivered to the Justices of Peace at the next Sessions; &c. and that he shall proceed upon them, extend only by construction of Law to proceedins upon lawful and sufficient Indictments, and do not make any insufficient indictment good, as it is holden in 4 E. 4. 31. And that is the fundamental and directory reason of the Common Law, for the Common Law saith, That no conspiracy lyeth when the party was indicted, but although he be indicted, if the Indictment be not sufficient in Law, the party shall have his writ of Conspiracy, for when the Common Law speaketh generally, it is to be intended in a good and lawful sense. So that it was concluded, That if this word (licitè) had not been averred, it had been implyed, and by Consequence the addition of it shall not make alteration of tryal, for expreſſio eorum quæ tacitè inſunt nihil operatur. And because the Defendant ought to follow the Statute in his plea, and not to omit this word licitè, which if it had been left out in the Statue, it had been implyed, for this cause it was concluded, that this issue shall be tried by the Country. And it was said, that the Statute of 32 H. 8. hath great reason to direct such summary course of averment for the impossibility and infiniteness of search, many of the said Religious houses being founded before time of memory, and their Charters of Franchises also made before time of memory, and some by general, obscure, doubtful and obsolete words; and although that such Franchises have been allowed in Eyre, yet the allowance in Eyre of it self only is not pleadable, and perhaps such allowances being of such great antiquity, have been by casualty, or length of time, which is

[27] edax rerum, defaced or lost. And for these causes, and for avoiding of incertainty of Questions and Sutes, and for the advancing of the estimation of these possessions, the Statute of 32 H. 8. hath altered the manner of pleading which the Common Law would have required. And upon this Case great doubt was conceived by Popham Chief Justice, Gawdy, and the Court, and the same depended in argument and advisement, till Hil. Term, 39 Eliz. in which Term 3. other matters were moved against the Defendants claim. 1. Because it doth not appear by the Defendants claim what estate the Abbot had in the said Franchises, but generally, quod licite habuit & gavisus fuit, &c. and perhaps he had in them but a Lease for years, or for life, &c. And the Statute of 32 H. 8. doth not give more to the King than the Abbot had, and the Statute of 32 H. 8. doth not revive more than was extinct; and by the Letters Patents of 37 H. 8. the Defendant hath pleaded a grant of the Franchises as Franchises revived by the Act, and in esse at the time of the grant. 2. The second Objection was, That when the Defendant hath claimed bona & catalla waviata, and strays, by prescription appendant to the said Mannor, and Felons goods by force of the Act of 32 H. 8. and possession of the said Abbot, the Defendant concludes his claim to all, & eo warranto clamat libertates Franchesias, & libertates, & privilegia præd. tanquam ad Manerium præd. ſpectant. & pertinent. whereas bona & catalla felonum without question cannot be appendent, or appurtenant to the said Mannor, because they lye not in prescription, and the Claim without the Conclusion eo warranto, had been insufficient, and it is all one to have no conclusion, and an insufficient conclusion. Vide 22 H. 6. 53. 36 H. 6. 17. 37 H. 6. 39 H. 6. Lastly, it was Objected, That the Defendant in his claim hath conveyed the said Mannor to himself by Feoffment, which is pleaded without Deed, and hath not conveyed to himself any title, and the Franchises cannot pass without deed, and then without question judgement ought to be given against him, for he hath not any title, and the Franchises, (if there were any) do remain with the Feoffor. As to the first of these three Objections, It was answered, 1. That a general having and enjoying of them, shall be intended of a having and enjoying in Fee simple, and that a particular estate or Interest shall not be presumed, if it be not specially shewed, and therefore primâ facie it shall be intended a Fee-simple. 2. That the Defendant in this case hath followed the words of the Statute, but it was granted, that the pleading had been the clearer, if the Defendant had alleged, That the said Abbot was seised of them in Fee till the said Act of 27 H. 8. and in the end taken the averment
[b] according to the Statute. But the Court did not give Judgement upon that point. As to the 2. the Court gave not any Resolution, for some said it should be taken good reddendo ſingula ſingulis, and some held the contrary. But it was Resolved by the whole Court, That if the Queen granteth the Mannor of D. to I. S. and his heirs, and within the same Mannor to have waifs, & strayes, goods and chattels of Felons, &c to the said Mannor belonging and appertaining, that in a grant these words (to the ſaid Mannor belonging and appertaining) do not referr to Felons goods, or other Franchises which lye in point of Charter, which could not by no usage nor time be appendant or appurtenant to a Mannor, but they shall pass although they were never demised or used with the Mannor. But the doubt was conceived in the case at barr when it was by way of pleading. Vide Justice Windhams case, in the 5. part of my Reports. But as to the last Objection, it was Resolved by the whole Court, without any question, That forasmuch as the Defendant hath not conveyed to himself any title to the said Felons goods, that for them Judgement should be given against him, and so it was.

Note Reader upon the Arguments of this case, 4 things are worthy consideration. 1. What antient Franchises ought to have allowance, and what not. 2. How in a Quo Warranto one may claim for life only; and that was the greater doubt: For it was objected, That if Queen Mary hath referred it to the Charter made to Queen Katherine, yet without a special grant, that they should have such Franchises in tayl, &c. which Queen Katherine had for life, such Franchises which she only had for life shall not passe to them in tayl; for the Queens grant shall be taken to a common intent: But here the case is stronger, For the Charter of Queen Mary doth not referr to the Charter of Queen Katherine, but only by general words, prout aliquis seu aliqui, &c. But it was Resolved, That when a Charter hath general reference to other Charters, it is as much in Law as if all the Charters had been recited, for they are of Record. And although that Queen Katherine had the Mannor and Hundred but for life, yet it is within the expresse words of the reference, viz. aliquis seu aliqui præmissa ante tunc habentes, possidentes, aut seisiti inde existentes, unquam habuerunt, tenuerunt, seu gavisi fuerunt, so that Queen Katherine was within the word (seisiti) for she was seised of the Mannor, &c. And I acquainted Popham Chief Justice with this Resolution, and he agreed with it: And it was well observed, That the reference doth not extend to the quantity of the estate, but to the quality of the Franchises, whereof they to whom the reference was made were seised, be they seised for life, in tayl, or in fee. [b]

As to the 4th. point, there are diverse manners of tryal allowed by the Common Law, above the three mentioned in the argument of this case, that is to say, Of matters in fact by Jurors; Of matters in Law by the Justices; and of matters of Record by the Record it self. As in Treason the Tryal of one who is a Peer of the Realm, that is a Lord of the Parliament, shall be upon an Indictment of Treason or Felony, tryed by his Peers, without any oath, but upon their honours and allegeances; But in an Appeal at the sute of a Subject they shall be tryed per probos & legales homines juratos, 10 E. 4. 6. &c. Customs and usages of every Court shall be tryed by the Judges of the same Court, if they be pleaded in the same Court, 11 E. 4. 2. In Dower or Appeal brought of the death of her Husband, or in an Assise brought by a woman who was the wife of B if the Tenant or Defendant plead that the Husband is living, the Tryal shall not be by Jury, but by the Justices, upon proofs made before them, for greater expedition: 6 E. 3. 29. 17 E. 3. 30. 43 Ass. p. 26. 8 H. 6. 23. 33 H. 6. 8, 9, 10. Diversity of Courts 119. 36 Ass. 5. Vid. 39 Ass. p. 9. 41 Ass. p. 4. In a writ of Error to reverse a fine for Nonage, or in an Audita querela to reverse a Recognisance or Statute for Nonage, there the age shall be tryed by the inspection of the Justices, and not by the Country; for that which Judges of Record do as Judges, shall not be tryed by Jury. If an Infant appeareth by Attorney, the same is Error, but shall be tryed by Jury, and not by the Justices; for the making of the warrant of Atturney is the Act of the party, without examination of the Justices: and yet the appearance by Attorney is recorded by the Court: And therefore if the Plaintif maketh Attorney in Court, and the Defendant pleads that the Plaintif is dead, and one appeareth and saith, he is the Plaintif, which is denyed by the other party, The Justices shall adjudge if he who appeareth be the same person who before made Attorney in Court; and therewith doth agree 34 H. 6. 43. If the Tenant in a Real Action voucheth A. as heir within age; Or if the Tenant for life be impleaded, and he prayeth in aid of A. in Reversion within age, and prayeth that the paroll may demurr, &c. in the one case and the other, if the Demandant replyeth that he is of full age, it shall not be tryed by the Country for the great delay to the Demandant; but a Writ shall be awarded to the Sherif, commanding him, that Venire faciat tali die præd. A. ut per aspectum corporis sui constare poterit præfat. Justic. nostris si præd. A. sit plene ætatis, nec ne, &c. Vid. 17 E. 2. Accompt 121. 33 E. 3. Acc. 130. &c. Maybem may be tryed by inspection of the Court, 28 Ass. 5. 21 H. 7. 33. 11 E. 4. 2. If Question be made if these be the Summoners and Viewers, &c. which appear, it shall be tryed by the examination of the Justices, 33 H. 6. 10. Earl or not Earl, Baron or not Baron shall not be tryed by Jury, nor by the Justices, but by the Kings writ, as appeareth in the Countess of Rutlands Case, in the 5 part of my Reports. 25 H. 6. 46. &c. 19 E. 4. in a plea of Alien born, the League between the King and the Soveraigne of the Alien shall be tryed by the Record of the Chancery, for every League is of Record. And generally all matters of Record shall be tryed by Record it self, and not by Jury, or otherwise. 19. H. 6. 52. 9 H. 7. 2. 5 E. 4. 3. 16 H. 7. 3. 1 H. 7. 29. b. Plow. Com. 231. If antient Demesne be pleaded of a Mannor and denyed, it shall be tryed by the Record of the book of Domesday in the Exchequer; but if issue be taken, that certain acres are parcel of the Mannor, which is ancient demesne, it shall be tryed by Jury; for it cannot be tryed by the same book, 22 Ass. 45. But see 44 E. 3. 32. In an attachment upon a prohibition they were at issue, if the sute in Court Christian were for Tythes, or for a rent reserved, and it was tryed by the Jury, and not by the Rolls of the Bishop, for they are not of Record. The same Law of all other Courts, which are not of Record, 34 H. 6. 49. 9 E. 4. 43. And therewith agreeth 44 E. 3. 32. And probate of a Testament shewed forth under the Seal of the Ordinary; yet the other party may plead, that he who is dead died intestate, as it is holden 44 E. 3. 16. So if issue be taken upon the probate of a will, or if administration was committed (although they shew the Bishop Letters Testimonial) it shall be tryed by Jury; and therewith agreeth 13 Eliz. Dy. 294. 6 Vid. 21 H. 6. 24. When a man is found Ideot from his birth by office, he who is so found Ideot, (falsly as he supposeth) may come personally in Chancery, before the Chancellor, and pray that before him and the Justices and Sages of the Law, which he shall call to him (and are called the Kings Councel) he may be examined, if he be Ideot or not; or by his friends he may sue forth a writ out of the Chancery, returnable in the Chancery, to bring him into the Chancery, ibid. coram nobis & consilio nostro examinand: And if it be found upon such examination, that he is no Ideot, the Office found thereof, and all the Examination which hath been made by force of the writ, or the Kings Commission, is utterly void, with- [31] without any traverſe, or Monſtrans de droit, or other ſute : As it appeareth by the Regiſter and F. N. B. 233. Vid. 10 E. 3. Liverie 30.

Note Reader, Now by the Statute of 32 H. 8. cap. 46. Ideots and their Lands are in the Survey of the Court of Wards, &c. An Apoſtata ſhall be certified by the Abbot, or other Religious Governour to whom he owed obedience, F. N. B. 233. Regiſter 267. In ſome Caſes, as in general Baſtardy, Excommengment, Loialty of Matrimony, Profeſſion, and divers other Eccleſiaſtical matters they ſhall be tryed by the Certificate of the Biſhop. In Appeal, or uppon Approvement, the Defendant in ſome Caſes may plead, Not guilty, and try it with the Plaintif by combate, or battail in perſon before the Juſtices, 17 Aſſ. p. 1. 19 H. 4, 3. So in a writ of Right the Tenant may joyn iſſue upon the meer Right, and try it by combat or battail by his Champion, with a Freeman the Champion of the Demandant (and not in perſon) before the Juſtices, 9 E. 4. 35. 1 H. 6. 1. 3 H. 6. 55. If it be in Queſtion whether the Sherif made ſuch a Retorn, it ſhall be tried by the Sherif, 9 H. 4, Trial by Certificate of the Sherif, upon a writ directed to him in Caſe of Privilege, if one be Citizen or Foreiner. 10 H. 6. 10. If a Queſtion be made if ſuch a one be Sherif, it ſhall be tryed by the Examination of the Sherif himſelf, 10 H. 4. 7. yet he is made by Letters Patent of Record, and therefore alſo it may be tryed by the Record, 32 H. 6. 27. A Retorn made by the Under-Sherif, if it be denied, ſhall be tryed by the Under-Sherif, and the Sherif cannot diſavow it, if he confeſs himſelf to be Under-Sherif, 10 H. 4. 7. If an Approver ſaith that he did commence his Appeal before the Coroners by dureſs, it ſhall be tryed by the Coroner; and if the Coroner deny it, he ſhall be hanged, 12 Aſſ. 29. 12 E. 3. Corone 118. Trial if the Statute ſhewed forth be the true Statute, ſhall be tryed by the Examination of the Mayor and Clerk of the Statutes, who took the Statute, and not by Jury, F. N. B. 104. a. Regiſt. 27 E. 3. 41. Cuſtom of London ſhall be tryed by the Mayor and Aldermen, certified by the Mouth of the Recorder, 5 E. 4. 30. 21 E. 4. 16, In an Aſſiſe the Tenant ſaith that the Lands are ſeiſed into the Kings hands, it ſhall be tryed by the Examination of the Eſcheaters, 9 H. 41. 38. Aſſ. 16. If one in avoidance of an utlagary allege, that he was in priſon at Burdeaux, ultra Mare, in ſervitio Maioris de Burdeux, it ſhall be tryed by the Certificate of the Mayor, 4 E. 4. 10. And in like Caſes other Tryals ſhall be by the Certificate of the Marſhall of the Hoſt, 21 E. 4. 10. Lit. 21. F. N. B. 85. And by the Captain of Calice, 2 E. 4. 1. 11 H. 7. 5. by a Meſſenger of a thing done beyond Sea, as in Barties Caſe, 2 Eliz. Dyer 176, Vid. 10 H. 4. 3. Not attached by fifteen daies in an Aſſize, ſhall not be tryed by Jury, but by Examination of the Baily; ſo that the Tenant was not ſummoned ſecundum legem terræ, ſhall not be tryed by Jury, but by wager of Law, and wager of Law doth countervail a Jury; for the Tenant ſhall make his Law de duodecem à manu, that is to ſay, 11 with himſelf (and that for to avoid delay) if it be not againſt a Corporation, as Mayor and Commonalty, for then it ſhall be tried by the Country for neceſſity, becauſe he cannot wage his Law. In a writ of Deceit, upon a Recovery by default, the tryal ſhall be, if the Judgement be given upon the Petit Cape by the Summoners, if upon the Grand Cape by the Summoners, pernors, or veiors, and not by the Country, 48 E. 3. 11. So if a Recovery by default in a real Action be pleaded, to which the other ſaith, not compriſed, it ſhall not be tryed by Jury, but by the Summoners and Veiors, 10 H. 4. 7. and yet there is no remedy if they ſay falſly; and therefore ubi eſt majus periculum, ibi eſt cautius agendum. The cauſe of challenge ſhall be tryed by two Triors to be appointed by the Juſtices, 9 E. 4. 5. 15 E. 4. 24. 4 E. 4. 18. 18 E. 4. 18. 16 E. 4. 7. 14 H. 7. 1. 19 H. 6. 48. 20 Aſſ. 15. 7 H. 4. 46. I have omitted theſe and divers other the like, becauſe they are tryals by Jurors, and for them, See 22 E. 3. cap. 14. the Statutes of 25 E. 3. Stat. Stap. cap. 8. 27 E. 3. *Stat. It appeareth by ancient Records, as well before the Conqueſt as ſince (for no credit is to be given to conjecture) that then there was another manner of tryal in criminal cauſes, and that was called Ordalium, and in the Saxon language Ordel, which is as much as to ſay, expers Criminis; for (or) in the ſaid language is privative, and (del) is part, that is, no party, or not guilty; and then the Defendant being arraigned, and pleading not guilty, might chooſe whether he will put himſelf upon God and the Country, which is upon the verdict of 12 men (as they do unto this day) or upon God only, and therefore it was called Judicium Dei, preſuming that God would deliver the Innocent, ſc. if he were of free eſtate, then by fire, ſc. to paſs over novem vomeres ignitos nudis pedibus, and if he eſcaped illæſus, then he ſhould be acquitted, and if not, he ſhould be condemned; and if the guilty party were of ſervile condition, then he might put himſelf upon the tryal of God, ſc. by Water, and that in diverſe manners: All which appeareth in Lambard verbo Ordalium, with all the ſuperſtitious vanities appertaning to it: And thereof Glanvil wrote, who wrote in the time of Hen. 2. lib. 14. cap. 1 & 2. And 17 of King John in turr. London.

claim Franchises, which lie in point of Charter. 3. When one claimeth such Franchises by the said general words, tot, talia, eadem, & consimilia privilegia, &c. as such a one had, &c. what estate he to whom the reference is made, ought to have in the Franchises. 4. Something is needful to be said of the manner of Trials allowed by the Common Law; for above these 3 mentioned in the said arguments, there are many more. As to the first, it is to know, That every Franchise, Liberty, or Privilege, either lyeth in point of Charter, and cannot be claimed by prescription, as goods and chattels of Felons, or lyeth in presciption and usage in pais, without the help of any Charter, as wreck, waif, strays, &c. Of Franchises which lie in point of Charter, either they are before time of memory, or within time of memory, (that is to say the time of R. 1. Lit. 38. Regist. 158. 20 H. 6. 3. 34 H. 6. 36. 5 E. 3. 50, 51. 6 E. 3. 18. 8 Eliz. Dyer 245.) If they were granted before time of memory, as many of the Charters and Grants to Abbots, Priors, and such religious corporations are, they are granted either by special words, as they seldom or never were, or by general old, obscure ambiguous, and obsolete words; As in 30 Ass. 31. King Will. the Conquerour granted to the Abbot of Battail, quod habeat Curiam suam regalem, 34 Ass. 14 The Conquerour granted to the Abbot of Glassenbury, omnem regiam potestatem. 14 H. 6. 12. King H. 2. founded the house of St. Bartholomew, and granted that they should be as free in their Church as the King in his Crown: 10 H. 7. 13. 14. In old times the King granted omnia jura sua regalia: The Kings Canutus, and Edward the Confessor granted to the Abbot of Burie, quod nulla secularis persona, aut minister Regis in aliquo se intromittat in burgo sancti Edmundi, aut hominibus in eo manentibus nisi Abbas & Covent. & eorum Ministri, and many others which I have seen: And be such grants of Franchises special or general, certain or obscure, &c. yet forasmuch as they are made before time of memory, and so themselves are not any Records pleadable, they ought to have the aid and supportation of some matter of Record, within time of memory, as allowance before Justices in Eyre, or before the Justices of the Common Pleas, or before the Barons of the Exchequer, or by force of confirmation by Charter of Record of some King within time of memory, and shall not be now allowed, but for such part of the grant which so hath been allowed or confirmed, although it be all in one Patent. But usage only, which is but matter in fact, will not support a Record before time of memory in such case, and therewith agreeth 26 Ass. 24. 30 Ass. 31. 34 A. 14. 1 H. 4. 3. 2 E. 4. 22. 21 H. 7. 29. 9 H. 7. 12. 10 H. 7. 14. 16 H. 7. 16. 20 H. 7. 7. 8 H. 8. Kelway 189, 190. Vid. 8 E. 3. 18. 17 E. 3. 11. 12 H. 4. 23. 8 H. 6. 4. 38 Ass. p. 1. And when such old grant is general, obscure, or ambiguous, It shall not be now interpreted as a Charter made at this day, but it shall be construed as the Law was taken at the time when such old Charter was made, and according to the old allowance on Record, 33 H. 6. 22. 10 H. 7. 13, & 14. 16 H. 7. 9. 12 H. 4. 12. 14 H. 6. 12. 35 H. 6. 54. 9 H. 7. 11. 6 E. 3. 54, 55. 7 E. 3. 40, 41. 18 E. 3. Conusans 39. 34 Ass. 14. 40 Ass. 21. But if the Charters were granted within time of memory, then they are pleadable, without shewing any allowance or confirmation, as by the books aforesaid appeareth. Of franchises which cannot be claimed by prescription, as wreck, waif, stray, &c. as they may be originally claimed by usage, which is a matter in pais, so usage may uphold them, without any aid of any Record, either of Creation, allowance, or confirmation; and therewith agreeth the books aforesaid.

As to the second it is true, that it is said in 6 E. 3. 5. & 8 E. 3. 10, & 11. and commonly in other books, That the Quo Warranto for Franchise is in the nature of the Kings writ of Right in such Case, and that the Defendant in it ought to make a sufficient title against the King in such Case; and it is to see how this title shall be made. And for the better understanding of the reason of it, and of the books which treat thereof, it is to know, That it is enacted by a Statute made 18 E. 1. called Statutum de Quo Warranto, Concerning the Writ which is called Quo Warranto, it was established by our Lord the King, That all those which claimed to have quiet liberty of the Franchise before the time of King Richard without interruption, and can shew the same by lawful Enquest, shall well enjoy their possession, and in case that such possession be demanded for cause reasonable, the King shall confirm it by title: And those that have old Charters of Franchise, shall have the same Charters allowed, according to the tenor and form of them: And those that have lost their liberties since Easter last past, by the aforesaid writ, according to the course of pleading in the same Writ heretofore used, shall have restitution of their Franchise lost; and from henceforth they shall have according to the nature of this present constitution.

[b]

In 2 E. 3. 29. The King brought a Quo Warranto against Roger Mortimer and Johan his wife, before Justices in Eyre in the County of Middlesex, to shew by what Warrant they claimed to have Conusans, as well of the Crown as other, contra voluntatem nostram, in their Mannor of T. where Roger de Mortimer and Johan said, That Walter de Lacie ancestor of the said Johan was seised of the said Mannor of T. and of other lands after time of memory, that is to say in the time of R. 1. and had the said Franchise to have conusance of pleas in the said Mannor, long time before R. 1. from which Walter the Inheritance descended to many daughters, and conveyed part after partition made, to the wife of the Defendant, in allowance of other lands, &c. and the Defendants prayed in aid of the other Coperceners, and the Justices denied the aid, and because the Defendants held themselves to the aid, and would not say other thing, the Justices did forejudge them of the Franchise; and thereupon the Defendants brought a writ of Error out of the Chancery, retornable in the Kings Bench; and the first Judgment was reversed for two causes, which Sir Jeffry Scrope openly declared. 1. That the Justices denied the Defendants aid, where the aid was grantable. 2. That they have forejudged the Defendant of the Franchise, that is, to forfeit the Franchise for ever; for in the same case the Franchise ought to be seised into the Kings hands; and in some case shall be forejudged: But Forejudger holdeth for ever. And therefore there Scrope said, we see by this Record, that the Justices pusted the Defendant of the aid, where the aid was grantable; and further awarded that they should be forejudged of the Franchise, because they would not otherwise plead, but held themselves to the aid; where for want of pleading the Franchise ought not to be forejudged, but seised, if the Defendants answer had not been sufficient; and therefore the Court awarded that the Judgement was erronious, &c. and void, and sue you to have the Franchise.

But Note Reader that it is to be understood, and so it may be gathered by the book, That the said Franchise had been allowed before Justices in Eyre. And therewith agreeth 18 H. 6. Prescription 45. If a man hath allowance in Eyre of Franchises which lie in point of Charter, as to have conusance of pleas, &c. that he may prescribe (by the help of such allowance of Record) in such Franchises. And so, as it seemeth, the said Statute of 18 E. 1. well expounded, that is to say, That the party who hath such allowance, which is such possession as the Statute intendeth, may prescribe in such Franchises which lie in point of Charter. And the same stands upon great reason for the Charter may be made before the Conquest, and of such antiquity, that the Charter it self and every enrolment of it is utterly perished and consumed; and therewith agreeth 8 H. 8. Keilway. And as to the Objection which was made, that in the case at Bar no tryal could be by the Country, whether the Abbot had Felons goods, Vide 8 E. 3. 10, & 11. John brought a Replevin of Sheep against the Abbot of Peterborough, and diverse others, The Abbot avoweth the taking by reason that he is Lord of the Hundred of F. within which Hundred he hath a Liberty to have the goods of all Felons and Fugitives within the same Hundred to take them by himself or his Officers; And that Robert de Porter stole the said goods, being the goods of the said John the Plaintif, and would have driven the Sheep aforesaid through the Town of C. within the same Hundred; whereupon the said Abbot and the others, would have arrested the said Robert as a Felon, and thereupon the said Robert fled to the Church of Libbone, which is within the same Hundred, and there before the Coroner of the said County he confessed the said felony, and thereupon he was abjured; so the Abbot is seised of the said Sheep, as of his own goods by reason of the said Franchise. To which avowry exception was taken, because he claimed bona & catalla Felonum & Fugitivorum, and hath not shewed rightful title, as to say, That he and his predecessors have by [b] and time out of mind seised, (that is to say with allowance as above) or by the Kings Charter. To which it was answered; Forasmuch as he hath said, that he hath such Franchise, he needeth not to shew by what title he claimeth to have such Franchise: But when the King bringeth his Quo Warranto against him, then must he shew his title. And the Plaintif was awarded to answer over, Ex quo sequitur, that the general avowry, that the Abbot had such Franchise, that is to say, to have Felons goods within the said Hundred, being ordered to be good, that the same is issuable and tryable by the Country, whether the Abbot had such Franchise or not; for if the matter of the avowry was not issuable and tryable, the avowry could not have been ruled to be good.

As to the 3 Hill. 40. Eliz. Edward Ameredith Esquire, put in his claim into the Exchequer for issues, goods and chattels of Felons, &c. within his Mannor of Stokenham, and of the Hundred of Colridge within the County of Devon, which fell in Anno 35 & 36 Eliz. and the case was such: King H. 8. was seised in fee of the said Mannor and Hundred, and inter alia, by his Letters Patents, 25 Feb. 35 H. 8. granted to Queen Katharine his Wife the said Mannor and Hundred (inter alia) for her life. And by other Letters Patents, 28 Feb. 35. granted that the Queen should have, for term of her life, within the said Mannor and Hundred bona & catalla felonum, fugitivorum, utlagatorum, &c. Fines, amerciaments, issues, &c. as well of the Royal Officers, as of others, &c. annum, diem, & vastum, &c. to be discharged of purveyance for the King, his heirs and successors, and of carriages, to be exempt from the Jurisdiction of the Admiral, and to have Admirals Jurisdiction, and to nominate Coronors and Escheators, &c. And afterward Queen Katherine died, and conveyed the said Mannor and Hundred by mean descents to Queen Mary; who 22 Junii Anno 1. of her reign, by her Letters Patents granted the said Mannor and Hundred to Francis Earl of Huntington, and Katherine his Wife (late parcel of the possession of Margaret Countess of Salisbury, and afterwards assigned to Queen Katherine for her Joynture) and that they within the said Mannor should have, tot, talia, eadem, & hujusmodi Libertates, Privilegia, [30] Franchesias, Jurisdictiones, &c. quot, qualia, quanta, & quæ pred. Comitissa Sarum, aut aliquis vel aliqui aut præmissa aliquam inde parcellam ante tunc habentes possidentes, aut seisiti inde existentes unquam habuerunt, tenuerunt aut gavisi fuerunt, &c. infra præmissa, &c. ratione vel pretextu alicujus cartæ, doni, seu concessionis, seu aliquarum literarum potentium, &c. To have and to hold to them in tayl, with diverse remainders in tayl, the remainder over in fee, with a general Non obstante; and conveyed the said Mannor with all Liberties, Privileges, Fanchises, &c. by mean conveyances, to the said Edward Ameredith and his heirs. And upon all this matter the question was, if Ameredith should have all the said Franchises, &c. which were granted, as aforesaid, to Queen Katharine. And in this case two questions were moved, one, because that the reference in the Letters Patents to Queen Mary were general, sc. quot, qualia, quanta, quæ aliquis seu aliqui, &c. And then the grant of the liberties being general, tot, talia, &c. without expressing any in certain, and the reference being also general, it was objected it was too incertain in the Kings Case: But the Case in 20 E. 3. Avowry was well agreed; for there although that the grant of the Liberties was general, yet the reference was certain: But it was resolved by Periam Chief Baron, and the whole Court, that although that the grant and reference were general, yet it ought to be applied to a certain in particular, as in this case to the Charter made to Queen Katharine. The second doubt was, That forasmuch as Queen Marie hath granted an Inheritance in the said Franchises, &c. such general grant, with such general reference shall not be applied to a grant which the King made for London. membr. 35. Rex Petro de Scudamor & aliis, &c. Mandamus vobis quòd conveniatis unà cum Vicecom. noſtr. Winton ad diem & locum competentem, & tanquam Juſticiarii noſtri capi faciatis judicium ferri à Robin. fre. Petipas, quod ei adjudicatum eſt per Juſticiarios noſtros tinerantes tempore inverdicti, & tunc capi non potuit quia appellatus fuit de morte hominis, & cum legem illum ceperitis, faciatis inde quod judicium dederit, mandamus enim Vicecom. noſtr. Wintonie, &c. This manner of trial was called Vulgaris purgatio, utterly forbidden by the Councels of the Church, as temptations of God, and not lawful trials, and that they were invented fabricante Diabolo: And in the Gloſs it is ſaid, Vulgaris purgatio prohibetur, quia fabricante Diabolo eſt inventa, cum ſit contra præceptum Domini, Non tentabis Dominum Deum tuum.

And afterwards the ſaid tryal called Ordel, viz. judicium ignis & aquæ, was taken away by Parliament: and that appeareth Rot. Pat. Anno 3 H. 3. membr. 5. For the Record ſaith, Proviſum fuit per Regem & Concilium, &c.

And that was the true manner of the tryal of Ordel: And although it were firſt forbidden by the Canons, yet it remained in uſe within this Realm, till it was utterly taken away by authority of Parliament. And Monamachia, i. e. Duellum is alſo forbidden by the Canons; but yet foraſmuch as it is not yet taken away by Parliament, the ſame (in ſome Caſe as it appeareth before) doth remain even to this day. And of this manner of tryal by combate or battail, not only writeth Glanvil, lib. 2. cap. 3. & 4. as he wrote alſo of Ordel, But Bracton lib. 3. Tract. 2. cap. 21. fol. 140. And Britton, cap. 22. wrote only of the tryal by battail, and not of Ordel, becauſe the ſame when they wrote was utterly taken away and condemned. See Deuter. cap. 18. ver. 10. All which (becauſe many have erred in this point of Antiquity) I thought worthy to be imparted to the ſtudious Reader. [33]

Paſch. 42 Eliz. in the Common Pleas.

Bucknal's Caſe.

Paſch. 42 Eliz. in Bucknals Caſe in the Common Pleas, divers points were reſolved, 1. That there is a difference when the Lord in his avowrie varieth from the truth of the quality of the ſervices, by colour of ſeiſin and poſſeſſion which he hath got from his Tenant; and when he varieth from the truth of the quantity of the ſervices, by reaſon of ſeiſin which he hath got of more than he ought to have of the ſame nature; as the caſe there was: Bucknal avowed, becauſe that the Plaintif held of him certain Land, by Fealty, Rent, and Sute of Court, and alleged ſeiſin of all, and for the Rent behind, &c. where the true tenure was by Fealty and Rent only; in this caſe the ſeiſin of the Sute is not material, becauſe it is of another quality and nature, and the tenure originally was not charged with any ſervice of ſuch quality as Sute, and therefore in ſuch caſe the tenure is traverſable. But where the rent was 2*s. per annum*, if the Lord hath got quiet and voluntary ſeiſin of more rent than he ought, as of 3*s.* (without any coherction of diſtreſs) there becauſe the Tenancy is charged with ſervice of ſuch nature and quality, and it is not to be preſumed that the Tenant would voluntarily pay more rent than he ought, there the ſeiſin in an avowry is traverſable, and not the tenure.

And the Statute of Magna Charta, cap. 10. Nullus diſtringatur ad faciendum majus ſervitium de feodo militis, nec de alio libero tenemento, quam inde debetur, by conſtruction extendeth to the Right, and not to the poſſeſſion. To which purpoſe the writ of Ne injuſtè vexes, which is in the Right, is grounded; and therewith expreſly agreeth F. N. B. 10. a. and Regiſter 4. a. Vid. 10 E. 3. 25. 22 E. 3. 18. b. and the ſame alſo appeareth in the old book of 18 E. 2. Avowrie 217. In a Replevin brought by R. the Defendant avowed upon the Plaintif, becauſe that one C. was ſeiſed of the Tenancy, and held of the avowant by Fealty, and 20*d. per annum*, of which ſervices he was ſeiſed by the hands of C. as by the hands of his very Tenant, which C. enfeoffed the Plaintif, and for 20*d.* arrear for one year he avowed upon the Plaintif, To which the Defendant ſaid, that the ſaid C. his Feoffor held of the avowant by fealty and 12*d.* and as to that, nothing arrear. To which barr of avowry exception was taken, becauſe he did not anſwer to the ſeiſin. To which Shard of Councel with the Plaintif did anſwer, That the Plaintif is a ſtranger purchaſor, where he cannot have an Injuſte vexes, for which cauſe he ought to diſcharge himſelf by plea. But Sir William Bereford Chief Juſtice of the Common Pleas ſaid, and gave the rule; You may plead that the ſeiſin was by outragious diſtreſs, and that you do not ſay, wherefore we hold the ſeiſin rightful, and you do not deny the ſeiſin; and therefore adviſe of it: for which cauſe Shard by the Rule of the Court did traverſe the ſeiſin. In which was obſerved the great regard the ancient Judges had of ſeiſin and poſſeſſion to maintain it againſt the Statute of Magna Charta, although the Act was in the Negative, and therefore the ſtronger. Vide 34 E. 1. Diſclaimer 30. An Infant ſhall anſwer to the ſeiſin had by his own hands. And in 8 E. 3. 18. Robert de Woodhouſe Archdeacon of Richmond, brought an aſſiſe of Darrein preſentment againſt the Prior of Pomfret, and prayed that the aſſiſe would take notice, That he had laſt preſented to the Church of St. Sampſon of York; and afterwards Robert was Non-ſute; for which it was Ruled, that the Prior ſhould have a writ to the Biſhop; but execution ſhould ſtay till the colluſion was enquired of; and there Sir William Herle Chief Juſtice of the Bench Charged the Recognitors of the Aſſiſe, firſt to enquire among themſelves [b]

if the Writ were brought by colluſion, to make the advowſon come into Mortmain; and if they ſhall find that the writ was brought by colluſion, that they ſhould enquire of the right of the Prior, and if he had right, which of his Predeceſſors preſented, and in the time of what King. And in evidence to prove the Priors right, a Charter of King Steven was ſhewed, by which the [34] ſaid King gave the ſaid advowſon to ſuch a one Prior, his Predeceſſor, and to his Succeſſors; And the Jury returned and ſaid, That the writ was not brought by colluſion; And further ſaid, That the Prior nor his Succeſſors had never preſented within time of memory, but always the Archdeacon and his Predeceſſors: To which Herle Chief Juſtice ſaid, We have no Warrant to enquire of the right of the Archdeacon, but of the Priors right; wherefore you are to ſay, if the Prior hath right, or not; And when the Jury were in doubt what to ſay, Herle ſaid, Although a man had right before time of memory, if he nor his Anceſtors were never ſeiſed after time of memory, he is ouſted of his right, and therefore according to your intent, if you have ſaid the truth, that the Prior or any of his Predeceſſors were never in poſſeſſion after time of memory, you may ſafely ſay that the Prior hath not right. And ſo they ſaid.

Note Reader, I have put this caſe at length, becauſe it is a notable caſe for divers points, and chiefly for the great reſpect the Judges gave to the poſſeſſion, without regarding any antient Charter of the King, or any right by colour thereof, although it were matter of Record, and betwixt the Charter and the caſe then in queſtion there were not above 176 years, and that in the caſe of a Prior, who in many caſes ſhall not be prejudiced by the Laches of his predeceſſor, as a private man ſhall be.

But in the caſe of ſeiſin of more rent than ought to be, the ſame ſhall bind in an avowry. But in Ne injuſte vexes, Ceſſavit, Aſſiſe, Reſcous, or Treſpaſs, ſuch ſeiſin of more rent ſhall be avoided, for there the tenure and not the ſeiſin is traverſable: and for theſe differences, ſee 10 E. 3. 25. 12 E. 3. Avowry 104. 22 Aſſ. 68. 28 Aſſ. 33. 4 H. 5. 4. 10 H. 3. 6. 30 H. 6. 5. 33 H. 6. 44. 37 H. 6. 25. 12 E. 4. 7. b. 16 E. 4. 11. 21 E. 4. 64. But this caſe of ſeiſin in caſe of Avowry doth receive certain limitations. For 1. the iſſue in tayl ſhall avoid in an avowry ſeiſin had by the hands of a Tenant in tayl, 20 E. 3. Avowry 131. F. N. And all this grounded upon the Statute of Marlbridge, cap. 9. Qui autem per Cartam pro certo ſervitio tot ſolidorum annuatim pro omni ſervitio ſolvend. feoffati ſunt, ad ſeſtum, vel ad aliud, contra formam feoffamenti de cætero non teneantur. 4. And it is worthy obſervation, Where and How ſeiſin in avowry ſhall be traverſed. 1. In an avowry the Tenant ſhall not plead, Never ſeiſed of the ſervices generally, for thereby he leaveth not to the Lord any Remedy, neither by avowry, nor by cuſtoms and Services; and therefore if he be Tenant in Fee-ſimple, he ought to diſclaim, or he ought to plead out of his Fee, and ſo traverſe the Tenure; and therewith agreeth 22 H. 6. 3. and 30 H. 6. Avowry, by all the Juſtices. And where it is ſaid in 5 E. 4. 2. that the very Tenant ſhall not plead out of his fee, for if it ſhould be found againſt him, it is not peremptory to him, but it ſhall be peremptory to the Lord, and ſo not equal, and therefore in ſuch caſe he ſhall diſclaim: The contrary to the ſame is adjudged in 28 H. 6. 10. in the point, and Forteſcue there ſheweth 2. or 3. judgments in the terms. Vide 15 E. 2. Avowry 214. 24 E. 3. 34. 11 H. 4. 10. 12 H. 4. 23. 8 H. 6. 17. & 21 H. 6. 22. 21 H. 6. 10. and Brook in abridging the (ſaying) in 5 E. 4. 2. Hors de ſon fee 15, ſaith, that it is not Law: and the abridgement of Fitzharbert of 35 H. 6. 10. Hors de ſon fee 17. is not warranted by the book at [35] large. 2. He who denieth ſeiſin after the Limitation, ought firſt to acknowledge a Tenure, to the end the Lord may have his writ of Cuſtoms and Services; as if the Lord allegeth the Tenure by Fealty, Rent, and ſute of Court, and allegeth ſeiſin within time of Limitation, and avoweth for ſute behind, the Tenant may confeſs the Tenure by Fealty and Rent; and as to the ſute plead never ſeiſed thereof after the time of Limitation. And therewith agree 15 E. 2. Avowry 214. 18 E. 3. 10. & 22 E. 3. 32. againſt the opinion ill reported, 10 H. 6. 7. 3. If the Lord avoweth for ſervices, and allegeth ſeiſin by the hands of the Plaintif, or any other in the Replevin, as by the hands of his very Tenant, the Tenant may plead that the avowant was never ſeiſed by his hands, &c. and therewith agreeth 24 E. 3. 50. 19 E. 2. Avowry 224. 22 H. 6. 2. & 3. 4. That ſeiſin is not traverſable, but only of that for which the avowry is made, if not that ſeiſin be alleged of a Superior ſervice for

(for which the avowry is not, which in Law is a seisin of the inferiour, as in 26 H. 8. 1. where the Tenure is by rent and divers services, and seisin is alleged in all, and avowry for the rent onely, there the seisin of the rent is onely traversable: But if the Tenure be by Homage, Fealty, Escuage, and rent of 2 s. and seisin alleged in all, and he avoweth for Homage, he shall be received to traverse the seisin of the Escuage, for that is seisin of Homage, 21 E. 3. 52. 13 E. 3. Avowry 103. 19 E. 2. Avowry 224. And where it is said, That when the Lord varieth in the nature and quality of the services, that the Tenure is traverseable, the same is true, when the Tenant confesseth the Tenure in part, as is aforesaid; but he cannot traverse the whole Tenure; as if the Defendant in a Replevin avoweth upon the Plaintif for rent and services as upon his very Tenant, the Plaintif cannot say that he holdeth the Land of a Stranger, without that he holdeth of the avowant, but he ought to disclaim or plead Out of his Fee; and therewith agreeth 10 H. 6. 6. & 7. 35 H. 6. Avowry. 37 H. 6. 25. 11 H. 4. 11. 19 E. 2. Avowry 222. 15 E. 2. ibid. 214. And at first, the Plaintif in the case at barr would have pleaded, That he held the Land in the avowry, and other Lands by Fealty and rent, without that that he held the Land in the avowry modo & forma; and the Court was moved, If the plea in barr of the avowry was good? and the Councel of the Plaintif conceived that the plea was good, and they cited the books in 8 H. 7. 25. and 13 H. 7. 25. where the case was, That in a Replevin the Defendant doth avow, That the Plaintif held of him one acre of Land by fealty and 12 d. and for rent behind: The Plaintif said, That he held the said acre, and another acre of land in the same Town by the services of 6 d. without that that he held one acre of the Avowant modo & forma; and Brian there conceived the traverse good. But the Court did less allow of the said book of 5 H. 5. 4. where the case was, In a Replevin in this Court the Defendant avowed, by reason that the Plaintif held of him 4 Roods of Land called Crispinlond by fealty, and 10 s. rent per ann. &c. of which services he was seised, &c. and for rent behind he did avow. The Plaintif said, That he held of him 2. Roods of Land by Fealty, and 5 s. rent onely, without that that he held 4. Roods in the same manner and form as he had avowed. And Hull, who gave the Rule, held it no plea, for as to discharge of 5 s. rent, the same went in barr; and as to that that he did not hold but 2. Roods, the same went in abatement, and so infolded divers and double matter: also he answered not to the seisin, &c. for which cause by the Rule of the Court, the Plaintif pleaded in abatement of the avowry, and said that he held 2 Roods of the Defendant by the services of fealty, and 5 s. and the other 2 Roods by fealty, and demanded Judgment of that avowry; the conclusion of which plea was single enough. To which the avowant replied, that he held of him in manner and form as he had avowed; and thereupon issue was joined, and therewith agreeth 18 E. 3. 18. a. where the Defendant in a Replevin avowed upon the Plaintif because he held of him a Carve of Land by Homage, and Fealty, and 10 s. per annum, &c. The Plaintif said, That he held that Carve and another Carve by Homage, Fealty, and Rent of 10 s. as one entire Tenancy, and demanded Judgment of the avowry, which supposeth the parcel in gross by it self, and the plea was good, for otherwise he might be double charged, And the avowant did maintain that the Case in the avowry was the whole Tenancy, &c. But it was Resolved, That if the Plaintif agreeth with the avowant in the services, and varieth in the quantity of land, there the traverse may be without that that he holdeth modo & forma, or with a tantum. And therefore in 20 H. 6. 20, 21. If the Defendant avoweth because the Plaintif holdeth 16 acres of him by certain services, and the Plaintif saith that he holdeth these 16 acres, and other 16 acres, without that that he holdeth 16 acres tantum, the avowry shall abate. Also if he maketh several avowries, supposing 2 acres to be severally holden, where they are holden by entire services, or è contra. Vid. 9 H. 6. 7. 7 H. 4. 102. 4 E. 3. 34. 43 E. 3. 13. 47 E. 3. 5 E. 4. 2. temp. E. 1. Avowry 228. 2 E. 2. Avowry 184. 24 E. 3. 34. 32 E. 3. Avowry 114. 46 E. 3. 16. 41 E. 3. Avowry 77. And afterwards the Plaintif in the principal case agreed with the avowant in the quantity of the Tenancy, confessed the tenure by Fealty and Rent, and as to the Rent pleaded, Nihil arrear, and traversed the Tenure modo & forma, sc. absque hoc, that the Tenanty was holden by Fealty, Rent, and Sute of Court, in manner and form, &c. And the traverse was good by the rule of the Court, although the avowry was for rent onely; whereupon issue was joyned, and found, that the land was holden by Fealty and Rent, and not by sute of Court; and although that the avowry was for rent behind; yet forasmuch as the Tenure alleged by the avowant was traversed and found against him, it was adjudged M. 42. & 43 Eliz. against the avowant, for it shall be in vain to make it traversable, and yet if it shall be found against the avowant, that he shall have the return of the Cattel. And Lit. lib. 3. cap. Attornment 127. saith, That the Seignorie is entire, although that there are divers manner of services, which the Tenant ought to do, and Tenure by Fealty and Rent is another Tenure then the Plaintif hath alleged in his avowry, for which cause Judgment was given for the Plaintif. [36]

Note Reader, although the purview of the Act of 21 H. 8. cap. 19. be general, That the Lord may avow, &c. as in lands and tenements within his fee and seignory, alleging the same Lands to be holden of him, without naming any person certain, or upon any person certain; yet all necessary incidents are intended, and therefore the avowant ought to allege seisin by some hands, 27 H. 8. 4. acc. but the antient form of alleging seisin shall not be altered, and therefore the avowrie shall be made generally after the Statute of 32 H. 8. cap. 2. as it was used before; but the Plaintif in barr of the avowry may plead never seised within 40 years, &c. and therewith agreeth 1 Mar. Brook 107. and 14 Eliz. Dyer 315. And if the Lord by the Statute of 21 H. 8. allegeth seisin in his avowry, and avoweth the distresse, as within his fee and seignory, and upon no person certain, In such avowry every Plaintif in the Replevin, be he Termer or other, may have every plea to the avowry, which is sufficient, also have aid, and every other advantage in Law; and it is not now an Exception that he is a ſtranger to the avowry; for in ſuch caſe, forasmuch as the avowry is upon no perſon certain, either none is a ſtranger to it, or every one is a ſtranger to it: and therewith agreeth 34 H. 8. Bre. Avowry, 113. 27 H. 8. 4. & 20.

Trinit. 42 Eliz.

Henſloe's Caſe.

[b] Henſloe brought an action of debt againſt Gage and others, as Executors; the Defendants pleaded abatement of the writ, that the Teſtator made one Hilleſly Co-executor with them, who hath adminiſtred, &c. not named in the Writ, Judgment of the Writ. To which the Plaintif ſaid, That before any adminiſtration, &c. The ſaid Hilleſly being cited with the others to prove the will before the Ordinary, did refuſe, and the Defendants only proved the ſaid will, &c. upon which the Defendants did demur in Law. And it was objected, That after this refuſal Hilleſly could not adminiſter for 2 cauſes. 1. Becauſe Hilleſly may wave the Executorſhip, and ſhall not be Executor againſt his will; and jus Teſtamentorum pertinet ad Ordinarium, as it is ſaid in 4 H. 7. 13. when Hilleſly once refuſed before the Ordinary, who is lawful Judge of the Cauſe, and thereby waiveth the Executorſhip, and utterly diſmiſſeth himſelf thereof, he cannot after reſume the ſame; and in all caſes of Intereſts and Authorities, and principally before a lawful Judge in an ordinary courſe of proceeding, he ſhall never after agree to it. And therefore put the Caſe that Hilleſly had been joyned in the writ, and he had pleaded Never Executor, never ad-
[37] miniſtred as Executor, ſhall he be afterwards received to adminiſter? it was ſaid clearly no. 2. It was ſtrongly urged, That if all the Executors are cited before the Ordinary to prove the will, and all refuſe, the Ordinary may accept of the refuſal, and thereupon commit adminiſtration, and after that refuſal they ſhall never take upon them the charge of the will, nor adminiſter as Executors, becauſe they have before a lawfull Judge in ordinary courſe of proceeding waived it before; and if they might all refuſe before the Ordinary, and this refuſal ſhall bind them, what reaſon ſhall it be, that if any of them refuſe before him, that the ſame ſhould not bind them? And as when Executors (agreeing to the will) adminiſter, they cannot afterwards refuſe, as it is holden in 9 E. 4. 33. 47. Plow. Com. Greisbrooks Caſe 210. So when any of the Executors once before a competent Judge, refuſeth, they ſhall not after agree. 2. It was objected that the barr was not good, becauſe the Defendant hath not alleged, that the Teſtament was proved, according to the opinions in 3 H. 7. 14.

But it was Reſolved without open argument, That the Plaintifs Replication to maintain his writ was not ſufficient; for notwithſtanding the refuſal of Hilleſly in this caſe, he might adminiſter after at his pleaſure. And the Court took this difference, When many are named Executors, and ſome of them refuſe, and ſome of them prove the will, thoſe who have refuſed may afterwards at their pleaſure adminiſter, notwithſtanding this refuſal before the Ordinary: But if all refuſe before the Ordinary, and the Ordinary committeth Adminiſtration to another, there they cannot afterwards adminiſter: And this difference is proved by our books in 21 E. 4. 24. where it is reſolved by the Juſtices, That if 20 be named Executors, and one proveth the will, it ſufficeth for them all, and the refuſal before the Ordinary is not any eſtoppel againſt them to adminiſter after when they pleaſe in our Law, and we have no regard in this point to the Law of the Church: And the Executor who proveth ought to name them who refuſe in every action for to recover the Teſtators debt, and they may releaſe the whole debt: And it is clear that they who refuſe ſhall have an action by Survivor. But it is holden in 36 H. 6. 8. That if a man maketh two Executors, and both refuſe before the Ordinary, now they can never after adminiſter as Executors by force of the Teſtament, for now the Teſtator dieth inteſtate: otherwiſe when one proveth and the other refuſeth before the Ordinary, the other may adminiſter with him when he will; In 41 E. 3. 22. One Executor brought an action of debt, and ſhewed forth the will, which proved that he had another Executor, and the Defendant pleaded to the writ that
[b] he is alive: To which the Plaintif ſaid, That before the Ordinary he was diſcharged of the adminiſtration, and that he never adminiſtred, and becauſe he might adminiſter at his pleaſure, it was adjudged that the writ ſhould abate. But it is Reſolved by Littleton, Newton, and Danbie in 7 E. 4. 13. That if all the Executors refuſe before the Ordinary, they may not after prove the will. In 22 E. 3. 19 b. In debt by two Executors, and Teſtament ſhewed, the Defendant ſaith, that in the Teſtament 3 are made Executors, and the third not named, &c. Judgment of the writ; the Plaintif replieth that the third did refuſe before the Ordinarie, and would not adminiſter, and was diſcharged by the Ordinary, &c. and it was adjudged that the writ ſhould abate. And therewith agreeth 15 E. 3. Executors 8. 42 E. 3. 26. 11 H. 4. 83. 35 H. 6. 37. 21 H. 6. 23. 2 R. 3. 20. But it appeareth in 50 E. 3. 9. 3 H. 7. 14. That if all refuſe before the Ordinary, he may grant adminiſtration.

2. It was Reſolved, That in Debt againſt one Executor, it is a good plea to ſay, That the Teſtator made him and another Executor, who hath adminiſtred, and is alive, without ſaying that the Will is proved; and therewith agreeth 33 H. 6. 38. 32 H. 6. 25. 22 H. 6. 59. 3 H. 4. Adminiſtration 22. For after the Executors have adminiſtred, and ſo have taken upon them the chage of the Executorſhip, they cannot afterwards refuſe, 9 E. 4. 33. 37. Plow. Com. Greisbrooks Caſe 280. So that it was Reſolved, that the plea in barr was good: and ſo the doubt conceived by the way in 3 H. 7. 14. well explained. Alſo the Plaintif in his Replication hath ſhewed, that the will was proved, &c. and ſo if need be, hath made the barr good. And I will agree that this Caſe was upon manifeſt and many authorities and judgments in books, adjudged according to Law, which was the cauſe that in a caſe ſo cleer the Judges did not deliver the reaſons and cauſes of the ſaid differences, nor made any anſwer to the ſaid Objection, which ſome learned in the Law deſired, for their ſatisfaction to be done. As to that it is to know, That it is holden in 2 R. 3. Teſtament 4. That it is but of late years that the Church had the probate of wills in this Land, until it was by an Act, &c. For the people have probate of Teſtaments in all other places, except England, and in many places within England the Lords of Mannors have probate of wills at this day in their Temporal Courts. And Tremail there ſaid, That he is a Steward in his Country, and the Free Tenants and Bondmen prove their Teſtaments before him in the Court Baron, and ſo it hath been uſed time out of mind, &c. and therewith agreeth Fineux, and all the Juſtices in 11 H. 7. 12. b. That the probate of Teſtaments belonged not to the Spiritual Court, but of later times, &c. and they have not the ſame by the Spiritual Law. And Linwood who was [38] Dean of the Arches, and wrote Anno Dom. 1422. in the reign of King H. 6. lib. 3. de Teſtamentis, fo. 124. Confeſſeth that probate of Teſtaments did appertain to the Ordinaries, de conſuetudine Angliæ & non de communi jure: And in other Realms the Ordinaries had not the ſame: And in another place he affirmeth, the power of the Biſhop in probate of Teſtaments, per conſenſum regni & ſuorum procerum ab antiquo. And I have a book publiſhed in Latin, Anno Dom. 1573. by the moſt reverend Prelate Matthew Parker Archbiſhop of Canterbury, very expert in matters of Antiquity, in which it is affirmed in theſe words, ſc. Rex Angl. olim erat conciliorum Eccleſiaſtic. præſes, vindex temeritatis Romanæ, propugnator religionis, nec ullam habebant Epiſcopi authoritatem præter eam quam à Rege acceptam referebant, jus teſtamenta probandi non habebant, adminiſtrationis proteſtatem cuique delegare non poterant. Then foraſmuch as probate of wills is given to the Spiritual Court, whereof they had not juriſdiction before, when they have proved the Teſtament, their authority is executed, and they have not power to take the refuſal of any when any of the Executors prove the will. And therefore the refuſal of any of the Executors before the Ordinary in ſuch caſe is void. The Executors have therein title by the Teſtament, which is Temporal, and to the goods and chattels alſo which are Temporal, as it is agreed in Plow. Com. in Greisbrooks Caſe 280. which Teſtament is compleat as to all goods and chattels in poſſeſſion and reverſion; and as ſhall be after ſaid, for releaſing of any debts and duties before any probate. But as to bring actions in the Kings Courts, the Judges do not admit the Executors to ſue for things in action, if they ſhew not the Teſtament proved duly under the Seal of the Ordinary: But always the Kings Courts have uſed to allow the probate of any of the Executors, to enable them all to bring actions: So that the probate of the Teſtament doth not give them any Intereſt or Title to the things in action or in poſſeſſion, for they have their Title and Intereſt by the Teſtament, and not by the probate: But yet without probate, the Judges will not allow them to bring actions; And therefore all the ſaid books in all ſucceſſions of ages affirming clearly the refuſal before the Ordinary by one Executor, when another proveth the will to be void, prove, the Eccleſiaſtical Judge hath not power to take the refuſal in ſuch caſe; for without Queſtion the Executor hath power to refuſe.

And as to the Objection which hath been made, That he hath once waived the Executorſhip, and therefore ſhall not afterwards take the ſame upon him: To that it may be anſwered, Foraſmuch [b] as the Eccleſiaſtical Judge hath not power to receive that refuſal or diſagreement, it is upon the matter done to a ſtranger, and by conſequence void, and of no force to barr the Plaintif to take upon him the ſame afterwards, as in the like caſe it is reſolved in 14 H. 8. and the ſame is alſo affirmed by all the other books, which prove the refuſal void.

And as to the ſecond reaſon, that is to ſay, That the Eccleſiaſtical Judge may take the refuſal of all, and by conſequence of any of them: To that it may be anſwered, That as originally the Eccleſiaſtical Judge hath not power to prove Teſtaments, but the ſame was given to him as it appeareth before; ſo originally the Eccleſiaſtical Judge could not commit adminiſtration to any who might ſue or be ſued as Adminiſtrator, but that alſo was given to the Ordinary by an Act, ſc. by the Act of 31 E. 3. cap. 11. by which it is enacted, That in caſe a Man dieth Inteſtate; The Ordinarie is to depute the next and moſt loyal friends of the dead perſon inteſtate, to adminiſter his goods, which Deputies ſhall have an action to demand and recover the debts due to the Inteſtate in the Kings Courts for to adminiſter, &c. and ſhall anſwer alſo in the Kings Courts to others to whom the ſaid dead was holden and bounden, in the ſame manner as Executors ſhall anſwer, and ſhall be accomptable to Ordinaries, as Executors be in the Caſe of Teſtament, as well in times paſt, as in times to come.

Now it is needful to know 2 things. 1. What the Law was before this Statute, and 2. What alteration the Statute of 31 E. 3. hath made: And as to the firſt, three points are to be conſidered. 1. That of old time when a man died inteſtate, and had made no diſpoſition of his goods, nor committed his truſt to any, that in ſuch Caſe the King who is Parens Patriæ, and hath the Supreme care to provide for all his Subjects, that every one enjoy that which he ought to have, uſed by his Miniſters to ſeiſe the goods of the inteſtate, to the intent they ſhould be preſerved and diſpoſed for [39] the benefit of the deceaſed, for the payment of his debts, for advancing of his Wife and Children, if they had any, and if not, thoſe of his blood. And this appeareth in Rot. Clauſ. of 7 H. 3. m. 16. Bona inteſtatorum capi ſolebant in manu Regis, &c. And afterwards this care and truſt was committed to Ordinaries, for none could be found more fit to have ſuch care and charge of the tranſitory goods after the death of the Inteſtate, then the Ordinary, who all his life had the cure and charge of his immortal Soul, as it is ſaid in Plow. Com. 280. in Greisbrook's Caſe. And therefore he was to this purpoſe conſtituted in loco Parentis: And that appeareth by that which hath been ſaid before: And alſo by the conſtitution of John Stratford Archbiſhop of Canterbury, at a Synod in London, Anno Dom. 1380. where he confeſſed, That the adminiſtration of the goods of an Inteſtate was granted to Ordinaries, conſenſu Regis & Magnatum Angliæ. But no power was given to the Ordinary to ſell or diſpoſe of the goods, either to his own uſe, or the uſe of any other. And yet it is true, as it is ſaid in the books, that he hath a property in the goods of the Inteſtate, but that is ſecundum quid, and not ſimpliciter: And according thereunto it is reſolved by the whole Court, M. 8 & 9 Eliz. Dyer 255, 256. That the Ordinary himſelf had no authority to ſell any of the goods of the Inteſtate, although they were in danger of periſhing. Alſo 18 H. 6. 23. and other books agree, That the Ordinary cannot releaſe a debt due to the Inteſtate, and yet if the abſolute intereſt of the debt were in him, he might releaſe it, although he cannot have an action. As Executors before the probate of the Teſtament may releaſe a debt due to the dead, becauſe they have the abſolute intereſt of the debt in them, although they cannot have an action before probate, as it was adjudged in the Common Pleas, Paſch. 1 Jacobi, betwixt Middleton and Rymon, againſt the opinion of Weſton, Plow. Com. 277, 278. in Greisbrook's Caſe. And that which the Ordinary himſelf might doe before the ſaid Act, he may in reſpect of the multitude of cauſes within his Dioceſs commit to another. But his Committees cannot do more then he himſelf can; as it is alſo reſolved, M. 8 & 9 Eliz. Dyer 235, 256. 2. It was not given to the Ordinary, nor to his Deputies or Committees, that they ſhould have any action to recover any debt, or to take any advantage of any Covenant, or of other things in action, before the ſaid act, which is alſo a manifeſt proof, That the Common Law gave him no abſolute power in the goods, for then the Law would have given him power alſo to recover the debts and things in Action of the Inteſtate. And therefore in 19 E. 3. Covenant 24. (which was before the Act of 31 E. 3.) in an Action of Covenant brought by the Executors of N. who ſhewed forth Letters of adminiſtration delivered by the Ordinary, Sir Richard Wilbie Chief Juſtice, who gave the Rule ſaid, The Ordinary could not have ſuch action, for which cauſe, how can he give this action to another? Stone, A man hath not ſeen, That the Ordinary ſhall have an action but of goods whereof they were ſeiſed and ouſted. Wilbie, That's true: And [b] afterwards it was ruled that they ſhould take nothing by their writ, quia non executores, & actio non datur per Statutum. Vid. 19 E. 3. Adminiſtration 18. 35 E. 3. Executors 105. 11 H. 4. 71. 10 H. 6. 22. 18 H. 6. 23. 10 E. 4. a. F. N. B. 120. 92. a. 3. That an action lieth againſt the Ordinary or his Deputies or Committees at the Common Law if they will intermeddle with the goods, and not pay the Debts. And the Statute of Weſt. 2. cap. 19. is but an affirmance of the Law before, and therewith agreeth 9 E. 4. 33. 11 H. 7. 12. 24 E. 3. 54. Vid. 11 E. 3. Adminiſtration 21. and to the Executors, 17 E. 2. brief 822. 11 H. 4. 73. 18 H. 6. 23. Plow. Com. 277. Greisbrook's Caſe. 8 Eliz. Dyer 247. But note Reader, an action lyeth againſt the Deputies or Committees of the Ordinary, before the ſaid Act, by the name of Executors, as appeareth by 38 E. 3. 26. 42 E. 3. 2. à multo fortiori, an action ſhall lie by the Common Law againſt the Ordinary, who is the principal, and from whom the Adminiſtrators derive their authority.

As to the ſecond point, the Statute of 31 E. 3. hath made 6 alterations, 3 as to the Ordinary, and 3 as to the Adminiſtrators. As to the Ordinary, 1. Whereas before the Statute he was not compellable to grant adminiſtration; Now by the Act of Parliament he is commanded, and thereby compelled to grant adminiſtration; for the words of the Act are; The Ordinary make Deputies, &c. and the refuſal to make them is a contempt to the King, and injury to the party. 2. The Ordinaries are reſtrained to grant adminiſtration to whom they pleaſe, becauſe that now the Adminiſtrator by this Act hath more abſolute intereſt in the goods of the Inteſtate then the Ordinary had, and ability to recover the things in action and debts due to the Teſtator, where no remedy is given to the Ordinary himſelf, and therefore the Ordinary is tyed by the Act to grant adminiſtration to the next of Kinn, who are not attainted of Treaſon, Felory, or hath other lawfull diſabilitiy, but are loyal friends. But the Statute of 21 H. 8. cap. 5. giveth power to the Ordinary to commit adminiſtration to the wife of the Inteſtate, or to the next of Kinn, or to both, and ſo as to the wife hath altered the Act of 31 E. 3. 3. The Ordinary himſelf hath not greater intereſt in the goods by this Act, but hath greater power then he had before, in that he may appoint Adminiſtratours, who ſhall have by this Act greater intereſt and ability then they had before the Act. And [40] where the Statute ſaith, That in caſe where a man dieth Inteſtate, It is to know that a man may die Inteſtate 2 ways, that is to ſay, either in fait, when he maketh no Teſtament; or in Law, when he maketh a Teſtament, and the Executors refuſe before the Ordinary, or all of them die inteſtate, in this caſe he is in Law dead inteſtate, and the ſaid Act of 31 E. 3. extendeth to both the Inteſtates, as appeareth in Plow. Com. 279. and in 18 H. 6. 23. and all the books aforeſaid, which prove in ſuch caſe, The Ordinary may grant adminiſtration; and the reaſon in ſuch caſe, wherefore the Ordinary may upon refuſal of all, or death of all Inteſtate, grant adminiſtration, is, becauſe now the Teſtator dieth Inteſtate, and then the ſaid Act giveth him power to grant the ſame according to the ſaid Act, which the Ordinary cannot doe when one refuſeth, and the other proveth the will. And ſo the ſecond Objection upon full and pregnant reaſon and authority is anſwered. And where the Statute ſaith, In caſe a Man dieth inteſtate that the Ordinary depute the next, &c. of the dead Inteſtate, this word (dead) is meant very large, for it extendeth as well to civil death, ſc. entry into Religion, at natural death; and therewith agreeth Litt. lib. 2. cap. Vill. 44. That if a man entreth into Religion and doth not make Executors, the Ordinary may commit adminiſtration of his goods to another man, as if he were dead indeed: As to the Adminiſtrators,

1. they have now ſo abſolute property in the goods and chattels, as Executors have, which they had not before this Act; 2. they ſhall recover the debts, (and by Equity ſhall have an action of Covenant, actions upon the Caſe, and all other actions which Executors may have) which they could not doe before at the Common Law; 3. they ſhall anſwer to actions, &c. in the ſame manner as Executors; and in this point alſo the Common Law is altered; for at the Common Law they were charged by the name of Executors, and now they ſhall be charged by the name of Adminiſtrators, and yet there was a doubt after the making of this Act by what name they ſhould be charged, In 38 E. 3. 26. Debt was brought againſt an Adminiſtrator, by the name of Adminiſtrator; the Defendant pleaded to the Writ, that he ought to be named Executor; for at the Common Law before the Statute of 31 E. 3. a man ſhould have an action againſt an Adminiſtrator, and name him Executor, and the ſame yet remaineth. Thorp Chief Juſtice who gave the Rule, The [b] Statute giveth actions againſt Adminiſtrators, and that they may have actions againſt others, for which cauſe the writ was ruled good. And yet after that this point was called in queſtion, for in 41 E. 3. 2. an action of debt was brought againſt an Adminiſtrator, and the Defendant demanded judgment of the Writ, for it ſhould be brought againſt him as Executor, for the Statute giveth an action for the Adminiſtrator, but the action is maintenable againſt them as Executors at the Common Law, and yet is. Thorp, The Statute giveth actions againſt Adminiſtrators, and afterwards the writ was ruled good. So this Adminiſtrator conſtituted by the Ordinary (whom the Law hath put in loco parentis,) is ſo advanced, enabled, and adorned, and in all points made equal to Executors conſtituted by the party himſelf, is newly created by this Act; and there was no ſuch Adminiſtrator at the Common Law. And therefore the Ordinary was conſtituted in loco parentis, to ſee that the debts and duties of the Inteſtate ſhould be paid, and to grant adminiſtration according to the ſaid Act, for the benefit of his Children and others of his blood, with his goods, as hath been ſaid. But becauſe it ſhall be a greater trouble for the Ordinary himſelf to take ſuch a Charge in ſuch multitude of caſes in his Dioceſe, for his eaſe the ſaid Act of 31 E. 3. hath endowed his Deputies with greater power then himſelf had, to the intent that the Adminiſtrators which might beſt intend it, ſhould perform the truſt which was committed to him; and for this cauſe the ſaid Act hath alſo provided, That Adminiſtrators to the ſaid intents and purpoſes ſhall be accomptable to Ordinaries, as before Executors are.

It is worth Obſervation for the reaſon of the principal caſe, How probate of wills, and granting of adminiſtrations ſhall be tryed, if they be traverſed or denied in the King's Courts; and therefore, if iſſue by joyned in the King's Courts, That the Ordinary did not commit adminiſtration to the Plaintiff, &c. or that the Teſtament is not proved before the Ordinary, or that he whoſe will is proved before the Ordinary, died Inteſtate, or that he of whoſe goods adminiſtration is granted, as of one Inteſtate, made a will, &c. in none of theſe caſes it ſhall be tried or certified by the Ordinary, as in Caſe of Excommengement, but it ſhall be tried by Jury, becauſe that theſe two caſes of probate of wills, and conſtituting Adminiſtrators, originally did not belong to the Eccleſiaſtical Conuſans, but were given them of later times; and therefore nothing but the probate, and granting of Adminiſtration, which were given to them, doth appertain to their Juriſdiction; But the trial of [41] them is not given to them, but is left to the trial of the Common Law; and therewith agreeth 21 E. 4. 50. where it is holden, That if Letters of Adminiſtration be denied, the iſſue ſhall be, That the Ordinary did not commit to them Adminiſtration by his Letter, &c. For there it is ſaid, That Letters of Adminiſtration may be forged, 12 E. 4. 16. a. 35 H. 6. 31. 22 H. 6. 52. 13 Eliz. Dyer 294. iſſue was joyned in the Common Pleas, ſi Epiſcopus London. commiſit adminiſtrationem, &c. and was tried by Jury. Vide 34 H. 6. 13. and in 44 E. 3. 16. One brought debt againſt one as Adminiſtrator, and declared that the debtor died Inteſtate, and the Ordinary deputed the Defendant to be Adminiſtrator; and the Defendant ſaid that the dead made his will, and made the Defendant and another his Executors, &c. Judgment of the writ? and ſhewed forth the will, and the Plaintiff did tender to averr that he died inteſtate, and was ready, &c. And the Defendant ſaid, He ſhall not be received ſo to averr againſt the will which is proved before the Ordinary, and under the ſeal of the Ordinary, & non allocatur; for which the Plaintiff had the averrment, and it was tried by the Country. Vide 14 H. 6. 5. by Paſton acc. againſt the opinion of Herle, 4 E. 3. Executor 89. obiter. And for as much as it is to be tried by Jury, and not by the Certificate of the Ordinary, nor it needeth not that the will or the adminiſtration be ſhewed to enable the plaintiff to his action, proved, or granted by the Ordinary himſelf, as in the caſe of Excommengement, which is meerly in the Spiritualy, and originally belongeth to the Juriſdiction of the Ordinary; But if the Teſtament be proved, or Adminiſtration granted by the Official or Commiſſary of the Ordinary, or in ſome caſes by the Archdeacon, or other Inferiour Judges Eccleſiaſtical who have lawfull authority, in ſuch caſe, the ſame is good and ſufficient in Law; and although the Statute of 31 E. 3. ſaith, The Ordinary ſhall depute, they are Ordinaries as to this purpoſe within the ſame Act; and therewith agreeth 11 H. 4. 64. 12 E. 4. 15. b. 7 E. 14. 20 H. 6. 1. 3 E. 3. Itin. North. Teſtaments 5. And ſo you have the reaſons and cauſes of the Judgment in the principal caſe, and of many Judgments and Reſolutions before this time in the ſame point, with anſwer to all the Objections made to the contrary, which I have done for 4 cauſes. 1. That it ſhall be manifeſt that Ordinaries (againſt all Objections [b] made by them who impugn their authority) have lawfull Juriſdiction to prove Teſtaments, and to grant Adminiſtrations. 2. That they have their Juriſdiction derived in theſe caſes from the Crown of England. 3. To reconcile all the books and authorities in the Law: and 4. To ſatisfy the ſaid doubts and queſtions clearly by our books, authorities in Law, and Judicial Records.

Trin. 7 Jacobi. In the Common Pleas. Rot. 26. 12.

The Earl of Shrewbsbury's Caſe.

[42] UPON the ſeveral parts of the Record, (which ſee in Rot. as above) the Defendants Counſel moved many exceptions to every part of it, 1. againſt the Patent and the validity of the grant ab initio; 2. admitting the grant, that the office is forfeited; 3. againſt the Writ and Count; 4. againſt the gift of the action; 5. againſt the Verdict. As to the firſt it was ſaid, That the grant was utterly void for 3. cauſes; 1. Becauſe the grant is of the office Seneſchalli Dominiorum ſive Maneriorum noſtrorum de Maunsfield, Bolſover, & Horſley, and no County mentioned where they lie, and ſo in the King's caſe incertain and void; for it was ſaid, It may be, and ſo is the truth, That the King hath divers Mannors of the ſame name in ſeveral Counties, and of ſeveral values, and iſſue cannot be taken what Mannor the King meant to grant, for his intent ought to appear within his grant, and not by collateral averment. And ſo it appeareth in 21 E. 4. 48. the King's Patents ought to extend certainly to the thing of which the Patentee will have advantage. 2 R. 3. 7. If the King grant to me that I ſhall not be Sheriff, without ſhewing of what County, it is void for the incertainty, quia Conceſſio per Regem fieri oportet de certitudine: but if the grant was, quod non erit Vicecomes alicujus Comitatus, there the grant is good, as it is there holden. And in Acts of Parliament of confirmation of Letters Patents, the uſual purview is, that the Letters Patents ſhall be effectual, notwithſtanding the miſnaming or not true naming of the Counties where the Honors, Mannors, &c. lien [47] or been: which (proveth as was urged) that if the County be omitted, that the grant is void. To which it was anſwered and reſolved by the whole Court, That the ſaid grant was certain enough although the County was omitted: and many antient grants are without mentioning any County, and God forbid that all of them ſhould be adjudged void. For the Mannors of M. B. and H. import ſufficient certainty, and ſuch certainty of name and quality, that a Viſne (which requireth certainty) may come from is ſufficient. If the King by his Letters Patents granteth to another all the Mannors and Advowſons which were to the Prior of A. being a Prior Alien, or to I. S. who was attainted, &c. it is holden in 32 H. 6. 20, 21. that the grant is good, and yet it is not mentioned in what County the Mannors, &c. or the Priory was, or in which County the Mannors, &c. were whereof I. S. was ſeiſed the day of his Attainder; and the reaſon is, Quod id certum eſt quod certum reddi poteſt, ſed id magis certum eſt quod de ſemet ipſo eſt certum: and in this caſe the Mannors of M. B. and H. have more certainty in them than the ſaid general grants. So if the King grant to an Abbot and his Succeſſors, that the Monks during the vacation ſhall have all the Temporalties of the Abby, it is a good grant, without mentioning of any County, as it is adjudged in 39 E. 3. 21. and F. N. B. 33. T. And in 23 E. 3. 21. where the Caſe was, That a Barony eſcheated to the King, and the King granted to the Queen all the poſſeſſions of the Barony, till John of Gaunt could govern himſelf, and adjudged a good grant, without mentioning in what County the Barony lay; and if the King hath divers Mannors of one name in divers Counties, yet there are many clauſes in the Letters Patents to deſcribe what Mannor the King intendeth to paſs, to diſtinguiſh it from the other, ſc. either by recital, or reference in whoſe tenure or occupation it was, or by the value of it, or of whoſe poſſeſſion it was, or by the clauſe that the Patentee ſhall have and enjoy the ſame in as ample manner and form as I. S. &c. or any other owner of the ſame Mannor had, or the like, or by the particular. But in pleading it ought to be alledged in what Counties the Mannors lie (as in the caſe at Bar the Plaintif did) And if the other party had pleaded Non conceſſit, upon trial of the iſſue the Circumſtances aforeſaid may be given in evidence, to prove what Mannor was granted: But if the other party had demanded Oyer of the Letters Patents, and had demurred in Law, it ſhould be adjudged againſt him, for it is matter in fact what Mannor ſhall paſs, to be proved in Evidence, as is aforeſaid. And the Acts of Confirmation doe not ex- [b] tend where the County is omitted, but where the County is miſnamed, or not truly named. Alſo for avoiding of all Queſtions, all Imperfections are ſaved by the Acts of Confirmations, which are not of force to avoid the grant.

2. It was objected againſt the grant, that the grant was, à tempore plenæ ætatis 21. annorum ejuſdem Comitis, pro & durante toto termino vitæ naturalis dicti Rogeri Comitis Rutland. offic. Seneſchal. Dominiorum ſive Maneriorum noſtrorum de M. B. & H. cum vadiis & feodis eiſdem officiis ab antiquo debitis & conſuet. capiend. And therein the King was deceived, for he cannot grant the office from the day which was paſt before. To which it was anſwered, and Reſolved by the Court, that the intent of the grant was, that the Patentee ſhould have the Fees from the time of the accompliſhment of his full age; but without queſtion, although the King cannot grant the office from a day before, yet it ſhall be good for the life of the Patentee to begin by grant, and void for the time paſt.

3. It ws objected. 1. That by no expreſs clauſe in the Patent the Patentee can make a deputy. 2. That by Law the Patentee without expreſs words cannot make a Deputy. As to the firſt, It was obſerved, That the ſaid Letters Patents do conſiſt upon 3. ſeveral grants: 1. of the office of Conſtable, &c. Steward, and chief Juſtice of the Foreſt, &c. which grant hath Habendum, and power to make a Deputy, 2. of the office of Stewardſhip of the ſaid 3. Mannors, with limitaion of eſtate eſtate for life, and with a clauſe to receive the Fees, &c. but no power to make a Deputy. 3. Ac inſuper de uberiori gratia, &c. dedimus, &c. præfat. R. comiti cuſtodiam Parci de Nott. &c. Habend. gaudend. & exercend. offic. præd. written by ſuch contraction ) per ſe, vel ſufficient. deputatum, ſen deputatos ſuos ſufficient. à tempore plenæ ætatis, &c. durante vita ipſius Rogeri Comitis, cum vadiis, feodis, &c. eidem officio, &c. pertinent. aut ratione ejuſdem, &c. And it was ſtrongly urged, that this later word (Habendum) ſhould have relation only to the premiſes of the laſt grant, 1. becauſe that there are, as is aforeſaid, 3. ſeveral grants, of 3. ſeveral diſtinct offices; 2. every one hath a diſtinct limitation of eſtate; 3 every one hath a diſtinct grant of the fees and profits. And although the later (Habendum) is writ (offic. præd.) which, as was urged, may be meant officium præd. and then it referreth to all the ſeveral grants, yet it cannot be ſo meant, for the three reaſons before; and alſo theſe words in the ſame ſentence, cum vadiis, feodis, &c. eidem officio written at length; aut ratione ejuſdem, explain the ſaid words written ſhort (offic. præd.) to be in the ſingular number, officium prædictum; and the office of the premiſes is to expreſs the certainty of the thing given, and needeth not limit any eſtate, and the office of the Habendum is to limit the certainty of [48] the eſtate, and needeth not repeat the thing given again, and therewith agreeth Wrotteſlyes caſe, Plow. Com. 196. So in the Caſe at barr the Habendum ſhall be by conſtruction of Law referred to the proper premiſes; and of that opinion was the whole Court. Mark Reader, for abbreviations and incongruous writing in grants, theſe Rules, Falſa orthographia non vitiat conceſſionem. Item, Ille numerus & ſenſus abbreviationum accipiendus eſt ut conceſſio non ſit inanis. Falſa grammatica non vitiat conceſſionem. And therefore if the King granteth tot. ill. man. de D. & C. if there be but one Mannor in truth, then theſe abbreviations de tot. ill. man. ſhall be taken in the ſingular number totum illud manerium: and if there be in truth 2. diſtinct Mannors, then theſe abbreviations ſhall be taken in the plural number, tota illa maneria, or otherwiſe the grant ſhould be void. Vide 32 E. 3. brief 293. A Scire facias doth rehearſe, That a fine was levied de maneriis de B. & H. and the Concluſion was, Quare præd. manerium de B. & H. ingreſſus eſt; and good with averment that in truth B. & H. is but one Mannor. And in 10 H. 4. brief 497. exception was taken to the writ, becauſe it was written with abbreviation Matil' where it ſhould be Matild, and yet good, becauſe it was uſed to write this name ſo, quod nota in a writ which ſhall abate for falſe Latin, for he may purchaſe a new writ at his pleaſure, but not a new grant. Vide 17 Eliz. Dyer 342. The 4. firſt Letters in the name and ſtile of King H. 7. ſcil. H. R. A. F. were left out in the Letters Patents made to Simon Digby, yet adjudged a good grant. And 38 H. 6. 33. A Count in which it was alleged that W. T. reſignavit, &c. in manus I. Epiſcopi & loci illius Ordinarii, and exception was taken, becauſe it was not in manus Johannis Epiſcopi, for the Letter I. doth ſignify nothing, and yet the Count adjudged good. And in 4 H. 6. 16. Between the Duke of York and the Earl of Warwick the writ was, Henr. Dei gratia Rex Angliæ, Dux Hiberniæ, where it ſhould be Dominus, and for this incongruity the writ did abate, but a grant by ſuch name ſhall be good enough. So in a Conuſans of fine falſe Latin or incongruity ſhall not hurt the fine, as in the caſe before, where a fine is levied de maneriis de B. & H. where there is but one Mannor; and 9 E. 3. a warranty was in the fine, eidem Galfrido & uxori ſuæ, where it ſhould be eiſdem, and yet good enough; and 24 E. 3. 37 a. the fine was pro omnibus ſervitiis exactionibus & add'is pertinente, where it ſhould be pertinentibus, and therefore challenged; and notwithſtanding allowed.

1. It was Objected, That by the Law without ſpecial words a Steward cannot make a deputy, [b] becauſe it is an office of knowledge, fidelity, and diſcretion; and therefore, Fleta, lib. 2 cap. 6. doth deſcribe what perſon a Steward ought to be, Provideat ſibi Dominus de Seneſchallo circumſpecto, & fideli, & modeſto, qui in legibus & ſub conſuetudinibus Provinciæ & jura domini ſui in omnibus tueri affectet, quique ſuos Balivos Domini in ſuis erroribus & ambiguis ſciat inſtruere, & docere, quique egenis parcere, & nec prece vel pretio velit à tramite juſtitiæ deviare, & perverſe judicare. And therefore it was ſaid, that this office is appropriate to the Plaintif. 1. To his perſon, for the ſame is granted to him only during his life; 2. To his qualities of his mind, ſc. ſcience, fidelity, underſtanding and diligence, which are ſo individually annexed to him that he cannot make a deputy, nor aſſignee; and therewith agreeth Sir Hen. Nevels caſe, Plow. Com. 384. Litt. lib. 3. cap. Condic. 89. Vide 39 H. 6. 32. 11 E. 4. 1. 10 E. 4. 14. 17 H. 7. by Frowick, Kellaway, &c. and nothing of that was denied by the Court, and yet it was reſolved and ſo adjudged, That the Plaintif might (as this caſe is) make a deputy. And it was obſerved, that this word (Steward) is derived of 2 words, ſc. Stede, and Ward, and is as much as to ſay, my place, or for me; and therefore he is commonly called a Woodward, who hath the charge of my wood, and ſo Hayward of my hayes, & ſic de ſimilibus. And Seneſchallus in Latin hath the ſame ſignification, as it appeareth in the Hiſtory of Ingulphus 463. inter Conſuetudines Scaccarii, where the Underſheriff becauſe he exerciſeth the place of the Sheriff himſelf is called Seneſchallus Vicecomitis, and therefore a great Officer within this Realm is called, the High Steward, becauſe the King appointeth him in divers caſes to exerciſe his place, &c. There is a great difference betwixt a Deputy and an aſſignee of an office; for an aſſignee is a perſon who hath an eſtate or intereſt in the office it ſelf, and doth all things in his own name, for whom his grantor ſhall not anſwer, if it be not in ſpecial Caſes; but a Deputy hath not any Intereſt or eſtate in the office, but is but the officers ſhadow, and doth all things in the name of the Officer himſelf, and nothing in his own name, and for whom his grantor ſhall anſwer; and when an Officer hath power to make aſſignees, he may implicite make Deputies, for cui licet quod majus eſt, non debet quod minus eſt non licere; and by conſequence, when an office is granted to one and his heirs, thereby he may make an aſſignee, and by conſequence a Deputy. In the caſe at barr, the principal parts of the office of Steward of a Mannor is intrare querelas, pleas, ſurrenders, admittances, and fealties, to prove Teſtaments, and to commit adminiſtrations within the Mannors, &c.

And

And the ſuters are the Judges of the Court Baron, and the Steward for the moſt part as Prothonotary or Regiſter to the ſuters, &c. for whoſe labour in writing, &c. the Steward taketh for all fees.
[49] Now when the King granteth the office of a Steward of the ſaid Mannors to the Plaintif, who is an Earl, ſo that in reſpect of the ſmalneſs of the office in a baſe Court, and of the Dignity of the perſon being an Earl, it is implied in Law for conveniency that he may make a Deputy, for whom the Earl ought to anſwer, ſo that it cannot be any prejudice to the Queen, and his Deputy exercebit officium laboris, as in holding of the Court Baron, and in entring of the pleas, ſurrenders; and when need ſhall be in caſes of difficulty, or concerning the profit of the Queen, the Earl exercebit officium fiduciæ, ſcientiæ, & ingenii. Comites dicuntur à comitando, quia comitantur Regem. Bracton lib. 1. cap. 8. Comites à comitatu, ſive à ſocietate nomen ſumpſerunt; qui etiam dici poſſunt Conſules, Reges enim tales ſibi aſſociant ad conſulendum. And the ſame was the moſt eminent and ſupreme dignity before the Conqueſt, until 11 E. 3. where the Black Prince was created Duke of Cornwall, and thoſe who of antient times were Created Earls were of the blood Royal. And even to this day, the King in all his appellations doth ſtyle them, per nomen Chariſſimi Conſanguinei noſtri, and for theſe cauſes the Law giveth to them high and great privileges; and therefore their bodies ſhall not be arreſted for debt, treſpaſs, &c. becauſe the Law doth intend that they do aſſiſt the King with their Counſel for the Commonwealth; and do keep the Realm in ſafety by their proweſs and valour. Alſo for the ſame Cauſe they ſhall not be put on Juries, although it be for the ſervice of the Country. Alſo if iſſue be taken, if the Defendant be an Earl or not, it ſhall not be tryed by Jury, but by the Kings writ. Alſo the Defendant ſhall not have day of grace againſt a Lord of the Parliament, becauſe he is intended to attend the publique: and all theſe and many other appear in our books, 48 E. 3. 30. Regiſter 179. F. N. B. 247. 48 Aſſ. p. 6. 22 Aſſ. p. 24. 32 H. 6. 27. 35 H. 6. 46. So that as when ſuch office deſcendeth to an Infant, or a man Non compos mentis, or Ideot, &c. they of neceſſity ought to exerciſe the ſame by deputy. So an Earl for the neceſſity which the Law intendeth, of his attendance upon the King and the publique, this Stewardſhip of a baſe Court
[b] ſhall be exerciſed by his Deputy; and therefore it was agreed, That if a Pakerſhip be granted to an Earl, without words to make a Deputy, he may keep it by his ſervants. And in many caſes the Law doth allow diverſe acts for conveniency in reſpect of the dignity of the perſon; as if licenſe be given to a Duke to hunt in a Park, the Law for conveniency giveth him ſuch attendances as is requiſite to the dignity of his eſtate. Vide 12 H. 7. and 13 H. 7. 10. So when a Biſhop is riding, it is not convenient to his eſtate and degree to be forced to examine the ability of a Clerk, but he ought to attend his convenient leiſure, 14 H. 7. 21. 15 H. 7. 7. and 8. And of old time the Earl was Præfectus, ſeu Præpoſitus Comitatus, and had the Charge and Cuſtody of the County, and is called by the Romans, Satrapas, which word they had from the Perſians, and was applied to them who were, Præfecti Provinciæ. And Vicecomes is vicem gerens ſive vicarius Comitis: And now the Sheriff hath the authority for adminiſtration and execution of Juſtice, which the Earl had. And now the King by his Letters Patents doth commit to the Sheriff Cuſtodiam Comitatus, without expreſs words to make a Deputy, and yet he who cometh in lieu of the Earl may make one Under-ſheriff, that is, his Deputy, which in ancient time, as appeareth before, was called Seneſchallus Vicecom. and in the Statute of Weſtm. 2. cap. 39. he is called Subvicecomes, and in 11 H. 7. cap. 15. he is called the Shire Clerk; And if Vicecomes qui gerit vicem comitis may make a Deputy, à fortiori, the Earl himſelf may make one; and ſo much the rather in the caſe at barr, becauſe the ſame doth concern private Caſes in a baſe Court. Alſo when before the Statute of Quia Emptores terrarum the King or other Lord, &c. had given lands to a Knight to hold of him by Knights ſervice, ſc. to go with his Lord (when the King maketh a voyage royal to ſubdue his Enemies) for 40. dayes, well and conveniently arrayed for the warr, in this caſe the Law had ſo much regard to the dignity of Knighthood (which is the inferiour degree of Dignity) that he might find an able perſon, &c. to go for him with the King in his warr: and therewith agreeth 7 E. 3. 29. for 2 cauſes, one concerning the publique adminiſtration and execution of Juſtice in time of peace, and the other the publique defence of the Realm in time of warr, were more ſtrong caſes than the Caſe at barr. And it appeareth in [50] the ſaid Letters Patents that it was the intent of the Queen, That the Earl ſhould make a Deputy by theſe words, Volentes & firmiter injungendo præcipientes per præſentes omnibus & ſingulis officiariis, miniſtris, & ſubditis noſtris, tam infra libertat. quam extra, tenore præſentium, quod eidem Regero Comiti Rutland, & deputato, ſive deputatis ſuis in præmiſſis omnibus faciend. & exequend. ſint auxiliantes, & conſulentes prout decet. By which it appeareth that ſhe did mean that the Earl ſhould make a Deputy in præmiſſis omnibus: and her grant ought to be expounded, in reſpect of the dignity of the perſon according to her intent. And as to the opinion of Fleta, as above, it is further ſaid, cujus officium eſt curias tenere maneriorum, & ſi per ſubſtitutum ſuum hoc plerunque fecerit, &c. By which it ſeemeth, that then Stewards of Courts might make Deputies.

As to the ſecond point, Admitting that the Plaintif cannot make a Deputy, Then it was Objected, That the Non-uſer thereof is a Cauſe of Forfeiture, and to prove that, 2 H. 7. 11. in the caſe of the Clerk of the Market, &c. was cited. To which it was anſwered and Reſolved, That by not uſer, the office in the caſe at barr cannot be forfeited. And for the better underſtanding of the true reaſon of it, It is to know, That there are 3. cauſes of Forfeiture, or ſeiſure of offices for matter in fact, as for abuſing, not uſing, or refuſing. Abuſing or Miſuſing, as if the Marſhal, or other Gaoler ſuffer voluntary eſcapes, it is a forfeiture of their offices, 39 H. 6. 32. 5 Ma. Dyer 151. vide in 22 Aſſ. p. 34. 11 E. 4. 1. 8 H. 4. 18. 20 E. 4. 5, 6. So if a Foreſter or Keeper fell and cut wood, if not for neceſſary browſe, it is a forfeiture of their offices; for the deſtruction of Vert is the deſtruction of Veniſon. As to not uſing, (which concerneth the caſe at barr) there is a difference when the Office doth concern the adminiſtration of Juſtice or the Common-wealth, and the officer ex officio, ought of neceſſity attend without any demand, or requeſt; there the not uſing or not attendance in Court is a forfeiture. As the office of Chamberlain in the Exchequer, Prothonotary, Clerk of the Warrants, Exigenter, Philiſer, &c. in the Common Pleas, &c, for the attendance of them and the like officers is of neceſſity for the adminiſtration of Juſtice; So the attendance of the Clerk of the Market is of neceſſity for the Commonwealth. Vide 2 H. 7. 31. So of holding the Sheriffs Torn, 5 Ma. Dyer 151. But when the officer ought not attend, but by demand or requeſt made by him to whom he is officer, there the Not uſing or not attending, is no cauſe of forfeiture without demand or requeſt. As in the Caſe at Barr, he was not bound to hold any Courts, but upon requeſt had, and ſo much is implyed in his grant, ſcil. to hold his Courts when he ſhall be required: And ſo it was adjudged in Walton's Caſe in the Common Pleas, Anno 10 Eliz. and 20 Eliz. in the ſame Court in Randal Hurleſton's Caſe; as if a man granteth an annuity pro conſilio impendendo, he is not bound to give Counſel but upon requeſt made, 39 H. 6. 22. John Bruin's Caſe and 22 Eliz. Dyer 369. Plommer's Caſe, 41 E. 3. Bredon's Caſe.

But when the Office doth concern any mans private, and the Officer ought ex Officio attend his Office without Requeſt, there the not uſing or not attending is not a cauſe of forfeiture, if not that the not uſing or not attending be cauſe of prejudice or damage to him whoſe Officer he is in any thing which concerneth his charge. As if a Keeper of a Park do not attend one or two days, and within theſe days no prejudice or damage happeneth, it is no forfeiture; but if by reaſon of his abſence unknown perſons kill the Deer, it is a forfeiture of his Office; and therewith agreeth 5 E. 4. 6. [b]

As to the Refuſal it is to know, That in all caſes when an Officer is bound upon requeſt to exerciſe his Office, if he do it not upon requeſt, it is a forfeiture: As if the Steward of a Mannor be requeſted by the Lord to hold a Court, which he doth not, it is a forfeiture.

The 3 point. Againſt the Writ and Count it was objected, that they were vi & armis (where an action upon the caſe ought to be without vi & armis) for the Writ and Count are, that the Defendants eundem Comitem ad exercend. dict. Offic. infra dict. maner. de M. & vadia, feoda, commoda, & proficua eidem offic. de jure pertinent. habere & percipere vi et armis adtunc et ibid. impediverunt, et ad hunc impediunt. And the Books in 43 E. 3. 33. et 17 E. 4. 2. were cited. And F. N. B. 86 H. that the Action upon the Caſe ſhall be without vi et armis. And as to that it was Reſolved by the Court, that the Writ and Count were good enough. And a difference was taken betwixt not doing, and miſ-doing, for not doing or negligence, it ſhall never be ſaid vi et armis, for that ſhould be oppoſitum in objecto, nor for negligence or not doing the writ ſhall be, contra pacem, 12 H. 4. 3. 45 E. 3. 17. 43 E. 3. 33. But ſome writs ſhall be contra pacem, which ſhall not be vi et armis, as 9 H. 6. 1. A Recaption ſhall be contra pacem, and againſt the Law and the Statute, but ſhall not be vi et armis. So in all actions for a thing done againſt any Statute, the writ ſhall be contra pacem; vid. 17 E. 3. 1. although it be not for damage. But when there are two cauſes of an action upon the Caſe, the one cauſa cauſans, and the other cauſa cauſata: cauſa cauſans may be alleged to be vi et armis; as in 12 H. 4. 3. The putting of the Dung into the River is cauſa cauſans, and therefore it may be vi et armis, but cauſa cauſata, ſc. the point of the action upon the caſe is the drowning of the Plaintifs land: So in 8 H. 2. Hoſteler 2. Regiſter 105. the breaking of the Inne may be alleged vi et armis; For defectus cuſtodie is the point of the action upon the Caſe againſt the Hoſteler, M. 29 E. 3. 20. b. The Abbot of Eveſham brought an action upon the Caſe againſt certain perſons, and counted that he had a Fair in S. with all that belonged to a Fair, and that the Defendants with force and armes did diſturb the people from coming to the fair (which was cauſa cauſans) by which the Plaintif loſt his Toll (which was cauſa cauſata) the point of the action, and the action was maintainable. So in the caſe at bar, the Defendants might vi et armis hinder or interrupt the Plaintif to exerciſe the Office, and that is cauſa cauſans, by which he loſeth his fees, &c. and that is cauſa cauſata the point of the action, and 7 H. 4. 14. If an action upon the Caſe hath ſufficient matter, although it hath alſo matter in Parliament, yet it ſhall be maintainable. [51]

The 4th. point, Againſt the action it was objected, That no action upon the caſe lieth, becauſe it appeareth by his own ſhewing that he may have an Aſſiſe, Vid. 2 H. 4. 11. 13 H. 7. 26. and many other books. To which it was anſwered and Reſolved by the Court, That of things not maynorable, hæreditamenta incorporea, as Common, Corodie, Office, Rent, &c. he who is ſeiſed of them is in Election to have an Aſſiſe, and to admit himſelf to be out of poſſeſſion; as if a Man ſeiſed of a Corodie certain thereof be diſturbed by another, by which he cannot take his Corodie; yet he may grant it over; otherwiſe it is of Land. And therewith agreeth 17 E. 2. Nuper obiit, &c. So if another take up my rent; yet I may grant it over, and therewith agreeth 24 E. 3. 4. 15 E. 4. 8. 1 E. 5. 5. 19 R. 2. Action ſur le caſe 51. I. F. brought an action upon the caſe againſt certain perſons, and declareth, that he is Bedel of the Hundred of H. and ought to have of every Brewer, who ſelleth 3 gallons of the beſt Beer for 7 d. certain Beer; and ſaith that he, and thoſe whoſe eſtate he hath in the Hundred have been ſeiſed thereof. And Hankford took 3 Exceptions to the Declaration, 1. That he hath not ſhewed how he hath his eſtate, & non allocatur, 2. He claimeth by preſcription of every of theſe Brewers Beer by virtue of his Office; and he hath joyned ſundry Brewers in his action, where he ought to have ſeveral actions, and non allocatur, for all in Covine were acceſſary. 3. He hath ſhewed he was diſturbed, in which caſe he ought to have an Aſſiſe; and non allocatur. But the reaſon of the Rule of the Book is miſtaken by the Reporter; for there the reaſon which is given is, becauſe peradventure he hath nothing in the Office but for a time, as a Clark hath nothing but the occupation, &c. the contrary of which appeareth peareth in the declaration, where he preſcribeth in the Office; but the true reaſon is, that it is in his election, as is aforeſaid.

The 5 point. Againſt the verdict 5 Exceptions were taken. 1. That there was not any diſturbance found, and if any diſturbance be found, the diſturbance alleged in the Declaration is not found: Firſt the ſaid words which paſſed betwixt them, was not any diſturbance or interruption of the Plaintif, as in 16 E. 4. 10 & 11. David Malpas was bound to another, that he ſhould not interrupt him to uſe the Office of Parker, &c. and they met in London, and Malpas ſaid to the Parker, that if he would be ſo hardy as to come to the ſaid Park, and uſe the office aforeſaid, that he would beat him, and it is there holden that this verbal threatning is not any interruption.

[b] 2. There is not any diſturbance found vi & armis, which is alleged in the Declaration. To which it was Anſwered, and Reſolved by the Court; That there was an expreſſe diſturbance found, ſc. to hold the Court, and of the taking of the Fees; for impedire eſt pedem imponere, & impedimentum eſt quo quis impeditur ut not perficiat quod ad ſe pertinet; And although the diſturbance with all the circumſtances be not found, yet if any diſturbance be found which is alleged in the Declaration, it is ſufficient, and that without queſtion is directly found. 3. The Verdict is, Quod quidem Simon Stern adtunc exiſtens deputat. prædict. Comitis Rutland. pro exercitio prædicti Officii Seneſchalli prædict. Maner. de M. and it is not found that he made the ſaid Stern his Deputy by his Deed, as it ought to be, as it is agreed in 28 H. 8. Deputie 17. for this cauſe the verdict was inſufficient. To which it was Anſwered and Reſolved; That it is true, that he who maketh a Deputy ought to make him by writing: But when the Jury find that Simon Stern is his Deputy, all neceſſary incidents are thereby found; and therefore upon the matter they have found that it was by deed. 4. The verdicts is, Quod acceſſit ad villam de M. & ad uſualem locum ibid. ubi Curia Maner. de M. communiter tent. & cuſtodit. fuit, and yet it is not found that he came to any part of the Mannor, but onely ad villam de M. and therefore it is inſufficient; for the Court ought to be holden upon part of the Mannor, or at leaſt upon ſome part of that which is holden of it, but it may well be that ſome part of the Town is not within the Mannor, but holden of another Mannor; and non allocatur. 1. Becauſe it ſhall be entended prima facie in this ſpecial verdict, that the Mannor doth include the whole Town. 2. The other words, ſc. ad uſualem locum ubi Cur. Maner, &c. the ſame maketh in a ſpecial verdict the matter clear, that it ſhall be intended in ſome place within the Mannor, for ſuch preciſe form is not by Law required in a ſpecial verdict, which are the finding of Lay people, as in pleadings, which are by men learned in the Law. Laſtly it was objected, That the verdict hath found, that, thereupon ſc. (from the 16 day of Feb.) iidem Tho. Woodward & Rob. Spencer receperunt omnia feoda pertinent. Seneſchal. ibid. which ought to be intended till the finding of the Verdict, and therefore they have given damages entirely for all, whereas it ought to be onely for the taking of the fees before the Original; for this caſe the verdict was inſufficient. To which it was Anſwered and Reſolved by the Court; That the beginning of this ſentence is, and abinde uſque impetrationem præd. brevis original. &c. Theſe words in this ſpecial verdict ſhall guide and limit the 2 abinde alſo. 2. The Jurors, if, &c. find them guilty de tranſgreſſ. infra ſcript. which was alleged in the Writ and Declaration from the 16 of Feb. hue uſque, which taking of all the profit ought to be intended uſque ad impetrationem brevis. And afterwards in the end of this Term a writ of Enquirie of damages was awarded by the Court, and upon Retorn of it Judgement was given for the Plaintif. And the Chief Juſtice in the argument of this Caſe

[52] ſaid, That in the ſaid Letters Patents, there is a general clauſe which referreth unto the ſaid grant of the Office of the Stewardſhip laſt named, and the other Offices which were before granted, ſc. una cum omnibus aliis profic', juribus, commodit', & emolument. dict. omnibus & ſingulis officiis cum ceteris præmiſſis pervenient. ſeu aliquo modo ſpectant. & adeo plene & integre, & in tam amplis modo & forma, prout Tho. Manners Miles, &c. aut aliquis alius, ſive aliqui alii, offic. præd. vel eorum aliquod ante hæc tempora occupans ſive occupantes, habuit & percepit, habuerunt ſive perceperunt, &c. And if in any former Patent of the ſaid Office of Stewardſhip, the Patentee had expreſſe power to make a Deputy, that then by theſe general words ide omnibus juribus, &c. adeo plene, &c. being applied to a particular Charter which hath ſuch expreſſe authority, the Plaintif may make a Deputy, and to this purpoſe 43 E. 3. 22. 18 *Eliz. Hickmot's Caſe.

IN an action of debt brought by Will. Hickmot againſt Thomas Oxenbridge upon a Bond of 40 l. 1 Jan. 5 Jac. the Deft. pleaded in barr, that after the making of the ſaid Bond, ſc. 10 Julii 1608. [b] the Plaintif did releaſe unto him, and pleaded part of the Releaſe, The Plaintif demanded Oyer of the Releaſe, which was read to him in theſe words, July the 13 day in Anno 1608. It is concluded and agreed, upon the day and year above written, between Wil. Hickmot of the one party, and Tho. Oxenbridge of the other party; That upon good conſiderations, drawing the parties thereunto, The ſaid William Hickmot doth acknowledge himſelf fully ſatisfied and diſcharged of all Bonds, debts or demands whatſoever, from the beginning of the world until this preſent day, by the ſaid Tho. Oxenbridge. And that he the ſaid William Hickmot is to deliver all ſuch bonds as he hath yet undelivered to Thomas Oxenbridge, except one Bond of 40 l. yet unforfeit, which is for the payment of 22 l. wherein the ſaid Thomas Oxenbridge and Roger Oxenbridge, his brother, ſtandeth bound to the ſaid William Hickmot, In witneſſe whereof, &c. And the Plaintif ſaid that he ought to be barred of his action, for, he ſaid that the Bond of 40 l. ſo excepted, and the ſaid Bond brought into Court, are one and the ſame Bond, &c. upon which the Plaintif did demurr in Law. And in this Caſe 3 points were Reſolved.

1. That the ſaid acknowledgement by his deed to be ſatisfied and diſcharged of all Bonds, is in Judgment of Law a releaſe or diſcharge of the Bonds, for none ought to be ſatisfied but once, although that the word Diſcharge is not properly ſaid of the part of the Obligee, but of the Obligor, for the Obligor is to be diſcharged; yet when the Obligee doth confeſs himſelf to be diſcharged of all bonds by the ſaid Tho. Oxenbridge, the ſame amounteth to as much, that the Bonds themſelves ſhall be diſcharged: So that as well this word Diſcharge, as this word Satisfied, is ſufficient in Law to barr the Plaintif of all benefit of the ſaid Bonds; For by what words a debt may be created, by the contrary words it may be diſcharged, Vid. 22 E. 4. 22. a. 8 E. 4. 5. a. 37 H. 6. 9. a. what ſhall be good words Obligatory: And bis idem exigi bona fides non patitur, & in ſatisfactionibus non permittitur amplius fieri quam ſemel factum eſt. [53]

2. It was Reſolved, That the ſaid exception ſhall extend to all the premiſes, and not onely to the clauſe of delivery, for 3 cauſes. 1. Becauſe it is a Rule, Quod exceptio ſemper ultimæ ponenda eſt, Vid. Regiſt. 1. 2. All the words before make but one entire ſentence, and one depending upon the other, for it was reaſon, when all Bonds are ſatisfied and diſcharged, that they ſhould be delivered. 3. It was reaſon that this Bond of 40 l. ſhould be excepted, for the ſame was not then due.

The 3 point, That now it appeareth by the Confeſſion of the Plaintif in his Replication, That he cannot have an action of debt againſt the Defendant onely, but he ought to have the ſame againſt him and Roger Oxenbridge, for the Bond of 40. l. excepted was a joint Bond; and the Plaintif doth aver in his Replication, that the ſame is the Bond upon which he conceived this action, and therefore he hath abated his own Writ. But the Court gave day to another Term, at which day the Plaintif was Nonſute.

Baten's Caſe.

HEnry Baten, and Elizabeth his Wife brought a quod permittat againſt George Sampſon, to proſtrate a houſe in the Pariſh of St. Clements Danes without Temple Barr, London, which [b] the ſaid George wrongfully, and without judgment had levied ad nocumentum liberi tenementi nuper Johannis Pleader, & modo præd. Henrici & Eliz. in jure ipſius Eliz. &c. And counted that the ſaid John Pleader was ſeiſed of a Meſſuage in the Strood in the ſaid Pariſh in Fee. And ſo ſeiſed the ſaid George, ult. Octob. 41 Eliz. wrongfully, and without judgment did erect upon his Freehold a houſe, ſo near the ſaid Meſſuage nuper præd. Johannis Pleader & modo ipſorum Henrici & Elizab. ſic quod Orientalis pars ejuſdem domus ipſius Georgii ſuperpendet, Anglicè, doth juttie over the ſaid Meſſuage late the ſaid John Pleader's, and now the ſaid Henry and Elizabeth's, in breadth 17 Inches, and in length 17 feet, ad nocumentum liberi tenementi ipſorum Henrici & Elizab. in eadem, &c. to their damage of C l. upon which the Defendant did demur in Law. And in this Caſe 3 points were Reſolved.

1. That it needeth not to ſhew how the Plaintif had the eſtate of John Pleader in the ſaid houſe to which the Nuſance is, for ſo have always been the forms of actions upon the Caſe, and the Counts upon them in ſuch Caſes. And ſo was it adjudged and affirmed in a Writ of Error, as appeareth by the Record (which agreeth with this Caſe) in Penruddocks Caſe in the 5th. part of my Reports.

2. It was Objected, That there was variance between the Writ and the Count in this Caſe, becauſe the Writ was levavit, &c. ad nocumentum liberi tenementi nuper Johannis Pleader, & modo præd. Henerici & Eliz. and the Count was levavit, &c. domum, &c. tam prope Meſſuag. præd. Henrici & Eliz. ſic quod Orientalis pars, &c. ſuperpendit, Anglicè, doth juttie over, præd. meſſuag. nuper præd. Johannis Pleader, & modo ipſorum Henrici & Eliz. &c. ad nocumentum liberi tene-
[54] ment. ipſorum Henrici & Eliz. in eadem; ſo that the Writ is, ad nocumentum liberi tenementi nuper Johannis Pleader, & modo of the Plaintifs, and the Count is, ad nocument. liberi tenementi ipſorum Henrici & Eliz. and ſo variance: And it was not allowed, for the Plaintifs ſhew in their Count, that the levying was in the time of John Pleader, &c. which agreeth not with the Writ, becauſe that the levying was ad nocumentum Johannis Pleader, and the concluſion ad nocumentum of the Plaintifs is neceſſary; for otherwiſe they cannot maintain the action, nor demand damages.

3. It was Objected, That the Plaintifs have counted generally, ad nocumentum, and have not aſſigned any Nuſance certain, ſc. That the Rain did fall from the ſaid houſe newly built, to the houſe of the Plaintifs, or that the windows are ſtopped, by which he loſeth the light, &c. as in 4 Aſſ. 3 & 4 E. 3. Richard de Daulbies Caſe: The Plaintiff in the quod permittat ſhewed the manner of the Nuſance, when the ſmoke entred into the ſaid houſes, ſo that no man could ſtay there. So in 18 E. 3. 22. b. A man brought a Writ of Nuſance of a houſe levied to his freehold, and counted that where he had a houſe, and under his houſe had a place which contained ſo much in length, and ſo much in breadth, by which the water uſed to diſcend from his houſe and paſſe, there the Defendant had built a houſe above the Spout, ſo that the water and drops of Rain could not fall as they ought, but fell upon the peraies of his houſe, whereby the Timber of his houſe did periſh. So in 32 Aſſ. 2. In Aſſiſe of Nuſance, quod duxit curſum aquæ, &c. And aſſigned that he made a trench out of the River which came to the Plantifs Mill, ſo that it was miſ-turned, inſomuch that where the Mill uſed to grind day and night 3 quarters, &c. it could not now grind a Buſhel, and alſo that the ſaid Water did drown 15 acres of the Plaintifs Meadow, adjoining to the ſame Mill; ſo as where he uſed to have 40 loads of Hay, he could not now have 7, &c. Vid. 30 E. 3. 3. & 26. 17 E. 3. 39. 2 H. 4. 13. and ſo it was in the ſaid Penruddocks Caſe. But it was Reſolved, that the Plaintif need not in this Caſe aſſign any ſpecial Nuſance; for here it appeareth to the Court, that it is to the Plaintifs Nuſance; For this Caſe differs from all the other Caſes; for in this Caſe the Defendant hath built a new houſe, which overhangeth part of the Plaintifs houſe (which was not in any of the other Caſes) ſo that of neceſſity the Rain which falleth from the new houſe ought
[b] to fall upon the Plaintifs houſe. Alſo Cujus eſt ſolum, ejus eſt uſque ad Cœlum. And therewith agreeth 13 H. 8. 1. And by the overbuilding upon part of the houſe of the Plaintifs, he hath deprived them of the Air; alſo he hath prevented them to build their houſe higher; and that which appeareth to the Court needeth not to be averred; for Lex non requirit verificari quod apparet Curiæ, Plow. Com. 87. in Patridges Caſe; 13 H. 4. 17. If an Infant bring an Aſſize of Mortdanceſter, he needeth not averr, that it is within the time of limitation, for it appeareth by the Plaintifs Infancy, 46 E. 3. In Treſpaſs for taking of money, the value needeth not be ſhewed, becauſe it appeareth, Vid. 33 H. 6. 54. 26 H. 6. Gard. 58. 35 H. 6. 30. a Bracton 254. and this is according to the old verſe, Quod conſtat clarè non debet verificare. And in Penruddocks Caſe, the Plaintif aſſigned ſome ſpecial Nuſance before the writ brought; but that ſuperpendit 3 pedes curtillagii, &c. per quod aquæ pluviales de eadem domo deſcendentes, ſolum ejuſdem meſuagii conterunt, ac magnoperè indies magis magiſque conſumunt & devaſtant, & ea ratione curtilagium præd. quolibet pluviali tempore humectatum & inundatum exiſtet: So that all the words in the ſaid Count being in the preſent Tence, and ſo after the writ brought, and no aſſignment of any ſuch particular nuſance before the writ brought, it appeareth thereby that the Court, as of a thing apparent, took notice thereof without averment, For Nunc pluit, & toto nunc Jupiter æthera fulgit, and that every one knoweth: And the book in 3 H. 3. Aſſiſe 362. was cited where in Aſſiſe of nuſance de foſſo levato ad nocum. liberi ten. ſui; and made his plaint that there where the water of S. held courſe directly from S. to the water of Idele, the Deft. had made a ditch over the water ſo that the water was ſtopt and roſe, that his land lying near the ſaid ditch is drowned to his damage; and Exception was taken to it, becauſe he doth not ſet forth how much much land was drowned, ſo that the plea is uncertain (and note he doth not ſhew as in 32 Aſſ. before, the particular Nuſans upon the drowning, ſc. where he uſed to have ſo many loads of hay, that now he hath but ſo many;) alſo it might have been ſaid, that by ſome manner of drowning, the meadow ſhould be better, but there ad damnum doth imply the contrary. But it was anſwered in the caſe of 3 E. 3. that the Aſſiſe ſhall ſay in certain, becauſe that ſometimes more may be drowned, ſometimes leſs, for which cauſe the plaint was adjudged good. So in the caſe at barr, the Jury ſhall enquire of the certainty and quantity of the damage which happened to the Plaintif by the ſaid Nuſans. Note Reader, there are 2. wayes to redreſs a Nuſans, one by action, and that is to recover damages, and have judgment that the Nuſans ſhall be removed, caſt down, or abated, as the caſe requireth; or the party grieved may [55] enter and abate the Nuſans himſelf, as it appeareth by 17 E. 3. 44. and 9 E. 4. 35. and in Penruddocks caſe, but then he ſhall not have an action, nor recover damages; for in an Aſſiſe of Nuſans, or Quod permittat proſternere, &c. it is a good plea, that the Plaintif himſelf either before the writ brought, or hanging the writ, hath abated the Nuſans: For in an Aſſiſe or Quod permittat, he ſhall have Judgment of 2 things, ſc. to have the Nuſans abated, and therefore the action doth not lie; and therewith agreeth 50 E. 3. 11. The Abby of Buckfaſts caſe. 2 H. 4. 11, 46 E. 3. 24. 29 Aſſ. 2. Vide the Stat. of Weſt. 2. Cap. 24. In Caſibus in quibus conceditur bre. de Cancell. noſtra de

And the reaſon, that at the Common Law Aſſiſe of Nuſans lieth not againſt him who levyeth the Nuſans, and him to whom the tenement was paſſed, was becauſe there was not found any writ of Aſſiſe of Nuſans in the Regiſter, but which ſuppoſed, that the Tenants in the aſſiſe levaverunt; and that cannot be ſaid when the Tenement is paſſed over to another; for he doth not levy it, but onely the other; and now that Statute giveth an Aſſiſe in ſuch Caſe: ſc. Queſtus eſt nobis A. quod B. (who levyed the Nuſans,) & C. (to whom the Tenement is transferred) levaverunt, and this Statute doth extend onely to Aſſiſe of Nuſans againſt him who maketh the Nuſans and his alienee. 30 E. 3. 26. b. 46 E. 3. 23. 24. 50 E. 3. 11. and afterwards the Plaintif in the Quod permittat had judgement.

The Poulters Caſe.

[b] Mich. 8. Jac. The Caſe between Stone Plaintif, and Raſe Waters, Henry Bate, John Woodbridge, and many other Poulters of London Defendants, for combination, confederacy, and agreement betwixt them falſly and malitiouſly to charge the Plaintif (who had married the wife of a Poulter in Gratious-ſtreet) with robbery of the ſaid Raſe Waters; ſuppoſed to be done in the County of Eſſex, and to procure him to be indicted, arraigned, adjudged, and hanged, and in Execution of this falſe conſpiracy, they procured divers warrants of Juſtices of peace, by force whereof Stone was apprehended, examined, and bound to appear at the aſſiſes in Eſſex; at which aſſiſes the Defendants did appear, and preferred a bill of Indictment of Robbery againſt the Plaintif; And the Juſtices of Aſſiſe hearing the Evidence to the Grand Jury openly in Court, they perceiving great malice in the Defendants in the proſecution of the cauſe, and upon the whole matter it appeared, That the Plt. the whole day that Waters was robbed, was in London, ſo that it was not poſſible that he committed the robbery, and thereupon the Grand Inqueſt found Ignoramus. And it was moved and ſtrongly urged by the Defendants Councel, That admitting this combination, confederacy and ageement between them to indict the Plaintif, to be falſe, and malitious, that yet no ſute lieth for the ſame in this Court, or elſewhere, for divers cauſes. 1. Every one who knoweth himſelf guilty, may to cover their offences, or to fright or diſcourage thoſe who would proſecute the cauſe againſt them, ſurmiſe a confederacy, combination, or agreement, together betwixt them, and by ſuch means notorious offendors ſhall eſcape unpuniſhed, or at the leaſt, Juſtice ſhall be in danger to be perverted, and great offences to be ſmothered, and therefore it was ſaid by them, that there was not any preſident or warrant in Law to maintain ſuch a Bill as this is. But upon good conſideration, it was Reſolved that the Bill was maintenable; and in this caſe divers points were Reſolved.

1. That at the Common Law, which not onely favoureth the life of a man, but alſo his liberty, and freedom from Impriſonment, when a man was impriſoned for the death of a man, &c. where prima facie by the Law he was not bailable, and ne detineatur diu in priſona, ſc. till the coming of the Juſtices in Eyr, as appeareth by the Statute of Weſt. 1. cap. 11. the priſoner in ſuch caſe might have a writ of Odio & atia, directed to the Sherif, quod aſſumptis ſecum cuſtodibus placitorum coronæ in pleno Comitatu per Sacrament. proborum & legalium hominum, &c. inquirat. utrum A. captus & detentus in priſona, &c. pro morte W. unde rettatus (that is, accuſatus) eſt, rettatus ſit odio & atia, an eo quod inde culpabilis ſit, & ſi odio & atia, tunc quo odio & atia, &c. niſi indictatus vel appellatus fuerit coram Juſtic. noſtris ultimo itinerantibus in partibus illis, et pro hoc captus et impriſonatus, etc. By which it appeareth, that if the priſoner be indicted or appealed, and by force thereof impriſoned, the ſaid Writ being but a ſurmiſe lay not againſt the ſaid matter of Record.

2. It is obſerved, That if upon the ſaid writ of Odio et atia, the Jury found him not guilty, yet the Sheriff, with the Coroners, or any of them, could not bail him; but then ſhould iſſue forth a writ of Ponendo in ballivum to the Sheriff, which writ doth recite the Inquiſition, by which it is found the priſoner to be Not guilty, or that he did it ſe defendendo, et non per feloniam, etc. malitia præcogitata, vel per infortunium, Tibi præcipimus, quod ſi præd. A. invenerit tibi 12. probos et legales homines de Comit' tuo, etc. qui eum manucapiant habere coram Juſticiariis noſtris ad primam Aſſiſam, &c. ad ſtandum, &c. tunc ipſum A. &c. præd. 12. interim tradas in ballivum. By which it appeareth, that in ſuch a caſe the Sheriff without a writ could not bail him, nor by writ bail under the number of 12. perſons which ſhould bail him. Vide Magna Charta, cap. 16. Weſt. 1. cap. 11. Glouceſter, [b] cap. 9. Weſt. 2. cap. 29. But now the writ of Odio & atia is forbidden by the Statute of 28 E. 3. cap. 9. Vide Regiſter. Stamf. pleas of the Crown. 77. g. Bracton lib. 3. 121. b.

3. It is to be obſerved, That there was means by the Common Law before Indictment to protect the innocent againſt falſe accuſation, and to deliver him out of priſon: and as Odium in the ſaid Writ doth ſignifie hatred, ſo Acia or Atia, doth ſignifie malice, becauſe that malicia eſt acida, that is, egre, ſharp and cruel.

And it is true, the writ of Conſpiracy lieth not, if not that the party be indicted, and legitimo modo acquietatus, for ſuch are the words of the Writ; But that a falſe conſpiracy betwixt diverſe perſons ſhall be puniſhed, although that nothing be put in Execution, is full and apparent in our books; and therefore in 27 Aſſ. p. 44. In the Articles of the Charge of Enquiry by the Enqueſt in the Kings Bench, there is a Nota, That two were indicted of Confederacy, each of them to maintain the other, whether their matter be true, or falſe, and notwithſtanding that nothing was ſuppoſed to be put in Execution, the parties were forced to anſwer to it, becauſe the thing is forbidden by the Law, which are the very words of the book; which proveth that ſuch falſe confederacy is forbidden by the Law, although it was not put in ure or execution. So there in the next Article in the ſame book, Inquiry ſhall be of Conſpirators and Confederates, which agree amongſt themſelves, &c. falſly, to indict, or acquit, and of the manner of agreement betwixt them, which proveth alſo, That confederacy to indict or acquit, although that nothing be done, is puniſhable by Law. And there is another Article concerning Conſpiracy betwixt Merchants, and in theſe caſes the Conſpiracy or Confederacy is puniſhable, although the Conſpiracy or Confederacy be not executed, as it is holden in 19 R. 2. brief 926. A man ſhall have a writ of Conſpiracy, although they doe nothing but conſpire together, and he ſhall recover damages, and they may be alſo indicted thereof. Alſo the uſual Commiſſion of Oyer and Terminer giveth power to the Commiſſioners to enquire, &c. de omnibus coadunationibus confœderationibus, & falſis alligantiis; and Coadunatio is a uniting of themſelves together, Confœderatio is a Combination amongſt them, and falſa alligantia is a falſe binding each to other, by bond or promiſe, to execute ſome unlawfull act; In theſe caſes before the Act done the Law doth puniſh the Coadunation, Confederacy, and falſe alliance, to the [57] end to prevent the unlawfull act, quia quando aliquid prohibetur, & id per quod per venitur ad illud: Et affectus punitur licet non ſequatur effectus; and in theſe caſes the Common Law is a Law of Mercy, for the ſame preventeth the Malignant to do miſchief, and the Innocent to ſuffer the ſame. Hill. 37 H. 8. In the Starr-chamber a Prieſt was ſtigmatized with F. and A. in the forehead, and ſet upon the Pillory in Cheapſide, with a paper for a falſe accuſation. M. 3, & 4. Phil. & Ma. one alſo for the like was branded with an F. A. in the cheek, with this ſuperſcription as is aforeſaid. Vide Proverbs 1. Si te lactaverint peccatores & dixerint, Veni nobiſcum ut inſidiemur ſanguini, abſcondamus tendiculs contra inſontem fruſtra, &c. omnem pretioſam ſubſtantiam reperiemus & implebimus domus noſtra ſpoliis, &c. Fili mi ne ambules coram eis, pedes enim eorum ad malum currunt & feſtinant ut effundant ſanguinem. And afterwards upon the hearing of the caſe, and upon pregnant proofs, the Defendants were ſentenced for the ſaid falſe confederacy by fine and impriſonment. Note Reader, Thoſe Confederacies puniſhable by Law, ought before they be executed to have 4 incidents: 1. The Confederacy ought to be declared by ſome manner of proſecution, as in this caſe it was, either by making of Bonds, or promiſe one to the other: 2. It ought to be malitious, as for unjuſt revenge, &c. 3. It ought to be falſe againſt an innocent: 4. It ought to be voluntary out of Court.

William Aldred's Caſe.

[b] William Aldred brought an action upon the Caſe againſt Tho. Benton, which began Trinit. 7. Jacobi, Rot. 2802. That where the Plaintif, 29 Septemb. 6. Jac. was ſeiſed of a houſe, and of a parcel of land in length 31 feet, and in bredth 2 feet and a half, next to the Hall and Parlor of the Plaintif, of his houſe aforeſaid in Harleſton in the County of Norfolk in fee; and where the Defendant was poſſeſſed of a ſmall Orchard on the Eaſt part of the ſaid parcel of Land, the ſaid Thomas malitioſè machinans & intendens ipſum Willihelmum de eaſamento & proficuo meſſuag' & parcell' terræ ſuorum præd. impedire & deprivare, the ſaid 29. day of *Septemb. And the Defendant pleaded

Not

Not guilty, and at the Assises in Norfolk he was found guilty of both the said Nusances, and damages assessed. And now it was moved in arrest of Judgment, That the building of the said house for hoggs was necessary for the sustenance of man; and one ought not to be so delicate nosed, that he cannot endure the scent of hoggs; for Lex non favet delicatorum votis: But it was Resolved, That the action for the same (as this case is) was well maintenable; for in a house 4. things are desired, habitatio hominis, delectatio inhabitantis, necessitas luminis, et salubritas aeris, and for Nusance done to 3 of them an action lieth, sc. to the habitation of the house, for that is the principal end of a house. 2. For hindrance of his light, for the old form of action upon the Case was significant, sc. quod Messuagium horrida tenebritate obscura tum fuit, therewith agreeth 7 E. 3. 30. 22 H. 6. 14. by Markham, 11 H. 4. 47. and so was a Case adjudged in the Kings Bench, Mich. 29 Eliz. Tho. Bland brought an action upon the Case against Tho. Moseley, and declared how that James Bland was seised in fee of an antient house in Netherousgate in the Parish of St Michael in the County of the City of York; and that the said James, and all those whose estate he hath in the said house, time out of mind, &c. had and have used to have for them his Tenants, for life, years, and at will, in the West side of the said house 7 windows or cleristeries against a piece of land containing half a Rood, in the Parish aforesaid, adjoining to the said house, which piece of land time out of mind was without any any building, until the 28 day of Sept. Anno 28 Eliz. and shewed the length and breadth of the said windows for all the time aforesaid, by force of which windows the said James, and all those whose estate he hath in the said house time out of mind have used to have for them and their Tenants divers wholesome and necessary easements and commodities, by reason of open Air and light, &c. And that the said James the 20th. of Sept. Anno 28 Eliz. demised to the Plaintif the said house for 3 years; and that the Defendants malitiously intending to deprive him of the [b] said easements, & obstruere Messuagium præd. horrida tenebritate, &c. 20 November. Anno 29 Eliz. had erected a new building upon the said piece of land, so near to the said 7 windows, that the said 7 windows were stopped, whereby the Plaintif lost his said easement, &c. Et maxima pars Messuagii præd. horrida tenebritate obscurata fuit, &c. In the bar of which action the Defendant pleaded, quod infra præd. civitatem Ebor. talis habetur, & à toto tempore cujus contrarii memoria non existit, habebatur consuetudo, videlicet, quod si quis habuerit fenestras & visum per easdem versus terram vicini sui, vicinus ille visum illarum fenestrarum obstruere super terram illam solebat & posset, sicut melius viderit sibi expedire. By force of which custom he justified the stopping of the said Windows; and upon that the Plaintif did demur in Law; And it was adjudged by Sir Christopher Wray Chief Justice, and the whole Court of Kings Bench, That the Barr was insufficient in Law to barr the Plaintif of his action, for two causes. 1. When a man hath a lawfull easement, or profit, by prescription time out of mind, &c. another Custom which is also time out of mind cannot take it away, for the one is as antient as the other: As if one hath a way over the land of A. to his Freehold, time out of mind by prescription, &c. A. cannot allege prescription or custom to stop the said way. 2. It might be that before time of memory, the owner of the said piece of land hath granted to the owner of the said house to have the said windows, without any stopping of them, and so the prescription might have a lawfull beginning: any Wray Chief Justice then said, That for stopping as well of Air as of Light an action lieth, and damages shall be recovered for them, for both are necessary, for it is said, & vescitur aura etherea; and the said words horrida tenibritate are significant, and imply the benefit of light. But he said, That for prospect, which is a matter onely of delight, and not of necessity, no action lieth for stopping thereof, and yet it is the great commendation of a house if it have a long and large prospect, unde dicitur [59]

Laudaturque domus longos qui prospicit agros.

But it doth not give actions for such things of delight. And Solomon saith, Eccles. 11. 7. Dulce lumen est & delectabile oculis videre solem. Et olim (ut Plutarchus in Conv. 7. Sap. refert.) Rex Æthiopum interrogatus quid optimum? respondebat lucem; quis enim naturâ tennebras non exhorresceret? and if the stopping of the wholesome Air, give cause of Action, à fortiori an Action upon the Case lieth in the Case at Barr, for the infecting and corrupting of the Air. And the building of a Limekill is good and profitable, but if it be built so near to a house, that when it burneth, the smoke thereof entreth into the house, so that none can dwell there, an action lieth for it. So that if a man have a watercourse running in a ditch from the River to his house, for his necessary use, If a Glover set up a Lime-pit for Calves skins, and Sheep skins, so near the said Water-course, that the corruption of the Lime-pit hath corrupted it, for which cause his Tenants leave the said house, an action upon the Case lieth for the same, as it is adjudged in 13 H. 7. 26. b. and the same stands both with the Rule of Law and Reason, sc. Prohibetur ne quis faciat in suo quod nocere possit alieno; & sic utere tuo ut alienum non ladas. See in the Book of Entries tit. Nusance 406. b. That he who hath a several piscarie in a water shall have an action upon the Case against him who erecteth a Dyehouse, ac fimos, fœditates, & alia sordida extra domum præd. decurrentia in piscariam præd. decurrere fecit, per quod idem proficuum piscariæ suæ præd. totaliter amisit, &c. And there is another President against a Dyer, &c. quod idem Henricus in mansione sua præd. ob metum infectionis per horridum fetorem fumi fœditatis, & aliorum sordidorum, &c. per magnum tempus morari non audebat. So in the Case at Barr, forasmuch as the Declaration is, That the Defendant malitiously intending to deprive the Plaintif of the use and profit of his house, did erect a Swine stie, tam propè aulam & conclave ipsius Will'i, ac sues & porcos suos in ædificio ill. posuit, & illa ibidem per magnum tempus custodivit, ita quod fœtidi & insalubres odores sordidorum præd. suum & porcorum præd. Thomæ in aulam, &c. penetrans & influens idem Will'mus ac famuli sui, &c. in mesuag. præd. conversantes existen. absque periculo infectionis in aula, &c. continuare seu remanere non potuerunt, præsertim cujus idem Wil. totum commodum, &c. maximæ partis præd. messuag. per totum tempus præd. totaliter taliter perdidit, To which Declaration the Defendant pleaded Not guilty, and was found guilty of the matter in the Declaration, It was adjudged that the Plaintif ſhould recover.

John Lamb's Caſe.

[b] John Lamb Proctor of the Eccleſiaſtical Court exhibited a Bill into the Star-Chamber againſt William March, Robert Harriſon, and many others of the Town of Northampton, and againſt Shuckburghe and others, for publiſhing of two libels. It was Reſolved, That every one who ſhall be convicted in the ſaid Caſe, either ought to be a contriver of the libel, or a procurer of the contriving of it, or a malitious publiſher of it, knowing it to be a Libel, for if any readeth a Libel, the ſame is not any publiſhing of it, or if he hear it read, it is no publication of it, for before he read or hear it, he cannot know it to be a Libel, or if he hear, read it, and laugh at it, it is no publiſhment of it; but if after he hath read or heard it, he repeat the ſame, or any part of it in the hearing of others, or after that he knoweth it to be a libel, he readeth it to others, the ſame is an unlawfull publiſhing of it; or if he write a Copy of it, and do not publiſh it to others, it is no publication of the Libel; for every one who ſhall be convicted ought to be contriver, procurer, or publiſher of it, knowing it to be a Libel. But it is great evidence that he publiſhed it, when he, knowing it to be a Libel, writeth a Copy of it; if not that afterwards he can prove that he delivered the ſame to a Magiſtrate to examin it; for then the ſubſequent Act doth explain the precedent

Robert Bradſhaw's Caſe.

[b] John Salmond brought an action upon the Caſe againſt Robert Bradſhaw in the Kings Bench, which began Hil. 8. Jac. rot. 520. and declared that Bradſhaw by his Indenture 3 Aug. 7 Ja. Regis, demiſed to the ſaid John Salmond divers lands and tenements in Stanford, in the County of Leiceſter for 6 years, if Robert Reynes, ſon and heir apparent of Nicholas Reynes ſhould ſo long live; and covenanted by the ſame Indenture with Salmond, That the ſaid Bradſhaw then had full power and lawfull authority to demiſe the premiſes according to the form and effect of the ſame Indenture. Salmond for breach of the ſaid Covenant in fact ſaith, That Bradſhaw at the time of the making of the ſaid Indenture, had not full power and lawfull authority to demiſe the premiſes, according to the form and effect of the ſaid Indenture, & ſic prad. Robertus conventionem ſum pred. cum eodem Johan. in hac parte non tenuit, ſed illam penitus infregit & illam, &c. to the damages of Salmond 200*l.* Bradſhaw pleads, That after the making of the ſaid Indenture, there was an agreement betwixt him and Salmond, That Bradſhaw ſhould pay to Salmond in full ſatisfaction and diſcharge of the ſaid Covenant, and of all other Covenants in the ſaid Indenture, 12*l.* which ſum Bradſhaw paid, and Salmond accepted accordingly: Salmond denied the agreement, upon which they were at iſſue, and found for the Plaintif, and damages aſſeſſed to 133*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* and coſts, &c. whereupon Salmon had judgement for damages and coſts in toto 145*l.* 7*s.* 8*d.* upon which Judg-
[61] ment Bradſhaw brought a writ of Error in the Exchequer Chamber, and aſſigned 2 Errors for the inſufficiency of the Declaration; one that the Plaintif Salmond hath not averred, that Robert Reynes was alive at the time of the beginning of the ſaid Leaſe, nor at the time of the action brought; & non allocatur; for the Covenant doth refer to the time of the Leaſe made, and then he Reynes alive or dead the action lieth; for if he be dead before the Leaſe, then the Leaſe is abſolute, and if he die after the Leaſe, and before the action brought, yet the action lieth, and conſideration ſhall be had thereof in damages. The other Error which was aſſigned was, That Salmond in his Declaration hath not ſhewed what perſon hath right, title, eſtate or intereſt in the ſaid Lands or Tenements demiſed at the time of the making of the ſaid Indentures, by which it may appear to the Court, that Bradſhaw had full power and lawfull authority to demiſe the premiſes, and ſo enable himſelf to an action, and to charge the Plaintif to anſwer him damages for the breach of the ſaid Covenant. But upon conference and debate amongſt the Juſtices, it was Reſolved, That the aſſignment of the breach of Covenant was well, for he hath followed the words of the Covenant negative, and it lieth more properly in the knowledge of the Leſſor what eſtate he himſelf hath in the land which he demiſe

miseth to the Lessee, than the Lessee who is a stranger to it; and therefore the Defendant ought to shew what estate he had in the land at the time of the demise made, by which it may appear to the Court, that he hath full power and lawfull authority to lease the same. Note, the point adjudged by both Courts.

Pasch 9 Jacobi.

Mackalley's Case, In killing of the Sergeant of London.

BY command from the King all the Judges of England were commanded to meet together to Resolve what the Law was, upon a Record (of a special verdict found at the Sessions of Gaol delivery holden at Newgate the 5th. day of December, Anno 8 Jacobi) and accordingly all the Judges of England, and Barons of the Exchequer, in the beginning of Hillary Term last past met together, and held Councel learned upon the same special verdict, aswel of the prisoners, as of the King; that is to say, Serjeant Harris the younger; Anthony Dyer, and Randel Crewe of Councel with the Prisoners; and Yelverton, Walton, and Coventry for the King. And the matter was very well argued by Councel on both sides at 2 several days in the same Term; and diverse Exceptions were taken to the Indictment, and to the verdict. [b]

First, against the Indictment 5 Exceptions were taken. 1. Because it appeareth, That the arrest was tortious, and by consequence the killing of the Sergeant could not be murder, but Manslaughter: And they argued that the arrest alleged in the Indictment was tortious, because it was in the night, that is to say, the 18 day of November, between the hours of 5 and 6 afternoon, which appeareth to the Court to be in the Night, and the Night is a time of rest and repose, and not to arrest any one by his body, for thereof would ensue (as in this Case it fell) bloodshed; for the Officer and Minister of Justice cannot have such assistance, nor the peace cannot be so well kept in the Night, that is to say in the dark, as in the Day, in aperta luce. And the Prisoner cannot know the Officer or Minister of Justice in the Night; nor the Prisoner cannot so soon find sureties for his appearance in the Night, and thereby avoid his imprisonment, as he may in the day time. And they cited 11 H. 7. 5. That the Lord cannot distrain for his Rent or Services in the Night. But it was answered by the Councel with the King, and in the end Resolved by all the Judges and Barons of the Exchequer, That the arrest in the Night is lawful, as well at the Subjects sute as at the Kings sute; for the Officer or Minister of Justice ought for to arrest him when he can find him; for otherwise perhaps he shall never arrest him, quia qui malè agit odit lucem; and if the Officer do not arrest him when he findeth him, and may arrest him, the Plaintif shall have an action upon the Case, and recover all his loss and damages; And it is like to the Case of distress for damage feasant, for which one may distrein in the Night; for otherwise perhaps he shall never distrain the Cattel, for they may be taken or escape away, and then he cannot distrain them; But in the Case of Rent service it is otherwise; for the Law doth intend that the Tenant will all the day attend upon the Land to pay his Rent, but he is not compellable to attend in the Night. Vid. 11 H. 7. 5. 10 E. 3. 21. 12 E. 3. Distresse 17. and no inconvenience will follow upon it; For although that he cannot see the Officer; yet when he heareth him say, I arrest you in the Kings name, &c. he ought for to obey him; and if the Officer hath not a lawful warrant, he shall have his action of false imprisonment. And as to the finding of sureties the Law is, That he ought to remain in prison till he find sureties, be it in the Day time, or in the Night. But great inconvenience will follow on the other side, if those who are indebted to others shall in the Night go at their pleasure without danger of arrest, for then they would become Nightwalkers, and turn the Day into Night in despight of their Creditors. And as the Officer or Minister of Justice may by force of a Warrant directed to him, arrest any one at the Kings sute either for felony or other crime in the Night, so may he do at a Subjects sute; for the King hath no more prerogative as to the time to make an arrest, than a Subject; for the arrest is no other but to the intent to bring the party to Justice. And it appears by the opinion of the Court in the Kings Bench in Semaigns Case in the 5 part of my Reports, That the Sheriffs may arrest in the Night, as well at the sute of the Subject, as at the Kings sute. And in Heydons Case in the 4th. part of my Reports it is Resolved, That if one killeth a Watchman in doing of his Office, it is Murder, and yet it is done in the Night; and if an affray be made in the Night, and the Constable, or any other who cometh to aid him to keep the peace be killed, the same is Murder; for when the Constable doth command them in the Kings name to keep the Peace, although he cannot discern or know him to be the Constable, yet at their perils they ought to obey him. [66] [b]

It was also Resolved, that although in truth between 5 and 6 of the clock in the ninth of November be part of the Night, yet the Court is not bound ex Officio to take knowledge of it, no more than in the Case of Utlagary, without these words, in nocte ejusdem diei, or Noctanter.

taliter perdidit, To which Declaration the Defendant pleaded Not guilty, and was found guilty of the matter in the Declaration, It was adjudged that the Plaintif ſhould recover.

Robert Bradſhaw's Caſe.

[b] John Salmond brought an action upon the Caſe againſt Robert Bradſhaw in the Kings Bench, which began Hil. 8. Jac. rot. 520. and declared that Bradſhaw by his Indenture 3 Aug. 7 Ja. Regis, demiſed to the ſaid John Salmond divers lands and tenements in Stanford, in the County of Leiceſter for 6 years, if Robert Reynes, ſon and heir apparent of Nicholas Reynes ſhould ſo long live; and covenanted by the ſame Indenture with Salmond, That the ſaid Bradſhaw then had full power and lawfull authority to demiſe the premiſes according to the form and effect of the ſame Indenture. Salmond for breach of the ſaid Covenant in fact ſaith, That Bradſhaw at the time of the making of the ſaid Indenture, had not full power and lawfull authority to demiſe the premiſes, according to the form and effect of the ſaid Indenture, & ſic pred. Robertus conventionem ſum pred. cum eodem Johan. in hac parte non tenuit, ſed illam penitus infregit & illam, &c. to the damages of Salmond 200*l.* Bradſhaw pleads, That after the making of the ſaid Indenture, there was an agreement betwixt him and Salmond, That Bradſhaw ſhould pay to Salmond in full ſatisfaction and diſcharge of the ſaid Covenant, and of all other Covenants in the ſaid Indenture, 12*l.* which ſum Bradſhaw paid, and Salmond accepted accordingly: Salmond denied the agreement, upon which they were at iſſue, and found for the Plaintif, and damages aſſeſſed to 133*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* and coſts, &c. whereupon Salmon had judgement for damages and coſts in toto 145*l.* 7*s.* 8*d.* upon which Judg-
[61] ment Bradſhaw brought a writ of Error in the Exchequer Chamber, and aſſigned 2 Errors for the inſufficiency of the Declaration; one that the Plaintif Salmond hath not averred, that Robert Reynes was alive at the time of the beginning of the ſaid Leaſe, nor at the time of the action brought; & non allocatur; for the Covenant doth refer to the time of the Leaſe made, and then be Reynes alive or dead the action lieth; for if he be dead before the Leaſe, then the Leaſe is abſolute, and if he die after the Leaſe, and before the action brought, yet the action lieth, and conſideration ſhall be had thereof in damages. The other Error which was aſſigned was, That Salmond in his Declaration hath not ſhewed what perſon hath right, title, eſtate or intereſt in the ſaid Lands or Tenements demiſed at the time of the making of the ſaid Indentures, by which it may appear to the Court, that Bradſhaw had full power and lawfull authority to demiſe the premiſes, and ſo enable himſelf to an action, and to charge the Plaintif to anſwer him damages for the breach of the ſaid Covenant. But upon conference and debate amongſt the Juſtices, it was Reſolved, That the aſſignment of the breach of Covenant was well, for he hath followed the words of the Covenant negative, and it lieth more properly in the knowledge of the Leſſor what eſtate he himſelf hath in the land which he demiſe h

miseth to the Lessee, than the Lessee who is a stranger to it; and therefore the Defendant ought to shew what estate he had in the land at the time of the demise made, by which it may appear to the Court, that he hath full power and lawfull authority to lease the same. Note, the point adjudged by both Courts.

BY command from the King all the Judges of England were commanded to meet together to Resolve what the Law was, upon a Record (of a special verdict found at the Sessions of Gaol delivery holden at Newgate the 5th. day of December, Anno 8 Jacobi) and accordingly all the Judges of England, and Barons of the Exchequer, in the beginning of Hillary Term last past met together, and held Councel learned upon the same special verdict, aswel of the prisoners, as of the King; that is to say, Serjeant Harris the younger; Anthony Dyer, and Randel Crewe of Councel with the Prisoners; and Yelverton, Walton, and Coventry for the King. And the matter was very well argued by Councel on both sides at 2 several days in the same Term; and diverse Exceptions were taken to the Indictment, and to the verdict. [b]

First, against the Indictment 5 Exceptions were taken. 1. Because it appeareth, That the arrest was tortious, and by consequence the killing of the Sergeant could not be murder, but Manslaughter: And they argued that the arrest alleged in the Indictment was tortious, because it was in the night, that is to say, the 18 day of November, between the hours of 5 and 6 afternoon, which appeareth to the Court to be in the Night, and the Night is a time of rest and repose, and not to arrest any one by his body, for thereof would ensue (as in this Case it fell) bloodshed; for the Officer and Minister of Justice cannot have such assistance, nor the peace cannot be so well kept in the Night, that is to say in the dark, as in the Day, in aperta luce. And the Prisoner cannot know the Officer or Minister of Justice in the Night; nor the Prisoner cannot so soon find sureties for his appearance in the Night, and thereby avoid his imprisonment, as he may in the day time. And they cited 11 H. 7. 5. That the Lord cannot distrain for his Rent or Services in the Night. But it was answered by the Councel with the King, and in the end Resolved by all the Judges and Barons of the Exchequer, That the arrest in the Night is lawful, as well at the Subjects sute as at the Kings sute; for the Officer or Minister of Justice ought for to arrest him when he can find him; for otherwise perhaps he shall never arrest him, quia qui malè agit odit lucem; and if the Officer do not arrest him when he findeth him, and may arrest him, the Plaintif shall have an action upon the Case, and recover all his loss and damages; And it is like to the Case of distress for damage feasant, for which one may distrein in the Night; for otherwise perhaps he shall never distrain the Cattel, for they may be taken or escape away, and then he cannot distrain them; But in the Case of Rent service it is otherwise; for the Law doth intend that the Tenant will all the day attend upon the Land to pay his Rent, but he is not compellable to attend in the Night. Vid. 11 H. 7. 5. 10 E. 3. 21. 12 E. 3. Distresse 17. and no inconvenience will follow upon it; For although that he cannot see the Officer; yet when he heareth him say, I arrest you in the Kings name, &c. he ought for to obey him; and if the Officer hath not a lawful warrant, he shall have his action of false imprisonment. And as to the finding of sureties the Law is, That he ought to remain in prison till he find sureties, be it in the Day time, or in the Night. But great inconvenience will follow on the other side, if those who are indebted to others shall in the Night go at their pleasure without danger of arrest, for then they would become Nightwalkers, and turn the Day into Night in despight of their Creditors. And as the Officer or Minister of Justice may by force of a Warrant directed to him, arrest any one at the Kings sute either for felony or other crime in the Night, so may he do at a Subjects sute; for the King hath no more prerogative as to the time to make an arrest, than a Subject; for the arrest is no other but to the intent to bring the party to Justice. And it appears by the opinion of the Court in the Kings Bench in Semaigns Case in the 5 part of my Reports, That the Sheriffs may arrest in the Night, as well at the sute of the Subject, as at the Kings sute. And in Heydons Case in the 4th. part of my Reports it is Resolved, That if one killeth a Watchman in doing of his Office, it is Murder, and yet it is done in the Night; and if an affray be made in the Night, and the Constable, or any other who cometh to aid him to keep the peace be killed, the same is Murder; for when the Constable doth command them in the Kings name to keep the Peace, although he cannot discern or know him to be the Constable, yet at their perils they ought to obey him. [66] [b]

It was also Resolved, that although in truth between 5 and 6 of the clock in the ninth of November be part of the Night, yet the Court is not bound ex Officio to take knowledge of it, no more than in the Case of Utlagary, without these words, in nocte ejusdem diei, or Noctanter.

2. It was objected, that the Sunday is no Law day, and therefore no arreſt can be made thereon, but the ſame is the Sabbath, and therefore therein every one ought to abſtain from ſecular affairs for the better worſhip and ſervice of God in Spirit and Truth. As to that it was Anſwered and Reſolved, That no judicial act ought to be done on that day, but miniſterial acts may be lawfully executed on the Sunday; for otherwiſe peradventure they ſhall never be executed; and God permitteth things of neceſſity to be done that day; and Chriſt ſaith in the Goſpel, Bonum eſt benefacere in Sabbatho.

3. Another Exception was taken, becauſe it is ſaid in the beginning of the Indictment, in Curia dicti Dom. Regis in computatorio ſuo, ſituat. in parochia Sancti Michaelis, in Woodſtreet London, and doth not ſhew in what Ward the ſaid Pariſh was, & non allocatur, For it is holden in 7 H. 6. 23. b. Every Ward in London is as a Hundred in a County, and every Pariſh in London is as a Town in a Hundred, and it is not neceſſary to ſet forth in what Hundred a Town is, no more in what Ward a Pariſh is; but the ſame is commonly averred, becauſe that there are divers Pariſhes in London of one name, and the Ward is added to make diſtinction of one Pariſh from another; For which cauſe it was Reſolved, That in the caſe at Bar the Indictment was ſufficient, notwithſtanding the leaving out of the Ward, for it doth not appear to us that there is any other Pariſh of that name, and this Pariſh is particularly deſcribed, viz. in Parochia St. Michael. in Woodſtreet, London. And therewith agreeth the Rule of the Book in 7 H. 6. 36. b. for a Bill was ruled good in Parochia Sancti Laurentii in Judaiſmo, omitting the Ward.

The 4th. Exception was, becauſe it doth not appear in what Pariſh the Sheriff did command Fells the Sergeant to arreſt the Defendants; and the ſame was diſallowed by all the Juſtices; for the words of the Indictment are, taliter in eadem Curia proceſſ. fuit, &c. and eadem Curia fully ſheweth that the Warrant was made at the ſame Court mentioned before; and the ſame was expreſly alleged to be holden in Parochia Sancti Michaelis.

[67] 5. It was excepted againſt the Indictment, viz. That the precept was to arreſt the Defendant, ſi inventus fuerit infra libertates Civitatis præd. and the Indictment is quod in Parochia St. Martini Bower, Rowe in warda de Farringdon infra Londinum præd. the Sergeant arreſted him, ſo that he hath not purſued the precept, for the precept is, infra libertates London, and notwithſtanding that, the Indictment was reſolved to be good, for the ſaid Pariſh and Ward in London ſhall be intended to be within the liberties of London, for theſe words liberties of London are more ſpacious than London, and include in them the City of London it ſelf.

And 9 Exceptions were taken to the verdict. 1. That there is a material variance betwixt the Indictment and the Verdict, for the Indictment doth ſuppoſe that Piot Sherif of London upon a Plaint entred, made a precept to Fells Sergeant at Mace to arreſt the ſaid Mackalley the Deft. and by the verdict it appeareth that there was not any ſuch precept made, but that by the cuſtom of Lond. after the plaint entred, any Sergeant ex officio at the requeſt of the Plt. may arreſt the Deft. abſque aliquo præcepto ore tenus, or otherwiſe, ſo that the Indictment being ſpecial, to make this offence Murder, by Conſtruction of Law upon the ſpecial matter, without any forethought malice, ought to be followed, and proved in Evidence, which is not done in this caſe. And becauſe the Jurors have not found the ſaid ſpecial matter contained in the Indictment, but other matter, Judgment cannot be given againſt the Priſoners upon this Indictment. To which it was anſwered, and in the end Reſolved, That there was ſufficient matter in the verdict purſuant to the matter contained in the Indictment, upon which the Court ought to give judgment of death againſt the ſaid Priſoners, notwithſtanding the ſaid variance, and that for 2. cauſes.

1. Becauſe that the Warrant which the Sergeant had to arreſt the Defendant was but circumſtance, and is not neceſſary to be preciſely purſued in Evidence to be found by the Jury; but it ſufficeth if the ſubſtance of the matter be found without any ſuch preciſe regard to circumſtance: and therefore, if a man be indicted, that he with a dagger gave another a mortal wound, upon which he died, and in Evidence it is proved that he gave the wound with a Sword, Rapier, Baſton, or Bill, in that caſe the Defendant ought to be found guilty, for the ſubſtance of the matter is, That [b] the party indicted hath given him a mortal wound, whereof he died, and the circumſtance of the manner of the weapon is not material in caſe of Indictment; and yet ſuch circumſtance ought not to be omitted, but ſome weapon ought to be mentioned in the Indictment. So if A. B. and C. are indicted for killing of I. S. and that A. ſtrook him, and that the others were preſent, procuring, abetting, &c. And upon the Evidence it appeareth, that B. ſtrook him, and that A. and C. were preſent, &c. in this caſe the Indictment is not purſued in the circumſtance; and yet it is ſufficient to maintain the Indictment, for the Evidence doth agree with the effect of the Indictment, and ſo the variance from the circumſtance of the Indictment is not material; for it ſhall be adjudged in Law the ſtroke of every one of them, and is as ſtrongly the act of the others, as if they all three had holden the weapon, &c. and had altogether ſtroke the dead; and therewith agreeth Plow. Com. 98. a. So if one be indicted of the murder of another upon forethought malice, and he is found guilty of Manſlaughter, he ſhall have judgment upon this verdict, for the killing is the ſubſtance, and the pretended malice the mannor of it; and when the matter is found, Judgment ſhall be given thereupon, although the manner be not preciſely purſued; and therewith agreeth, Plow. Com. 101. where it is ſaid, when the ſubſtance of the act, and the manner of the act, are put in iſſue together, if the Jury find the ſubſtance and not the manner, Judgment ſhall be given for the ſubſtance. And I moved all the Judges and Barons, if in this caſe of killing of a Miniſter of Juſtice in the execution of his office, the Indictment might have been general, ſc. that the priſoners felonicè, voluntarie, & ex malitia ſua præcogitata, &c. percuſſer. without alleging any ſpecial matter and I conceived that it might might well be, for the Evidence would well maintain the Indictment, for as much as in this caſe the Law doth imply forethought malice: As if a Thief who offereth to rob a true man kill him in reſiſting the thief, the ſame is murder of forethought malice; Or if one kill another without provocation, and without any forethought malice which can be proved, the Law will adjudge the ſame murder, and implieth malice; for by the Law of God every one ought to be in love and charity with all men, and therefore when he killeth another without provocation, the Law implieth malice: and in both theſe caſes they may be indicted generally that they killed of forethought malice, for malice implied by Law given in Evidence, is ſufficient to maintain the general Indictment. So in the caſe at barr; And in this caſe of a Sergeant, the Indictment might have been general, That he feloniouſly and of his forethought malice killed the ſaid Fells, and the ſpecial matter might well have been given in Evidence; which was granted by all the Judges, and Barons of the Exchequer. The 2. cauſe was, becauſe it is expreſly alleged in the Indictment, That the ſaid John Mackalley, &c. eundem Richardum Fells, &c. felonice, voluntarie, & ex militia ſua præcogitata, &c. percuſſit & inforavit, &c. ſo that above the ſpecial matter which implieth malice, it is expreſly contained in the Indictment, that he feloniouſly and of his forethought malice killed the ſaid Fells, and then although the ſpecial matter given in Evidence had varied in ſubſtance from the ſpecial matter contained in the Indictment, yet for as much as it was reſolved that the Indictment in this caſe might be general, for this cauſe the Evidence, although it doth not agree with the ſpecial matter, yet it proveth, that the priſoners killed the ſaid Fells of their forethought malice; and ſo well maintaineth the Indictment. And that in the end was the opinion of all the Judges and Barons of the Exchequer. [68]

2. Exception was taken to the verdict, That the Cuſtom found by the Jury, that after a plaint entred, the Defendant might be arreſted by his body, was againſt Law, becauſe the Defendant ought to be firſt ſummoned before that the warrant in natute of a Capias can iſſue forth, for his body ſhall not be arreſted if he hath ſufficient, & non allocatur; for it appeareth by the book in 21 E. 4. 66 b. That by common experience daily uſed, that after a pleint entred, by the cuſtom of London, (which is eſtabliſhed and confirmed by Parliament) the Defendant may be arreſted. And in this caſe 3. points were Reſolved by all the Judges and Barons of the Exchequer, 1. that although the proceſs be apparently erronious, that yet if the Miniſter of Juſtice in the execution thereof be killed, the ſame is murder. For the Miniſter is not bound to diſpute the authority of the Court, which awardeth the proceſs, but his office is to execute the proceſs: and therefore, if a Capias in an action of Debt be awarded againſt a Baron, or other Peer of the Realm, which is erronious (becauſe their body by the Law is privileged in ſuch caſes) yet if the Officer be killed in execution thereof, it is murder. So if a Capias be awarded where a Diſtreſs ought to iſſue, and in execution thereof the Officer is killed, it is Murder, for as the Sheriff, &c. when he is charged with an Eſcape ſhall not take advantage of any Error in the proceeding, ſo the Defendant when he killeth the Sheriff, &c. ſhall not take advantage of Error in the proceeding. 2. It was Reſolved, That if any Magiſtrate or Miniſter of Juſtice, in execution of their office, or in keeping of the peace according to the duty of his office be killed, it is murder, for their contempt and diſobedience to the King, and to the Law, for it is contra poteſtatem Regis & legis, and therefore, if a Sheriff, Juſtice of Peace, Chief Conſtable, Petit Conſtable, Watchman, or any of the Kings Miniſters, or any one who cometh in their aid be killed in doing of their office, it is murder for the cauſe aforeſaid: for when the Officer or Kings Miniſter by proceſs of Law (be it erronious or not) arreſteth one in the Kings name, or requireth the breakers of the peace to keep the peace in the Kings name, and they notwithſtanding diſobey the arreſt or Commandment in the Kings name, and kill the officer, or the Kings Miniſter, reaſon requireth that this killing and ſlaying ſhall be an offence in a higher nature than any offence of this nature; and the ſame is voluntary, felonious, and murder of forethought malice. And a Watchman by the Law may arreſt a Night-walker, 4 H. 7. 2. and if a Watchman arreſteth ſuch a one, and he killeth him, the ſame is murder. Vide Heydons caſe in the 4th. part of my Reports. And it is true, That the life of a man is much favoured in Law, but the life of the Law it ſelf (which protecteth all in peace and ſafety) ought to be more favoured, and the execution of the proceſs of Law and of the offices of Conſervators of the peace, is the Soul and life of the Law, and the means by which Juſtice is adminiſtred, and the peace of the Realm kept. Vide 2. R. 3. 21. If the Principal be erroniouſly attained, the Acceſſory ſhall be put to anſwer, and ſhall not take benefit for the ſaving of his life of the erronious proceeding againſt the Principal. 3. It was Reſolved, That the Officer or Miniſter of the Law in the Execution of his office, if he be reſiſted or aſſaulted, is not bound to flye to the wall, &c. (as other Subjects are) for Legis miniſter non tenetur in executione Officii fugere, ſeu retrocedere.

3. It was Objected, That the Defendant ought not to have been arreſted before that the plaint was entred of Record in the Court before the Sheriff, for this ſame is in truth the Court of Record where the Declaration and pleading ſhall be. To that it was anſwered and Reſolved by all, That after the plaint entred in the Porters book, and before the entry thereof in the Court before the Sheriff, the Defendant may be arreſted by the Cuſtom of London; and therewith agreeth the book in 21 E. 4. 66. in the point. Vide 9 E. 4. 48 b.

4. It was Objected, That the ſaid Arreſt found by the verdict was not lawful, for the Sergeant in this caſe ought to have when he arreſted him, ſhewed at whoſe ſute, out of which Court, and for what cauſe he made the arreſt, and in what Court the ſame is returnable, to the intent, that if it be for any execution, he might pay the money, and free his body, and if it be upon mean proceſs either to agree with the party to put in bayl according to the Law, and to know when he ſhall appear, as it is Reſolved in the Counteſs of Rutlands Caſe, in the 6. part of my Reports. But in the Caſe at barr the Sergeant ſaid nothing, but I arreſt you in the Kings name, at the ſute of Mr. Radford, and ſo the arreſt not lawful, and by conſequence the offence is not murder. To that it was Anſwered and Reſolved, That it is true that it is holden in the Counteſs of Rutlands caſe, That the Sheriff or Sergeant ought upon the arreſt to ſhew at whoſe ſute, &c. But the ſame is to be intended when the party arreſted ſubmitteth himſelf to the arreſt, and not when the party (as in this caſe Murrey did) maketh reſiſtance and interrupteth him, and before he could ſpeak all his words, he was by them mortally wounded and murdered, in which caſe, the priſoners ſhall not take advantage of their own wrong. It was alſo Reſolved, That if one knoweth that the Sheriff, &c. hath proceſs to arreſt him, and the Sheriff coming to arreſt him, the Defendant to prevent the Sheriff to arreſt him, kill him with a gun, or any other engine, or weapon, before any arreſt made, the ſame is murder: à fortiori in the caſe at barr, when he knew by the ſaid words, that the Sergeant came to arreſt him.

5. Exception was taken, becauſe it was not found by the Verdict, That the ſaid Mackalley felonicè percuſſit, &c. but percuſſit only, & quod idem Johannes Murrey, & Johannes Engliſh fuerunt præſentes, auxiliantes, &c. and doth not ſay felonicè; & non allocatur, for the office of the Jury is to ſhew the truth of the fact, and to leave the Judgment of the Law to the Court; but they have well concluded, And if ſuper tota materia præd. vedibitur Juſtic. & Cur. hic quod præd. interfectio dict. Rich. Felles ſit murdrum, tunc Jurat. præd. dic. ſuper Sacramentum ſuum quod. præd. Johannes Murrey, Johannes Mackalley, & Johannes Engliſh ſunt Culpabiles, & quilibet eorum eſt culpabilis de murdro præd. Rich. Felles, modo & forma prout per Indictamentum præd. ſupponit. &c. And becauſe the Judges and the Court hath reſolved upon the ſpecial matter, that it is murder, the Jury have found him guilty of murder contained in the Indictment.

6. It was Objected, That the Sergeant at the time, nor before he arreſted ſhewed the priſoner his Mace; for thereby he is known to be the Miniſter of Law, and from thence he hath his name, ſc. ſervieus ad clavam; Et non allocatur for 2 cauſes. 1. becauſe the Jury have found, That he was ſerviens ad clavam dict. Vicecomitis, & juratus, & cognitus, & miniſter. Cur. And a Bayliff ſworn and known needeth not (although the party demand it) ſhew his warrant, nor any other ſpecial Bayliff is not bound to ſhew his warrant without demanding of it, 8 E. 4. 14. 14. H. 7. 9. b. 21 H. 7. 23. and where the books ſpeak of a known Bayliff, it is not requiſite that he be known to the party who is to be arreſted, but if he be commonly known it ſufficeth; 2. If notice were requiſite, he gave ſufficient notice when he ſaid, I arreſt you in the Kings name, &c. and the party at his peril ought to obey him; and if he hath no lawful warrant, he may have his action of falſe impriſonment. So that in this caſe without Queſtion the Serjeant needeth not to ſhew his Mace; and if they ſhall be driven to ſhew their Mace, it ſhould be a warning for the party arreſted to flye.

7. Another Exception was taken to the Verdict, becauſe that the Cuſtom which gave to the Sergeant warrant to arreſt, was not purſued; for the cuſtom is, Quod aliqua perſona exiſtens Serviens ad clavam ad requiſitionem partis hujuſmodi querelam ſic levantis, &c. uſa fuit arreſtare, which ought to be taken that the plenit ought to be entred before the requeſt; but afterwards it is found that the requeſt was before the pleint, and ſo the Cuſtom not purſued; & non allocatur. For by the Cuſtom it is not proved, but that the requeſt may be as well before as after the pleint entred, and ſo is the Common uſage and experience.

8. It was Objected, That the verdict was repugnant in it ſelf, for firſt they found, that the pleint was entred de Recordo [in Rot. Cur. Computator. im his verbis, Die Sabbathi 17 die Novemb. and afterwards they found, quod intratio præd. in Rot. Cur. præd. facta fuit die Lunæ 19 die Novembr. &c. And the Jury cannot find any thing againſt the Record it ſelf. Vide 11 H. 6. 42. 9 H. 6. 37. 28 Aſſ. 34. 47 E. 3. 19. 11 H. 4. 26. 9 H. 7. 3. 13 H. 7. 14. 33 E. 3. Judgement 255. Dyer 32. & 147, &c. And all that was affirmed for good Law. But that maketh the Caſe ſtronger againſt the Priſoners, for now the Judges ought to judge upon a pleint entred of Record in Cur. Computator, the Saturday the 17. of Novemb. which was before the arreſt.

9. Exception was taken to the Verdict, that the entry of the pleint was without form, and ſo ſhort and obſcure, quod opus eſt interprete; & non allocatur. For it was found that it was according to the Cuſtom of London; which is but a Remembrance to draw the Declaration at length in the Court of Pleas, which notwithſtanding is by Cuſtom ſufficient to have the Defendant arreſted. And afterwards at the Seſſions the 5 day of May after this Term, the 2. Chief Juſtices openly declared the Reſolution of all the Judges and Barons of the Exchequer, to the great ſatisfaction and contentment of all there preſent. And accordingly Judgment of death was given againſt the three Priſoners by the Recorder of London, in the preſence of the 2. Chief Juſtices. And the ſaid Mackalley was executed with other Priſoners at Tyborn. [70]

Trin. 9 Jacobi In the Star Chamber.

Richard Peacock's Caſe.

NOte this Term in the Star-chamber in the Caſe between Sir George Reynel Plaintif, and Sir Richard Peacock and others Defendants, where I. H. and another were Commiſſioners to examine Peacock upon Interrogatories drawn by the Plaintif; Peacock being examined, would have declared the whole truth, which I. H. being a Commiſſioner choſen by the Plaintif, would not ſuffer him to do, but held him ſtrictly to the Interrogatory; ſo that the truth could not appear. And that was holden by the Lord Chancellor, and the two Chief Juſtices, and the whole Court of Star-Chamber, a great miſdemeanour, for the ſame is a murthering of the truth and right, as the Statute of Exeter ſpeaketh. And Commiſſioners to examine ought to be indifferent, and by all means to expreſs the truth. And they are not ſtrictly tyed to the words of the Interrogatories, but to every thing alſo which neceſſarily ariſeth thereupon for the manifeſtation of the whole truth concerning the matter in queſtion. Alſo the ſaid I. H. when he was in examination went out of the place to the Plaintif, which was in another room near to him, and had ſecret conference with him. And it was holden by the whole Court, That a Commiſſioner ought not before publication of the Witneſſes diſcover to any of the parties the matter which any one doth teſtifie or depoſe, nor after he beginneth to examine upon the Interrogatories to conferr with the party to take new inſtructions to examine further than he knew before, and if he ſhall ſo do, theſe are great miſdemeanors, puniſhable by fine and impriſonment. For if theſe ſhall be admitted, Perjury would in theſe days abound; and for as much as in the Starr-chamber and Exchequer chamber the Courts proceed upon examination of Witneſſes, if the truth ſhould be by ſuch means ſuppreſſed, and falſity certified in the Examinations, ſo the Innocent ſhould be oftentimes puniſhed, and the guilty eſcape puniſhment, and Juſtice and Right ſhould be utterly ſubverted; for as it is commonly ſaid, The ſuppreſſion of Truth, is the oppreſſion of the Innocent. And the Lord Chancellor ſaid, That he heard in the Common Pleas, in the time of Sir James Dyer, then Chief Juſtice of the Common Pleas, That it was not a principal Challenge to ſay, That one returned of a Jury was choſen Commiſſioner for the other party for examination of Witneſſes in the Court of Chancery; for every Commiſſioner is made by the appointment of the King, who is the head of the Commonwealth, by his Commiſſion under the great Seal, and therefore he being Commiſſioner upon Record, is preſumed in Law to be indifferent: But otherwiſe it is of an Arbitrator, for he is created only by the ſubmiſſion of the parties themſelves in the Country; and therefore it is a principal Challenge to ſay, That ſuch a one returned of the Jury was an Arbitrator for the other party; and therewith agreeth 7. H. 7. 10. 9 E. 4. 46. 15 E. 4. 24. 3 H. 6. 24. And the Court had ſo great diſlike of the proceedings of the ſaid I. H. that the Attorney General was requeſted to prefer an Information againſt him for the ſaid miſdemeanors, and in mean the time he was put out of the Commiſſion of Peace. [b] [71]

Doctor Huſſey's Caſe.

IN a Raviſhment of Ward brought by Francis Moor Eſquire, according to the Statute of Weſt. 2. cap. 35. againſt James Huſſey Eſquire, and Katherine his wife, Robert Wakeman Clark, John Woodford, and Cutberd Clifford of the Raviſhment of James Horniold, ſon and heir of Ralph Horniold Eſquire, being within age, The Defendants pleaded Not guilty, which iſſue was tried at the barr, Mich. 8 Jac. And the plea began Trinit. 7 Jac. Rot. 759. and was tried in the abſence of Walmeſly for ſickneſs, and of Coke Chief Juſtice, then being in the Star Chamber. And the Jury found that the ſaid Katherine, Robert, and John Woodford were guilty of the Raviſhing and leading away of the ſaid John Horniold, as the ſaid Fr. complained againſt them, and aſſeſſed damages, &c. 10 l. and coſts 10 s. And further the Jury ſay upon their oaths, That the ſaid John Horniold is married, and that the ſaid John at the time of his marriage was of the age of 16 years and more, and within the age of 21 years, and that the ſaid marriage valet juxta verum valorem 800 l. And that the ſaid James the Husband of the ſaid Katherine and Cutberd were not guilty. And in arreſt of Judgment divers points were moved and argued by the Serjeants at Barr, in the Terms of St. Mich. Hill. and Paſch. And the principal point which was argued by the Sergeants was, If a Feme Covert were within the Statute of Weſt. 2. cap. 35. or not. And now this Term it was argued by the Juſtices; And it was argued by Foſter and Warburton, that Judgment ought to be given as well againſt the Feme Covert, as againſt the others who were found guilty, and their principal reaſon was, becauſe at the Common Law a feme Covert was puniſhable for Raviſhment [b] [72]

of a Ward, and ſhall be therefore fined and impriſoned, and damages ſhall be recovered againſt her, and levied upon her Husband, and after his death upon the Wife her ſelf; and the Statute of Weſt. 2. cap. 35. doth but add greater penalty to the value of the marriage, damages and coſts, and impriſonment for 2 years, and if the debtors be not ſufficient, that they abjure the Realm, or have perpetual impriſonment; ſo that it never was the meaning of the makers of the Act to exclude a Feme Covert out of the purview thereof, who was puniſhable by action of Treſpaſs at the Common Law, for which offence her body alſo at the Common Law ſhall be impriſoned: And there they ſtrongly held, that a Feme Covert was within the Statute of Merton cap. 6. and within the Statute of Weſt. 1. cap. 20. de malefact. in parcis. For a Feme for theſe offences was puniſhable by the Common Law, and theſe Statutes add greater puniſhment, and in another manner than it was at the Common Law. And they ſaid, That a feme Covert was within the Words of the Act; and it ſhould be a miſchief if any conſtruction ſhould exempt her out of the penalty of this Statute, in ſuch odious caſes as Raviſhments of Wards are. An action upon the Statute of forcible Entre upon the Statute of 8 H. 6. lieth againſt a Feme Covert, as the book is in 36 H. 6. 22, 23. So waſte lieth againſt the Husband and Wife as it is holden in 3 H. 3. 76. So if a Feme Covert commit Rediſſeiſin, ſhe ſhall be puniſhed in a Rediſſeiſin, 9 H. 4, 5. F. N. B. 188. So if a Ceſſavit lieth againſt Husband and Wife, 4 E. 2. Cui in vita 22. And many other Caſes were put upon this ground, for which they did conclude that Judgment ſhould be given againſt all for the value, damages, and coſts, and that the Defendants Capiantur. And it was argued by the Chief Juſtice and Walmeſley to the contrary, That the Plaintifs ſhall not have Judgment upon this Record againſt none of the Defendants: And their Argument was divided into 4 parts. 1. What alteration the Statute of Weſt. 2. Cap. 35. hath made. 2. If a Feme Covert be within the ſaid Statute. 3. If the verdict be ſufficient or not againſt any of the Defendants. 4. If damages beſides the value are to be recovered in this action of Raviſhment of Ward grounded upon this Statute.

As to the firſt, it was Reſolved by all, That at the Common Law for Raviſhment of Ward, the Gardian might have an Action of Treſpaſs, in which the Plaintif ſhould recover damages, and the Defendants ſhould pay a fine to the King, and ſhould be impriſoned, &c. and that ſuch action lay againſt a Feme Covert, as well as againſt a Feme ſole; And therefore where ſome books ſay, That no writ of Raviſhment of Ward lay at the Common Law, It is true, if it be meant of Ra-
[b] viſhment of Ward, which is in ſuch Regiſter, and in F. N. B. for the ſame is grounded and formed by the Statute of Weſt. 2. cap. 35. but that in ſuch caſe the Gardian might have an action of Treſpaſs it is manifeſt in our books, 29 Aſſ. p. 35. 29 E. 3. 24. 3 E. 3. 3. 8 E. 3. 52. 22 R. 2. damages 130. 12 H. 8. Kellaway 20, 21. F. N. B. 90, H. 149. Then came the Statute of Merton, cap. 6. by which it was enacted, (and greater puniſhment than the Common Law doth inflict) de hæredibus contra pacem vi abductis vel detentis ſeu maritatis, by their Kinsfolks, or others with force againſt our peace, It is provided, That whatſoever Layman be convict thereof, that he hath ſo with-holden, lead away, or maried any Child, he ſhall yeeld to the loſer the value of the mariage, and for the offence his body ſhall be taken and impriſoned, &c. and this ſhall be of an heir within the age of 14 years. And by the Statute of Weſt. 2. cap. 35. It is enacted, Concerning Children males or females (whoſe mariage belongeth to another) taken and carried away; if the Raviſher have no right in the mariage, though afterwards he reſtore the Child unmarried, or elſe pay for the mariage, he ſhall nevertheleſs be puniſhed for his offence by 2 years impriſonment, and if he do not reſtore, or do marrie the Child after the years of conſent, and be not able to ſatisfy for the mariage, he ſhall abjure the Realm, or have perpetual impriſonment. And this Statute of Weſt. 2. cap. 35. hath made ſeven alterations. 1. The ſaid Statute of Merton did not extend to heir females, for before the age of 14 years the male cannot aſſent to mariage, but the heir female at 12; and therefore it was taken that the Statute of Merton did not extend to an heir female: And therewith agreeth the book in 35 H. 6. 53. And the Act of Weſt. 2. by expreſs words extendeth to both; for the words are, Concerning Children male, or female. 2. The Statute of Merton doth not extend to any of the Clergy; for the words are, That whatſoever Lay-perſon be convicted thereof, &c. But the Statute of Weſt. 2. extendeth to all perſons; for the words are, If he who ſhall raviſh having no right, without any reſtraint. 3. The Statute of Merton doth not extend, as it appeareth before, but when the heir female was lead away within 14 years, within which time the heir male cannot conſent to a mariage: But now the Statute of Weſt. 2. extendeth to a Raviſhment after annos nubiles. 4. The words of the Statute of Merton are, vi abductis vel detentis, the words of the Statute of Weſt. 2. are raptis ſeu detentis. 5. The Action given by the Statute of Merton is the old writ of Right of Ward, as it is holden in 18 E. 3. 52. But the Statute of Weſt. 2. giveth actionem formatam in verbis conceptis, a new action, the form of which was not at the Common Law, the form of which appeareth eſpecially by the Act. 6. In proceſs, for in a writ of Right upon the Statute of Merton, he ſhall have but the old proceſs at the Common Law: But the Statute of Weſt. 2. giveth a more ſpeedy
[73] proceſs, and that the death of the Plaintif or Defendant ſhall not abate the writ. 7. The Statute of Weſt. 2. giveth greater puniſhment than the Statute of Merton doth, as it appeareth by the purview of both Acts. And theſe are the moſt material alterations that the Statute of Weſt. 2. hath made.

As to the 2 point; If a Feme Covert be within the purview of the Statute of Weſt. 2. The parts thereof were conſidered, That as to this purpoſe it ſtandeth upon 4 parts. 1. If he reſtore the Child unmarried, yet he ſhall be puniſhed for his offence by impriſonment for 2 years. 2. If he marieth the Child, and ſhall ſatisfie the mariage, yet he ſhall be puniſhed by impriſonment as above. 3. If he do not reſtore, and cannot ſatisfie, he ſhall abjure the Realm, or have perpetual impriſonment. 4. If he marieth the heir after years mariageable, and cannot ſatisfie for the mari-

age, he ſhall abjure the Realm, &c. as above: And this Caſe is within the laſt clauſe, ſc. That the Feme Covert hath married the Infant, and is not able to ſatisfie, but is diſabled by the Law to ſatisfie; and foraſmuch as the Law hath diſabled a Feme Covert to ſatisfie, the Law will not for his diſability inflict ſo great a puniſhment as perpetual baniſhment, or perpetual impriſonment, that is, to loſe either his Country, or his liberty. Et lex non cogit ad impoſſibilia, ſed impotentia excuſat legem. 22 E. 3. Coron. 279. If an Appeal be brought againſt a Feme Covert, or a Monk, and they are acquitted, the Feme Covert or Monk ſhall never have a writ to enquire of the Abettors; for by the general words the Law ſhall never enable one for his benefit, who is diſabled by Law, à fortiori the general Law ſhall never puniſh any one ſo ſeverely for not doing of that which the Law hath diſabled him to do. So upon the Statute of Marlebridge, Non liceat hujuſmodi feoffatos expellere, If the Lords Villain be infeoffed, the Lord ſhall put him out, for the general Law will not do wrong, ſc. to enable the Villain againſt his Lord. And divers other Caſes were put to the ſame effect; as the Caſe of Eccleſiaſtical perſons, in the 4th. part of my Reports, and others. And 7 E. 3. 11. was cited by the Chief Juſtice, ſc. That W. brought a writ of Raviſhment of Ward againſt the Maſter of the Hoſpital of Burton Saint Lazer, and Robert de Lee, & Richard de la Foſſe, confreeres of the ſame Hoſpital, and there Trew Sergeant for the Defendants ſaid, This Writ is given by Statute, and of certain form, and the ſame ought to be when the parties againſt whom the writ is brought are ſuch, who by the Law may have right to have the Ward; but when the writ it ſelf doth ſuppoſe ſome named in the Writ to be ſuch perſons, that they cannot have right in the Ward, &c. wherefore the Writ cannot be maintained. To which Sir William Herle Chief Juſtice anſwered, If the Freres in aid of the Gardian took the Infant in ſaving the right of the Hoſpital, the Freres have quodam modo right, becauſe they are of the Hoſpital; wherefore anſwer. Out of which Caſe 2 things were obſerved. 1. That every man ſhall be intended ſufficient to ſatisfie the Plaintif, if the Plaintif do not pray that the Jury enquire of his ſufficiency; And therewith agreeth 8 E. 3. 52. 22 R. 2. damages 130. But when it appeareth by the Writ it ſelf, the ſame Defendant is not able (having diſability by Law) to ſatisfie, there the difference appeareth, becauſe in one Caſe it is apparent to the Court, and in the other not; and therefore this caſe is ſpecial, and differeth from the reaſon of all the caſes which have been put. For example, from the caſe of Malefactoribus in parcis; for there the purview is general; but the ſaid Act is not ſo preciſely penned as the Statute of Weſt. 2. is: For in effect this Act hath a purview, that none ſhall be puniſhed by this Act, which by poſſibility may ſatisfie at the time of the Judgment, for the words are, & de maritagio ſatisfacere non potuerit, and not to puniſh him by the Law for the diſability which the Law it ſelf hath made. And in 8 E. 3. 52. 22 R. 2. damages 130. &c. The Plaintif prayed that the Jury do enquire of the ſufficiency of the Defendant, which ſhould be to no purpoſe in this caſe; becauſe it appeareth to the Court, That a Feme Covert at the time of the Judgment is diſabled by the Law. And therefore ſuch Rule is to be given in ſuch caſe as Sir William Herle gave in the like caſe, in 7 E. 3. 41. In a Writ of Meſne brought againſt the Husband and Wife, they made default at the grand diſtreſs, upon which the Plaintif ſued proclamation, and now at this day the proclamation was teſtified, and the husband and wife were demanded, and appeared not; for which the Plaintif prayed that they ſhould be forejudged. Herle. It is no reaſon that the wife be forejudged of her Seignory for the default of her husband, and eſpecially by your ſute which you have brought, which is given by Statute, where you may have your action at the Common Law: And ſo in this caſe the Plaintif may have his remedy at the Common Law, either by action of Treſpaſs againſt all who raviſhed, or a writ of valore Maritagii againſt the heir himſelf, and not upon this Statute, for the goods and lands of the husband who is innocent, ſhall not be liable by this Act, for the Act hath expreſly provided, That for the inſufficiency of the Defendant he ſhall be puniſhed, &c. And therefore the Statute doth not charge the husband in this caſe, for the Statute is penal and perſonal to the Defendant it ſelf. And ſo for a raviſhment made by a Monk, his Soveraign ſhall not anſwer by force of this Act. [b] [74]

As to the Objection which was made, That he may have Judgment at the Common Law, ſc. of damages and impriſonment, and then the husband ſhall be charged with the damages; the ſame was utterly denied for 2 cauſes: One, that this action is grounded upon the Statute of Weſt. 2 cap. 35. and ſuch writ in this caſe is brought, as is there formed; and therefore he ought to have Judgment according to his original, which is the foundation of his ſute; and not to ground his writ upon the Statute, and to have Judgment at the Common Law, nor è converſo, 30 E. 3. 11. The King brought a Prohibition againſt the Prior of Woburne, That where the King had recovered in a Quare impedit, the Defendant ſent his Frere to Rome with an Appeal, and ſued there to avoid the Judgment, according to the Statute of Præmunire, and upon not guilty pleaded, it was found againſt the Defendant, and there for the King Judgment was prayed upon the Statute newly made, ſc. 27 E. 3. cap. 1. in caſe of Præmunire, and it was adjudged he ſhould not have it, becauſe that the Judgment ought to be conformable to the Original; and this ſute was not brought according to the Statute, but by a writ of prohibition at the Common Law. And in 47 E. 3. 10. In a general action of Treſpaſs againſt miſdoers in Parks, the Defendants were found guilty, and the Plaintif prayed Judgment of double damages, 3 years impriſonment, and ſureties never more to offend, and if he find no ſureties, that he might forejure the Realm. And although the Statute gave not any formed action, yet foraſmuch as the action was brought generally at the Common Law, he could not have Judgment upon the Statute, and therewith agreeth 10 H. 6. 2. & many other books.

As to the 3 point, It was holden by the Chief Juſtice, and Walmeſley, that the verdict was ſufficient; for this action being founded upon the ſaid Statute, extended only when the Raviſher marrieth the Infant, for the words are (hæredem poſt annos nubiles maritaverit) ſo that inaſmuch as the Statute is ſo penal, it ſhall not be extended but only when the Raviſher marrieth him. And if after the raviſhment, the Infant of his own head poſt annos nubiles marrieth himſelf, without the procurement or aſſent of the Raviſher, or if a ſtranger afterwards marrieth him, in theſe caſes the firſt Raviſher ſhall not be puniſhed by this Statute. And in this caſe the Jury have found generally quod pred. Johannes Horniold maritatus exiſtit, quodque idem Johannes tempore maritagii illius fuit etatis ſexdecim annorum & amplius, & infra etatem viginti & unius annorum, which verdict is not only uncertain who procured him to be married, ſc. the Raviſher or any ſtranger, or the Plaintif himſelf, or if the Ward of his own head married himſelf, but is alſo uncertain in the time when he was married, ſc. before the raviſhment or after. And therefore in the book of Entries 368. p. 11, & 12. 369. p. 17. A. rapuit, et idem A. maritavit, &c. contra voluntatem of the Plaintif, Vid. 27 H. 6. Gard. 118. 8 E. 3. 52. 33 E. 3. Judgement 251. &c. acc. And therefore it is well ſaid in 30 E. 3. 29. A verdict ought to be ſuch, that the Judges ought cleerly go to Judgment, and therefore ambiguous and doubtful Judgments were inſufficient, and void, as in 40 E. 3. 15. in debt againſt Executors they plead fully adminiſtred, and ſo nothing in their hands: The Jury find that they have Aſſets in their hands, and do not ſay to what value; and for this uncertainty the verdict was holden inſufficient and void.

Statute

[b]

As to the 4th. point, although that 16 E. 3. Damages 80. and ſome other books are againſt it, That no damages ſhall be recovered; yet foraſmuch as it is holden in 17 E. 3. 51. b. 25 E. 3. 44. 24 E. 3, 46. 22 R. 2. Damages 130. 8 E. 3. 52. 27 H. 6. Gard. 118. Paſch. 27 H. 6. Rot. 123. in the book of Entries, 368. and diverſe other books with which common experience agreeth, It was reſolved accordingly. And the Chief Juſtice vouched an old Reading upon the Statute of Weſt. 2. cap. 35. That when the Statute ſaith he ſhall abjure the Realm, or have perpetual impriſonment in the diſjunctive, That the Election ſhall be in the Court to give Judgement upon which of the ſaid 2 points the Judges will: And great reaſon, for it may be the diſpoſition and quality of the Defendant being conſidered, that it ſhall be dangerous to the State to baniſh him into foreign Countries.

Trin. 9 Jacobi in the Common Pleas.

Combe's Caſe.

[75] IN a Replevin by William at Lee, againſt Daniel Banks and Tho. Osborne of taking of his Cattle at Harmonſworth, in place called the Walnut tree Cloſe, in the County of Middleſex, &c. Which plea began Trinit. 8 Jac. Reg. Rot. 330. Upon the pleading, and iſſue joyned, and ſpecial verdict given, the caſe was ſuch. Tho. Combes Copyholder in fee of 10 acres of paſture in H. of the Mannor of Harmondſworth in the County of Midd. by his Deed 22 No. 5 E. 6. did conſtitute and ordain William Combes and Stephen Erlie 2 Copyhold Tenants of the ſame Mannor his lawful Atturnies, to ſurrender in his turn and name to the Lord of the ſaid Mannor, the ſaid 10 acres, to the uſe of John Nicholas and his heirs: And afterwards at a Court holden of the ſaid Mannor 8 Julii 6 E. 6. the ſaid Atturneys then Tenants of the Mannor by Copy of the Court Roll, did ſhew the ſaid writing, bearing date the 22 of Nov. in Court, and the ſaid William and Stephen by authority of the ſaid Letter of Attorney did ſurrender into the hands of the Lord the ſaid 10 acres, to the uſe of the ſaid John Nicholas and his heirs, who was at the ſame Court admitted accordingly: And that within the ſaid Mannor there was not any Cuſtom to ſurrender Copyhold lands by Atturney, either in Court or out of Court. And if the ſaid ſurrender by the ſaid Letters of Atturney

[b] of the ſaid lands holden by Copy, &c. be good or not, was the doubt which the Jury referred to the conſideration; And this caſe was argued at the Barr, in Michaelmas Hillary, and Eaſter, and this Term by the Juſtices at Bench; and in this caſe 2 points were moved, 1. If a ſurrender may be made by force of a Letter of Attorney. 2. If the Atturneys have purſued their authority. As to the firſt it was agreed by all the Judges in their ſeveral Arguments, that the ſurrender in the caſe at Bar made by Letter of Attorney, was good; and their reaſon was, becauſe that every Copyholder having a cuſtomary eſtate of Inheritance, may of Common right, without any particular cuſtom ſurrender his lands holden by Copy in full Court, and therefore in pleading the Copyholder needeth not allege a Cuſtom within the Mannor to ſurrender in Court; For that which is the uſage throughout England, is the Common Law, as it is holden in 34 H. 8. Br. Cuſtom 59. & 34 H. 8. Dy. 54. quod habetur conſuetudo inter Mercatores per totam Angliam, &c. is no good manner of alleging a cuſtom; for that is the Common Law; and in the book of Entries, tit. Treſp. Diviſion Copyhold 1. fo. 568. no cuſtom is alleged to enable a Copyholder to ſurrender in full Court, no more than that a Copyholder may make a Leaſe for one year; for that he may do by the general cuſtom of the Realm, which is the Common Law. Vid. Bracton. lib. 2. cap. 8. Then if a Copyholder may ſurrender his eſtate in Court by general cuſtom of the Realm, which is the Common Law, from thence it will follow that he may do it by Atturney, as a thing incident by the Common Law: And that will more clearly appear if the reaſon of ſuch things which a man may do by Atturney be well conſidered. And therefore if a man hath a bare authority accompanied with a Truſt, as Executors have to ſell lands, they cannot ſell by Atturney; but if a man hath an abſolute authority, as owner owner of the land, there he may do it by Atturney, as Ceſtui que uſe may, after the Statute of 1 R. 3. and before the Statute of 27 H. 8. for Ceſtui que uſe hath an abſolute authority to diſpoſe of the land at his will, without any confidence repoſed him, as it appeareth in 11 Eliz. Dyer 283. and there is a Judgment cited in 25 H. 8. accordingly, againſt the opinion of ſome Judges in 9 H. 7. 24. But in the caſe at Bar, the Copyholder hath a cuſtomary eſtate of Inheritance, and not an authority of power only. Alſo there is a difference betwixt a general abſolute power and authority as owner of the land, as aforeſaid, and a particular power and authority (by him who hath but a particular Intereſt) to make leaſes for life or years. And therefore if A. be Tenant for life, the remainder in tail, &c. and A. hath power to make Leaſes for 21. years rendring rent, &c. he cannot make a Leaſe for 21 years by Letter of Attorney by force of his power, becauſe he hath put a particular [76] power which is perſonal to him: and ſo was it reſolved in the caſe of the Lady Greſham at the Aſſiſes in Suffolk in Lent, 24 Eliz. by Wray and Anderſon Chief Juſtices of Aſſiſe there. Alſo there are ſome things perſonal, and ſo inſeparably annexed to the perſon of a man, that he cannot doe them by another, as doing of Homage or Fealty: So it is holden in 33 E. 3. Treſpaſs 253. the Lord may beat his Villein for cauſe or without cauſe, and the Villein ſhall not have any remedy; but if the Lord commandeth another to beat his Villein without cauſe, he ſhall have an action of battery againſt him that beateth him in ſuch caſe. So if the Lord diſtrein the Cattel of his Tenant, although nothing be behind, the Tenant for the reſpect and duty which belongeth to the Lord, ſhall not have Treſpaſs vi & armis againſt him; But if the Lord commandeth his Bailif, or Servant in ſuch caſe to diſtrein where nothing is behind, the Tenant ſhall have an action of Treſpaſs vi & armis againſt the Bailif or Servant, 2 H. 4. 4. 11 H. 4. 78. 1 H. 6. 6. 9 H. 7. 14.

Littleton in his Chapter of Burgage holdeth, That where in a Borough he who is ſeiſed of Lands in fee may deviſe by cuſtom, there the Owner of the Land may deviſe that his Executors ſhall ſell, which ſhall be Attornyes to him, 3 E. 3. Coron. 310. by the Cuſtom of a Mannor a Freehold ſhall paſs from one to another by ſurrender in Court, againſt the liking of the Lord, and where the cuſtom is ſuch, the Tenant may doe it by Attorney, 14 H. 4. 1. by Hankford. 19 Aſſ. p. 9.

And it was ſaid, As he to whoſe uſe a ſurrender is made may be admitted by Attorney: ſo a Copyholder may ſurrender by Attorney in full Court: and the caſe of Ceſtuy que uſe ſeemeth to be a ſtronger caſe, becauſe that he who is to be admitted is to doe Fealty, and none can doe Fealty but he who ſhall be admitted, and therefore in ſuch caſe the Lord may refuſe to admit him by Attorney; but if he do admit him by Attorney, it is good enough.

But Hill. 28. Eliz. in Chapmans Caſe it was holden in the Kings Bench, That where the Cuſtom of a Mannor is, That the Copyholder out of Court may ſurrender into the hands of the Lord of the Mannor by the hands of 2. Cuſtomary Tenants, who in effect are but inſtruments or Attorneys of the Copyholder to take his ſurrender, that in ſuch Caſe the Copyholder by his Attorney cannot ſurrender into the hands of the Lord by the hands of 2. Copyhold Tenants; for in as much as in ſuch caſe the ſurrender ought to be warranted by the Cuſtom, the ſurrender without ſpecial Cu- [b.] ſtom to warrant it by Attorney ſhall not be good. Alſo that were upon the matter by Attorney to make a ſurrender by others who are but Attorneys, for that is not warranted by the particular cuſtom of the Mannor to make a ſurrender out of Court. But in the caſe at barr the Common Law, and no particular Cuſtom doth warrant the ſurrender, and therefore it may be well done according to the Rule and reaſon of the Common Law by Attorney. But it was Reſolved, That the Attorney ought to purſue the manner and form of the ſurrender in all points according to the Cuſtom, as the Copyholder himſelf ought to have done; as if the ſurrender by the Cuſtom ought to be by the Roll, or by any other thing, or in any other manner, the Attorney ought to purſue it. And the Chief Juſtice ſaid, That the ſtyle of Copyholder importeth 3. Things: 1. Nomen, his Name: 2. Originem, his Commencement: 3. Titul. his aſſurance: his name is Tenant by Copy of Court Roll, for his name is not Tenant by Court Roll, but by Copy of Court Roll, who is the ſole Tenant by Law who holdeth by Copy of any Record, Charter, Deed, or any other thing. 2. His Commencement, ad voluntatem domini; for at the beginning he was but a Tenant at the will of the Lord; 3. His title or aſſurance, ſecundum conſuetudinem Manerii, for the Cuſtom of the Mannor hath fixed his eſtate, and aſſured the Land to him ſo long as he doth his ſervices and duties, and performeth the Cuſtoms of the Mannor. And therefore Danbie ſaith in 7 E. 4. 19. That by the Cuſtom he is as well inheritable to have the Land, as Tenant to hold his Freehold by the Common Law. And it was Reſolved that the caſe was ſtronger, becauſe the Letter of Attorney was made to thoſe who were Tenants by Copy, &c. of the ſaid Mannor. But it was agreed, That where an Infant of the age of 15. years may make a Feoffment, that he cannot doe it by Attorney, becauſe that Cuſtom which enableth a perſon diſabled by the Law, ought to be purſued, and an Infant can do nothing to paſs any thing out of him by Attorney, Vide 31 H. 4. 33. and it ſhould be hard, if men in priſon, or ſick, or beyond the Sea, could not make ſurrenders of their Lands holden by Copy for payment of their debts, or preferment or advancement of their wives and children, &c. Note Reader, this is the firſt caſe I have known to be adjudged in the point.

2. It was Reſolved, That when any one hath authority, as Attorney, to doe any thing, he ought to do it in his name who giveth the authority; for he appointeth the Attorney to be in his place, and to repreſent his perſon; and therefore the Attorney cannot do it in his own name, nor as his own act, but in the name, and as the act of him who giveth the authority. And it was Object- [77] ed, That in the caſe at barr, That the Attorneys have made the ſurrender in their own names; for the entry is, Quod idem Willielmus, & Stephanus, &c. ſurſum reddat, &c. It was anſwered and Reſolved by the whole Court, that they have well purſued their authority; for firſt they ſhew their

Letter of Attorney, and then they authoritate eis per præd. Literam Attornat. dict. ſurſum, reddiderunt, &c. which is as much as to ſay, as if they had ſaid, We as Attorneys of Thomas Combe ſurrender, &c. and both theſe ways are ſufficient; as he who hath a Letter of Attorney to deliver ſeiſin ſaith, I as Attorney to I. S. deliver you ſeiſin; Or I by force of a Letter of Attorney deliver you ſeiſin; and all that is well done, and in purſuance of his authority: But if Attorneys have power by writing to make Leaſes by Indenture for years, &c. they cannot make Indentures in their own names, but in the names of them who give them warrant. But if a man by his own Will deviſeth that his Executors ſhall ſell his Land, and dieth, there the Executors in their own name may ſell the Land for neceſſity, becauſe that he who giveth them authority by his Will (which taketh effect by his death) is dead; and yet in ſuch caſe the deviſee is in by the deviſor.

Mich. 8 Jacobi. In the Common Pleas.

Henry Peytoe's Caſe.

[b] HEnry Peytoe brought an Ejectione firmæ againſt Robert Chittie and Agnes his wife, and Alice Derbyſhire, of a houſe and a Garden in Godalming in the County of Surrey, upon a demiſe made by Ann Hooke, 7 Aprilis, 8 Jac. Regis for 5. years, and that the Defendant the 10. day of April in the ſame year did eject him, &c. And the Defendants pleaded, That after the ſaid Treſpaſs and Ejectment, ſc. 10 Maii 8. ſupradict. apud Goldalming præd. talis inter Robertum & præfat. Henricum, tam de tranſgreſſione & ejectione præd. quam de omnibus aliis querelis, debitis, & debatis inter eos ante tunc habit. factis, ſive perpetratis, &c. habebatur Concordia; that in ſatisfaction of them the ſaid Robert one of the Defendants ſhould pay to the Plaintif 6*l.* 10*s.* at the feaſt of St. Michael the Archangel then next following; and for the true payment thereof he became bounden in an Obligation of 13*l.* and pleaded the performance thereof, and Receipt of the ſaid ſum at the Feaſt aforeſaid; and thereupon the Plaintif did demur in Law; and it was Objected, That this action of Ejectione firmæ is in the realty, and therein the poſſeſſion ſhall be recovered by Habere facias poſſeſſionem, and thereby the poſſeſſion and Inheritance ſhall be veſted in the Leſſor; and the entry of the Plaintif hanging his writ ſhall abate his writ, as it is adjudged in 6 Eliz. Dyer 226. for in this action the Term is to be recovered. So in an Ejectione firmæ, ancient demeſn is a good plea, as is adjudged in Aldens Caſe in the 5. Part of my Reports, becauſe it taſteth of the realty. And in actions concerning the realty, although it be but a Chattel, real accord is no plea; and therefore it is adjudged in 11 H. 7. 13. b. That in an action of waſte againſt Leſſee for years, an accord executed is no plea, becauſe it is mixt with the realty; by the ſame reaſon in an Ejectione firmæ. Alſo they did much rely upon 2. Rules put in the caſe in 7 E. 6. between Andrew and Boughey, Dyer 75. one, That in all caſes where nothing but amends ſhall be recovered in Damages, there a Concord with execution thereof is a good plea; but in this caſe of Ejectione firmæ, aliquid amplius & magis dignum ſhall be recovered then damages, ſc. the Term. The other Rule put is, In all actions grounded upon a wrong, as Treſpaſs, Conſpiracy, Maintenance, and the like, where nothing in certainty is demanded, nor to be recovered but damages, Concord is a good plea; but in this caſe the action is brought for the recovery of the poſſeſſion of a houſe and Lands demiſed in certain. But it was granted, That if the Term incurr pendant the writ, there accord is a good plea, becauſe that nothing ſhall be recovered but damages: So in an action of waſte againſt Leſſee for years in the tenuit: And [78] Queſtion was made in argument amongſt the Serjeants, What ſhould be the reaſon wherefore when a man is bound to deliver a horſe, &c. or to do any collateral thing, wherefore the Obligee cannot by accord betwixt them, give money or other valuable thing in ſatisfaction thereof, as well as where he is bound to pay money, there he may give a horſe, or any other valuable thing in ſatisfaction thereof.
